London Rejoices; King George Promises Norway 'All Help In Our Power' Against Nazis

30,600-Ton Warship Warspite Hailed by England As Captain Leads Flotilla Into Narrow Narvik Fjord for German Battle

LONDON, April 13 (AP)—Great Britain threw the overwhelming might of her navy today against the Nazi captors of Norway's ore port of Narvik and announced she had sent seven German destroyers to the bottom of the rocky bay and narrow inlet there in the second sea assault on that focal point of northern war within four days.

The admiralty confidently predicted this daring victory would "clarify the situation on this part of the Norwegian coast."

It did not say whether any British troops were landed, although at least one Stockholm radio report stated this to be a fact.

Fleeing men, "possibly German soldiers," were seen running over the hills behind Narvik.

"Further details were awaited," said the admiralty. "The admiralty is not precisely informed of conditions in Narvik town... operations are still proceeding."

"No estimate can be made at present of German losses in personnel but the seven destroyers sunk must have counted over 1,000 men," said the announcement.

Three of the attacking destroyers were damaged but none seriously and "British loss of life is believed to have been very small," it continued.

The storming of Narvik was hailed in rejoicing London as a prime achievement in vigorous British sea and air actions to loosen the Nazi hold on Norway prior to a general allied offensive against the invaders.

This daring attack was a sequel to Wednesday's dawn foray into Narvik fjord when the British reported the sinking of one out of six German destroyers and the setting afire of three others.

In that battle the British lost two out of five attacking destroyers, the Hunter and the Hardy, and two others were damaged. (The Germans say six British destroyers have been sunk at Narvik.)

In addition to the Nazi warships, the British reported seven German supply and ammunition ships were sunk in Wednesday's action, described by First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill as worthy of any in the proud records of the British navy.

Participating in today's expertly maneuvered fights was the British destroyer Cossack, which, with admiralty backing, took matters into its own hands and charged into Norway's territorial waters Feb. 16 to rescue 300 British merchant sailors held aboard the Nazi prison ship Altmak, at one time an auxiliary to the now-scuttled sea raider Admiral Graf Spee.

By directing the audacious attack, Vice Admiral William Whitworth, on the bridge of the Warspite, became the new man of the hour to Britons, who love nothing more than a good sea fight.

To maneuver a warship the size of the 30,600-ton Warspite into the narrow, rock-studded fjord leading to Narvik called for super seamanship.

The prospect also arose that the men fleeing Narvik, if they were German troops, would run into Norwegian forces reported gathering in the vicinity.

While the British fleet put words into action, Great Britain's King George VI in a message of cheer to King Haakon of Norway, assured the Norwegian monarch that the allies "are bringing all help in their power" to break Adolf Hitler's hold on the Scandinavian kingdom.

He expressed, "My profound admiration and that of the whole British commonwealth for the dignity, courage and tenacity shown by your majesty and your people."

Georgia Gaddis Takes Lead in Belle of the '40s Contest

Georgia Gaddis, A2 of Fort Madison, took the lead at the end of the first day of voting in the Lillian Russell club's "Belle of the Forties" contest. Miss Gaddis, who already wears the "Dolphin queen" crown, garnered 27 of the 144 ballots cast yesterday.

In second place last night was Virginia Miller, A3 of Fort Dodge, who polled 18 votes with Nona Seberg, A4 of Mt. Pleasant, the Honorary Cadet colonel, in third place with 15 votes.

The "Belle of the Forties" contest was started to find on the University of Iowa campus the logical successor to the beauty of Lillian Russell, "Belle of the Nineties."

When artist-professor Grant Wood declared Monday that the only genuine beauty was that of the Lillian Russell type, students on the campus protested loudly. The Lillian Russell club decided to conduct the campus contest, following the controversy which raged most of last week over the types of feminine beauty. Voting in the contest will continue until Friday at 5 p. m. At the end of the first day's voting the candidates in the contest stand as follows: Georgia Gaddis, A2 of Fort Madison—27; Virginia Miller, A3 of Fort Dodge—18; Nona Seberg, A4 of Mt. Pleasant—15; Mary Huff, A2 of Sioux City—14; Beverly Hunter, A2 of Rockford, Ill.—14; Agnes Kane, A2 of Keokuk—10; Jane Levine, A3 of Shenandoah—10; Elise Steine, A4 of Burlington—7; Betty Pawcett, A3 of Burlington—4; Evelyn Nebergall, A1 of Iowa City—3; Marion Kennedy, A3 of Estherville—3; Allayne Konechny, A1 of Cedar Rapids—3; Becky Johnston, A3 of Des Moines—3; Jean Bennie,

A Job for Joe Jones?

Will Iowa's Graduates Work for Spending Money for Dates and Movies—

Or Can Some Plan Like That of the A.Y.C. Be an Aid Toward Bettering Their Social Lives?

By E. C. DANIEL

WASHINGTON, April 13 (AP)—Take the case of Joe Jones Jr.; an average fellow, he is one of the 1,750,000 boys and girls who will leave high schools and colleges this year to start looking for jobs.

Where should Joe look? What jobs are available? What can he do? How much education and experience are required? What are his chances of promotion, of security? Will the job last or will it be outmoded by new methods or new machines?

As matters stand, Joe doesn't have much chance of finding the answers. Only 20 per cent of the nation's 1,600 employment offices have specialized services for juniors. Only six per cent of the 26,000 junior and senior high schools employ vocational guidance officers.

So Joe probably will talk to his family, his friends and his teachers. If he's ambitious and well-informed, he may read books and pamphlets. Undoubtedly, he will daydream of becoming an aviator, movie actor, engineer or doctor.

If he hasn't acquired the habit of loafing by that time, he'll take the first job he finds, to get money for dates and movies, if nothing else. On the average, it will be two years before he and his graduation mates settle down to work.

Then if his job doesn't fit him or he dislikes the work, he'll drift into something else. He may never find exactly the work he's suited to do.

A Problem of Youth

That picture of Joe Jones Jr., drifting into the business world without plan or purpose, is one of several youth problems that concerns the American youth commission, meeting here tomorrow. It is probably the biggest of those problems.

In an attempt to develop methods to solve it, the commission sent out 124 occupational analysts into eight areas on Jan. 1, 1938, to conduct a demonstration project in occupational adjustment, in cooperation with the United States employment service.

A blue-bound report of the results of that project, two inches thick, is ready today for the consideration of the commission.

Drafting programs is one of the activities of the commission, which was set up in 1935 by the American Council on Education.

Owen D. Young, General Electric board chairman, is acting chairman of the commission, which is composed of educators, industrialists, government officials, a labor leader and an editor.

Its job is to study every angle of the youth problem, and the occupational adjustment report is the biggest and most complete since commission's widely publicized Maryland survey.

The Youth Commission

Under the direction of Howard M. Bell, who wrote the story of youth and its problems as told by 13,500 boys and girls who were interviewed in the representative state of Maryland, the commission set up four community research centers around Baltimore, Md.; St. Louis, Mo.; Dallas, Tex.; and Providence, R. I.

Those locations were chosen with a view to getting scattered areas with both urban and rural, farm and industrial, seaboard and interior populations.

The work on the analysts, as described by Bell, was divided into three major divisions. They are:

Knowing Your University Faculty—

Major Butler—Number One 'Good Joe'

Major James F. Butler, number one "Good Joe" of the Military department, came to the university four years ago from Missoula, Mont., where he had been stationed after leading a life that would curl the hair of any biographer trying to follow him through his travels and adventures.

Major Butler (that "F" stands for Footville, his middle name) started his career by secretly shipping himself to England on a cattle boat when he was about 16 years old. However, he soon returned, since he didn't particularly "like being housemaid to a lot of horses and cows," and settled down to a comparatively quiet life with his parents in their Massachusetts home for several years. Pretty soon the World War broke out and, since he had already had four years training in the National Guard, he soon found himself in France in the midst of "la grande guerre." During his stay in France he had the chance to meet a lot of the people. Wherever he went his friends in one place would give him letters to their friends, so it is quite evident that he got more than battle scars out of the war. "The French people are the friendliest in the world," he says, "and I have always hoped to get back sometime, but as yet I have not had the opportunity."

Concerning what a soldier thinks about when he is in the hot spots in the front lines, he says, fear for yourself is not uppermost (although there is plenty of that too). The greatest fear one has is that he will "pull a boner" and unnecessarily endanger the lives of his men.

Among all the experiences that he had at the front, Major Butler says that the "closest shave" he ever had happened during one night when he and his men were guarding a certain hill. All was quiet for a while and then suddenly, "Fritz" sent over two six-inch shells that burst directly over my head—strangely enough I wasn't caught by the shrapnel, but the force of the explosion jammed my steel helmet down over my head and eyes—then several machine guns started and at the time I got the helmet off I

Broadway Dead?

'Yes,' Says Sullivan; 'Certainly Not,' Says New York's Tucker

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—For several years now this department has been watching an adolescent if heroic struggle going on in the newspaper world—the Hollywood columns of Ed Sullivan and Sidney Skolsky trying to write Broadway's obituary. Their approach has been to scoff at New York to plead that all the interesting people live in Hollywood, and that Broadway is only a place where a man named Ziegfeld used to put on leg shows.

Mr. Sullivan is a part-time vaudeville hooper who used to write a Broadway column, and Mr. Skolsky is the author and for all I know the inventor of the "dipsy" style of column that digs energetically into a subject's antecedents and then tells you whether Lupe Velez has on pants. The lone point of similarity between the two is that recurrently, like vagrant grave-diggers from Hamlet, they bob up with news that Broadway is embalmed and that only Hollywood has escaped the cooling board.

Only the other day Mr. Sullivan who is currently heel-beating through the sticks with an act, paused to note: "Once upon a time, and that not so many years ago, if you passed through the country, the youngsters in the various towns asked you about Florenz Ziegfeld, and Charlie Dillingham or George White. . . The big idea then was that the country seemed to have its eye focused on the lights that jittered electrically along Broadway. . . To date, we have signed literally thousands of autographs and we have yet to meet a single person who wanted to know anything about Broadway. . . All of them, young and old, have apparently transferred their interest to Hollywood. . . This is a trend that should be noted."

To me this is an incredible thing. Knowing Mr. Sullivan is from Hollywood, it doesn't seem possible that the people haven't plagued him with questions about Broadway. When I interview diplomats from Paris I always ask them about Shanghai. And when Col. Batista came over from Cuba recently the first thing the ship news reporters yelled was "Tell us about Seattle, Uncle." If we had inquired only after Havana the Colonel would have concluded, and rightly, too, that Seattle was dying and that only Young Dr. Kildare could save it.

While we are about this we may as well call the undertakers and tell them to make ready for a new-comer. Washington, D. C., is dead, too. In the old days, when you travelled through the country, the kids used to ask you about Grover Cleveland, and Warren G. Harding, and Woodrow Wilson. But Grover is dead now, and so are Warren and Woodrow, and there hasn't been a spark of life to the place since Frank Capra himself took Mr. Smith to Washington some months ago. This is another trend that should be noted, and I am sure that such an expert trend-noter as Mr. Sullivan won't mind my bringing it up.

Sometimes I take a certain crude pride in the many manifestations of this city's material welfare—

Practical Politicians Fear That Lewis' Third Party—If Formed—May Change Election Results

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

John L. Lewis' third party threat is taken more seriously by practical politicians in Washington than by the press generally. The editorial view seems, in the main, to be that a third party wouldn't stand a chance of electing an independent presidential candidate. Historical precedent is cited to the effect that none ever has succeeded in doing so. Politicians don't dispute that this is true. What they do say is that a third ticket might so disturb the balance between the two major parties' respective votes as to change the result as between those two.

To be sure, John Lewis didn't specifically say that he'd launch a third party. What he did say was that he didn't "expect anything" from the republicans. And he added that, if the democrats' platform and nominee don't suit him either, he'll call a convention of his own.

It seemed hard to interpret such a promise as meaning other-wise than a third ticket's nomination — or how could his independence convention have any significance at all? It might not imply the creation of an out-and-out new party as a permanency. It might be only an attempt to assimilate certain groups of both republicans and democrats into his new alignment, leaving the remaining republicans and democrats, each "out on a limb." And then, presumably, HIS bunch presently would become the DEMOCRATIC party, the other amalgamating as republicans.

Free Silver Days
Back in free silver days a majority of the democrats nominated William J. Bryan and a minority of them nominated Palmer and Buckner. But that wasn't a third party movement. Palmer and Buckner were BOLTING democrats. They lost. They didn't represent a third party, however. The republicans beat 'em on their joint democratic merits.

I suppose it was the same in the much earlier greenback era, which is too far in the past for me to recall.

But when ex-President Theodore Roosevelt ran, in the race between William Howard Taft and Woodrow Wilson, "Teddy" ran as a sure-enough third party, a Bull Moose. Well, he lost, but it was widely believed that Taft wouldn't have lost likewise if "Teddy" hadn't been in the contest.

That is to say, here was a third party ticket that it's likely decided the issue between the other two.

So it appears that a third party CAN be decisive, not in its own favor, but between the other two.

THE BENNY GANG
... is headed east for the premiere of Jack's new screen comedy, "Buck Benny Rides Again." Since the train on which Mary, ator La Follette ran, as a progressive, against President Coolidge and John W. Davis.

It did look then as if the two major parties needed to be realigned, and as if Senator La Follette might be able to do it. It didn't work. La Follette carried just one state — his own, Wisconsin.

So when politicians are asked what they think of a third party movement, their verdict unanimously is—"Phooey!"

Yet this isn't equivalent to saying, "A third party movement can't raise hades." They have to remember the "Teddy" Roosevelt-Taft-Wilson campaign.

Politicians agree, in short, that there OUGHT to be a party realignment.

They don't agree as to how. They don't understand HOW. They're uncertain as to your household help.

John L. Lewis' dope is along this line.

It gets down to your kitchen mechanic.

Oh! It's basic.

found the machine gunners were just about combing my hair."

Following the armistice, Major Butler returned to the United States and taught for a while in several military training schools.

Then came the Philippines—he was transferred to them where he commanded the most unique company in the whole American army. The company guarded the civil convicts of the Philippines and instructed them in the construction of fortifications and roads. In this group the leader was really a tough guy, having five life sentences and a 50 year sentence to serve. Nevertheless the Major got along fairly well and they later became good friends. That is, at least as good friends as prisoner and keeper can be. Following his service in the islands, Major Butler spent some time in China and Japan, and then returned to the United States. Since his return he has been engaged in teaching military in a number of different colleges and training posts.

As to the value of military training for college students, he says "that most of the students never realize the value of the military education they receive at the university until they have been out of college for a few years."

Photography is the Major's hobby and his skill in this line has reached a point that even many professionals would prize. He is president of the University Camera club.

Tall, erect, with close cropped gray hair, 47-year-old Major James F. Butler is a swell person.

Davenport Blue Devils Win State Class A Track Title; Ames Finishes Second

By ED BAIRD

The Blue Devils from Davenport put on a well balanced show last night in the fieldhouse, easily galloping away with their second major victory of the indoor track season.

Totalling a swarm of 51 2/9 points, the Davenport thincads added the 1940 class A state interscholastic indoor track meet championship to their victory of two weeks ago in the Mississippi Valley conference affair.

Ames was 20 points behind the Devils in second place and just ahead of McKinley of Cedar Rapids.

ids, who gathered in 30 13/18 points. Ottumwa had 30 points at the end of the contest, just nosed out for the third spot by the Ottumwa school.

Probably the most outstanding performances were turned in by Russ Ferguson of McKinley, Bill Garrett of Davenport, Gillespie of Fairfield and the record breaking 880-yard Davenport relay squad.

Ferguson was the only individual double winner of the meet, taking the 60-yard high and low hurdles; he also placed second in the 50-yard dash.

Bill Garrett topped the field in the 50-yard dash, taking the distance in 5.5 seconds, just one-tenth of a second from the record.

Four exhibition events were held between varsity, freshmen and a relay team from St. Ambrose college coached by Iowa's former track great, Carl Teufel. The special 440 yard relay was won by the varsity squad in 44.3 seconds, the freshmen were second ahead of the St. Ambrose team. Jim Wilson starting the 880 yard relay pulled a leg muscle slightly. The freshmen took this event, besting the varsity in 1 minute 33.6 seconds.

The special varsity-freshmen race was taken by varsity distance man, Cam Campbell, in 4 minutes 27.8 seconds. Irvin Wolf won the freshmen special 440 yard dash in 52.2 seconds.

Clinton Swimmers Win Second Consecutive Y. M. C. A. Title

Records Fall As Rivermen Take Y Meet

Cedar Rapids Team Places Second; Des Moines Third

By BOB HOWARD

Records came a dime a dozen at the Iowa field house pool yesterday afternoon where 150 swimmers gathered for the annual state Y.M.C.A. swimming championships. Four national records and 12 state records fell as a strong Clinton squad swept to its national and three state marks besides winning six other firsts and a total of 150 points. Cedar Rapids placed second with 108, and Des Moines eked out a one point margin to take out Marshalltown for third place with 49 points.

The first national record topped when Jim Platt of Clinton clipped eight tenths of a second from the mark set last year by his team mate, Hubert Norman, in the 200 yard B breast stroke. Norman kept his national standing by setting a new record in the first 200 yard of the senior 220. He was nosed out for the full distance, however, when Bob Christians of Cedar Rapids, and a former Hawkeye swimmer, forged ahead for a national 220 mark of 2:22.8. Jack O'Mahoney of Davenport, another former Iowa merman, turned in a time of 18 seconds flat in the senior 40 yard free style to lower by six tenths of a second a national record which has stood since 1926.

Browns Tie Cards, 2-2

ST. LOUIS, April 13 (AP)—The Cardinals, National league pennant favorites, and the Browns, picked to occupy the American league cellar, put on almost a perfect tie game today in battling 11 innings to a 2-2 deadlock in the opener of their city series.

When the umpires called the game on account of darkness, the box score showed each team had 40 official times at bat, nine hits, 33 putouts, 17 assists and one error. The Browns' hits, however, were all singles, while the Cardinals' included two doubles and Enos Slaughter's gift triple on a misjudged fly ball.

Both teams got pitching in mid-season form. Eldon Auker and Bob Harris each worked three innings for the Browns, with Jack Kramer finishing the game. For the Cardinals, Bill McGee, Clyde Shoun and Jack Russell divided the chores.

Rangers Whip Maple Leafs To Win Series

TORONTO, April 13 (AP)—Rallying after being two goals behind, the New York Rangers scored a goal after two minutes of overtime play tonight to defeat the Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 and win the final hockey playoff series for the Stanley cup, four games to two.

The Rangers pulled out two successive overtime games on Toronto ice to win the emblem of the world professional hockey championship for the third time in the club's history. After winning the first two games of the best-of-seven series at home, they were beaten twice here. Then they took the lead Thursday by winning a long overtime game and repeated the feat tonight when Bryan Mextall banged home the winning goal in the third minute of "sudden death" overtime play.

Second to the Boston Bruins during the regular National league season, the Rangers disposed of the league champions in a six-game preliminary playoff series. Toronto, which finished third, came to the finals by way of two-game triumphs over the Chicago Blackhawks and Detroit Red Wings.

'Iron Hawks' See Action in Scrimmage

Iowa's "Iron Hawks" of 1939 stole the show yesterday as Coach Eddie Anderson's Hawkeye football squad ended a hard week of practice with a scrimmage session. Several combinations saw service, but a veteran team was most impressive.

Only one newcomer was in the lineup as the veterans took the offensive for a few minutes and rolled over a freshman defensive team. Bob Bender, blond speedster from Davenport, was in All-American Nile Kinnick's left half-back spot, but, otherwise, the team was an experienced one.

In the line, Anderson had Red Frye, one of last year's pivot post heroes, at center, Ham Snider and Charles Tollefson at guards, Captain Mike Enich and Jim Walker at tackles and Ken Pettit and John Maher at ends. Pettit, who played three full games at guard last fall, formerly was a reserve end, while Maher was a substitute wingman in 1939.

The backfield had Al Coupee at quarterback, Bender and Oops

Hawkeyes, Irish Cancel Baseball Doubleheader

Iowa Team On Way Home Will Face Illini Here This Week; In Two-Game Series

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 13 (Special To The Daily Iowan)—Continued bad weather today ended the chances for a baseball weekend and Coach Otto Vogel's University of Iowa team began the journey homeward, the scheduled games with Notre Dame cancelled.

The Hawkeyes, defending Big Ten champions, opened a four-game road trip Wednesday with a neat 2-0 victory over Purdue at Lafayette. A game against Purdue Thursday was called off when a snow storm struck Lafayette and the Hawks moved to South Bend for the Irish series Friday and today, but both games were finally called off.

Winner of nine games in 10 starts this spring, the Iowa team has played but one conference game, the Purdue tilt, leaving the Hawkeyes with a Big Ten percentage of 1,000. They resume defense of their title when they meet Illinois at Iowa City next Friday and Saturday.

Only other conference teams to get into action as yet are Wisconsin, Illinois, Northwestern and Chicago. The Badgers downed the Maroons in a doubleheader today, 13 to 1 and 8 to 0 while Illinois won two from Northwestern, 11 to 7 and 1 to 0.

Yankees Still the Champs Baseball Writers Pick American League On Basis of 1939 Race

NEW YORK, April 13 (AP)—The New York Yankees are a cinch to win their fifth straight American league pennant in the opinion of a majority of the experts but there are still a few diehards who foresee the breaking up of Joe McCarthy's powerful machine.

The 77 baseball writers participating in the Associated Press' annual poll followed last year's order of finish pretty much in making their 1940 predictions. Sixty-six of them placed the Yankees in the No. 1 slot. Nine selected the Boston Red Sox as the new league champions while the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox each received the confidence of one writer.

Receiving no votes for below second and on the basis of eight points for first place, seven for second, etc., the Yanks piled up a total of 605 points. The Red Sox were just as firmly entrenched in second place with 536 points, the majority of which were garnered from the 57 runner-up votes.

The Indians, polling votes for the first five places, received 438 points, placing them in third place—just where they finished last fall. Then came the only transposition in the order of 1939's final standings—the placing of Detroit over Chicago. But the margin between the two teams was small—359 to 346.

Washington, Philadelphia and St. Louis took over the last three positions without much competition. The Senators polled votes for each of the last five places but generally were selected for sixth. The Athletics, with the experts apparently believing they can't be as bad as the Browns, moved into seventh, a promotion from the cellar in last year's selections.

Only one writer dared to select the Browns for as high as sixth. Eleven placed them seventh and the remainder saw no hopes for better than eighth.

Our Home Town

THE FARMER

By Charles Beckman

Even though the farmer of today has most of the material advantages of the city dweller, he has not turned from that old-fashioned simplicity of soul which is his heritage. The farmer is no longer a sweating peasant. He is an agricultural industrialist—a manufacturer of foodstuffs. But, working with Nature, as she unrolls her seasons and with the smell of the good earth always in his nostrils, he has maintained a deeper reverence for the Author of his being than those whose lives keep them less close to fundamentals.

In about nine farm homes out of ten, you will find the family Bible occupying a place of honor in the living room. In most of them you will find the meals prepared with a brief pause for the blessing. You will find religion deeply rooted in the daily life of the home—and not just saved up for Sundays.

And that is the reason the biographies of so many of our great men and women show them to be farm-raised. On the farm, they learned something of the eternal verities. And, when they went out into the larger world, they went with a solid foundation of sound character to sustain them.

So that the farmer has not alone fed the world physically, he has, in our own land anyway, fed it spiritually, by giving it the grandest crop of all—better citizens.

Next Monday Mr. Beckman of the Beckman Funeral Home will comment on the motor patrol.

Symphony Orchestra To Present First All-Wagner Concert

To Present Concert in Iowa Union Wednesday Night

THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Onabelle Ellet, Herald Stark To Be Soloists

Program Wednesday Under Direction Of Prof. Philip G. Clapp

The university symphony orchestra under the direction of Philip Greeley Clapp will present an all-Wagner program for the first time in its history Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Iowa Union lounge.

Assisting the orchestra will be two soloists, Onabelle Ellet, soprano, of Iowa City and Prof. Herald Stark, tenor, of the music department.

Tickets for the fifth concert of the 100-piece student-faculty orchestra can be obtained at Iowa Union desk. The general public is invited.

Faust Overture

Considered the "most ambitious and exacting" concert ever to be presented by the local group, the program will include a Faust overture, an early work of Wagner written in Paris in 1839.

The symphony will play one excerpt from the opera "Siegfried" and five excerpts from "The Dusk of the Gods." Of special significance on the program are the excerpts from Wagner's "Trilogy with the prologue, "The Nibelung's Ring," which consists of four music-dramas, "The Rhinegold," "The Valkyrie," "Siegfried" and "The Dusk of the Gods."

Following the Faust overture, the orchestra, assisted by the soloists, will present The Magic Fire Music from "Siegfried," followed by the Sunrise, The Parting of Brunnhilde and Siegfried and Siegfried's Rhine Journey from "The Dusk of the Gods."

Following intermission, the concert will be resumed with The Death of Siegfried and the Closing Scene from "The Dusk of the Gods." Mrs. Ellett will take the part of Brunnhilde and Professor Stark will sing Siegfried.

Concert selections from "The Nibelung's Ring" are frequently performed with a reduced instrumentation, according to Professor Clapp.

The local orchestra, however, has augmented its regular membership to include enough performers to present the Wagner excerpts in their original instrumentation. Two small pianos will be substituted to play the harp excerpts in the Wagner program, the director said.

Complete Wagner Program

The complete Wagner program, being played for the first time by a student orchestra, follows:

A Faust Overture
Selections from "Siegfried" and "The Dusk of the Gods"
Siegfried Penetrates the Magic Fire
Sunrise
The Parting of Brunnhilde and Siegfried
Siegfried's Rhine Journey (Performed without pause)
Intermission
The Death of Siegfried
Closing Scene from "The Dusk of the Gods."

Immigration Laws Reflect Misconceptions

By MARGARET RODMAN

"Few religions are nobler in concept and practice than that of Islam," Prof. Harry N. Howard of Miami university declared yesterday morning when he spoke in the senate chamber of Old Capitol before the Iowa history conference. His topic was "The Balkans in Peace and War—A Reinterpretation."

Professor Howard made an attempt to right our misconceptions about the Balkans which he said were reflected in our immigration laws—discriminating against peoples in southeastern Europe. He denied the charge that the Ottoman empire was any more cruel than western governments.

"These people were simply the product of a given cultural civilization," Professor Howard said. "They carried on the Byzantine tradition of the territory they occupied."

Historically viewed, the Ottoman empire was the greatest in extent of territory and institutional development that the world has ever known, he pointed out.

"The Balkan region is in the maelstrom and always will be as long as there is trouble in Europe because it is so significant," Professor Howard declared.

Recalling the much discussed Berlin to Bagdad route, he said that it was but one point in a Balkan highway connecting Europe, Africa and Asia. To the north, he pointed out, the Danube constitutes another important thoroughfare.

"The problem of the straits brought on the Trojan war in 12 B. C.," he explained, "yet it is as new as the latest newspaper today." He cited also the commercial and strategically important Suez canal as an even older route.

The land and air routes through Palestine cannot be overlooked, either, in the highway connecting the three continents, Professor Howard said. He added that these are now controlled by England.

Describing the vast and significant wealth which is the second reason for the importance of the Balkans today, Professor Howard cited Rumania as the second greatest producer of oil in Europe. Her position is particularly strategic today because of her nearness to Germany, he explained. Although the other Balkan countries are rich in resources and farm lands also, he pointed out Turkey as holding the real key position.

"The general sympathy of the people in the Balkans is on the side of the allied powers," Professor Howard said. "They feel that their independence would be destroyed if the nazis won." He described the amicable Anglo-Turkish relations as one of the most noteworthy diplomatic changes since the World War.

Unity has long been the dream of leading Balkan statesmen, Professor Howard said. He expressed the belief that if they ever succeed in achieving unity without outside aid the near east might once again resume the place it held when it was the cradle of civilization.

Thanks, Pal!

Dickie Larew, 9, 215 Woolf avenue is quite happy to be alive and in a warm blanket, after having been pulled out of the quarry near the Law Commons yesterday morning by Henry Louis, 8, 317 S. Linn. He is shown congratulating Henry for his quick and efficient action after the fall into the water. Henry assures Dickie that a guy can't do too much for a pal.

'Gosh, I'm Not a Hero!' Boy Rescuer Modestly Plays With Toys; Pal Falls in Water, Goes to Movies

A rescue is nothing spectacular in the life of little Henry Louis, 8, 317 S. Linn. At least Henry was far more engrossed in his play yesterday afternoon than in the subject of pulling a friend out of a quarry.

Henry started out on a picnic yesterday morning with two friends, Dickie Larew, 9, 215 Woolf street, and Billy Teeters, 302 Main street.

When the boys arrived across the river at the quarry near the Law Commons, one of them dropped a container into the water.

Dickie was trying to retrieve it with a long stick, when he slipped on a rock. There was a loud splash and Dickie disappeared under the water.

When he reappeared on the surface, Henry had already gone into action. He was stretching himself out on the rock, ready to reach for Dickie when he came up.

A good hearty pull and Henry had dragged Dickie back on the rock.

As Dickie was shivering there by the quarry, "The Good Samaritan," a local egg deliverer, who was riding by, stopped and hustled Dickie home in his car.

Said Henry when he was interviewed later, "I felt sort of funny when it happened. Gosh, I'm not a hero!"

Dickie had nothing to say on the subject. He was at the movies.

The War on Land, Sea

Land War--

Refugees from the region reaching Stockholm said that throughout large areas in that part of Norway civilians had fled, leaving their homes to be fought over by the opposing armies. Refugees poured into Sweden.

Smash Through Defense

The newly-landed Germans, commandeering buses and motor cars, smashed their way through a hastily-formed defense ring which the Norwegians had built around Oslo to prevent the Germans from augmenting the forces which captured the capital Tuesday.

The Germans, according to refugees arriving here, smashed the Norwegian ring between Hølen, 25 miles south of Oslo, and Moss, 10 miles further south, on the east side of Oslo fjord. The invaders were heading northward.

Dynamite Bridge

The Norwegians fought hard but unsuccessfully to repel them, at one point dynamiting a bridge as the first German bus crossed a stream.

To prevent just such a maneuver the Norwegians had built their ring to isolate German occupied Oslo in a semi-circle from Moss to Hølen, east to Mysen, northward to the Romerike region 40 miles north of Oslo and then south to Tyri fjord and Vikesund, about 30 miles west of Oslo.

Tonight the Germans were said to hold all the area within this zone. The Norwegians, in addition to trying to prevent the new German forces from getting in also were trying to keep the Germans already there from thrusting outward.

The newest German troops were said to have landed at Skieberg, at the head of the Skagerrak near the Swedish frontier.

This newspaper also brought to light a story which may solve the mystery of how the Germans on Tuesday were able to pass so easily by the fortress Agdenes which guards the other entrance to the narrow Trondheim fjord.

This report was that the fortress had stopped the German fleet and was holding them off until it received an order from Major Vik-dun Quisling, head of the Norwegian Nazi party, ostensibly issued in the name of the Norwegian government and ordering the defenders not to resist.

Later, according to this story, a contradictory order came from the regular government of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold, but it then was too late. The German ships were inside the fortress.

The Lens Tidningen said that all children and old people had been evacuated from Trondheim, a rail point of great strategic value which the allies may try to take from the Germans.

A stiff censorship was imposed on Trondheim newspapers. Unconfirmed reports that the British were landing troops at Narvik, northern Norwegian ore port taken by the Germans on Tuesday, continued to circulate here today.

Sea Battle--

Norway in her hour of trial, I assure your majesty that my government, in full cooperation with the French government, are bringing all help in their power to Norway so that allied forces, fighting side by side with the Norwegian, may prove this latest outrage by Germany to have been as rash as it was wicked," King George added.

The king's message was preceded by a special broadcast in which British military strategists told the fighting Norwegians: "Allied help is coming and coming quickly! Hold out!"

With royal air force and navy planes, supported by the ready guns of the roving home fleet, trying to soften resistance for a possible allied big push on Hitler-protected Scandinavia, a broadcast to Norway by a British general gave the defenders military tips on how to fight the German land forces.

Tips On Fighting

They were told to fell trees and destroy bridges to check the advance of the Nazi blitz troops, and to hasten to the nearest British or Norwegian military headquarters with any news they hear about movement of the German units.

The broadcast, keynote of the British Broadcasting company's new news service for Norwegians, concluded:

"Allied help is coming and coming quickly! Hold out! Long live Norway! Long live King Haakon!"

However, any plans the allies have for military land action, were blacked out tonight by military censorship.

At acknowledged high cost in planes and pilots, the fleet air arm and royal air force recounted these new exploits:

Bombardment of the Stavanger airdrome "with heavy bombs," with heavy damage to a hangar and planes and the shooting down of a twin-engine German fighter by a wounded R. A. F. pilot;

Destruction of a Nazi munitions warehouse at Bergen;

Transports Bombed

The bombing of three more big German supply-transport ships; The machine-gunning of a German destroyer and motor torpedo boat;

Destruction of at least four other German fighting planes.

A total of 11 British planes were acknowledged lost since early Friday (the Germans claimed 12).

British official sources avoided mention of what they intend to do with the allied expeditionary force of 100,000 which was declared ready to go to Finland when Finland, just a month ago, decided not to fight Russia any more, but there is a general supposition that at least some of these troops still are ready for action.

(British censorship forbids mention of the possibility that this force will be sent to Norway.)

However, since troops in movement at sea are a most vulnerable target, it is doubtful whether the allies will care to risk large-scale landings in Scandinavia until they can be sure of offering adequate sea and air protection and avoid the dangers of enemy flanking operations.

Chamber Mobilization Leaders Meet at Breakfast Tomorrow

All top leaders in the 1940 chamber of commerce mobilization will meet for an informal discussion breakfast at the Jefferson hotel at 8 a. m. tomorrow, Leland Nagle, president of the chamber, announced last night. The mobilization for "men, money and ideas" is an outgrowth of the recent series of "business clinics" staged by the chamber, when hundreds of ideas were advanced for a greatly increased program of chamber activities.

"This is more than just a campaign," Nagle said. "It is a rejuvenating effort whereby we hope to institute a program which will benefit every resident of Iowa City. There is nothing seriously wrong with our city but there are many things which can be accomplished by united planning and action which will help all business and professional men."

A Queen Picks a King Male 'Beauties' Rated

When one of the stage's smartest beauties picks Harvard's handsomest man in a contest that reverses the usual beauty-judging procedure, we believe its news. Amid the protests of the university's Bachelor's Club, Andree Lorraine, the "Miss Paris" of a French musical comedy now touring the nation, did the selecting. The whole affair was something of an intercollegiate triumph for Harvard, too, for one Harvardman was successful in "dating" Miss Lorraine after she gave Yalermen the cold shoulder.

● Accompanied by a band, Harvard students met "Miss Paris" at the train, carried her on their shoulders despite protests of the Bachelors.

● The queen knighted the winner, Dave Gilbert, and named him "Mr. Harvard." He's a junior and president of the Pi Eta Club.

picks his racing cars for speed — his cigarettes for slow burning

HERE THEY COME in a hurricane of flying dirt and squirting oil. You can almost hear the high whine of the motors and the shriek of brakes and burning tires as they streak into the sharp unbanked curves. They may call 'em "midget racers," but there's speed to burn underneath those toy-like hoods. Leading the pack in the picture above is Bob Swanson, Pacific Coast champ. In a split second these racers may be climbing each other's hoods, hurdling, somersaulting, flying through fences. Bob Swanson likes a slower pace in his off-time. Fishes a lot. Smokes Camels a lot. He explains: "I don't like overheating in my cigarette any more than I like it in a racing motor. I stick to Camels. I know they're slower-burning... milder and cooler."

Slower-Burning Camels Give the Extras

SPEED'S MY DISH IN A RACING CAR — BUT I WANT MY CIGARETTE SLOW-BURNING. CAMEL CIGARETTES BURN ON THE SLOW SIDE — GIVE THE 'EXTRAS' IN SMOKING PLEASURE

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested — slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

MORE PLEASURE PER PUFF...MORE PUFFS PER PACK!

WITH BOB SWANSON, it's always a slow-burning Camel. "That slower burning makes a big difference," says Bob. "Camels are milder—easier on my throat. They don't bother my nerves. And they never tire my taste. They give an extra amount of smoking, too." Yes, speed is fine in the right place, but millions have learned that in cigarettes the coveted extras of coolness, mildness, and full, rich flavor go with slow-burning Camels.

Dancers Are Flyers, Too!

Under Famed Ballet Maestro's Direction

Maestro Di Ballo, Vincenzo Celli, of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, took time out on his trans-continental tour and one-night stop at Mississippi State College for Women recently to give a lesson to an advanced dancing class. He also gave them an advanced lecture on the ballet, in which he said: "In my teaching in America I first thought that Americans were not good workers, took it casually, not earnestly enough, but I find that although few American girls are stars, they are advancing rapidly in the field. The ballet is an old art, the real classical dance, best understood in Europe." Follow the pictures to get your instruction and comment on affairs of the dance by Maestro Celli.
