FRENCH ARMY ORDERED TO RETREAT

England Attacked for Third Time by Nazi Air Raiders

One Plane Machine-Guns Port Town While Other Crashes

Ministry of Home Defense Reports That Two of Bomber's Crew Were Killed; Civilians Uninjured

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LONDON, June 8 (Saturday)—German air raiders, in the third successive night of attacks on England, roared over eight counties late last night, one circling low to machine-gun the houses of a southeast port town while another crashed and burned in east Suffolk.

The ministry of home security reported: "Two of the bomber's crew were killed and one injured. One house was badly damaged, and slight damage was caused to other buildings. No civilian casualties have been reported."

The machine-gunning plane which struck at the unidentified coast town dropped no bombs, but circled repeatedly close to earth. Residents escaped injury by huddling for 45 minutes in shelters.

The alarms were in Cambridge, Norfolk, Essex, Suffolk, Kent, Northumberland, Durham and Yorkshire.

In one southeast coast county, the roar of planes was heard directly overhead, punctuated by repeated bursts of gunfire.

The planes first flew to the south, then returned, heading inward toward the west. Then they wheeled back again, pursued by the continual clatter of machine-gun fire.

In Norfolk, where the alarm lasted about an hour, compared with five minutes in Durham, deep-throated explosions were heard in the distance.

Anti-aircraft guns blazed on the Essex coast.

There were no immediate reports of damage.

Britain's own air force, meanwhile, was bearing the weight of British support for her French ally until new land divisions can be forced and equipped for the conflict on the Somme.

The air ministry's communique of the coastal warning said merely: "Air raid warnings sounded in east and southeast England . . ."

The air ministry reported almost continuous air assaults since yesterday on German communications and many other targets to hamper the Nazi drive into France.

Military sources viewed the allied status on French battlefields as "pretty good" but wondered whether the main attack of the Germans yet had been made.

There are Scots units in the line with the French on the Somme, but not many.

The loss of 10 British planes was acknowledged, but the ministry declared 15 German aircraft had been shot down. British bombing targets such as railways, bridges, troops, gun emplacements, tank columns and oil refineries were "systematically and repeatedly bombed" behind the Somme front, in France and in northwest Germany.

The British reported they dropped 70 bombs on a big refinery south of Hamburg, setting great fires there and also on a large oil storage plant near Delmenhorst.

British Tanks Battle German Somme Attack

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—The official "eye-witness" correspondent with the British expeditionary force on the Somme front reported that British tanks were hurled into battle today to meet the German advance south of the Somme and have given much assistance to the infantry.

Several of the tanks captured a detachment of German infantry, the correspondent said.

He described the British as "fighting magnificently against heavy odds but obliged to withdraw their front slightly" as the Germans augmented the infantry attack with motorized machine-gun units.

Comparatively few British have been reported still in France, although dispatches last night told of Scots fighting shoulder to shoulder with the French. Britain has stated that most of the expeditionary force's mechanical units were lost in the Flanders fighting, but an undisclosed number apparently still are in the thick of the defense of France.

Locusts About Due to Swarm Over Countryside

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—In 1923 France began occupation of the German Ruhr, there was a terrible earthquake in Tokyo, Hitler staged his beer-hall putsch, and billions of 17-year locusts began germinating in the sub-soil of North America.

Those same locusts, Entomologist Frank Lutz announced today, are about due now to swarm over the countryside, the males shrilling an eerie chorus audible for a quarter of a mile.

Their span of life is only a few weeks, and they're generally harmless, their damage being confined to the incubation period below ground, when they feed on tree root juices.

The locusts lay their eggs on twigs, and the hatched result, called nymphs, drop onto the ground and bury themselves for that 17-year snooze.

Rip, Van Winkles of the insect world, you might call them.

To Hold Title In Psychology

Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, Grinnell President, Honored by Board

GRINNELL, June 7 (AP)—Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, newly elected president of Grinnell college, also will hold the title of professor of psychology, the board of trustees announced tonight.

Election of Dr. Stevens to succeed Dr. John S. Nollen, who retires Aug. 1 with the title of professor of psychology "in recognition of his work in the field and as a means of giving him the direct faculty status as well as being the administrative head of the college," the announcement said. "He will not teach, however."

Dr. Stevens comes to Grinnell from Northwestern university, where he has been dean of the university college since 1934. He was born in Maryland, and was graduated from Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn. He did graduate work at Johns Hopkins university, Garrett Biblical Institute, and Northwestern.

Other action at today's board meeting included the election of Madame Annie Tschopp Gombosi as teacher of violin for one year, in the absence of Professor David E. Peck on leave. She has been a member of the Basel, Switzerland symphony and chamber orchestras.

Election of a chairman of the department of music will be announced later.

Order Disrupts U. S. Italian Trade

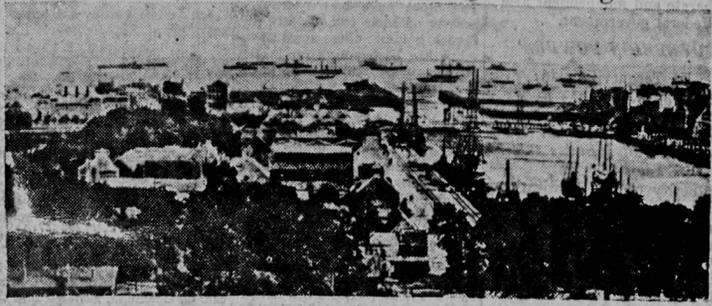

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—Italy ordered her merchant fleet of almost 1,500 ships off the seas today—and thus not only indicated her proximity to war—but dealt another blow to the already war-shocked world trade.

The immediate effect of the sudden order, disclosed here by the Italian line, was the disruption of American trade with the Italian empire. Italy had placed large orders for American goods and ships in many United States ports were being loaded hurriedly in an effort to get them away before Italy took any war action.

Loading was halted. Monopoli, an Italian metal purchasing agency, notified copper companies to suspend further shipments until further notice. A recent $5,000,000 purchase of American scrap metal was left hanging. Cotton shipments were stopped.

United States flag vessels still were able to ply between this country and the Mediterranean, stopping at Italian ports, but they, too, would be halted under the neutrality act if today's Italian move meant what it sounded, leaving only Spain and Portugal open.

Italy Cancels Ship Sailings, Prepares Army; Other Vessels Ordered to Neutral Harbors

Armaments Speeded, Air Force Expanded In New War Moves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
ROME, June 7 (AP)—Italy made the world aware tonight that her hour of decision is near by holding her ships at a world standstill and by putting her armies to the ready.

Italians heard without surprise the widespread reports abroad that the scheduled sailings of all Italian merchant ships had been cancelled and that those in foreign waters had been ordered to take cover in neutral harbors.

While there was no official confirmation here of these reports, a reliable source said the great Italian liner Rex would not sail on June 12, although the line still accepted reservations.

Departure Cancelled
Other departures likewise were reported secretly called off.

Armament was speeded. The Italian air force was granted $380,000,000 for its expanded program in the next three years. The navy got $80,000,000 for armament aboard and ashore.

A 74-year-old whiskered veteran of many a tough colonial campaign, Marshal Emilio De Bono, was put in command of Italy's southern armies—the forces which would be expected to do much of the fighting upon Italy's entrance into the war.

Italy, Russia Closer
The announcement of the marshal's elevation spoke of a "group." There has been but one army in southern Italy and two in Libya. Thus, it was said, the three might be formed into a single force.

Among the day's significant developments was the fact that foreign circles were told that diplomatic relations between Italy and Russia—who has understandings with Germany—were being improved.

Over 100 Homes Under Water In Inundated Nebraska Town

City's Drinking Source Endangered as Flood Strikes Power Plant

WAUNETA, Neb., June 7 (AP)—More than 100 homes and the business district were flooded tonight as Wauneta felt the force of the flood crest surging down Frenchman creek.

The light and water plant was inundated, cutting off electric power and endangering the city's drinking water source. Some homes were moved off their foundations, and extensive damage occurred to business house stocks.

Under the direction of Chief N. C. Burnham the volunteer fire department worked all night evacuating residents in the flooded section, where some of the newest and finest homes in Wauneta have been built.

First warnings came last night, and some residents who refused to heed them slowed the evacuation. Many were carried from their homes. When the flood struck, however, all were evacuated and no loss of life occurred.

The water filled basements and covered the first story of homes as high as four feet.

Because of the geographical situation of the town and adjoining area, the flood waters rolled through the business district.

The town's hospital was inundated, and an emergency hospital was set up on higher ground, where the evacuated residents have been housed with citizens who live in the more fortunately located part of the town.

Burlington Agent Carl Kendler said the full crest of the flood is expected between 10 p.m. and 10 a.m. tomorrow, but no further damage was anticipated, since the main brunt of the flood has apparently struck.

Subcommittee Tentatively Approves Tax Designed to Raise $1,006,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—A new tax bill, designed to raise $1,006,000,000 a year for national defense by digging deeper than ever before into the average American's pocket, won tentative approval today of a house tax subcommittee.

The new taxes would be earmarked to liquidate in the next five years a $4,000,000,000 increase in the public debt limit—from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000—which the bill would authorize in order to meet defense appropriations being made at this session. President Roosevelt already has requested approximately $4,600,000,000 for defense.

The bill would bring approximately 2,050,000 additional persons within reach of the income tax collector by reducing exemptions to the lowest level since the income tax law was enacted. The basic exemption for married couples would be cut from $2,500 to $2,000 and for single persons from $1,000 to $800.

In addition, the measure would impose a supertax of 10 per cent of the normal tax for the next five years; increase surtax rates on the income bracket between $6,000 and $100,000 and boost corporation income taxes by one per cent of taxable income.

Persons not affected by the income tax increases will be reached for part of the defense costs through increases of 10 per cent or more which the bill would impose on virtually all existing excise tax levies, such as the tax on gasoline. The latter is tentatively scheduled to go up a half cent from the present one cent levy.

Chairman Cooper (D - Tenn.) who said the bill was unanimously approved by his subcommittee, told newsmen that the lowering of income tax exemptions was intended to be permanent law, as (See TAX, Page 5)

Nazis Admit Stiff Resistance Slows Drive

News of Progress Scarce, But Armies Proceed 'On Schedule'

BERLIN, June 7 (AP)—Germans at home were kept on a lean diet of war news tonight from the battle line.

The high command, claiming only "progress on schedule," acknowledged it was meeting "stiff resistance" from heavier arms than had been expected.

Cheered by army statements that "Weygand's surprise," France's resilient defense of depth, had been "broken on a front 62 miles wide," the populace waited at radios for bulletins that might tell the speed of the march toward Paris.

Accustomed to graphic, detailed communique during the sweep across the low countries, Germans had to content themselves with a few terse announcements which made no claims of towns taken.

But from the press and other informed sources the word spread that:

France has greatly weakened her vaunted Maginot line to bolster the Somme-Aisne front.

Germany's oil reserve, increased from a six-month supply at the outbreak of war to enough to last eight months, is only now being touched.

Italy's plunge into war hinges on destruction of the French air force, then distraction of Poland by a siege of Paris so France would not have strength to spare for a counter-blow at Italian overseas possessions.

Meanwhile confidence grew that the conquest of Paris is but a matter of days.

Nazi newspapers stressed that France now fights alone—with the German punch toward Le Havre intended to separate finally the French and British fighting forces.

Backs Away From Furious Nazi Attack on Somme Front

General Maxime Weygand Orders Withdrawal; Plans To Meet Double-Flanking Movement of Germans

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
PARIS, June 7 (AP)—The long allied front lines, selling every foot of scarred French ground at a fearful price in death for the invaders, backed away from furious German attacks all along the Somme front tonight at the order of General Maxime Weygand.

The generalissimo, in a communique written in his own hand, made plain that the withdrawal of advance units was to meet the double-flanking movement characteristic of the German offensive. The main, deep defensive system was still holding.

Only to that extent did he release his men from his order of the first day of battle: "Hold tight to the soil of France!"

Even as they fell back, Weygand reported they had "wiped out" every German who crossed the Aisne river on the French east flank in an advance east of Soissons.

The Germans, he said, were not "counting their losses." At the same time, Nazi tanks broke through in the far west of the front in the region of the upper Bresle river. But the French "support positions"—networks of guns which the general had designed to cut them down with crossfire—were holding firm.

The day's action along the 125-mile front of the Somme and Aisne thus saw heavy action at both ends, and also at Weygand's strongly defended center.

But their tanks bogging down in the swamps of the Bresle valley, the German main push appeared tonight to be concentrated on the east flank.

Nazis Mass for Attacks
On the sides of Soissons to the north and east Nazi forces poured down from the Ailette, massing along the Aisne for continuing attacks.

The effort to cross the Aisne—in an area about 60 miles from Paris—was choked off in one of the day's most violent battles.

An artillery bombardment ushered it in, but those who bridged the river did so only to die on the left bank.

The center of the front was no less ablaze. There, the war ministry spokesman announced, the Germans were attacking heavily tonight, with tanks and new waves of infantrymen.

The center blow was sprung from the Oise valley, north of Soissons, an old battlefield.

Smash 400 German Tanks
In the whole battle area, where half a million Nazis were on the charge, the French reported cutting down many more German tanks than the 400 already declared to have been smashed in traps. The dive bombers, so active in the German successes in the north, were fewer, too, today.

The French used cannon-carrying airplanes to pound the tanks from above.

In this third day of the battle of France, as Weygand has chosen to call it, the reichswehr used forty divisions of infantry to fold back the flanks of the French and try to take the Weygand line from the rear.

Tonight Weygand's center remained intact.

Sweeping Changes for Wagner Act

By a Two to One Vote the House Passes Series of Amendments

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—The labor board since last December. By a vote of exactly two to one, the house passed and sent to the senate today a series of Wagner Act amendments to create a new three-man national labor relations board and make sweeping changes in its present procedure.

The same coalition of republicans and democrats which had held the upper hand for three days of preliminary fighting rolled up a 258 to 129 vote for the revisions, despite the fact that all factions agreed that they would wind up in a pigeonhole in the senate.

The amendments were virtually the same as those approved by a majority of the five-man committee headed by Representative Smith (D.-Va.) which has been investigating the Wagner Act and Opposing these propositions at every turn, a minority tried in vain to confine the house amendments to a series of four, approved by the house labor committee and built around the addition of two new members to the three-man board.

But this group was beaten, once on a teller vote of 178 to 111 and on roll call votes of 246 to 137 and 258 to 129.

Only five changes were made in the original Smith bill—four of them recommended by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

The fifth—by Rep. Allen (D.-Pa.)—would relieve employers of the requirement that they bargain with labor representatives who are not citizens of the United States.

WAITING FOR PARACHUTISTS?

Yeah, just bring on those fifth columnists! We're prepared to defend the Philadelphia zoo. And these chimps really mean what they say, judging from their equipment.

The Court, Keeper of Freedom

February 1, 1940.
Adolf Hitler's legions had not yet invaded Denmark and Norway, the Low Countries or France. Only Poland had fallen into Nazi hands, and Finland was falling prey to Russian dominance, in the orgy of war that began the first day of September, 1939.

America has done a lot of thinking and acting in this newest grim panorama unfolded, threatening in its latest stages to inflict danger, if not damage, upon American ideals, if not on American soil.

We've permitted ourselves to grow apprehensive at times of late. Americans everywhere have told us that now, as never before, we must reaffirm, in thought and action, our faith in the American democratic way of life.

But by far the quietest and most expressive statement of "America—1940" that has come to our attention was uttered by Sen. Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico, when, in conjunction with legislative, administrative and judicial bodies of the nation, the senate observed the 150th anniversary of the United States supreme court.

Spoken Feb. 1, the words of Senator Hatch will bear repeating in this June after the events of four months have deepened the wisdom of his remarks.

"Mr. President and Members of the Senate:

"Today marks the 150th anniversary of the supreme court of the United States. We have just returned from the supreme court, where appropriate ceremonies celebrating this occasion have been concluded. The judiciary committees of both branches of congress attended those ceremonies, paying due and proper respect to the judicial branch of the government.

"Fifty years ago, in speaking at the ceremonies held in the city of New York commemorating the 100th anniversary of the supreme court, a former president of the United States, Mr. Cleveland, said:

"We are accustomed to express on every fit occasion our reverence for the virtue and patriotism in which the foundations of the republic were laid, and to rejoice in the blessings vouchsafed to us under free institutions."

'SO WE SPEAK TODAY'

"As Mr. Cleveland spoke 50 years ago, so may we well speak today. We should fittingly express this day our reverence for the virtue and patriotism in which the foundations of the republic were laid. With even greater fervor we can well rejoice today in the blessings vouchsafed to us under the free institutions of our government.

"It was only yesterday, it seems, at the beginning of the World war, that Sir Edward Grey sadly said:

"One by one the lights of civilization are being extinguished. They shall not be relighted in our generation."

"Today as we look across the seas at the Old World we wonder if once more the lights of civilization are being extinguished. For a decade or more we have watched the fall of governments. We have seen liberty die in other lands. We have seen free people and free governments destroyed, and, even as I speak, a small but a brave and fearless people fights against the advancing hordes of an aggressor who would seize and destroy, the right of a free country to rule and govern herself.

"As we see these things we almost say, as Romain Rolland said during the years of the last World war:

"A sacrilegious conflict which shows a maddened Europe ascending its funeral pyre, and, like Hercules, destroying itself with its own hands."

"As these scenes unfold and as tyranny stalks abroad in other lands and free institutions are obliterated from almost every country in the world, I repeat we may well pause for a moment today and pay our reverence and respect for the 'virtue and patriotism in which the foundations of the republic were laid.'

'FREEDOM NO ACCIDENT'

"In laying those foundations of this republic our fathers proceeded not by accident. It is no accident that freedom survives in America today. The founders of the republic were men who understood the true science of government. Passionately they believed that powers of government must be separated. As often expressed by them, 'the accumulation of all the powers of government in the same hands, whether of one, or a few, or many, and whether hereditary, self-appointed, or elected,' could justly be 'pronounced the very definition of tyranny.' So believing, they laid out the plan upon which the structure of our government rests today.

"It was not a new plan. Students of government, they were familiar with every form and theory of government which existed in the world.

"Following this and other plans and being ever mindful of their own mistakes and errors under the Articles of Confederation, our fathers laid the foundations of this republic. And from their work came the supreme court of the United States.

"In the supreme court there was something new and unique in governments of men. Of course, courts of justice had long existed. The statesmen who wrote the constitution knew well the history of the judiciary. They knew its weaknesses and its strength. They knew its faults and its frailties. English courts had not always functioned according to the principles of English law, in which the colonies devoutly believed. Yet the writers of the constitution gave birth to the most powerful court known to men, the supreme court of the United States, and created it as a separate and independent arm or branch of the federal government.

'COURT OF SOVEREIGN POWERS'

"Of that court, De Toqueville said:

"In the nations of Europe the courts of justice are called upon to try the controversies of private individuals, but the supreme court of the United States summons sovereign powers to its bar."

"Under the authority of the constitution but, as the president of the American Bar association observed this morning, with 'no guards, palaces, or treasures, no arms but truth and wisdom, and no splendor but the justice and publicity of its judgments,' the supreme court has pursued its course for 150 years. Not always right, of course, not divine, but very human, the supreme court has met the multitude of questions presented to it throughout the course of its history and has builded a body of law upon which the freedom of our institutions rests today.

"I can pay the court no greater tribute than this. If I spoke for hours and voiced all the high and lofty sentiments which have been expressed throughout the years by lawyers and judges commemorating the work of the court, I could speak no greater tribute than I have paid when I say the supreme court has helped to build, preserve and keep free government for the people of the United States.

"After all, is there anything else that matters? If free government ever fails here, if tyranny conquers this country, if the right of self-rule ever be denied in the United States, then will we indeed echo the words of Sir Edward Grey and with his sadly say:

"One by one the lights of civilization are being extinguished."

'THIS MUST NOT BE'

"But this, Mr. President, must not be. Somewhere in the world the lights of civilization must continue to burn. Somewhere in the world the right of men to be free must be preserved. Somewhere in the world there must be people willing to declare over and over again with Abraham Lincoln, 'Government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.'

"This country, which gave birth to the ideals of free government, is the country where those rights must be preserved and maintained. It is the lot of this country to keep the lights of civilization from being extinguished. It is ours, Mr. President, to maintain and preserve the rights of men to be free. It is ours to hold fast to the principle that men can govern themselves.

"As the ultimate repository of the rights and liberties of the people of America, the supreme court of the United States has the great responsibility of safeguarding democracy itself. In the years of its existence the court, with few lapses, has done that very thing. The lights of liberty in America have been kept burning. Men have been free in the United States. Free institutions survive in America today.

"That men may be free tomorrow and throughout the years to come, let not justice be denied. As the court speaks the voice of the people as expressed in the constitution, let wisdom, truth and righteousness permeate its decisions.

"Let those decisions and opinions today speak the commendation of the court. Let its decrees write its history. Let its judgment for others be judgment upon itself. Truly the supreme court is the keeper of the lights of freedom, perhaps of civilization. May those lights never be dimmed. May their bright and shining effulgence ever reflect the greatness and the glory of the supreme court and the greatness and glory of the United States of America."

It's Conference Month Again

Summer school opens next Monday. The first of the conventions of Iowa's June—the conference month—is scheduled to begin next Thursday.

We're off again on the university's summer series of progressive get-togethers for the advancement of education in all its phases.

They're not doing that in Europe this summer, to any great degree.

As in past summers, national leaders in their respective fields will come to this campus to lead discussions of trends in physical education, physics, child development and parent education. That's just during this first month. There'll be others later on.

It will be a full summer for the thousands of students who will enroll, and for the thousands of visitors who will attend the summer conferences.

Each summer finds the worth of each of Iowa's conferences multiplied. This one will be no exception.

Venezuela, a Spot For Fifth Columnists

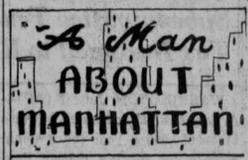

WASHINGTON — In private session with the house military affairs committee, straight-sighted General Marshall, the chief of staff, designated as the chief fifth-column danger spot in Latin America, a nation which has not been publicly mentioned—Venezuela.

The Germans have a military interest there in the most essential of all allied war supplies, oil. The allies have been drawing heavily on their own British and French holdings there since Mussolini has been acting up in the Mediterranean and forcing them to extend their line of Mesopotamian supply around the Cape of Good Hope. If the Germans wanted to strike a blow at the allies in this hemisphere, the Venezuelan-Colombian oil fields and related refining outlet in the Netherlands island of Aruba are the major spots in which they could do most damage.

The properties are protected only by company police inadequate even to cope with organized saboteurs. The allies landed small marine units at the Aruban refineries when Holland fell, but there are no other forces anywhere near this strategically valuable area, except ours in the canal zone.

THE NATIONAL GUARD

Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to cloak himself with authority to

Fulton Street's Fish Market

BY GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A hard-bitten fishing schooner, fresh from the Newfoundland Banks, thrust her nose into a berth along the South Street waterfront just after midnight this morning, and a landing crew went to work on her cargo. She carried 34,000 pounds of codfish in her hold.

A stone's throw away lay another schooner — this one from the Caribbean. To the left lay another, and another, from the Georgian Banks, from everywhere that fish are caught by men who dip down into the sea with nets.

These fish were being hauled to the oldest fish market in the western hemisphere—a market that has been open for business every morning for more than 200 years. This is the famed call out the national guard sounded rather reasonable and unwarlike as Marshall explained it to the committee in confidence. He assumed these and other Latin-American nations might find their own forces inadequate to cope with possible local disturbances and, therefore, might be expected to call upon the United States for minor military assistance. Most Latin armies are mere police forces. In that case detachments would have to be sent from the regular army, and the national guard would merely be called up to take the assignments of the departing troops in this country.

Marshall did not go beyond that explanation, but reports in other quarters expanded the suggestion. Competent diplomatic sources have heard Mr. Roosevelt has a personal understanding with Brazil whereby United States military help could be called for. This is neither confirmed nor denied by officials here.

CO-WORKING LATIN

Other Latin danger spots are mostly political and could have no immediate military interest to Germany or Italy. They are Montevideo, French Guiana, and southern Mexico. These cooperate least with the United States. The nations which have been working closely with us are Brazil, Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador and the Central American republics.

NAZI GUNS TO BRITAIN

Germany has been shipping field guns to the government of Brazil lately under a contract signed before the war started. The shipments have been routed through Italy.

Hitler even under the pressure of war must have amazing stores of material. An international arms salesman here recently told government authorities the Germans actually tried to sell the British machine guns on the eve of the war. The British had a contract with Skoda before the German occupation and continued to receive guns from the Czechoslovakian works after German occupation. When contract deliveries were completed the German management of Skoda wrote the British admiralty and suggested more guns could be furnished if the British wanted any.

CREDITS FOR ALLIES

The obscure loophole in the RFC bill through which the administration may circumvent the Johnson act and give credits to the allies is turning out to be as large as a trans-Atlantic tunnel.

Through it this government could give the French and British ultimate credits of over $500,000,000 to a billion dollars. Certainly $200,000,000 could be thus advanced in a year without over-exertion.

The last paragraph of the complicated bill authorizes payment in advance on purchases of raw material futures to be delivered perhaps six months, a year, or more hence. The money could be spent immediately by the allies to purchase either farm products or manufactured materials in this country.

Thus this is credit bearing no interest. It can be advanced to any foreign government, and in quantities limited only by the unlimited domestic borrowing powers of RFC.

Fulton Street fish market, where Al Smith worked as a boy. More than one million and five hundred thousand pounds of fish are delivered to the Fulton Street market every day. That's a lot of fish. These fish are Florida mackerel and cod; they are swordfish and flounder; they are lobster and butterfish and whitefish.

To handle these fish 2,000 men are at work in their stalls every morning before 5 o'clock. These men are employees of the New York Fishmongers association. The market itself is owned by the city of New York. Two huge stall-like buildings, a hundred yards each in length, house this vast store of sea food. These buildings are leased to the Fishmongers association by the city.

It is from this point that the scallops and sole, like those you bought today, go out to thousands of retailers all over the city and all over the metropolitan area.

Salt water fish aren't the only ones handled here, for sweet water fish from the great lakes, and great steel-head salmon from the Oregon rivers, still silver and gleaming, are brought in by boat and by train.

There's a funny story about the mackerel. They used to be known as Spanish mackerel. But after the Spanish Civil war people began to boycott most goods with a Spanish name. Fishermen promptly began calling them "Florida" mackerel—and the sales at once mounted to their normal level.

The most impressionable item about the Fulton street menage to strangers is the odor. People say they can smell Fulton street six months after being there. Perhaps that is true. Men who work there tell me they never notice the smell of fish until they are away from it. Then they are uncomfortable; life doesn't seem normal without the heavy, pungent odors that are a part of their daily surroundings.

The market itself operates largely on a warehouse basis. When the doors are flung open and the buyers crowd around and bid for lots. One buyer may be interested solely in butterfish. Another in shellfish. There is a department that features gigantic turtles, and, curiously enough, most turtles in New York wind up in Chinatown. Turtles are known to grow to very old ages. There is a belief among Chinese that if they eat enough turtle flesh they may live to become very old too. At least that's the story.

OLD MAN OF THE SEA, 1940

A Woman With Real Friends
BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP)—Material proof of her popularity faces Mrs. Ruth Ogden every time she takes a step about her home.
Mrs. Ogden was forced to enter a hospital for a few days, and while she was there, a number of her friends pooled their resources and ordered a $600 remodeling job on her house.
Forty-one carpenters with days off appeared at her home one morning, tore the roof off, replaced it with a new one, and cleaned up the yard by 1:30 p.m. the same day.

Nine painters and a squad of paper hangers went to work. Women placed new curtains and shades. Lumbermen furnished materials and other friends furnished labor.
Mrs. Ogden didn't recognize the place when she returned.
Hen-Fruit Tree
HOLDENVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Virgil D. Montgomery's little red hen built her nest on a limb 15 feet off the ground. The Montgomery family climbs the tree to gather eggs.

Iowa Alumnus, Class of 1880, Dies in Duluth

One of the University of Iowa's oldest alumni, John Jenswold of Duluth, Minn., pioneer attorney and civic leader, graduate of the 1880 law class here, died Sunday in a Duluth hospital.

Jenswold had been ill only six weeks, the announcement said. Burial rites were held from the Masonic temple there Tuesday.

He had retired from law January, 1936, after practicing in Duluth since 1888. He opened his first law office in Emmetsburg and later practiced in Sioux Falls, S. D.

Born in 1857 in Albany, Wis., the son of Norwegian emigrant parents, Jenswold was the oldest of eight children. At eight years of age when his family moved westward, he drove a team of oxen that crossed the Mississippi river on Prairie du Chien ferry.

Jenswold's family settled on a farm in northwestern Iowa where he grew up. He attended state normal school at Winona, Minn., and later by teaching in country schools was able to earn money to attend Luther college at Decorah and the law school here.

Widely known as a trial lawyer, he had argued more than 240 cases before the Minnesota supreme court. In 1908 he was discussed as candidate for governor.

Surviving are his widow, three children, John D. Jenswold and Mrs. C. A. Dahle, Duluth, Henry C. Jenswold, San Antonio, Texas and two sisters in Emmetsburg.

Prof. E. C. Mabie Announces University Theater Program For 1940 Summer Session

Six Plays Scheduled To Be Produced From June 24 to July 29

Productions scheduled at the university theater for the summer session were announced last night by Prof. Edward C. Mabie, director.

Readings for parts in the six plays, to be produced one each week during the summer session program, will begin at 2 o'clock today in the university theater, Professor Mabie said. "Students will be organized in a producing company and will devote themselves to intensive work in practical theater operation. Students will be called upon to take part in any or all phases of the work of a producing theater," the director said.

First Play

First play of the summer season will be "Don Juan" by Moliere June 24. Other productions in the coming series are "You Can't Take It With You" by Moss Hart and George Kaufmann July 1, "American Landscape" by Elmer Rice July 8, "Coriolanus" by William Shakespeare July 15, "Wingless Victory" by Maxwell Anderson July 22 and "Tobias and the Angel" by James Bridie July 29.

Visiting faculty members in the theater this summer will be Thomas Wood Stevens and Frederick McConnell who are active in community play work in the United States.

Twenty-nine courses for undergraduates and graduate students are scheduled on the summer theater program.

Three Women Take Summer Camp Positions

Three university women from Iowa City have accepted counselor positions in summer camps for the vacation season, it was announced by Prof. Marjorie Camp of the women's physical education department.

BOARD AT YOUDE'S INN Special Rate

The BOOK PARADE

● HEADLINING AMERICA . . . 100 of The Best News and Feature Stories of 1938-1939. Published by the Dryden Press, New York, at $1.50.

● FRANK LUTHER MOTT, the editor . . . with the assistance of a board of cooperating editors. Published in trade and text editions, the latter containing study suggestions by Winston Allard.

● THE REVIEWER . . . James Fox.

Prof. Frank Luther Mott has been honored many times for his original works. But insignificant emphasis has been placed on the extensive industry he has shown as an editor. Prolific as he has been as historian and fiction writer, Professor Mott will find his name remembered in addition to the volumes of best news stories that he has been editing since 1933.

The 1938-1939 edition of best news stories, which carries the title "Headlining America" stands out as an important historical record of two of the most active news years American newspapers have experienced.

The fact that these years were the years of big news breaks and of some of the finest exhibitions by newsmen of the skill of journalism, combined with excellent editing and typography to draw attention to the volume.

Professor Mott sensed, before the publication of "Headlining America," that this book would be more than an interesting memento for working newspapermen. He says in the book's own preface what we might otherwise have attempted to say.

"Matchless in its reflection of the world's shifting scene is the American newspaper," comments Professor Mott in these prefatory remarks.

"War, Violence, crime, disasters; these bulk large on front pages. But there are also the stories of peaceful everyday life—the humors of the city streets, the interesting phases of American living.

"This collection of good newspaper stories offers more than disjointed bits of journalism. It has some unity as a composite picture of our America—its struggles, its successes and failures, its comedy, its human quality, its half-fearful watching of the foreign scene."

Professor Mott is right. "Headlining America" is not just "a treasury of Americana." It is a genuine contribution to the history of the times.

If these were just the prize-winning writings of 1938 and 1939 "Headlining America" would mean little to the readers who were not journalists. But the editor has seen to it that every epic news event of those years is represented by the story which best covered it. The result is a year-book that will stir nostalgic memories for the casual reader, and will serve as a manual for that great class of readers who like to synthesize present day happenings into recent history.

For the same reasons that you read the memoirs of war correspondents and the editorial books which analyze the day-by-day scenes of the entire world, you will read "Headlining America." Containing as it does the actual stories which moved the nation emotionally at the time of the great news breaks, the book pulsates with the life those stories had at the time of their original appearance.

The editor has preceded each news story with a brief statement about the author and a description of how the news was made, the circumstances involved in reporting the event in question.

The text edition of the book contains suggestions for study by Winston Allard of the school of journalism which are intended primarily for students of journalism. If you should purchase a copy of the book, let us recommend the edition with the suggestions. At a time when newspaper readers take a special interest in judging the news for themselves, these study suggestions will assist you materially in sharpening your wits for newspaper reading.

Reprinted in "Headlining America" are the best stories from the typewriters of such famous war correspondents as Norman Deuel, Leland Stowe, H. R. Knickerbocker and Elmer Peterson.

You'll find the most thrilling accounts of Orson Welles' "Invasion from Mars," recollections of "Wragg Way" Corrigan and Cedric Adams' story of how he "bobbled" his chat with the king and queen of England.

There are accounts of the Atlantic coast hurricane, the wreck of the streamliner, the Samoan clipper disaster and the Squalus rescue. The very topics of the stories read like the blurb on a pulp magazine cover, and all recall America's most exciting days.

Some of the finest of American essays and sketches have appeared in newspapers and ordinarily (in spite of actual literary excellence) are forgotten by all except the men who wrote them. You'll find most of the very best of those published in 1938-1939 between the covers of "Headlining America."

For exciting, intriguing reading we recommend "Headlining America." A beautiful book typographically, "Headlining America" is one of the vital books of 1940.

We hope earnestly that its importance is recognized, that more than the students of journalism discover the vitality of "Headlining America."

Honor Guests Again!

Anderson, Kinnick To Speak to Register Salesmen Monday

Dr. Eddie Anderson, football coach of the year, and Nile Kinnick, all-American halfback, will be honor guests at the 11th annual convention of Des Moines Register and Tribune carrier salesmen in the capital city Monday.

Kinnick and Dr. Anderson will attend first the brief business meeting of the carrier salesmen in the coliseum there in the morning where they will speak briefly to more than 4,000 Iowa boys.

With the carriers and other guests, they will watch a special performance of three-ring Barnes-Carruthers circus.

At noon Kinnick and the local football coach will ride in the mile-long parade through Des Moines' loop.

Snead, Little, Horton Smith Tied for National Open Lead

By GAYLE TALBOT
CANTERBURY GOLF CLUB, CLEVELAND, June 7 (AP)—Wind, rain and tournament jitters proved a little too much for Sam Snead today and the boy from the mountain country fell back into a three-way tie with Lawson Little and Horton Smith with 141 at the half-way stage of the National Open golf championship.

Sam, whose 67 in yesterday's opening round broke all Open records, was the big show today and he did his best. A tremendous crowd followed his every stroke and nearly made it impossible for him to play several holes. A sudden, violent windstorm struck him on the fourth hole, and at the short 17th he took a disastrous five to finish with a 74, two strokes over par.

Thus the grand championship of golf tightened up like a kettle drum. Little, playing around early before the storm blew up, shot himself a brilliant 69 to catch Snead. Horton Smith, playing late after the elements had subsided, produced a 72—even par—to make it a trio at 141.

Frank Walsh, the veteran, who still wears sky-blue knickers, stroked the only other 69 of the day to land all by himself in the second notch at 142. Ben Hogan and Sam Parks, Jr., were deadlocked at 143. Ralph Guldahl, Vic Ghezzi, Dutch Harrison and Leonard Dodson were a quartet at 144.

Among this select group, if matters run true to form, will be found the winner when the final, back-breaking 36 holes have been played tomorrow. Sixty-six players who shot 153 or better for the first two rounds qualified for the finish, but it is extremely doubtful that any of those over 144 tonight will catch the leaders. Little's name was on many lips tonight. The big fellow, who won two American and British amateur championships a few years ago, said he had "that old feeling" again. His 69 today was a masterpiece, and when Little is in that humor he is hard to get along with.

Smith, one of the last of the stars to come in, had an excellent chance to take the leadership alone. He needed only par scores on the last three holes to finish ahead of Snead and Little by a stroke, but he tightened and took a 4 on the short 17th, the same hole that blasted Snead's hope of finishing ahead for the second straight day.

Canterbury was much harder today than on the first round. Outside of the 69s by Walsh and Little, the only exceptional scores were 70s by Lloyd Mangrum and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison. Many of the others soared high and such "name" stars as Harry Cooper, Jimmy Thomson, Bud Ward, Jimmy Demaret, Clayton Heafner and Johnny Goodman failed to qualify for the final 36.

Demaret, pride of the winter circuit, and Heafner, the long-hitted from Linville, N. C., tore up their cards and withdrew in disgust. Demaret played out the round in 81 blows and then refused to sign his card, but Heafner simply quit in a hedge when he got tangled up in a hedge on the 16th and couldn't get out. They said they didn't like the hole if his ball had been permitted to roll on under the automobiles and other obstructions around the club house.

When the storm ended, as suddenly as it had begun, Sam recovered nobly on the back nine. He picked up three birdies in rapid order and again was even with par. And then he struck that terrible 17th, missing the green with his drive, flubbing his second and doing practically everything except falling flat on his face.

Apparently Snead is destined ever so often to have a hole like that hideous 72nd at Philadelphia last year, when he took perhaps the most notorious eight strokes in golf history.

Yanks Score Twice in Ninth To Beat Feller and Indians

Bob Embarrassed When Selkirk Steals Home in 2nd Inning

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—The world champion Yankees first embarrassed and then defeated the fiery fastballer, Bob Feller, today, scoring two runs in the ninth inning to overtake the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 4.

The Yankees started a big week day crowd of 31,430, as well as the Indians, by stealing home against Feller in the second inning, and finally overwhelmed him with four singles in the fatal ninth.

The struggle was an exciting if erratic hurling duel matching Feller against Marvin Brewer and Bump Hadley of the Yanks, with the latter pair holding the Indians to five hits.

Cleveland's first hit was Hal Trosky's 14th home run in the second inning and three of the visitors' other blows were crowded into the third inning for three runs.

Meantime, Feller had his fast ball working well and received spectacular support. After giving up three runs in the first two frames, he steadied to hold the champs to two hits and one run until the ninth.

Feller's fault today, however was wobbliness with men on base. In the second inning he was caught flat-footed as George Selkirk, who had doubled and reached third on a fly, raced home while Feller went through his complicated windup.

In the seventh Joe Gordon walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Tom Henrich's pinch single. In the ninth Gordon singled and stole second, from where he scored the tying run on Babe Dahlgren's single. Then Frank Crosetti rapped a hit back of third and Red Rolfe lifted a single to short center for the winning run.

Wilkinson's Trims Bremer's In City Loop

Behind the fireball hurling of Ted Fay, Wilkinson Agency ran roughshod over Bremer's, 12 to 1, in the last game of the first week of play in the senior softball league yesterday evening on the university intramural field.

The win put Wilkinson in a first-place tie with Reich's, Junior Odd Fellows, and Iowa Supply, each with a record of one game won and no defeats.

Fay pitched steadily and well for Wilkinson, while his teammates hit often, capitalizing on numerous Bremer errors.

Bremer's bunched two of its five hits in the sixth to bring home its single counter.

Dodgers Beat Bucky Walters To End Win Streak at Nine

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

BY WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—Short, blocky Jimmy Dykes admits his White Sox will have a tough time finishing as high in the American league standings this year as last, which is a brave statement for a manager. Managers usually wouldn't admit the family cat on a rainy night, much less that their team isn't a world beater.

Oldest Player
Dykes is the oldest player on the active list in the majors. Since 1917 he has been bobbing around the diamonds, although in late years he gradually has been cutting down on personal appearances. Last year he was in only two games. This year he says he won't play at all, undoubtedly aware that a day might come when the fans would yell: "Run for your lives, the Dykes' bust."

"I still can run," he declares, "but I'm going on 44, and that's too old. I tell the boys to get out there and play the game and let me do the worrying for them."

Getting back to his original statement, the cigar-eating pitcher says that his team is as good as that of last year, when it finished fourth, but he points out that the league as a whole is stronger.

Cincy Hurler Drops 4-2 Tilt

CINCINNATI, June 7 (AP)—The indescribable Brooklyn Dodgers got their vengeance on the Cincinnati Reds today with a 4 to 2 11-inning victory that lifted Brooklyn into the National league lead and snapped Bucky Walters' unbroken string of pitching triumphs at nine.

It was here at Crosley field on May 1 that the Reds stopped Brooklyn after the Dodgers had won their first nine games of the season. They batted Hugh Casey out of the box that day and made the Dodgers forget for the moment Tex Carleton's no-hitter of the day before.

Pressbox Pickups

BY OSCAR HARGRAVE

What would a left-handed Dizzy Dean be like?

It sounds a trifle silly perhaps, but such wouldn't be outside the realm of baseball possibilities and you can take that from Iowa Baseball Coach Otto Vogel, who figured the diamond sport close enough to take two of the last three Big Ten titles and who will be a member of the Ray Doane baseball school staff this year.

Vogel's slant on the great Dizzy can be summed up something like this—Dizzy has tremendous natural baseball ability, but his right arm is apparently done for. With Dizzy's inherent abilities taken into consideration, along with the fact that his left arm hasn't suffered, there would be a chance for a switch in pitching arms.

Such couldn't be done this season, but Vogel thinks that if Dizzy were to spend half an hour a day during the fall and winter months on throwing left-handed he might be a fair southpaw by spring. The total effectiveness of such a move is perhaps doubtful, but, as long as Dizzy seems to be drowning anyway, there seems no reason why he should confine his straw clutching to one arm, and a painful limb at that.

As proof that changes in throwing arms can be made, Vogel can cite at least one instance where it happened, and successfully, in the big leagues. As a youth, before he went to the Chicago Cubs, he changed arms himself one summer after an injury. Of course, he admits, he wasn't a pitcher and his biggest difficulty was in remembering which hand the glove was on.

Vogel, incidentally, started his baseball career as a southpaw, but changed over at the age of nine.

"There was an ex-big leaguer coaching us," says Otto, "and he told me there weren't any southpaws in the majors."

Looking around for a few more examples, we can think of Nile Kinnick. He never threw a pass left-handed in a game, but the Iowa all-American could flip the pigskin with either mitt. In fact, there is more than one person who thinks that if Nile's right arm had gone bad, he could still have been just as great a passer, after considerable practice of course. The left-handed passing experiment started after Kinnick had made a name for himself as a right-handed tosser.

Back to Dean's case, the change would take plenty of work, his right arm might yet recover, and again, it would be only a chance, but that chance might be worth taking for the pitching genius who once staked his arm against a world's baseball championship and both won and lost.

Yanks To Win

"The Yankees still look like the champions, but I don't think they're going to have quite as easy a time," he says. "They have the pitching, the hitting, and the defense."

"I like Detroit for second. Why? Well, the Tigers have two fine pitchers in Newsum and Bridges, and they have plenty of power with York and Greenberg in there all the time. They're a better team than they were last year, when they finished fifth."

"The Red Sox haven't any pitching, and except for Feller the Indians haven't either. I know that Milnar has won seven games, but I can't see him as that good a pitcher. And Cleveland hasn't the power either. Trosky is their only dangerous hitter."

"Our trouble? Pitching. That and lack of power. Our only real power hitter is Julius Solters, and he's been out for a month with a charley horse and I don't know when he'll be back. Ted Lyons is a good old reliable on the mound, and I'd rate Johnny Rigney next, although we never know what kind of a game he'll turn in. He has all the stuff in the world, and sometimes they can't touch him. At other times they knock him all over the place."

Miracle Man
Dykes was something of a miracle man in piloting what everyone considered a so-so team to fourth place last year. He attributes the success to hustle, and says the team this year also has that attribute.

"We're giving them all a battle," he asserts, "but it takes power and pitching to win consistently these days. We haven't got either. The Red Sox have been winning on power, but lack of the pitching eventually will tell on them. That's why I like Detroit to finish ahead of them."

Dykes is not taking a defeatist attitude in saying that his team will be lucky to finish in the first division. He is just admitting that facts are facts, and anything checking over the rosters of the sons of thousands of households for military training. His remark on military service was made in an offhand fashion at his regular Friday press conference. But it came so unhesitatingly in reply to the question which prompted it and was so unequivocal that many were drawn inescapably to the conclusion that the chief executive had been studying the possibilities of such a course of action. Mr. Roosevelt was asked for comment on an editorial appearing today in the New York Times emphatically urging compulsory military training. His answer was that he had read the first paragraph and liked it very much. The paragraph in question follows: "The time has come when in the interest of self-protection, the American people should at once adopt a national system of universal compulsory military training. We say this as a newspaper which has never believed in the wisdom of such a policy in time of peace. We say it because the logic of events drives us remorselessly to this conclusion." Late in the day, the war department announced that, at Ford's request, a pursuit plane of the latest type would be flown to the Ford airport on Monday, with an engineer to explain it to Ford and the men of his own engineering department. Ford recently said that if free from governmental interference he could produce 1,000 planes of standard type daily, in about six months. This he followed up with a request to the war department that it send him a plane of the type most needed. He also sent assurances of his support for the national defense program.

Tax--

was the imposition of the higher surtaxes. All the increases would apply to 1940 incomes on which taxes will be due next March 15. The 10 per cent. supertax would apply, however, only to the five years beginning with 1940. As an illustration of the effect of the increases, Cooper said that under existing law, a married man with no dependents and a $3,000 net earned income pays $8. Under the proposed rates he would pay $30.80. Exemptions Reduced Under existing law, this taxpayer would get a $2,500 exemption because of his married status, plus a further deduction of 10 per cent of his earned income. This would bring his taxable income down to $200. The government would collect 4 per cent of this, or $8. Under the proposed law, he would get a $2,000 exemption for being married, plus the 10 per cent deduction for earned income. Therefore, his taxable income would be $700. Four per cent of this would be $28. To this would be added the supertax of 10 per cent of $28, or $2.80. Thus the total tax bill would be $30.80. Cooper explained that the 10 per cent supertax is computed on the basis of the amount of tax due under the higher rates and is added to that total. For instance, if a taxpayer owes $40 under the new rates, he would have to add $4 to that as a result of the supertax. The stiffer rate increases were recommended on the surtaxes, the highest being one of 13 per cent on surtax net income in the brackets between $44,000 and $50,000. At present, the surtax on the $44,000-$45,000 bracket is 27 per cent and the total surtax on the higher amount would be $6,350. Under the new bill, the surtax would be 40 per cent and the total surtax $9,780. Estimated Yield Cooper said the estimated yield from the various proposed changes was as follows: Supertaxes and Increased Excise Taxes $652,000,000 Corp. tax inc., 1 pct 70,000,000 Tax increase 7,000,000 Lowered exemp. on personal incomes 252,000,000 Supertax on yield from lowered exemp. 25,000,000 Total $1,006,000,000 A meeting of the full house ways and means committee was scheduled for tomorrow morning to consider the subcommittee's recommendations, and members predicted they would be speedily approved. Chairman Doughton (D - NC) said he hoped to get the bill before the house by Tuesday and send it to the senate by mid-week. Three Petitions for Settlement Submitted in District Court

Summerwill Offers To Settle, Compromise Receivership Dealings

Three petitions for settlement of three allegations filed in district court during the past year involving Ben S. Summerwill, former examiner in charge of three Iowa City bank receiverships, were submitted in district court yesterday for approval.

The applications were filed by Floyd A. Philbrick, assistant attorney general, and Roscoe Thomas, special assistant attorney general, for W. D. Bates, receiver for the three banks.

Bates states in his petitions that Summerwill has offered to settle and compromise the allegations involving dealings in the receiverships of the Farmers Loan and Trust company, the Johnson County Savings bank and the Iowa City Savings bank during the time he was examiner in charge.

Hearing to Be June 17

Monday, June 17, was set as the time for hearing on two of the petitions by Acting Judge W. W. Scott of Davenport, who has held hearings on previous receivership matters, and Judge Harold D. Evans set the same day for hearing on the third application.

In one of the proposals, Summerwill agrees to pay the Farmers Loan and Trust company $10,000 in settlement for transactions involving the sale of the Iowa Apartment building to a company in which Bates previously claimed Summerwill had an interest. Hearing on this will be at 9 a. m. June 17.

According to the second proposal filed yesterday, Bates states that Summerwill is offering to pay the Johnson County Savings bank receivership $1,000 for a Packard automobile, one of four cars accepted in payment of indebtedness of the Simmons Motor company, Orville and Mattie Simmons, to the receivership. This proposal will come up for hearing at 1:30 June 17.

Will Settle Rental Charge

The third offer of settlement, also to be heard at 1:30 June 17, involves a claim for rent for a dwelling property owned by the Iowa City Savings bank receivership. In this Summerwill proposes to pay the receivership a sum of $840 representing a $10 per month additional rent for the property for the 84 months it was used by Summerwill.

According to the petition, Summerwill has already paid the receiver the sum of $2,940 as rent for the dwelling for the 84 months, this being a monthly rate of $35. The receiver states in the proposal for settlement that the additional sum will constitute a fair and reasonable rent for the property. Bates recommends in the petition that the court accept the settlement as offered.

Catholic Group Meets Monday

St. Rita's court of the Catholic order of Women Foresters will meet for a regular business session at 7:30 p. m. Monday in the parlors of St. Wenceslaus church. Mrs. John Mattes will be in charge of the entertainment after the meeting.

700 See County Boy Scouts Perform in Annual Round-Up

More than 300 Johnson county Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts participated in the annual scout round-up held last night on Shrader field. An estimated 600 to 700 spectators were present to watch the scouts perform in their games and scouting activities.

Incomplete results of the meet were available but the compilation of ribbon awards to troops qualifying in several events was not available last night.

In the tug-of-war contest three troops placed. They were the Sharon Center troop 12, the Iowa City St. Wenceslaus Catholic church troop 15 and the American Legion post of Victor troop 26.

The Lone Tree business men's troop 17 was the only one to place in the signaling contest. They used the semaphore method.

The only successful scout in the fire-making contest was Gerald Schwimley of the Sharon Center troop 12 who made a fire in 40 seconds using the flint and steel method.

Troops placing in the chariot race were the Longfellow school

Fire Causes Estimated $35 Damage at Garage

Fire started by a lighted match thrown into a can of gasoline did an estimated $35 worth of damage at the Burkett-Updegraff Motor company shortly after 9 o'clock last night.

The ignited gasoline spread to the back tire of a car standing nearby destroying the tire and damaging the paint on the car.

Elmer F. Lenthe, sales manager at the garage, suffered burns on his hands in attempting to extinguish the blaze before firemen arrived.

Mrs. Spencer Elected Head Of Auxiliary

Other Officers Chosen At Final Meeting Of High School Group

1—MRS. SPENCER

Mrs. George Spencer was elected president for the coming year of the Iowa City high school music auxiliary at the final meeting of the group this term. The meeting was held in the junior high school auditorium.

Other officers elected last night include Mrs. Frank Burger, first vice-president; Mrs. W. J. Burney, second vice-president; Mrs. Dave Thomas, secretary, and Milo Novy, treasurer.

In addition to the election of officers, reports were given on the Red and White circus by J. J. Swamer, chairman of the event, and on the Iowa City high musicians' trip to the national music festival in St. Paul, Minn., by Superintendent Iver A. Opstad.

Largest Expenditure

Included in Mr. Opstad's report, the largest single expenditure exclusive of transportation costs, was $305 for entry fees. An entry fee of $1 per person per event was charged at the festival, he explained. He gave the group a brief review of the ratings received by the local musicians on the trip.

The auxiliary voted to buy the present band uniforms from the students who own them. In the fall a special committee will establish a new uniform fund.

Ethelbert Nevin To Be Honored By Stamp Issue

Ethelbert Nevin, composer of "Rosary" and other musical works, is to be honored by a new postage stamp to be placed on sale in Iowa City next Tuesday, it was announced yesterday.

The 10 cent stamp will bear the composer's portrait in the center with a circular border around the picture and the words, "United States Postage" written across the top. The general color is brown on a white background.

This is another in a series honoring American composers.

Work Progresses on New Iowa City Building Project

A hoisting tower has been erected beside the old Iowa City Savings bank building, above, as work progresses in demolishing the structure to replace it with a $100,000, three-story structure housing 30 offices and other concerns. Only a shell now remains of the building, most of the inside walls having been taken out. The large clock on the corner of the building has been taken off as well as all other outer adornments around the entrances. The new structure will be completed about Aug. 1, it has been announced. In addition to the 30 offices, the first floor of the new building will be occupied by the First Federal Savings and Loan association, the Welt agency and the Security Finance company. All of the present structure except some walls and the basement excavation will be demolished to make way for the new building.
