NAZIS IN OSLO BEING BOTTLED UP

Report All Nazi Ships Sunk at Narvik

Defenders Erect Fortifications To Blockade Roads to Interior

Sweden Declares She'll Maintain Neutrality, Even if She Must Fight for It In 'Most Trying Moment'

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
STOCKHOLM, April 12 (AP)—Struggling against both time and the invader, Norway's fighting men tried tonight to complete an impenetrable ring of steel around Oslo, their German-conquered capital, where seven Nazi warships are reported bottled up.

With their forces clinging to positions along Oslo fjord, narrow waterway leading to Oslo, the Norwegian defenders were disclosed tonight to be holding a defense semi-circle running from Moss, on the Oslo fjord, north to Hølen, thence east to Mysen, northward east of the river Glommen and Lake Oieren to Romerike, thence southwestward to Tyri fjord and Vikesund, which is about 30 miles due west of Oslo. To back up the ring, fortifications were being thrown up in the alleys to the northwest.

Elsewhere, the Norwegian government conceded that the Germans were in control of Kristiansand, on the south coast; Stavanger on the southeast coast; Bergen, on the west coast, and Narvik, on the northern coast.

Sink Four Destroyers

The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported Norwegian officials here had received information to the effect that four German destroyers, the last Nazi warships remaining at Narvik, were sunk last night by Norwegian forces. There was no confirmation of this report from any source and no details.

The British earlier reported that one German destroyer was sunk and three others left in flames in a battle at Narvik, northern port, Wednesday.

Military secrecy hid the situation at Trondheim, above Bergen. Fragmentary reports from that port said five German warships, including a pocket battleship, were observed off shore and that the British had concentrated a fierce naval and air attack there.

Will Defend Neutrality
Taking to the radio to advise his people of their precarious predicament, Premier Pehr Albin Hansson of Sweden tonight reaffirmed Sweden's determination to defend her neutrality at all costs and declared flatly that any demand by the warring powers to use her territory would be rejected.

Hansson said no such demand had yet been received. He asserted firmly that Sweden would continue to follow a strict hands off policy in what "perhaps is the most trying moment in over 100 years."

He added: "To maintain our neutrality means that, if necessary, we must defend it."
"Since the war has been brought to Sweden's door, she must even intensify her military preparations. This explains why the Swedish government during the past days has taken certain additional measures."

Sweden Will Refuse Demands
"Sweden retains the right to independence and to independent actions. It is irreconcilable with strict neutrality that Swedish territory be used to advantage by any belligerent nation."

"It is therefore satisfying that no demand of such a nature has been addressed to Sweden. If such a demand should ever be made, Sweden would have to refuse to comply with it."

The premier added that it was unnecessary to stress Sweden's friendly feelings towards Norway.

Stockholm, tonight, lost all telegraphic communication with Oslo.

At the same time the entire Swedish south and west coasts were ordered blacked out tonight and tomorrow night to test the nation's anti-aircraft preparations.

The sinking of a large vessel of undetermined nationality in the Skagerrak was witnessed during the morning from Stromstad, Swedish coastal town near the Norwegian border.
For hours before the ship went down in flames heavy cannonading was heard from the direction of the Oslo Fjord entrance.

University of Iowa Conferences In Art, History End Here Today

Tea Concludes Art Conference This Afternoon

Artist Emil Ganso's Lithography Lecture Highlight of Session

Four visiting speakers, all well-known in the field of art teaching, are included on today's program on the University of Iowa art conference, concluding with a tea in the exhibition gallery of the art building this afternoon.

The two-day event featured lectures and demonstrations by visiting art teachers as well as university faculty members. Dean Paul C. Packer of the college of education will speak at a luncheon session of the conference this noon in the river room of Iowa Union.

Prof. Edna Patzig, head of the University high school art department, will preside over the morning session opening in the exhibition gallery of the art building at 9 o'clock.

This Morning
The morning program will consist of evaluation of art in secondary schools with comments on the Iowa high school exhibition by the judges. These judges, each of whom will speak on a definite topic at the session, are Otto Ege, head of teacher training at the Cleveland School of Art, "Recent Progress Made in High School Art Teaching," Muriel Sibell, head of the fine arts department at the University of Colorado, "Drawing" (See ART, Page 6)

Extend Trade Program For Three Years

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The hotly fought bill extending the administration's reciprocal trade program for three years was signed today by Representative Roosevelt who called it a "powerful instrument" for peace and economic recovery.

Capping the administration's biggest victory in the present session, the chief executive affixed his signature at a White House ceremony.

Iowa G. O. P. Will Vote For H. MacNider

DES MOINES, April 12 (AP)—Iowa will cast its 22 votes for Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Iowa, for president in the republican national convention June 24 at Philadelphia.

The party's delegation today voted unanimously "to abide by the wishes of the state convention and to do all in their power to achieve the nomination of Mr. MacNider." The MacNider motion was made by J. H. Milroy of Vinton, Iowa, third district delegate. The group also unanimously elected Harrison E. Spangler of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to another four-year term as Iowa G. O. P. national committeeman. Spangler became committeeman in 1932. His new term ends in 1944.

Prof. Howard Final Speaker At Convention

Annual History Meet Features Lectures On Varied Subjects

The 20th annual history convention which held sessions yesterday on the University of Iowa campus closes this morning with its final meeting at 10 o'clock in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Prof. Frederick Marcham of Cornell university will present his second address this morning on "Oliver Cromwell and Izaak Walton—Appeal to Inner Light and Outward Authority." Professor Marcham spoke yesterday before a group of high school history teachers at a special luncheon.

Prof. Harry N. Howard of Miami university will deliver the final conference address on "The Balkans in Peace and War: A Reinterpretation." Prof. Goldwin Smith of the University of Iowa history staff will preside at the session.

Hundreds of teachers of history and the social studies in the schools and colleges in Iowa and neighboring states have been sitting in on the discussions by the various lecturers, in order to keep pace with the constantly changing European and American scenes. In addition, the lectures have presented helpful hints to aid the instructors in teaching their classes. The conference was sponsored by the history department, the extension division, the college of education and the graduate college.

Sixteen Others Named Officers, Directors In Mail Ballot Vote

Dr. Sumner B. Chase of Ft. Dodge in June will be installed as the new president of the University alumni association.

His election to succeed Benjamin F. Bulter of Waterloo, along with that of 16 other officers, was announced yesterday by Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, the association's executive secretary. Alumni voted by mail ballot.

Dr. Chase, who received degrees at the university in 1915 and 1916, has served as one of the vice presidents during the past year. He will hold his new office until June, 1941.

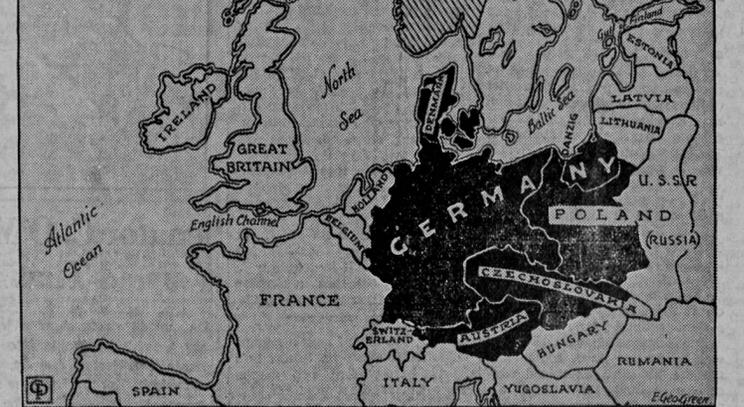

Vice presidents picked in the 1940 election are Glenn D. De-

Mr. Roosevelt said the FCC was proceeding slowly in order to make certain the new act would not lack in competition. The FCC, he added, does not want one company to control all sending.

Germans Fight Desperately To Keep It Open

Nazis Lose Supply Ships, Six Planes; Britain Loses Eight

By EDWIN STOUT
LONDON, April 12 (AP)—Britain corked the Skagerrak and Kattegat today with mines designed to cut the lifeline of Germany's expeditionary force in Norway and British planes pounded the cork tight despite withering fire from German warships, planes and anti-aircraft defenses.

The air ministry said the royal air force lost eight planes in the day's engagements while searching Danish and Norwegian waters for units of the German fleet returning to their home bases. Earlier the ministry had said that five bombers, included in the day's total were downed in a single engagement with two warships in Kristiansand fjord. Another air battle was fought near Stavanger. Two British planes alighted on the sea. Their fate was not disclosed.

The British also reported that four Messerschmitt fighters were shot down, two more German fighters were believed destroyed and others were damaged. (In Berlin, D. N. B., German official news agency, said eight of Britain's most modern bombers were downed by German planes in an attempted raid on German bases on the Norwegian coast tonight.)

The British announced that at least two German supply ships had felt the blows of their aerial attack.

An 8,000-ton ammunition ship went up in a thunderous explosion under the bombs of British night raiders, while a 5,000-ton supply ship was "probably damaged by two large bombs seen to burst close to her stern."
British fliers roved last night over a wide area "extending from Oslo fjord to the Baltic coast of Germany," attacking ships and bombing a German seaplane base on the Baltic coast.
With the Skagerrak and the Kattegat mined and the navy keeping watch on German North sea bases, the British are seeking to halt the flow of food and munitions to Norway's Nazi invaders.

Picketing for Beauty's Sake

Campus women, protesting a statement by Delta Upsilon fraternity members Thursday that they preferred the "Lillian Russell" type of figure, picketed the fraternity house Friday. In response to the D. U. statement, "Let's take the curves out of geometry and get them back where they count," campus women who have been defending their streamlined beauty, paired up in hourly shifts to picket the house. The women carried placards back and forth all day, and the fraternity men posted their own signs on the doors. Late yesterday afternoon when the Nazidom's threat of a "blitzkrieg" in the west "to end the war"—voiced by Field Marshal Goering on April 3—has proved to be a frontal challenge to British sea power by far inferior German naval strength backed up by boasted German air might. remains uncertain. But one vitally important fact stands out among the conflicting belligerent claims and the rumors reaching the neutral world: Nowhere, as yet, is there any intimation that Nazi air-power has proved an answer to British seapower. Germany's vaunted air armada signally failed to shield from British naval attack the Nazi warcraft and troop and supply ships shuttling to execute and maintain the invasion of Norway.

War And The Birthrates

TWO YEARS without the birth of a single baby would be a tragedy for any land. Yet, according to the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, an equivalent situation may develop in some of the European countries now at war if the experience of the first World war is repeated.

"War," the statisticians say, "not only snuffs out the lives of soldiers and civilians, but takes toll of the generation to come. The acute depression of the birth rate in France and Germany during the first World war was tantamount to the complete wiping out in those countries of all births for two normal years."

The leaders of the nations at war in Europe have, remembering the last war, expressed concern over birth rates which already have begun on the downward trend.

Writers of fiction have imagined the wrath of God brought down upon the civilizations causing all births to stop, as punishment for the crime against humanity that nations execute by participating in war.

If God were to decree that no more babies were to be created until humanity learned to live in peace, the punishment would be deserved.

But man, without the wrath of God being applied so directly, brings about an almost equal situation by killing off the young men who ordinarily would be getting married and reproducing their kind.

The leaders of Europe's warring nations may well show concern over declining birthrates!

The Child Welfare Conference

THE 14TH Iowa Conference on Child Development and Parent Education will be held on the campus June 18, 19 and 20.

Of the many events each year which are part of the University program, few stand out for their interest as bright as does this conference.

The conference is sponsored by the Iowa State council for child study and parent education with the cooperation of the Iowa child welfare research station and the extension divisions of the University, Iowa State college and the Iowa State Teachers college.

The distinguishing theme of this conference which created such popularity for its last year is embodied again in the 1940 conference. With youth's problems being one of the major concerns of the democracies today, the conference is building its program around the general theme of "The Needs of Children and Youth in a Democracy."

What will enrich the lives of young people in Iowa, what will promote their welfare in the democratic way of life, these things the conference will seek to discover and point out.

The program's main concern is with youth, but the younger children and babies are not forgotten in the discussions of problems for parents.

With such a select program theme and a distinguished slate of speakers and discussion leaders, we look forward to this 14th conference with anticipation.

Wanted: Young Men, Alive!

"PERHAPS THE most frightening aspect of modern war," says President Raymond B. Fosdick of the Rockefeller foundation, "is the intellectual bleakness which it creates. One does not have to subscribe to H. G. Wells' grim prophecy that 'mankind, which began in a cave and behind a windbreak, will end in the disease-soaked ruins of a slum'; but certainly the night in Europe cannot be long continued without the sacrifice of cultural values on so vast a scale that the chance of an enlightened and gracious life, not alone for this generation in Europe but for the children and grandchildren of this generation, will be irretrievably lost."

When President Fosdick voices his fear over the war's cultural destruction he points out an effect that the college men and women of America should have brought to their attention.

The manners in which war destroys human values and the material civilization that we have built are manifold.

None is so frightening to men of science as the destruction of men on the battlefield. It is not entirely the destruction of ideals and materials for the present that matters alone. It is that war knows only flesh—a human body housing a potentially great mind is as good a target as the body of a moron.

In the last war England sent many of her greatest men of science and learning into the front line trenches where they died. Research was stopped when these men died, and even had they been left behind the nation would not have allowed them to continue "fussing about a laboratory" when their comrades were fighting.

England learned in the last war. The great research projects which were under way in England last fall are being allowed to continue. The great men of science and learning have not been asked this time to join the ranks to fight.

But the tragedy arises because most men who have demonstrated intellectual genius are too old for the draft in the first place. No one can count the number of young men with powers to contribute to our progress who have died before their genius flowered. These men die.

This is a plea that the cream be saved to carry on by defending the citadel at home, to carry on building on the ruins.

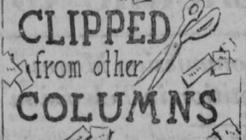

It is a plea that no youth be asked to die.

But of course, it is unseemly in our day to plead that a Martian monster be allowed to go unfed.

Zadok Dumbkopf says a peanut politician is one who thinks he's plenty hard-shelled but cracks under the slightest pressure.

A new and terrifically powerful explosive, we read, is to be known as glimite. Some of the vowels must have been blown out of the name.

There are 160 college cooperatives doing an annual business of $2,700,000.

By way of helping to celebrate the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the patent law, seventy-five scientists and officials have drawn up a list of America's "nineteen greatest inventions."

Three of them—the incandescent lamp, the phonograph and the motion-picture projector—they have credited to the late Thomas A. Edison.

Of course, the memory of Edison does not really need to be thus refreshed by formal, almost "official," action. The work he did, embodied in the more than 1,300 patents taken out in his name, is all about us. He did not create the modern world, no more than any one man created it. But he had a decisive hand in its design; and what he did not complete he brought to the point where somebody else could perfect it. In many instances his inventions were "decisive"; in many others they were generative. We live in an age that is stamped with his genius, luck and labor.

Nevertheless it is good to know that scientists have officially credited him with the phonograph, movie projector and electric light. Their findings will be challenged, of course. Edison did have predecessors. Sir Joseph Wilson Swan was one. And only a few years ago Bristol, England, boldly advanced the claim of William Friese-Green as the true "inventor of the cinema." But the history of science and invention is full of such contentions, nearly all of them with a real basis in fact. Newton and Leibniz both developed the calculus. Mendelyev and Mayer overlapped in formulating the Periodic Law. Wallace and Darwin hit almost simultaneously upon the bases of modern evolutionary theory. Adams and Leverrier were codiscoverers of Neptune. To this day Massachusetts offers Morton as the "father of anaesthesia," while Georgia counters stoutly with Long.

Yet time has its own way, whatever the nature of its justice, of apportioning fame as between such rival claimants, and it has already come down heavily on Edison's side. Still, it helps clarify things when students of the history of invention support the popular, if crude verdict of the years. And that is what they have done in Edison's case.

"SOMETHING ROTTEN IN DENMARK"

Senator C. O'Mahoney's 'Monopoly Committee' Warned That 48 States May Be Drifting Apart

Do our 48 states show a tendency toward developing into 48 separate countries? If they do, we shouldn't admit that they've done so, of course. Nevertheless Senator C. O'Mahoney's so-called monopoly committee was solemnly warned by expert witnesses the other day that they do show such a tendency—in effect.

By the way, it's quite incorrect to term O'Mahoney outfit a "monopoly investigating committee." Its real purpose is to figure out, if it can, what's the matter, if anything, with our national economics in general—not to deal with monopolies in particular.

Anyhow it's widely agreed that the United States, in the main, has been pretty prosperous, as compared with most of the rest of the world. And even high tariff protectionists admit that its prosperity probably has been largely due to the fact that it's been the most extensive single free trade area on the earth.

State Tax Barriers But in recent years many states have adopted policies of erecting tax barriers to exclude other states' goods from their various individual markets. They don't concede that they're protective tariffs (that would be federally unconstitutional) but that's what they amount to.

There's been some complaint about it, and a little less of it in the last year than previously. Still, it's quite prevalent yet.

It's a system against which a warning has just been sounded, before the O'Mahoney committee, by several first-rate authorities—notably Executive Secretary Frank Bane of the Council of State Governments and Dr. F. Eugene Melder, Clark university economist.

Senator O'Mahoney's committee is described as "temporary." Drs. Bane and Melder think it ought to be made "permanent."

They want internal tariffs abolished.

"Me First" Attitude Dr. Bane goes farther than that. To be sure, internal tariffs are his principal grievance, but he points also to the inclination of each state to solve its local problems at the expense of all other states. For instance, state No. 1 reasons that it has to have help from the other 47 states. Each of the other 47 states claims its share (or more than its fair share) from state No. 1.

Consequently, asserts Dr. Bane, individual states (trying to flim-flam other states) demand federal legislation of a properly purely state-wide character.

Moreover, they get it, by a process of swapping off votes on Capitol hill—thus getting federal legislation on purely intra-state issues.

On the opposite hand, the federal government, trying to regulate its payments to the various states, undertakes to tell said states what to do in connection with intra-state management—in violation of states' rights.

It's All Gunned Up In this fashion, Dr. Bane's thesis is that federal and state relationships are getting all gunned up.

He not only wants Senator O'Mahoney's committee to straighten them out—he wants a permanent organization to keep them straightened out. He asks the O'Mahoney organization to sponsor such a body. The United States Supreme Court is supposed to attend to the job, but Dr. Bane's story is that the supreme court is not now either rapid or thorough enough to do it.

Dr. Melder's testimony implies that he agrees.

Of course, Drs. Bane and Melder don't maintain that the United States necessarily will split up into 48 separate countries; there may be some groups—eight or ten or more of 'em.

And they won't formally separate themselves.

However, the two doctors foresee a gradual splitting up (not political immediately but economic) unless the current trend is counteracted.

The two doctors want that tendency fought.

D'Ya Wanta Duck Dinner? Gluttony Isn't Bad—Especially When Fowl Is Furnished

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of the nice things about knowing Charles E. Rochester, friend and fellow Louisianian, is that he knows a lot of people who shoot a lot of wild game during the proper seasons. And as they invariably leave a lot of ducks and geese and turkeys hanging on his game-rack, he gives wonderful game dinners to which this hungry reporter is occasionally invited.

There was the time of blessed memory a few weeks back when the dinner was wild duck. These were greenhead mallards shot in the Arkansas swamps by Clair Maxwell, of Life magazine and shipped here by plane. They were wonderful. When the chef brought them in they looked like a page ad, in color, out of Mr. Maxwell's own magazine. Since Mr. Rochester is the managing director of the Lexington hotel, you can bet your pearl stickpin that to the chef the preparation of this dish was no perfunctory chore. It was a labor of love.

As first one bird then another migrated from the platter past our palates Clair Maxwell would say, "I shot this one just as he sailed past a cypress stump," or "I got this one just at dusk, with a load of No. 5 chill." I ate my share in envious and attentive silence.

That was a few weeks ago, back there during the duck season sometime.

Today another call came. This time it was wild turkey. A fine gobbler. What lucky hunter bagged this prize I can not say. But I can name for you the man who prepared it. It was Charley's chef, this same Michael Angelo of the kitchens who previously had prepared the mallards.

Without any desire to lard this narrative with adjectives I must express the opinion that here was the supreme compliment to a January day. Gluttony, they say, is an evil thing. It is one of the seven deadly sins. It is well that these feasts come not too frequently. It is well, too, that Charley in a little while will leave for Honolulu, where he spends his annual vacation. Much more of this and the chef would be demanding a raise. Clair Maxwell would come down with the gout, and I would take on those strange dizzy seizures that come when the underfed enrich their blood streams too quickly.

You heard about that one, didn't you? It is one of the all-time classics of Wall street. Somebody dropped a fortune in bonds on the sidewalk, and a poor fellow who was practically starving found them and restored them to their owners. The firm was so delighted that it gave the man an ample cash reward and also a job.

With all this money in his pocket the poor fellow cut a dizzy pace in the down-town district. He was the envy of the bowery. But one day several weeks after this he became violently insane. The doctors were called in. After lengthy examination they explained that he had been underfed for months. When he suddenly came into money and began feasting on thick steaks and cream, his system just couldn't stand it. His blood-stream became enriched too quickly, and he went crazy. It was a sensational, page-one story!

Charley, hurry on off to Honolulu—before I begin figuring in the news.

PARADE OF OPINION

By Associated Collegiate Press

By Student Opinion Surveys AUSTIN, Texas, April 12—"Ghost writing" the practice of preparing themes and reports for some one else's class work, gets a thumbs-down expression of opinion from three-fourths of American college students.

What may be more surprising to some, however, is that the other fourth is either indifferent or openly in approval. These are the results of a poll conducted by the Student Opinion Surveys of America, collegiate sampling organization of the undergraduate press, of which The Daily Iowan is a member.

"What is your opinion of the practice of students paying ghost writers to prepare themes and term papers for them?" was the question presented to a scientific cross section from coast to coast.

Disapproving were 75 per cent; indifferent were 10 per cent; approving were 15 per cent.

Answers to the query were tabulated by the interviewers in five different categories to indicate the intensity of feeling on this issue. These results are given below:

Strongly opposed ..... 54 per cent Mildly opposed ..... 21 per cent Indifferent ..... 10 per cent Mildly in favor ..... 8 per cent Strongly in favor ..... 8 per cent

Significantly, it may be noticed that a majority of students, 54 per cent, is in the strongly-op-

The competition will consist of a written vocabulary test based principally on the required readings in first-year English. Five prizes, donated by G. and C. Merriam company, will be awarded as follows: first prize, Webster's New International dictionary (un-posed class. Also, the trend of approval, looking down the preceding row of figures, dwindles down to a mere 7 per cent at a rapid rate. The chief argument of those who favor ghost writing is that in effect it often helps students by giving them more time to study for more important and pressing courses. On the other hand, the majority of those opposed condemn it as plain scholastic dishonesty.

- Balmy Setup
Football Test
That's Different

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—A balmy day now we expect to run across an item to the effect that some worthy young man has failed in his college entrance examinations because he couldn't take out a tackle on a wide end run, and when that happens we'll know that the day isn't the only thing that is balmy.

Balmy Setup It will mean the whole college athletic setup is balmy, and Jim Schlemmer of the Akron Beacon Journal is authority for a story which indicates that the day isn't far distant.

Schlemmer relates that two large men arrived in Akron recently in a large automobile, the rear seat of which was cluttered up with such odds and ends as football suits, headgears, protective pads and footballs. One of the huskies was identified as a former all-American football player and later an assistant coach at Tennessee, now connected with the North Carolina State coaching staff.

Without further ado the visitors bundled Guth into the car and headed for the outskirts of town. Just when Guth was beginning to worry about the possibility of a one-way ride, the car stopped at an out-of-the-way field.

Football Test Guth was told to don football paraphernalia, and his hosts did likewise.

And there, far from prying eyes, Guth was put through a test to determine his football aptitude. His blocking, his tackling, his reflexes were examined thoroughly, and when it was over he was told he'd probably hear more later.

He did, receiving word that he had passed the preliminary examination and was qualified to report to North Carolina State for additional tests, and please find enclosed a round trip ticket to Raleigh.

The next time the Akron spring squad worked out, Guth strangely was among the missing.

The whole affair puts a new angle on the business of rounding up football material. A high school senior generally is considered fair game for any bush-beater who has instructions to get his man at any cost, providing it isn't more than $50 a month and board, room and washing.

That's Different But when the scouts start waving figurative checks in the faces of youths who already are enrolled at another college, that's a horse of a different shade. Even major league baseball clubs are forbidden to approach a player under contract to another club. The football player may not be under contract, but the idea is the same.

If such practice spreads, not only will a football coach be unable to announce a squad roster with any degree of certainty, but there will develop a crop of football bums which would shame the knights of the road.

The boys can't be blamed. They are the pawns in a vicious game played by college officials under pressure from alumni and others who don't care what kind of a football team they have as long as it is a winner.

Money speaks loud enough, but when seductive words of praise, of "You're a great young fellow, we can make a real star out of you," are hooked on as added bait, it's no wonder the callow youngsters puff up like toy balloons and bend a willing ear.

V. Basler In A. A. U. Finals

PHILADELPHIA, April 12 (AP)—Vance Basler, University of Iowa sophomore from Des Moines, Ia., and Dale Maloney, of Seattle, a sophomore at the University of Washington, featured tonight's opening competition in the national junior A. A. U. boxing championships before 5,000 at the arena.

Basler fought his way into the finals of the 160-pound class. He scored a technical knockout over Victor Gigli, of Reading, Pa., in 46 seconds of the third round, then outslugged Bob Jacobs, of Newtown Square, Pa., to win a decision in the semi-finals. Basler floored Jacobs for a nine count in the third round. Neither heard the bell ending the bout and exchanged, nearly a dozen blows before the referee stepped between them.

Maloney knocked out Earl Wentz, of Baltimore, in 1:47 of the first round in the 147-pound division then took a hard-fought decision over John Rivers, of Bethlehem, Pa., in a quarter-final bout.

Mrs. Dean Settles Dizzy's Recent Troubles With Cubs

CHICAGO, April 12 (AP)—Peck's bad boy of the Chicago Cubs, Dizzy Dean, had his face washed of its latest "jam" today. The temperamental pitcher will be in uniform tomorrow. His differences with Manager Gabby Hartnett, involving a $100 fine slapped on the great man for a curfew violation, were patched up speedily. Ol' Diz is going to pay the fine and make no complaint to Owner P. K. Wrigley. And everyone was inclined to credit Dizzy's pretty wife, Patricia, with an assist in the box score of Dean's latest escapade. "The war's over," she laughed as she led Ol' Diz to breakfast at their hotel today. "You know what happens when an irresistible object meets an immovable force. Dizzy got mad and Gabby got mad and you know what happened. But Dizzy's the man of the house, so I'll let him do the talking now." Jerome Herman gulped, grinned somewhat sheepishly, and said: "I talked with Gabby this morning and everything's swell between us now. He's square. He said he'd forget all about this thing if I would, and I said I would. We both agreed there's no use bothering Mr. Wrigley with it. "I admit I was wrong. I came in late at Wichita and I had a fine coming. But Gabby made me mad the way he did it. Instead of going to his or my room he let me have it in the hotel lobby and I was all burned up." Ol' Diz, however, started cooling off yesterday at St. Louis when he met Mrs. Dean, who pointedly inferred Dizzy was going to be a "good boy" again. And under the somewhat patient won't-you-be-good smile of his wife today, Dizzy "guessed" he'd see about meeting the fine shortly and hoped he'd see action in the city series with the White Sox this week end. "Boy, my arm feels fine," said

Jerome Herman, warming to a familiar subject. "It has ever since I gave those Browns only two hits in five innings last Monday. I just want to get out there and pitch. Everything's just swell between Gabby and me." At which Patricia stopped cutting Dizzy's ham, crossed her fingers and grinned: "Until the next time."

Hohenhorst, Hein To Hurl Today's Tilts

Yesterday's Game Postponed Because Of Damp Grounds

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 12—(Special to The Daily Iowan)—Bad weather, with resulting wet grounds, continued to plague Coach Otto Vogel's Iowa baseball team today, forcing postponement of the scheduled game with Notre Dame.

The postponed affair, first in a two-game series between the Hawkeyes and the Irish, will be played Saturday, making a double-header of the afternoon's bill. Two games, each of seven innings, are on tap before the Hawkeyes return to Iowa City.

Vogel is planning to use Fred Hohenhorst in the opener, while Dick Hein will probably hurl the nightcap. Neither has seen mound service on the present road trip, Harold Haub's three-hit shutout of Purdue Wednesday being listed as the only Hawkeye mound performance thus far this week.

However, both Hohenhorst and Hein have been impressive in the early games. Hohenhorst, veteran righthander, has hurled 12 innings to date, allowing but one run, that scored largely as a result of bobbles in the Bradley Tech game.

Hein, likewise, has been stopping opponents. Last Saturday, against Luther, he hurled scoreless baseball for seven innings in one of the best jobs of pitching seen in Iowa City in some time.

Trackmen Will Compete Soon In Jump Event

The annual jump triathlon, which includes pole-vault, broad-jump and high-jump, will be Tuesday, April 23 on the track west of the fieldhouse, according to Assistant Track Coach Ted Swenson. The event is open to any university undergraduate.

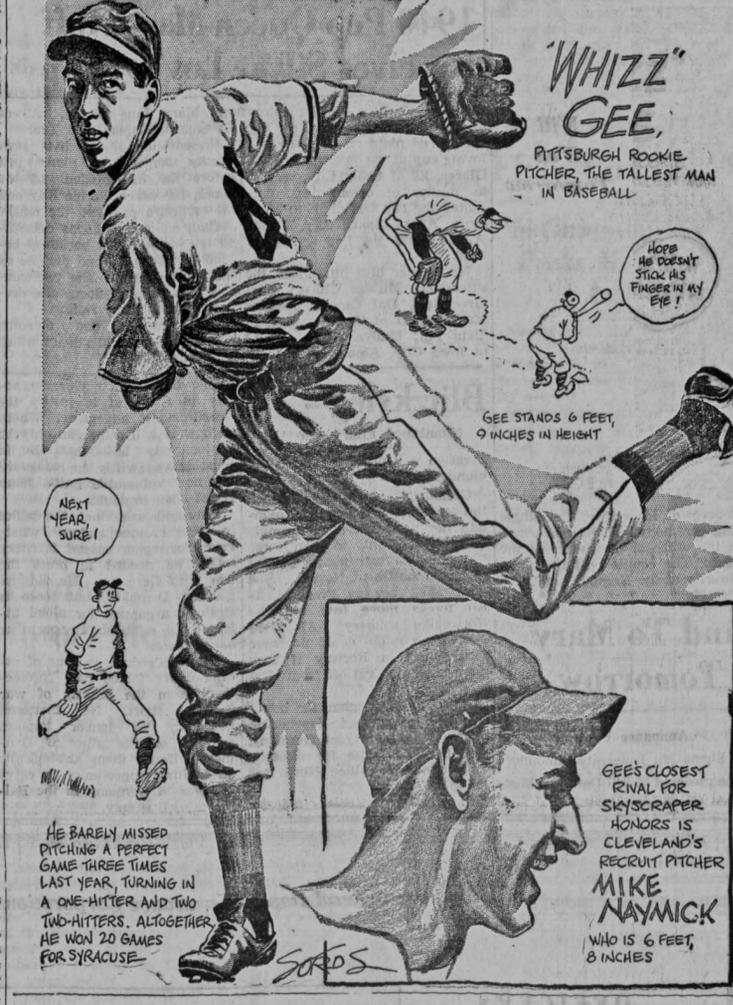

Last year the jump triathlon was won by Murray Patton, with a point total of 1898. Points are scored on a decathlon basis and medals will be awarded to first four place winners, while the winner will have his name engraved on a traveling trophy.

Men wishing to compete, but who do not have track equipment, are instructed to report to Swenson at the fieldhouse.

dashes, hurdles, high jump and broad jump to present the main Iowa City threat. The men who will make the trip and the events they will be entered in are: Jack Canney and Chuck Means, polevault; Buss Smith, high jump; Bob Bowery, broad jump; Owen Morgan, shot-put and javelin; Lynn Prazier and Cy Boye, 440-yard dash; Don Welt, 880 - yard run and mile; Eugene Bridenstine, hurdles; and Ed Smith, Frank Zeller, Fred Zeller, Bill Ranshaw and Art Huesinkveld, relays.

Although U-high will present a balanced program and will be the team to beat for the title, several strong eastern Iowa outfits, including Anamosa, Lyons of Clinton, and DeWitt, will be outstanding threats to the U-high supremacy.

Y.M.C.A. Mermen Swim In State Meet Today

150 Swimmers Have Entered

Begins at 2 P. M. In Iowa Pool This Afternoon

Anyone looking for good athletic entertainment can find it this afternoon at the fieldhouse swimming pool where 150 mermen representing 11 Iowa cities will convene for the annual state Y. M. C. A. swimming championships. The first event will start at 2:00 o'clock and no admission will be charged.

Coach Dave Armbruster of the Iowa swimming team has charge of the meet and recommends it as one of the finest in the state. Although the state "Y" meet started only eight years ago, it has grown rapidly and competition has become increasingly keen. Last year nine records fell, one of them a national mark. Two more records have already been broken in district contests this year, and others are expected to fall in the fast Iowa pool.

Do Your Own Picking Experts Give Cards Edge Over Cincinnati, But Margin Is Very Thin

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—Despite the fact that their infield admittedly is shaky, the St. Louis Cardinals are the choice of a majority of the nation's baseball writers to beat out the Cincinnati Reds in the coming national league race.

Possibly on the knowledge that a champion of the senior circuit seldom repeats, if for no more sensible reason, 39 out of 76 experts polled by The Associated Press pick the Red Birds to play in the World series next October. Only 34 believe the Cincinnati pitching staff can do it again, while two like the Chicago Cubs and one lone rebel plunks for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

If the Cardinals should make good for the guessers, their victory would climax one of the most sensational rises to the top in recent baseball history. Two years ago they finished nowhere, and even when the 1939 campaign began they were not considered of pennant caliber. Yet, after a slow start last

Yank Fielder Is Sick Man

ASHLAND, Ky., April 12 (AP)—Jake Powell's doctor tonight dispelled any hopes the New York Yankees' right fielder might have had of participating in the season's lid-lifter at Philadelphia next Tuesday.

"He's still a sick man," the doctor said, "though he showed improvement today.

"He should remain in bed a couple of weeks yet," the doctor added, "but I can see it will be quite a job to hold him."

Powell crashed into a steel fence in the Yankees' game with Brooklyn here Wednesday. Doctors said they expected to determine tomorrow the extent of a skull fracture.

No visitors are permitted in Powell's hospital room.

Weather Bothers Cubs and Chisox

CHICAGO, April 12 (AP)—Thirty degree weather and snow flurries kept the Chicago Cubs and White Sox indoors today and forced postponement of their 1940 home town debut until tomorrow.

211 Entered In Class A Track Event

Two hundred and eleven athletes representing 19 Iowa high schools have gathered today to compete in the first class A state interscholastic indoor track meet ever to be held.

Preliminary events will be this afternoon along with three final events, the pole vault, 440-yard dash and the two - mile relay. All of the many events will be completed in tonight's session, which will include four special events staged by the varsity and freshman trackmen of the university. These events will be a 440- and 880-yard relay, a two-mile team race and a special freshman exhibition 440 - yard dash.

The fieldhouse will echo with the starter's gun shots and the high school lads will be running, jumping and throwing for several hours. Davenport is considered the favorite of the meet with McKinley of Cedar Rapids and Clinton will up in the running for the first place trophy.

Today's meet will see many champions and runners-up from last week's class B meet doing their all to best the class A men in the various events.

The afternoon events will begin at 2:30 o'clock in the fieldhouse and the evening affair will get underway at 7 o'clock.

Station WSUI will broadcast the evening contest starting at 7:30.

and Woody Rich to work against the Bees tomorrow and Manager Casey Stengel has high hopes that Nick Strinevich can keep his sidearm offerings going against the sockers for the nine innings route.

Terry Satisfied With Mel Ott

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., April 12 (AP)—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants took advantage of the cancellation of today's exhibition against the Cleveland Indians to announce that he had no worries over Outfielder Mel Ott.

"Say why should I worry? Ott's going to start bearing down from now on, he's told me, and that's good enough for me. Ott is all right."

The rightfielder got his first hit in 15 at bats yesterday.

Tomorrow it will be Carl Hubbell vs. Al Milnar on the mound as the teams take their rivalry into the Cleveland.

Boxox Take Things Easy

BOSTON, April 12 (AP)—Rain gave the Boston Red Sox an unexpected holiday and the American leaguers, following the example set by the Boston Bees, devoted much of it to house-hunting.

The two Boston clubs will continue their intra-city series at Fenway park tomorrow and Sunday. Manager Joe Cronin has named Herb Hash, Bill Butland

Johnny Mize, Jimmy Brown Out Of St. Louis Baseball Series

Whitehead, McGee Probable Pitchers For Browns, Cards

ST. LOUIS, April 12 (AP)—Johnny Whitehead for the Browns and Fiddler Bill McGee for the Cardinals are probable starting pitchers in the first game of the city series tomorrow.

The remainder of the Browns' lineup probably will be the same that starts the American league race in Detroit next Tuesday but two important Cardinal cogs will be missing—Johnny Mize and Jimmy Brown, infielders.

Both have been in St. Louis for treatment of injured knees. The club surgeon has assured Manager Ray Blades they can play in the National league opening game with Pittsburgh here next week.

Otherwise, says Blades, his team is in good shape. Fred Haney, boss of the Browns, reports his club in fine condition and stronger than last year in the infield, outfield and pitching. He needs a top notch catcher.

Iowa Trackmen In Tryouts

Final tryouts soon will determine the personnel of the Hawkeye track squad to enter the Kansas Relays at Lawrence next Saturday, Coach George Bresnahan said yesterday.

Cold weather has hindered outdoor workouts so some of the preparations for the season's first outdoor meet have been carried on in the fieldhouse.

What relays the Hawks will enter has not yet been decided. The four-mile and the one-mile relay events are possibilities but at the most the Iowans will have no more than two relay teams entered in the Dust bowl meet.

Iowa entrants in individual events probably will include Bill Leuz, shot put; Hank Volleweider, high - hurdles; Jim Wilson, 100-yard dash and the high-jump, and Art Schlauder, in the 100-yard dash.

Parallel of Russell Case Seen in Jung's Book

Harry Hansen, editor of "The First Reader," column in the New York World-Telegram believes that New Yorkers who worry about Bertrand Russell's appointment to New York City college faculty should take a lesson from Dr. Moses Jung, former University of Iowa faculty member.

Russell's appointment to the college faculty has been opposed on the grounds his personal ideas on morality would corrupt youth. Hansen, reviewing "Modern Marriage," by Dr. Jung, published last week, asserts, "I was struck by the application that Mr. Jung's views on education in the home might have to the controversy over opinions held by Bertrand Russell and their effect on growing children. He knows that youth asks for scientific justification of our traditions. The question is asked, Why not experiment in morals? And since so many marriages are wrecked, why not include in these experiments sex relationships?"

"Conservative parents," Hansen states, "are shocked when such questions are brought before them; their impulse is to 'shush' them. Because Bertrand Russell once expressed radical opinions in the field of morals they feel students might recall them when he lectures on philosophy and be contaminated because he is held in respect as a teacher. Jung, speaking about clashes between 'impetuous youth and authoritarian parents,' says:

"Parents should not lose courage easily and should not give up in despair. It was Ecclesiastes, the gentle cynic of Biblical fame, who long ago posed such disturbing questions about the destiny of man and beast. A generation ago the ethics of the superman of Nietzsche was thrown by undergraduates at their parents and teachers, and only a decade ago an imitation of Menckens' skepticism was considered the hallmark of a wide-awake student. Today Freudianism, materialism and hedonism are exploited."

"And it seems to me that the following opinion fits the Russell case: 'Rarely does a student surrender body and mind completely to one philosophy. His intellectual love ofte springs from short acquaintance with the philosophy of his choice and may change for another love, or a number of loves. The same contrariness that made him attack the traditions of the old will prompt him to discover flaws in the newly adopted substitute. His social radicalism must not be overestimated. It is one thing to corner one's parents in a discussion on the most realistic novel or companionate marriage or sex repression. It is quite another to translate theories into actual practice. Every educator knows how frequently such iconoclasts settle down and proceed to cultivate the standards of their parents in home and community.

"Adolescence needs guidance, not smothering. The real foundations of character are laid in the home, where the child accepts its ideals and attitudes without question. Thus the authors of Modern Marriage, familiar with the latest ideas, come back to the ancient truth. Mr. Jung quotes the modern educator as saying, 'Give me the home and I will rebuild society.'"

Blitzkrieg--

invasion will prove a fatal Hitler blunder.

Germany must quickly reopen the sea road to Norway to maintain her army there; or trample Swedish neutrality to enlarge the Scandinavian war zone. Failing that, the battle of Norway must go against her as Franco-British forces move into aid the Norwegian soldiery. All Germany's air might could not save nazi forces in Norway if they were otherwise cut off from Germany.

Nor can Norwegian air bases, in the absence of dependable routes of supply from Germany, be of much value for close-up nazi attack on allied North sea shipping.

Every detectable indicator points toward new German action in the west to justify the Scandinavian adventure. Where or how it will come can only be conjectured; but that Berlin must move swiftly to safeguard her now vulnerable Baltic flank is not open to doubt.

Churchill said that the allies intended to take and use whatever Norwegian coastal territory might be needed to press the war with Germany. He did not mention Denmark, but there is strategic argument for allied attempts to establish air or other bases there.

Denmark's dubious hour of escape under forced nazi "protection" from the horrors of war may be short. Her shattered neutrality no longer imposes scruples on the allies if Denmark affords them strategically an inviting opportunity to carry the war to Germany in the Baltic, as well it may.

Professor Wright Describes Iowa's Mourning for Lincoln

Just 75 years ago this week Eric would give way to deep grief," Miss Wright quotes in her final article in the series.

Professor Wright has contributed many times to the Palimpsest and is a native of Cedar Falls, central locality of the stories, where her mother maintains her residence. Professor Wright is known also for her new course on cultural development in Iowa.

Under the general title of "Victory and Mourning," Professor Wright has told of these events in five articles beginning with "The Glorious Day" and continuing through "Lincoln Is Dead," "A Prairie Editor Comments," "Iowa in Mourning" and "The Closing Scene."

"As the street door swung open, boys with limp bundles of onepage, handbill 'extras,' smelling pungently of printer's ink, burst into Main street. The excitement grew contagious. Men shouted themselves hoarse." So Professor Wright describes the scene in one Iowa town, and confirms it with scenes from other Iowa towns.

Midnight celebrations, fireworks, the ringing of bells, shouting, the hanging of Davis and Lee in effigy, parading militia, victory meetings, male quartets singing patriotic airs, and jubilee dances helped the war-weary citizens of Iowa, and Cedar Falls in particular, wear off the pent-up anxiety.

Then the hero of the north, Abraham Lincoln, was reported murdered. Professor Wright contrasts the bright Easter day, April 16, with the gloom which followed verification of the assassination and Lincoln's death.

The union memorial service which she describes was a traditional military one to which the residents had become accustomed in the war days which had preceded so closely.

George D. Perkins, editor of the Cedar Falls Gazette, soldier-citizen, wrote in his editorial columns of Lincoln, "No words of mourning can express the unutterable woe of the heart; no words of execration can pronounce the maledictions which rise up against those on whom his pure blood rests. The hellish demon of American Slavery has added the exalted Lincoln to its long catalogue of victims." Thus Miss Wright passes on to us in the Palimpsest the words of a contemporary about the president who died 75 years ago.

Describing the last rites of President Lincoln, Peter Melendy, "literary scribbler for the Gazette," and Cedar Falls member of the Iowa delegation to Chicago, wrote back to his newspaper that "as the eye of the watcher caught the simple word in letter of silver on the side and beneath the coffin of LINCOLN, the tears would start and audible sobs could be heard in all directions. The old and young, stout men, unused to tears,

Men Take Honors in Bridge Tournament as Sigma Nu, Team Three of Quad Win

That men are better bridge players than women was conclusively proven with the final results of the fraternity-sorority dormitory bridge tournament sponsored annually by Union Board.

Sigma Nu fraternity was victor in the contract division and team three of the Quadrangle carried off honors in the auction section.

Teams playing in the two divisions were narrowed down to four groups in each. These eight teams have been playing round robin in their respective divisions with the teams winning the most of the games in each section named winners.

Final standings, announced yesterday by Ed McCloy, C4 of Iowa City, general chairman of the tournament, are given here.

Auction		Contract
Team	Won	Team	Lost
Quad three	3	Quad three	0
Gamma Phi Beta	2	Gamma Phi Beta	1
Quad one	1	Quad one	2
Quad two	0	Quad two	3
Contract		Contract
Sigma Nu	3	Sigma Nu	1
Kappa Alpha Theta	2	Kappa Alpha Theta	2
Gamma Phi Beta	1	Gamma Phi Beta	1
Theta Xi	1	Theta Xi	2

All teams played three times in the round robin tournament except Sigma Nu and Kappa Alpha Theta in the contract divisions which each played four games. This was necessitated by a tie for first place between the two after the regular schedule was played, McCloy explained.

Prof. Deutsch Discusses Two World Wars

'Propaganda Not As Powerful Today Due To Informed Public'

By BESSIE JEAN ROWE

"We cannot dissociate the two world wars," asserted Prof. Harold C. Deutsch of the University of Minnesota in his speech, "1914 and 1939: Parallel or Contrast," given yesterday at 2 p. m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

"The temptation to draw historic parallels is not good, but it is difficult to resist the temptation," he said. Professor Deutsch pointed out that there is a great danger in confusing similarities in appearance with fundamental similarities. "It may be an accident that the great sea power faces the great land power, but it may be significant."

Causes of War

Professor Deutsch stated that if the present world war started where the other left off, the underlying causes must resemble each other. He summarized the conception of its causes into five general categories:

1. Essentially the result of sick society, imperialism.
2. Essentially the result of the ambitions of one man or one nation.
3. Struggle for power.
4. Too much concern with ideologies.
5. Classic old socialistic conception that wars are the natural consequence of socialistic order.

Nazis Lose Confidence

"Learning something from World War one, the nazis felt that England must be kept out of the hostile camp if national socialism was to reign in Germany. Hitler himself felt this strongly as he emphasized it in his 'Mein Kampf,'" he said. He added that this feeling began breaking down in the early 1930's when Germany started losing respect for England's traditional policy of uncertainty.

Professor Deutsch, author of "The Genesis of Napoleonic Imperialism" and an expert on politics and economics in the years preceding the war, pointed out that England ceased to be a power in the Ethiopian crisis and in the Spanish war. The Japanese ridiculing of her did her no good either. This was climaxed in 1938 and England received a severe setback when Germany annexed Austria, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

People Uninformed

Showing the contrast between the two wars, he said that the world knew little about the war of 1914 until long after it had started. People were uninformed about the pre-war situation, as the little amount of information given out was either colored out of proportion or essential details omitted. Then, too, there was not much interest on the part of Americans, he pointed out.

"Now the public demands information, and the radio and press are obliged to get it and give it out. We are not so susceptible to propaganda. The war of 1939 was much more staged than that of 1914 and we can't expect always to get material exactly truthful. The biggest problem in 1914 was mobilization. Military factors played no role in 1939," he continued.

Adding a surprise note, Professor Deutsch said that Germany is extremely careful not to "falsify" now because she does not want to lose the respect of the rest of the world. He closed by saying that whatever Stalin and Mussolini and the most important bystanders do, they will be crucial factors in the outcome of this war.

Cravens Talks To Historians On 'Old South'

Wants Instructors To Correct Distorted Facts About Region

By FRANCES CURLE

"There is no south; there never has been," Avery O. Craven, professor of history at the University of Chicago, made this statement last night at the evening session of the 20th annual history conference in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Professor Craven's topic was "The South—The American Historian's Problem No. 1." He was introduced by Prof. Harrison J. Thornton, Prof. Craven is the protégé of the late William E. Dodd, former United States ambassador to Germany. He has written several books, the latest being "The South and the Nation's Blunder" which is to be released this fall.

Blue Bloods

"Pictures have been built up about the south which must be disproved unless the real values of the south to the American nation are to be lost," Professor Craven said. The first fact to be corrected is that the south is composed entirely of "blue bloods." The southern gentlemen were to the United States as the noblemen were to England.

Secondly, there is no climatic problem in the south as many reports have been led to believe. Professor Craven pointed out that in only two small spots in the south is there a torrid climate.

"The south is no land of aristocrats. These people were originally of the middle class and of the same stock as the laborer of New England. There were three distinct classes—the aristocrats, the poor whites and the negro," Professor Craven went on to say.

Morale of the South

This region was not a backward region when judged by rural standards as it rightfully should be. A greater share of its land was given over to agriculture, he pointed out.

Morals of these states were neither better nor worse than those of its neighbors," he stated. "Temperance societies were present but there was still a good deal of drinking."

Lastly, the southerner's picture of his own south was false. It was pictured as a place of magnolias and moonlight. The negro didn't fare as badly as some thought. These people wanted to be different from the north so they presented their distinct picture.

Destruction

"The south was headed for destruction," he said, "even if there had been no war." Professor Craven went on to say that the problem of the conflict between northern industry and southern agriculture could never be solved by bringing slaves from Africa and trying to make them over into gentlemen in a short time.

The historian's greatest problem is to correct these distorted facts about the south and try to conserve the southern culture so vital

Skyscrapers -- A Culmination of Art

Romanticism in Growth of Buildings, Prof. Megrew Tells Art Group

A skyscraper? Oh, yes, that's a very high building that holds uptown offices and is in big cities.

"Well, that's one way the average person would look at the modern marvel—the skyscraper. However, a lecture yesterday by Prof. Alden F. Megrew in connection with the art conference being held on the University of Iowa campus showed the skyscraper to be much more "romantic."

"I think that the skyscraper is the culmination of all the arts including painting, sculpturing, mosaic and others," said Professor Megrew.

"Skyscrapers have reached, for the present, their complete growth, the speaker said. He added that the Empire State building, the most modern and highest building, was built by modern architects.

Professor Megrew pointed out two reasons for the growth of the skyscraper. One, he said, is the elevator for without it skyscrapers never would have been built. "Who would walk 84 floors in any building?" questioned the speaker.

Secondly, skyscrapers were built because in many of the larger business districts in cities, added space was not available to build office rooms so "cramping" in one large building was necessary. Of course, the speaker pointed out, steel played perhaps one of the greatest roles in advancing the construction of the "scrapers."

Although New York has always been classed as the "skyscraper city of the world," Professor Megrew emphasized the fact that Chicago and its architects have made far more advancements than New York.

The Home Insurance building in Chicago was the greatest building built during the 19th century, he pointed out. It was an advancement that accidentally happened because of a mistake in the order for the construction materials. In place of iron beams being sent to the contractors, steel beams were sent. Ever since then our modern "scrapers have employed the useful metal—steel.

"The skyscraper is simply an addition to a one-story steel building," Mr. Megrew said yesterday. He added to this statement with pictures emphasizing the bold picture-effect used in all skyscraper construction. This idea, he said, has been present ever since skyscraper construction began back in 1799 in England.

"Paris and London have given the greatest contributions to our modern skyscraper construction," he said.

Professor Megrew will teach on the University of Iowa summer session in the art courses, it was announced yesterday. Then, according to Prof. Earl E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts, Professor Megrew will continue on the art school faculty next year. Professor Harper introduced the speaker and gave a few of the highlights of the speaker's life.

Professor Megrew is especially interested in American art and has been studying on this subject for many years.

'American Artists Express America,' Says Grant Wood

By MADELYN MILES

"Today American artists are expressing America," Grant Wood told an audience composed of students, faculty and those attending the Iowa art conference which is being held in Iowa City this week end. He spoke at the art building.

The Iowa artist began his discussion of "Regional Art" with a "bird's eye survey of what has happened in art in the western world in the past four decades." He mentioned various schools which flourished for a brief space of time.

"The great contribution of modernism was its re-assertion of the importance of structural design in art," said the painter.

It was against the gross photographic naturalism of the late 19th century, pointed out Wood, that the modernist schools revolted.

"After the war, artists were forced to realize that the separation of representation from the design was both unnatural and unhistorical," he stated.

As a consequence, the artist went on, in the early 1920's there was a definite swing back to subject matter and the traditional standards of representation in art. Wood cited three manifestations of the change: use of art as social propaganda, surrealism, and third and most important, rise of a new national art in various countries.

Among the artists who at this time were quietly painting the material of their own environment and trying to form their own styles instead of borrowing wholesale the current French experiments were Burchfield, Curry, Marsh, Benton and others with similar aims.

"These artists," Wood explained, is to correct these distorted facts about the south and try to conserve the southern culture so vital

THESE ATTRACTIONS NOW PLAYING AT IOWA CITY THEATERS

'ANOTHER THIN MAN'

William Powell and Myrna Loy in "Another Thin Man" starting today at the Varsity Theatre.

'DR. EHRLICH' NEXT AT ENGLERT

Edward G. Robinson Stars in Film of War Against Dread Germs

Not since the advent of talking pictures did such radical news emanate from Hollywood as when Warner Bros. announced that it would film the story of the life of Dr. Paul Ehrlich.

Edward G. Robinson stars in "The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet." Not a gangster picture, yet a war on the deadliest public enemy of all, it is highly exciting film entertainment. It will be shown locally at the Englert theater, starting Tuesday.

Harry and J. L. Warner, who introduced talking pictures to the world when they made "The Jazz Singer" and revolutionized the entire industry, have again blazed a new trail by producing "The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet."

Their innovation in 1927 began a controversy that was furiously debated but which finally influenced the entire course of modern films and now, thirteen years later, they have again made another significant contribution to the screen with a rich and colorful story that reveals the amazing progress of science.

Their film, "The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" is the culmination of a program that began with "The Story of Louis Pasteur." At that time the entire industry was skeptical of the plan to present the screen biography of a scientist. "Who is interested in germs?" just about summed up the attitude of the disbelievers. Yet "Pasteur" set a precedent which has labeled Harry and Jack Warner and their executive producer Hal B. Wallis the most progressive and fearless leaders in the industry.

KYSER'S FILM COMING TO IOWA

'That's Right You're Wrong' Stars Nation's Radio Band With Adolphe Menjou

Marking the first film appearance of Kay Kyser and his famous band, "That's Right—You're Wrong" co-stars Kay Kyser and Adolphe Menjou at the head of a brilliant cast in what is said to be the novelty screen hit of the season.

"That's Right—You're Wrong" joyously probes the troubles encountered by a film company in trying to produce a band leader picture. The first attempt has Kyser as a romantic Latin type—and by no stretch of the imagination can Kyser be considered a torrid Latin lover!

After several successive attempts to shape a likely story, the scenarists give up. Meanwhile the members of the luckless band go Hollywood in a big way; and the luckless producer, unable to see any other way out of the dilemma, tries to maneuver Kyser into breaking his contract.

The scheme almost succeeds when Kyser is informed of the producer's chicanery by the disgruntled scenarists. He turns the tables on the producer by agreeing with all his ridiculous suggestions, even making a complete screen test as the romantic Venetian gondolier of the original story.

The producer's further attempts to ease Kyser out of the contract, and the popular batonist's retaliation in side-splitting manner result in a unique climax to this hilarious melodic screen fest.

'Two Thoroughbreds' To Be Iowa Co-Hit

Combining sweet simplicity with dramatic power, RKO Radio's "Two Thoroughbreds," which has its initial showing next Sunday at the Iowa theater, is said to be a gripping story of a small boy's fight for happiness.

Featuring Jimmy Lydon and Joan Brodel, two clever juveniles, the down-to-earth story revolves around the determined efforts of a boy to raise a colt which he has found and which his miserly uncle is equally determined to sell. What the lad doesn't know is that the young colt is the foal of a thoroughbred brood mare stolen by crooks from the Conway ranch.

Inevitably the boy meets Conway's young daughter and eventually learns the truth about his beloved horse. Because the colt is the biggest thing in his lonely unhappy life, the boy is reluctant to give him up. This character study of the bewildered luckless youngster whose soul cries out for companionship and love is said to reach spectacular dramatic heights, making the story one of the most human heart-tugging dramas of youth ever screened.

'ANOTHER THIN MAN' AT VARSITY

Thin Man Jr. Joins Powell, Myrna Loy In New Hilarity Thriller

Shifting with a deft pace from baby parties to bizarre crime, from marital mirth to murder thrills, and from palatial Long Island estates to the dives of New York, "Another Thin Man," latest of the sparkling "Thin Man" series, comes to the Varsity theater.

It teams that favorite screen pair, William Powell and Myrna Loy, once again as the shrewd and witty Detective Nick Charles and his charming but somewhat daffy wife, Nora. Their gay banter, which enlivened "The Thin Man" and "After the Thin Man," the other pictures in the series, gets away to a new high in this offering due to the introduction of a Thin Man, Jr., the baby whose arrival was predicted at the end of the preceding picture. The laughs, centering around Nickie Jr., as played by eight-months-old William Poulson, reach a hilarious climax with a baby party given

'Llano Kid' Is Varsity Co-Hit

One of the best-loved of all O. Henry stories, "A Double-Dyed Deceiver," comes to the screen as "The Llano Kid" in Paramount's new outdoor action drama, which is scheduled next for the Varsity theater. With handsome, guitar-playing Tito Guizar playing the title role, "The Llano Kid" tells a rapid-action tale of a daring young desperado who doubles for the long-lost son of a wealthy Mexican family in the hope of robbing it. Guizar is assisted by a large cast, including Gale Sondergaard, Alan Mowbray and Jane Clayton, pretty Paramount starlet.

'HIS GIRL FRIDAY' NOW AT STRAND

Cary Grant, R. Russell Co-Star in New Comedy—Year's Gayest Romance

Once in a while a motion picture projects the elusive essence of light-hearted gaiety against a suspenseful background of melodramatic action in such deft fashion that it is immediately hailed as a smash hit.

Such a picture is Columbia's Howard Hawks' production, "His Girl Friday," which is now showing at the Strand.

Notable in a long list of high-lights is said to be the superlative stellar cast, the pungent, sparkling dialogue, the careful development of characters and the inspired direction of Hawks.

Cary Grant, Rosalind Russell and Ralph Bellamy provide a formidable triumvirate of talent, exacting laughter from hilarious situations, adding meaning to exciting and dramatic scenes. Miss Russell, the central figure in an unprecedented triangle, bears out previous ecoumisms of critics. Grant is so engaging as a likable rascal that his peccadillos are forgiven almost at the moment they are revealed. Bellamy, playing a grand character part, imparts a believability and naturalness to its interpretation that beggars description.

"His Girl Friday" establishes Miss Russell as the ex-wife of Grant and about-to-be bride of Bellamy, gains momentum with Grant's efforts to forestall his former wife's matrimonial plans, and reaches a crescendo with the exciting events which transpire at a metropolitan city jail.

Hawks handles the melodramatic theme without resorting to questionable tactics, making all of his characters natural, depending upon brilliant dialogue and real characters to keep the story moving at a swift pace throughout.

The supporting cast, excellently chosen, keys its performance to the headlining trio. Gene Lockhart, Helen Mack, Ernest Truex, John Qualen, Roscoe Karns, Porter Hall and Cliff Edwards are featured.

"His Girl Friday" is based upon a play by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur.
