How Artist Views German Pincers on War Front

Admiralty Announces Sinking of Armed Ship

4 Men Killed When U-Boat Shells Vessel

Carinthia Is Second British Armed Cruiser Sunk by Germans

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—The sinking of the armed merchant cruiser Carinthia—a 20,277-ton former Cunard-White star liner popular with Americans as a world cruise ship before the war—was announced tonight by the admiralty.

It was the largest merchant ship yet sunk by enemy action since the war started.

Two officers and two seamen had been killed when the ship, one of 50 merchant cruisers in the British fleet, was torpedoed by a U-boat. Other officers and the crew were saved. In peacetime the crew was 405.

More than 200 of the crew were landed at a British port by a warship tonight. Another 100 were expected on a second rescue ship.

The Carinthia remained afloat for some time after being torpedoed but that two warships failed in an attempt to tow her to port.

The admiralty did not say where the Carinthia, a twin-screw vessel built in 1925 and long in trans-Atlantic service, had been attacked.

The Germans, however, a few hours before, announced a 14,000-ton auxiliary cruiser had been sunk off the northwest coast of Ireland.

The Carinthia was the second British armed merchant cruiser sunk since the war started.

The Rawalpindi, 16,697 tons, was lost Nov. 23 with 280 of her personnel after an attack by the German pocket battleship Deutschland off Ireland.

Earlier an official admiralty statement had observed that "the balance of naval strength in favor of the allies is now far greater than at the outbreak of the war."

On the other side of the book, the British marked down new bombing success in the air: an attack on German troop concentrations at Abbeville throughout Friday and Friday night and on "military objectives" in northwest Germany.

"Many reconnaissances were carried out and on the information obtained a large number of bombing sorties were undertaken," the air ministry communique said.

"Line of communication, ammunition and petrol dumps, troop concentrations and columns of armored fighting vehicles were repeatedly attacked."

The royal air force destroyed 17 German planes yesterday, the communique said, while 13 British planes were missing.

Rumania Calls More Reserves In Mobilization

BUCHAREST, June 8 (AP)—Rumania, with more than 1,500,000 men already under arms in the greatest peacetime mobilization in her history, called up five more classes of reserves today in a preparedness measure reported to be connected with Italy's possible entry into the European war.

The war ministry did not disclose how many men were affected, but diplomatic quarters estimated they numbered at least 100,000.

Further calls to the colors were expected next week.

(Although Rumanian dispatches placed the number already under arms at more than 1,500,000, tabulations of previous calls indicated it was probably nearer 2,000,000.)

Fearful of involvement in the war and of the possibility that Soviet Russia might seize the opportunity to regain Bessarabia, Rumania has been operating virtually on a full war-time basis for many months.

Italy Threatens Dire Results

Warns That 5 English Cities Will Be Bombed For Each Italian City Attacked

ROME, June 8 (AP)—A pointed warning that five English cities would be bombed for every Italian city attacked by allied bombers in the event Italy enters the war was published today by the Rome newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia while foreign observers were expressing belief Italy would enter the conflict next week.

Il Giornale d'Italia's editor is Verginio Gayda, long recognized as Premier Mussolini's "editorial mouthpiece."

Reports have circulated here that the British and French plan to bombard Italian centers if this nation entered the war against them.

To these reports, the authoritative newspaper said: "For every Italian city bombed five English cities would suffer the same treatment."

Bombardment of Rome would be the signal for "similar but greater bombardment of London," the newspaper added.

However, Rome was considered here to be fairly safe from attack, with the Italians prepared to make it an open city by removing government offices, troops and aircraft.

Some observers heard that an Italian attack on their first secret objective would come in the early hours next Monday but a source considered reliable indicated it probably would be later, possibly Thursday or Friday night.

Although only Mussolini and possibly his axis partner, Adolf Hitler, are supposed to know the date of the expected entry into the war, confidence that Italy has closed her last week as a non-belligerent nation in this war was based on impressions in Italian circles as well as war preparations which appear to be complete.

Compulsory Military Training Bill Ready Soon, Adler Says

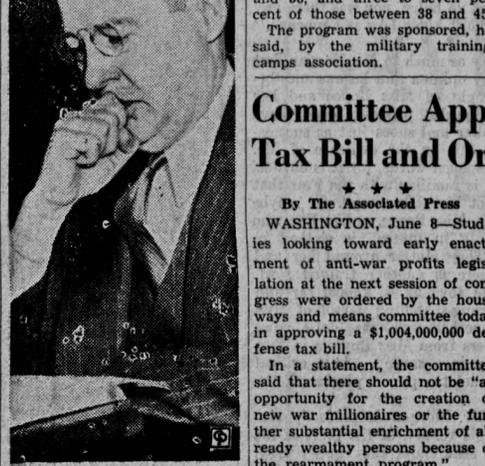

Flood Waters In Nebraska Near Normal

WAUNETA, Neb., June 8 (AP)—Flood waters of Frenchman creek receded from stores and homes of this ravaged community tonight as the third crest in two days moved toward the Republican river, which was back near normal and ready to carry the high water with minimum difficulty.

Reports were received here of a fourth head of water coming in from the west, but the volume was relatively small and Chief of Police W. M. Kenney said it is not expected to cause additional damage.

Kenney asserted the residents of the 100 homes inundated would be taken care of by the community and merchants here hoped to start cleaning up their mud-filled stores tomorrow. The entire business district twice ran three to four feet deep with water from the rain-swollen creek.

French Retreat Before Greatest Offensive in Military History

60 Infantry Divisions, 7 Armored Units Thrown Into Terrific Mechanized Onslaught South of the Somme

PARIS, June 8 (AP)—The French were falling back tonight along nearly 60 miles of the front but still fighting against the German offensive on Paris—facing the strongest attack of the war and the most massive mechanized onslaught in military history.

The Germans threw 60 infantry divisions and seven armored divisions—more than 1,000,000 men and 3,500 tanks—into the assault south of the Somme.

This mighty push reached its peak in the center of the front, where reserves were brought up in the Oise valley—the route to Paris—and hurled into the battle in the region of Roye and Noyon, in an area 48 miles north of this capital.

In this sector alone the Germans were estimated to have used half a million men. Starting at dawn, after dive bombers, artillery and tanks had opened the way, the Nazi infantry charged, each man holding the shoulder of the man before him.

The French were outnumbered in infantry.

North of the capital the French withdrew for the second successive day. The general fall-back was called a "retirement maneuver," and a military spokesman declared the main line remained unbroken.

The Nazis also struck a tremendous blow on the French right (east) flank and succeeded in establishing a foothold on the south bank of the Aisne river. In that sector, the French were counter-attacking bitterly.

German pressure diminished tonight on the extreme left (west) flank, where the Bresle river blocked their infantry. A tank column of 200 to 300 which penetrated south to Forges-les-Eaux was reported being pounded to bits by French artillery and cannon-firing planes.

The battle raged with varying intensity all along the new, shortened 110-mile front from the sea to the Aisne.

Military authorities not given to exaggeration called the battle frankly "the greatest of all time." The number of tanks used almost doubled those employed in the battle of the Meuse, when the Germans broke through to the sea.

On the central sector of the front—running nearly 60 miles from Aumale on the Bresle to Noyon on the Oise—the Nazis sent wave after wave of machines and men smashing against the French lines. German losses were reported by the French high command to be "enormous"—but still they came.

The French clung to the support points of the Weygand line on the rolling hills and in the scattered woods of the battlefield, pouring fire into the tanks with their artillery.

The advance guards had fallen back yesterday under General Maxime Weygand's orders and the movement continued tonight after French frontline positions had been swamped under the attack waves.

But still ahead of the Germans stretched a field of barriers all (See RETREAT, Page 5)

American Manufacturers Turn To Large-Scale War Production

Survey Shows Plants Expanded For Armaments

NEW YORK, June 8—Shifting from the manufacture of peaceful gadgets to fighting machines, America's industry has embarked on large-scale plant expansion and adaptation of factories to war needs, a nation-wide survey showed today.

Projects under construction and in prospect to handle home defense and increased allied purchases will result in expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars for materials, workers and machines, the survey indicated.

Expansion Spectacular
Propelled by allied buying, actual war industry expansion has been most spectacular in airplane and motor manufacturing. Some plants have tripled capacity in the past year or so. Others are pushing new expansion, either started or on the drafting boards.

Gathering momentum to the cadence of the Nazi blitzkrieg tempo in the low countries and France, war orders are spilling into munitions, textiles, tanks, automotive equipment, guns, explosives, chemicals and have forced a start on the greatest war plant expansion in the United States since 1914-18.

Considering the administration's $5,000,000,000 defense program and the race to lend material aid to the allies, financial circles regard the current expansion as merely in the opening stage.

Huge Construction Outlay

Waldo G. Bowman, editor of the "Engineering News-Record," estimated Washington's defense plans alone would call for construction outlay of about $500,000,000, including air bases.

Much more may be spent, he said, for industrial plants, either with private capital or government loans. Investment bankers insist there is plenty of private capital available for factory expansion, providing arrangement is made for rapid charge-offs of war facilities. President Roosevelt has indicated public funds would be available, too.

Consignment of 50 Navy Planes Destined for Allies Will Make Final Flight Over United States

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 8 (AP)—Before another sunset, the first consignment of 50 navy planes destined for the allies are expected to complete their final flight over United States territory en route to the western battlefield.

Poised tonight at the Buffalo airport, where they were concentrated on short notice as the navy department announced in Washington that they were being turned back to the manufacturer for release to the allies, the ships awaited orders for the takeoff to the Canadian border, to be hauled across and delivered to the dominion government for shipment overseas.

The two-seater land type bi-planes, flown here from a half dozen United States naval reserve bases, are one to three years old and are considered "surplus" by the navy, which announced they will be replaced by new bombers.

Policy of Silence

Officials of the Curtis aeroplane division of Curtiss-Wright, as well as naval reserve officers and representatives of the allied purchasing commission, maintained their policy of silence.

An anonymous but reliable source indicated the planes, radio-equipped, probably will "fly the beam" direct to Boston for refueling, then proceed to Houlton, Me., on the New Brunswick border, for delivery to the Canadian government—the procedure followed in previous transfer of warplanes for use of the allies.

The warplanes' bright silver finish has been replaced by a drab camouflage. Takeoff of the first flight, originally scheduled for today, was delayed because of last-minute orders for adjustments to modernize the ships.

College Coeds Shun Careers For Motherhood

EVANSTON, Ill., June 8 (AP)—The college coed of 1940 is shunning a "career" for marriage and motherhood.

This conclusion was reported in an interview today by Mrs. Ruth O. McCann, psychologist and counselor of women at Northwestern university.

She described the choice of marriage and motherhood instead of a career as tremendously more popular with the coeds of today than with those of the last generation.

"Twenty years ago as a result over the overemphasis of the feminist movement," she said, "women thought in terms of careers."

"Today very few young women have professional ambitions. Most of them are interested in the problem of how to marry as soon as possible in the face of financial difficulties, and how to plan for a family."

Bee Swarm Chases Boy to Death Under Wheels of Street Car

COUNCIL BLUFFS, June 8 (AP)—A swarm of bees chased 11-year-old Vernon Turner to his death under the wheels of a street car late today.

He was walking home with his two brothers, Cecil, 13, and Donald, 10, and a cousin, Duane McCorsley. Cecil said the bees came from a tree the boys had been climbing.

Bernard E. Hopkins, operator of the tram car and the father of several youngsters, was near collapse after the accident.

"The boys were in back of some bushes in a hollow," he told authorities. "Suddenly I saw one run out. I couldn't help it."

The boy's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Turner.

War Does Not Stop Night Life

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—Gay old Piccadilly and Leicester Square are as silent as Limehouse in the seemingly dead mysterious city of war-time London, but behind the black-out life goes on in a blaze of lights to the rhythm of the latest American band music and the clink of glasses.

Boisterously blotting out tomorrow's grim possibilities, furloughed tommies back home from the bloody battle of Flanders are spending their precious hours in a variety of indoor and outdoor amusements.

Despite the strict regulations necessitated by anti-air raid precautions, it's merely a matter of knowing which black-painted door to open, which heavy curtain to push aside and which corridor turn to take.

Outwardly, however, London presents an aspect in sharp contrast to the World War days when patriotism was expressed in shouting, singing, street parades and recruiting demonstrations with brass bands and illuminated trucks and flags.

Those were days of lavish spending by soldiers on leave with a determination to keep the cabaret footlights as well as the home fires burning.

Oscar Adche was appearing, then, in "Chu Chin Chow" which ran five years. Charles Hawtrey was playing in "Ambrose Applejohn's Adventure," while the famous Sir Herbert Tree packed houses in the historical drama "Drake."

With the German invasion of the low countries came the folding up of numerous London shows, but not all. Tonight's military minority, seeking that kind of amusement can find ballet, light opera, farce, comedy, girl

Forgotten Men

What Happens to Prisoners During Wartime?

BY GEORGE TURNER

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—To the miseries of war add the unhappy fate of the soldier who is made a prisoner.

Many thousands of prisoners of war have been taken by the German armies during the blitzkrieg in the low countries and northern France. The Berlin communiques do not estimate the total number.

Little so far has leaked through the censorship as to what happens to these fighting men, once they are taken back of the lines. They are forgotten men.

Vaguely, the public knows that the prisoners are interned in camps or put to work for the duration of the war, unless they are fortunate enough to be exchanged.

But, if conditions today approach those in Germany during the World war, many of these fighters are destined to go through a living hell. If they survive the physical and mental tortures until the end of the conflict and return to their homelands, they will carry haunting memories to the rest of their days.

Examinations of the narratives of Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and similar agencies during the World war reveals a shuddering picture of human suffering. James W. Gerard, who was the United States ambassador to Germany, devoted considerable space to this phase of the war in his book "My Four Years in Germany."

In fairness to Germany, however, it should be stated that conditions in a number of internment camps was good. Life was tolerable, for instance, in the great camps of Gottingen, in Hanover, and in Munster, where the prisoners were treated like soldiers.

3,000 DIE OF TYPHUS

But, the official records of neutral visitors at the camps at Mannheim, Cassel and other places show shocking conditions. At the latter camp, in one year (1915) 3,000 French and Russian soldiers died of typhus fever alone, where they had little or no medical attention.

The typical German prison camp of World war days consisted of enclosures surrounded by a barbed wire fence ten feet high. In some camps there was another fence, 75 feet beyond. To be caught between the fences meant instant death.

The hutments, or barracks, were usually of wood, one story high. The prisoners were bunched in tiers. Each prisoner was given two blankets. Some camps had passable stoves for cooking, but usually there was a lack of fuel. Sanitary conditions were poor and the bunks abounded in vermin.

When Ambassador Gerard visited the camp at Wittenberg, during an epidemic of disease, he found conditions "frightful." The Germans had practically deserted it. The sick had to take care of themselves.

Of all the hardships, work in the mines was dreaded the most. The prisoners were defenseless against those who had them under ground and they were brutally treated. Thousands were forced to work in the marshes all day long, with water up to their knees.

In one camp, near Limburg, the Germans collected all prisoners of Irish nationality and tried to induce them to join the German army.

A policy was adopted whereby working parties were sent out from the main camps. Some worked on farms, in stone quarries, on highways or in factories. They lived under guard, there were many abuses. Sometimes, on the farms, the prisoners were unguarded and their treatment depended upon the disposition of the farmer. The chance of escape was nil.

600,000 PRISONERS

All mail or parcels of food sent by relatives or relief agencies went to the main camp and thus did not reach the detached prisoners. In September, 1917, there were approximately 600,000 prisoners of war, whose address was given as the Limburg camp. An actual inspection by neutral visitors showed only 2,400 there—the rest being detached in far away districts or working behind the battle lines.

Then there were the dreaded "reprisal camps" in which prisoners were placed in reprisal for some presumed offense on the part of the enemy government. The prisoners, selected at random, were perfectly innocent of any offense. They suffered many hideous forms of abuse, neutral observers said.

Many British prisoners were put to work behind the battle lines, where they faced death from the guns of their own army. Finally, in April, 1917, the German and British governments reached an agreement that no prisoner of war on either side should be employed within 30 kilometers of the firing line. But, nevertheless, according to the British, the Germans continued the practice.

To add to the mental torment, the prisoners were cut off from communication at home for months, sometimes altogether. Many, upon return to the main camp, found themselves listed as dead, and their relatives so notified.

When American prisoners fell into the hands of the Germans, continual pressure was brought on the German authorities, through the Spanish embassy at Berlin, to concentrate them in one camp. These efforts finally were successful and they were interned in a camp at Rautatt, on the banks of the Rhine, convenient to Switzerland, where it was possible to organize committees to look after their needs.

THE BRITISH TECHNIQUE

Conditions varied in the other belligerent countries. In England the government, at the outset of the war, set up a commission which kept accurate records of prisoners and notified relatives. Prisoners were sent to Wales, Scotland and the Isle of Man. At one time, there were 30,000 German prisoners at the latter place, living under healthy and humane conditions, according to neutral agencies. The prisoners were visited regularly by clergymen of various faiths and by welfare workers.

Italy had no organization for the relief of prisoners and no effort was made on the part of the Italian government to provide them with food or clothing. Consequently, there were many hardships.

In Austria, where a Red Cross commission from Bern made an investigation, it was found that many prisoners had died of starvation, exhaustion and disease, especially tuberculosis.

IN FRANCE, RUSSIA

In France, impartial investigators found that the prisoners were treated humanely, except in a few isolated instances. Numerous prisoners were put to work in the mines and in other occupations.

In the early days of the war, prisoners captured by the Russians lived unguarded in Siberian villages. Later, they were placed in barracks where the mortality rate was exceedingly high, especially during bitter winter weather.

Conditions in Turkey were abhorrent. British prisoners taken especially after the battle at Kut-el-Amara were beaten and robbed. They lived a miserable existence in open camps, a prey to disease. Three thousand of them were sent into the interior never to be heard from again.

A Man About MANHATTAN

Mr. Morgan Watches Doves, Gets His Pocket Picked

BY GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The vigilance of the strong arm squad at the fair during the first 30 days of the season has, to say the very least, been unremitting, and it is due to this no doubt that we have run into only one man, a hardware dealer from Pittsburgh, who has had his pockets picked. This is an unusual record, and it speaks well for the future police commissioners who are roaming the amusement boulevards and the intellectual by-ways of the fair.

This dealer was a man named Horace H. Morgan and he lost a wallet that contained $75 in cash, plus a railroad ticket and various identification and credit cards.

"The man who worked on me," Mr. Morgan explained cheerfully, "must have been a wonder, because I didn't feel a thing. It was that painless. I was just standing there, watching the doves pluck the clothes off Miss Rosita Royce. And after the doves had earned their encore I started to turn away. It was then I noticed how light my coat felt, because with my wallet in the inside of my coat, there is a bulge there and it is usually tight. There was no bulge, nor was there any wallet. I still don't know how it happened."

We didn't say as much to Mr. Morgan, but it is our worldly opinion that he was anesthetized by the sight of Miss Royce and her doves. The pickpocket probably could have removed his collar and shoes just as successfully. We say this on the evidence of Mr. Morgan's own spoken words, for it is obvious to anyone who is familiar with the Fair that Mr. Morgan got his girls wrong. Or maybe it was his birds. Miss Royce, unlike Eve who was clothed only in nudity, is clothed in cooing doves. They clutter around her and that is all. There is another trained fowl, and a smart old fowl he is, known far and wide as the sarong-snatching parrot of Miss Yvette Dare, another strip-tease cutie. Miss Dare's act differs from Miss Royce's in that she is clad only in a sarong. At a critical moment in her act the parrot plucks off the sarong.

We believe Mr. Morgan is perfectly sincere in giving his version of the theft of his wallet but we still claim that under trick lights in the noisy, heady atmosphere of a world's fair during these topsy-turvy days it is perfectly possible and excusable for a man, especially if he is standing up close, to confuse a dove with a parrot. It is quite likely even that feathers got in his eyes, and when that happens, who among us can tell a sarong from a flock of doves?

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Reviews of Two New Pictures

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—"Women in War." Screenplay by F. Hugh Herbert and Doris Anderson. Directed by John H. Auer. Principals: Elsie Janis, Wendy Barrie, Patric Knowles, Mae Clarke, Dorothy Peterson, Barbara Pepper, Billy Gilbert, Dennie Moore, Colin Tapley.

First 100 percent new World War movie to hit the screen, "Women in War," succeeds in proving, however unintentionally, that women in war should stay home and stop letting their emotions clutter up the front.

These women don't. They're right in the thick of things at a French base hospital. They've come over from England to serve under head nurse Janis and competent assistant Peterson. They do beautiful work here, too, and look nice and professional in their starched uniforms. By the time they're called to active front duty, however, the deprivations of a "fifth columnist" named Love have brought things to a pass prettier than most of the participants.

The handsome man in the case is Knowles, R.A.F. officer. He is engaged to Gail (Clarke), but falls for Pamela (Barrie). With the nursing unit taking sides in the issue, Janis gets order to take ambulances under a friendly barrage to a vital sector. Here Love has Gail, driving one of the three mercy wagons with Pamela beside her do a silly thing. She drives right into the friendly fire.

By the time repentant Gail has died trying to mend her jealous crime, and Janis has risked her life effectively mending it, the ambulances never get where they were going, and the friendly barrage has had to be lifted to save the silly femmes. This is obviously tough on the waiting wounded and a comfort to the enemy.

There is some pretty good war spectacle here—an air raid during a channel crossing, and the barrage fire on the deserted village where the girls are trapped—but most of it is pale beside the horrors of today's newsreels.

Salvage: good work of attractive Wendy; comedy of Gilbert and Dennie Moore; the welcome return of Mae Clarke; the interest attached to a talkie debut of Elsie Janis, once "sweetheart of the A. E. F.," whose personality shines through her apparent camera uncertainty only when she imitates a harrumphing English colonel; some bright lines here and there; and, for those who demand one, a plot revealing how mother love, even in war, can regenerate a wayward daughter.

"The Way of All Flesh." Screenplay by Lenore Coffee. Directed by Louis King. Principals: Akim Tamiroff, Gladys George, William Henry, John Hartley, Muriel Angelus, Bertou Churchill.

Emil Jannings once won an academy award in the silent version of this slow-moving yarn which details the penalty one man pays for one night of high stepping. I doubt that Tamiroff will grab Oscar for his work, but it is still highly effective.

Paul Kriza is a good, plodding, honest family man, cashier of a small-town bank. Entrusted with $100,000 on his first visit to New York, he is mulcted by racketeers. When he learns that he is believed a dead hero, he vanishes and forever pays the penalty for his one fling, thus protecting his family from disgrace.

The setting is 1925, a small Pennsylvania town, but the period is not sufficiently remote to save the tale from the "dated" label. Kriza—in the old version a provincial European—is too guileless for America. In this country mamma (George) probably would have hired someone to stay with the kids and traipsed to the city herself, thus frustrating the excellent work of the siren (Angelus) before it got under way.

Guard Against Enemies Within

Expecting a German invasion of England at any time, the British are taking extra precautions to guard against any "fifth column" activity. Thousands of men and women have been rounded up and placed in wire-girt internment camps such as this one which is somewhere in northern England. A soldier stands guard behind barbed wire while some of the inmates wander near.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Government Credit For the Allies

WASHINGTON—The circuitous trail around the Johnson act, legally mapped in the Jones RFC bill, bears an invisible but authentic stamp of administration approval. It was sanctioned in the cloistered privacy of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet.

Originator of the scheme which might furnish a billion dollars of United States government credit to the allies, was Carl Robbins, president of commodity credit corporation. He worked up the idea of having the RFC pay in advance for rubber, tin, and other strategic war materials in order that the allies could buy our surplus farm products. Robbins is a retired wealthy west coast businessman who has worked in the government for relaxation.

He sold the venture to agriculture Secretary Wallace who carried it to a cabinet meeting about two weeks ago.

THE PROCESS

The agriculture department hoped to get rid of cotton, prunes, raisins, pork and similar products, exports of which have been most seriously injured since the war started. The original Robbins plan was to stimulate and finance only these exports particularly to Britain by having the RFC pay Britain with earmarked gold in advance for tin, rubber and the strategic war materials.

Jones refined and expanded the project so Britain could buy, not only our surplus prunes, etc., but planes and any manufactured products in such a way as to constitute government underwriting of general credit, with promises to deliver tin, etc., in the future, as collateral.

This might have caused a national political outburst a few months ago, but the legislators now are in a much stronger pro-ally frame of mind, and some of them choose to look upon the plan as a barter deal, in which the reception of the goods we get may be indefinitely delayed.

DRAFTING INCOME

The legislators, who have been getting a shock a day, received the maximum voltage so far when the Lee bill to confiscate wealth emerged suddenly from the senate military affairs committee with an apparent administration imprimatur. The official White House ghost, Laughlin Currie, and left-leaning SEC chairman, Jerome Frank, were seen hobnobbing with Senator Lee on a revised version of the measure which had formerly been opposed by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

The word got around they had been sent to Lee by the White House. These facts are correct but the deduction which was drawn from them does not appear warranted. Currie and Frank are working out a new draft of the bill, whereby the government will draft income instead of wealth at 1 per cent interest for 50 years.

They plan to take about 10 per cent of incomes between $1,000 and $10,000, 15 per cent over $20,000, 25 per cent over $1,000,000, and 50 per cent over $7,500,000 to finance the cost of the war.

But both Currie and Frank have crossed their hearts and assured senators the administration does not want the bill passed this session. The White House merely wanted to perfect the bill now. If war comes this method of financing will no doubt be sponsored by the administration. The promise that the bill is to be delayed is a pretty good official hint the White House is not contemplating American entry into the war this summer.

BLITZKRIEG TECHNIQUE

The German method of blitzkrieg is described with detailed authenticity in a government report from an official observer abroad. First dive bombers are sent down from the skies against a specific point in the allied infantry lines. Their bombardment is more destructive than artillery, which prefaced attacks in previous wars. Then great squadrons of tanks are wedged at the bombarded point. Crossing a narrow opening they spread out fanshape like the stretched open fingers on your hand. Immediately following are squadrons of light infantry in cars and on motorcycles, armed with machine guns. At nightfall the tanks return to a

Applications Now Acceptable for Summer Pilot Training

Aeronautical Civilian Course Begins June 17

Requirements Made For New Applicants For Air Instruction

Applications for the summer civilian pilot training program at University of Iowa are now being taken, Elmer C. Lundquist, instructor in aeronautical engineering, has announced.

The training course, which is to include 72 class hours of ground school instruction and from 35 to 50 hours of flight training, will begin June 17 and be completed before September 1.

Information regarding requirements of the course, registration procedure and application blanks may be obtained in room 4-N, engineering building, Lundquist announced.

Deadline for filing applications has been set for June 5. Nearly 40 applications for enrollment in the training course have already been accepted, the aeronautical instructor said.

All applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 25 inclusive. To be acceptable for this training, applicants must satisfactorily pass a medical examination. They must also be registered as regular summer school students in the university and must have had at least one year of regular college work prior to application.

"There is some possibility that the last requirement may be waived so students regularly eligible to enter the university may be eligible to take this pilot training course, but in any event preference will be given those students having had at least one year of college work," Lundquist stated.

Students may register for the course with or without credit. Three semester hours of credit are to be granted for the ground school work. Students registering for the course who will not take any other course offered in summer school and who wish to take the pilot training course without credit may do so by registering without paying any registration fee. If the students wish to obtain credit, the regular registration fees must be paid, Lundquist explained. Before registration for the course may be completed, applicants must pass the physical examination and also meet the scholastic requirements. A deposit of $6 is required for the physical examination.

Rainbow Girls To Have Meet In Davenport

Two Local Members To Receive Honors At State Convention

Grand cross of color degrees, an award for outstanding service, will be given to several Iowa City people who will attend the Rainbow girls state grand assembly in Davenport, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Jean Boysen and Vilda Sporar are the members of the local organization who will be honored. Advisory board members who will receive the award will be Eula Van Meter, Mrs. Charles G. Sample, Mrs. Louise Williams and Charles Bowman.

Delegates from Iowa City to the convention will include Barbara Mezik, worthy advisor; June Williams, worthy associate advisor; Marie Sidwell, Charity; Vilda Sporar, grand reporter to Mississippi, and Joan Joehnk and Patricia Miller, members of the grand choir.

Scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, to open the assembly will be a trip through "Little Bit o' Heaven" and a boat ride on the Mississippi. In the evening will be formal initiation by the grand officers.

Thursday morning's program will include the awarding of the degrees and in the afternoon will be reports and a business session. A drill team exhibition and dance will be given in the evening.

New officers will be installed Friday morning. The assembly will be concluded at noon. Transportation to Davenport will be provided, and members of the organization may call Mrs. W. F. Merriam, 9483, or Barbara Mezik, 6207, for arrangements.

Attorney Hart Will Entertain Bar Examiners

Attorney William Hart will be host to the examiners and readers coming here Monday for the Iowa state bar examinations. At noon tomorrow he will entertain them at a luncheon in the B.P.O.E. hall and Tuesday noon at a luncheon with the Kiwanis club.

The visiting examiners are C. N. Jenson and John Anderson of Sioux City, Herbert J. Hoffmann of Dubuque and Robert Jackson of Muscatine. Readers are Frank Gilloon of Dubuque, F. J. Comfort of Des Moines, Frank Beatty of Sigourney and E. R. O'Brien of Oelwein.

Three Delegates Will Attend D. A. R. State Convention

Delegates from the local Daughters of Union Veterans who will attend the state department convention of the G.A.R. and its allied organizations will be Mrs. Robert Yavorsky, president; Mrs. William Mueller, patriotic instructor, and Mrs. L. V. Dierdorff.

The group will leave for Des Moines, where the convention is to be held, today. The meeting opens this afternoon.

Future Pilots Overfill Quota For Training

CHICAGO, June 8 (AP)—Young men applying for civilian pilot training this summer have overfilled the 15,000 national quota for the first class which opens June 15, the civil aeronautics authority announced today.

Grove Webster, chief of the CAA private flying development division, discussed the expanded program with the civilian committee headed by Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher. Civilian chairmen from five of the nine army corps areas attended the meeting.

Webster said one problem of pilot enrollment was a government regulation that 85 per cent of the 45,000 aviators to be trained by July, 1941 must be college students or graduates, aged 18 to 25.

Possibility that a CAA training course for aviation mechanics would be organized in the near future was announced at the meeting.

Three Women Will Represent Relief Corps

Three delegates from the local Women's Relief corps will leave this morning to attend the three-day state convention in Des Moines.

The delegates are Mrs. Joseph Pechman, Mrs. Herman Amish and Mrs. A. Derkson. Mrs. Emil Ruppert, president of the organization, will also attend.

The regular meeting of the Women's Relief corps, which was scheduled for Tuesday, has been postponed to June 18.

Local Churches Plan Sessions For Students

Meetings To Be Held Tonight To Organize Summer Activities

Four Iowa City churches are planning sessions tonight for summer school students.

A Study...

"Outdoor Religion" will be started at the meeting of the student group of the Christian church at 6:30 tonight in the church.

Plans for organizing the summer session will be made, and religious classics to be reviewed during the summer will be discussed and assigned.

'Freezer Fun'...

... will be the get-together to be given the Wesley Foundation of the Methodist church at 6 o'clock tonight. The group will meet in the student center, 120 N. Dubuque.

Summer school students are especially invited to attend. Home-made ice cream, games and singing are planned.

The Rev. Elmer Dierks

... will be the speaker at the 7 o'clock meeting of the Roger Williams club of the Baptist church tonight. The group will meet in the Roger Williams house, 230 N. Clinton.

At 9:45 this morning the Roger Williams class will meet there for the morning lesson. The topic for the summer will be "The Sermon on the Mount," and the Rev. Mr. Dierks will lead the discussion.

Channing Pollock's...

... philosophy of life, based on his book, "Adventures of a Happy Man," will be discussed at the first summer meeting of the Westminster Fellowship of the First Presbyterian church at 6:30 tonight in the church basement. The Rev. Hion T. Jones will head the discussion.

Mrs. Elwood Olsen will preside.

Mary Schenck To Be Honored

Mary Ethel Schenck, bride-elect, will be honored at a dinner Tuesday night to be given on the sun porch of Iowa Union by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Schenck, 1123 E. College. Miss Schenck and Clarence Woolridge, son of Mrs. Carrie Woolridge of Lake City, will be married Wednesday.

Guests at the dinner will include Dr. Schenck's two sisters, Dr. Bertha McDavitt of Temple, Tex., and Mary Schenck of Denver; Mrs. C. P. Schenck and daughter Armina, of Ft. Worth, Tex.; Alice Wilson of Denver, Colo., and the bridegroom-elect and his mother. Roses and iris were the table decorations at a kitchen shower given for Miss Schenck, by Mary Louise Sheets, 1711 Muscatine, Friday afternoon. Twelve guests shared the courtesy.

Prizes in bunco were won by Mrs. W. L. Schenck and Mrs. Myron Walker.

'Waist-Line' Potluck Luncheon Planned

A "Waist-Line" potluck luncheon will be given by members of the Women's association of the First Presbyterian church at 2:30 Tuesday in the church basement. Members will bring covered dishes, sandwiches and table service.

Modern System To Be Used In State Bar Examinations, To Be Given Here Tomorrow

Questions To Cover 35 Legal Subjects In Expanded Field

One of the most modern systems in the country for state bar examinations will be instigated here tomorrow when 66 University of Iowa students and approximately 15 other applicants begin the annual three-day bar examinations.

For the first time in the history of bar examinations here, students will be questioned over 35 legal subjects in place of the previous 19 subjects, with the same number of questions included in examinations, officials said.

The new system of bar examinations here is aimed to meet the expanded field of legal activities. State bar examiners in working out the new examinations consulting with state committee on legal education. The new bar exams are aimed toward modern law school curriculum, officials announced.

Members of this year's state bar examining board include Atty. William Hart of Iowa City, Atty. C. N. Jenson and Atty. John Anderson of Sioux City, Atty. Herbert J. Hoffmann of Dubuque, and Atty. Robert Jackson of Muscatine.

Assistant Attorney General Jens Grothe of Des Moines will accompany the bar examining board to Iowa City for the coming examinations.

Examination readers who will come to Iowa City tomorrow include Atty. Frank Gilloon of Dubuque, Atty. Frank J. Comfort of Des Moines, Atty. Frank Beatty of Sigourney and Atty. E. R. O'Brien of Oelwein.

Results of the written examinations, beginning tomorrow morning at 9 a. m. in the law building, will be announced following the oral examinations in Des Moines June 25.

Requirements for taking the bar exams include two alternatives, first, the student must have two years of liberal arts training and three years of law school or, second, the applicant must have two years of liberal arts and three years of full time practice in legal procedure.

Other requirements for the bar applications include certified character reports by a judge of district court and by lawyer in "good standing" from the bar applicant's residence as well as character report made out by the applicant under oath defining the most minor infraction of law in past record.

Tribe's Milnar Holds Yankees To Two Hits

Southpaw Hurler Gets 3-0 Victory For 8th of Year

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—A pair of singles—one by Charley Keller and one by Buster Mills—were all the hits the world champions could get off Al Milnar of the Cleveland Indians today as the Tribe won, 3-0.

The lefthander racked up his eighth victory of the campaign against one defeat by his masterful hurling today. A crowd of 16,067 cheered him on.

Marius Russo, who outpitched Milnar earlier in the season for the Indians' only defeat, suffered his first setback of the year, giving up five hits in eight innings. Johnny Murphy, who pitched the ninth, was tagged for two more blows. One of them was a homer by Roy Bell. Cleveland scored its other two runs in the fifth and seventh, adding two solid blows for a run in each frame.

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—Tall John Gorsica chalked up his first major league victory today as his Detroit Tiger teammates thumped the Boston Red Sox for the second successive day to win by a 4-2 margin.

Gorsica Wins First Contest

The Red Sox still clung to the topmost rung of the American league ladder by the slim margin of one percentage point.

Five out of the Tigers nine to five but the winners had four extra-base knocks, including two home runs. The Red Soxers' hits were well scattered and Gorsica held them scoreless until the eighth inning, when Detroit was enjoying a 4-0 lead.

Rudy York opened the scoring in the second when he blasted a home run over the left field screen. The second tally crossed the plate a few minutes later when Pinky Higgins walked and came all the way home on a double by Birdie Tebbets.

These two hits, and a single by Dick Bartell, were the only blows the Tigers could obtain from the offerings of Denny Galehouse, Boston starting hurler, until he gave way for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Relief Pitcher Jack Wilson gave up Detroit's two remaining hits and runs in the eighth. Charlie Gehring slammed a double into the left field corner and came galloping home ahead of Greenberg, when Hank Bannett belted his home run over the left field screen.

The Sox, who had been hitting Gorsica hard but ineffectually, came through with two runs in their half of the eighth to save themselves from a whitewash.

Doc Cramer opened the frame with a single and Stan Spence, just up from Louisville and playing his first major league game, worked Gorsica for a pass. Jimmy Foxx advanced the pair on a fielder's choice and Ted Williams, dropped back to fifth place in a Sox batting order shakeup, chased them home with a ringing double to right-center.

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—Gene Sarazen, the dark, fast striding little golf veteran from Connecticut, came out of nowhere late today through the rain and mud to tie Lawson Little for the National Open championship at 287 strokes and carry the former amateur king into a playoff for the title tomorrow.

Winner of his first Open championship in 1922 and a repeater in 1932, Sarazen struck for his third title so unexpectedly that it wasn't until the last three holes that the huge gallery swarmed around him.

His finish was nearly as sensational as that of '32 when he scored a final record breaking round of 66 at Fresh Meadow to snatch the title from Bobby Cruickshank and Phil Perkins.

Sarazen, Little Tie For National Open Title With 287

By GAYLE TALBOT
CANTERBURY GOLF COURSE, CLEVELAND, June 8 (AP)—Gene Sarazen, the dark, fast striding little golf veteran from Connecticut, came out of nowhere late today through the rain and mud to tie Lawson Little for the National Open championship at 287 strokes and carry the former amateur king into a playoff for the title tomorrow.

Winner of his first Open championship in 1922 and a repeater in 1932, Sarazen struck for his third title so unexpectedly that it wasn't until the last three holes that the huge gallery swarmed around him.

His finish was nearly as sensational as that of '32 when he scored a final record breaking round of 66 at Fresh Meadow to snatch the title from Bobby Cruickshank and Phil Perkins. Little, winner of the British and American amateur titles in 1934 and 1935, was in with what looked like the payoff score. Sarazen had "blown" on the outnue, going two over par, and he needed an impossible 34 coming back to tie. The course was muddy and heavy from a soaking rain.

While Little sat in the press tent and watched the scoreboard with anguished eyes, Sarazen did it. The little guy not only picked up the two birdies he needed, but on the final hole, he nearly curled in a 45-foot putt that would have won him the title.

There was a terrific hullabaloo because Ed Oliver, of Hornell, N. Y., had been disqualified along with five other players for having made an unorthodox start on his closing round. Oliver had a total of 287, too, but it never was posted. His 71 in the afternoon was thrown out in the window because the committee decided the 23-year-old star had broken one of golf's most sacred rules by teeing off some 30 minutes before his scheduled starting time and without having reported to the official starter.

None of the other five disqualified mattered particularly, because they were out of the running anyway, but Oliver was mad in every one of his 240 pounds and he had plenty of support. There was a strong movement afoot to force the U.S.G.A. to admit him to tomorrow's play-off. Both Sarazen and Little were willing.

But Hal Pierce, of Boston, president of the golf body, said flatly "the matter is closed. We will not consider it further." He complimented Little for having made a "sporting gesture" in asking that Oliver be included in the playoff. Sarazen had said: "Shucks, let him play. I can beat both of them." The little man with the fighting heart was in fine fettle.

The two-man battle between Little, 30, and Sarazen, 38, is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. (CST) tomorrow. If they tie again, they will go at it for another 18 holes in the afternoon. Both are impatient. Oliver was crying in the clubhouse tonight.

Little's four rounds were 72-69-73-73—287. Several times he looked like he was ready to blow the tournament. On the final four holes this morning, he went three strokes over par. But he came back fighting in the afternoon. Sarazen had rounds of 71-74-70-72—287. He started the final two rounds a stroke behind Little and Sam Snead. He was two shots behind the veteran Frank Walsh, who led the field at the end of 54 holes with 213. But while Walsh and Snead were falling apart in the final crucial 18 holes, Sarazen got tougher hole by hole until he pushed through to his favorite place in front.

Snead, who threw the championship away last year with an eight on the last hole, did almost as badly today, though not as spectacularly. Shooter of a dazzling 67 on the first day, he started the last round tied with Little and still a favorite. But he then went sky high and shot a concluding 81, the worst round shown by a ranking star in the tournament.

Horton Smith made a stout hearted finish with a 69 to land a stroke behind Little and Sarazen at 288. Any kind of a score in the morning would have given him the victory, but he developed a slice and took 78. Craig Wood, runner up last year, had 289. Grouped at 290 were Ralph Guldahl, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum and Ben Hogan.

Wilford Wehrle, of Niles, Ill., was low amateur with a total of 297. The amateurs aren't what they were in Bobby Jones' day.

Reds Club Out 23-2 Decision Over Dodgers

Fitzsimmons Loses First as Cincinnati Pounds Out 27 Hits

CINCINNATI, June 8 (AP)—The rampaging Cincinnati Reds regained the National league lead today—clubbing out a 23-2 victory over yesterday's leaders, the Brooklyn Dodgers.

In sharp contrast to yesterday's battle, which went to the Dodgers by 4-2 in 11 innings and gave them the league leadership, today's game was nothing but a battling workout for the Reds and a mighty headache to the droopy Dodgers in general and to Pitchers Fred Fitzsimmons, Carl Doyle and Van Lingle Mungo in particular.

While the Reds were collecting 27 hits, the Dodgers were bowing to Paul Derringer's fine hurling. He gave but seven hits in chalking up his first victory over them since the 1938 campaign. Heading the batting soiree for the Reds was Harry Craft, who got a single, double, triple and homer—and then added another single for good measure.

In addition to Craft, Lonnie Frey and Johnny Rizzo homered, both with two mates aboard. Freddie Fitz started for the losers and pitched two innings, giving up five runs and six hits in suffering his first loss of the year. Then Doyle took a long turn on the mound, getting slaughtered for 14 runs and 16 hits. He also hit four batsmen which ties the modern league mark.

Van Mungo, much to Doyle's relief, pitched from the seventh on and yielded four runs and five hits.

Hornsby Takes Baseball Post

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 8 (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, the "Old Rajah" of major league baseball fame, has been signed to manage the Oklahoma City Indians of the Texas league. Owner John Holland announced today.

Hornsby is expected to take charge of the faltering Indians, now in the league cellar, for a doubleheader with the Dallas Rebels tomorrow afternoon.

He replaces Jim Keesey, who was given an outright release.

Gorsica Wins First Contest

York, Greenberg Hit Home Runs For Detroit Club

BOSTON, June 8 (AP)—Tall John Gorsica chalked up his first major league victory today as his Detroit Tiger teammates thumped the Boston Red Sox for the second successive day to win by a 4-2 margin.

The Red Sox still clung to the topmost rung of the American league ladder by the slim margin of one percentage point.

Five out of the Tigers nine to five but the winners had four extra-base knocks, including two home runs. The Red Soxers' hits were well scattered and Gorsica held them scoreless until the eighth inning, when Detroit was enjoying a 4-0 lead.

Rudy York opened the scoring in the second when he blasted a home run over the left field screen. The second tally crossed the plate a few minutes later when Pinky Higgins walked and came all the way home on a double by Birdie Tebbets.

These two hits, and a single by Dick Bartell, were the only blows the Tigers could obtain from the offerings of Denny Galehouse, Boston starting hurler, until he gave way for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Relief Pitcher Jack Wilson gave up Detroit's two remaining hits and runs in the eighth. Charlie Gehring slammed a double into the left field corner and came galloping home ahead of Greenberg, when Hank Bannett belted his home run over the left field screen.

The Sox, who had been hitting Gorsica hard but ineffectually, came through with two runs in their half of the eighth to save themselves from a whitewash.

Doc Cramer opened the frame with a single and Stan Spence, just up from Louisville and playing his first major league game, worked Gorsica for a pass. Jimmy Foxx advanced the pair on a fielder's choice and Ted Williams, dropped back to fifth place in a Sox batting order shakeup, chased them home with a ringing double to right-center.

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—Gene Sarazen, the dark, fast striding little golf veteran from Connecticut, came out of nowhere late today through the rain and mud to tie Lawson Little for the National Open championship at 287 strokes and carry the former amateur king into a playoff for the title tomorrow.

Winner of his first Open championship in 1922 and a repeater in 1932, Sarazen struck for his third title so unexpectedly that it wasn't until the last three holes that the huge gallery swarmed around him.

His finish was nearly as sensational as that of '32 when he scored a final record breaking round of 66 at Fresh Meadow to snatch the title from Bobby Cruickshank and Phil Perkins.

While Little sat in the press tent and watched the scoreboard with anguished eyes, Sarazen did it. The little guy not only picked up the two birdies he needed, but on the final hole, he nearly curled in a 45-foot putt that would have won him the title.

There was a terrific hullabaloo because Ed Oliver, of Hornell, N. Y., had been disqualified along with five other players for having

Frank Gustine of Pirates Moves Into Lead In National's Batting Race; Danning Second

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—There's a comet coming to the top of the National league batting galaxy and a few more points might give the staid old senior circuit the unusual sensation of having a rookie set the batting pace.

The upstart is Second Baseman Frank Gustine of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who inflated his hitting average from .329 to .348 this week to come within four notches of the New York Giants' Harry Danning, the established leader.

Gustine was a prime mover in the renaissance of the Pirates that saw them finally get their heads out of the cellar Friday and was the big gainer in a week in which most of the hitting leaders skidded dangerously.

Danning himself dropped 30 points from .382 to .352. The Brooklyn Dodgers' Dixie Walker, who had been second with .354, slipped to fifth and .333. Hank Leiber of Chicago nosedived 20 points to .323 and tenth place among the leaders.

All this was indicative of a general reshuffling of the National league's honor roll during the week that ended with Friday's games.

The veteran Bill Herman of the Cubs now has the most hits, 53, moving ahead of Leiber and Frank McCormick of the Reds.

Herman also tied with Johnny Mize of St. Louis for second honors in runs scored with 31, two less than Lonnie Frey of Cincinnati. Frey led in stolen bases with nine.

Joe Medwick of the Cards, Frank McCormick and Bill Werber of Cincinnati grappled in a three-way tie for most doubles with 11 while Boston's Chet Ross continued tops in triples with seven.

Strung out behind Danning and Gustine in percentage batting were Joe Moore, New York, .341; Jim Gleason, Chicago, .337; Walker, Brooklyn, .333; Bill Nicholson, Chicago, .330; Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati, .326; Ross, Boston, .324; Maurice Van Robays, Pittsburgh, .324, and Leiber, Chicago, .323.

Danning also remained in front in runs batted in with 38, five more than Johnny Mize of St. Louis. The two reversed these positions in home run hitting with Mize away ahead at 15 and Danning at eight.

Bucky Walters, the Cincinnati Reds' great righthander, met his first defeat of the season Friday, but his record of nine victories and one defeat was far in front of any other hurler. Of those with five or more decisions the next best pitcher was the Giants' Cliff Melton, who has won five and lost one.

Giants Take Doubleheader From Cards

New Yorkers Win First, 5-2; Nightcap, 4-2

ST. LOUIS, June 8 (AP)—The third place New York Giants took both ends of a doubleheader from the St. Louis Cardinals today, winning the nightcap 4-2 after grabbing the opener, 5-2.

Cliff Melton and Walter Brown outpitched Max Lanier, Curt Davis and Ernie White in the second game, while in the first one Roy Joiner and Brown allowed the Cards 13 hits, but managed to win when their teammates bunched nine blows effectively.

musicals, variety and even heavy drama.

It finds the silent-screen stars Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon playing in "Haw Haw," and it also finds revivals of "Chu Chin Chow" and "White Horse Inn." Two cinema theaters are still playing "Gone with the Wind."

After the show, there are innumerable restaurants with license extensions surveying music and amusement, and after that—if one knows how—there is the English variant of night clubs called "bottle parties."

Supposedly, you order the bottle or bottles for your after-hours party during the day time, so that it is "technically" purchased during the legal hours for selling liquor. Actually, it's a procedure the way to Paris.

In his night communique, General Weygand singled out two artillery units for special praise for the "destruction" they wrought among German Panzer units.

"The artillery group of Commandant Fouyat destroyed 38 German tanks," he said. "One battery of the group commanded by Captain Vandelle destroyed alone 19."

"Another artillery group commanded by Commandant Guenet, attacked at a distance of 100 meters by tanks, destroyed 17."

The allied air forces, outnumbered since the start of the campaign, stayed in the battle with one squadron of more than 150 of the customer saying, "Waiter, did you get my order this afternoon?" and the waiter, who may have never even seen the customer before, says unthinkingly: "Yes, sir. At once, sir!"

The great peace-time centers of amusement lack the old crowds, however, and for every furloughed soldier boy in Piccadilly or Leicester Square you find ten in outlying dance palaces and special canteen social halls kept up patriotically where the expense of a little music is satisfactory and the volunteer home-girl talent as alluring. Variety houses (nearer the girl friends' homes) are packed.

One really has to get into the suburbs before the black-out comes to see the bulk of men on leave who have suddenly reappeared. They had almost totally vanished prior to the army's return from Dunkerque.

bombers protected by both British and French pursuit planes and raining explosives on the German lines.

Some planes swooped down to an altitude of only 50 feet to bomb and machine-gun enemy tanks and troops.

An air ministry communique announced German pontoon bridges over the Somme were destroyed last night and that reichswehr reinforcements were dispersed, while navy bombers raided factories in the Berlin outskirts.

One pursuit squadron was reported to have attacked a German tank park and to have destroyed a "considerable number" of machines.

The Germans moved in two vast thrusts; from south of Roye in the Oise valley in the center, and to Forges-les-Eaux on the west flank.

The action nearest Paris was in General Maxime Weygand's thick and heavy center line. The fighting raged on both banks of the Oise—the river whose valleys lead down to Paris—and was declared especially frightful in the deep shadows of the Ourscamp forest south of Noyon.

While the front thus erupted with new week-end violence, the French replied with bombs to the Nazi raid of last Monday which killed and wounded about 1,000 Parisians.

Without giving details, the admiralty announced that a squadron of naval planes had raided factories in the outskirts of Berlin last night, and had returned without losing a ship. Speculation arose that some of the raiders might have been American-made, but the admiralty spokesman said he thought not.

Convention for Post Office Clerks, Auxiliary Starts Today

Registration This Morning For Delegates

Convention Continues Through Tuesday; Golf, Picnic Planned

The 22nd annual convention of the Iowa State federation of post office clerks and auxiliary opens today in Iowa City and will continue through Tuesday.

Registration of delegates and visitors is the first thing on the program beginning at 8 o'clock this morning in convention headquarters at the Jefferson hotel.

Early arrivals will take part in a convention golf tournament at 7 o'clock this morning on Finkbine field. Sunday being spent as a play day for the state post office employees, there will be a picnic in City park at 4 o'clock this afternoon for delegates and their families. Food for all is furnished at this picnic.

Mixer Party Tonight

Concluding the first day's events will be a mixer party in the C.S.A. hall, 524 N. Johnson street, at 7:30 tonight for all delegates and their families or friends.

Business meetings of the three-day convention get underway tomorrow morning at 9 when there will be a joint session of the delegates to the federation convention and the auxiliary. For subsequent meetings, the federation will go to the Press-Citizen assembly rooms and the auxiliary will meet in the Light and Power company assembly rooms.

A convention banquet will be held at 6:30 tomorrow evening in the Jefferson hotel and will be followed by a dance in the hotel. More business meetings will be held Tuesday morning and afternoon.

Here is the detailed day-by-day program of the convention.

Ensminger Will Go to Jury

Attorneys To Close Arguments Tomorrow On Contested Will

Closing arguments will be given by attorneys tomorrow morning in district court in the Ensminger will contest case which has been in progress during the past week.

Judge Harold D. Evans excused the jury hearing the case yesterday noon until 8:30 tomorrow morning. It is expected that the case will go to the jury before noon tomorrow.

The last testimony received yesterday was a deposition of Alta C. Carlson, only heir named by the will which is being contested, who was ill and unable to appear in court.

The will is being contested by two grandchildren, Celia and Alvin Ensminger, through their guardian, J. B. Van Horn. They contend that the will of Albert W. Ensminger, which is being offered for probate, is not his last will.

The contest is based on the grounds that the deceased was not

Yeggy Sues R. Vittengl For $2,800

Scheduled to begin in district court tomorrow afternoon is a damage suit for $2,800 of Henry C. Yeggy against Ralph Vittengl. Impaneling of the jury will occupy the morning and testimony will start in the afternoon.

Yeggy asks $1,300 for injuries which he asserts he suffered as the result of an auto accident March 24, 1939. Yeggy contends the defendant was driving around a curve on the wrong side of the road recklessly and negligently resulting in the accident wrecking Yeggy's car and injuring the plaintiff.

The plaintiff asks an additional $1,500 for medical care and attention and suffering which he claims his wife, a passenger in the car, endured.

The contest is based on the grounds that the deceased was not

Our Home Town THE CLERGYMAN

By Charles Beckman

What sacrifice he makes! - this man of the cloth gives of himself so freely to help humanity. He lives in simplicity, for less than his abilities would command in commercial life. His long, full days are spent in the service of whomsoever needs his help.

And because there are so many calls on his time, and only twenty-four hours in the day, the periods he should own for rest and recreation are frequently taken from him.

Day after day, into his ears are poured the troubles and the problems of his fellow men. These he takes deeply into himself, burdening his own heart, heavily. Yet never does he lose his courage or his cheerfulness.

He girls his loins anew each dawn to do unending battle with fear, grief, hate, greed, trickery, spite and general human easiness. He explains or exhorts, sympathizes or scolds, cajoles or commands, leads or drives, as each case seems to warrant or require.

His unwavering faith is in the power of Right to prevail. And his life is devoted to making this old world a kinder, fairer place in which to live.

Next Sunday Mr. Beckman will comment on a Thumb Nail Sketch of a Father.
