FRENCH AGREE ON TERMS

British Bomb Krupp Armament Works

Italy Next in Armistice

Men Still Fight While Waiting For Il Duce's Terms for Peace

Six Hours After Notice of Second Armistice Has Been Received by Nazis, Guns Will Cease To Speak

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, June 22 (AP)—France made a final surrender to victorious Germany tonight, signing in the forest of Compiegne peace based upon the broad dictate laid down by Adolf Hitler.

It was an armistice still conditioned, however, on a second capitulation—to Italy—and tonight men fought on in a conflict that was a war no longer.

It was an agreement that will bring a real armistice only after the French have made their terms with Premier Mussolini.

Six hours after the notice of this second armistice has been received by the Nazi high command, the guns will cease to speak.

In the same old railway car in the Compiegne forest where the kaiser's delegation bowed in defeat to Marshal Ferdinand Foch on Nov. 11, 1918, two ranking generals at 6:50 p.m. (11:50 a.m. CST) put pens to the French surrender of 1940.

The weary French delegation took a plane almost immediately for an undisclosed city in Italy to begin their conversations with Mussolini.

This French surrender at an old and bitterly remembered scene of German defeat—the railway car in the forest—was signed by Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel for Germany and by General Charles Huntziger for France.

Details Withheld
Just what France had agreed to, at the end of a short and bloody struggle which in 43 days left half her country in German hands, was not disclosed pending the Italian negotiations.

But when Hitler took his dictate to them yesterday he stated in a preamble to his detailed terms three broad conditions that must be met. France was to agree to:

Halt any form of resistance. Give "guarantees" to Germany to help her wage war on the historic French ally, England.

Hitler Not Present
Submit to a "new" peace in Europe which would be designed above everything to help to wipe out the "wrong done to the German reich by force" in the last war.

The Führer was not present at today's session.

Even during the last hours of the solemn discussion in the shadows of Compiegne forest, the French armies were being pursued by German forces in the field.

Leading Presidential Contenders Arrive In Convention City

PHILADELPHIA, June 22 (AP)—Leading contenders for the republican presidential nomination arrived in this carnival-like convention city today denying fast-flying rumors of impending "deals," and looking forward to the party's first wide-open contest for the nomination since 1920.

Wendell Willkie, the New York utilities man risen from dark horse ranks; Thomas E. Dewey, the young New York district attorney, who swept the preference primaries, and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, fresh from the firing line in Washington, reached town to join Senator Styles Bridges, Frank Gannett and Governor Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania. Senate Committee May Reject Nomination As Secretary of Navy

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP)—Strong opposition within the senate naval committee to confirmation of Col. Frank Knox's nomination to be secretary of the navy was reported today after the committee decided to question him on his views toward United States policy and the war.

One committee member, who said he favored approval of the nomination, asserted that an informal poll indicated that if the vote were taken today the nomination would be rejected 11 to 5.

He expressed the opinion that whether or not the committee approved the nomination would depend on Knox's statement of his attitude toward possible intervention in the European war.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) merely announced after the closed session that it had been decided unanimously to summon Knox for questioning on his views, and that the hearing probably would be held on July 1.

It was reported authoritatively, however, that it was proposed in the session that the committee issue a public statement to the effect that it intended to investigate Knox's views and that if it was found that he favored intervention, it would reject his nomination.

The German press emphasized that adequately based planes need not fear seapower. The news service Dienst Aus Deutschland declared that England is an ideal subject for attack" in that it is a "cetup" for quick destructive air forays and for blockade.

The news service added: "England is being defeated by one of its own weapons—blockade."

Moreover, every hour of delay in the French decision at Compiegne forest helped the German army to make the French military position more hopeless, German sources said.

The armistice is going hand in hand with the final collapse of the French army," was the way one press report put it.

Germany is in possession of excellent air bases along the French and Belgian coast, Dienst Aus Deutschland pointed out.

Posse Searches For 3 Escaped Prison Convicts

FT. MADISON, June 22 (AP)—A party of 50 to 60 possemen searched the brush covered hills and gullies near Iowa state penitentiary here tonight in a manhunt for three convicts who escaped this morning.

Warden Glenn C. Haynes and Deputy Warden Eugene Mahoney took personal charge of the searching parties.

A $50 reward has been placed on the heads of each of the three convicts, Ivan Sullivan, 28, Lowell Haenze, 27, and Forrest Estes, 36. Sullivan was serving a 30-year term, Haenze, 20 years and Estes, five years.

Prison officials said they were convinced the men were hiding in the thick underbrush awaiting a chance to slip into the yards of the Santa Fe railroad here. The main line of the railroad runs along the Mississippi river bank only a short distance from the prison.

"We think we may have better luck tonight," one of the prison officers said, indicating that the railroad yards have been "spotted" for the escaped men.

The trio "broke through" the electrically charged wire fence at the rear of the prison's big athletic field and recreation yard at 10:40 a.m. today.

Group Quits For One Week Breathing Spell

Over $4,000,000,000 Appropriation Bills Ended Before Recess

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP)—Congress quit tonight for a one week recess after sending to the White House a billion-dollar tax bill and over $4,000,000,000 of appropriations legislation.

A scattering of "noes" came from the republican side when the house adopted the resolution which closed a 10-hour day for the legislators, and recessed Congress until July 1.

Acting swiftly on one item after another, the senate and house sent to President Roosevelt a score of bills during the day, including a $1,768,913,908 emergency defense measure and the annual appropriations for relief, the labor department and the federal security agency.

In addition to the direct appropriations, congress also granted authority for various government agencies to enter into contracts totaling almost another $1,000,000.

The purpose of this high-speed action was two-fold: to allow an interlude for the republican national convention beginning Monday at Philadelphia and to get vital appropriation measures enacted.

Report German Factories Hit In Air Raids

Communiqué States Many Storage Buildings Attacked in 4 Cities

London, June 22 (AP)—The air ministry announced the Krupp armaments works at Essen were bombed by the Royal Air Force last night.

Important German aircraft factories and storage buildings were reported attacked by heavy bombers in raids which lasted an hour and a half.

Direct bomb hits were scored on the Focke-Wulf aircraft works at Bremen, the air ministry said, and six ammunition and supply trains between Bremen and Osnabrück were wrecked.

Tonight's air ministry communiqué:

Important German aircraft factories and storage buildings at Bremen, Kassel, Rothenburg and Göttingen were attacked last night by heavy bombers of the RAF in a series of raids lasting for nearly an hour and a half.

At Bremen, the attack was directed against the large Focke-Wulf aircraft works. The first bomber reached the target five minutes before midnight, and in the bombardment that followed, a large number of heavy and incendiary bombs were dropped.

Hits were registered in the center of factory buildings, and two violent explosions were observed. Fires were started at various points of an aerodrome, and one of the hangars was extensively damaged.

The objective at Kassel was the Feiseler aircraft works, and in the course of the attack several bombs were seen to fall on the target.

Hangars were damaged at Rothenburg, as well as the aerodrome and military buildings. An aircraft storage depot at Göttingen was also considerably damaged.

Government Officially Admits Signing of Armistice With Nazis

'Hard But Honorable' Terms Accepted by Beaten Nation; Hitler's Price for Peace To Be Made Known

BULLETIN

LONDON, June 23—(Sunday)—(AP)—The French peace negotiators are expected to have their first meeting with the Italians Monday, Exchange News, a British agency, reported from Bordeaux early today.

BORDEAUX, June 22 (AP)—The French government announced officially late tonight that France and Germany had signed an armistice providing "hard but honorable" terms.

"If the terms had not been honorable, France would have been ready to fight on in her colonies," French sources said.

The price Adolf Hitler demanded for peace, however, will not be announced officially until after France reaches an agreement with Italy and the cease fire order is given.

In a heavily censored dispatch, it was disclosed that the government remains for the moment at Bordeaux, the provisional capital.

From that headquarters, official spokesman said "fresh French troops" were holding firm along the Alpine frontier—beating back attacking Italians from Mont Blanc to the sea despite the menace of German pressure from the rear.

The Germans were pictured as pushing a spearhead down the Rhone valley behind the frontier defense forces, slowly, steadily, despite valiant resistance.

The high command's night communiqué indicated that while the fighting was less severe, it continued in local battles all along the front.

The Germans apparently were pushing forward with advance and scouting units.

Churchill Asks French Help

Urges Continued Fight; Expresses Amazement, Grief at Capitulation

LONDON, June 23 (Sunday)

(AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, expressing British "grief and amazement" at France's acceptance of German armistice terms, appealed today to all Frenchmen wherever they may be to aid the British fight against Germany as the only hope of France's eventual restoration to liberty.

Declaring that the British government could not feel that a free, independent and constitutional French government could have submitted to the German armistice, Churchill appealed to Frenchmen over the heads of the Petain government "to aid to the utmost of their strength the forces of liberation, which are enormous, and which faithfully and resolutely used, will assuredly prevail."

Despite the action of the Bordeaux government, he said, a victorious Britain will "cherish the cause of the French people," and pointed out to them that a British victory was "the only possible hope for the restoration of France and the freedom of its people."

The prime minister's statement, as read over the British broadcasting facilities, said in part:

"His majesty's government has heard with grief and amazement that the terms dictated by the Germans have been accepted by the French government at Bordeaux."

"Such terms, if accepted by all Frenchmen, would place not only France, but the French empire, entirely at the mercy and in the power of the German and Italian dictators."

They are cut off from other French troops. Completely surrounded, they fought on as "Beau Geste"—and because fighting is the tradition of the legion.

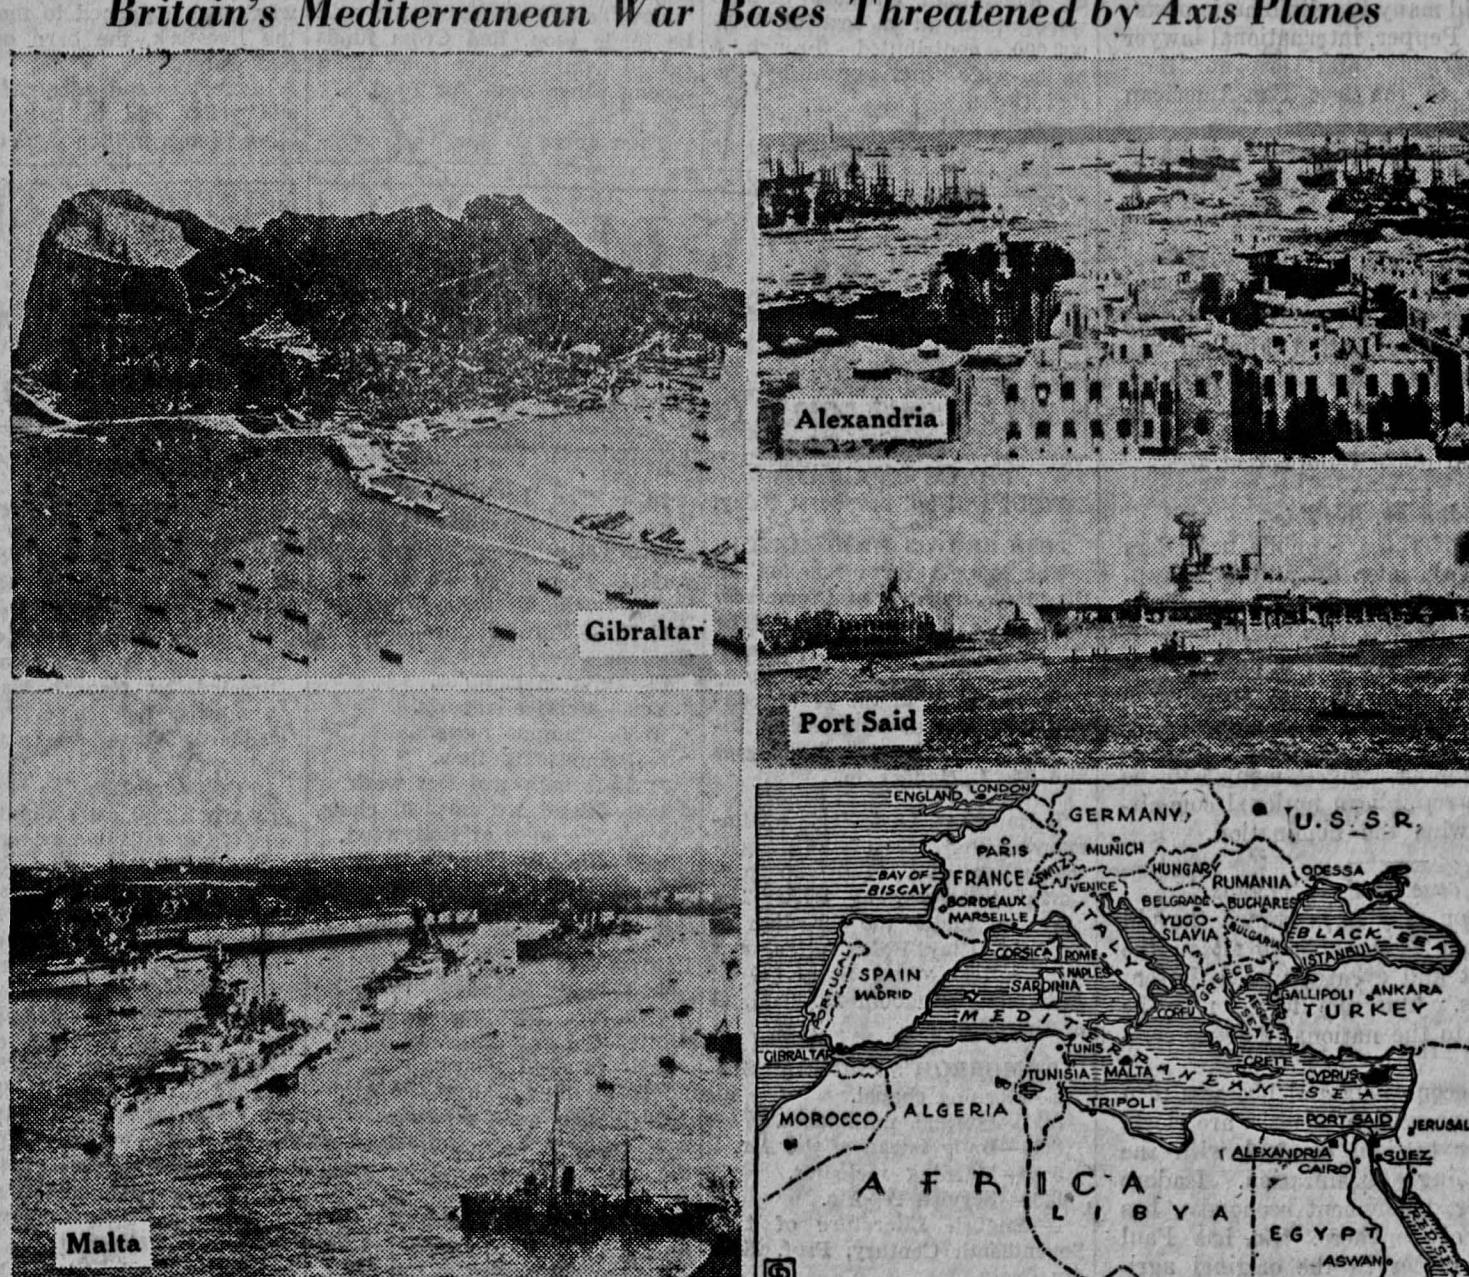

The forts where they have repulsed attack after attack are Le Joux and L'Ecluse, across the frontier from this usually sleepy Swiss town. The peasant folk call the legionnaires les Joyeux—the joyful one—and keep as far from the forts as possible.

Nazi swastikas have flown for five days over the nearby forts of Pontarlier and Le Larmont mountain several miles to the north which fell to the Germans without a struggle after Premier Petain of France announced he was asking the Germans for terms of peace.

The German commander at Pontarlier received a telephone call from the legionnaires at Le Joux and L'Ecluse inviting him to "come and get us."

The Germans are still trying. But their commander is not answering any more telephone calls from the defenders.

Britain's Mediterranean War Bases Threatened by Axis Planes

Britain's four Mediterranean war bases, Gibraltar at the western entrance to the sea; Port Said, at the Mediterranean entrance to the Suez canal; Malta, lying off Sicily, and Alexandria, which controls the whole southeast of the sea, are now being threatened and loom as key points in the European war. Alexandria is built on a stretch of land which separates the Mediterranean from Lake Mareotis. Malta, an island, is only 17 miles long. Gibraltar, the most powerful fortress in the world, has been a British possession since 1704.

Chinese border officials fled as the Japanese took over most of the nine Chinese maritime customs stations along the frontier opposite British territory and, at sundown, the Japanese had reached Shunshun, on the railway line connecting Hongkong with Canton.

• U. S. Industry and Defense

Because of widespread public interest in the important part both government and industry must play in the problem of national defense, The Daily Iowan will present a series of three brief talks by officials of the National Association of Manufacturers, interviewed by Lowell Thomas over the National Broadcasting company network June 3.

(SECOND IN THE SERIES)

Mr. Thomas: Mr. Coonley (Howard Coonley, chairman, National Association of Manufacturers and chairman, Walworth Company, Inc.) from your experience in the past war—I know of your connection with the U. S. Shipping Board Emergency Fleet corporation—I'd like to ask you, where does the most natural bottleneck in preparations such as we are contemplating occur? Where are we likely to bog down?

Mr. Coonley: Mr. Thomas, our experience in the last war, and the allies' experience so far in this war, shows that the bottleneck of supply is in procurement. Procurement means, briefly, specification, purchase, inspection and delivery of needed materials. Procurement must be put in the hands of practical, experienced civilians with positive assurance that red tape will be cut and that bureaucratic interference will be eliminated.

And this is only one of the many positive steps that must be taken. For unless these and other important steps ARE taken, processes of manufacturing will be constantly hampered, and our defense program will be badly disrupted by long delays and by very high costs.

It is evident that any barriers to industrial production for the nation's defense are as dangerous as fifth column intrigue. Barriers to economic efficiency can imperil the nation as much as outright sabotage. Such obstructions will give great aid, and I should think much comfort, to any potential national enemy.

Mr. Thomas: Well, Mr. Coonley, let me ask you something in here. Production is all very well to talk about, but production isn't achieved by a lot of automatic machines. How are we fixed, as a nation, for men to actually do the work?

Mr. Coonley: You've put your finger on something important, Mr. Thomas. As far as top men are concerned you don't have to worry. We had a lot of dollar-a-year men during the last war, and there are a lot more today waiting to be called.

There is undoubtedly some shortage of skilled labor in many occupations vital to national defense. This problem must be met. I am satisfied, however, that if industry gets the necessary procurement orders promptly it will find ways and means to assemble and train all the skilled labor required.

And there's another highly important factor. It is imperative that provision be made for night and day capacity operation, of new and existing facilities, both in government plants and private industries essential to defense. This must be done if we are to be in a position to cope with the unprecedented burdens which this program will place upon us.

• Pointing the Way

A word of praise for those local organizations who have begun projects in sewing and knitting for Europe's war-torn millions.

The Iowa City chapter of the American Red Cross is the central agency, doing its share in the vast program of Red Cross relief that extends like a life-line across the nation.

Let us bear in mind that, without remuneration, these groups are devoting their time and energies to the alleviation of human suffering.

Nurses at Westlawn, working on full-time hospital schedules where the job is always the care of the sick and injured, who know a little more plainly than the rest of us what suffering means, were among the first to find time to aid sufferers four thousand miles away.

Human suffering is a positive thing. It takes cognizance of neither youth nor age, neither rich nor poor. This is especially true of the suffering of refugees of war.

The local organizations who are working with the Red Cross in this struggle to bring light through the shadows of hardship are pointing the way for America.

It is a job for all of us in America, where peace itself creates the priceless medium of opportunity, to work for those in less fortunate lands where opportunity has fled.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

U. S. Defense Plans

In a Bottleneck?

WASHINGTON—Speaking of bottlenecks, congressmen are beginning to feel around to find out if the whole national defense program may not be sliding into an invisible one.

What startled them was a bit of information their delegates to the launching of the battleship, North Carolina, picked up at the Brooklyn navy yard. An official there informed them his crew were only 40 per cent efficient due to the shortage of skilled labor. Every time he advertised for 100 skilled shipyard workers he said he could get only 4 or 5 who could efficiently perform the work.

In the house naval committee, another admiral told how inadequate were the provisions for schooling apprentices at the Philadelphia navy yard, where he was formerly assigned. He said there were only about 80 apprentices there then due to restrictions he had adopted in negotiations with the union.

Apparently this same situation lurked in Mr. Roosevelt's mind when he talked of conscripting youth for skilled work training in the near future.

40-Hour Week for the Navy

The rules committee in a private informal session has discussed the sudden withdrawal by the navy department of an order for a 48-hour week in navy yards working on defense vessels. Prevailing rule is 40 hours, a five-day week of eight hours.

Two unpublicized opinions developed in the committee. One group held the 48-hour week was not feasible yet because of restricted capacity of materials and other factors. Another voiced the suggestion that the administration was skimming on soft snow there because the political campaign is imminent.

Admiral Furlong of the bureau of ordnance privately told legislators he could get an order from the labor department for a 48-hour week as soon as the navy considers it necessary. Meantime the current arrangement whereby the government pays time and a half for all work over 40 hours will continue, and not all congressmen are opposed to that practice. In one of the naval appropriations bills Senator Walsh has inserted a provision requiring time and a half as well for clerks and non-union workers.

G. O. P. Foreign Platform

Experienced ambassadors and international lawyers grasped the inner leadership at once in the formation of the republican platform at Philadelphia. Four were most prominent—Edge, former ambassador to Paris; Fletcher, who has held many top diplomatic posts; George Wharton Pepper, international lawyer with senate experience, and Governor Landon, a delegate to the last Pan-American conference.

A calm and careful foreign plank is likely to result.

Long-Lost Lewis

Salty John Lewis was greeted by the republican leaders at Philadelphia like the long-lost republican friend he is. Strangers Landon and Fletcher patted him on the back and even antagonistic Charles Halleck of Indiana (who helped get the labor amendments through the house against Lewis' wishes) expressed himself impressed.

Landon vs. Willkie

Near the top of those republican leaders who do not like the idea of Willkie is supposed to be the 1936 standard bearer, Governor Landon. Nevertheless Willkie went up to nearby Wilmington five days before the convention in order to "let anyone see him who wants to."

You can mark it down definitely that Halleck, the Indiana congressman, will be chairman of the republican national committee if Willkie wins the nomination.

The Defense Body Expands

Nazi occupation may have ruined the old saw about anyone being able to sit in the Cafe de la Paix and eventually see the entire world pass. But the locale may be safely switched to the national defense commission.

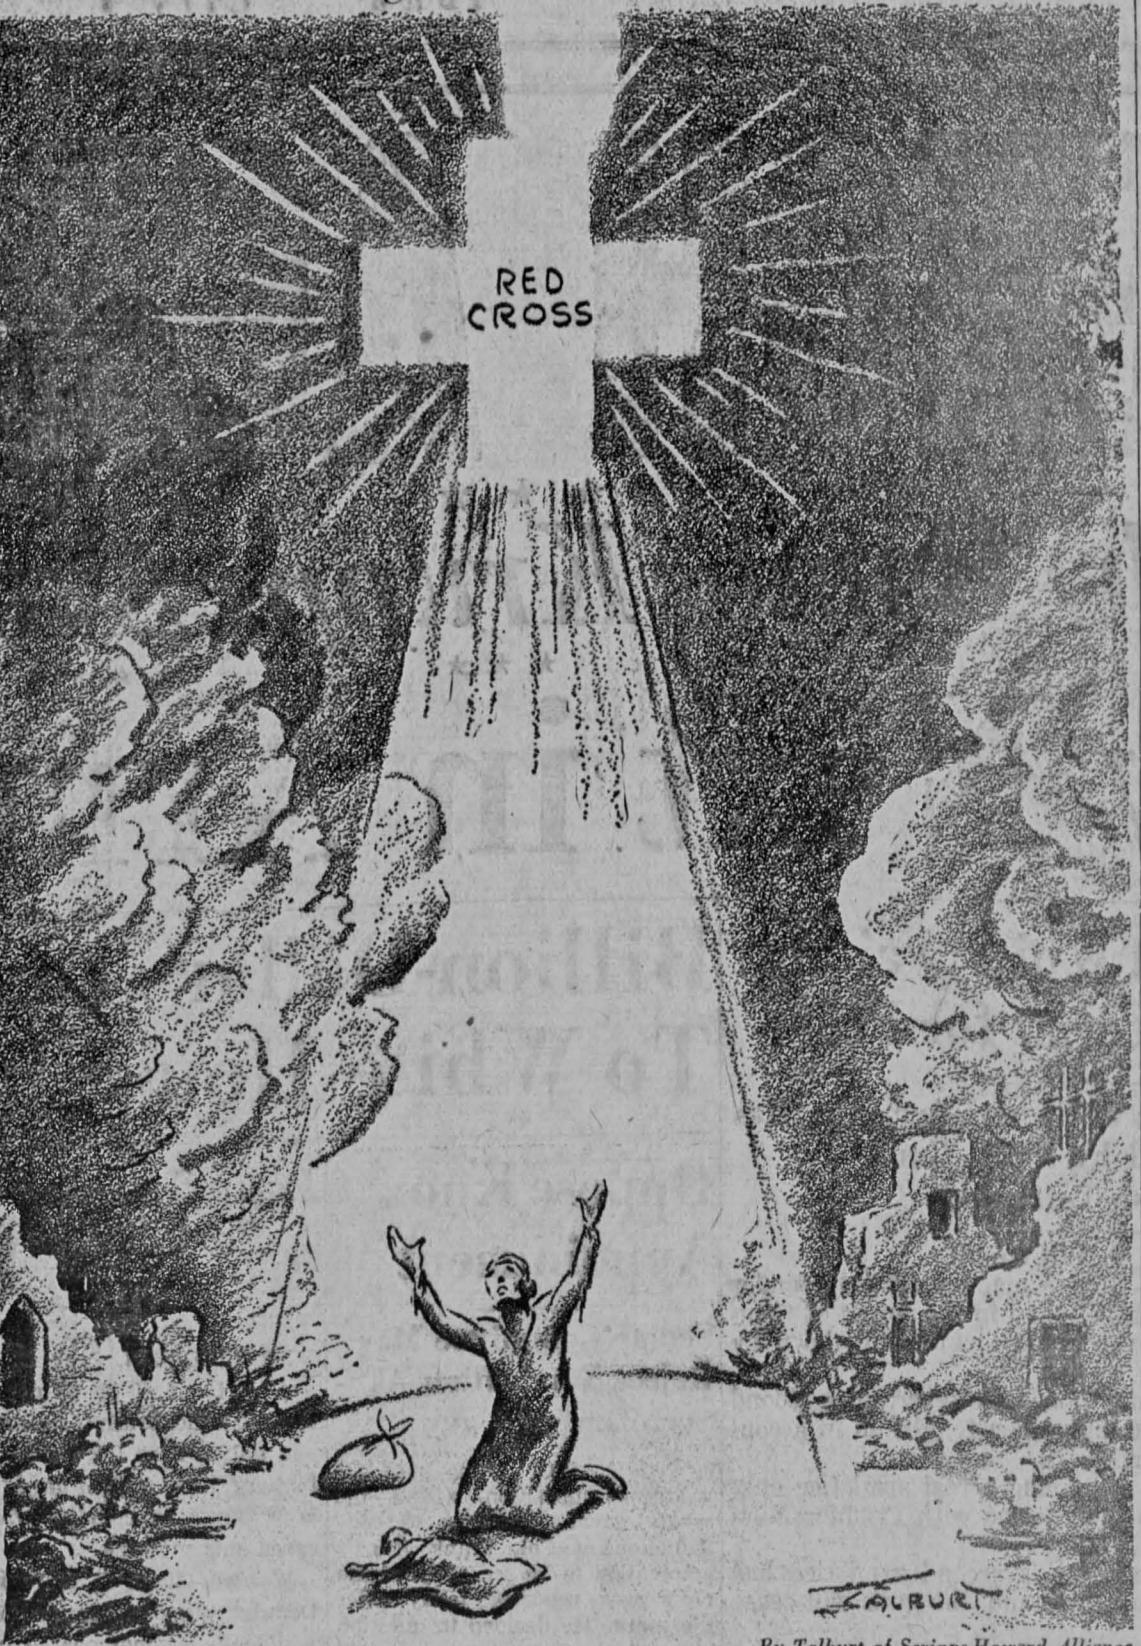

New dealers, economists and business men who have not been seen in months are flocking there either to join or deal with the rapidly expanding organization. Isadore Lubin, the labor department economist, has established an office there. So has Paul Porter, former leader in the original agricultural adjustment administration.

Most of this activity was hidden from public gaze by orders directing officials not to talk to newsmen.

From Fire, Flood and Drought, the American Red Cross Turns to the Relief of World War Suffering—

The RED CROSS--Its Vibrant History of World Mercy

By Talbert of Scripps-Howard Alliance

over-run, their crops destroyed, and farming equipment lost. As in the great flood of 1937, these unfortunate refugees have had to look to others for a safe haven in the emergency. They are homeless, destitute, and beset with mental anguish incomparable with any other great natural disaster.

For them the Red Cross is embarked upon this second great task of furnishing clothing and havens of safety besides food and medical attention. Fifty thousand volunteers in this country have already produced a half-million garments for civilian refugees, and 3,000,000 surgical dressings. The American Red Cross and its sister societies have established refugee centers, aided in locating loved ones, set up feeding stations. More than $5,000,000 in American Red Cross funds already have been spent in this country and overseas to meet emergency needs of refugees. The Red Cross is translating more millions of dollars into aid for these unfortunate people, as it becomes available from war relief contributions.

Wounds of War

Then there is the most horrible part of the European tragedy to be met by the Red Cross—the wounds of innocent women, children and old people caught in the machine gunning and bombings of "total war". It is far greater, more terrible, but comparable to the New England Hurricane and Flood of 1938 which not only caused enormous loss of property but also brought about appalling death and injury tolls resembling the wounds inflicted by war. An estimated 500 persons lost their lives in this disaster. Many thousands more were injured. Medical and nursing care was rushed to the scene quickly by the Red Cross. Recovery and identification of the dead, and handling of thousands of inquiries regarding the welfare of friends and relatives proceed under Red Cross direction.

Now the American Red Cross again is called to the scene of terrific physical as well as mental suffering, not only on the battlefield, but also among innocent civilians. To thousands of refugees fleeing their homes in terror, injury or death has come speedily, as in the hurricane, but this time bombs and machine-guns have replaced nature's mighty weapon. To others of them, unlike the hurricane, suffering has been slow, tortuous. They are the aged, the sick and the physically exhausted. Many of them die from effects of malnutrition and disease.

Red Cross in Action

The Red Cross is meeting this problem. In France today are emergency hospitals, refugee centers, where the Red Cross is ministering alike to civilians and soldiers. Red Cross ambulances are in the field. Today, as battle lines are moved ever deeper into France, the Red Cross follows, caring for the increasing number of civilians in their flight to safer areas.

Thus, the $20,000,000 the Red Cross has asked for the European relief operation serves a three-fold purpose. The task, greatest in its history, combines the needs which invariably accompany famine, flood, and hurricane. Through its Red Cross the American people are performing a humanitarian service, a greater need for which the world has never known.

HORROR IN EUROPE
In Europe today, the Red Cross again has this gigantic task of providing refuge. Many thousands have been forced to abandon in haste homes which bomb and shell have since destroyed. Their farms have been are no crops, no tillers of the soil. The armored tank and death-dealing bombs are now furrowing Europe's fields, replacing the plowshare. And the harvest, like the tillage, comes quickly, in the total destruction of property and livestock, and the terrible waste of human life.

Europe's fields are indescribably more terrible in their unproductiveness than the sun-scorched plains of this country in 1930 and 31, yet to the Red Cross they bring the same problem. Food must be supplied somehow, in some way. Millions of refugees must be fed until they again can find a way to become self-sustaining.

As in the drouth of 1930-31, the Red Cross now is feeding these starving millions. In the million-dollar cargo of Red Cross supplies being sent overseas on the first "mercy ship" of this war are thousands of dollars worth of foodstuffs furnished from government appropriated food surpluses. Other "mercy ship" consignments will be made soon. Red Cross funds cabled overseas have been spent among other uses, for food.

FLOOD!

Then there is the vast problem of havens and clothing for Europe's homeless, greater than in the Ohio-Mississippi flood of 1937 when one and a half million persons fled waters which raged in 200 counties in 12 states. More than 12,000 homes then were destroyed and 60,000 were damaged. One hundred thousand families lost household goods; livestock losses were tremendous. Flood costs to the areas affected has been estimated at $300,000,000. Thousands upon thousands of persons were torn from their accustomed routine of living, transported soaking wet and cold, often in the blackness of the night, to crowded concentration centers. Families were temporarily broken up, and individuals became exhausted with worry over the fate of the other members of the group. And always there was the pressure of anxiety over what had happened to the home, the livestock, the barn or other possessions.

'Don Juan' Translated, But Not Censored

University Play Translated by Thomas Stevens Presented Tomorrow

BY WALTER H. HOGAN

Last lines don't seem all important to a play's success or failure. But in the case of Moliere's "Don Juan" they are.

The apparent failure of the initial production of the show in 1665 resulted from the action of the "Will Hays" of that period.

"The play was violently censored, particularly the last speech," said Thomas Wood Stevens, who is staging his translation of the play which opens in University theater tomorrow night.

"This last speech restores the comedy balance," Stevens went on. "Without it Moliere had a bad tragedy. With it, a tragicomedy."

Theater historians have the legend that Moliere's piece was a failure, Stevens said. "But LaGrange's Journal," he pointed out, "shows that the receipts were good!"

It was LaGrange who played the title role in the first performance of the play at Paris at the Theatre of the Palace Royal. And the playwright created the role of Sganarelle.

"Under his hands the legend was transformed," said Richard L. Stokes in the St. Louis Dispatch. "A pious homily was turned into a ribald farce, and a godless villain was elevated into a paladin of free intelligence. With one of the most brilliant inspirations of malice, Moliere created Sganarelle, the hero's scurvy and craven lackey, to serve as a mouthpiece for the play's moralizing, and placed on his lips a burlesque of a sermon which is one of literature's triumphs of derision."

The university production is Stevens' own version of the Moliere play, freely translated for the Moliere tercentenary in 1922. The translation was checked during the rehearsals at Carnegie Tech by a French professor there sitting in on the practice sessions with a copy of the original play on his lap.

When "Don Juan" was given its last professional production in St. Louis, Reviewer Stokes, famous dramatic critic, said of Stevens' translation "The English version employed, a remarkably smooth and eloquent speech."

And so the curtain goes up at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on the university's production of "Don Juan" with Henderson Forsythe in the title role and with Verner Haldene of Des Moines in the Moliere role as Sganarelle.

And in this production the all-important last speech is hot cut!

Reds Outlast New York To Take Second

Milkman Jim Turner Wins Pitching Duel From Bill Lohrman

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP)—Milkman Jim Turner of the Cincinnati Reds outlasted Bill Lohrman of the New York Giants today in a tight pitching duel, 3-1, and so the Giants dropped back to third place in the National league pennant chase.

A crowd of 15,075 paid to see the 1939 league champions end a three-game losing streak as Turner gave up only eight hits in winning his fourth decision of the season. He has lost three.

Lohrman's loss was his third after six won. It was the first time the Reds had been able to master his deliveries this season, and last year he was their worst nemesis, beating them four out of five times.

The Giants blew a chance to stage a ninth inning rally on some running by Joe Moore. He got a life on Frank McCormick's fumble, moved to second on Bob Seeds' single, but failed to score when Babe Young singled to right. Moore, for some reason, stopped at third after rounding the bag and then was cut down at the plate when he made a belated attempt to score.

The Giants got their only run in the seventh on Moore's double, and Billy Werber's bad throw on Seeds' safe bunt.

In the eighth Frey was on base when Lombardi hit his home into the upper deck in left field.

Boston's defeat, coupled with Detroit's close victory over the New York Yankees, allowed the Tigers to slip into second place ahead of Boston.

Cleveland's first fat inning was set up when Joe Cronin fumbled Beau Bell's grounder. Ben Chapman and Ray Mack singled, scoring Bell; Ken Keltner walked, and Harder's safe bunt brought home Chapman. Lou Boudreau, who garnered four hits in five trips, then singled to score Mack and Keltner.

Announce Captains, Solicitors For St. Mary's Fund Drive

71 Persons Will Solicit During Week

Extensive Renovation Program Is Part Of Centennial Observance

Names of 12 captains, 53 city solicitors and six country solicitors who will work with the newly appointed finance committee to carry on a drive for funds for the extensive St. Mary's church renovation program in connection with the Iowa City church's centennial celebration were announced yesterday by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Carl H. Meinberg, pastor of St. Mary's.

The entire group of leaders and solicitors will meet at 6:30 tomorrow evening in the St. Mary's school auditorium to receive final plans and instructions for the drive which will continue in Iowa City and the surrounding vicinity throughout this week to raise the centennial fund.

"The money," Monsignor Meinberg said, "will go for necessary things. Even if it were not for the centennial celebration the things to be done would fill a long list. The church has not been renovated since 1907."

St. Mary's parish, as old as Iowa City, is intimately linked with the history of the community. Father Samuel Charles Mazzuchelli, designer of Iowa City's historic Old Capitol building, also designed the first St. Mary's church in Iowa City. This church, built in 1841, was replaced on the same spot in 1867 by the present church building.

Nearly all plans now underway in the observance of the church's 100 years in Iowa City were those of the late Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. J. Schulte, who died last Jan. 17 following 48 years as pastor of St. Mary's. The program is now being carried out as a tribute to Monsignor Schulte.

The finance committee which will direct the drive consists of Ray J. Baschnagel, chairman, and J. M. Otto and Clyde Burnett, vice-chairmen.

Captains of the solicitors are George Balluf, Dr. F. T. Bauer, Robert Bradley, Mary Donovan, Bernice Hauber, H. S. Ivie, Gus Klein, Mrs. Bruce Mahan, Ed Miltner, Gertrude Murphy, Berhard Sheridan and Francis Suppel.

The 53 city solicitors include Clara Adrian, Amelia Amelon, Dorothy Baschnagel, Betty Blue, Mrs. Earl Bolle, Cecelia Burnett, Mary Chopek, Celeste Fuhrman, Mrs. Joseph Gerber, Mrs. Leo Grimm, Irene Kneodel, Loretta Madden, Etta Metzger, Mrs. A. V. O'Brien, Kathryn Schultz.

Jeanette Woltman, Glen Pauley, Don Alberhasky, Clarence Alwine, Herman Amish, Mervin Belger, Richard Bireline, Charles Bryan, Arthur Clemence, Dr. Raymond Conwell, George Dohner, Frank Englert, Joseph Gerber, LeRoy Hanson, Glen Hart, James Hennessey.

Louis Hoffelder, C. F. Huber, Raymond Justen, Wilfred Kaspar, Jacob Kuebrich, John Laney, Louis Loria, Terry McGovern, William Machovec, J. J. Meyers, William Morrison, J. A. Parden, Frank Person, Gus Pusateri, Adrian Rittenmeyer, Verne Schilling, Paul Schmidt, Ben Schneider, Ray Slavata, Charles VeDepo, Will Villhauer and John Weisz.

Country solicitors are Harry Aicher, Louis Klein, Anton Goetz, John Milder, Ralph Rogers and Leo Ruppenkamp.

Included in the renovation work to be done in the church and the rectory is painting and varnishing of woodwork and walls, a new heating and lighting system in the church, refurnishing and new equipment for the rectory and construction of a two-car garage for the rectory. The garage is completed already and work is well underway in the rectory.

Also included is the repairing and playing of the carillon in the steeple of St. Mary's church. The set of 17 chimes has been still for over 35 years and the repair work is being done at numerous requests of many Iowa citizens, both Catholic and non-Catholic.

Bicycle Safety Day To Be Held Thursday; Afternoon Parade

The first special event of the season—Bicycle Safety day—will be held during the second week of activities of the Iowa City summer playgrounds, Eugene Trowbridge, recreational center director, stated yesterday.

The safety day program, which will be held Thursday, will begin with a decorated bicycle parade early in the afternoon from a place in the business district which will be designated some time this week. The parade will end at the Horace Mann school where a number of races and contests will be held.

Trowbridge said that boys and girls wishing to take part in the parade and races are to fill out entry blanks which may be obtained from the playground leaders.

Craft classes on the playgrounds will be held Wednesday afternoon for the decoration of bicycles for the parade.

Bombings—

One person was injured slightly in an accident about 8:30 last night on the hill north of Curtis bridge on U. S. highway No. 218 involving two cars and a truck.

Another bomber attacked an aerodrome at Huntlosen, southwest of Delmenhorst, which was clearly visible in the moonlight, and set fire to a number of aircraft lined up on the west side of the air base.

Heavy bombs were also seen to burst on the runway. Aerodromes to the north of Hamburg and at Kassel were also successfully attacked.

Simultaneously with these attacks, other squadrons of heavy bombers were engaged in raids on railway junctions, marshalling yards and oil depots in northwest Germany.

In the course of them, six supply and ammunition trains between Osnabrück and Bremen, and near the town of Bremen, were wrecked by direct hits from high explosives. Salvos of bombs dropped by raiders on a goods train at Furstenau, northwest of Rheine, completely wrecked it.

The auto following the truck was driven by Gus W. Larson of Moline, Ill. Neither Larson nor his passenger, Vic Callison, suffered injuries. The truck, southbound down the hill, was driven by Rex Nolan of Bettendorf.

The front ends of both autos were badly damaged but no estimates of the extent of damages was available last night. The truck was only slightly damaged along the left side.

acted into law well before the new fiscal year starts on July 1.

In addition to giving quick approval to senate-house compromises on the tax and defense bills, the two branches of congress accepted and sent along to the White House a compromise $1,157,711,357 relief appropriation bill.

War Profits Levy Dropped

As finally passed, the defense tax bill was shorn of a senate-approved proposal for a war-profits levy. It carries provisions to increase the national debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000; lowers personal income tax exemptions; increases the number of individual tax payers by an estimated 2,000,000 and imposes increased taxes on theater tickets, cigarettes, whiskey, gasoline and numerous other products.

The income tax changes will cover 1940 incomes payable on March 15, 1941. The excise increases become effective immediately the president signs the legislation.

Defense Funds

The $1,768,913,908 emergency defense appropriation was the latest of President Roosevelt's recommended defense expenditures. The bulk of the fund will be used for army airplanes, tanks, guns and other munitions, but part will go for navy needs, including a start on construction of 68 new fighting ships.

Passage of the emergency defense bill brought the total of defense appropriation measures approved up to now to $5,377,552,058. In addition, numerous items intended for defense purposes appeared in other routine supply bills.

The senate completed congressional action and sent to the White House during the day legislation to provide $1,023,282,690 for the labor department and federal security agency during the coming fiscal year.

Accident on Muscatine Avenue Causes $30 Damage to Automobile

A car driven by Harry Christensen of Dowdy sideswiped a car driven by Virgil C. Smith, 735 Oakland avenue, on Muscatine near Garden street about 6 o'clock last night.

Smith reported about $30 damages to his car which was struck on the left rear. Christensen, who was passing Smith in the same direction when the accident occurred, made no report of damages. The right front part of his auto was damaged.

The senate completed congressional action and sent to the White House during the day legislation to provide $1,023,282,690 for the labor department and federal security agency during the coming fiscal year.

Red Cross War Relief Donations Reported Yesterday Bring the Total for the Johnson County Drive to $2,494.63 leaving $345.37 yet to be received before the minimum quota of $2,840 is reached.

Yesterday's donations totaled $19.16. Red Cross representatives are receiving the voluntary donations at all banks in Johnson county or they may be mailed to the Red Cross office in Iowa City.

Yesterday's reported donors include a friend, $2; a friend, $25; T. P. Moore, $1; a friend, $50; Metzger, $1; a friend, $8; a friend, $1; Eastern Star, $10, and Carrie K. Bartlett, $5.
