Nine Persons Injured In 2 Bomb Explosions

Blasts Shake C. P. Quarters, German Offices

Dewey, Federal Agents Say Bombs Used in Both Places of Same Kind

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
NEW YORK, June 20—The offices of a German commercial-banking concern and the building housing principal units of the communist party were shaken by bomb explosions today.

Nine persons were injured in the two blasts, which occurred within an hour in downtown sections about two miles apart. Seeing a possible connection, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey quickly began an inquiry to determine "if this is the work of a crackpot or an organized effort to create trouble."

Dewey and his aides visited both scenes, along with high police officials and federal agents, and Assistant District Attorney Jacob Rosenblum said the bombs used in the two places "apparently" were of the same construction.

Explosion Terrific

The first explosion, a few minutes after 3 p.m. took place on the 18th floor of the Whitehall building at 17 Battery place, a building at the tip of Manhattan housing the German consulate and many other foreign agencies and shipping companies.

The bomb, described by Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy as an "electrically operated infernal machine," went off outside the 4-room suite of the German Trade and Commercial Service, a private German firm dealing principally in foreign exchange.

Consulate Possible Target

The German consulate is on the floor above and officials indicated the consulate might have been the target. Rosenblum observed that the saboteur might have made a mistake because of the German writing on the door and police later issued orders to all precincts to exercise "extra vigilance" at the consulates of belligerent nations.

Police had a slender clue in their hunt for the bomber. An employee of the German firm said he saw a man about 25 years old, with blond hair and wearing a light gray suit, leave an elevator, throw a package wrapped in brown paper in front of the door and run away.

Senator Burke Proposes Draft Bill For 40,000,000 in Military Service

WASHINGTON, June 20 (AP)—A comprehensive draft bill to require more than 40,000,000 men to register for possible military service was submitted to the senate today by Senator Burke (D-Neb.).

The measure would require all men between 18 and 65 to register. Those between 21 and 45 could be called for duty in the established army and navy forces. The president would determine how many were needed for defense, regardless of whether the nation was at war, and that number would be selected by lot.

Men in the age groups between 18 and 21 and between 45 and 65 would be called only for service in home defense units near their homes.

One provision of the measure declared that the country was "gravely threatened, and that to insure the independence and freedom of the people it is imperative that immediate measures be taken to mobilize the nation's strength."

Under the bill, aimed at developing an army and navy-trained reserves of 4,000,000 men, each man selected for active military service would be required to undergo eight months' training. After completion of training, a man would be a member of the enlisted reserve corps for 10 years, or until he reached 45.

50,000 Franco-Polish Troops Give Up Arms in Switzerland

Cross Over France's Mountainous Border To Be Interned by Swiss

GOUMOIS (On the Franco-Swiss Frontier), June 20 (AP)—A Franco-Polish army more than 50,000 strong gave up its arms to green-uniformed Swiss citizen-soldiers and crossed over France's mountainous border to be interned today.

Some were wounded, some dirty and torn from the battlefields. Some had not even seen a German soldier.

Some were despondent and silent. Some joked and laughed. Some talked, as all defeated armies talk, of sabotage within the army, of inadequate planes and poor preparations, of the responsibility of former leaders.

New Committee Formed to Aid Refugee Children

NEW YORK, June 20 (AP)—With Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the helm, a nation-wide committee to help provide homes in America for Europe's refugee children was formed today.

Formation of the new agency—the U. S. committee for the care of European children—followed the disclosure in London yesterday that the British government planned to send 20,000 children to the United States and British dominions.

Mrs. Roosevelt is serving as honorary chairman of the group's administrative body.

The program includes cooperation with Canada in caring for child refugees there and aiding children now in France and other war-torn countries.

Woman Burns to Death

AVOCA (AP)—Mrs. James Scott, 50, was burned fatally yesterday in her bed at home, Corner L. H. Tyler said. Only the woman's body and the bed were burned, it was reported.

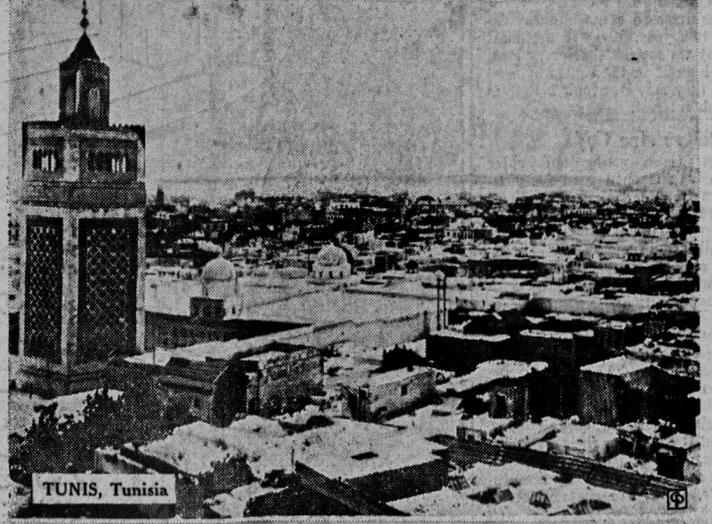

Even before the discussion of terms, Mussolini's troops were prepared to occupy the Savoy regions of southern France—regions Italy claims as spoils of her short war against France.

As troops drew up for the new move, King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy received the Soviet Ambassador Nicolai Gorchin, who had been recalled to Moscow early in the Finnish war because of anti-Soviet demonstrations in Rome.

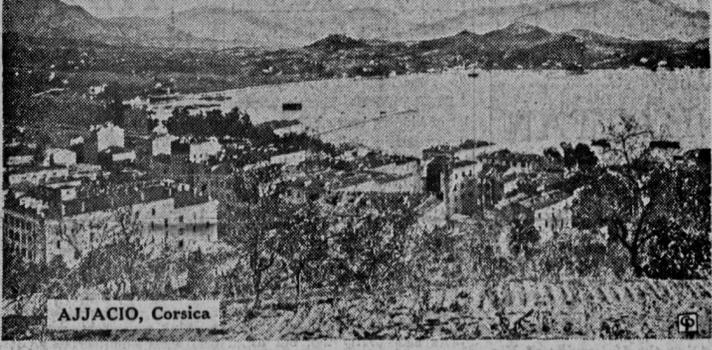

The newspaper La Tribuna's military expert said the Italian action would be "joined" by the German army along a line from St. Didier, on the Italo-French border, through Lyon to Clermont Ferand. The zone of German occupation in eastern France thus would find its southern limit on the edge of Savoy.

Italian occupation of the Savoy regions is not, apparently, expected to meet serious French resistance. The official Stefani agency circulated a Bern, Switzerland, dispatch stating that hostilities between France and the axis powers were expected to cease tomorrow "or at the latest Saturday."

TUNIS, Tunisia

AJJACIO, Corsica

Pictured above are views of two of the French possessions which may become Italian under the terms of the peace treaty expected to conclude hostilities between France and the Axis powers—Germany and Italy. Italy has long hoped for eventual acquisition of Tunisia and lately there has been Italian agitation for the return of Corsica to Italian control.

Italy Claims France Seeks To Negotiate Separate Armistice

Asserts Request Relayed to Rome Through Spain

ROME, June 20 (AP)—Italy announced tonight that France, already talking peace terms with Adolf Hitler, has asked Italy to negotiate for a separate armistice.

The government disclosed the request was relayed to Rome through Spanish intermediaries, and through the same channel Italy sent her reply.

France was told to advise Italy the names of its plenipotentiaries. The date and place then would be fixed.

Premier Mussolini's conditions for armistice already had been agreed upon with Hitler in the Munich meeting, informed fascist forces said.

Japanese Concentrate In Yangtze Valley For Possible Action

SHANGHAI, June 21 (Friday) (AP)—The Japanese navy has concentrated several units, including an aircraft carrier of Hainan island opposite the Indo-China port of Haipong, it was reliably reported today, creating apprehension that the Japanese are contemplating action at the first favorable moment now that the house government in France is faced with surrender.

Unconfirmed reports here say the Japanese are transferring large numbers of troops from the Yangtze valley to the south, possibly for land action against the French possession on the mainland of Asia.

Plans to Expand Home Defenses To 4,000,000

LONDON, June 20 (AP)—Bombed but still defiant, Britain cheered the arrival of 50,000 Anzac fighting men from the farthest reaches of her empire today and made ready to call four more classes of Englishmen to the colors—for a home defense of 4,000,000.

With new classes, men from 31 to 34, are to register in July. As with previous classes, not all will shoulder rifles. Many are in "reserved occupations," needed at their jobs more than on the firing line.

It was an hour when Britain counted eight more dead and 60 injured from the latest pre-dawn pounding bombing.

White Plane of Truce Carries Hitler's Demands From Reich

Marshal Petain Tells People They Must Accept Their Beating and Learn Its Lesson; Army Still Falls Back

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
BORDEAUX, France, June 20—The French waited in despair tonight for the return of their snow-white plane of truce bringing Adolf Hitler's peace terms, and heard from their old marshal and premier that they must take their beating and learn their lesson from it.

Hitler's word, on which the French will decide for or against an armistice and then peace, is expected during the night.

The French government still was here this evening (although reports via London and San Sebastian, Spain, said it had decided to leave to spare Bordeaux a repetition of last night's heavy bombing and might go to Biarritz, on the Bay of Biscay).

France was over-run with the conquerors in their green-grey uniforms—from the chafnel coast below Nantes to the Swiss frontier.

Lyon, her third city, fell under German occupation. Yet the men of the republic still fought. In their trap of the lost provinces of Alsace-Lorraine, the main moles of the useless Maginot Line formed themselves into hollow square attack units and tried to fight through the German lines—to what goal, they did not even know.

Hours, even, before Hitler knew it was on its way, the plane carrying four negotiators was sent across the German lines to a secret rendezvous with him. The plane, gleaming with new white paint to make it a flying flag of truce, will bring Hitler's peace terms back to Marshal-Premier Henri Philippe Petain and his government of capitulation.

Hitler's Terms Expected Soon At Compiegne

Place Where Kaiser's Command Gave Up May Be Fuehrer's Choice

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, June 20 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's terms for giving peace to broken France probably will be transmitted formally tomorrow at Compiegne, where stands the enshrined railway car in which the Kaiser's command gave up to Marshal Foch in the armistice of 1918.

The likelihood that this site of long and bitter German memories had been selected for rubbing out history and recasting the maps was disclosed tonight by informed sources.

Over a nearby monument portraying Germany's eagle struck down by the French sword the swastika waves tonight and in these last days of defeat for France many a German soldier has gone there to look at the old "wagon lit," enclosed now in a special building, that for a generation has been a symbol of the greatest humiliation ever suffered by the German arms.

In that car, at 5 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 11, 1918, Maxime Weygand, the losing allied generalissimo of this war, stood with Foch while the conquering marshal signed with a sorrowful German delegation a peace dictated on allied terms. This was three days after the terms had been known.

For Germany, tomorrow is an anniversary in time as well as in memory, for on Friday, June 21, 1919, the German battle fleet was scuttled at Scapa Flow—just one week before the signing of the Treaty of Versailles, against which Hitler has thundered so long.

That will not end things. The terms must be acted on by the government, before there is an armistice.

The negotiators (disclosed in Berlin) to be General Charles Huntziger and Aviation General Bergeret; Cie-Admiral Leluc and Diplomat Leon Noel, were well on their way before Germany's fuehrer could be told of their departure.

Telephone delays between Spain and Germany caused this. Spain's government is acting as news-conveyor between the governments at war.

Semi-official reports said Hitler, as soon as he got the news, acted immediately to receive the delegation and communicate the terms. Where, it was not known.

While he waited, Petain told France by radio she had lost because she had too few friends, too few young men and too few guns, and because she had wasted the victory years since 1914-18.

"Today," said the World war savior of Verdun, "France is a witness to sad days. I am with you in your days of glory. I am and will remain with you in your days of sadness..."

"We will learn our lesson from the lost battle. Since our victory (of 1918) our sense of enjoyment has predominated over our sense of sacrifice. We have not exerted enough effort..."

"Today we are in distress..."

Petain disclosed the French had but 2,780,000 troops when the battle of France began along the Somme and the Aisne; 500,000 fewer than after three bloody years.

Rift Rumored in Axis Alliance

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Germany's secrecy concerning the armistice terms offered to beaten France has loosed a world flood of rumors, among them whispers of a policy rift with her axis mate, Italy.

Such a development could have profound meaning for the world. For until the Italo-German terms to France have been published and can be studied, the question remains unanswered as to what Adolf Hitler's often repeated slogan of "Europe for Europeans" really means, and how it fits in with Benito Mussolini's dreams of empire for Italy.

There can be little doubt, however, that it was Hitler, the conqueror of the European continent, who actually dictated the terms to France, and, perhaps, set also definite limits to the scope of German aid to an Italy seeking realization of empire aspirations in the Mediterranean.

Berlin spokesmen brushed aside rumors that Italy had been excluded from Franco-German peace talks, calling them wishful thinking by Britishers and their sympathizers. It remains to be seen, however, whether Hitler has included in his terms to France any commitment to aid Italy's trans-Mediterranean aspirations.

The same German commentators also dismissed as fantastic rumors of German resentment over Russian reinforcement of her western frontier from the Baltic to the Black sea. Yet, it is clear that Moscow is uneasy both over Germany's swift and utter defeat of France and over Italy's plunge into the war as Germany's ally.

Russia's western frontier spans the continent. It runs a thousand miles or so, as the crow flies, from the now puppet state of Lithuania through Russian-German shared Poland to Rumania's Carpathian defense line, thence to the Black sea via the borders of Rumanian Bessarabia on which Russia looks with jealous eyes.

For two-thirds of that long way, Soviet and German troops have stood more or less shoulder to shoulder since the partition of Poland. By Russian initiative they now seemingly stand instead face to face.

There seems at least a possibility that Hitler's terms to France were shaped principally to meet the immediate continental problems of Germany, not Italian empire dreams. Germany has a conquered continent to guard, and to feed. Here are grave possibilities of a famine and plague all this winter such as western Europe has never known. Under these circumstances, it may be that Germany, in effect, has left Mussolini to

Names G. O. P.'s to Cabinet

WASHINGTON, June 20 (AP)—In a move that created a profound sensation, President Roosevelt today appointed Henry L. Stimson and Col. Frank Knox, republican advocates of unstinted material assistance to the allies, to be secretary of war and secretary of the navy respectively.

Congress members who have been demanding more aloofness from European affairs angrily charged that a "war cabinet" was being created; administration men issued denials and interpreted the appointments as a move to sink "partisanship" in an hour of crisis.

Apparently taking cognizance of the criticism, Mr. Roosevelt tonight issued a statement saying: "The appointments to the cabinet are in line with the overwhelming sentiment of the nation for national solidarity in time of world crisis and in behalf of national defense and nothing else."

Earlier he had stated that the defense program was "not aimed at intervention in world affairs which do not concern the western hemisphere."

At Philadelphia, where the news sent a wave of breathless astonishment through the ranks of delegates gathering for next week's republican national convention, Chairman John D. M. Hamilton issued a statement virtually reading the two appointees out of any position of leadership in the republican party.

Every man, he said, has a right to serve the government "as he sees fit," but Stimson and Knox now "owe their allegiance to the president and hereafter will speak and act in that capacity."

Alf M. Landon said that Stimson, secretary of state under President Hoover, and Knox, who was Landon's running mate in 1936, had followed their own "consciences" and he hoped they had "not been misled in such assurances as must have been given them regarding the third term movement."

Landon some time ago called upon the president to renounce any third term intention if he wanted a democratic-republican coalition to manage the defense program. The White House replied that the president could not issue any "political statements" because he was "too busily engaged with problems of far greater national importance."

In hurried conferences, political leaders sought to assy the effect of the appointments on the third term issue and the coming election. Former President Hoover expressed the belief that the 1940 campaign would be unaffected because the "national issues remain exactly where they were."

He added that the appointments did not spell a republican-democratic coalition; that the two men were "entering the cabinet to give personal service and not representing the republican party."

On Capitol hill, reporters asked Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the democratic leader, whether he believed the president had assured Stimson and Knox that he would not seek a third term. Barkley replied that he did "not believe the subject was even discussed."

Republicans gathered in little groups in the house of representatives corridors and cloakrooms, expressing bitter condemnation of the appointments.

Child Conference Scores

There are a great many fine things that have been and may be said about Iowa's annual conference on child development and parent education. Every one of them is justified.

But no finer tribute has been forthcoming this year than that of an out-of-state lady in the audience at Maebried hall on Wednesday afternoon who declared that Iowa's youth panel on young people's problems was the finest she had heard in a good bit of experience in a good many states.

The reason? She gave the credit to the 14 years of progress made by the Iowa conference in training young people to think and express their views, a program which has seeped outward and into vital home circles far out of proportion, we dare say, to what we might commonly suppose.

That's a splendid compliment. The young people of the panel, however, were quick to give a lion's share of the credit for the afternoon's performance to Tomi Taylor of McCall's magazine, panel leader supreme, who proved an important point all by herself—that if you know what you're doing and the work itself interests you, you have an interesting, vital experience every time you turn around. Miss Taylor insists that is true.

Congratulations to the Iowa conference on its progress; congratulations to the Iowa conference on obtaining people like Miss Taylor for the meetings.

Speaks for 'Union Now'

Clarence K. Streit, the newspaper correspondent who wrote "Union Now," a suggestion for world-wide union among nations, is tonight's summer lecturer on Iowa Union campus.

His address tempered by events abroad which must precede some new attempts at world reorganization, Mr. Streit should be a speaker not to miss.

Streit, only this week, announced that he had sent communications to the governments of the United States, France and Great Britain, asking them to sign a "declaration of interdependence," a plan which he declares would operate on the principles of the American declaration of independence of the Revolutionary war.

Since the appearance of "Union Now" last year, Streit has been promoting the idea which, though altruistic, is a step in a constructive direction. Right now he's at the Grinnell Institute of International Relations, but he will come here to lecture this evening.

"Union Now" obviously isn't as simple as it sounds, but Mr. Streit's contributions will be interesting.

America Makes an About Face

America, traditionally one of the slow-moving democracies, is making an about face in its thinking that is nothing short of amazing.

Three months ago the thought of compulsory military service was unheard of. The United States, during the century and a half of its existence, has never in peace time adopted a policy of conscription, and only twice during wartime has such a policy become necessary. Americans regarded with repugnance the theory that individuals owed a period of servitude to the state.

The speed with which a nation, even a democratic one, may abandon a basic tradition during a situation of great urgency is indicated by the widespread lack of spontaneous opposition to the proposal of President Roosevelt this week that universal compulsory military training would be a good thing for the United States and that a bill supporting such a plan would be introduced in congress shortly.

The efficient nazis may be surprised, too, to observe that America's slow-moving, fumbling democratic government is making spectacular strides in building up its long neglected national defense. The board of corporation executives called by the president to speed up and coordinate defense preparation is doing a job which would compare favorably to that done by Hitler's hand-picked experts. Yet three months ago the business interests represented by these Roosevelt appointees were fighting tooth and nail against the New Deal. It is becoming evident that the divided political factions of democratic nations can unite to serve the larger interests if the nation so demands. In the same manner the sacrifice of freedom involved in a compulsory conscription law can be accepted if by so doing democracy and its rights can be preserved.

Americans are finding out that they can make democracy work.

NOT for the Other Fellow

The Iowa State Safety Council has formulated its plans for 1941, putting in order an active, aggressive campaign for more safety on the highways of the Hawkeye state.

Membership drives and adult education take prominent roles in that program. A safety council in every county in Iowa is the goal of field representatives this year.

Iowa has an active organization in the field of safety. But the citizens of the state must do the active work.

The statistical summary of highway accidents in Iowa during the past month shows that of 26 fatalities in accidents, 18 were killed in accidents on straight roads; 461 were hurt in such crashes.

That's the record for one month. It has been higher. It is still too high.

There's just one answer to the question of the driver who causes an accident on a straight highway. He's the autoist who thinks all the "propaganda for highway safety is intended for the other fellow."

If Iowa hopes to get anywhere in its drive for better records of highway safety, every driver has to pay attention to the work of those whose business it is to study accidents, determine and eliminate their causes.

Iowa City has a record of no highway fatalities as yet this year. Keep it up, local drivers, and may we suggest that every local driver interest himself in the causes of accidents, and how they may be avoided. Effects will justify such interest.

The Hostellers Are Off

The hostellers, those young and older Americans who hit the open road for summer trips that may extend almost anywhere in the world, are taking off again.

In Iowa, there are hostel stops at Homestead, North Liberty, Anamosa and Monticello—links in a chain that extend as far away as you like, this year notably to South America as America's field of pleasure travel decreases.

What are hostels? They're stops on the road for roving travelers who belong to the organization. Hostels may be used, for a fee of 25 cents overnight and five cents for fuel, by anyone holding a Youth Hostels pass and carrying a regulation sleeping sack.

Hostellers must travel under their own power, by foot, bicycle, flatboat or horseback. Bunks, blankets and cooking utensils are provided at hostels, which are chaperoned by houseparents.

It's a new idea in travel, and a good idea for those who love the open road and get a kick out of discovering what the land looks like across the way.

A Man About MANHATTAN

A College Story About Mr. Stettinius

NEW YORK—I am not certain that Edward R. Stettinius, who gave up his $100,000 a year job with U. S. Steel to serve on FDR's Defense Program Board, would want this story told. It is a personal story, and it concerns something that happened when he was an undergraduate at the University of Virginia.

Everyone is familiar with his record in business, and everyone is familiar with his distinguished appearance. Though only in his thirties, he has long been gray—you might almost say silver, or white haired. He had gray hair even during his student days at Virginia.

Stettinius was graduated the year before I landed amid the halls of Mr. Jefferson's place of higher learning at Charlottesville. Nevertheless, I knew many of his friends and fraternity brothers, and this story, which one told me, can be vouched for.

Almost everybody at Virginia called him Ed "Stet." Or simply "Stet." People who knew him for years thought this was his real name. Stet had the habit at Virginia of going off on hunting expeditions. He had a place with a couple of caretakers on it not too far from the university, and sometimes he would spend his week-ends there.

One day a call came from his home, but Ed wasn't there. Some members of his family had decided to go to Europe, and they wanted to talk with him before they sailed. A friend of Stet got into his car and ran out to this country shooting place, hoping to find him there. But the caretaker said he hadn't seen "Mr. Stet."

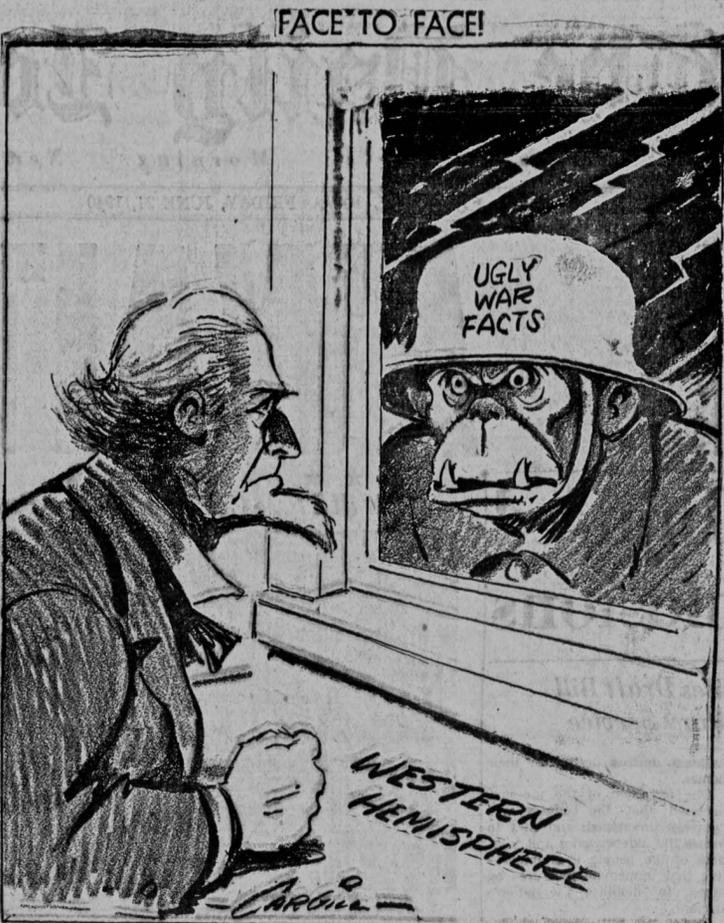

As a matter of fact, it was Monday morning before Stet returned to the university. He gave some vague answer when one of his friends inquired how the shooting had been. Present at the time was a fraternity brother who had made the trip out to Stet's farm in an effort to find him. He knew Ed hadn't been there, and he decided that if Stet had reasons for not disclosing his real whereabouts that was his business.

Quite by chance, some months later, this man was driving through one of the rural mountain districts of Virginia. He came upon a little chapel deep in a glade where the mountain folk worshipped on Sundays. It was a very nice little chapel. It wasn't six months old.

"We're very proud of it," one of the residents confided. "It was a gift. A man named Mr. Stet built it for us and paid every cent of the cost himself."

Well, that was a secret Edward R. Stettinius chose to keep. He never mentioned it even to his friends, probably because he was shy, and doing good turns probably embarrassed him.

But in light of his most recent act—resigning a position that paid him $100,000 a year in order to aid the country at a time when the country needs capable men—it seems permissible to dig back 15 years and relate this incident that occurred during his student days. It shows that in 15 years Ed "Stet" hasn't changed a bit.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Wait 'Til You See the Picture!

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—There's been a lot of kidding because Fritz Lang, the ex-continental movie director, is shooting such typically American subjects as "The Return of Frank James."

The kidders forget that Lang, fresh from Europe, made a movie of American life for his first Hollywood picture—and "Fury" was one of the best vehicles Spencer Tracy ever had. . . . Lang rehearsed for his present effort by making an "American wild western" in Germany years ago—pretty sad, but based on his reading of Western history. . . . Since he came to Hollywood and became a citizen he has concentrated on the American West as a hobby—so the kidders may eat their words when they see the film. . . .

There is concentration at present, almost to the extent of a cycle, on the West's bad men as movie heroes: "The Dark Command," featuring Quantrell, the Kansas desperado; the Jameses (Jesse and Frank); and now the Dalton boys—not even mentioning that "Destry" and "Buck Benny" have ridden again, and that the Cisco Kid rides on. . . .

There's no fun in eating broken movie glass any more. . . . It used to be made of candy—now they're using resin. . . . When you see a bloodied-up actor on the screen, his gore is not make-up, but wardrobe. . . . Ragnar Qvale, playing a concentration camp victim in "I Married a Nazi," was being larded with "blood" (colloid) while Burriss Grimwood, the makeup man, stood by. . . . Grimwood says there has been a lot of argument over "jurisdiction" in blood matters, but since early movie days the wardrobe boys, who used to apply the make-up also, have held on to the task, justified by the argument that blood covers the player's clothes as well as his skin. . . .

Louise Beavers, the screen's foremost "mammy" until Hattie McDaniel came along, is losing no time getting back into the fray. . . . She's the smart maid in "No Time for Comedy" and when William Keighley feels playful all he has to say is, "Come on, Louise, give me that Hattie McDaniel look!" . . .

Just as one example of what movie producers are up against on "timely" subjects, there's the release of "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" . . . Deemed daring at its original release in April, 1939, the picture is more timely now than any on the screen, especially in view of the "fifth column" scare, and yet it, too, seems rather tame and dated by contrast with actual revelations of Nazi infiltration in Norway, Holland and Belgium. They have included newsreel shots from the later foreign horrors.

Goats, according to a naturalist, do not eat tin cans but merely lick off the labels to get the salt in the paste. It's still a good stunt.

Pan-American Trade Arrangements

WASHINGTON—The Pan-American products pooling scheme sprang up inside spontaneously—unusual though spontaneity be in Washington. Economists in the state and commerce departments, working separately, devised several plans simultaneously. It was only natural that the prospect of future nazi-fascist business competition would set them to thinking of methods to turn our trade to a competitive political basis. . . .

Rivalry for control of the project, therefore, has arisen between the state and commerce departments. Some want pooled purchasing, others blocked dollars to compete with the German blocked marks, and all realize the enterprise has such vast and dominant economic possibilities that each wants to guide its development. . . .

BRITISH MUNITIONS SCANDAL

A munitions scandal as vast as that which occurred in the first World war is brewing in Britain. The admiralty leaders there have discovered it, corked it, and put it aside to steep. Probably nothing will get out until the need for censorship is over. . . .

THE NAVAL PROGRAM

Stupendous changes of policy are being adopted overnight, but none was effected more swiftly than the switch to the Stark plan doubling the size of our fleet. . . .

Chairmen Vinson and Walsh of congressional naval committees had been working for five days with the navy department on a new naval program. In conjunction with Rear Admiral Robinson, chief of the bureau of engineering, they formulated what was supposed to be the administration scheme for 399,000 tons of fighting sea strength. They worked it out carefully on the basis of "reasonable expansion" of existing shipbuilding yard capacity. . . .

Vinson had just completed his work when Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations appeared in congress with a program more than three times its size. Congressmen tried to hide their amazement, but Vinson confessed privately he had never seen the Stark program before it was submitted. . . .

Only explanation of the over-night trebling of plans was that higher naval authorities than Ad-

BOATS FOR INVASION OF ENGLAND

Secretly Hitler has for weeks been buying small boats in the Balkans, particularly in Rumania, Bulgaria, and Greece. The assumption here has been that he might be arranging transportation on the Danube, but the fact that he has taken craft of all varieties has lately inspired the impression that he intends to get them around to the channel in some way for use in an invasion of Britain. The task of transporting them through connecting canals or overland presents serious difficulties. He may or may not be able to surmount them successfully. . . .

HITLER'S PLANS

Reports also indicate Hitler has been setting up big guns along the channel coast, weapons capable of shooting 50 to 150 miles (the big gun being a stratosphere shell thrower which may not be effective). His strategy is supposed to call for blocking both ends of the channel which he now dominates with his artillery fire and submarines in order to establish landing parties on the southern British shore. . . .

Clarence Streit Will Lecture Tonight

Peace Solution Will Be Given By Lecturer

Journalist Proposed World Federal Union While a Correspondent

How world democracies can achieve peace will be explained tonight at 8:15 p.m. by Clarence K. Streit, foreign correspondent and author of "Union Now," in the second university summer lecture on the south Iowa Union campus.

World democracies can end their sectional differences by assigning certain powers over to a world Federal Union, according to Streit.

Entering journalistic work in 1920, the lecturer served for 20 years on the foreign staffs of the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger. From 1929 to 1939 he covered the League of Nations for the Times and was president of the Association of Foreign Correspondents in Geneva.

While there, he conceived the idea of a Federal Union of all nations, patterned after our American Union.

"Union Now" was first published in France, and later in England, Sweden and the United States. His ideas achieved considerable recognition in all those countries, and has given rise to organized movements for "world unionism." In the United States it took the form of the Inter-Democracy Federal Union (IFU), started in 1939.

A round table discussion will be conducted by Mr. Streit Saturday at 9 a.m. in the house chamber of Old Capitol.

A native of Missouri, he studied at Oxford university as a Rhodes scholar, and also at the Sorbonne, Paris. He served in the intelligence service during the war.

Prof. W. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion and chairman of the summer lecture series, will introduce the speaker this evening.

Taylor, Beatty Speak on Youth

Leaders on Youth Problems Lecture At Conference Luncheon

"Youth organized — is youth easily led," Toni Taylor, associate editor of McCall's magazine, New York City, said yesterday at the final luncheon of the child development and parent education conference.

With "A Community Program for Youth" under discussion, Miss Taylor and Dr. Willard W. Beatty, director of education in the United States office of Indian affairs, took charge of the discussion.

Both Dr. Beatty and Miss Taylor agreed that a larger educational program for youth must be put in force in order to meet the perplexing problems and questions confronting youth today.

"We must do away with these age old activities which are harmful to every community even if it means putting a life time resident out of business or losing him as a renter.

"Certain road houses are tolerated in a community because nobody cares to get rid of an owner by putting him out of business," Dr. Beatty said as a means of illustrating his point.

"Only by an educational program and community activities can we solve certain youth problems. It is hard to get cooperation in such activities because the average adult doesn't know what children need, the educational director added.

Miss Taylor admitted that there is a potential danger in the strength of certain organizations because the general public knows very little about what youth organizations stand for and doesn't try to find out.

"Adults must let the young people know that they are interested in what young people are doing. The easiest solution to this would be a central committee headed by some influential people in the community," Miss Taylor suggested.

This central committee would consist of representatives from each group in the county or city such as Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, church groups, 4-H clubs and others.

Through this committee an exchange of program ideas could be arranged which would avoid duplication and reduce the number of separate leaders, the conference leaders emphasized.

From this committee would radiate the healthy ideas and constructive activities so necessary to youth groups.

Alumni Honor Professor Rietz With Dinner

Prof. H. L. Rietz, head of the mathematics department, was presented with a watch as a personal gift of the Iowa Mathematics Alumni association which honored the local department head at a dinner in Iowa Union last night.

Wald Davidson, actuary for National Life Insurance Co. in Des Moines, made the presentation to the university of an oil portrait of Professor Rietz which will hang in the mathematics library.

Toastmaster for the dinner was Victor L. Henningsen, assistant actuary at Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. at Milwaukee, Wis.

Over 100 students, friends and faculty members attended the dinner where telegrams from many friends were read by the toastmaster.

Officers of the alumni association sponsoring the dinner include Leo Nordquist, president, who received his B. A. degree in 1938; Maurice E. Feay, secretary, who received his B. A. degree in 1935, and Robert H. Little, treasurer, who received his B. A. degree in 1937.

All of these men are now employed in a New York life insurance company, where the nucleus of the Iowa Mathematics Alumni association exists. Other Iowa graduates from the department are employed throughout the country.

Rumor--

paddle his own empire canoe in the Mediterranean.

There have been frequent hints from Berlin that Italy's small active share in the continental victory of Germany called for no great rewards. There are also pressing reasons why Berlin should not want any added strain on her relations with Moscow at this time.

Russian food and fodder stocks and Rumanian oil are more vitally necessary now than ever before to the vastly expanded reich. Lavish inroads must have been made on German reserves in that fierce and swift nazi campaign in the west.

There are other elements enhancing the possibility that the Hitler-Mussolini conference of victors in Munich was not in reality the Italo-German love feast it was reported to have been. Among them is the obvious fact that the nazi war machine was planned and created for continental, not overseas use.

Great difficulty stands in the way of shipping German heavy armored units to join in desert fighting to seize control of the Suez canal. In addition, they are not desert fighting weapons; are ill suited for use in that climate or in sandy terrain.

Hitler, to the disappointment of Italy, may well have declined to march against the Suez or Gibraltar unless or until Franco-British sea power has been destroyed or driven out of European waters.

Stimson and Knox. Some democrats joshed them with gibes that the appointments meant "liquidation of the republican party."

The appointments far overshadowed other events today in the rearmament effort, such as quick senate passage of a $1,777,489,788 emergency defense bill; an announcement that congress would be asked for $65,000,000 to increase TVA's power output for rearmament purposes; plans by the war department to call 9,000 reserve officers to active duty, and introduction by Senator Burke (D-Neb) of a universal draft bill.

The party leaders enthusiastically applauded an assertion by Chairman John D. M. Hamilton that the two former party stalwarts—Knox, the 1936 vice presidential nominee and Stimson, secretary of state under Herbert Hoover—"are no longer qualified to speak as republicans or for the republican party."

"Both men," Hamilton continued, when the uproar of applause had subsided, "have long desired to intervene in the affairs of Europe and the democratic party now becomes the war party and we may accept that issue at its face value."

Then, unanimously, the committee approved a formal statement which Hamilton had issued after consulting important party figures both here and in Washington. It said that "as members of the pres-

Bolero Jackets Summer Styles Prepare for June's Changing Weather

Blow hot, blow cold! That's what these June days seem to do. And we betide the woman who is unprepared.

But for such occasions, for days the calendar warns of hot weather, when the breeze is chilly although nothing is more serviceable than a summer suit. And no summer suit is more convenient than a bolero costume.

Boleros, you'll find, are among the most flattering of all jackets and this season's styles are especially pert. They're waist-length and collarless with three-quarter length sleeves and smartly padded shoulders, and over a frilly blouse they have a fresh and feminine look all their own.

Wear them with a tailored shirt for sports or with a pleated and collarless blouse as a really smooth touch. But be sure to wear them, for they're a useful addition to any woman's school-going wardrobe. They're easily doffed when the classroom becomes a bit warm and they can match or mix with either your tailored or dress skirts.

You'll even wear them with strictly sports things—sun-backed tennis dresses are made over for street wear with contrasting boleros. And a fashion of last summer may well be repeated by college women who began it, fuzzy angora or lacy crocheted boleros with evening dresses.

Joe Louis Finishes Godoy in Eighth Round

Champ Pounds South American Into Helplessness in Bloody Battle Before 30,000 Spectators

Referee Stops Bout After Brown Bomber Floors Challenger

BY SID FEDER

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, June 20 (AP)—The "Old" Joe Louis, the "butcher" of the prize ring, came back tonight.

In methodical, cold-blooded fashion, he took revenge on Arturo Godoy, the Chilean, who hurt his pride by lasting 15 rounds with him last February. For seven rounds he carved the South American's face apart, punching with as much devastation as he has ever shown, and then, in the eighth, he ended it.

With Godoy, gallant to the end, down on his knees for the second time in this round from what seemed like a million of the cruellest, most savage blows the Brown Bomber has ever thrown. Referee Billy Cavanagh stepped in and stopped the blood-letting, awarding the king of the ring a technical knockout at one minute, 24 seconds of the heat.

11th Title Defense

Thus Louis added another to his record string of defenses of the world's heavyweight championship. This was the 11th challenge he has turned back. Before his reign began three years ago, the best any champions before him could do was to hold the crown against five challenges.

This was brutal tonight. At 199 pounds, the Brown Bomber was in the best condition of his career. He was lighter than for any fight since he chopped Max Schmeling down in their return bout two years ago. He gave away two and one-half pounds to the South American, but it could have been ten times that. This was the Louis who sent Schmeling to a hospital, who ended old Jim Braddock's career, who mowed down Tony Galento in four rounds, who now has run up 39 knockouts in his career of 47 fights, and who is ranked by many as the greatest punching man the ring has ever seen.

First Touchdown

He didn't drop Godoy until the end of the seventh round when a slashing string of punches sent the gallant Chilean to the canvas near his own corner, Arturo was up at six, just as the bell ended the round. He came out slowly for the eighth and there wasn't anyone in the surprisingly large crowd in Yankee stadium who didn't realize the end was near.

The champion met him in mid-ring and fired his bombs. Godoy, game to the finish, but with little else to offer against Louis' cold rage and desire for revenge, dropped for a count of eight. He came up again and threw himself at Joe, trying to get in close to hold. But the Bomber shook the Chilean fisherman off and again dove in with a rally. Down went Godoy from a short, whistling right.

Referee Cavanagh wisely called it off right then, but Godoy still wanted to fight. He chased across the ring after Louis, trying to resume hostilities. He went after the referee, arguing vainly to have the battle continue.

By this time, Godoy's face looked like a barbecued beef. Louis laid his left eye open early in the first round, and from there the blood poured out. At the end, the crimson coated not only Godoy, but Louis, the referee and much of the canvas. Godoy's eye was gashed top and bottom. His nose was a soft pulp. And the only damage to Louis was a scratch behind his left ear.

Chuck Klein's Timely Hits Whip Reds

PHILADELPHIA, June 20 (AP)—Old Chuck Klein, hitting in the style that brought him fame as a slugger, knocked the Cincinnati Reds out of first place in the National league today.

The veteran outfielder knocked in all four runs as the Phillies came from behind to tumble the Reds, 4 to 3, in an exciting 12-inning game before a ladies day crowd of 7,421. Thus the idle Brooklyn Dodgers regained first place.

Klein's infield out in the first inning scored Herman Schulte to tie the score at 1-1. His sixth homer of the year with Schulte on first in the eighth tied the count at 3-3, then in the 12th his single to right brought Schulte across with the winning run.

Young Kirby Higbe went the route for the Phils to chalk up his fifth win of the campaign. He yielded eight hits, six of them for extra bases, but was supreme in the pinches.

It was indicative of Dr. Eddie Anderson's position at Iowa and the faith that Iowans have in him when a body of Iowa City business men announced yesterday that they would support his candidacy in the poll for a coach for the college all-star football team that will meet the Green Bay Packers early this fall.

A small daily newspaper also expressed its willingness to aid in the campaign and there is indication that some of the important news agencies within the state will join in the pursuit of votes for Anderson and several Iowa football players, including All-American Nile Kinnick and last fall's captain, Erwin Prasse. There is reason to think that, considering the possible organization, Iowa will be well represented.

It is gratifying indeed from a personal viewpoint to realize that the poll announced in this column several weeks ago is virtually assured of success, even before its start. The vote for players will open early in July, and run for two weeks, with the coaches' poll following over a like period, the final tabulations to be given to the Chicago Tribune. The early interest in the campaign is definitely heartening.

Recalling last year's vote, in which The Daily Iowan was the only newspaper in the state of Iowa to sponsor the coaches' vote, the plan for vote-getting is quite clearly marked out. The local business men plan to contact similar groups throughout the state and other newspapers appear willing to lend a hand.

There is, too, the organization which The Daily Iowan used to bring in nearly a million votes for Anderson last year—the alumni groups of the University of Iowa. A year ago, before Anderson had even put a team on the field at Iowa, those groups, working in coordination with The Daily Iowan, sent in enough ballots for Anderson to finish fourth among Big Ten coaches, behind only Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin, Mal Elward of Purdue and Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern.

This year the alumni, who saw the famous "Iron Hawks" of the 1939 season, will function as a real working group. The signal to begin will start voting activity in every Iowa town and in every city in the United States where there is a sizeable alumni group. The returns will be sent to The Daily Iowan for tabulation before they are relayed to the Chicago Tribune. Iowa City will be canvassed as thoroughly as last year, when practically every resident voted, in addition to several thousand students.

In other words, all civic and scholastic groups within the state of Iowa, along with others throughout the nation, will be behind Eddie Anderson and his Hawkeyes this summer in an intensive drive. The work The Daily Iowan started a year ago appears far from being in vain.

Haub Signs Pro Contract

Harold Haub, one of the co-captains of the 1940 Hawkeye baseball team, has signed a contract with Elmira in the Eastern league it was learned here yesterday. Haub is expected to report to the professional club immediately.

The signing of Haub, leading Big Ten pitcher for the past two years, makes the third member of Otto Vogel's 1940 Iowa team to sign with a professional club. Jim George, the other Iowa co-captain, has joined Syracuse in the International league and Erwin Prasse, star second baseman, has joined the St. Louis Cardinals.

Haub's 1940 record included 11 victories against only two losses.

Feller Stops Senators; Indians Lead League

Baseballers Stick Together District Attorney Fails To Find Evidence In Medwick 'Beating' Episode

NEW YORK, June 20 (AP)—Baseball in general heaved a sigh of relief today when District Attorney William O'Dwyer announced he was through investigating the "skulling" of Joe Medwick at Ebbets field last Tuesday and had found no evidence of criminal intent on the part of pitcher Bob Bowman of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The baseball fathers, frankly, had not welcomed the intrusion of the law into their affairs. As soon as they fully realized what had happened they closed their ranks and "destroyed the evidence," leaving the district attorney flustered at his air.

Medwick's assertion from his hospital cot that he didn't believe Bowman had hit him purposely practically closed the case. And then, when General Manager Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn

Tribe Takes Easy Victory Washington Gets Only Four Bingles In Bob's 10th Win

CLEVELAND, June 20 (AP)—Bob Feller's 10th triumph of the season came at the expense of downtrodden Washington today. The lopsided 12 to 1 decision was the fifth in a row for Cleveland and put the Indians ahead in the three-way race with Boston and Detroit for the American league lead.

Feller allowed only four hits, including Gerald Walker's fourth-inning homer, and fanned 11 to become the first major league hurler to win 10 games. He lost four.

The Indians gained a four-run lead in the first inning, based on triples by Roy Weatherly and Ray Mack, the latter's coming with the bases clogged. They added seven more in a hectic sixth inning in which the Senators committed three of their four errors. The victory was Cleveland's seventh in eight games on the current home stand. All the runs were scored off Walter Masterson, the Nats' starting hurler.

Tresh, Bob Kennedy Bring Chicago Win In Overtime Contest

CHICAGO, June 20 (AP)—John Rigney bested Monte Pearson in an eleven-inning pitching duel today as the Chicago White Sox shut out the New York Yankees again 1 to 0 on Mike Tresh's single and Bob Kennedy's double.

It was the fifth straight loss for the world champions and their third to the White Sox. Rigney gave up only five hits over the whole route and only one in the first six innings, while the Pale Hose nicked away at Pearson for eleven. Chicago had two men left on base in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings and three in the tenth without scoring.

The game was spotted with disputes and Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees protested the game after he claimed Umpire John Quinn reversed his decision on whether Julius Sotter dropped a long foul hit by Bill Dickey in the second.

In the seventh Sotter complained to the umpires that fans in the leftfield bleachers interfered when he backed against the wall trying to catch a triple by Joe DiMaggio.

Medical Regiment, Cavalry Will Go to Camp Ripley, Minn.

National Guard Will Encamp Aug. 4 to 24

Seventh Corps Area Includes 5,000 Iowans Among Midwesterners

Company G of the 136th medical regiment and troop I, 113 cavalry of the Iowa national guard at Iowa City will join approximately 5,000 Iowa national guardsmen in the annual three-week encampment at Camp Ripley, Minn., Aug. 4 to 24, it was announced yesterday by officers in charge of the local units.

Sixty-four men and six officers constitute the local hospital company and 65 men and three officers make up the Iowa City cavalry unit. The local groups will go to the Minnesota army camp by train, according to tentative plans, and will participate in the annual maneuvers of all United States Army seventh corps area national guardsmen.

To Operate Hospital

Dr. E. W. Paulus of Iowa City, commanding officer of company G of the hospital unit, said yesterday that the Iowa City unit will join with company H of Cedar Rapids at the Minnesota camp and the cooperating companies will operate the hospital during the encampment. The Cedar Rapids group, newly formed this year, has the same enlistment as the local company.

Capt. Elmer Hay, commander of the cavalry unit, said that his group will participate in the regular field maneuvers of the national guard cavalry units at the camp.

Officers in charge of the hospital company from Iowa City are, in addition to Dr. Paulus, Capt. Vernon Petersen and Capt. Kenneth Brinkhous, medical officers; Capt. George Easton, dental officer; Lieut. Robert Prentiss, medical officer, and Lieut. Earl Gifford, medical administrator.

Captain Hay commands the cavalry troop and other officers are First Lieut. Glenn Schmidt and Second Lieut. Arthur B. Baldwin.

Will Furnish Equipment

In operating the national guard camp hospital, Dr. Paulus pointed out that the Iowa City and Cedar Rapids units would furnish all medical and hospital equipment used in the service. This material, an entire car load, includes blankets, sheets, pillows and pillow cases, towels, bedside stands and nursing equipment.

In addition to operating the hospital, company members will take part in the regimental field maneuvers of the 34th division, Dr. Paulus said.

The local units went to Camp Ripley for their annual encampment four years ago but have gone to Camp Dodge in Des Moines the past three years.

Seven States Included

The seventh corps area from which national guard units will go to Camp Ripley includes seven midwestern states. These are Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Arkansas and Missouri. Camp Ripley is located about 150 miles north and west of Minneapolis and about eight miles north of Little Falls. The camp includes several acres of flat and hilly land with trees, underbrush and shrubbery and marsh areas.

The hospital company meets every Tuesday night from 7:30 to 9 at the Iowa City national guard armory for drill. During the year there are 48 meetings and a complete course in basic and technical training is given. The annual encampment marks the end of a year's work and provides a laboratory in the hospital operation and field maneuvers, Dr. Paulus explained. A national guard enlistment is for three years.

LONDON, June 20 (AP)—An official agency denied flatly tonight "the ridiculous suggestion" that the Duke of Windsor had been or might be arrested, and said everything was being done "for his safety and convenience."
