The War's Buck at A Starting Point

NOW that the Battle of Flanders is over, Hitler can once again become bombastic and mysterious at the same time. Bombastic in that he has for the time being drubbed the allies, mysterious in that he is to call an all-important conference which, according to reports, will once more surprise the world.

Conjectures and opinions pertaining to the new Hitler "mystery" bring to the fore the ever recurring Mussolini. But as far as Benito is concerned, there is no mystery whatsoever. The pompous little ex-blacksmith is in a pincer movement all by himself. The French are watching him closely while Adolf has him unceremoniously under his thumb. What the whole thing may amount to is that Hitler may at last give Mussolini the word to move.

If the order to march is given, Mussolini will have to move, and if he does move, there is a great possibility that he will be making the mistake of his life; for the French are still far from being helpless and they would probably like nothing better than to smash through the not-so-great Italian army and continue through the Brenner Pass and into Germany itself. Whichever way one looks at it, Benito is in a "sack" and either the allies or the nazis are very likely to tie the open end.

Mussolini is not in an enviable position. The king of Italy once pledged never to attack France — and the king is popular with the Italian people. Yet Benito pledged himself to Adolf and he has to jump when Hitler pulls the string. Mussolini has let himself in for something and it looks as if before long he will be playing a very soulful tune.

The Needs Of Youth In a Democracy

THE EMPHASIS that the child welfare station is putting on youth for the second time in its annual conference deserves the attention of youth leaders of the entire state and of youth itself.

It is vitally imperative that the needs of youth in a democracy receive attention. The future of the United States depends on the views of the generation which is beginning its citizenship duties during these years of a world upset.

Unless the confidence of youth in the system is sufficient, unless they are made to see that democracy can work to the benefit of the individuals in the state, those ideals which the founding fathers worshipped will come to mean less and less.

Conferences such as the one which the Iowa Child Welfare Research station is sponsoring this month on this campus point the way.

Manifestations Of Loyalty To the University

PRESIDENT Eugene A. Gilmore, speaking at the annual Commencement dinner Wednesday night in Iowa Union emphasized one point above all others. "Be loyal to something," he said. "Be loyal to your university."

Yesterday the significance of that statement in terms of the graduates of former years became apparent. Today it will be even more apparent, because returning alumni, who are here or will come for reunions of their classes, are demonstrating that quality of loyalty so essential to an educational institution.

They're back from all over the United States. Why? To meet old friends, of course. To take a look at the changes on the campus, of course. But more than that, when we talk to those alumni of Iowa, we discover that they return out of an inherent love for the University of Iowa, its ideals, and the goals for which it strives. They want to see the progress toward those goals that have been made since their last visit to the campus.

When they speak of THEIR instructors and professors, of THEIR classmates and friends, of all their relationships with the university, one discovers a deep-felt affection for Iowa. That's a manifestation of that about which the president spoke.

There's no finer manifestation of the truth of President Gilmore's remarks than the attitude of the alumni and alumnae who are on the campus today. Iowa is proud of its old friends. They're an essential part in Iowa's life.

Out Of Our Territory

TO SAY that death took a holiday Thursday would be a mistake, for certainly there was no limit to slaughter on the fields of Flanders.

Pleading to the sight of traffic safety officials, nevertheless, are the figures on traffic fatalities over the Memorial holiday. The reports indicate that but 64 motorists met death on the highway—"just about the nation's normal average for any Thursday in May."

It may be that the United States was too far away for the man with the scythe to get here Thursday, what with his task of carnage in Europe. America can be thankful that the holiday deaths did not repeat the regular high of traffic fatalities over a holiday. Demonstrated in part is the effectiveness of the highway safety movement. Such a demonstration should make us continuously cautious, lest this year's record be the only low point on the graph.

CLIPPED from other COLUMNS

THE LAST FULL MEASURE: Memorial Day was born of an old war, among people who still mourned their youthful and untimely dead. Those were boys whose faces had scarcely felt the razor who lay in the fresh graves in the churchyards and the military cemeteries. The horror and anxiety of the war were not forgotten. The North could remember when its shattered volunteer regiments fled headlong from the field of Bull Run, when Lee came to Gettysburg, when Burnside left 15,000 men dead and dying on the slopes of Fredericksburg, when Grant at Cold Harbor lost 5,000 men in ten minutes. And the South, defeated, broken in the end, remembered too. It was yesterday's news, today's sorrow, tomorrow's forbidding. There was no healer but time. We feel a melancholy but not a bitter grief for old, unhappy, far-off things, and battles long ago.

The last battles of our War Between the States were over seventy-five years ago. Can we vent forward and gain a moment of serenity as we contemplate a time when all who march in today's more dreadful battles will be dead or immersed in the tranquility of extreme old age, when today's fever and hatred will be something written in books and softened in memory, and when there will be wreaths on the graves and memorials of those who during these past few days, in a struggle which may have seemed to them beyond hope of victory, yet died for liberty?

A great part of history is a record of men's anguish; nor does the written portion tell the whole story of broken lives. The girl who weeps for her dead sweetheart, the widow, the motherless, the old couple fingering the official telegram, the crippled, the blinded, the broken in body and soul—who shall write of them? Yet history does pour the sand and dust through her fingers and retain some flecks of fine gold, purified beyond all further contamination.

She records that in all ages men have been found who valued some goods of the spirit more than life itself, who stood firm against the rage of the oppressor, and died for a dear memory and a vision. Let us not glorify wars, past or present. It is better to live for one's love of freedom than to die for them. It is better to prevail by reason and justice than by force of arms. But it is well, also, not to forget that in our own history and in the history now boiling in hell's caldrons across the water, the lovers of peace and of freedom, the tenderhearted, the chivalrous, the young who were thirsty for life, have offered and are now offering what Abraham Lincoln called "the last full measure of devotion."

Their Countries Now Part of New Nazi Empire

PRESIDENT MIKIAS Austria; PRESIDENT BENES Czechoslovakia; PRESIDENT MOSCICKI Poland; KING CHRISTIAN X Denmark; KING HAARON VII Norway; QUEEN WILHELMINA The Netherlands; GRAND DUCHESS CHARLOTTE Luxembourg; KING LEOPOLD III Belgium.

Since the fateful day of March 11, 1938, when Adolf Hitler's mechanized troops rolled across the Austrian border and, without bloodshed, seized that nation, three presidents, three kings, a queen and a grand duchess have seen their countries absorbed into the rapidly expanding Greater German reich. Approximately 18,000,000 Poles, 6,760,000 Austrians, 9,800,000 Czechs, 8,640,000 Dutch, 3,887,000 Belgians, 3,777,000 Danes, about 3,000,000 Norwegians and 300,000 Luxembourgians now find themselves under Nazi rule. Thus Hitler now rules over approximately 51,000,000 people of non-Germanic origin. The Nazi flag waves over 275,140 square miles of alien territory.

In the Midst of Gloomy Talk About Uncle Sam's Unpreparedness, Here's a Little Ray of Hope

So much gloomy talk has been going the rounds in Washington recently concerning Uncle Sam's unpreparedness for international trouble that it sounded good the other day to hear Governor William D. Leahy of Puerto Rico report that the Caribbean can be made invulnerable inside two months. Leahy, a retired admiral, knows what he's talking about. And it's a foregone conclusion that no foreign power can manage much of a blitzkrieg in the Caribbean in as short a time as two months. Planes, the admiral admits, might get past our anti-aircraft defense, but he says it wouldn't be worth their while unless quickly supported by strong landing parties, which could not run an American blockade, he asserts. In short, the admiral is very well pleased with the Caribbean military, naval and aviation conditions, but he pronounces Puerto Rican economics deplorable, with unemployment rampant. There's talk of the admiral, by the way, for a new defensive post. Army or Navy Portfolio: President Roosevelt is said to have him in mind for the army or navy portfolio, if only Secretary of War Woodring or Naval Secretary Edison would resign, creating a cabinet vacancy. The trouble is, they both have been so slow about doing it. The White House is said to have been tempting Secretary Woodring with offers of the United States legation in Canada, as successor to James Cromwell lately resigned. And Woodring is reported to think favorably of the appointment, not having been a howling success as secretary of war, whereas he's socially admirably qualified to shine as our diplomatic representative in Ottawa. But apparently he simply can't quite make up his mind to quit, as the executive mansion so ardently wishes he would, yet hesitates to put the skids under him. Edison, on his part, was nominated governor of New Jersey, and the assumption was that he'd resign his portfolio and campaign for the elective position. But somehow he evidently doesn't care to drop out of the cabinet, either.

BY GEORGE TUCKER: NEW YORK—"You'd think we were a couple of interlopers from Hollywood trying to taunt the critics into a fury." It was a black Friday indeed for Laurence Olivier. About him were scattered the New York daily newspapers. They carried sour reviews of his play, "Romeo and Juliet," which had opened on Broadway the night before. The front pages were flaming with headlines—Britain threatened—France invaded. Mr. Olivier is an Englishman. He is engaged to marry Miss Vivien Leigh, the erstwhile Atlanta Jezebel of "Gone With the Wind." Miss Leigh had opened in the play with him in the role of Juliet. The critics had hopped on this production, some of them savagely. "They should have called it 'Laurence and Vivien' instead of 'Romeo and Juliet,'" one critic wrote. All this left Mr. Olivier slightly stunned. "Did any actor ever get worse reviews, I wonder?" He was assured man actors had drawn worse reviews—Raymond Massey's attempt at Hamlet, for instance. In a way, this was a disappointment to a great number of people who aren't even connected with the theater. Miss Leigh made such a hit in "Wind" and when her engagement to Olivier was announced, the "Romeo and Juliet" idea seemed a sort of lovers' dream come true. But the reviewers, almost without exception, condemned the production. One critic suggested the only reason they decided to play Shakespeare's tragedy of the star-crossed lovers was because they were in love themselves and were trying to cash in on the public's well-known sympathy for people who are in love. Since it was Mr. Olivier who produced the play and directed, most of the brickbats were heaved into his dressing room. They accused him of mumbling his lines, of being indistinct, and of prancing around the stage in a sort of daze. They said Miss Leigh was lovely but that she was in no sense the smouldering maid of 14th century Italy that Juliet was supposed to be. Juliet was 14, and there is an old sacred cow of critical opinion that says no actress can play the role until she is forty. Before the conquest of Poland the government planned to improve retail storekeeping by offering reduction of taxes to merchants who would adopt a standard accounting system. The shad lives most of its life in the deep ocean, but comes up rivers to spawn, much like salmon. Rome, Italy, is building seven new bridges to be completed in time for the Universal exhibition in 1942. Tobacco is an all-year crop. The farmers tend it like a baby from planting time to the moment the auctioneer says it's sold. An hour's neglect in the slow-heat curing may ruin it.

But the Critics Said 'Romeo-Juliet' Wasn't So Good. The navy department has become tremendously important recently, and the secretary presumably doesn't fancy the notion of quitting the national limelight for a mere governorship. The upshot is that the president has hanging fire two tentative cabinet resignations that he'd be extremely glad to have the acceptance of. His Own Medicine: The situation is one in which the White House tenant has been getting some of his own medicine. As we all know, he has kept all other democratic presidential aspirants on the anxious seat, wondering, "is he going to run again, or isn't he?" Their own plans depended on his decision, and he wouldn't reveal it. This time he has a couple of cabinet members on his hands, and wants to know, "Are they going to resign or aren't they?" And they won't tell him—haven't made up their own minds, in all probability—just as he probably hadn't made up his own mind when folk quizzed him on the third term issue.

NOW THAT Eddie Cantor is set for radio, look for Ed Wynn to stage a gala return to the air soon. When Wynn completes plans for his Broadway show he'll turn toward the kilocycles. I am wondering why the sudden revival so generally of radio stars who have had their day—revivals such as is common now in so many songs of a few years ago. It makes one wonder where all the new talent is going or if there is any new talent. MAYE IT'S NOT a point to be argued because radio networks report the best business in line for the summer of any year on record because national sponsors who generally give their shows summer vacations are staying on with the same or with replacement shows. BUT WHY NOT introduce some new talent. The old has had its day and will again fade out of popularity after a few weeks on the air. A popular program today might be a variety hour with Rudy Vallee such as he used to have when he introduced new radio material who

Kentucky Colonel -- Diplomat? 1910 Alumnus Assumes Disguise For Return to Campus

You'll know him by his high silk hat and cane—his English walking trousers—his long tail afternoon coat. But perhaps his old classmates will hesitate. Several yesterday failed to recognize this alumnus of 1910 in his recent "disguise" of a mustache, goatee and large sombrero.

Jed H. Campbell of Battle Creek has dressed up for the reunion of his law class of '10 with which he met last five years ago.

Yesterday he was mistaken for a Kentucky colonel; today he'll be a foreign diplomat.

Admitting that the "disguise" behind the mustache and goatee was only temporary and the result of a bet with judicial friends, Campbell hesitated for due time before allowing a picture to be taken.

"What will my friends back home think? I refused to let them take a picture of me like this to hang in the Ida Grove court house," the alumnus explained.

All departments of the university will provide faculty members to welcome back former students. Alumni members will find directions and information as to the location of buildings and offices of faculty members in the registrar's office in University hall.

and Mrs. W. N. Cox of Westboro, Mo. Mrs. Cox was graduated from the university and is affiliated with Kappa Delta sorority. Mr. Cox is a graduate of Northwestern Teachers' college in Maryville, Mo. He is now a director of the Des Moines city playground commission.

The couple will live in Des Moines.

The couple will live at 1909 Morningside drive here in Iowa City after June 7. Mr. Loats will do graduate work in the university and Mrs. Loats will receive her M. A. degree at the end of summer school. She is a graduate of the State Teachers' college in Muncie, Ind., and has been teaching in the Rockcreek high school in Bluffton, Ind. Mr. Loats is a graduate of Iowa State Teachers college.

By OSCAR HARGRAVE Daily Iowan Sports Editor Iowa's hammering Hawkeyes put together two big innings yesterday on the Iowa diamond to prick the bubble of Minnesota's chance for the Big Ten baseball title, the Hawks taking a well-earned 7-2 decision.

In today's game, beginning at 2:30, Coach Otto Vorel of the Hawkeyes will probably choose Fred Hohenbrot, senior right-hander, or Bob Stastny to face the Gophers. Probable starter for Minnesota is Stan Sowa, veteran southpaw.

bed in the opening frame and then chased four more markers across the pay-off base in the eighth to complete the rout of rangy Bill Anderson, Gopher mound ace. The Gophers scored their second and final run in the same inning when they combined a hit, a base on balls and a fielder's choice to bring first-baseman George Sweeney home.

The victory, putting the Gophers entirely out of the running for the conference crown, makes it possible for Iowa, by winning today's contest, to finish third behind Illinois and Northwestern. A win today would give the Hawkeyes a record of eight conference wins against three defeats, while the Illinois and Wildcats are tied for the title at nine and three.

Marking the end of a brilliant year at Iowa, Co-Capt. Harold Haub turned in his eleventh triumph of the season, shacking the Gophers in all except the first and eighth, the innings in which they managed their two runs. The big Iowa right-hander, in superb form throughout most of the game, struck out seven of the invaders, allowed only four scattered bingles and dished out three bases on balls.

Behind by one run after the first inning Gopher drive and locked in a bitter hurling duel with Anderson, winner of four straight Big Ten games, Haub was at his best through the middle innings. The Gophers touched him for two hits in the first inning and one in the second, but after that he set them down in order until the eighth, handing out nothing more impressive than one base on balls.

1943-44 Schedules Extended

Big Ten Approves Nine Game Gridiron Card; Limits Start of Play

CHICAGO, Ill., May 31—Nine-game football schedules for 1943 and 1944, with a minimum of six games with conference opponents, have been acknowledged with satisfaction by Western conference officials, including faculty representatives, athletic directors and football coaches.

The rule acts as a waiver of the faculty conference limitation to an eight-game schedule. The resolution as approved assures at least two home games with conference opponents for each school, and provides that the season shall not open before the last Saturday in September.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

Major consequence of the rule is a unification of conference competition as each school is assured of a definite quota of conference games, including an assurance to each team of an attractive home schedule, frequently rendered impossible in the past by the traditional rivalries and non-conference commitments.

A spy reports that the Kansas City Blues don't know their own strength. The club is coasting along in front in the American Association, yet the regular pitchers are growing because they don't get enough work.

Mickey Owen, Cardinal catcher, played one game at shortstop in the American Association. His record was no assists, no putouts, no errors. The manager thought he was just wasting his time, so promoted him back to catcher the next day.

Ernie Quigley, supervisor of National league umpires, says the reason so many relief pitchers flop is their carelessness in the bullpen. Even the major leaguers, he says, warm up by just throwing, without paying any attention to the rubber and correct pitching form. When they go to the mound they have to start thinking about those little details, and their performance suffers.

Man-Made Hell

English Continue Evacuation From Dunkerque Of Troops Caught in Inferno Of German Bombs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A SOUTHEAST PORT IN ENGLAND, May 31—Dead tired, aching for home, the men of the B.E.F. poured on into England tonight, adding chapter after chapter to their epic.

From big liners to tiny boats with only a few men aboard, a great armada brought them home, poured them onto troop trains and went back, under the fire of German guns and bombers, for more. Tonight the total of the British, French and Belgians brought over the tortured channel ferry routes of war was somewhat near 100,000. But one of them said: "Thousands more were massed at the Dunkerque wharves early this morning, waiting for ships."

On the narrow station platforms along the way to London stood the anguished wives and wide-eyed children of the B.E.F., straining at the windows of the rocketing, troop-filled trains.

They were waiting, too, with icy dread, for the casualty lists that have not come.

In London, when they opened one compartment door today they found a British officer, dead, his own pistol beside him.

From this port even the fishing boats and the trim little holiday motor craft went across the channel today and came back, loaded with men in khaki.

The navy and the air force stayed grimly on guard.

Across the channel the sun gleamed on the white shore line of France and the green fields beyond.

The black plume of smoke from a huge fire, burning near Dunkerque, mounted the sky.

The men who landed told stories of fighting fiercely only a few hours previously.

"It is an inferno over there: a hell made by man," said one artilleryman.

"The Germans asked for a truce to bury their dead after a 36-hour barrage had held up their advance.

"We replied: 'There's no truce.' And we gave them another seven hours of barrage."

Another soldier said the Germans shelled the British on the Dunkerque wharves with long-range guns.

"There were some killed," he added.

Every sort of a story was told of the new German strategy of war. Here was one, told by a Tommy:

"We found ten thousand almost perfect, counterfeit, ten-franc notes on one plane that we brought down. Parachute troops are being given this money to disorganize French finances."

Another Tommy told what happened to parachute troops in Flanders:

"I have seen German corpses landing with as many as fifty bullets in them," he said. "They were killed long before they reached the ground."

At the wayside stations they were deluged with fruit, cigarettes, cookies.

The waiting women surrounded the soldiers, plied them with soft drinks, acted as postmen for hastily-scribbled postcards to wives and sweethearts.

On one platform, a six-year-old girl sprang into the arms of a grimy soldier. It was her brother, unheard-from for six weeks.

Many of the men limped until they saw a sympathetic eye upon them; then they straightened fiercely.

Mrs. M. Bray, Burnside, Ill., Succumbs Here

Mrs. Martha Bray, 66, of Burnside, Ill., passed away at a local hospital at 2:25 p.m. yesterday after a seven-week illness.

School Census To Be Taken

Teachers To Conduct Canvass of Homes For City-Wide Census

Public school teachers of Iowa City today and Monday will take a city-wide census of all pupils in public schools.

Going from house to house, the teachers will cover the entire school district determining how many students there are between the ages of five and 20 inclusive.

Superintendent of Schools Iver A. Opstad, in making the announcement, explained that the state appropriates funds to the school district in proportion to the number of pupils in the school district within those ages. Therefore, he said, the canvass will continue until every student has been reached.

The last such census was taken in 1938 and showed a total enrollment of 3,728. This was a decline of seven students from the 1936 census, which was the largest on record in Iowa City.

'Marines Fly High' Iowa Co-Feature

The romantic complication involving two husky marines, an American girl in the tropics and a native dancer, share the dramatic spotlight with high-speed action in "The Marines Fly High."

Richard Dix and Chester Morris are cast as two flying marines detailed to a little Central American country to organize and train a native army to combat a reign of terror instigated by a renegade bandit. Lucille Ball plays the role of a courageous American girl owner of a cocoa plantation who is being victimized by the bandit.

The rivalry of the two marines over the American girl and the complications which arise when Steffi Duna, as a fascinating native dancer, attempts to resume a romance with Dix, lead to both hilarious and dramatic events. ## 'RANCHO GRANDE' NOW AT VARSITY

Gene Autry Featured In Current Attraction; May Robson in Co-Hit

"Rancho Grande" now showing at the Varsity with Gene Autry in the top spot, presents an entertaining and thrilling screen story built around the famous song for which it was named.

Gene Autry, foreman of the Rancho Grande, is distressed when he learns that Kay and Tom Dodge, madcap heirs to the ranch, are en route to the rancho with their younger sister, Patsy. The Dodes have a nation-wide reputation as madcaps, and Gene dreads his meeting with them, especially because he already has his hands more than full saving the Rancho Grande from foreclosure.

Old John Dodge, before his death, mortgaged the Rancho in order to secure funds for a vast irrigation system which is to be completed before a certain date. If it is not completed by this date, the Citrus Valley Association, holders of the mortgage, will foreclose on the Rancho Grande and all of the Dodge holdings will be lost.

It is a situation such as this that Gene meets in the current film. The Dodge heirs, portrayed by June Storey, Dick Hogan and little Mary Lee, cause him no end of trouble. One of them, Kay Dodge, adds "heart trouble" to a ready existing varieties, to Gene's great mental torment.

Smiley Burnette, Gene's omnipresent side-kick, has heart troubles of his own with Effie Tinker, local society news sleuth, but he emerges unscathed, after a series of riotously funny escapades.
