GERMANS RETREAT FROM ROROS

Reich Expresses Apprehension Over Alleged 'Allied Pressure' on Sweden

—FROM BERLIN—
Warns Britain Not To Bomb 'Open Towns'

Reports German Victories From Fronts In Scandinavia

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, April 25 (AP)—Sweden moved tonight into the center of German diplomatic attention. Authorized sources expressed nazi apprehension that the largest Scandinavian state, and the only one still neutral, is under pressure from Great Britain and France. These persons said categorically that Germany has no designs on Sweden. Nevertheless: "We must be prepared for all eventualities, of course," they added.

Thus Sweden was put into German diplomatic perspective while the official news agency and the high command were stressing what they said was the British bombing of "open, undefended towns of no military importance," and implying that this sort of thing will be repaid, "bomb for bomb," should it continue.

The open towns which the Germans say were bombed are a village in Schleswig-Holstein and a sea resort on the island of Sylt (London denied the charges). Otherwise, German official sources drew a northern military picture which showed German reinforcements racing north toward Trondheim on two railroads while German troops scaled Steinkjer, further north, by occupying important roads and passes; strong allied detachments pressing the Germans north of Narvik while British warships toss shells into that Arctic port; German planes bombing allied transport columns and scattering the Norwegian main army near Dombas, railway junction point which the northbound German reinforcements are approaching.

At sea the Germans claimed the sinking by air bombs, of a British minesweeper, firing of a destroyer and the hitting of two transports with heavy bombs off Norway's west coast. In the Skagerrak, other planes were reported to have scattered a fleet of French destroyers, sunk two submarines and hit a British cruiser.

House To View Barden's Plans

F.D.R. Enters Fight Against Proposed Wage-Hour Changes

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—Soon after President Roosevelt had entered the fight against the Barden amendments exempting large groups of workers from the wage-hour law, the house voted today for wide open consideration of any and all proposed changes, including the Barden program.

Chairman Norton (D-NJ) of the house labor committee made public excerpts from a recent letter the president wrote to an unnamed friend in which he said he believed "it would be a great mistake" for congress to adopt the Barden amendments.

These amendments offered by Representative Barden (D-NC) would exempt work connected with the processing of farm products from both the minimum wage and maximum hours sections of the law.

Saying that the wage-hour law is in an evolutionary state and that it is too early to know whether amendments are necessary, Mr. Roosevelt told his friend:

"Farm labor is not affected by the act. In view of all the circumstances, I think it would be a great mistake to adopt the Barden amendments. By another year, we shall know a great deal more about the subject."

Relates Story of Trondheim Invasion

Sea Captain Asserts Germans Were Courteous, Efficient

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—an almost unprecedented invasion while the city slept. Capt. William McHale brought the little American freighter Mormacsea safely home from Norway today and fished from his duffel bag a bald eye-witness account of how 500 Germans had taken Trondheim without expanding an ounce of power.

He thus ended one of the strangest adventures of the present war—a voyage that began two months and 8 days ago and made the Mormacsea, a 4,955-tonner, an uncomfortable berthmate of German warcraft which prowled into the Trondheim harbor before dawn April 9 and accomplished

The Mormacsea, of the American Scantic lines, brought back $4,500,000 in Swedish gold—a cache of wealth that was one of McHale's great concerns later lest he lose it to belligerents in Norway. Also brought back was food which had been intended for Finnish relief. The gold was picked up at Bergen while the Mormacsea was unloading a cargo of planes and machineguns for Sweden.

Just after her arrival here, another American vessel that had been in Bergen—the Flying Fish of the Moore-McCormick lines—radioed that it had left and "all is well with crew."

Prof. W. F. Loehwing To Succeed Prof. R. B. Wylie as Botany Head

Will Assume New Duties In Fall Term

President E. A. Gilmore Names Noted Scientist On Faculty Since 1925

President Eugene A. Gilmore yesterday announced that the Iowa state board of education has approved the recommendation of Dean George F. Kay that Prof. Walter F. Loehwing, now a member of the faculty of the botany department, be appointed head of that department to succeed Robert B. Wylie, who, having reached the age of 70, will, pursuant to the university policy, go on a basis of continuation in service on a part-time basis. The change will be effective with the opening of the 1940-41 term next fall.

Here Since 1925
A member of the botany department since 1925, Professor Loehwing received his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. He studied biochemistry under Dr. Fernbach, Pasteur institute, Paris, following the World war.

Professor Loehwing entered the war as a volunteer private in August, 1917, and served in various commissioned grades in the field artillery of the United States army from 1918 to 1920.

He was professor, head of chemistry and dean at Oklahoma State School of Mines from 1920 (See APPOINTMENT, Page 7)

Spenders Gain Senate Control

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—Spending forces regained control of the sometimes-economy-minded senate today, pushing through a $150,000,000 river and harbor bill and adding $25,000,000 to the appropriation for the civilian conservation corps.

The 40 to 29 vote approving the rivers and harbors measure cut sharply across party lines. Few voices were raised against the legislation, which often is an election-year pet.

Norway Subject To America's 'Cash, Carry'

President Proclaims A New Belligerent, Tightens Neutrality

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
WARM SPRINGS, Ga., April 25 (AP)—A presidential proclamation added Norway today to the list of European belligerents and another declared the intention of the United States to remain neutral in the Scandinavian nation's war with Germany.

Automatically, President Roosevelt's action put Norway on a "cash and carry" basis so far as obtaining war supplies in the United States was concerned. She must pay cash for any such supplies and carry them away in non-American vessels.

Germany, France and England already are on a cash and carry basis, although the allies superior sea power permits them alone to augment their own war materials with purchases in this country.

The proclamations signed here today took no note of Germany's invasion of Denmark, and the White House had nothing to say about the chances that similar documents pertaining to Denmark would be issued.

A third proclamation, following the precedents invoked last fall when the European conflict began, barred Norwegian submarines from American ports and territorial waters.

Backing up his proclamations, the chief executive prescribed in an executive order regulations for enforcing the neutrality of the United States.

The temporary White House made only a bare announcement that the documents had been signed, leaving it up to the state department to make public the texts.

The navy disclosed it had asked for bids on parts for huge nets to be stretched across harbor mouths the moment war is threatened. The nets, suspended by floats and held in position by chain and anchors, would foul the propellers, rudders or elevating fins of submarines that attempted to steal into the harbors.

The cost of the nets was estimated at $22,000,000, of which $2,000,000 already has been made available. The nets will be fabricated at the Mare Island, Calif., navy yard. The navy has measured all principal harbors on the two coasts of the continental United States and the strategic outposts at Panama and Hawaii for the nets.

At the capitol, the house naval committee recommended passage of legislation to authorize an increase by 10,000 yards in the range of the main batteries of the battleships New York, Texas and Arkansas.

ROUTE OF BRITISH BERGEN DRIVE

This narrow mountain road which leads down through the valley of Flaam is reported to be the route taken by a British force in their drive on the German-held port of Bergen. The first British objective is Voss, an important railroad center some 60 miles north-east of Bergen.

Attribute Move To Need For Better Forts

Swedish Papers Say British Repulse Nazis On Many Battlefields

STOCKHOLM, April 26 (Friday) (AP)—The German have abandoned Roros, which they seized for a few hours in a dazzling exhibition of lightning war yesterday, and are digging in at Tolga, 15 miles to the south in the Osterdalen valley, Swedish newspaper correspondents reported early today.

The German retreat was ascribed to the need for hasty fortification, which the terrain at Roros does not favor.

Another cause also appeared to be a British advance south in the Gudbrandsdalen valley to the west, threatening to outflank the Germans' extended positions.

British Repulse Germans
The correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported that the British have broken through at Stora, and are now in position there to block any German advance from Roros, or up the Gudbrandsdalen valley to reinforce German-held Trondheim on the west coast.

These British troops, after landing at Andalsnes, south of Trondheim, took a northern route to Stora, where they repulsed a German force from Trondheim, and perhaps prevented their striking a more telling blow at a British force from Namsos to the north of Trondheim.

The British then turned and united with some of the Norwegians retreating through Roros, in the Osterdalen valley, 70 miles southeast of Trondheim.

Nazis Strike Swiftly
The Germans, striking swiftly from Oslo through Rena up the Osterdalen valley and through Lillehammer up the Gudbrandsdalen valley, yesterday reached Roros and Ringebu, 180 and 110 miles respectively north of the capital.

They appeared headed on parallel routes for Trondheim to prevent a Norwegian-allied drive to encircle that strategic German base.

But late yesterday the British were reported at Stora, 35 miles southeast of Trondheim, astride the Gudbrandsdalen and Osterdalen valley rail lines that converge there before entering Trondheim.

There was heavy fighting at Tolga last night, with heavy artillery and air forces participating, and Tolga was reported badly bombed.

Invitations Seniors Must Order In Five Days

Seniors who will be graduated in June were warned last night by the senior invitations committee that but five days remain in which to order invitations.

Invitations are five cents each, and the committee requires that cash accompany all orders.

Crazed Burlington Gunman Wounds 12, Then Kills Self

BURLINGTON, April 25 (AP)—An apparently deranged gunman died here today in a blaze of gunfire in a busy downtown street, precipitated by the man's resistance to arrest.

A dozen persons were wounded, four of them seriously. Sheriff Harry Hunt said the gunman was Henry Reeb, 36, who is believed to have killed himself after officers tried for two hours to drive him out of a building with tear gas and gunfire.

Reeb, unmarried and unemployed, started the shooting, the sheriff said, when he resisted officers who attempted to serve an insanity warrant on him in a second story apartment.

Sheriff Hunt said he believed Reeb ended his life after a bullet fired by Joe Baird, assistant chief of police, tore a hole in the barrel of Reeb's shotgun and struck the victim in the leg. Baird fired from a building across the street.

Coroner R. O. Giles said the lower half of Reeb's face was blown away.

All of those wounded are expected to recover, doctors said.

Remember E. P. Conkle? His 'Premieres' Are Still in Evidence

cloramic background is Babe, Paul's great ox, done with effective lighting. The play based on northern legends was directed by Theodore Viehman, visiting professor. Conkle is now on the dramatic arts faculty of the University of Texas.

By WALTER H. HOGAN
Ellsworth Prouty Conkle, nationally known playwright and a former member of the university dramatic arts faculty, seems to believe in having world premieres in the universities where he is teaching. And often too.

During the fine arts festival here last summer Prof. E. C. Mabee's theater gave the first presentation of Conkle's "Paul and the Blue Ox" July 13.

And the University of Texas Curtain club, student dramatic group, opened his new show, "Johnny Appleseed" April 23. The 30-year-old Curtain club, founded by Stark Young, is accustomed to having the adjective "professional" applied to its productions.

Conkle's latter works are dramatizations of mythical legends in contrast to Grant Wood, who is now doing a series of paintings, such as "Parson Weems Fable," that debunk historical myths. "Paul and the Blue Ox" is about the adventures of Paul Bunyan and his big blue ox as told by the woodsmen of northern Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and North Dakota. Professor Conkle wrote the play upon the advice of a friend. Although he spent considerable time gathering material for the work, he spent but 10 days in writing the actual piece.

The relationship of the themes of the two plays is interesting. The plot of the Bunyan play concerns Paul's fight against the approach of civilization to his world in which his men were happy because there were no politics, no agriculture, no industry and no women. But "Johnny Appleseed" dramatizes the western legend of the mad poet whose desire to bring comforts of civilized New England to the West sent him following the pioneers with his sack of apple seeds into the region of Ohio in 1793-1853.

"Johnny Being Considered" "Johnny" is already under consideration by a New York producer for Broadway presentation, and it is anticipated that it will follow the course of his earlier dramas. Two Conkle plays have been successful on Broadway. "200 Were Chosen," dramatic adaptation of the Alaskan resettlement administration, was produced at the 48th Street Theater in 1936. "Prologue to Glory" first of the current Lincoln biographical cycle, was played by the Federal theater in 1938-39.

Both plays, however, were first produced here by University theater. "Paul and the Blue Ox" was the seventh of Conkle's plays to be shown at University theater during the seven years he was on the Iowa faculty.

In the local production of Paul the settings and costumes were identical to those described in the stories of the adventurous giant. Theodore Viehman, visiting director for the summer session, had charge of the production, which offered challenging technical problems.

The stage crews utilized what Professor Viehman termed the most complete employment of sound and other technical phases that he had yet encountered. Sounds ranged from running water to the bellows of Babe, the huge blue ox. Said one local reviewer: "There were captivating scenes which permitted Prof. Hunton D. Sellman to do remarkable things with lights on Prof. Arnold Gillette's sets. Standing there intermittently was the likeness of Babe, the great ox, bellowing at the proper times and leaving nothing to be desired. That ox has an important part in the play and is an effective work of art."

In the Viehman-directed play, Robert Frederick played the role of Paul Bunyan. The review said that one of the three scenes that sent the play to top peaks of beauty and interest was Paul seated on a great plain, the blue ox looming on the cycloramic background, "communing with himself."

"It's an extremely pleasant feeling," went on the Iowa City reviewer, "watching a production written on the Iowa campus by a member of the Iowa faculty, and listening to the comments the home folks feel privileged to make on such an occasion."

And now that Professor Conkle is on the University of Texas staff, the Texan "home folks" probably felt the same way the other night.

The Fire That Natchez Will Remember

A CONTROVERSY of no little significance is now raging in the deep South over a dance hall fire in Natchez, Miss., which resulted in the deaths of some 200 Negro fire-eaters. Cause of the blaze, which early Wednesday morning struck horror in this historic southern community, is still undetermined. Many believe that the building was intentionally fired, while authorities hold the hall was a fire trap of the worst order that could have blazed up on a mere spark.

Reports reveal that the hall, a converted blacksmith shop with but a single door and with all the windows boarded up, was heavily decorated with Spanish moss, a highly inflammable material. The structure, similar to most Negro community and amusement halls throughout the South, burned like tinder before more than a handful of the dancers could escape. Starting near the entrance and spreading rapidly through the moss-covered rafters the fire grew to the intensity of a smelting furnace, causing a mad stampede of the crowd to the building's barricaded rear.

Trapped like rats, the 200 unfortunates were roasted alive in the inferno. Now, the mayor and police officials of Natchez are thoroughly investigating the tragedy. Five Negro suspects who are said to have threatened to set fire to the hall while they were in a drunken stupor, are being held and questioned.

Whether the fire was started intentionally or accidentally has little bearing on the tragedy, when it is considered from one point of view. Nothing within human power can restore the lives of the victims. And, in a city whose population is approximately 60 per cent Negro, nothing can alleviate the grief, the anguish, the heartaches, the anger and the will to revenge that is certainly felt by whites and Negroes alike. The possibility of racial hatred in Natchez becoming aroused is too slight to be considered. But, there are other effects of this tragedy that might provide an undesirable aftermath.

One effect is, the danger of riots and lynchings. In the South, fear and anger crazed Negroes, as they are now in Natchez, may cause trouble, serious trouble, for the city and police officials. In the case that the five prisoners now being held are found guilty, mass unrest will rear the ugly skeleton of more destruction. Natchez, which has enjoyed almost complete peace since the Civil War and Reconstruction period, now faces a crisis. The whole country hopes there will be no crisis, no further bloodshed and property damage. Yet, nothing can be done by the nation at large, other than watch. Natchez must settle its own problem.

This tragedy should teach a great lesson in fire prevention. It should recall memories of similar disasters that led to the passage of laws in almost every state for the protection of large groups of people when gathered in buildings. Laws providing for adequate and well marked exits in theaters, public halls and vehicles of transportation are examples. Certainly Mississippi has its fire prevention rules—rules to nullify the possibility of more tragedies like that of Natchez. It is time that such laws be invoked, that precautions be taken. Prevention is cheap. Life and limb are dear indeed.

Let's Tell The Rest Of The State

IT IS said that congressmen must continually keep their ears to the ground in order to listen to the voice of public opinion and then to act accordingly. If this is true, consideration should be taken of how public opinion is formed. The major portion of the public accepts and adopts the ideas of those who are in a position to be better informed concerning specific situations and problems. The people of Iowa would naturally expect to find such persons at a university such as this and would listen to them. But do these better-informed persons ever express themselves? Does the university have a "voice" or is it strangely mute? There are plenty of major questions of the present day that call for intelligent investigation, discussion, and reporting of views. Among them are: whether United States should restrict its armament trade with Japan, whether it should take a more active concern toward the European war, and others of similar nature. There certainly are those on the campus, both students and faculty members, who must be making special studies of these particular problems in their daily work. What would be more educational and appropriate than to make the results of such studies available to the state at large? Sending such information out in printed matter would hardly be advisable in that it would overlap with material found in current magazines. But there is a more direct way. Why not broadcast more over WSUI unbiased discussions concerning present-day problems by authorities in the subject at hand? If there is any sound thinking and intelligent discussion being done here on the problems of the country, let us use the university's voice so that it can express itself concerning these things to the rest of the state.

Which Way Mussolini?

THE ENIGMA of 1915 presses to the front again. Where does Italy stand? Twenty-five years ago next month Italy saw the merits of proposals by the Allies, tore up a paper alliance with Germany and Austria, and signed the Treaty of London.

Now in 1940 the powers wait upon her again, anxious to gain the advantage of her non-belligerent neutrality, if not her military aid. The bond that binds the Germans and the Italians is not the two peoples, they have no liking for each other, but the bond is again a piece of paper.

This piece of paper is the property of the Allies of the first world war—it is the Versailles treaty. On it Germany's leader has built his program of action, and Mussolini and his people hate it little less. The promises made to them in the Treaty of London were not fulfilled in the Versailles treaty, called "a scrap of paper" by Mr. Hitler.

So the eyes of the nations again turn on Italy. Is the memory of bitter imperial disappointment after the Versailles treaty sufficient to hold Germany and Italy together, or is Mussolini playing the game of opportunism, waiting to lend aid to that nation which is in a position to reward him? Italy cannot afford to fight a losing war, no country can, for there is yet a vast difference between victory and defeat on the field of battle. There are spoils, England will attest to that.

It Duce has proved himself to be canny and he can be expected to be a businessman in making his decision. "Thinking Makes It So" HAMLET IS quoted as saying, "For there is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so."

We realize, of course, that Hamlet's words are much more appropriate in editorials about the invasion of Denmark these days. But Hamlet's words are recalled to our mind not by Denmark, but by an observation we made recently in one of Iowa City's neighboring small towns. In spite of all the complaining and lament that business is bad, there are still some people who smile, say truthfully and cheerfully that business is good.

With this tone ringing in our ears, and the meeting and talking with other business men in surrounding small communities, it becomes apparent that it would profit everyone more to stop all complaining. Act cheerful, say that in comparison with times when business was worse that it is good now. Then—hope for the best.

What About Consolidation of Government?—Taxpayers Don't Agree With Congress on It

There is considerable talk in congress of the necessity for consolidation of government. I've heard the same thing urged at headquarters of the United States chamber of commerce and by officials of the National Association of Manufacturers. Every time governmental consolidation is urged the conclusion generally is drawn that the movement is in the direction of power—something fascistic or nazi-istic. I think this consolidation talk is different from that. In years long gone by, government had to be pretty local. For instance, I was brought up in a town which was the governmental seat at the northwest corner of one of Iowa's northwestern counties. To get from the southeastern corner of that county to its northwestern corner was a trip comparable to a trip from Chicago. The roads, in bad weather, were a foot deep in mud. One night I'd been to a hamlet 16 miles from home to get the news of a cyclone. Ready to return, I couldn't find a livery man willing to risk a team on those highways, and had to walk, along the railroad right-of-way. Today I could do it in 30 minutes by bus, or less in a taxicab. In "them times" then, a county

How far should consolidation go? States-righters have their voice in the matter. They haven't any objection to intra-state consolidation, but they certainly draw the line on any federal interference. The relief question enters into the equation. Relief's half federal; half local. The locality wants to boss it politically. The federal government wants to boss it, being contributory. The federal government wants consolidation. It's more convenient and undoubtedly cheaper. Local government objects; it gets political "gravy" out of its allowances of Uncle Sam's money, passed through its hands. The more it's split up, in all probability, the more it costs. Let the subdivisions consolidate. The more they consolidate the more economical they're likely to be—because otherwise their home folk will yell. The trouble with congress is: It's too remote. The taxpayers don't know what it's doing, as they know only about their local board of aldermen and county supervisors.

'Move Backward--' 'Time Must Be Like Mercury in Disguise; Gets Away From You'

BY GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK — Time must be like mercury in disguise. . . It gets away from you in spite of anything you can do. . . Dig back through five or six years of old columns and contemplate the names you find there, the faces you remember and the people you talked to in restaurants and in ship's bars who aren't here to talk to any more. It makes you think. . . It leaves you with a sober realization that the scenes we know change swiftly, and inexorably, and that always, when someone goes, someone else takes his place. And so in a reminiscent mood one checks back through old clippings and finds these names—Huey Long, Osgood Perkins, Ray Henderson, Dexter Fellows, Tex Guinan, John Gilbert, Ziegfeld, David Belasco, Jean Harlow, Arthur Sommers Roche, O. O. McIntyre, Heywood Brown, Douglas Fairbanks, Bill Boyd, Ernest Torrence, John McGraw. . . You could go on counting indefinitely. . . .

The last time I saw Huey Long was in a New York hotel room. It was mid-afternoon, and Huey was in red pajamas, talking about Biff Jones, the football coach. . . I saw John McGraw only once, and that was in Washington when little Art Neff, the southpaw, out-pointed big Walter Johnson, "The Big Train," in the opening duel of the 1924 World Series. . . One night about five months before he died violently in a plane crash with Wiley Post I sat for an hour in the Lambs club and listened to Will Rogers spin his inimitable cracker-barrel yarns. . . Douglas Fairbanks I saw, of all places, on a 5th avenue bus the last day he visited the N. Y. World's Fair.

I never knew Belasco or Ziegfeld, but I knew Roche, the novelist, and Dexter Fellows, the circus press-agent, and Ray Henderson, who was arranging a world tour for Kit Cornell when he was trapped in a plane that fell into the sea near the port of Athens, Greece. . . I remember the nervous, impetuous John Gilbert climbing off a plane and hurrying aboard a train that had waited 10 minutes for him at Columbus, Ohio. . . And Jean Harlow, leaving a bowl of Brunswick stew to take a long distance call from some friend in Canada. . . .

Some of these people, like Huey and Will Rogers and Ray Henderson, died violent deaths. . . Others became ill and died in bed. . . In a way, John Gilbert's death was the most tragic of all, for he died alone and untended, and Gilbert was a man who never should have been alone. . . Osgood Perkins, the actor, died suddenly and inexplicably in harness, in a Washington, D. C., theater, in a play, strangely enough, called "Susan and God." . . . Heywood Brown, the shaggy Great Dane of the New York news rooms, died of pneumonia. I hope these reflections haven't given you the willies. . . This isn't meant as a melancholy treatise on the grave. It is only that sometimes it seems well to check up and take inventory, to turn back a few pages and recall now and then a few well-remembered faces.

"The Sun Whose Rays," "Here's a How-de-do," "Til-Willow" and "With Joyful Shout."

"THE BRIBE," a Mark Hellinger yarn about a mounted policeman who took a small "retainer" from a fair cute speeder and what it led to, will be the dramatic offering of Don Ameche and Claire Trevor on their program over the NBC-Red network at 9 o'clock.

Turning to music, Ameche will sing "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair" and Pat Friday will present "Do I Love You?" Ameche, Pat Friday and the Six Hits and a Miss join to do "Who" to Victor Young's musical accompaniment.

HENRY HULL, star of stage and screen and creator of the role of "Jeeter Lester" in "Tobacco Road," will star during the next session of "Command Performance" over MBS tonight at 8:30.

SUNDAYES ARE NOT WHAT THEY USED TO BE DENVER (AP) — Remember the Tin Roof and the Jersey? Neither do the younger school clerks. A few of the older ones recall that they were a couple of the goosy Sundayes that some people were eating in the flapper era. An inquiring reporter learned that soda fountain concoctions in the 40's are much simpler. Almost the only popular old time on the menu is the banana split and its use appears to be waning.

Senior Invitations All candidates who wish to purchase invitations for commencement exercises should leave their orders at the alumni office, north-west room, Old Capitol, before Wednesday, May 1. Dizzy Dean Continues on Comelback Trail

Ol' Diz Wins As Bruins Wallop Reds

CHICAGO, April 25 (AP)—Ol' Diz Dean clung doggedly to the come-back trail today. He gamely survived a wobbly start and pitched a five-hit game as the Chicago Cubs beat the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 2.

Shooting his famous "nothing" ball across the plate in the 40-degree temperature, Dean bested the Reds big mound star, Paul Derringer, in a speedily played game which had 6,000 fans giving Diz a great cheer at the finish. Dean walked four batters and only had one strikeout, but it came on the final out of the contest and at the expense of pinch hitter Wally Berger.

Dean, in winning his first game of the season in two starts and also snapping the string of 11 consecutive National league victories Derringer carried into the contest, appeared headed for the showers before the game was five minutes old.

Bill Werber, Reds' lead-off man, opened the game with a pass and Lon Frey also drew a base on balls.

Ival Goodman bunted safely and was hit on the back by Dean's throw, Werber scoring and Diz getting an error on the play. Frank McCormick was intentionally passed to load the bases after which Ernie Lombardi forced Frey at the plate, Dean to Al Todd. Harry Craft fled, Goodman scoring and then Mike McCormick grounded out.

The Cubs came back with three runs in the third. With one out, Bill Herman walked and went to third on Augie Galan's single. Hank Leiber scratched a single, scoring Herman and putting Galan on third. Galan scored as Bill Nicholson grounded out, but Phil Cavarretta singled to center, scoring Leiber, after which Todd singled and Bob Mattick was tossed out by Bill Werber.

The other Cub run was scored by Dean himself. He singled to open the sixth, was sacrificed to second and came home on Herman's safety.

Dean, who in his first start of the year last Sunday was beaten and roughly handled by St. Louis, used his "fast" ball sparingly, depending on a change of pace and a slow curve. After the opening inning his usual good control consistently kept him ahead of the hitters. Derringer, usually a Cub nemesis, gave up 11 hits and received weak support, the Reds being charged with three errors.

As Berger fanned to end the game, Cub players rushed en masse from the dugout to congratulate the eccentric Cub hurler. Manager Gabby Hartnett, with whom Diz has quibbled several times this spring, was the first to pump Dean's hand.

Dodgers Whip Phillies, 3 to 1

Take Lead In National As Reds Lose

PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers mounted into exclusive possession of first place in the National league today with a 3 to 1 victory over the Phillies while the Cincinnati Reds were losing at Chicago.

The contest was the season's second triumph for Hugh Casey, who allowed only five hits. Two of them came in the first inning for the Phillies' run.

Rookie Herman Franks was Casey's catcher and continued his heavy hitting with two singles, one of them batting in the Dodgers' initial run in the second. Dolph Camilli homered in the sixth and Casey scored in the seventh on a balk by Ike Pearson, who subsequently was removed for a pinchhitter.

The victory was Brooklyn's fifth without defeat this season.

Giants Trounce Boston's Bees In 9-1 Battle

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—The New York Giants won their third straight game today by overwhelming the Boston Bees 9 to 1 with an 11-hit attack that included a home run by Burgess Whitehead. Bill Lohrman held the Bees to six hits.

Cards Shade Pirates, 10-9 In Long Game

PITTSBURGH, April 25 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals took their second National league victory of the season today by nosing out the Pittsburgh Pirates 10 to 9 in a game requiring three hours and 12 minutes.

The Redbirds rapped out 22 hits off four Pittsburgh pitchers, Stu Martin, Enos Slaughter and Pep Martin each getting three safeties. But with Elbie Fletcher driving in four runs while Lloyd Waner, playing his first game of the season, was getting four hits and scoring three times, the Pirates remained in the game until the ninth.

Hawkeye Beauties To Be Presented at Junior Prom Tonight

Ted Weems Will Play From 9 to 1

University Women Will Wear Spring Formals to Dance

Spring flowers will provide the background for the presentation of the six university women who will be announced as the Hawkeye yearbook beauties tonight at the Junior Prom, last formal party of the year. Dancing to the music of Ted Weems and his orchestra will be from 9 o'clock to 1 a. m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Crisp spring formal gowns of the women will mingle with the black and white evening dress of the men on the dance floor. Many men will wear white formal coats.

Dainty fabrics and light colors have been chosen by members of the Prom committee and their dates. Beverly Barnes, A3 of Sioux Falls, S. D., who is attending the dance with Deming Smith, A3 of Toledo, chairman of the committee, will wear a white net gown with a velvet bodice which has a round neckline and short puffed sleeves. She has chosen her accessories and flowers in her hair.

Martha Lois Koch, A3 of Evansville, Ind., will be seen on the dance floor with Dr. Robert Locher of Cedar Rapids. Her peachbloom flowered linen dress sports buttons all the way down the front, and a peter pan collar. Her accessories will be turquoise.

Yellow imported dotted swiss is the spring fabric selected by Irene Frederickson, C3 of Harlan, for her full skirted gown. The little puffed sleeves are trimmed with blue ribbon and the gown has a formal V-shaped neckline. John Gray, M1 of Melcher, will be Miss Frederickson's date.

Black and white will be contrasted in the outfit worn by Barbara Murchison, A3 of Sidney, who will be dancing with Hugh Wild, M1 of Dyersville. Her full taffeta skirt is striped with black and white, and the bodice of the gown is of white silk jersey. The neckline is cowlled and the sleeves short. Miss Murchison will wear black accessories.

Silk Jersey

Silk jersey will also be worn by Eileen Henderlinder, A3 of Onawa, who will be seen in white with a wide red girdle brocaded in white. The bodice is draped and the skirt full. Red will be used for her accessories, and Miss Henderlinder will wear flowers in her hair. Jack Degnan, A2 of Guttenburg, will accompany her.

Marjorie Meerdink, A3 of Davenport, will wear an aqua sheer frock when she goes dancing with Orville Reeves of Davenport. The simplicity of the gown is changed by a gathered bodice. There will be roses in Miss Meerdink's hair.

Ruffles galore will trim the white dotted swiss dress of Wilma Kelley, A3 of Davenport. Carl Obermann, C3 of Mt. Vernon, will be her escort.

New Currier Wing To Have Open House

1,000 Invitations Sent Out for Reception On Sunday From 2 to 6

The new section of Currier hall will be open for inspection at an open house Sunday from 2 to 6 p. m. About 1,000 invitations have been sent out to members of the university faculty, administration, and the housemothers and presidents of the sororities, fraternities and dormitories, and friends of Currier residents.

Mina Scott, A4 of Benton Harbor, Mich., is general chairman of the open house. Co-chairmen of the hostesses and guides are Margaret Robison, A3 of Lucas, and Kathleen Conner, A3 of Huron, S. D. Lois Larson, A4 of Rockford, Ill., and Mary Ann Black, A2 of Bryan, Texas, are in charge of the decorations.

Invitations Committee
The invitations committee includes Gail Mead, A2 of Eagle Grove; Kathryn Fatland, A1 of Colfax, and Betty Parker, u of West Des Moines. Virginia Ivie, A2 of Shenandoah, is in charge of the rooms open for inspection on first floor. Music is being taken care of by Betty Rapp, A4 of Atlantic, and Alma Hursh, A2 of Marengo, has charge of the badges to be worn by the guides.

Fifty hostesses and 50 guides will welcome and direct the guests. Hostesses, who will wear long hostess dresses, will greet the guests at the south lobby door and take them to the receiving line. From 2 to 4 p. m. those in the receiving line will include Leta Smith, A4 of Springfield, this year's president of the dormitory; Dean Adelaide L. Burge; Hazel Swim, director of the hall; Laura Chennell, hall nurse, and Ruth Subotnik, A4 of Cedar Rapids, vice-president of the dorm.

They may also see rooms on first floor that will be open to inspection and the laundry and recreation rooms in the basement. Residents of the hall may show their rooms to their friends Sunday afternoon.

It's the smart, big outside, "cash and carry" pocket that is the interesting feature of this new frock. The material is nubias crepe in natural color with bright red silk crepe trimming. The stripe down the front, the belt, and the stripe around the pocket are all red, stitched with natural thread. Red thread is used in the stitching on the natural. Rather large ocean pearl buttons are sewn down the front. The local shop in which this was sketched also has this washable dress in white nubias cloth with cool green trim.

Dinner Dance Will Parody War Situation

A war-time black-out will be a feature of the dinner dance to be given tomorrow at 7 p. m. by Kellogg, Folsom, Manse and Chesley dormitories at Kellogg house.

Iowa Medical Society Meeting To Draw About 40 Doctors

Two Wolves Here Now
Gray Wolf To Share Museum Space With Alaskan Black One

Six months ago a certain black wolf was finding its way through the forests at Point Barrow, Alaska—but today that animal is just a valuable skin in the museum laboratory here being prepared for exhibition in the university museum.

The 72-inch black wolf, rarely seen today, was received here this week from the Field museum in Chicago, Ill., which purchased the skin this winter from a northern trapper, according to Prof. Homer Dill, director of the local museum department.

The cast for the animal is under construction and the finished specimen will be installed in the museum at an early date, "if conditions necessary for fastening the skin to the mold are favorable," according to Professor Dill.

"The new black wolf should make a fine contrast to the gray wolf installed in the display in mammal hall last year," the director added.

Richard Crooks, Family Just Back in America After Year's Tour Through Southern Countries

The family of Richard Crooks, American tenor, who comes here for a song recital on May 2, in connection with the University of Iowa's first annual high school music festival, has just come back from a long journey.

The Crooks have been down "under the world," as North America views it, to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and points between. The result has been a twofold popularity, via radio and concert, which has confirmed his right to be called "the great American tenor."

The story of this tour, his second visit to Australia but his first to New Zealand and South Africa, constitutes a veritable epic of acclaim. This young man from New Jersey, who used to go without food to hear Caruso sing, has now become known in far places, fulfilling the predictions once uttered by that wise, old trouper, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, who sang with Richard, then 12, in a concert of the Trenton music festival.

The tour began a year ago. Upon completing his engagement with the Metropolitan Opera association in January, 1929, Dick set out on a concert tour which landed him eventually in Victoria,

B. C. From there he sang his way to San Diego, arriving there for a concert on April 13. The next day he sailed for Honolulu.

Debarbing at that garden spot, he gave two concerts and made one broadcast, relayed by short wave to the United States. He had to teach American tunes to the celebrated Elmer Lee Hawaiian band and found the going rather tough. But in turn they taught him to sing "Aloha" in Hawaiian, "so the honors were even," says Dick.

A concert in Suva, in the Fiji islands, resulted in a signal honor for Dick. He was made an honorary doctor of medicine by the Rockefeller foundation, in consideration of his broadcast to the islands.

He traveled everywhere by plane, dashing hundreds of miles to fill a single concert date, or to keep a dinner engagement. Planes were used extensively by the Crooks in getting about. They were a bit puzzled as to the proper procedure when war broke out, but decided to await developments. Cabling his manager for instructions, he decided to take a little vacation until the answer came, meanwhile refusing about 20 more concert dates.

They spent an ecstatic day or two, spying on weird animals, snapping pictures and camping out. Then they drove to Cape Town. There they found a host of messages—from the American embassy, from the Metropolitan Opera association, from the concert manager.

Acting on instructions from this gentleman, Dick was able to get passage on a Japanese boat which brought them to Buenos Aires in 15 days. But Dick's accompanist, Frederick Schauwecker, had to sign on as chief purser of a freighter, which eventually brought him to Boston.

Meanwhile, the Crooks family boarded a plane and flew over thousands of miles of jungle, mountain ranges and the open sea to Miami. They changed planes once or twice in odd little towns, unbanked and fantastically named, saw mellowed old churches, crumbling Mayan ruins, dance fiestas and religious processions.

At Miami, the party was relieved promptly of its six passports, before it embarked almost immediately for Newark airport, where it arrived at 5:30 a. m. "I was never so glad to see anything in my life as the Holland Tunnel," said Dick.

30 Engineers Tour Stations, Attend Meets

Thirty junior and senior electrical engineering students were in Cedar Rapids Wednesday inspecting industrial installations there and attending branch and section meetings of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Points of interest visited by the local group included the automatic electric railway stations, a hydro-electric power station, the steam electric plant of the Iowa Electric Light and Power company, the substation of Quaker Oats company and the WMT radio studios.

Present Papers
Three local students who presented papers before the student branch meeting at the afternoon session were Aaron V. Donnelly, G. of Bonaparte; Wendell C. Morrison, G. of Sioux City, and J. Robert Noon, E4 of Cedar Rapids.

The papers presented by the Iowa students were in competition with three papers written by Iowa State college students and presented at yesterday's meeting.

A meeting of the Iowa section of the A. I. E. E. was attended by the student branch members last night. Principal speaker at the dinner-meeting was C. G. Miller of the Weston Instrument corporation in Newark, N. J., who discussed and demonstrated "What a Tenth of a Millionth of a Watt Will Do and Why."

Prof. E. B. Kurtz, Prof. L. A. Ware and Prof. G. E. Corcoran and Prof. C. J. Lapp of the physics department accompanied the students to the institute meetings.

'The Little Mag,' Monthly Magazine of, For, By Spastics Introduced Into Literary Field

A pioneer in its field, "The Little Mag"—a monthly magazine of, for, and by the spastics—has been introduced into the field of literature this month. A noble experiment as it were, the purpose of the magazine is to bring out the idea of the "Romance of Living," according to the editor, Thadine Hedges, who is herself a spastic and is enrolled as a junior in the University of Wichita.

The contributions to "The Little Mag" will be submitted by spastics only. In the April issue, Edith Christensen, A2 of Cedar Rapids, who is a staff member of the publication, contributed an article entitled "The Good Earth" or "I Plan My Garden."

For Enjoyment
Miss Christensen wrote the article with the idea in mind that even though a person were too handicapped to garden, he would enjoy knowing how a garden should be planted, what plants grow best under certain conditions, and how flowers should be arranged. It is in this same theme that other articles which make up the thriving publication are written.

In a letter written to Miss Christensen by the editor, the purpose of "The Little Mag" was said to be "an effort to help the spastic find himself, help him with some of his problems of living, and to enjoy life to the utmost, in spite of any affliction."

"The Little Mag" is a step into the future, and attempts to prove that the spastic is as mentally capable as any other individual. To fully appreciate their efforts, it is necessary to understand just what places a person in the category of spastic. Spastic paralysis is the affliction which causes its victims to lose coordination of muscles.

It either condenses their speech to unintelligible sounds, or it makes their body work independently. Until recently these afflictions have placed spastics at a disadvantage in society. Now, however, they are recognized as having normal intelligence, and "The Little Mag" publication is just one indication.

No Advertising
The publication expects to pay for itself through subscriptions, and will be sold to anyone, even though contributions are limited to spastics. No advertising will be sold to finance the magazine.

If the first issue of "The Little Mag" is any indication of future success, it will have nothing to worry about. The magazine, made up of a variety of articles, touches upon the following subjects, "Roaming Through Muscular Land," "Mechanical Brain," "Thumb-nail Reviews," "An American Squints at Vanlover," "Building Stones," "Sports on Parade," "Pots and Pans,"—all these written by spastics.

In 1924, the botany head was awarded his LL.D. degree from Upper Iowa university.

Following yesterday's announcement of the new head of the botany department, Professor Wylie made the following statement:

"I am personally very happy that our department will pass into the competent hands of Prof. Walter F. Loehwing. Though a relatively young man, he has attained a leading place among the scientists of America and combines with scientific ability those personal qualities which make for leadership. He knows our campus, is familiar with the problems of our state and will be helpful to both our university and to our Iowa."

Team majors reported $2,150.50 last night as their last subtotal, bringing their figure to $10,453, pledged volunteer support during

Double Loyalty

W. T. Hageboeck, general campaign chairman, arose between dinner courses last night to announce that the chamber would gladly accept private grants from those present.

"Anyone who wishes to give $100 to the cause will please rise."

Someone started playing the national anthem on the piano. Everyone rose. Nobody paid.

This extra day and sent Gordon Brown, chamber secretary, and L. C. Townsend, their advisor, to the books until midnight to produce a list of the non-members.

All mobilization divisions reported last night, including the national firms division, university, executive specials and the three battalions of the sales army.

All volunteers will report at the chamber office in the Jefferson hotel at 9 o'clock this morning for their final lists.

Carson Places Mills Under $1,000 Bond

Plea of Not Guilty Filed by Driver in Monday's Accident

Floyd Mills of North Liberty, accused of leaving the scene of an accident at Dubuque and Washington streets Monday night, was held in the county jail last night under a $1,000 bond after pleading not guilty late yesterday before Police Judge Burke N. Carson, acting as ex officio justice of the peace.

Judge Carson had signed a warrant for Mills' arrest yesterday morning after his release from University hospital, where he was treated for lacerations of the face suffered when the car which he was driving Monday struck another head-on in the 800 block of North Dubuque street.

Mills waived his case yesterday to the grand jury.

Mills' first accident Monday night at a downtown intersection happened when his car struck a pedestrian, A. Virginia Lewis, 43 of East Bloomfield, N. Y. She was treated for possible fractures of the humerus and several fractured ribs.

Attorney Inalls Swisher is representing Mills.

Crash Into Parked Car Results in $350 Damage Last Night

A car driven by W. A. Sandberg of Peoria, Ill., in the 800 block of E. Burlington street last night crashed into a parked car, causing an estimated damage of $350, police reported last night.

Michael F. Andrews, 103 Melrose avenue, was sitting in the parked car.

Neither person was injured.

Division Chairmen Plan With General

Among those who were anticipating victory last night in the chamber of commerce's membership drive to raise $11,120 were, left to right, Leland Nagle, chamber president; Jack Beighle, heading the national firms division; W. T. Hageboeck, general chairman; L. D. Wareham, leader of the executive special division, and Gordon Brown, secretary of the chamber. Reports of all divisions last night showed the goal still $667 away, which, officials predict, will be raised today by volunteer business men canvassing the city for the remaining non-members.

Colonel, Majors See Victory

The three battalion majors, pictured above with their colonel, Roscoe E. Taylor, discussed plans for the final day of their membership drive after a dinner for the entire sales army and divisions last night in the main dining room of the Jefferson hotel. Left to right are E. F. Lenthe, Earl Y. Sangster, Taylor and H. W. Stuck. The drive is being carried on until this afternoon, having officially ended at last night's dinner when reports were heard from all groups participating.

National Guard Gives Federal Inspection Date

A federal inspection of the local National Guard units will be held here May 20, it was announced yesterday by Capt. Elmer Hay.

Prior to the inspection members of the unit will go to Des Moines to attend a federal cavalry training school, he said. The date for this is May 4.

Details of the inspection will be announced at that time, Hay said.

Judge Fines Seven Drivers For Violations

Police Judge Burke N. Carson fined seven traffic violators in police court yesterday.

Marvin Sass drew the heaviest penalty of the day when he was fined $5 and costs for driving with an over-width load.

The other six violators were found guilty of overtime parking.

Arbor Day Suggestions Made For Planting

If you're planning to follow the custom of Arbor day, set for today by a governor's proclamation, you might follow some suggestions advanced yesterday by the city planting commission and the Iowa City Woman's club.

For shade trees, the group recommends the planting of elms, oaks or maples. Fruit trees are advisable, they say, for property around small homes because they furnish both blossoms in the spring and fruit in the fall.

Col. Franklin Transferred OMAHA (AP)—Transfer of Col. John F. Franklin, chief of staff, seventh corps area, to Ft. Mason, Calif., effective about August 1, was announced at corps area headquarters here.

They included Muzaffer Ulassahin, Dorothy Watson, L. E. Davis, Leroy Wenman, Mrs. Frank Mac-hovec and J. W. Holladay.

Harry Eckhoff was fined $1.50 for disturbing the peace.

Eugene Coultas Resigns as Director Of Iowa City Recreational Center

Eugene Coultas, director of physical progress at the Recreational Center, who has received a civil service appointment in Des Moines, will leave here Sunday, he said yesterday.

Coultas came to Iowa City two years ago to aid in the construction of the new Recreational Center. He drew up plans for the new location and acted as superintendent of construction.

He graduated from Bradley Technological college in 1922 at the age of 19. In 1925 he entered the United States army air corps technical school and graduated three years later, a licensed army mechanic.

Until two years ago he held a transport pilot's license and has 2,043 air hours to his credit. In 1932 and 1933 he barn-stormed in Iowa and Illinois.

Coultas was vocational instructor and athletic director of the CCC camp at Milford and supervised the construction of the Iowa Lakeside laboratory on Lake Okoboji.

He spent nine months as vocational director for the tenement neighborhood boys at the Des Moines Y.M.C.A. Previous to his transfer to Iowa City, Coultas had supervised the construction of a summer play-ground in Sac City.

For four years he has been active in recreational work in Iowa. Coultas' wife and two children will remain in Iowa City until the completion of the current school year.

Spring Street Cleaning

What might be considered Iowa City's spring street cleaning is well under way with the parking stalls being painted, new parking stalls replacing old ones and holes in the pavement being repaired.

Above, Fred Liblim, city employe, outlines the parking stalls with bright yellow paint as D. M. Brown, in the background, prepares the pavement to receive the paint.

A Vacation Earned

George Trundy Won't Be Supervising Mail Sorting -- After Thirty Years

Hale 70-year-old George Trundy won't be supervising the sorting of your mail today. He's on a four-day vacation. But when it's over he won't be going back to work at the post office, as he has done for more than 30 years.

No, he's then going to take a longer vacation, for Uncle Sam is retiring him on a pension for his years of faithful service. If he wanted to, Trundy could have retired two years ago at 68 but he preferred to keep right on working. Last Saturday he observed his 70th birthday anniversary. The postal department automatically retires its employees at that age. Technically his last day will be April 30, but Mr. Trundy had four days' vacation accumulated so he finished yesterday.

He's going to take things easy now. "I like to putter around the house and lawn and tend to the roses." A little later he and his wife may travel to California to see their son.

Trundy started as a substitute carrier and clerk in the post office in November, 1889, when it occupied a corner on the ground floor of Old Hotel St.

James, the present-day site of the Dey building.

After three years he set up his own express agency. He re-entered the postal service in 1905 as a railway clerk on the Chicago to Council Bluffs runs, and then returned to the post office, which had been moved to its present building.

Charles Wieneke, now assistant postmaster, is the only man in the post office who was there when Trundy first broke in. "We've known each other since we were kids," Trundy says. "We grew up together and belonged to the same organizations such as the Sons of Veterans and old company G of the national guard."

Trundy will go to the post office Wednesday for his last regular pay check. And he'll be dropping around every once in a while to reminisce with "Charlie" and the others.

Mrs. Reha Reports Theft of 3 Suits

Mrs. J. J. Reha, 712 Ronalds, reported to the police yesterday that three suits of work clothes were stolen from her clothesline sometime after 1 a.m. yesterday.

To The Voters of Iowa City . . .

On May 7 the voters of Iowa City will have an opportunity to express their desire in regard to the purchase by the City of Iowa City of the property of the Iowa Water Service Company. Each voter will be asked to cast two ballots; one will be on the question of "whether or not the City of Iowa City should establish a municipal waterworks system by acquiring the presently owned waterworks system of the Iowa Water Service Company." The other ballot will be on the question of "shall the City of Iowa City, Iowa, place the management and control of this municipal waterworks system in the hands of a Board of Trustees."

Statements of all kinds are being made about the physical condition of the pumping plant and the distribution system. From the great variety of such rumors, it is very evident that people generally do not know the true facts about the actual status of the property. In order that every voter, if he wishes, may know the true facts about the physical condition of the property the Company is extending an invitation to every voter of Iowa City to visit the pumping plant any time between 12 Noon on April 27 and 6 P.M. April 28. Anyone who finds it impossible to visit the plant during this interval will have another opportunity between 12 Noon May 4 and 6 P.M. May 5. A qualified person will be there during these two intervals to answer any questions that may be asked.
