Judge Names Junior College Play Winners

Dowling College, Washington, Creston Also Receive Awards

Bloomfield and Marshalltown junior colleges were awarded top ranking for their plays entered in the junior college division of the Iowa play production festival which ended last night.

Three other junior colleges, Dowling (Des Moines), Washington and Creston were judged "excellent."

The judge for the junior college division was Prof. Everett M. Schreck of Iowa State college at Ames.

From the 60 odd players who had roles in the 11 plays, eight received recognition for outstanding performances. They were Charlotte Glemstad, Waukon; Ann Ellen Morgan and Charles Pettit, Bloomfield; William Sheehan, Dowling college, Des Moines; Robert Masson, Washington; Dean Hammans, Creston, and Wilton B. Hodges and Barbara Will, Marshalltown.

The winning plays given by Bloomfield and Marshalltown were "The Castle of Mr. Simpson" and "Dolly's Little Bills" respectively. Dowling's play was "Behold the Man"; Washington, "The Rector"; and Creston, "The Man in the Bowler Hat."

The community division of the festival will begin tomorrow afternoon and continue through Saturday. Following the evening session Saturday evening, awards for the three classes of community plays will be announced by the judges, Gordon Giffen, director of the Omaha Community Playhouse and Hazel Strayer, director of College theater, Iowa State Teacher's college, Cedar Falls.

The Iowa play production festival is sponsored by the extension division, the speech department and the community drama committee of the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs.

The general committee includes Prof. Edward C. Mabie, director of university theater, chairman; Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division; H. Donald Wimbinger of the speech department, secretary; Prof. Vance M. Morton, Prof. Hunton D. Sellman and Prof. Arnold S. Gillette of the University theater staff; Mrs. Hugh Buffum, Cedar Falls, chairman of the drama division, Iowa Federation of Women's clubs, and Mrs. H. J. Thornton, Iowa City, vice-chairman of drama division of the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs.

Reveals Pelley Planned To Become U. S. King

Plotted To Use Silver Legion In Overthrow

Girl Secret Agent Offers Information Before Dies Committee

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)—From the lips of a blonde secret agent—Miss Dorothy Waring, of New York—the Dies committee heard today that William Dudley Pelley had planned to use his Silver Legion to seize the United States government and make himself king.

At the same time, the committee received testimony that aides of the Asheville, N. C., publisher had kept in close touch with a national guard officer at Detroit who trained Ku Klux Klan members for cavalry duty during "the coming turmoil."

The story was unfolded under the direction of Rep. Dickstein (D-NY), vice chairman of the McCormick committee, which preceded the Dies committee in investigating un-American activities for the house.

Dewey Leads N. Y. Election For Delegates

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP)—Pro-Dewey candidates for election as delegates to the republican national convention were far in the lead tonight in the only New York City congressional district where the organization's designees were contested.

Representative Bruce Barton and Mrs. Mildred Hollingsworth, organization designees, had 267 and 284 respectively, in early returns from the 16th congressional district, to 77 and 60 respectively for Mrs. Florence Chatfield and Lambert Fairchild, who ran with opposition to Dewey as the issue.

May Reopen Receivership, Court Decrees

District Judge Scott Given Authority In Iowa City Bank Case

DES MOINES, April 2 (AP)—District Judge W. W. Scott has jurisdiction to reopen the Farmers' Loan and Trust company receivership at Iowa City, the state supreme court held today.

Ben S. Summerwill, examiner in charge of the bank's affairs until his final report was accepted and the receivership was closed in April, 1939, had resisted the move of the state banking department to re-open the case.

The banking department alleges that additional assets have been discovered, including an interest in an Iowa City apartment house, for which there should be an accounting.

Assistant Attorney Gen. Floyd Philbrick said today's supreme court action, overruling Summerwill's claim that the district court no longer has jurisdiction in the matter, leaves the way open to try the banking department's suit on its merits.

In another of the 38 opinions handed down today, the supreme court held that so-called "limited levy" or "special levy" bonds must be considered as part of a city's total bonded indebtedness.

The city of Des Moines, with a bonded debt of approximately $11,000,000, had sought to issue $289,000 in emergency fund bonds with which to finance its WPA program for the season.

In another opinion, the court held that the Sioux City parking meter system is illegal. The opinion did not outlaw parking meters in principle, but it held that the Sioux City plan of pledging city funds to pay for the meters and enforce the system was illegal.

Pennsylvania Flood Waters Recede; Thousands Homeless

Forecasts of Rain Permit No Let-Up In Fight Against Tide

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 2 (AP)—Flood waters which have claimed six lives across Pennsylvania and left thousands temporarily homeless subsided an inch an hour tonight.

A forecast of rain permitted no let-up in the fight against the swirling tide—a fight of men and materials extending from this anthracite city of northeastern Pennsylvania west and south down the valley of the Susquehanna toward the Maryland border.

The feeling persisted that "the worst was over." But the flow still spread over low-lying industrial sections of Kingston, Pittston, and Plymouth, adjoining Wilkes-Barre. Upwards of 6,000 sought higher ground in this region alone.

An all-day threat however, was a fire that burned for 30 hours dangerously close to tanks containing more than 1,500,000 gallons of gasoline. The flames started yesterday in a tank which overturned and exploded. Firemen working from a raft floated an empty oil drums extinguished the blaze with chemicals tonight. Along the 150 miles of the river below Wilkes-Barre the water was either receding or the rise apparently checked. In most places the water was falling.

Early Returns In Wisconsin Favor F.D.R.

MILWAUKEE, April 2 (AP)—Early returns from the Wisconsin delegate primary indicated tonight that two of every three democratic-voting Badger state citizens favor a third term for President Roosevelt.

They expressed themselves directly in the presidential preference balloting in which the president was opposed by Vice-President Garner, whose supporters campaigned on the proposition that a vote for their man would be a declaration against the draft-Roosevelt movement.

School Drops Coach; Iowa Students Strike

WASHINGTON, Ia., April 2 (AP)—Nearly 400 Washington high school and junior college students walked out of classrooms this afternoon in protest against the refusal of the board of education to rehire Fred Maasdam, high school football and junior college basketball coach.

Leaders of the students said the group would not return to classes tomorrow unless the board agreed to engage Maasdam again next year. He has been a coach at the schools two years.

Hull Backs Bullitt's Stand On Nazi Paper

Refuses Request To Hold Ambassador To Answer Questions

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull tonight turned down a request of Representative Fish (R-NY) that William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, be permitted to remain in the United States for two weeks to answer questions of a congressional committee concerning remarks attributed to him in a German "white paper."

The "white paper," allegedly seized from Polish files in Warsaw, reported Bullitt as saying that the United States would join Great Britain and France in fighting Germany.

"I may say in the first place," Hull wrote Fish, "that Ambassador Bullitt has succinctly and categorically denied any imputations relating to himself as contained in that published matter. The executive department of the government has accepted that denial without question. Furthermore, Ambassador Bullitt has been delayed by the illness of his daughter in returning to his post where he is needed."

Bullitt was scheduled to fly from New York tomorrow by clipper for Lisbon, Portugal, en route to his post in Paris. The ambassador was a luncheon guest at the capitol today, and there he was reported to have repeated the denials mentioned by Hull.

Most senators who attended the luncheon agreed that there was only casual mention of the German "white book." One said that Bullitt explained that some of the statements attributed to him might have resulted from the garbling and enlargement of statements he had made in France that in no way reflected the views as presented in the "white book."

Nazis Bomb Scapa Flow, Attack Convoy

British Airmen Shower Explosives Near Island of Sylt

LONDON, April 2 (AP)—British and German air forces stabbed in a brisk give and take across the North sea today, the Germans dropping bombs in a new raid on Britain's great naval anchorage at Scapa Flow and attacking a British convoy, while the British let fall a new shower of bombs about patrol boats off Germany's Sylt base and attacked numerous raiders in the rapid exchange.

Sirens Howl Air raid sirens howled when the bombers came over the Orkney islands at dusk. The all-clear signal was sounded 45 minutes later.

For about five minutes civilians living near Scapa Flow heard heavy anti-aircraft fire; then the explosions of bombs. British fighter planes went up in pursuit of the raiders which made off quickly.

(Germany announced that radio reports from the bombers showed a number of warships were attacked by heavy bombs; that some were damaged by direct hits and that one "listed heavily" after the attack.)

The roar from the engines of the attacking planes indicated a large number was engaged in the attack.

The manager of a public works project said he saw one of the German planes spiral downward toward the sea.

Another spectator saw the flashes of five or six bombs as they splashed in the sea.

The raid at dusk on Scapa Flow was the first since March 16, a raid which was followed by a reprisal blow by the British on the Island of Sylt, when bombs rained for seven hours on the German seaplane base.

Bombers Driven Off The air ministry, in announcing tonight's attack, said anti-aircraft fire from ship and shore batteries drove off the bombers before any ship was hit or damaged.

Without giving an indication of how extensive was the bombing, the ministry said one bomb fell on land, and that one German plane was believed to have been shot down.

The raid, however, apparently was less intensive than that of two weeks ago, when the Germans asserted they had hit four warships, and done extensive damage to airports and anti-aircraft positions.

'Excellent' Cast with 'Outstanding' Actor

liam Sheehan. Sheehan, shown at extreme right, was chosen as one of the outstanding players in the junior college division.

Toll of Blood Pressure High

Passes Heart Disease As Greatest Cause Of Death in America

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor CLEVELAND, April 2—High blood pressure was described before the American College of Physicians today as "the most serious disease in American life."

This common complaint has passed heart disease as the number one killer among the first 10 causes of death. Its yearly toll was given as about 375,000, against about 350,000, the last official figure for heart disease.

The report was made by Doctors E. V. Allen and A. W. Adson, both of the Mayo clinic and the University of Minnesota medical school. The College of Physicians, in convention here, is one of the "Big Three" among American medical societies.

The cause of high blood pressure, they said, is an increase in resistance to the flow through the tips that branch out from arteries.

The report drew a startling picture of heredity's connection. Where the disease runs in families, the second generation dies earlier than the first, and the third earlier than the second.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Daily Iowan: I'm afraid I'm one of the "goal-less personalities in the graduate school" who so appall Miss R. S., whose letter appeared in Sunday's Iowan. I, too, think there is a vital problem on this campus in the lack of personal contact between student and instructor. But it is not the fault of the latter. Perhaps it's due to a defect in a system of free public education which offers to practically anyone who seeks it a chance to get a higher education. For, with advanced book learning so accessible, most state universities have a great many students. Consequently classes are larger, and personalities, unless they make an effort to assert themselves, become submerged in the mass. If we had more instructors, tuition would be higher and consequently fewer people could afford a college education. That would make classes smaller but it wouldn't be free public education.

By way of stopping remarks before they are made, I'm not a sorority girl, I have no relatives on the faculty or in the alumni, I am not (definitely) a Phi Beta Kappa nor even in the Y. W. C. A. In fact, I'm an unimportant graduate—who is more than somewhat annoyed by Miss R. S.

The article entitled "Professors—awake!" in Sunday's Iowan no doubt aroused sympathy in the hearts of some few whose experiences with instructors have not been all that one could desire. Yet I think those few are far outnumbered by others who have found the "warmth of human understanding" on the part of their instructors—when they look for it. Miss R. S.'s attitude apparently is based on an unhappy incident which prompted a blanket of accusation of the faculty as a whole. On the other hand, of some fifteen instructors in whose classes I have been, I can not think of one who I felt was disinterested in his students; who treated them as meal tickets, or as obstacles to scientific research. I have heard that such persons exist. I do not believe all I hear, though undoubtedly there is in some instances basis for an indictment of individual instructors. Almost all of the instructors I have known—and I've been in almost every department in the Liberal Arts college—were most cordial and sympathetic to those who visited them during office hours, an institution, by the way, very much neglected by nearly all students, save those who have to arrange make-up exams, or make excuses for late papers.

Most instructors are human, believe it or not. If they appear formidable in class, they probably do not realize it. Perhaps that is a defense against loneliness. For instructors can be lonely—Hilton's "Mr. Chips" put that point out graphically. A word of appreciation is as much welcome to an instructor as a word of encouragement is to a student. Yet this friendliness on the part of the student body is rare. Contrary to what could well be the belief of the faculty, disinterest is not the most plausible explanation of this. The rather childish fear of being accused of apple-polishing is quite often the barrier between a student and his professor. Some, especially those actually engaged in furishing the fruit, fear the professor's attitude toward a student's visiting him. This fear is practically unfounded. But public opinion is the real bugaboo. All of us hate to be accused of hand-shaking by our fellow students—a childish attitude which often permits a misunderstanding between instructor and student to be forever unsolved.

Yet how else can a professor, who may have an average of from 50 to 150 students in each of three or four classes be expected to contact his students? Not even Miss R. S. can expect him to invite each one of them personally to come in for an hour's chat on their problems in school or in their private lives. Happily, most students do not need someone to adjust their personal problems. Contrary to the opinion held by some that we are a group of social misfits, psychologically deranged and inhibited, most students on this campus are normal. Their problems are best solved by themselves, which is as it should be, for that is the way to learn self-reliance. For the few who need a kind word and the benefit of an older person's attitude on some important problem, there are many members of the faculty who would be glad of the chance to give it. Or—and perhaps this is better left unsaid—there is the small college which, while not usually equipped with the brightest lights in the educational world, is usually better adapted to handle individual problems.

Where Miss R. S. found one instructor sympathetic, I have found several who show a keen interest in their students' educational as well as personal problems. I believe her indictment of the faculty was thoughtless and hasty. It is just possible that she drew all the "short straws." If so, her case is sad—but still her attack is unjustified.

A Chance To Present Student Unity to Iowa

MONDAY NIGHT in Macbride auditorium will be the women's semifinals of the University Sing. For the past few weeks choruses have been practicing faithfully so that the groups will present to the best of their ability their musical talent.

And these practices have not been all work. Indeed not, some have been fun. It was interesting to discover that "Susie" who was always clowning as a lyric soprano really turned out to have a rich contralto voice. The whole group was glad to know that quiet "Martha" had had excellent training and was able to give instructions to the group. The popcorn and candy or even coffee and doughnuts served at rehearsal really made a hit.

Then, too, there is something inspirational in singing with a group. Each individual feels elated when as a member of a chorus she can blend nicely into chord harmony. So even if the women's semifinals is a contest, it is also a chance for each group entered to show to the campus that they have learned to harmonize together and that they love to sing—just for the sake of singing.

Each group may feel that this is one time a year that it is given an opportunity to join with other campus organizations and give Iowa a feeling of student unity.

Consult Your Almanac

THE WORSHIPPING of the sun is usually regarded as a subject of ancient history, something buried deep in the long-distant past. Who would ever think it would be revived in this highly-civilized country of ours?

Yes, we do have sun-worshippers in our midst! Of course, freedom of religion is one of our most-prized rights, and we believe in religious tolerance so strongly we hardly even dare to laugh at them. There's no harm, however, in giving them a little publicity.

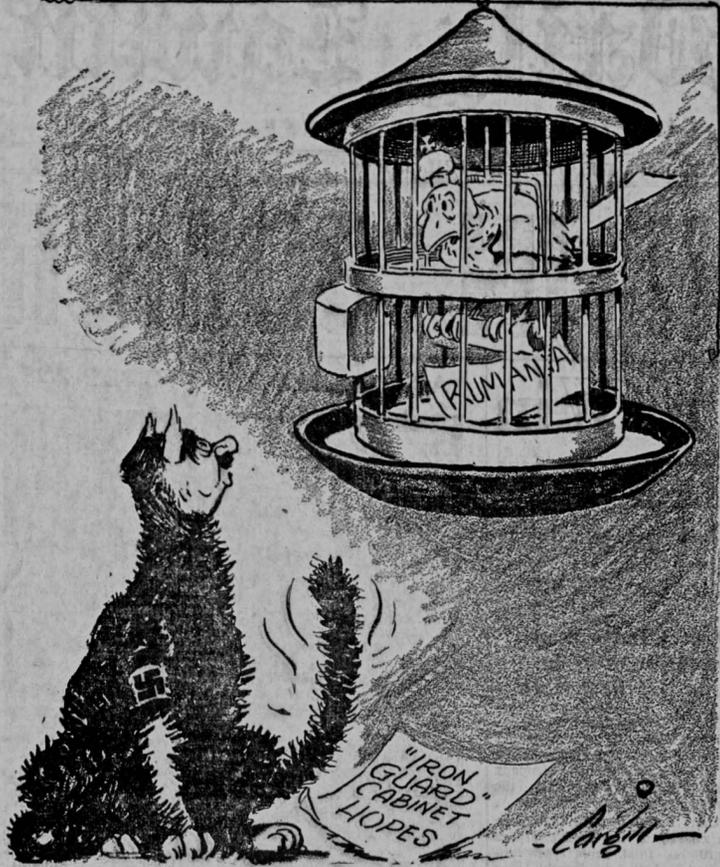

These sun-worshippers must be increasing in numbers, as evidenced by the increasing number of magazines about this cult that are seen on the magazine stands. They worship not only the sun but also the moon, the planets and even the zodiacal constellations. A member of this following has his life-long character predestined from the day of his birth. It all depends on the position of the sun in the zodiac on that day. Say, if he is born between April 21 and May 21 the Sun and Taurus, the great zodiacal Bull, connive together and pigeon-hole this newly-born individual with all the other people born within this zone of influence.

Thus his entire life follows the track laid out for him by his solar, lunar, and planetary gods. He cannot propose to his girl friend until Venus reaches its favorable point in its orbit. By that time the girl has lost interest, which would mean that Venus did not approve of her in the first place. And here he thought she would make a perfect wife for him!

And no wonder his potatoes would not grow! He should have known better than to plant them the day after New Moon! And if he flunks his English test it wasn't his fault. Could he help it if it was given the day his guardian planet went into conjunction with the sun?

Nowadays these people must be trying to figure out how they so greatly offended the Sun God as to cause him to break out with a severe case of sun-spots and to fling out the electrical waves which have been hampering our telegraph and radio service lately.

MEOW-O-WO-I-I!

Look Out, 'Low' Income Groups! Congress May Sock a Tax on the Smaller Wage Earners

CONGRESS recently has been debating the desirability (or the contrary) of lowering income tax exemptions.

That is to say, at present a citizen whose income is below a certain modest level isn't taxed at all. If it's above that level he begins to be taxed. As his income gets larger he's taxed at a gradually increasing rate. If he earns his income he doesn't pay as high a rate on it as he does if he gets it in the form of dividends on some investment.

All this probably is no information to income taxpayers. In mid-March they had to make their usual contributions to their various collectors, and at that time undoubtedly studied the law very thoroughly.

However, it behooves the folk whose incomes thus far have been below the taxable level to take notice that there's a good bit of Washington sentiment in favor of socking considerably smaller incomes than heretofore. Naturally this, if it's done, will catch a great many individuals who haven't paid a cent's worth of that kind of taxes up to date.

Not Entirely Unpopular Now, an income tax generally is spoken of as about the most unpopular of all forms of taxation to those who have to pay it.

Of course it isn't unpopular, though, to those whose incomes are below the taxable level. On the contrary, they incline to regard it as a levy on a privileged class, and to feel that it serves em right for being so opulent. As soon as the thing begins to hit today's "exemptis," however, it's a safe prediction that their squawk will be something awful.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

Congressmen foresee just what a howl there'll be and are pretty hesitant to antagonize so many voters. Just the same, the money is badly needed. Furthermore, lawmakers are quite numerous who argue, confidentially, that an unpopular tax is the best kind of a tax, for the very reason that the taxpayers are sure to yell bloody murder at the first sign of governmental extravagance.

Indirect Taxation This school of thought contends that indirect taxation is bad business because the public doesn't realize it's being taxed at all—it suffers under the load, but fails to comprehend what it's suffering from.

For instance, assume that Uncle Sam gets his revenue from a customs impost. Importers pay it on goods they bring into the country, but when they sell these goods they charge that much more for them. Consequently the ultimate consumer really is the chap who pays the tax, though he doesn't know it because the money isn't taken directly out of his pocket by a treasury official. He may growl because he considers prices too high, but unless he's a good deal of an economist he's unaware that he's being taxed.

Sales taxes are the same way. The folk who do the selling charge that much more for the stuff they sell. Or perhaps they charge more than the tax amounts to.

Revenue Stamps, Too Ditto revenue stamps. When I buy a package of cigarets my notion is that cigarets are what I'm paying for. I have to stop and do some deliberate thinking to realize that I'm paying also for the revenue stamp across the end of the package.

But there's no misapprehension about income taxation. To begin with, making out the "return" is a nuisance.

And you know exactly how much you're paying. It HURTS and you know it's a TAX that's hurting you.

You wouldn't pay that tax if you could help it. Uncle Sam holds you up and takes it away from you. He implies a threat, too—the threat of criminal prosecution if you're balky. The form of thing is offensive. It makes you sore if you're like the average person.

Proponents of the income tax contend that all this is a good thing—it makes the country "tax conscious."

But that congress really will lower the exemption figure isn't so certain. Plenty of its members who favor the plan in theory are decidedly timid about going on record to that effect on account of what they are pretty sure the voters' reaction will be next election day.

FRED ALLEN will interview the head window-washer on the tallest building in the world as his "Person You Didn't Expect To Meet" tonight at 8 o'clock over the NBC-Red network. Hart will explain the job of keeping 7,000 windows glistening (he does the top windows himself, hanging out in rarified atmosphere approximately a quarter of a mile above street level).

Says Fred: "My week is budgeted like a recipe for a nervous breakdown." Still, the nasal-voiced comedian has survived through almost a third of a century of it. He will celebrate the 30th anniversary of his entrance into show business the latter part of this month.

A NEW PROGRAM, "Light of the World," is scheduled for its premiere hearing this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Based on the Bible, the show will begin with the episode of Noah's Ark. Noah will be played by Ed Jerome. Others in the cast are Chester Stratton, Bartlett Robinson, Ted Reid, Clarence Allen and Gertrude Werner.

STAR THEATER tonight will feature Victor Moore, supported by Helen Twelvetrees and John Beal. As hero of the play, "Alias the Deacon," Moore portrays a card sharp whose clerical appearance gives him the nickname of Deacon. From the Hollywood end of the program will come Ken Murray, Kenny Baker, Frances Langford and Irene Ryan.

FRANCES will sing "On the Isle of May," and Kenny's song will be "Macushla." For the comedy, Speedy Murray will help Slap-baker with his homework in preparation for spring final exams. The show is aired at 8 o'clock over CBS.

GRACIE ALLEN will hang on to her place in the presidential run tonight on the 6:30 CBS program. Her efforts to raise a campaign fund will be dramatized. And Frank Parker's song will be "Sweet and Lovely." Featured number of Ray Noble's orchestra will be "So Far So Good."

A Broadway rumor runs something like this: Producer William Harris Jr., wants Gracie Allen for a comedy murder play written by Owen Davis. The thing is tentatively titled "The Norths Meet Murder."

TELEVISION broadcasters cannot seek sponsors, according to a decision of the Federal Communication Commission, revoking the "limited commercial" order. RCA has consequently halted its promotional campaign, but will continue the sale of television receivers. The industry considers

Off For Virginia City That Little Town Of Pioneering Day Fame For Its Silver

By GEORGE TUCKER

ABOARD THE FORTY NINER—Get out a map of the U. S. and draw a line between New York and Virginia City, Nev.

Virginia City is 21 miles to the west and a little to the north of Reno. Somewhere along this line, this train is bowling across bleak landscapes which, in a few months, will be green with growing corn.

But don't think about corn now. Think about Virginia City. This is a junket to Virginia City, or rather the ghost of it. Seventy years ago Virginia City was the wildest boom town west of the Mississippi; it was the scene of incredible bonanzas, a mining camp where the vigilantes wrote their activities in wisecracks on cemetery tombstones.

Sometimes things happen to a country that can't be adequately explained, like Swing and Ann Sheridan and the New Deal. Virginia City was that way, too; it just happened. But the real Virginia City, the old border-bordello boom town of Comstock days, doesn't exist any more. All that remains is a legend, a ghost locked up in a silver locker.

What happens to a ghost when the movies come along—as Warner Brothers came to Virginia City recently—and pry open the locker? That's the purpose of this junket, to find out. But before you can appreciate what is happening today, you've got to know what happened—when.

Get out a broom with stiff bristles on it and sweep away the years and the dust. If you sweep hard enough, you'll strike pay dirt. You'll strike silver, and the Comstock lode, and the ghost of Edwin Booth playing Hamlet at Piper's Opera house. This is the town where Mark Twain worked as a writer on the old Territorial Enterprise, and where the riders customarily shod their horses with silver shoes, because it was showy, and silver was easier to get hold of than iron.

In those days, they say 40,000 people were there; today, there are only about 500. The old town itself—the shell—looks pretty much the same, with its plank casinos and loose board walk. The main difference is that the tents are gone, and most of the gold; and a man can walk across C street at night without the danger of getting hit by a forty-four slug.

A couple of weeks ago, the movie-makers moved in on Virginia City. They came in trainloads. They set up loud speakers. They festooned the streets. And they put on a mardi gras that perhaps no ghost town has witnessed since "Dodge City." The purpose of this was the world premiere of Warner's picture, "Virginia City."

But that was two weeks ago. The old town has had a chance to get back its breath, and maybe its perspective. We're going out there, and look around and see. It should be fun walking those old streets where the bordello jennies used to sing inelegant ballads ever so engagingly to sourdoughs, and where that thing you thought was a cry was only roulette wheels whining.

We'll get there day after tomorrow. The porter just stuck his head through the door and announced briefly we're coming into Omaha. Once I spent a whole summer in Omaha, one of the nicest towns I was ever in.

This porter is a live wire. His name is Radford Brook Petty, and he comes from South Carolina. In 16 years of portering on pullmans, the most interesting passenger he ever served was the late Floyd Gibbons. He names Gibbons without hesitation, Gibbons, it finally leaked out, once bought him a dinner and gave him a $13 tip.

Hawks Set To Face Bradley This Afternoon

Final Plans for the Opener

There's a session on strategy on hand here as Coach Otto Vogel, in dark sweater, talks to the Iowa baseball squad at the practice field. Vogel, whose team shared the Big Ten title two years ago and won it outright last spring, will send his team on the field this afternoon in the season's home opener. The Hawks face Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., at 4 o'clock. Thus far, on a six-game trip through Louisiana, the Iowa team won five games and played —Daily Iowan Photo, Engraving a 2-2 tie that was called after 11 innings. The Hawks are captained by Jim George, hard clouting center fielder, and Harold Haub, hurler who won four Big Ten games last year without a defeat.

Although the weather last night was becoming decidedly damp, Iowa's baseball team was set for the 1940 home opener, against Bradley Tech at 4:05 this afternoon. If the diamond is dry enough this afternoon the once-postponed game will be played.
Although Coach Otto Vogel hasn't made any definite statements about the 1940 possibilities and there are several uncertain spots left by the graduation last spring of Art Manush, Bill Vogt, Elmer Bratten, Wendell Winders and Kenny Reid, local followers still express confidence that the Hawks will be a potent outfit.
Untested Outfielders
Probably the biggest worry Vogel has had is in the matter of outfield replacements. With only Co-Capt. Jim George left from last year's brilliant outer garden

Infield's New Member

Among the new faces on the Iowa baseball team is that of Rudy Radics, above. Radics, sophomore first-baseman, takes the place held during recent seasons by Elmer Bratten. Other new members of the team are Bill Welp, catcher; Floyd Smith, outfielder; Bob Cook, outfielder; and Jack Jeans, also an outfielder. Jeans will start in left field today, with either Smith or Cook in right field. Along with Radics in the infield will be a trio of veterans, Erwin Prasse, Andy Kantor and Frank Kocur.

Rangers Win First Game With Toronto

Alf Pike Stars In Stanley Cup Hockey Finals

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP)—Alf Pike, New York Ranger rookie who came close to being the goat of the first game of the Stanley cup hockey finals, emerged as the hero tonight when he scored a goal after 15 minutes and 30 seconds of "sudden death" overtime play to give the Rangers a 2 to 1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.
It was Pike whose misplay in the first period had cost the Rangers a possible chance to end the first game of the final round within the regular three periods. But he more than made up for this error in the eyes of a crowd of 12,437 when he blasted a beautiful shot past Turk Broda, the Toronto goalie, to bring the game to an abrupt end.

Volleyballers In Six Contests

Intramural volleyball entered the championship round of play last night as six games were played.
Delta Upsilon of class A downed Alpha Chi Sigma, 5-15, 15-11, 15-9, in a double elimination round game.
Phi Gamma Delta defeated this same victorious Delta Upsilon team in two successive matches, 15-11, 15-9.
Phi Kappa Sigma, defending champions, ran roughshod over a hapless Phi Epsilon Kappa team by the scores of 15-4, 15-5.
Phi Gamma Delta had an easy time in downing Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 15-6, 15-2, in a class B league tilt.
Sigma Chi defeated Delta Upsilon in two straight games, 15-8, 15-13, in another class B league contest.

And for a possible one-man battery the Bradley outfit has something to offer, for Pitcher will catch. Chuck Pitcher, a junior, is first string man behind the plate. He and "Whizzer" White will probably be the battery against Iowa.
Local baseball fans admit, dolefully, that Art Manush will be missed. The outfield star, one of the famous ball playing Manush family, hasn't been equalled around here for some time for ability to arroe with the stands, despite his always present fear that Uncle Heinie would end up with the Phillies.

A good share of the fieldhouse activity was absent yesterday as football coaches departed in a body for another knife and fork engagement. Sterling, Ill., took, not one, but all the coaches, leaving players with no one to direct their practice.

They had Mike Howard cornered the other day on the subject of college wrestling. It was on the subject of putting a bit of the old professional punch and groan stuff in.
But when someone suggested he import something like the "Angel," the French freak given so much publicity of late, Howard wriggled out.
"He couldn't stay eligible," says Howard.

Waldo Geiger, a father of only a few days, has noted that Waldo Jr., has hands that might throw a football some day. He says he plans to have Nile Kinrick talk to his coming athlete.

Dad Schroeder, who has taught practically every sport, says the only time he ever tipped over in a canoe was while he was demonstrating to a class once how not to tip over. Once down in the water he continued the lesson, telling the students what to do if they did upset.

Jones Memories Come Back

Bobby Shoots a 66 in Practice Round Before Augusta Links Meet

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 2 (AP)—The master of Augusta still is the master of every shot. Before the biggest and most enthusiastic gallery of this practice day for the coming Augusta National golf tournament, Bobby Jones shot a six-under-par 66 today to bring back vivid memories of the Jones of old.
Almost shunted to the sidelines of his own tournament by a back ailment in recent weeks, Bobby has bounced up again and is hitting the ball as handsomely as he ever did. When he completed today's round over the course he designed himself, he had played his last 27 holes in an even 100 strokes, and was eight under par for that distance.
The pride of Georgia teamed up with Charley Yates, the lad who once looked like his successor, against Horton Smith and Bud Ward, the national amateur champion. This latter was the combine that had won the St. Augustine pro-amateur tournament. But this time they were something else again, but he stayed, and on his feet.

Of the three only Galento has done anything of note since meeting Louis. He defeated Lou Nova, who had defeated Max Baer. Pastor took a decision in a bout down in Texas, but Godoy still is basking in the glory of his moral victory, and refuses to meet any other fighter even socially until he gets a chance at Louis again.
Baer and Galento will meet May 28 at Jersey City, and that may cut the list to two. After that, unless another elimination is arranged, Louis will have to do his own cutting.
Most of Louis' opponents in his title defenses have done little in a fisty way since meeting the champion. Tommy Farr, to show he was impartial, dropped decisions to all and sundry, and now is reported back in the British army after being discharged from the air service because of defective eyesight.
Nathan Mann still is fighting, and winning fairly consistently. Harry Thomas is through, his charges of "fixed" bouts hurrying the end. Max Schmeling is somewhere in Germany, John Henry Lewis has retired and is a salesman, and Jack Roper (re-member him?) is fighting occasionally on the coast. Paychek could use a job as a cocktail shaker.

Allen, Karchomsky, Sjuln Win Bouts In All-U Tourney

The semi-finals in the all-university wrestling championship round were in progress yesterday afternoon as 10 matches were held.
Allen of Sigma Alpha Epsilon defeated Boshart of Phi Epsilon Kappa for the championship in the heavyweight class of the frateron in the 118-pound class to Karchomsky of the Quad won a decision over Hennessey of Jefferson in the 118-pound class to gain in the final all-university round.
Sjuln of Delta Upsilon won another match by gaining a decision over Spenser of the Quad in the 126-pound division.
Guthrie of Gables threw Turft of Hillcrest in 45 seconds to gain in the 126-pound division.
The best match of the afternoon occurred in the 145-pound class as Hannon of Beta Theta Pi threw Simpson of the town league in three minutes, 46 seconds. Both men were very aggressive at the start of the grueling battle.
Also in the 145-pound class, Kirby of Kellogg threw Fuller of Quad in two minutes, nine seconds.
LePresti of Hillcrest gained a decision over C. Scott of Whetstone in the 155-pound division.

Track Entrants Now Total 22 For State High School Meet

Angott-Day Bout All Set

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 2 (AP)—The way was cleared for the Davey Day-Sammy Angott lightweight fight here Derby eve, May 3, when wrestling promoter Heywood Allen Sr., agreed today to relinquish his lease on the Jefferson county arena.
The bout is for the national boxing association championship. The Sportsman's boxing club, promoting the 15-round match, immediately began making seating plans for a capacity house sealed to $34,500 on a price range of $5.75 ringside down to $1.25.

Track Mentor Of Irish Dies

SOUTH BEND, April 2 (AP)—John P. Nicholson, track coach at the University of Notre Dame, died here tonight of heart trouble. Nicholson had coached Irish track and field squads 15 years. He was the trainer of Greg Rice, distance star, and other noted trackmen.

197 Runners Named As Class B Teams Await Prep Event

Entry of eleven more schools has raised the total to 22 in the class B state interscholastic championship track and field meet in the University of Iowa fieldhouse Saturday.
The entry list Tuesday noon bore the names of 197 athletes. Knoxville, Grinnell, and Vinton, each with 15 entrants, have the largest squads named to date. Coach George Bresnahan reported.
Tuesday's entries were headed by Fairfield, winner of the 1940 Little Six conference indoor title. Valley high of West Des Moines, with a 13-athlete squad, was another powerful title contender.
It was announced by Coach Bresnahan that the quarter, half, and mile races, as well as the relays would be started at the extreme west end of the fieldhouse, allowing about 100 yards of straightway before the first turn. This will eliminate much of the jamming on the turn.
New entries up to Tuesday noon: Corydon, 6; Valley of West Des Moines, 13; Keota, 9; Vinton (City high), 15; Denison, 13; Tipton, 9; Sigourney, 14; Lyons of Clinton, 12; Wellman, 5; Fairfield, 14; and Thornburg, 2.
On the afternoon program will be three final events: the quarter mile, pole vault, and two mile relay. Trials are scheduled in the dash, both hurdles, broad jump, and shot put.

Kellys Nick Stengels

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—After giving the first two batters to face him, Carvel Rowell and Maxie West, a triple and a homer, rookie Joe Callahan settled down and pitched the Kellys to an 11-4 win over the Stengels yesterday in the Boston Bees' final intrasquad practice game.

Pinocchio the Puppet and His Crew Put on Quite a Show for Local Club

By EDWARD MANNION

There was an impetuous, pert little fellow with a long nose and flexible joints "hanging" around East hall last night... and he gave a dramatic performance without the least sign of stage fright.

His name was Pinocchio the puppet, and he was "hanging" from strings controlled by Mary Margaret French, G of Grand Forks, N. D., who has achieved considerable fame about the campus as a puppet-master.

Those of you who have never seen a puppet show have missed a delightful experience. That's the opinion at least of members of the Demosthenes club before whom the pantomime production was presented. The response was not at all surprising to Miss French who pointed out that interest in puppets as an educational factor and as a source of amusement is growing in this country.

"Adults as well as children see in these simple figures something that appeals to them," she explained. "This fantastic theater has been made and operated by generations of showmen for the wonder of men and women and boys and girls of all ages and classes."

Miss French became an impresario at the age of six. Her interest in marionettes was encouraged by her mother who teaches a course called "puppetry" at the University of North Dakota. Her mother has her own puppet theater and writes many of her own plays.

In the correct sense a "puppet" is a doll-like figure which fits over the hand and is operated from below by the fingers, Miss

French explained. A "marionette" means a figure with movable limbs and is manipulated from above by means of strings or wires. But in a general sense the word "puppet" has come to include any figure manipulated either from above or below.

Pinocchio, for instance, is called a puppet although his wooden head, hands, feet and torso are controlled by strings from above. These strings are his nervous system and are attached to two wooden handles that are held in the operator's hands. The wooden handles govern his position and when rocked back and forth or lifted and dropped give the motion of walking and dancing.

When he dances, it's like looking at a vaudeville show through the wrong end of an opera glass.

The regular puppets, which fit over Miss French's hand like a glove, are made from a variety of materials taken mostly from her mother's scrap-bag. A personable young man named Gol Darnit has a stocking darning for a head, tacks for eyes, a button for a nose and pieces of sponge for mouth and eyebrows. The lady puppets wear voluminous smocks with neat aprons of contrasting colors.

"Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr have nothing on these two," was the observation of one Demosthenator after seeing a boy and girl puppet called Huldy and Zek'l give a realistic interpretation of James Russell Lowell's love poem, "The Courtin'." Robinson Crusoe, Tom Billy and Winnie the Pooh

—a character taken from a book by A. A. Milne—are the names of other puppets which performed.

Miss French confesses that she has never decided which of the two types she prefers. For the most part she keeps her puppets for slapstick purposes and the marionettes for more serious work. Those who think that the latter is impossible will be surprised to know that puppet plays have ranked all the way from the presentation of O'Neill productions to sophisticated revues.

"The students who took part in the recent play festival could learn a lot by studying the simplicity with which a puppet acts," Miss French asserted. She pointed out that only the important things are emphasized in a puppet performance as the gestures are few and to the point.

Maybe the fantastic little creatures with the flexible joints and the puppeteer who controls them have something there.

Janson To Discuss Influences Of North on Renaissance Art

Art Staff Member To Be Baconian Speaker Tomorrow

Horst W. Janson of the art department will discuss the influence of the north in early Italian Renaissance art when he presents the Baconian lecture tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

The subject has been studied only comparatively recently by only a few historians and critics. Until about 30 years ago the fact that all Renaissance art had its beginnings in Florence was never doubted.

Recent research by art historians has shown that Flemish and German engravings introduced a new element into Italian painting. This element is described by Mr. Janson as an emotional intensity: no longer were the paintings of abstract spiritual beings—they took on a human element which gave them naturalness and warmth.

Leonardo da Vinci was the first to adopt this northern idea which he got from the engravings easily transported into his country.

One of the few scholars doing work on this subject, Mr. Janson will describe and illustrate with slides the various northern elements that went into the Florentine art of the 15th century. Most of the research on this problem has been taking place at Warburg institute, London, formerly of Hamburg, Germany.

Mr. Janson, instructor of history and appreciation of art, has been on the campus since 1938. He came here from Harvard where he was an assistant in fine arts, and where he received his master's degree. While there he held the Charles W. Holtzer fellowship.

Widening of the drive was necessitated by the congestion of parked cars of dormitory residents, which made for hazardous traffic.

Church Plans Student's Mass

Rev. Donald Hayne Announces Services At 11:30 on Sundays

Mass for Catholic students of the university will be celebrated at St. Mary's church every Sunday at 11:30 a.m. beginning next Sunday, the Rev. Donald Hayne, chaplain of the Catholic foundation, has announced.

Services at the Riley chapel will be discontinued, and the new schedule will be assumed in the nature of an experiment which is in keeping with the Catholic foundation's policy of adjusting its plans to student needs, Father Hayne said.

Should the trial prove satisfactory to the foundation and to St. Mary's church it may be resumed in September for the next school year. Reservations for the student body will be allowed in the center of the church at this service.

"The Catholic foundation deeply appreciates the cooperation of Monsignor Meinberg, pastor of St. Mary's, in arriving at this experimental arrangement," Father Hayne said in his announcement of the new arrangement.

"Likewise, I should be remiss if I failed to pay tribute to Walter E. Riley, who has been a generous and most obliging host since we began to hold the students' Masses in his chapel last autumn. Mr. Riley will always be counted as one of the pioneer benefactors of the Catholic foundation," the chaplain concluded.

Allies Ready To Tighten Thumb-Screws on Blockaded Reich

—INTERPRETATIVE—

Chamberlain Ignores Soviet In Latest Talk

Prime Minister Implies Approaching Showdown Between Hitler, Stalin

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

An ominous warning to European neutrals that France and Britain are determined to tighten the thumb-screws of economic warfare against Germany marked Prime Minister Chamberlain's guarded revelation to parliament of new decisions reached by the supreme war council.

Yet Britain's war leader passed over lightly the major factor: obviously haunting allied leaders—namely, Soviet Russia's ability or willingness to off-set the allies' economic pressure against Germany.

Chamberlain dealt much more directly with steps already taken and in prospect to bar the flow of essential war commodities reaching Germany from other European and Balkan neutrals.

It cannot be denied that the Chamberlain speech paves the way for whatever action the allies find necessary to seal Scandinavian water by-passes against German sea traffic and war craft. He specifically warned the Baltic neutrals that the allies could not tolerate the Nazi conception of a "double standard" neutrality.

Whether that means that the British navy stands ready to carry its blockade patrol into Norwegian and Danish territorial waters to close the Skagerrak entrance to the Baltic was not made clear. It had that plain intimation, however, and prepared British public opinion for such a move and for the outcry from Germany and Scandinavia which would certainly follow.

The prime minister half unfolded a new pattern of British trade pacts with neutrals fringing Germany from the Baltic to the Balkans. It aims to strip those markets, by allied purchase and barter, of food, fats and oil which Germany must have to carry on the war. Mobilization of French and British diplomats from the Balkan states for conferences in Paris and London spells an intensive and immediate effort to include Balkan neutrals, along with the Scandinavian, low country and Swiss, in the trade deals which Chamberlain announced.

While Chamberlain was speaking in London, news dispatches from Bucharest indicated that Rumania had rejected German efforts to obtain demobilization of a large part of the Rumanian army in order to stimulate Rumanian food production needed by Germany. Instead, an army of Rumanian youths of school age will be formed to till the fields.

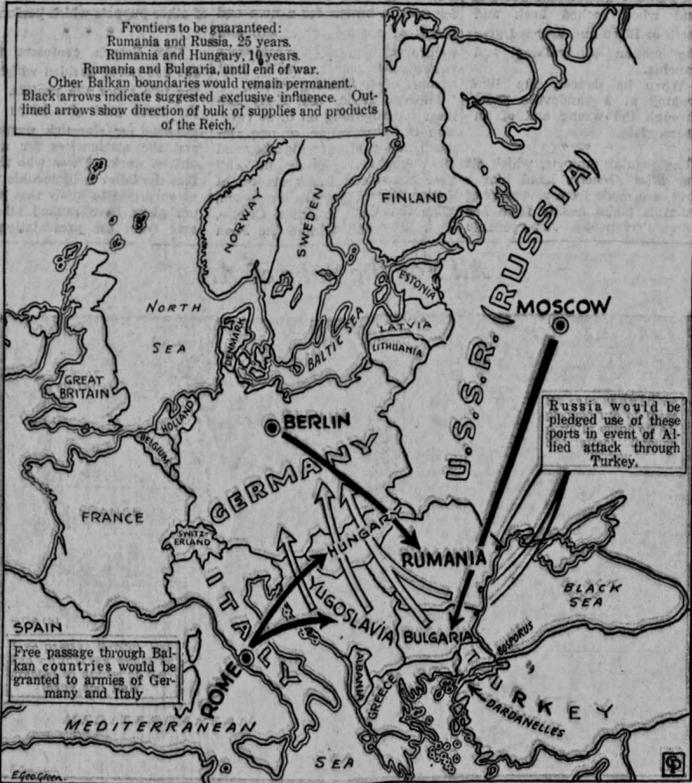

Behind that lies the continuing suspicion of King Carol and his government that Russia, despite Berlin's assurances or Moscow's declarations, would seize the opportunity of Rumanian demobilization to reassert by force her claims to Bessarabia.

Chamberlain's sketchy and incomplete summary of allied war plans implied that the results of seven months of strangulation pressure on Germany had led to hopes that, by intensifying the blockade at every other point, a showdown between Germany and Russia could be forced within the year.

Stoppage of leaks in the economic encirclement of Germany might compel renewed German pressure on Russia to sacrifice all other considerations and pour into Germany all the food, oil and other war-making resources she could spare. Russian policy has not indicated that Moscow was playing the game for any but its own hand.

Allied moves to tighten the economic blockade, revealed or hinted in the Chamberlain speech, point toward a London-Paris conclusion that next winter will bring the crucial test of its effectiveness, and will also bring an answer to the great enigma of the war, the actual role to be played by Russia.

How Axis Powers Put Pressure on Balkans

This Central Press map shows how Germany, Italy and Russia are bringing pressure on the neutral Balkan states in order to capture the Balkan trade and assure themselves of vital resources. The arrangement pictured above would take place under the proposed "neutralization" of southeastern Europe discussed recently by Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy.

What Do Words Mean?

This Is One of the Questions That General Semantics Tries To Answer

By IRENE SUTTON

Ever try to talk yourself into anything? Did you ever rationalize for your behavior? Of course you have, and it's largely a matter of words, and what they mean to you. How do words come to have meaning anyway, and how do they determine whether or not you are sane?

Well, there's a course at the University of Iowa now that is concerned with such questions. Yes, it's the general semantics course. No, not a study of the meaning of words in the dictionary sense, but the study of their "living" meaning. More than that, general semantics deals with the effect of various kinds of statements upon the individual who is talking and upon the listener.

Prof. Wendell Johnson of the psychology and speech departments, who teaches general semantics, says of the course, "It is concerned with the relation of language behavior to all other aspects of behavior and to the changes in social organization."

"Only in a very gross way can the meaning of an individual's statements be derived from the dictionary," further explains Professor Johnson.

"What the general semanticist tries to achieve is a language structure and an on-going language behavior conducive to individual and group adjustments which will have the maximum survival value," summarizes Professor Johnson in his description of the course.

Incorporated in this adjustment angle is sanity via words. With the proper use of words you can live a more orderly, well-balanced life. Suppose something, say lightning, frightens you when you see it. Find out why—scientifically state just what occurs. What happens to your fear? You find there was legislation by 5 p.m. April 26.

All submissions must be original in approach and must embody a new idea or theory, analyze new material or analyze old material in an original manner. References and citations must be accompanied by footnotes to indicate the source of the material. Papers written for regular class assignments shall be eligible for competition. Essays shall not exceed 5,000 words.

A prize of $15 will be given as first prize, $10 for second prize and $5 to the third place winner. Three other submitted essays will be given honorable mention. The committee is not bound by contest rules to award a prize each year.

Papers will be judged on content, organization, originality, literary excellence and style by three faculty members of the Order of Artus selected each year by the total membership of the order. Winners will be announced two weeks after the contest closes.

A list of suggested topics is posted on the college of commerce bulletin board.

Still another study in the field of general semantics is now being carried on by Janet Frasier. Her M. A. thesis is concerned with an analysis of the language used by stutters in expressing their own theories of stuttering.

The use of words by children has also gained the attention of general semanticists. In a Ph. D. study Elizabeth Kuntz Hamstra is analyzing changes in the language used by two-year-old children over a five-months period with particular attention to changes in the extensional meaning of the words used by these children. She is attempting to discover whether their use of words changes as they grow older and whether their behavior is influenced differently by the words.

Professor Johnson is also carrying on some research which amounts to a comparative analysis of the written and spoken language of children of different age levels designed to give a more accurate description of the development of language behavior and to determine its relation to other aspects of development.

The scope of general semantics is broad so far as its applications are concerned. It can be applied in almost every field. Although the University of Iowa is a pioneer in the subject, other universities have begun to make practical application of general semantics. At Northwestern university a course in the subject was introduced this semester in connection with the work of public speaking and debate. The teaching of freshman English at the University of Wisconsin and at the Armour Institute of Technology at Chicago has been aided by the use of general semantics.

At the University of Chicago general semantics has been given its chief application in the division of student health in the work of personality adjustment carried on among students. In addition the system has been applied there in the teaching of physics.

At the University of Oklahoma some research is being done in which certain principles of general semantics are being applied to dictionary study.

In other places, psychiatrists, child psychologists, economists, students of law, mathematicians and other types of specialists are making applications of general semantics to their respective fields.

Finally what does general semantics mean to the student? "The place of general semantics in modern education is that of a basic general method," comments Professor Johnson. "It is chiefly a set of principles and techniques relating to the use and interpretation of symbols, particularly the symbols of written and spoken language; as such it is concerned with any field of human activity in which language and other symbols are involved including daily living."
