Jubilant Nazis Proclaim Victory, Look Toward 'Great' Onslaught on England Waves of Nazi Planes Bomb England

Air Raid Alarms Sound In Wide Area of British Isles

Hum of Plane Motors Heard Above London But No Bombs Dropped on City; No Casualties Reported

LONDON, June 25 (Tuesday) (AP)—Waves of German bombers celebrated a victorious armistice with France today by flying over this island fortress and setting sirens wailing in a wide area of England and in London and dropping bombs in many places.

Enemy planes dropped numerous bombs in southeast and southwest England, ranged as far as Wales in the west, and visited the west and northeast, but there was no sound of anti-aircraft fire or of bombs dropping in London itself.

The throb of plane motors high above London was heard, however, and restless searchlights probed the skyline.

One plane was caught in the beam of a searchlight in London, but it was not known whether it was German or English.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage of anti-aircraft fire or of bombs dropping in London itself.

One plane was caught in the beam of a searchlight in London, but it was not known whether it was German or English.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage of anti-aircraft fire or of bombs dropping in London itself.

British fighter planes were active when three waves of German bombers flew at a great height over northeast England.

London Alarm

It was London's first real air raid alarm of the war. Night workers and sleepy citizens went streaming to air raid shelters and basements.

During the raid Royal Air Force bombers returning to their base (presumably from a raid on German forces) almost ran into a large number of German aircraft.

The British planes turned back toward the sea and reached home by another route.

The raids were of the widest extent in any one day since the war began last Sept. 3.

They gave quick meaning to the defense preparations of a Britain supported by a wandering Polish army, and die-hard exiled French leaders as well as her own subjects.

The French claimed to speak for the French fleet and the French colonial empire.

Previous Alarms

London had air raid warnings the day war was declared, again on Sept. 4, and on Oct. 10, but no planes were sighted and the last alarm was admittedly an error.

But today the drone of planes was heard before the alarm sounded, and reports flooded in from distant districts of heavy anti-aircraft action.

Rumanian, Red Troops Clash On Frontier

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 24 (AP)—Foreign military and diplomatic quarters were informed late tonight from Bucharest that Rumanian and Russian troops have clashed at several points along the Dniester river frontier.

More than 100 planes of the red air force were reported to have made reconnaissance flights over Bessarabia, the Rumanian province behind the Dniester.

Bessarabia for many years was Russian territory, but after the World war when Russia became communistic, the territory voted through representatives to join Rumania.

Soviet Russia never has recognized the validity of the transfer of sovereignty.

Reports have been arriving here for some time of large concentrations of red army troops, tanks and airplanes along the Russian-Rumanian frontier.

These advances followed others earlier in the day from Zagreb, Yugoslavia, that Italian troops had arrived at Scutari, near the Yugoslav-Albanian frontier the

Stassen Gives Keynote Talk To Delegates

Interest Centers About Willkie Gain With Republicans

By RICHARD L. TURNER

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 24 (AP)—Young Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota sounded the 1940 republican keynote to a clamorously applauding national convention tonight that "the role of government must be that of an aid to private enterprise, and not a substitute for it."

Denouncing what he termed new deal "failures" as the cause of American problems, both domestic and foreign, he called upon the party to "advance with decisive and determined steps upon four major fronts:

"The front of national preparedness.

"The front of fifth column defense.

"The front of domestic economic welfare.

"The front of governmental effectiveness."

Applause greeted each of these exhortations.

"The saddest chapter of the last four years," Stassen shouted, "has turned its political gaze upon a third term" instead of upon the national welfare.

He spoke to an audience which had trooped into Convention Hall heavily pondering and excitedly debating the developments of a day which brought:

Widespread reports of new gains for the drive of Wendell Willkie.

An assertion by a spokesman for Senator Robert A. Taft that instead, the Willkie boom had actually "struck a snag," and had been slowing down since midday yesterday.

U.S. Withdrawal of French Diplomat Raises Question of Future Relations

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—The United States withdrew its chief diplomatic representative from Bordeaux today in a move which raised questions as to both present and future relations with the Petain ministry in France.

Secretary Hull announced that Anthony J. Drexel Biddle had been ordered to leave the temporary French capital and resume in London his duties as ambassador to the exiled Polish government.

The secretary of state said that Biddle's departure for London had nothing to do with the question of possible withdrawal of recognition of the Petain government in favor of the newly-formed French National committee in London which is seeking to organize continued French resistance in the war.

William C. Bullitt, Hull said, still is the ambassador to France. However, Bullitt has been cut off from direct communication with the state department since the Germans occupied Paris. Communication between this government and the Petain ministry has been through Biddle.

News dispatches from abroad said that Bullitt had arrived at Bordeaux, present seat of the Petain government, but the state department officials said that up to early tonight they had received no word from Bullitt at Bordeaux. It was explained that while he had been given no special instructions to go to Bordeaux, he had been told previously to take any action he thought necessary.

Ends War With France After 2-Weeks' Fight

Armistice Terms Not Made Public; Firing Ceases on Fronts

ROME, June 24 (AP)—Italy triumphantly ended her war with beaten France today—just two weeks after Premier Benito Mussolini plunged into the European conflict on the side of his powerful axis partner, Adolf Hitler.

The armistice, terms of which were not made public at once, was signed at 7:15 p.m. (11:15 a.m. CST), fifteen minutes under a full day before they were presented to the four French delegates who on Saturday had agreed to Hitler's terms in Compiègne forest, France.

Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister and Mussolini's son-in-law, informed the German government of the signing 20 minutes later. As a consequence hostilities were to cease at 1:35 a.m. Tuesday (5:35 p.m. CST, Monday), in accordance with the provision of the German-French terms that firing cease six hours after their notification of the conclusion of the Italo-French armistice.

Mussolini, who only fourteen days ago stood on a balcony of his Palazzo Venezia to tell his nation that "we have decided to take the risks and sacrifices of war," was not present when the armistice was signed in the 17th century villa Inghesa, twelve miles from Rome.

The historic villa chosen for the momentous conference is in the little village of Oligiata.

Presumably he had not seen the four French delegates at any time since they arrived by German plane from Munich yesterday afternoon to open the negotiations. The terms were presented yesterday in 20 minutes, and discussions lasted nearly four hours today in the large salon on the ground floor of the villa.

In the end General Charles Huntziger, leader of the French delegation, and Marshal Pietro Badoglio, chief of the Italian general staff, signed the documents.

Child Drowns

Cruiser Quincy Stays South

United States Also Orders Flagship To Proceed to Montevideo

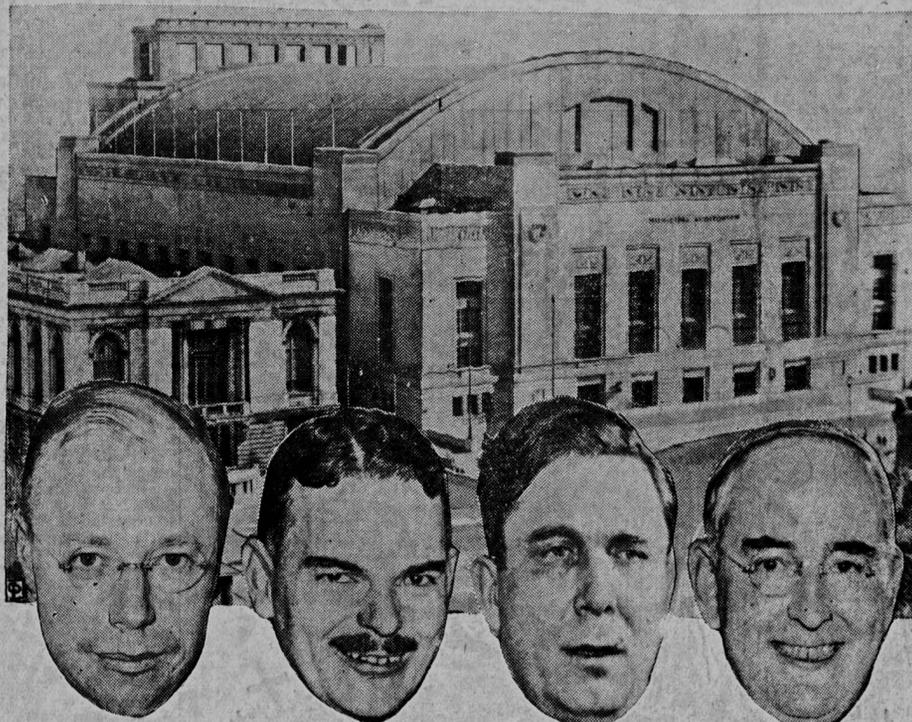

MONTEVIDEO, June 24 (AP)—The U. S. Cruiser Quincy, scheduled to leave Montevideo tomorrow after a "good will visit" at a time when Uruguay is investigating alleged pro-Nazi plots to occupy the country, received unexpected orders tonight from Washington to remain "for a few more days."

In addition, it was learned, the flagship Wichita of the seventh cruiser squadron has left Rio De Janeiro for Montevideo.

Observers here took the presence of a U. S. warship in Montevideo harbor as an indication the United States would back up the Uruguay government in its actions to investigate and wipe out any foreign-dictated plots.

Word that the Quincy would stay came only a few hours after the Uruguay chamber of deputies authorized steps to safeguard against subversive plots. There was speculation that the arrival of the Wichita might mean that the entire seventh squadron would be assigned to this part of the South American coast.

German, Italian Victim Takes Official Action After Armistice

General Mourning Proclaimed Throughout Heart-Sick Republic on Saddest Day of Its History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BORDEAUX, June 25 (Tuesday)—Vanquished France officially laid down her shattered arms today, victim of the military might of Germany abetted by Italy.

General mourning was proclaimed throughout the heart-sick republic on this saddest day in its history.

The "cease-fire" order, for which the exhausted soldiers of France had waited in the last interminable six hours of sluggish but still deadly battle, came at 12:35 a. m. French time (6:35 p. m. Monday, EST.)

France at last was at peace—an uneasy peace that found more than half her devastated soil occupied by the invaders, millions of her people homeless, untold numbers of her finest manhood dead or wounded, and her government a virtual prisoner surrounded by the victorious foe.

A more enduring peace must await the outcome of the continuing struggle between the axis powers and Great Britain, France's erstwhile ally.

(Apparently, all Frenchmen will not accept the bitter armistice.

"Shame and revulsion fill the hearts of good Frenchmen," declared General Charles De Gaulle in a broadcast from London, where he formed a French national committee to continue the war.

"France and the French people are delivered to the enemy, and hand and foot. . . France is worthy of something better than the slavery accepted by the government of Bordeaux.

"Some day, I promise you, our allied forces, the best of the French army, the mechanized army, by land, by sea and by air, together with allies, will restore liberty to the world and greatness to our country."

"Total War"

Recognizing the hard terms to which France has yielded after 46 days of the German "total war" and two weeks of conflict with Italy, Minister of Interior Charles Pomaret proclaimed the day of mourning.

"Today France must be silent," he said. "Her heart will bleed, but she will forge a new hope."

The troops, so recently locked in mortal combat, are to be confined to barracks; all flags will be draped; and all stores, cafes and theaters will be closed; the government will attend special religious services.

Then France must begin the tremendous task of rebuilding and rehabilitation imposed on her by the conquerors.

The full armistice terms will be announced approximately 48 hours from the official end of hostilities this morning.

In its last communique while fighting still was in progress, the French command related that the Germans were making slight progress but had reached Angouleme, 65 miles northeast of Bordeaux, and Aixles-Bains, resort in Savoy 40 miles south of Geneva.

Attacks Continue

Italian attacks in the Alps continued all day, the communique said, but made little progress except for a slight advance past

Neutrality Law Invoked by F.R.

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—An old neutrality law enacted during the World war was invoked by President Roosevelt today to halt the projected sale to Great Britain of 20 torpedo boats originally ordered for the navy.

The chief executive ended negotiation, which had aroused a storm of congressional criticism, on the strength of an informal opinion by Attorney General Jackson. The attorney general ruled that the sale would violate a 1917 act making it unlawful:

"To send out of the jurisdiction of the United States any vessel built . . . as a vessel of war . . . with any intent or under any agreement . . . that such vessel shall be delivered to a belligerent nation . . ."

(The navy, on June 19, announced that it had cleared the way for the Electric Boat company to sell the British the 20 torpedo boats. Later Stephen Early, press secretary at the White House, said the president had approved recommendations of the navy and treasury departments for the transaction.)

It was disclosed during the day, that the British had failed, too, in efforts to purchase destroyers here. Secretary Edison, in his last press conference before leaving the navy department to run for governor of New Jersey, said "pressure" had been brought on the navy to sell 111 World war destroyers, but that none was sold.

"We are keeping all our combatant vessels," Edison added.

Mr. Roosevelt, just back from a week end at Hyde Park, N. Y., called in Gen. George Marshall, army chief of staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, for a forenoon conference.

There was no announcement afterward but it was presumed that they canvassed the whole defense situation in the light of European developments and the mass of legislation sent to the White House by congress at Saturday's session.

The first measure to be signed was the war department civil functions bill which, among other things, provided $15,000,000 in cash and $99,000,000 in contract authorizations to begin construction of a third set of locks for the Panama canal.

U. S. Industry and Defense

Because of widespread public interest in the important part both government and industry must play in the problem of national defense, The Daily Iowan will present a series of three brief talks by officials of the National Association of Manufacturers, interviewed by Lowell Thomas over the National Broadcasting company network June 3.

(LAST IN THE SERIES)

Mr. Thomas: Mr. Chester (C. M. Chester, past president, National Association of Manufacturers and chairman of board, General Foods corporation) there are some phases of all this on which you're particularly well qualified to talk. For instance I'd like to find out from you what the situation is with regard to the enormous plant expansion that is going to be necessary in this national defense program. What happens when plants are expanded a lot, and then war ceases? That spells trouble, doesn't it?

Mr. Chester: Mr. Thomas, that is an exceedingly important problem. It is so important that, if mishandled, it can do a great deal of damage to our entire national economy and we must not lose sight of that fact. Our experience after the World War 20 odd years ago taught us that many additions to plants and equipment, made for emergency purposes, have little or no value when the emergency passes. There are undoubtedly some cases where government funds will be needed to finance the expansion. But if this is carried too far, the result will be an enormous increase in the public debt.

There is another way that most of the expansion can be properly financed. In every town in the country there are men and women with savings which they would invest if they felt their investments were properly safeguarded. There are millions of such people eager to help the nation and at the same time, to protect their own families' savings. The emergency tax legislation should be revised to permit quick amortization of extra investments occasioned by production for defense. This is essential if the country is not to be thrown into another depression when the emergency is over.

Mr. Thomas: Is there a real danger in government financing of this plant and equipment expansion, Mr. Chester?

Mr. Chester: I'd say there is. Very definitely. Our American institutions — and believe me, they look better today than ever before — must be protected against totalitarianism from within as well as from without. Heavy government financing means heavy government control, regardless of who the government may be. So it is highly important, wherever it is necessary to use any government funds, these funds should be authorized only when private capital is not available on reasonable and sound terms. Any special authority granted to our government leaders should be made subject to these conditions.

Mr. Thomas: Do you think that the removal of the barriers to production which you and Mr. Coonley have discussed here tonight would mean the giving up of any social progress which may have been made in the last few years.

Mr. Chester: Absolutely not. None of these things requires the abandonment of any sound social legislation. They do mean, however, the removal of any legislative and administrative restrictions which have proved serious drags on production from both military and industrial experience. Mr. Thomas, one thing I want to make very clear is this: government, business and labor, by working together unselfishly and patriotically can and will make America secure against any attack.

Mr. Thomas: Mr. Prentiss, have you a final word to say to us before we close?

Mr. Prentiss: I was hoping you hadn't forgotten about me, Mr. Thomas, because in conclusion I'd like to say this: I have just returned from meetings with thousands of industrialists — 22 meetings in 16 states over the country — and I know those of us in industry recognize the gravity of our defense problem. We recognize the demands which will be made on our skill and capacity. We recognize that the situation calls for the full power of American genius in industrial management and mass production.

We of the National Association of Manufacturers pledge the knowledge and experience and the utmost energy of all our members to the task ahead of us.

We commit ourselves to this effort—abhorring war and urging every possible effort to avoid it that is compatible with our national honor and safety.

We pledge the full and continued opposition of industry to profiteering in any form. That any man or any group should use the national emergency to serve selfish ends is unthinkable.

And, Mr. Thomas, there is complete unity of thought among us on that.

Republicans in the Cabinet

Political feeling has, thus far, been relegated to the need of the nation for inspired unity in the interests of defense.

Now, with President Roosevelt's appointment of two republicans to his cabinet, the Philadelphia convention of the G. O. P. has ousted those two members from the "war mongering party."

The pros argue that the president is seeking non-partisan solidarity in a time of crisis.

Take your choice. Both Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson are firm believers in the Roosevelt foreign policy of openly aiding the allies. That at least makes for cabinet solidarity.

Whether such solidarity is to be desired is a question. It all depends on whether one agrees with the whole Roosevelt program.

But this much is certain: the republican party didn't gather any laurels by denouncing the presidential choices for the war and navy posts, any way you look at it. Knox and Stimson recognize the emergency their party seeks to ignore on an apparently political basis. Surely both men are capable. President Roosevelt, in his Jackson day address, said jokingly in effect: "Apparently the republicans would rather go to hell alone than to heaven with the democrats." Right now seems to be the wrong time for a manifestation of any such feeling.

Of course it is an open question, in this case, whether the party in power is headed heavenward.

But right now the problem is twofold: (1) To place this nation in a position to defend itself on land. That is predominantly the job of Mr. Stimson.

(2) To build up the nation's navy to aid in the program of Mr. Stimson. That will be the job of Mr. Knox.

What is the difference if Mr. Stimson and Mr. Knox, individually or collectively, are democrats or republicans? Any defense of the nation's political integrity must FOLLOW the defense of the nation physically.

A Man About MANHATTAN

Old 'Einstein' Abets Miss Dare's Dancing

NEW YORK—Yvette Dare, the beautiful Balinese sarong dancer who is disrobed nightly before admiring audiences by a cagey old talking macaw, is really a little American girl from Lawton, Okla., whose name is Evelyn Evans.

Almost everyone who attended the fair last summer or who has wandered into Leon and Eddie's this summer, will remember Yvette. As she dances the symbolic terpichorean rituals of the Bali maids a gorgeously plumed bird flies down from a tree and plucks away the flowers at her wrist. Then he flies from his perch again and plucks away her brassiere and returns with it to his perch. If he gets back to his perch without dropping the brassiere (and he has never been known to drop it) he gets an extra portion of watermelon seeds when he gets back to his dressing room. The third time he flies from the tree he removes Miss Dare's sarong, which is one of those things that Miss Dorothy Lamour has made famous, and again returns to his perch.

"How in the world did you ever think up an act like this?" I asked this diminutive girl, who is ivory complexioned and weighs only 107 pounds.

"I've always loved to read history," she said, "and one of my favorite passages from history tells how Alexander the Great conquered an African country with a talking bird. That gave me the idea, for all my life we have had a parrot, or macaw, in the family. He's upstairs now. His name is 'Einstein.' So I taught him all the tricks he knows. It took months, but Einstein is a smart bird, and he seldom makes a mistake. He sits in the tree watching me dance, and when it is time for him to come after my things I murmur 'Auk' to him. In Balinese this means 'Come on.' In addition to Einstein I have three other birds—Joeko, Jack and Lipstick. Einstein is the oldest. He has been in our family over 30 years. When they get old their faces shrivel up just like old people."

Yvette has been dancing four years, though it was not until she arrived in Manhattan last summer that she became a sensation. "When I first started my brother and my father and mother in Lawton thought I was slightly doped—meaning silly. But they think it is all right now."

Yvette is French and Indian, which accounts for her jet black hair and deep olive skin. She is just one inch over five feet.

"These marks on my right hand are from Einstein's talons," she explained. "He still thinks my arm is the limb of a tree, and when he flies to it, he clutches it very tightly. Last summer I took him out to the fair on the subway, but he didn't like that very much, and people stared quite a bit. Now we ride taxis to and from the hotel."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS By PAUL MALLON

New Arms Layout Catches F.D.R.'s Eye

WASHINGTON—A tremendous new program to provide more than $4,000,000,000 of army equipment has been recommended to President Roosevelt by his topmost defense counselor, William S. Knudsen. F.D.R. is supposed to have nodded his head and expressed his intention of submitting it to congress as soon as it is in shape. Fundamentally this is the old secret army mobilization plan to furnish equipment for several million men as our maximum military defense effort, but it does not contemplate rallying the men, only the equipment during the next few years. Knudsen interested the president on the ground that maximum needed factory expansion is just physically possible if the government continues appropriations. Manufacturers must know what is ultimately expected for several years to extend their capacity to meet requirements.

The president liked it also because it provided a long range balance for the $4,000,000,000 navy program he submitted this week.

The Amazing Willkie Blitzkrieg

PHILADELPHIA—It looks like a Taft ticket with Dewey, or a Willkie with someone yet undesigned.

The Willkie drive has penetrated so fast and deep within certain state delegations as to make these alternatives practically probable. It has primarily opened the necessity of Senator Taft and District Attorney Dewey looking to a juncture of their forces as the only means of stopping the Willkie stampede. Unless they can get together and win early, the smiling, dynamic business crusader is apt to drain their forces by the 6th ballot.

'WILLKIE FRIGHT'

The dual effect of the Willkie blitzcampaign is evident in the selection of R. B. Craeger, the Texas hand in republican politics, as Senator Taft's campaign manager. On his way to this scene of the dramatic delegate conflict, Mr. Craeger had not yet made up his mind whom he was for. He told friends he was leaning toward Taft but would make his decision after his arrival. So great were his apprehensions concerning Willkie that he not only wound up swiftly in the Taft camp but at the head of it.

WILLKIE POWERFUL

The Willkie managers have reached out so swiftly, no accurate gauging of their full strength will be possible—until later on. In the nearby New Jersey delegation, for a good instance, are 32 votes supposed to be pledged to Dewey, but no New Jersey authority is now in a position to say they will even vote for Dewey on the first ballot. There are now at least 15 Willkie votes in the delegation and there may be more when the time comes.

The Willkie workers have deluged the delegates with telegrams, letters, postcards and verbal appeals, increasing their strength hourly. One eastern delegate told me he received 15 such in one evening.

CAMPAIGN CONTRAST

A Willkie business associate who has not been affiliated with the political movement wandered into Philadelphia in the line of his business duties and was astounded to find no Willkie headquarters, no street signs, no pictures, no buttons, no band. Angriely he called Willkie on the telephone exclaiming he could find no evidence of the boss' candidacy, and urging that someone get busy and erect some Willkie symbols, such as are always associated with presidential aspirations. Willkie laughed and replied:

"You get the contrast of my candidacy there don't you? That's all I want."

The Willkie movement has suffered in accommodations because of its late start. The headquarters is an office high up in a business building, and Willkie's personal quarters are a bedroom and a sitting room in a hotel, both remote from the eminence and expansiveness of even some of the minor vice-presidential candidates.

SPOTS ON WILLKIE?

Murky stories have sprung up among the delegates concerning some of Willkie's business deals, and such things, but not many more than are generally aimed at a rising challenger.

The general assumption among the delegates seems to be that if there was any lisp on Willkie's background it would have been discovered by the new deal searchers who make a specialty of such inquiries concerning antagonists like Willkie with whom they deal.

POWERFUL BACKERS

Willkie is no longer friendless at the top of the republican party. Three of the most influential authorities in the existing party organization have given unmistakable quiet signs of their allegiance.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Don't Try to Be A Film Extra! Vernon Hoagland, pinch-hitting for Robbin Coons, has written three stories on the life of the Hollywood extras. This is the first:

HOLLYWOOD—So you want to be an extra in the movies, where some big salaried director can single you out of the mob and make you a top-salaried star? Take it from the men and women who are extras—that's not the way to crash the movies. That's the way to starve, they say. That's the way to see uncertainty and poor food and irregular hours destroy looks and self-confidence. "We don't want any more extras," says Howard R. Philbrick, new chief of Central Casting. "We already have 7,000, and that's far too many. Our aim is to whittle that group down, not to admit new extras." All extras must be members of the Screen Actors Guild. Prospective members must show they can fill a real need or serve a definite purpose. Usually, too, they must bear recommendations from members. In other words, the would-be extra faces the problem of many a would-be anything else—the closed shop.

Average income for the Hollywood extra last year was around $446. Only 70 out of 7,000 made $2,000 or more. During this January there were fewer jobs than for any month since 1935. The calls for extras during the first four months of 1940 were fewer by 26,068 than during the same period in 1939, and the income $300,000 less. Extras who get the most work are those who have the largest wardrobes. Women say that a wardrobe costing from $1,000 to $5,000 is necessary. Those who work in mob scenes get $5.50 a day. In party scenes—informal dress—they get $11. For evening clothes it's $16.50. The few who speak a line or two get $25.

Few extras have worked up into featured roles and a very, very few have become stars. Gary Cooper once was an extra; so was the late Jean Harlow. Most stars have entered the films from the stage or radio or little theater. The extra's part is invariably tediously small, and the work is repetitious—a dozen "takes" may be shot of the same small scene. If the extra tries to make himself noticed by pushing himself forward, he usually ends up with less work. Audiences might recognize him in another unconnected scene, so the director makes it a point to leave him out of the additional shots. Says Brooks Benedict, one-time film heavy, now an extra: "We're in the most uncertain, shakiest business in the world. People don't pay much attention to us—but when they do, boy, are we grateful!"

Music Should Be Education Says Prof. Charles Righter

Music is a reflection of life, and if well executed, it has all the elements of life, good and bad, beautiful and harsh," declared Prof. Charles B. Righter in a round table discussion on music and art yesterday which was held as part of the secondary schools conference at the university this week.

As a standard for judging a music teacher's success, Professor Righter suggested the following points: the student's ability for variation in quality of tone, dynamics and rhythmic patterns, as well as the student's reactions to music moods and the discipline of the teacher.

"High school music has become an entertainment unit rather than the educational unit that it should be," complained Professor Righter. He explained that parents, various civic clubs and other high school students rely upon the high school band for their entertainment, thus depriving that organization of possible advancement because of the demands upon it.

Vivien M. Robe, visiting summer school instructor in music from New York, stated that classes in harmony should rightfully come only after a student demand for such a class.

She believes that the student should realize first what he is missing and that he really needs such a class before it is added to the curriculum.

Speaking on art, Alden F. McGrew, visiting instructor from Lawrence college, Wisconsin, stated that there is more room for expansion in art than in music, and listed some of the outcomes of art education that will affect the persons subjected to art.

First listing taste, McGrew subdivided that heading into the matters of dress, home decoration and business as far as personal results are concerned.

Civic pride, he added, also can be highly developed by means of art education; it is only by this means that cities are able to wipe out slum conditions, build more attractive business sections and do away with lack of individuality in houses.

Edna Patzig, chairman of the discussion, expressed the opinion that the choice of a teacher is by far the most important in teaching art, and that this teacher should really serve as an example to the students.

The other points necessary for the success of art in high schools, according to Miss Patzig, are a balanced program of art and co-operation between the different departments of the school. The latter is especially necessary for the furtherance of art and music in the secondary schools.

Miss Patzig said there is no harm in occasional contests if pupils and instructors are not judged entirely by them as so often the community is likely to do.

'Don Juan' Tickets Still Available For Everyone

Students may still secure tickets to the remaining performances of "Don Juan" by presenting their identification cards at room 8-A in Schaeffer hall, Dr. Wallace A. Goates, business manager, announced. The show closes Friday night. No matinee is scheduled.

People not registered in summer school may still obtain season tickets also. For the same price, half of the six single admissions, they will be admitted to one more play than on the regular winter program.

The program, presenting six plays within six weeks, is something of an innovation in university dramatics. The schedule includes a variety of plays.

The second summer production is the Pulitzer prize comedy "You Can't Take It With You," by Hart and Kaufman. Under Prof. Vance M. Morton's direction, the show is moving into the final stages of rehearsal.

Anyone interested in selling season tickets on a commission basis should report to Dr. Goates in Schaeffer hall, he said.

Bose Chooses Topic for Talk

'Crisis in East Asia' Will Be Interpreted In Afternoon Forum

"Crisis in East Asia" will be discussed by Dr. Sudhindra Bose of the political science department in his second address of the series on international relations this afternoon at 3:10 p. m. in the house chamber of Old Capitol.

He believes that the United States should be alive to the present serious developments in the Pacific.

"If America enters into the present European war, it is not unlikely that this country may find itself engaged not only against Germany and Italy, but also against their axis-partner, Japan," Dr. Bose has pointed out.

America today faces a dilemma in the Far East from which there is no escape, according to the lecturer in oriental politics.

"The United States," he suggests, "must do one of two things. She must either commercially help Japan crush China, or she must by various trade restrictions help China to fight Japan. There is no third alternative."

Open to the general public, today's lecture is intended to explain the significance of the present situation in the Orient.

'The Flower Family Album' Just Out

Gretchen Harshbarger and Mother Cooperate in Garden Book

To write and illustrate a book on gardening with the aid of radio is what one would naturally expect of Gretchen Harshbarger of Iowa City and her mother Helen Field Fischer of Shenandoah.

Mrs. Harshbarger and her mother are members of the Field family of Shenandoah which have been advising Iowa's gardeners by air for many years.

"The Flower Family Album" is their new book written for people interested in knowing that the onion is a low brow lily without having to delve through botanical authorities for the family relationships.

While Mrs. Fischer, who conducts a garden program twice daily on the Shenandoah station, compiled the album, Mrs. Harshbarger, who has just resumed a bi-weekly "Through the Garden Gate" program over WSUI, did the flower portraits.

The book is unique in its attempt to classify the common garden flowers and vegetables by family with identifying portraits.

The part that radio played in the making of the album consisted in furnishing the impetus together with listeners' aids and suggestions for flowers to be included, and blossoms for the flowers that the illustrator wanted to draw.

To Mrs. Harshbarger, radio proved a "blessing" in finding blossoms of plants that she wanted to illustrate. She had decided that every flower had to be drawn from a living model, since various botany books have conflicting illustrations for the same flower.

The illustrator was able to overcome practical difficulties like drawing the Hoya flower of the milk weed family in July when it actually bloomed in May by making frantic appeals for late blossoms to garden lovers via the radio.

A graduate of Cornell university at Ithaca, N.Y., the flower book illustrator is the wife of Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the speech department.

She has adapted her college major of "Landscape Architecture" in planning her home with its sunny and shady gardens, often referred to as one of Iowa City's loveliest spots.

The mother of two boys, she believes that children and gardening go together.

Enthusiastic about "sturdy" flowers, she says the best way to keep dogs and children from "trampling on papa's pet tulip" is to plan garden paths that will appeal to the footsteps of dogs and children.

She has practiced what "she preaches" in planning her own gardens, too, and says that her greatest destruction is from the woodchuck.

"The Flower Family Album" is not Mrs. Harshbarger's first publishing effort. She has contributed articles on gardening to "Better Homes and Gardens," "American Home" and "Household" magazines.

And naturally, she believes in radio and is looking forward to the day when, like her mother, she can broadcast from her own flower gardens.

Brownies Pounce on Athletics, 9 to 4

Four Homers Aid St. Louis In Easy Win

Elden Auker Gains Sixth Win of Year By Stopping A's

ST. LOUIS, June 24 (AP)—Four home runs, one with two men on base, were hit by the St. Louis Browns today in defeating Philadelphia's Athletics, 9 to 4.

Harold Clift's seventh of the year drove in two runners ahead of him in the four-run sixth. Walt Judnich notched his ninth of the season right after Clift's blow. He had clouted his eighth in the third. Don Hefner got his first homer of the year in the fifth.

Elden Auker, batted out of the box only last Saturday by Washington, held the A's to two hits in the first five innings and gained his sixth victory of the year against five defeats.

While the Browns' scoring ended in the sixth, Philadelphia scored its first runs in that inning on Al Brancato's single, Wally Moses' double, an infield out and Bob Johnson's single. Two more were added in the eighth. Bennie McCoy singled, Johnson walked, Dick Siebert drove McCoy home with a single and Johnson scored from third as Frank Hayes fled to Rip Radloff.

Except for their run-scoring innings, Philadelphia did not threaten. The Browns filled the bases in the second with two out but Clift popped to Brancato to end the inning.

The victory kept St. Louis in fifth place.

Hawkeye Highlights

Iowans will have their chance to express with ballots their appreciation of the great shows put on in 1939 by Iowa football team in its first season under Dr. Eddie Anderson... they can vote for Hawkeyes in the all-star poll between July 12 and 23... and for Dr. Eddie between July 23 and Aug. 4... the objectives: to put such men as Nile Kinnick and Erwin Prasse on the team and Dr. Anderson as the coach from the Big Ten.

Former Iowa athletes are working themselves into better high school coach jobs... Howard Moffitt, basketball and football star of the earlier 30s, goes from Waukon to Vinton next fall... Dwight Hoover, blocking back of five years ago, takes over the Fairfield post after three good years at Audubon.

Iowa in 1939 beat every team on the 1940 football schedule except Nebraska and Illinois... didn't meet them... South Dakota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota, Purdue and Notre Dame all can call upon the ancient revenge motive.

A photograph of Dr. Anderson on the practice field soon may appear in a national magazine... accompanied by a few paragraphs about his success with the iron men of 1939.

Iowa is one of seven Big Ten universities represented at the national intercollegiate golf tournament at Manchester, Vt... Hawkeyes can't figure in the team standing, however, for they have only two men, Jim Hoak and Clayton Pittman... play continues all week.

Lee Savold Defeats Whitters In Return Bout at Des Moines

Savold Floors Negro For Seven Count Before Full House

DES MOINES, June 24 (AP)—Lee Savold, Des Moines heavyweight, won a newspaper decision "by a wide margin" here tonight in an eight-round return bout with Johnny Whitters, Pontiac, Mich., Negro. Savold weighed 189, Whitters, 205.

Savold, given every round after the first which was a draw, floored the veteran of nine years' experience for the first time in Whitter's career.

A left hook to the body in the sixth round put Whitters on one knee where he took Referee Alex Fidler's count of seven before clambering to his feet and rushing into a clinch.

A crowd of 4,000 persons which filled every seat and all the standing room in the arena—estimated 1,000 having been turned away—saw the battle. Whitters, until the knockdown, did no leading except an occasional left jab which Lee usually brushed aside with his gloves. And a few punches at close quarters, but he came out in the seventh desperately throwing leather and showing an apparent willingness to exchange blows with his opponent, especially in the clinches, but even so Savold, although he took some punches, had enough the better of the vicious exchanges to get a shade.

At the end of the fight Whitter's face was a bloody smear and Savold's left hand was puffed from the punches he had landed on the negro's head. Whitters was given a 10-round decision over Savold in a bout at St. Louis late last March.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

- Couldn't Happen
- Brave Words
- Billy Conn

NEW YORK, June 24 (AP)—As our colleague Eddie Brietz pointed out, every time Joe Louis' fists marked another detour on Arturo Godoy's map it must have hurt Billy Conn, parked down there in a ringside seat. Yet Billy Conn is still yearning for a Louis match. It couldn't happen to him.

Couldn't Happen
Oh no, it couldn't happen to him. It couldn't happen to Bob Pastor, the four-minute mile man. It couldn't happen to the girthy Galento. It couldn't happen to the palsied Paychek. No sir, they would take care of Mr. Louis.

But it did, and it did, and it did, and for each the saddest words of tongue or pen would probably be these: We're matched again.
Prize fighters are peculiar critters in that, no matter whom they are to meet, they talk up a pretty good argument for themselves, and what's more, they apparently begin to believe it themselves.

Brave Words
We recall the brave words of Maxie Baer before his rout with Lou Nova. Nova stopped him. We recall a cocky Lou Nova sitting at the ringside after watching Louis pulverize Galento, and Nova's statement he could beat both the same night. And then Nova couldn't beat the lesser of the two on one night.
Godoy was no less confident before the bout last week, and look what happened. Or on a second thought, you'd better not look. It's too horrible.

Billy Conn
So handsome Billy Conn had best heed the words out of the past. Here were men talking in the same expansive way that he now talks, and with no less confidence in their ability to whittle down the Dark Destroyer.

Billy Conn is a nice kid, he is a picture boxer. He has a fighting heart.
But Billy Conn can't knock out light heavyweights. How long would the Melio Bettinas and Gus Lesnevichs who stay the limit with Billy last with Louis?

Louis has met, and defeated, opponents of every conceivable style—the crouchers, the bobbers, the runners, the stand-up guys. And of all these the stand-up guys have been his turkey. And Billy Conn is a stand-up guy.

He likes to pop away at long range. So does Louis, and it wouldn't take a sound detector to note which made the loudest explosion. He thinks his boxing would turn the fight in his favor. It's a neat boxer who can meet such toughies as Joe has been meeting and come out with all the marks on the party of the second part.

So until Billy adds weight and a punch he'd better look at Louis only with admiration. No matter how clever a man might be, he wouldn't have a chance with Louis unless he could punch along with it. If he stands up and fights, Louis will tag him sooner or later, and the tag will read "Dynamite, Handle With Care."

However, it isn't only Conn who is failing to ponder the past. Galento, and Godoy, and even Maxie Baer, are loudly urging that they should be named to meet the Bomber, and they should know better.

But there are guys who would turn cartwheels in a blast furnace for $20,000 or so, and anyway prize fighters are peculiar critters.

Bill McNeill, Alice Marble In Easy Wins

CHICAGO, June 24 (AP)—Young William Donald McNeill, Oklahoma City, and the veteran Alice Marble of Beverly Hills, Calif., swept major honors today in the National clay courts tennis tournament, winning the men's and women's singles titles with decisive victories.
McNeill's victim in the most interesting match of the tourney was Bobby Riggs, Chicago, top-ranking amateur of the nation and also Wimbledon singles titleholder. McNeill employed a forcing game and sharp net attack to knock Riggs out of his fourth National clay courts title. The scores were 6-1, 6-4, 7-9 and 6-3.
Miss Marble disposed of Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, Calif., 7-5, 6-0 in easy fashion, the first set being more decisive than the score indicates.

Gopher Star Leading N. C. A. A. Golf Meet

The Pirates 'Kid Threesome' Replace Pirate Veterans

PITTSBURGH — Centerfielder Bob Elliott, 23, is one-third of the "kid threesome" upon which the Pirates are hanging their hopes for the future.
Manager Frankie Frisch thinks Elliott, Frankie Gustine and Maurice Van Robays have the youth, hitting power and fielding ability to lead the Pittsburgh club out of the depths.
The forthright Frisch says: "They're playing great ball." Van Robays, coming up from Montreal last year, supplanted Johnny Rizzo in left field, and Gustine has taken the second base position of Pep Young, one of the best in the National league at that post last year.
Elliott succeeded the famous Lloyd Waner in center field.

Shoots 70 On 1st Day

Burke, Warren Berl Trail Croonquist By One Stroke

MANCHESTER, Vt., June 24 (AP)—Neil Croonquist of Minneapolis, who was graduated from the University of Minnesota a few days ago, rounded out his presidency of the national collegiate A.A.'s golf division today by leading 145 rivals with a par-70 in the first half of their qualifying test over the Ekwanok course.
While nipping his four closest rivals by a stroke, Croonquist gained his regulation figures by avoiding all of the stiff course's roughage and putting superbly while going to the turn in a two-under 33, after collecting three birdies. From there on, however his putter failed him twice and he came home in 37, after going one over on the 13th and 15th greens.

Burke Second

One stroke behind Croonquist were Johnny Burke of Georgetown, the 1938 N.C.A.A. champion, Stanford's Warren Berl, last year's runner-up, Bill (Ace) Cordingley of Harvard, and Bill Clark of Dartmouth.
Sixty-three of the starters were 78 or better and three of them were bunched in the 72 group, Frank Newell, the first University of California at Los Angeles representative to compete in this 43 year old tourney, Jack Selby, Princeton, and Bert McDowell, Louisiana State, runner-up to Burke two years ago.
Those 75 or better were Warren E. Tansey of Michigan State, Henry Castillo of Louisiana State, and John Emery of the University of Mississippi entry in this tourney, Ray Higgins of Georgetown, Tom Leonard Jr., one of New Hampshire's outstanding amateurs, who represented the University of Virginia, Tom Hoak of Iowa State, Buck Luce of Texas, and George Sharpe of L.S.U.

Anderson Wins Tennis Title

DES MOINES, June 24 (AP)—Southpaw Wayne Anderson, the brilliant junior star from Shenandoah, won his second title in the Des Moines district tennis tournament today by defeating Joe Carney of Des Moines, 6-1, 6-1, in the final of the men's singles.
Anderson captured the junior singles title Saturday before rain forced postponement of the meet. The doubles crown, also decided Monday, went to Carney and John Fletcher of Des Moines with a 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 victory over Anderson and Frank Nye of Des Moines.
The singles final saw Anderson, unseeded in the men's division, win with comparative ease. The 17-year-old high school valedictorian pounded away at Carney's backhand with brilliant cross-court drives.
The victory was Anderson's third title of the year. He had previously won the state prep crown and the Heart of America junior title at Kansas City, Mo.

The worm turned last night when the Power Boys whipped the highly-favored Jr. Odd Fellows by the score of 9 to 6 in a city softball league game. Although outhit, 10 to 9, the Power Boys hit in the pinches to score their first win in the league.
The winners started strong with a three-run outburst in the opening inning on two walks, an error, a fielder's choice and a double by Moore. From there on the Power Boys held to their lead, although threatened several times.
For the Power Boys, Curran and Erbe had two hits each, the former calling his shot to poke the ball over left field for a home run. Bud Lemons led the Odd Fellows' hitting with three hits in three trips to the plate. E. Rogers and Crumley each belted out two safeties for the losers.

Pressbox Pickups

The glory of Flatbush came to me yesterday with all its most praiseworthy, to Brooklyn, noise. It was, in other words, a letter from one of Brooklyn's baseball fans.

"I would have written sooner," says Maxie (not the fighter) Rosenthal, "but I wanted to wait until I could tell you with certainty that the Dodgers are going to cop that national league flag."

"The Medwick deal clinched it," he continues, "As you will undoubtedly soon see. The fans are taking it on the nose, though, because for the doubleheader with Cincinnati the other day the regular $1.10 seats each brought $1.65 worth of silver, copper and valuable green paper fluttering across the ticket office counter. The same applied to the St. Louis games."

Maxie, a one-time student at the University of Iowa, is the Dodger follower in all manners and for all time. The Dodgers, bless their souls, were the jingle in his money, the flavoring in his preserved turnips and noise in his soup. Things were the same last spring in Brooklyn, where hope of a national league pennant springs eternal in the human breast, only this year the Dodgers are rolling along in a fashion that might make the dream come true. And Maxie, this year, is ushering at the Dodger park.

It must be a joyful city these days. After all those years of first division famine, the dreams seem to be coming true. The pitching, long the biggest Dodger question mark, is holding up, the hitting has been heavy and the Dodgers have fielded the ball. Only one thing could make it better, according to Maxie, and that is to have Van Lingle Mungo doing a bit better pitching. For long Mungo was the personification of the Dodger spirit that called for a pennant before the season, but started a rebuilding after the first match. This year he has done nothing, but the team has—Brooklyn, it appears, is outgrowing its oldtime baseball "Goat."

And, for the first time in years, the American league is drawing interest. The fact that the Yankees, for long considered unbeatable, are in fourth place, with Cleveland, Detroit and Boston battling for the lead, is just about the shot in the arm that baseball needs. Which means that boxing might benefit, too, if somebody plastered Joe Louis, or at least gave him a pretty bad scare again.
