Colleagues, Students, Friends Pay Tribute
To Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh

By D. MAC SHOWERS
Daily Iowan Campus Editor

An impressive final tribute to his greatness was paid yesterday afternoon by colleagues and friends of Iowa's Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the university political science department until his death last Sunday evening.

Opening with solemn ringing of Old Capitol bell, a brief program of Professor Shambaugh's favorite records was conducted by Dr. Jack T. Johnson as friends assembled—just as had been the custom of Professor Shambaugh and Dr. Johnson in the campus course.

The Rev. Evans A. Worthley of the First Unitarian church of which Professor Shambaugh was a member opened the memorial service. Speaking for the campus as a native Iowan and a colleague of Professor Shambaugh's for many years, Dean Paul C. Packer of the college of education addressed the gathering in the main lounge of Iowa Union. W. W. Waymack, editor of the editorial page of the Des Moines Register, also a native Iowan, spoke for Iowa and the board of curators of the State Historical society of Iowa of which he is a member.

The Rev. Mr. Worthley closed the memorial tribute with Professor Shambaugh's own goodbye message sometimes given to his campus course class at the end of the semester. This included the prayer of Socrates and the Song of Tazore.

Following a moment of silent prayer "Going Home" from Dr. Frank's "New World" symphony was played.

continued, "to remember my friend and colleague Benjamin F. Shambaugh as a builder of traditions and a dreamer of dreams. As I speak you will think of many traditions he inaugurated and nourished to a finished degree, such as the university lectures with their unforgettable introductions and the spirit he built into the campus course. As is always true, it is not material surroundings that made the campus course a tradition at the university, but a spiritual direction that this great teacher gave it."

"As a dreamer of dreams," the education dean went on, "I think his greatest and most cherished dream was the dream of the university of tomorrow. I quote from an unpublished manuscript of one of his own university lectures under the intriguing title of 'The More Than in University Education.' Here he says:

"More Than University
"Compared to the university of today there is in the More Than university less of organization, less of regimentation, less of supervision, less of timing.
"There is less of the vocational and more of the cultural.
"There is less of testing, less of grading, less of classification, and less of standardization.
"There is more of synthetic and less of analysis.
"More of creation and less of manufacturing.
"More of the individual and less of the crowd.
"More of joy and less of jazz.
"There is less of methods and more of morals.
"Less of efficiency and more of living.
"Less of the letter and more of the spirit.
"Less of science and more of art.
"Less of the factual and more of the More Than."

"Could there be a more revealing picture of the spirit of this dreamer of dreams?" he asked.

"Finally," Dean Packer said, "what simple tribute may the university best pay to this man who has so lately walked among us? In my search for the answer to this question, I came upon his address given at the celebration of the 90th anniversary of the university.

"Many of you will remember that evening when Dr. Shambaugh, in that memorable address, (See SHAMBAUGH, Page 8)

Nazi Death Toll Near 5,000 in Sea Battle

Churchill Bids Destruction Of Nazi Navy

18 German Vessels Sunk as Warfare Rages on High Seas

By DREW MIDDLETON
LONDON, April 11 (AP)—The somber shapes of Britain's fleet, acclaimed already as the destroyers of more than 18 Nazi vessels and perhaps upward of 5,000 Nazi lives, tossed and fought in prolonged battle tonight, charged by Winston Churchill with the task of sinking every German ship in the gateways to the Baltic.

The "first crunch of war," set off by German invasion of Denmark and Norway, raged on in the stormy northern seas, and the royal navy was bidding for total destruction of Hitler's seapower.

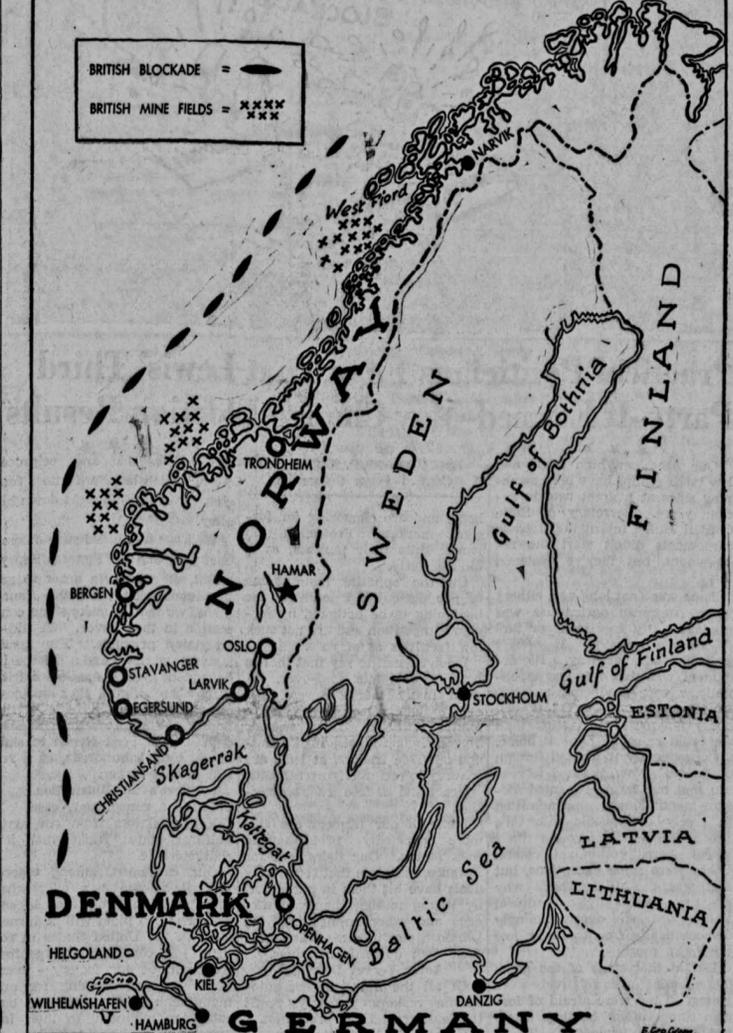

While Churchill made it plain that, up to the time of his speech, the allies had seized no Norwegian coastal ports, British news agencies continued to bring unconfirmed Swedish reports of such operations. One of these reports said British warships appeared to be landing men from outer Oslofjord; others told of continued naval action at Trondheim, in the Skagerrak and elsewhere. For the time being, the reports were accepted with reserve by neutral observers.

To Churchill, first lord of the admiralty and director of strategy of all the British armed services, the navy's feats of the last two days "are worthy of any in our history" and have put the allies on the high road to "victory." This he pugnaciously proclaimed to a wildly excited house of commons today.

This rejoicing nation, comparing the heavy German sea losses with a total of four sunken British destroyers, was willing to believe him.

The Balance Sheet
Churchill's statement of British naval victories since Sunday, while not precise in details, nevertheless gave Britain this general comparison of battle results:
German losses—four cruisers (presumably including the Bluecher and Karlsruhe, sunk by (See LONDON, Page 7)

Elverum, Hamar in Flames As Norse Officials Move On

Norwegian Minutemen, Armed With Shotguns, Rally to Nation's Defense; North Sea War Roars Anew

—FROM STOCKHOLM—

STOCKHOLM, April 12 (Friday) (AP)—King Haakon of Norway and Crown Prince Olav yesterday fled from Nybergsund, Norwegian town near the Swedish border, only three minutes before German bombers raided the town, the Swedish news agency reported early today.

Several persons were injured by the bombs.

The agency said the entire royal family now is safe at an undisclosed place. The king, his family and the Norwegian government had gone to Nybergsund from Elverum, 35 miles to the south.

Both Elverum and Hamar, to which the government first fled after the German invasion Tuesday, early today were in flames.

Many other Norwegian towns were reported bombed Thursday.

Heavy columns of smoke were seen from the Norwegian-Swedish border south of Oslo, and cannonading could be heard.

Seeks Transit Permits Through Germany For Mediterranean Sailings

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—The 3,371 Americans in Scandinavia were offered tonight the full assistance of the state department in fleeing that area, which is rapidly becoming the main theater of the European war.

The department sent instructions to United States diplomats there that Americans who wished to leave should proceed via Germany to Genoa, Italy, for embarkation on American vessels. Simultaneously it sought transit permits from the German government.

Rule of Reason
Meanwhile, Secretary Morgenthau told newspapermen that the "rule of reason" would prevail in connection with release of Norwegian and Danish assets in this country which President Roosevelt ordered impounded yesterday for their safe-keeping.

Under the president's order, such assets, whether in money, credit or otherwise, may not be exported without a license issued by the treasury head. Morgenthau advised persons or firms to contact their banks if contemplating transactions which might run up against the embargo. The banks, working through the federal reserve banks, could obtain all information, he said.

As of Jan. 1, the state department said, 1,067 Americans were in Norway, 1,752 in Sweden and 552 in Denmark. How many want to return home was unknown. Many were said to be married to Scandinavians, or to have close relatives there, with a probability that they would prefer to remain.

As was the case when Americans were returning from Great Britain, France and Germany soon after the war began, those able to pay for their transportation will be expected to do so.

Local Club Announces Contest To Pick 'Belle of the Forties'

Candidates Are Named

Additional Eligibles May Be Nominated Before 8 P. M. Tonight

Streamlined sirens or buxom belles?

Iowa students will vote the beauty ticket straight this week as their own private war, "the blitzkrieg of the belles, roars into action on all fronts today.

In a communique from the headquarters of the Lillian Russell club, vociferous defenders of modern beauty, came announcement of a battle of ballots to determine Iowa's own belle of the '40s, rightful successor to the glamorous Lillian Russell, bell of the '90s.

Said Minister of Propaganda Bill Seller, "Certain minorities have inferred faults on Iowa's lovely coeds. Such misrepresentation must be put to rout. It is hereby proclaimed that a limited emergency will prevail on the Iowa campus until once again superiority of streamlined beauty is established."

The high command of the Lillian Russell club conscripted Iowa's first line defenses in a mobilization of beauty, nominating the candidates for Pep Queen, Mecca Queen, Pica Queen, Drake Relays Queen, Hawkeye Beauties, Dolphin Queen, and for honorary cadet colonel, as candidates for the title, Iowa's Belle of the '40s. Voting will start (See BELLE OF '40s, Page 8)

Alleged Nazi Spies' Deaths Spell Danger

Slavs Receive Warning Notes

BUCHAREST, April 11 (AP)—The murder of a couple identified as a German girl and a German munitions expert under Bucharest's arch of triumph caught observers tonight to fear it would lead to international complications.

Police said they had evidence the couple were Nazi spies and had been murdered by "the agent of another foreign power."

Britain Assembles Ships HONGKONG (Friday) (AP)—All Norwegian and Danish ships engaged in the China coastal trade are reliably reported being assembled by British authorities at Hongkong.

Leaflets Shower On Belgrade: 'Do Not Resist Germany!'

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 11 (AP)—Leaflets warning Yugoslavians "do not resist Germany if you value your freedom" showered down in the streets of Belgrade tonight.

Police said the leaflets were thrown from speeding automobiles.

Later the police said they had no clue concerning the identity of the distributors.

The leaflets were headed, "Whose turn is it now?"

France Ends Army Leaves

Germany Thought Preparing for Blow On Western Front

PARIS, April 11 (AP)—France cancelled all army leaves today after receiving information which led the government to believe the Germans might be preparing to strike a major blow on the western front.

The exact nature of this "very clear" information was not divulged but it was given distinct credence in official French circles and military authorities thought enough of it to warn the public against such a possibility.

To the French a Nazi offensive in the west might, however, mean a German feint against their positions preceding a push into the Netherlands.

French military men emphasized this possibility.

Despite such gloomy forebodings, the French found something to cheer about in Premier Paul Reynaud's declaration before a cheering chamber of deputies that allied naval operations had sunk 18 Nazi ships off Norway against a loss of only four British men of war and no French losses. Reynaud also disclosed that one Polish destroyer was fighting with the allied forces.

The semi-official French news agency, Havas, announced that "at various points preparations have been observed which could indicate that an attack is coming" on the western front.

Fearing British Raid Unless Nazis Surrendered—

Terrified Norwegians Fled Oslo Tuesday

COPENHAGEN, April 11 (AP)—Rumors of a British threat to bombard Oslo unless the Germans surrendered caused panic in Oslo as early as Tuesday, it was reported tonight by a young Dane who arrived from the Norwegian capital.

"There was an air raid alarm Thursday about noon when two planes appeared high in the sky," the Dane said. "German planes started firing on the craft which apparently dropped no bombs but threw the city into panic: 'People started shouting on the streets that British warships, attempting to force Oslofjord, had given the Germans an ultimatum and that the city would be bombed.'

"I saw women burst into tears; others ran terrified into their homes, grabbed a few precious possessions and started fleeing in all directions — to where they did not know themselves.

"Some carried bed clothes, some a few sticks of furniture and all manner of things. Some of those fleeing on foot paced others pedalling furiously astride bicycles.

A few motor cars were in the wild procession."

Wednesday there was a noon air raid alarm, the Dane asserted, and this time the panic was worse.

"Many people appeared paralyzed with fear," he went on. "Again no bombs were dropped as far as I could see, but people poured out of Oslo in a seemingly unending flood.

"Stores had opened for a couple of hours during the morning but were closed again and were not reopened until the all-clear signal came some time later.

"Even then many of those who fled refused to return, preferring to stay in the shelter of the woods in hastily pitched camps.

"There was another brief alarm yesterday afternoon. I left the city at 8 p.m. last night by train. The German soldiers there made no attempt to stop anyone so far as I could see.

"At Haelsingborg, Sweden, I boarded a Danish fishing boat and made the dangerous trip across the Oresund to get home to Denmark."

Music In America

THE FINANCIAL DRIVE to save the Metropolitan Opera in New York, as the home of fine music in America, serves to show the immense progress our people have made in musical development.

"Talent now abounding in the schools and musical organizations of this country will find the American idiom," he tells a midwestern audience.

So much for artistry. And here is something for business consideration. Music today is more than a culture, says Mr. Johnson.

Thus Big Steel has been explaining its operations to the public in words of one syllable, thereby gaining friends and a wider understanding of its functions in our national life.

General Motors is another example of industrial bigness tossing away its high-hat style and "going almost pure tabloid."

Just For The Kiddies

THE MISSISSIPPI legislature has figured out a new way to raise revenue. It has authorized the state to sell advertising space on the protective covers of the free school books.

All this is entertaining or depressing, according to the degree of seriousness and self respect with which the public views education.

Pity the schoolboy of the future who will have a time puzzling over why all historical heroes looked like Paul Muni, Errol Flynn, Tyrone Power or Spencer Tracy.

The Problem Of Modern Marriage

WHY SHOULD a person risk the chance of an unhappy marriage by refusing to consider the many important factors involved in the choice of a mate?

Among the exponents of the rational view towards marriage is Prof. Moses Jung, who originated the well-known course in modern marriage at the university several years ago.

Each essayist approaches modern marriage in the light of his own research and vocational experience. For instance, there is Dr. John M. Dorsey, who analyzes the problem from the attitude of the psychiatrist.

The University's First Annual Music Festival

DURING THE first week in May a traditional music festival will be held on the Iowa campus.

But this year the festival's title is First Annual University of Iowa high school music festival.

Why the change? Simply that the Iowa High School Music association has divided Iowa into four districts each of which will hold a pre-national contest with no single all-state contest preceding the national event.

Also, three special features are planned as added attractions to participants and visitors. Highlight of the entire festival, the Richard Crooks concert on the evening of May 2, is one of these events.

Judges for the events of the three days are national figures in the field of music and include Dr. Thompson Stone, conductor of the famous Handel and Hayden society of Boston and well-known on the Iowa campus.

Apology For Spring

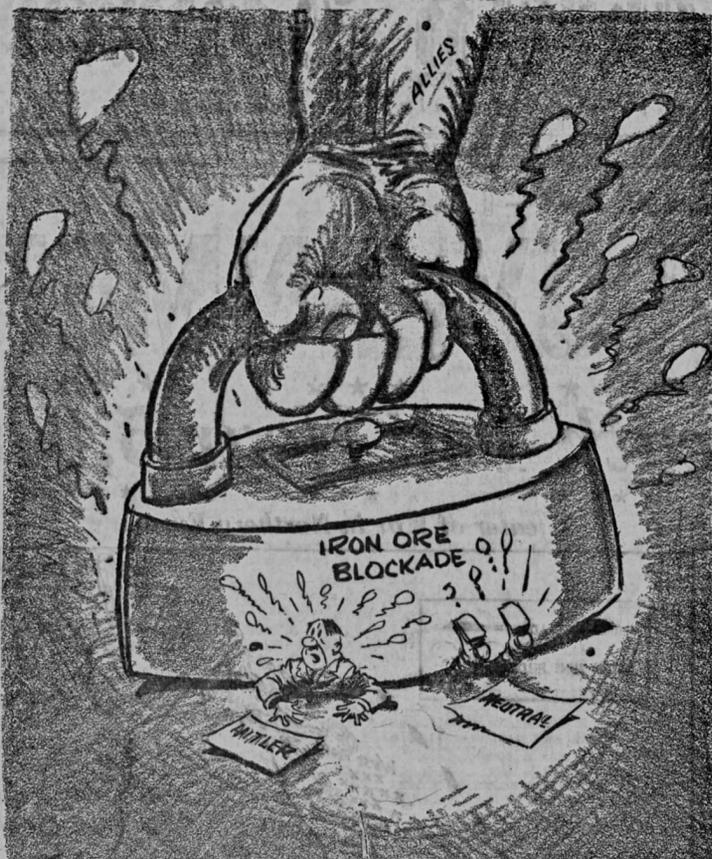

THE DAILY Iowan humbly apologizes for the "Ah Spring" editorial published last week.

A mild quake is felt in the Philippines — news item. The man at the next desk thinks it might have been just the Filipinos worrying about what will happen when they get their independence.

Folks in the good old days enjoyed some pleasures denied we moderns. Think what fun it must have been to, at least, peel off and discard that old suit of red flannels.

Folks in Ottawa, Canada, discuss the changing of the name of Wurttemberg street. However, the war hasn't yet reached the "liberty cabbage" stage.

"PUTTING ON THE HEAT"

Practical Politicians Fear That Lewis' Third Party-If Formed-May Change Election Results

Our American high tariff and low tariff groups have been swapping sides at a great rate in recent years.

Time was (not long ago, either) when American agriculture was predominantly free trade or tariff-for-revenue-only.

Some of our farmers are still more decidedly protectionistic than others. Our dairymen, for instance, complain that reciprocity deals have hit them in particular.

Autos Domestic Dairying. Of all the industrialists, automobile makers probably profit the least from tariff protection.

As previously remarked, times have changed — or are changing mightily rapidly. Our urban industries are no longer "infants."

ally follows that any reciprocal dicker which lets Ford into a foreign car market is right down his alley.

Well, we concluded such a compact with Canada. Fine for Henry!

But, of course, in order to get that concession from the Canadians, we had to make some concession in their favor.

Here's an illustration. Yet legislators from our agricultural states insist that it's characteristic.

Our cattlemen, among others, are all by the ears over what they term the threat that Argentine meat and hides will be turned loose in the United States in return for considerate Argentine treatment of our factory-made goods.

TUNING IN with D. Mac Showers

FRANK BLACK, general music director of NBC, who recently predicted that the next revival of songs would be some of Isham Jones' early hits, has followed through.

THE FIRST woman ever to fly and two very unusual policemen will be guests of Bob Ripley on his "Believe It or Not" program over CBS stations tonight at 9:30.

MRS. EDITH OGLIVY DRUCE made the flight 32 years ago with Wilbur Wright in Paris. Not only did she startle the world with her daring, but she also set a world fashion.

THEY ARE "Indian Moon," "What Could Be Sweeter," "Spain," "On the Alamo," "I'll See You in My Dreams" and "The Wooden Soldier and the China Doll."

MR. GRAHAM WILL sing "Absent." The ensemble will sing "My Margarita," "Deep Purple" and a medley. The chorus presents "Spirit Flower."

A safecracker, his wife and a murderer are involved in the Don Ameche-Claire Trevor drama to be presented in the second program of their new series tonight at 9 o'clock over the NBC-Red network.

ONE OF THE policemen is Frederick Sixt Jr. of Somerville, N. J., who has been given the title, "the nation's most conscientious policeman." Bob Ripley is very secretive about the nature of this guest's achievements.

THE OTHER lawman is William Massa

Personalities On Display

Audience Attending First Night Show Hardly Ever Varies

By GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK—Usually the most intriguing aspect of a Broadway First Night to visitors is the ebullient display of personalities in attendance.

The personnel of a premiere night audience hardly ever varies at all. I would say at least two-thirds of the crowd are always the same.

Among the regular first nighters is Dr. Jerome Wagner, husband of Norma Terris, who played the lead in "Show Boat" and sang that wistful, beautiful Kerns melody, "Why Do I Love You?"

There is an actor's agent whose name may not be mentioned, but who is always in attendance, and thereby hangs a paragraph. He represents some of the greatest box-office names on Broadway.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

- Amateur Heroes
It's Business
Against Policy

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP) — Willie MacFarlane isn't the type to turn down an apple just because he didn't like the orchard, and he thinks the U.S.G.A. might be too altruistic in ignoring a little loose change that can be had for taking if the association weren't so fussy about the source.

"Here's the idea," he told Joe Dey, U.S.G.A. executive secretary, "If the national open were being played on one course, and right across the street Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen were playing an exhibition with a couple of young stars, where would the crowd be?"

"Sure, following Jones and Hagen, and pulling for them to win. The amateur golfer is still the hero, and Jones still is an amateur in the minds of the fans. I'm an amateur at heart, too, although I make my living at golf, but that's neither here nor there."

"Here's what you could do. Get Jones and Hagen to pair in an exhibition with a couple of players like Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan, and stage it the day before the Open. You'd draw $5,000 easily. Why, the U.S.G.A. missed the best bet in the world last year by not arranging to have Hagen compete in the Open. It was the 25th anniversary of his first open championship. Think of the drawing card he would have been. You could have taken in $5,000 more, given Hagen $2,000 and put the rest in your treasury."

MacFarlane paused to let his remarks sink in. On the fringe of 50, the tall, wiry Scotchman is as young in spirit as he was 15 years ago when he won the National Open in a double play-off with Bobby Jones. His swing still is the poetry of motion, and as regular as a birthday he's out there with the youngsters in the Open qualifying play, and he usually makes it.

Dey was unimpressed. "I'll admit all that," he said. "But this is a players' tournament, and such an exhibition would detract from the tournament proper. After all, this is a tournament for the national championship."

"I know it's a players' tournament," MacFarlane replied, "but it's more than that. It's a business. And another thing, I'd appoint a Walker cup team this year, if only to give the amateurs a boost."

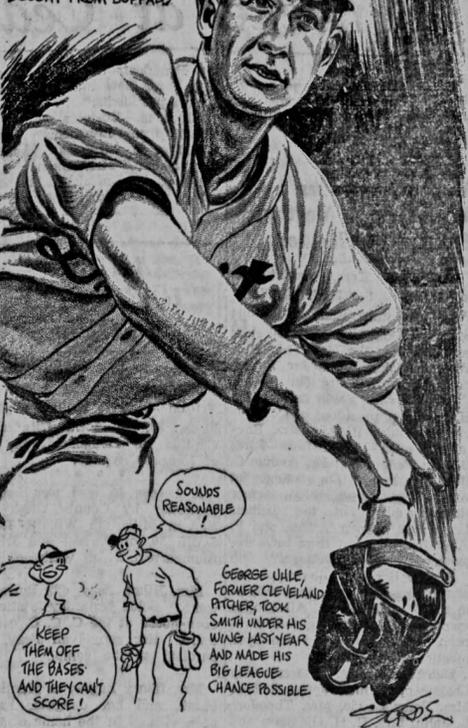

Against Policy That also rolled of Dey like a marble off a dome. "It isn't the policy of the U.S.G.A. to glorify the amateurs," he came back. "It's against our principles to exploit the individual, and golf as a game doesn't need exploitation. It's already built up."

MacFarlane decided he was getting nowhere rapidly, so he fished out his $5 to be the first to enter the 1940 National Open field, and departed after remarking that "you could charge twice as much and still get as many entries."

As a matter of fact, and general opinion notwithstanding, the U.S.G.A. is far from a money-grabbing organization. Were it interested primarily only in the gate it would compete without qualifying. Dey points out that the tournament is held to give every player an equal chance, with no premium on past performance. If all former champions were automatically qualified, he says, it would cut down the number of places open to the players who might be playing better golf today.

CLAY SMITH, DETROIT PITCHING PROSPECT BOUGHT FROM BUFFALO

Mrs. Dean Becomes Manager; Sends Dizzy Back to Cubs

ST. LOUIS, April 11 (AP)—Under the watchful eye of his attractive wife who flourished a figurative rolling-pin, Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean headed for Chicago tonight—still a member of Gaby Hartnett's Cubs.

As far as Dey was concerned, his latest troubles with Hartnett—the result of a $100 fine for breaking training rules—were over, settled by Mrs. Dean, his business as well as spiritual adviser.

The $185,000 hurler, who flew here from Kansas City this morning to get her advice—and got plenty of it, he heard her say: "Hartnett was absolutely right in firing Dey. He's going to take the fine and take it gracefully. Dey did wrong in staying out, and then just got mad and blew up. He shouldn't have done it."

Mrs. Dean declared Dizzy's threat to quit the club and go on an exhibition tour was a "lot of hooey."

"He signed with the Cubs and until they trade or release him he'll play ball and do the best he can for the Cubs," she declared emphatically.

Dizzy, usually a very talkative fellow, had nothing to say. After arriving here, he retired to his hotel room and declined to see anyone as Mrs. Dean—"Pat"—to her baseball friends—took personal charge of the situation.

Mrs. Dean, who helped her husband out of many a jam during his balmy days with the Cardinals here, commented freely over the telephone as Dey listened. Then this afternoon they left by automobile for Chicago.

The $100 fine against the big right-hander was for staying out late at Wichita, Kas. Dean said he had visited relatives.

Iowa Golfers Meet Frosh Saturday at 1

Big Ten Session Opens April 26 For Kennett's Team

Charles Kennett, University of Iowa golf mentor, will give his 1940 team its first taste of competition Saturday in an 18-hole varsity-freshman meet at Finkbine field. The meet is scheduled to begin at 1 o'clock.

Built around several veterans, Kennett's team will open its regular season April 26 against Minnesota at Minneapolis and will crowd all its activity into a period of three and one-half weeks.

Coach Kennett, who organized intercollegiate golf at Iowa in 1924 and whose teams usually win a majority of their conference dual meets, is working with three major, three minor letter winners and some promising sophomores. Although he makes no predictions on this year's team, Kennett says this year's is one of the hardest-working squads he has had in some time.

Captained by the veterans Jim Hoak and Clayton Pittman, the Iowa team includes Martin Everson, also a major letter man, David Collison, Robert Lattig and Ralph Bohlin, minor letter winners, and some new men, including Dick Feddersen, Robert Jenks and Jim Barron.

Savold Des Moines Fighter Stops Boyle

DES MOINES, April 11 (AP)—Lee Savold, Des Moines heavy-weight, knocked out Irish Eddie Boyle of Cleveland in the first round of their scheduled 10-round fight here tonight. Both weighed 188.

A short right hook to the jaw finished the Ohio fighter near the end of the round.

Savold, who entered the ring with an injured left hand which has been troubling him for several weeks, injured it again, in the brief encounter, his handlers said after the match.

Homer Wins for Bosox BALTIMORE (AP)—Four home runs whistled through Oriole park yesterday afternoon, but the payoff was a circuit poke by Catcher Gene Desautels that gave the Boston Red Sox a 10 inning, 6-5 victory over the International league Baltimore Orioles.

Third baseman Bill Nagel contributed two homers for the Orioles, one in the seventh to tie the score, 4-4, and another in the ninth to deadlock it at 5-5.

Around The Big Leagues

Chisox Set For Bruins CHICAGO, April 11 (AP)—Chicago's White Sox, their series final with the Pittsburgh Pirates called off at Springfield, Ill., today because of rain and snow, arrived home to resume their feud with the Chicago Cubs at Comiskey park tomorrow.

Bill Dietrich and Jack Knott were nominated to hurl by manager Jimmy Dykes, who added that "Right now I'm positive Edgar Smith will be our pitcher Tuesday," when the Sox face Cleveland here in the American league opener.

Cubs Head Toward Home KANSAS CITY, April 11 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs headed for home tonight to resume their city rivalry with the Chicago White Sox, following postponement of today's battle with the St. Louis Browns because of snow and cold weather.

Manager Gaby Hartnett said he would start Bill Lee, Clyde Passeau and Larry French in that order in the three game city series. The Sox grabbed a 7 to 5 edge in games during their road exhibitions and the Cubs must sweep the series here to win the annual spring feud.

Senators Nip Bees, 5 to 4 WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—Jimmy Bloodworth's single in the seventh inning scoring Buddy Lewis today gave Washington a 5 to 4 victory over the Boston Bees.

It was the Senators' fifth straight victory over the National leaguers in their exhibition series. Jim Tobin, Bee pitcher, tore a ligament in his right knee trying to field Lewis' bunt. He was carried from the field.

Schumacher Wins Own Game, 5-2 DANVILLE, Va., April 11 (AP)—Hal Schumacher went the route and won his own game with a mighty clout against the left field fence in the fifth inning as the New York Giants beat the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 2, before a crowd of 1,750 here today. The victory put the National leaguers ahead, 7 to 5, in their spring series with the Tribe.

The bases were filled with Giants and one was out in the fifth when Schumacher caught one of Willis Hudlin's slants on the nose and rattled the boards. That was all he needed to win his game, as he blanked the Indians for the last six frames, allowing them only one hit in that stretch.

Schumacher's brilliant effort, following upon Carl Hubbell's fine full-length performance yesterday, proved most cheering to Manager Bill Terry, who was suffering from a heavy cold.

211 Runners Already Entered In State Prep Track Meet

19 Schools Send Teams

Davenport Favored; McKinley, Clinton Also Highly Rated

Nineteen schools and 211 athletes already entered will form the bulk of the class A interscholastic indoor track and field meet to be held in the fieldhouse tomorrow afternoon and night.

It's Davenport against the field with a chance that McKinley of Cedar Rapids may surprise the dopesters. The defending champions, with a balanced team in the races but little strength in field events, hope to follow Fairfield, Clinton, North Des Moines, and East Des Moines as a double winner in the meet.

Strength in the relays and the presence of Bill Garrett, probable winner of the 50-yard dash and 60-yard low hurdles, are reasons for installing Davenport as the favorite. McKinley of Cedar Rapids, barely nosed out by Davenport in the Mississippi Valley title meet; and Clinton, always strong, are chief rivals. Keokuk, Ottumwa and Oskaloosa also have good teams.

Special events will be staged by the Iowa varsity and freshman trackmen at the evening show along with the meet's final events.

The evening events will be broadcast by station WSUI, beginning at 7:30.

These are the entrants up to yesterday afternoon: Ames, 10; Burlington, 10; Cedar Rapids (Franklin), 20; Cedar Rapids (McKinley), 21; Cedar Rapids (Roosevelt), 5; Cedar Rapids (Wilson), 1; Clinton, 17; Davenport, 21; Fairfield, 9; Ft. Madison, 9; Keokuk, 18; Marion, 1; Muscatine, 5; Oskaloosa, 14; Ottumwa, 13; Reinbeck, 1; West Liberty, 1; Waterloo (East), 10; Waterloo (West), 7.

Phi Kappa Psi won over Delta Tau Delta, 3-0. Williams of the winners defeated McLinn in a singles match, 15-7 and 15-7. Bene of the winning duo won over his opponent by an easy 21-13 score in each match.

Bob Elliott of S A E and Michael Pody of Psi Omega won first and second place respectively in strip I in the intramural fencing tournament. In strip II, R. C. Haney of Upper D captured first place and D. Duncan of Beta Theta Pi captured second position.

Pressbox Pickups

By OSCAR HARGRAVE

The following small example isn't an "I told you so," matter, it's nothing more than proof that if you stretch your neck across the headsman's block in an exhibition of daring people won't always resist the temptation to pick up the axe and use it.

The example: Robert J. Deekard, in the Purdue Exponent, wrote Tuesday, "Seven of the men on the Purdue team which defeated Iowa in a Western conference baseball opener in 1939 will meet the Hawks in a 1940 opener tomorrow and Thursday, mourns a Daily Iowan Kolumelist."

"One of them, chum, is Bob Bailey, the hurler who limited your corn-fed cribbers to three well-scattered hits last year and is scheduled to start one of the two Iowa-Purdue games this week."

Bailey, incidentally, hurled against the Hawks Wednesday and held them to five hits and two runs, which argues that the Boiler-maker hurler hasn't slipped any since last spring. But, so it happens, Harold Haub pitched for Iowa and allowed three hits, none of which helped get any runs, the Hawkeyes winning, 2-0. The second game of the series was cancelled because of a snowstorm, which means Deekard will have to wait for another series before the neck is even partially mended.

And, speaking of the cancellation of the game, I feel a trifle silly personally, having to tell that the game was snowed out. Since when, with most of us, have blizzards stopped baseball games? But such, believe it or not, is the truth in this case.

Five complete teams snapped through signal drills yesterday as Coach Eddie Anderson took his football squad outside again after the rain. It's part of the Anderson method that everybody works all the time. He mixes in a few veterans, in early drills, with the new men, to boost the rate of learning along, and also tries to get a few other veterans who have graduated, over to the field. Dick Evans, Buzz Dean and a few others of this year's seniors have been present some of the time to lend a hand with freshmen.

At Wisconsin, Coach Harry Stuhldreher has a novel scheme for spring football practice. The Badger gridgers are divided into four squads and play in a regular league. The teams are Dartmouth, Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

Wisconsin hasn't managed to get started as early as Iowa in spring baseball, having but one victory and a tie game so far, but the Badgers expect to make up for lost time with a series of eight games in nine days. Two-game series are scheduled with, in succession, Chicago, Western State, Michigan State and Michigan.

Snow Storm Ends Series At Lafayette

Hawks Await Games With Notre Dame Today, Tomorrow

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 11 (Special To The Daily Iowan)—Coach Otto Vogel's defending Big Ten baseball champions arrived in South Bend today, the last game of their series with Purdue cancelled because of snow. The Hawkeyes face Notre Dame in games Friday and Saturday, providing the weather clears up.

Against the Irish, the Hawkeyes are expected to use Fred Hohenhorst, senior right-hander, in the first game and Co-Capt. Harold Haub in Saturday's contest. Haub, the Big Ten's leading hurler last year, shut out Purdue Wednesday in the opening Big Ten contest, allowing but three scattered bingles.

Irish, Hawks Split Notre Dame, which has split its series with Iowa for eight successive times, will depend on a pair of veteran hurlers against the Hawkeyes. Rex Ellis, who checked the Hawks with one hit last year, will probably hurl Saturday's contest, with Norvall Hunthausen on the mound Friday.

Hunthausen, the ace of the Irish staff, was battered for 14 hits last spring by the Hawkeyes, but recently hurled a one-hitter against Northwestern in a 6-1 Irish victory.

Thus far, the season has been encouraging for the Iowans, who now have a record of nine victories and a 2-2 tie to their credit. With several sophomores in the lineup, the Hawks have not appeared as potent as the plate as last year's hard-clubbing conference champs, but have played good ball afield. In Wednesday's victory over Purdue the Iowans played errorless ball behind Haub's masterful hurling.

The Purdue victory gives Iowa a lead over the other conference teams, since no other Big Ten contests have been played yet. Ten conference games remain on the Iowa schedule, the Hawks meeting Illinois in Iowa City next Friday and Saturday to reopen conference play.

Phi Gams Win Class B Title In Volleyball Championship round games featured intramural volleyball play last night in the fieldhouse gymnasium, as the champion of the class B fraternity league was crowned.

Phi Gamma Delta annexed the class B fraternity title by winning a see-saw battle from Delta Upsilon. The Phi Gams took the opening game of the two out of three series by the one sided score of 15-4. Delta Upsilon came right back in the second game, however, and won by the equally one-sided score of 15-3. Phi Gamma Delta rallied in the third and deciding game to swamp its opponents, 15-8.

Upper D of the Quadrangle advanced a step nearer to the all-university championship by downing Phi Kappa Sigma in another two out of three game series. The Quad champs barely over their opponent in the opening game, 18-16.

Phi Kappa Sigma captured the second tilt, 15-3, thus making a third game necessary. Upper D opened its attack in this game, however, and easily defeated Phi Kappa Sigma, 15-7.

Hillel Club To Play Softball After a victorious basketball season the Hillel club of the University of Iowa will begin its second project in the field of athletics, a softball team.

As a result of a suggestion by Rabbi Morris Kertzer, the committee has appointed Angie Anapol to the position of coach. He is to be assisted by Roger Rosenbloom who was elected manager.

Coach Anapol announced that team tryouts will be held as soon as the frost is off the ground.

Visiting Lecturer at Work

—Daily Iowan Engraving

Ruth Reeves To Give Lecture At Iowa Art Meeting Tonight

Ruth Reeves, internationally known textile designer and mural painter who was awarded a Guggenheim fellowship this week, is one of this evening's lecturers at the Iowa Art conference in the exhibition gallery of the art building.

Miss Reeves will lecture on the "Index of American Design," a unit of the Work Projects administration arts program.

An interesting feature of Miss Reeves' talk on modern design will be a practical demonstration on how design of past days can be an inspiration to the designer of today.

For this part of her talk, the artist will use water color drawings made by artists of the Index of American Design unit, which is making a pictorial survey of the decorative and useful arts of the country from early days to the close of the 19th century.

The announcement of the award of a Guggenheim fellowship to Miss Reeves was made April 7. Her fellowship was given for the purpose of studying the textiles, ancient and modern, of South America and of doing creative work in the same field.

Miss Reeves is at the present time director of the poster division of the New York city WPA art project. She is a former supervisor of Index of American Design unit of the art project, and, as a member of the mural division of the same project, she executed a number of murals for public institutions in New York city.

Take a Trip Macbride Exhibit Tells Of Far Lands

"Foreign Lands" is the theme of the book group currently exhibited in the reading room of general library at Macbride hall in the circulation department.

"Ding Goes to Russia," written and illustrated by Cartoonist Jay N. Darling, tells the story of one of many countries represented in the display. "Salamina" by Rockwell Kent, "Island in the Sun" by Bret Harte, "The Nile" by Emil Ludwig, and "The House of Exile" by Nora Waln are among the technical and adventure books concerned with foreign countries.

Martin Johnson's "Camera Trails in Africa" and "Pigs in Clover" by Frances Noyes Hart are shelved beside a copy of "On Top of the World," the story of Soviet explorers at the north pole in 1937-38 which was written by Lazan Brontman.

Commentaries by tourists and memoirs of countrymen tell varied tales of the countries from France to New Guinea and Sumatra. "My Ireland" by Lord Edward Dunsany tells one story, while "Romantic Czechoslovakia" by Robert Medill McBride tells another.

Other world-wide nations represented on the shelves in the current foreign lands exhibit are Ruthenia, China, Mexico, England, India, modern Germany, Brazil, Austria, Brittany, the Latin countries, Spain and Honduras.

military school cadets responded to the government's call to join the British-French allies against the nazis. They took to the field with what weapons were at hand, hastily fortifying every possible defense point not in German hands. A late afternoon radio report from the Norwegian commander at Bergen said his forces had retaken the city from the invaders and were massing for an attempt to recapture Trondheim, further up the west coast. Subsequent advices reaching Stockholm said Bergen was in Norwegian hands but that the fortresses at the entrance of the harbor still were held by the Germans.

Massing Forces
The French commander reported the invaders were massing their forces around Trondheim. From the north, Norwegian troops were advancing southward in the hope of cutting off German troops operating between Trondheim and the Swedish border.

German planes circled over Kongsvinger, 20 miles from the border, during the day and dropped light bombs. The Norwegians were reported methodically blasting bridges to make German advances difficult and to cut off nazi forces already in possession of Norwegian territory.

Norwegian guns, and two hit by air bombs. This is nearly half of Germany's cruiser strength. "A number of destroyers" (one is known to have been torpedoed at Narvik.)

"Several" u-boats (one, destroyed by H.M.S. Zulu, mentioned specifically.) "Nearly a dozen" troop and supply ships, sunk or captured in the Skagerrak and Kattegat gateways to the Baltic, in the North sea or in the Norwegian ore port of Narvik. Damaged—the battleship Scharnhorst.

British losses—destroyer Glowworm, sunk by two German destroyers.

Destroyer Gurkha, sunk by aerial bombs.

Destroyers Hunter and Hardy, lost in battle of Narvik Wednesday (Churchill did not mention these, but the admiral has conceded their loss.)

Damaged—battleship Rodney, battle cruiser Renown, cruiser Aurora, and at least two destroyers.

Today Germany broadcast a claim that its bombers had badly damaged a British aircraft carrier and a cruiser in the North sea and that two more British destroyers, or a total of six, had been sunk at Narvik.

Standing against this, unconfirmed here, were radio reports that a naval battle between German and British fleet units was raging at Trondheim, Norway; that German transports forced aground during last night's battle in the Skagerrak were blazing fiercely; that 1,000 bodies were floating in the waters off Sweden, from as many as six sunken German transports. These reports likewise were not confirmed here.

Neutral naval sources said tonight that four nazi cruisers alone would have carried 2,250 men, and estimated that total German casualties might well exceed 5,000.

On the other hand, British casualties were thought to be well below 1,000. When the Gurkha was sunk, for instance, all but fourteen men were rescued.

Churchill's hour-long statement, packed with proud accounts of British sea glories, among them the fight of the Renown and the Scharnhorst, also told the world: That the mighty, 33,900-ton Rodney, flagship of the home fleet, although hit by a heavy bomb, suffered but little loss and seven casualties and is in line of battle tonight.

That the navy has occupied the Faroe islands, about 250 miles north of the British naval base of Scapa Flow, and will give them back to Denmark when that nation is freed from its "foul thraldom."

That "we shall take what we want" on Norway's coast when the fleet has accomplished its foremost objective, total destruction of nazi seapower.

Lochner Describes the Scene in Copenhagen After German Blitzkrieg

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
COPENHAGEN, April 11 (AP)—The German commander of the occupation in Denmark told me today that "considerably more" than an army corps (45,000 to 75,000 troops) carried out the invasion of this country with such precision that only one German soldier was killed and ten wounded.

The Danish casualties were 10 killed and several wounded, he said.

After being flown here from Berlin in German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's private plane, I interviewed General Leonhard Kaupisch, who made the name for himself in this war as commander of German forces in the Polish Corridor.

I found him, smiling pleasantly and courteously, though determined looking, settled ironically enough in headquarters at the Hotel Angleterre, (England) favorite hostelry of Englishmen in this country.

My first impression of Denmark as I arrived here was one of perfect peace.

At the airdrome there were a few German soldiers. Six military cars, and half a dozen motorcycles passed my taxi on the way into the city.

But I saw no other uniforms until I reached the Hotel Angleterre, where there were guards about the army headquarters.

General Kaupisch boasted that

Germany's plans for occupation of the country were kept in such great secrecy that "the Danish government and people were completely surprised. We simply overran the country before there was time to do anything."

"Such few deaths as occurred resulted from the fact that frontier guards quickly telephoned to several points near the frontier where officers alarmed their men before the nonresistance order from the capital could reach them."

"We are so convinced of the absolute loyalty of the Danish government and people that we have left all arms, even the heaviest, in the hands of the Danish armed forces," he continued.

"The Danish army is demobilizing some reservists who had been called to the colors, but this was done without pressure on our part. Evidently these reservists are important for the economic life of the nation. We welcome their discharge, for additional barracks now become available."

The men who henceforth under German rule will be responsible for law, order and security in Denmark, said he just had come from an interview with King Christian, who, he said, "saw eye to eye" with him regarding the relations that should exist between the German authorities and the Danish government and people.

The king took his daily horseback ride through the heart of the capital yesterday.

"We have come as friends not to exploit or in any way put hardships on the Danish people but to protect them," General Kaupisch said to me. "But naturally nothing must happen that is counter to German interests."

"That our lightning surprise maneuver succeeded was good for both sides, for otherwise there would have been needless bloodshed. We have no desire to kill friends like the Danes."

Kaupisch said the Gestapo (German secret police) had no agents in Denmark, and that no enemy civilians had been arrested.

A decision on what to do with these civilians, he said, will be made soon. Other foreigners "who behave" will not be molested.

The French and British diplomatic missions will be allowed to depart, probably Saturday, it was indicated.

Rhodes' Attorney Says He Will Take Case to U. S. High Court

Governor Wilson Sets May 7 for Execution At Ft. Madison Pen

DES MOINES, April 11 (AP)—Only the possibility that the United States supreme court might agree to review the case tonight stood between Walter H. Rhodes, 32-year-old Iowa City quarry worker, and the gallows.

Gov. George A. Wilson today set time of the execution on Ft. Madison penitentiary gallows as 7:15 a. m., Tuesday, May 7.

Rhodes was convicted of the "dynamite shotgun" slaying of his wife, Mabel, 31, in the basement of their Iowa City home on Feb. 9, 1937.

Appeal Delayed Hanging

Appeals to the Iowa supreme court had stayed execution of his death sentence, originally scheduled for April 29, 1938.

Governor Wilson had to set a new date for the hanging or commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

At Marshalltown, Attorney Joseph B. Tye, who appeared before the governor March 14 with the parents of Rhodes and the slain woman, said that an appeal would be taken to the supreme court of the United States.

"Disappointed"

"We are very much disappointed in the governor's action in refusing to set aside the death sentence," Tye commented. The parents of the couple declined to comment.

At Ft. Madison, where Rhodes has been in "death row" for three years, the Iowa City man took the decision calmly when informed by Warden Glenn Haynes.

"I don't care to make any statement until I have talked with my parents," Rhodes told the warden. "My mother and my other relatives concern me most now."

Testimony at Rhodes' trial showed that while he was still married he had asked another Iowa City woman to become his wife.

Shambaugh--

The Old Stone Capitol Remembers, called the roll of the university's great teachers who had shaped the thought of youth on the Iowa campus in his time. The magnetic speaker had unrolled the panorama of the years of his experience in this institution, giving voice to his thoughts through the central symbol of our traditions which he loved so much, the Old Capitol. Then, as he approached the close of his address, he said:

Courage

"I can imagine that tonight the Old Stone Capitol will dream of thousands of students, inspired by the irresistible human hopes of a good life, lighting their candles at the shrines of great men (Hinchrichs, Hammond, Currier, Calvin, McClain, Macbride, Anderson, Perkins, Weld, Wilcox, Loos, Breene, Beye, Shimek and a score of others) and then with courage born of faith pressing on through this world of many conflicts toward the goals of their ambitions."

"Is not this tribute in his own words the highest we can pay the immortals of our university community? To this roll of those whom the sons and daughters of Iowa will honor as long as Old Capitol stands I now add the name of Benjamin Franklin Shambaugh. It only remains for us reverently and with bowed heads to add his own phrase, 'The Old Stone Capitol Remembers.'"

Final speaker on the afternoon's program was Mr. Waymack.

"I am speaking before many people who knew Benjamin Shambaugh at least more closely, perhaps better, than I," Editor Waymack began.

"I have the disadvantage of having been only on the fringe. So I say to you, first, that we on the fringes, we who may loosely be called Iowa, rate your friend and your colleague as a great man, and a good," he said.

He Was the Society

Speaking also for the State Historical society of Iowa, Mr. Waymack continued, "For a third of a century Benjamin Shambaugh substantially was the Historical society. He was its leader, manager, its soul. In his own writings, in the works that he inspired entirely, or encouraged and edited, in the research that he stimulated, Professor Shambaugh more

Ruth Sinovoy Will Be Guest Of Hillel Club

Ruth Sinovoy, G of Albany, N. Y., will give several readings at the Sabbath meeting of the Hillel club at 8 o'clock tonight in the Iowa City synagogue. Services will be conducted by Robert Hurwitz, A3 of Des Moines.

Hostesses for the evening will be Sylvia Bucksbaum, A2 of Marshalltown, and Beatrice Wainshel, A1 of Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. Louis Shulman and Mrs. Harry Shulman will serve as patronesses.

than any other man has made the record of Iowa's past available for all the tomorrows."

Going on, Mr. Waymack pointed out, "He was consciously, deliberately, enthusiastically a popularizer of history as well as a researcher in it. He combined—and rare this is—the specialist and the democrat. He related, through his life and work, the service that lies in uncovering knowledge, and the use that most flow from it."

"I speak, too, inadequately, of course, for Benjamin Shambaugh's Iowa. He was thoroughly an Iowan—was born in Iowa, on a farm—lived the whole of his life here—ran his career here—found his service and happiness here."

Not Farewell

"Not farewell to you, then, Benjamin Shambaugh, in the sense of your having gone. Your faith that, even in troubled times, change and adjustment is forever possible within the frame of the liberal philosophy and by the mechanism of the democratic process, your inner assurance, rippling outward to others, that education, to the end of understanding, is the way—that is your more than gold-gift, which we hope we may prove to deserve."

Among decks of beautiful flowers, the speakers platform was erected at the west end of the main lounge. Beside the speaker's rostrum was a recent portrait painting of Professor Shambaugh. It was a familiar pose and as the speakers talked, the audience felt that Professor Shambaugh was sitting there beside them, listening intently.

The New York artist who recently painted the picture described him as "invincibly young at 60, a charming and picturesque personality, and an artist."

As He Was

Given a free hand the artist chose to paint him just as he stepped into the studio from the street—"a study in browns"—a dark brown suit, a camel hair overcoat and in a lighter shade over his arm, a soft beaver hat in one hand, and the ever-present Malacca cane in the other—with a touch of color in the maroon necktie and matching handkerchief.

At his elbow three favorite books from the publications of the State Historical society—"The Amarna Book" written by his wife, Bertha M. H. Shambaugh; "Cabins and Sod Houses" by President Emeritus Thomas H. Macbride, and "Ioway to Iowa" by Irving B. Richman. Atop the books dropped quite casually a pair of yellow pig-skin gloves.

The memorial service was appropriately closed by the Rev. Mr. Worthley with a reading of Professor Shambaugh's goodbye message given at the end of each semester to his campus course students. He called it "A Hope."

We Shall Meet Again

"We have met and talked and read and thought together for many weeks. And now we shall scatter to the ends of the earth. Shall we meet again? It is my hope that we shall. I want to believe that in some time's tide we shall meet again, even though we scatter to the ends of the earth."

"We shall meet again in the books we read in common. We shall meet on the plane of significant ideas—scientific, humanistic, philosophical, religious and contemporary—which we think and cherish in common. We shall meet again in the dreams which we cast before us as we journey through life. Surely we shall meet again on the horizons."

"It is my hope that wherever there is truth, wherever there is beauty, wherever there is goodness, we shall meet again, not face to face, but mind to mind and soul to soul, though we are scattered to the ends of the earth."

Dr. Miller Clarifies the Field of Psychoanalysis in Last Baconian Lecture

By JEAN DAVIS

"Psychoanalysis" is a common term these days — being used to explain everything from the antics of today's dictators to the paintings of our modernists.

And magazine writers are taking advantage of the layman's growing interest in this field of psychology, which studies dreams, unconscious states and mental disorders, and are "laying it on thick."

Probably, "too thick" to suit Dr. Wilbur R. Miller of the psychopathic hospital, who delivered the final Baconian lecture in the senate chamber of Old Capitol last night on "The Present Status of Psychoanalysis."

Referring to psychoanalysis as a "greatly misused term," Dr. Miller explained it is not a pseudo-scientific analysis nor an evil product of the imagination.

"Rather the work of the psychoanalyst stands for a set of techniques, such as free association or dream-analysis, whereby the workings of the unconscious may be brought to the surface and faced for what they really are."

Admitting that all mental cases cannot be treated by their techniques, psychoanalysts believe that disorders of neurotic patients result from frustrated sex life in early childhood.

"Childish methods of sexual gratification that can not be satisfied because of social restrictions, are transformed into disguised expressions which prove to be symptoms of neurosis," the speaker explained to the lecture audience which filled the senate chamber to capacity.

Introduced 46 years ago into an "unwilling, unbelieving world" by Sigmund Freud, famed psychiatrist of Vienna, psychoanalysis has expanded, in recent years, breaking down many basic ideas and thus, much early opposition.

American psychiatry, according to Dr. Miller, has accepted all psychoneuroses theories for "what they are worth," accepting only the worth while principles of each in search for a more intelligent answer to mental disorders.

"But psychoanalysis hasn't solved the problem of the psychiatrist. Through the use of its theories on patients here at the University of Iowa, statistics show that between 54 and 57 per cent of the mentally defective registered improvement within a year," the local psychiatrist said.

"Psychoanalysis isn't for the man-on-the-street, either. Rather only the 'elite neurotic' can afford to be treated in this way. For a successful cure, the patient suffering from neurotic ailments must undergo months and perhaps years of daily study and work with an experienced psychiatrist.

Because of the limited number of men in the field of psychoanalysis, only four out of every 100 neurotic patients can be treated by the Freudian theory.

"New York City registers the greatest number of psychoanalysts in the world, and there may be some indication there—," the lecturer dubiously added.

F.D.C. Makes Office Change In Iowa City

The Federal Discount corporation has announced the removal of its offices from the Iowa State bank building to enlarged quarters on the second floor of the First Capital National bank building.

Organized at Dubuque 20 years ago, the corporation maintains offices in most of the important cities of the state.

Private Flying Specialist Explains Civil Pilot Course

Ed Jones, a private flying specialist of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, explained the methods and purpose of the civil pilots training course at a meeting of the Iowa City Pilots club last night in the assembly room of the Iowa City Light and Power company.

Jones, who is a graduate of the United States Naval air school, is the government representative in Iowa and Missouri. His work deals with the promotion and regulation of private flying.

The purpose of the civil training course, he said is to teach students proper methods of air navigation, regulations and meteorology. The CAA, he continued, is seeking to standardize licensing tests throughout the country.

All qualified flying instructors are now required to take re-rating tests before they can continue instruction. Re-rating schools for instructors have been opened up in various parts of the country, he said.

The requirements for private pilot licenses now in force are a combination of those used in military and approved flying school training. In the past, he stated, many of the accidents in which students figured were the result of faulty training and poor instruction.

The civil training pilot's course, which is in no sense military, teaches students far more of flying in less time than ever has been done in the past, he claimed.

Last year 380 pilots were trained without a single accident, he said.

This year 10,000 pilots, both in and out of college, are being trained.

A text-book, which will contain all instruction necessary to obtain a private pilot's license, is now being compiled, Jones said. Next year the CAA hopes to initiate a more advanced course of training for graduates of this year's course, he finished.

Motion pictures of the annual Miami to Havana mass flight, taken by Harry List, an independence business man and amateur flyer, were shown at the meeting. This flight is sponsored every year by the Cuban government in cooperation with the Miami chamber of commerce.

The mass flight was instituted in 1936 by Captain Orda of the Cuban air force, who learned to fly in the United States. At first all expenses, except fueling, were paid by the Cuban government, but the response was so large that the number of applications had to be limited.

At present a small amount of money for living accommodations is required by the Cuban government, it was said. Every hospitality is shown the annual flying visitors to the island.

This year 65 applications for the trip, which covers 200 miles, were accepted. Thirty-six planes started the trip and 35 landed in Havana. Patrol boats are scattered over the 102 mile distance between Key West and Havana to assure the safety of the flyers.

A similar trip to Nassau occurs annually. The requirements for entrance are much more rigid than those required for the Cuban flight.
