ANTI-SEMITIC RIOTS HIT RUMANIA

Hungary Seeks to Regain Province

Officials Exchange Bitter Talk While Mobilization Continues; Germany Tries to Keep Peace

Hitler Wants Settlement Between Two Countries To Assure Protection of Oil Fields Which He Needs

BUDAPEST, July 2 (AP)—Hungarian and Rumanian officials exchanged bitter words over Transylvania tonight, and Hungary gave every sign of determination to regain that old province in one way or another.

Mobilization went full ahead, notwithstanding Germany's increasingly urgent efforts to keep peace in the Balkans lest her own economic interests be smashed in war.

Responsible persons denied reports that a demilitarized zone had been set up on the Hungarian-Rumanian frontier. To avoid a conflict, it was believed here, Germany might go so far as to make a definite military and political alliance with Rumania. German activity was described authoritatively as involving "the strongest pressure."

If this were achieved, and the German inclined Hungarian army, through peaceful arrangement with Rumania were permitted to occupy all or part of Transylvania, Germany's position in southeast Europe would be fortified against the danger of further Russian encroachment.

Wants Peaceful Settlement

What Hitler's government is keenly striving for, it appeared here, was a peaceful settlement of Hungarian-Rumanian difficulties which would provide better protection for the Rumanian oil fields on which he so depends—fields now under the shadow of soviet guns.

In parliament, Hungarian deputy Kosi-Horvath dramatically declared that "military requisitioning in Transylvania by the Rumanian government is taking on the character of free looting of Hungarian property."

He asserted, too, that the Rumanians were taking hostages from among the Hungarian minorities in Transylvania, adding: "The Rumanian government has distributed arms to the Rumanian peasants in Transylvania with instructions to massacre the Hungarian minority the moment the latter stirs."

Fomenting Revolution

Very similar accusations, pointed at Hungary, were made by official quarters in Bucharest. There it was alleged that to find a reason for sending its armies into Transylvania the Hungarian government was fomenting revolution amongst the Magyars. It was asserted, too, that Rumania was smuggling arms into Transylvania.

In another illustration of the vast unrest in the Balkans, Belgrade reported the receipts of diplomatic advices from Bucharest which stated that some extremist members of the pro-fascist Rumanian iron guard were fostering a movement aimed at compelling King Carol to abdicate for having ceded Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Soviet Russia.

Criticizes Hints At 'Subversive' Acts in Schools

MILWAUKEE, July 2 (AP)—William G. Carr, secretary of the educational policies commission, Washington, D. C., today criticized "ill-informed people" who hint at subversive activities and agencies in the public schools.

In an address before the National Education association convention, Carr declared: "The minority who attack or weaken the public schools are attacking the foundations of democracy."

The convention is expected to vote on a resolution calling for compulsory military training in schools and colleges tomorrow or Thursday.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY FOR JOINT CONTROL OF THIS

Jews Shot Down and Beaten In Bloody Waves of Disorder; King Carol Appeals to Hitler

Capital Blacked out First Time as Ambulances Speed to Scenes of Rioting; Soldiers at Frontiers

BUCHAREST, July 3 (Wednesday) (AP)—Anti-semitic rioting, with Jews shot down and beaten, swept in a bloody wave overnight throughout old Rumania—harassed from within, shorn of two provinces, and threatened with Balkan war jeopardizing two more.

Street fighting broke out less than 24 hours after King Carol turned about from British alliances and appealed to the axis powers for help to save his kingdom.

The capital was blacked out for the first time. Ambulances sped to scenes of rioting. And from soviet-seized Bessarabia and Bucovina the general staff rushed Rumania's full war strength to the frontiers of menaced Transylvania and Dobruja, facing Hungary and Bulgaria.

Disorders occurred in scattered towns from the capital to Jassy, near the border of soviet-occupied Bessarabia, but were described as worst in Bucharest where bitter fighting broke out among university students.

Jews Flee

(Observers at Budapest reported increasingly violent anti-Jewish outbreaks and demonstrations generally through Rumania, Hungary and Yugoslavia. Reports reaching Budapest from Rumania told of beatings, persecutions and some killings.)

Wealthy Jews fled from their homes in cities to refuge in the country.

Some new disorders were reported at Galati despite the vigilance of heavy military patrols on duty since riots last Sunday.

Refugees Beaten

Near the Prut river Jewish refugee women and children were said to have been dragged from trains and beaten. There were reports that some were hurled beneath the wheels of moving trains or shot as they sat in their seats in the darkness as the trains sped through tunnels.

In Bucharest, ambulances were called to several riots. The worst fighting was at Polytechnic high school where several were injured critically.

The internal disturbances came at a tense hour when Rumania's armies were massed on her borders, where scattered fighting already has been reported and a major conflict is feared over the claims of her neighbors to Rumanian territory.

Hungary demands the vast, rich lands of Transylvania and Bulgaria wants southern Dobruja.

Military Committee Approves Stimson

Nazis Reveal Casualty Total

Assert Crushing Of Lowland and France Cost 156,492 Lives

BERLIN, July 2 (AP)—Germany reckoned her total casualties in the western offensive which crushed the iowians and France at 156,492 tonight.

Figure issued by the high command in a report on "the greatest military victory of all times" said 27,074 German soldiers had been killed since May 10, 111,034 wounded and 18,384 missing.

(General Charles De Gaulle, the die-hard French leader in London, figures allied dead, wounded and missing up to the final surrender at 1,318,080. However, private estimates have placed dead, wounded and missing of France alone at 1,500,000 in the last month of the war.

(Hitler previously announced his total dead, wounded and missing in the Norway campaign as 5,296. In the Polish campaign the total was placed at 44,298.)

Allied air losses, the German high command said, amounted to 792 airplanes and 27 balloons from June 4. Since the middle of May, the report said, 400,000 tons of merchant shipping have been destroyed by submarines, and since June 5 allied shipping losses inflicted by German air forces totaled 299,000 tons.

Hearing Questions Defensive Stands Of Ousted G.O.P.s Named to Cabinet

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The senate military committee approved the nomination of Henry L. Stimson, republican, as secretary of war today, after two hours of questioning which produced statements that the nominee opposed sending troops beyond American borders unless the protection of this country should make such action necessary.

Knox Questioned

At the same time, the senate naval committee fired question after question at Col. Frank Knox, republican nominee for secretary of the navy, received a staunch denial that he ever had urged giving military support to the allies, and deferred action on the nomination until tomorrow.

Both Knox, the republican party's 1936 vice presidential nominee, and Stimson, secretary of state in the Hoover cabinet, told the committees that no anti-third term pledge by President Roosevelt was involved in the negotiations leading to their appointments.

Surprise Move

The two were named to the cabinet on June 19, in a move which produced breathless surprise both in political Washington and in Philadelphia, where the republican platform drafters were then meeting. The republican national committee promptly read the two out of the party.

While readily praising the abilities of the two, and generally taking the position that their appointment strengthened the cabinet, republicans for the most part wanted to know more about what

Colonel Hollar Will Command Iowa Brigade

DES MOINES, July 2 (AP)—Governor George A. Wilson tonight announced the promotion of Colonel Gordon C. Hollar of Sioux City to brigadier general in command of the 67th Infantry brigade, Iowa national guard.

Colonel Hollar, 52, will succeed Major General Lloyd D. Ross of Des Moines who retires July 8. The Hollar appointment will take effect the following day, July 9.

The 67th Infantry brigade is composed of two regiments, the 133d infantry and the 168th infantry, besides headquarters and the headquarters company. Each regiment has a total strength of about 1,270 men.

Colonel Hollar, who has been in the national guard since 1907 and who saw service overseas during the World war, is employed as special collector by the Iowa state tax commission.

Third Successive Attack Rakes Historic City, Industrial Area

Writer Says There Was No Sign of Panic As Veteran 'Cellar-Goers' Poured Into Bomb Proof Shelters

BY PRESTON GROVER
MUNSTER, Germany, July 3 (Wednesday) (AP)—Residents of historic Munster fled to their cellars and were kept there three hours as British bombers harassed the city for the third successive night in a continuation of air raids that extended throughout most of the industrial Ruhr valley.

Anti-aircraft guns roared periodically during the raid which started a few minutes after midnight last night.

Fire engines screamed through the darkened streets. Incendiary bombs apparently were dropped, although few explosions were heard.

Amount of damage could not be determined immediately.

From the vicinity of my hotel I was able to see an uncan-ny show of night air attack.

The roar of planes overhead was heard plainly.

Residents, who had been forced to the air raid cellars before, told me it has become customary for the raiders to bomb Munster, then sweep on to other cities of the Ruhr either to attack industrial plants, airdromes, or to set on edge the nerves of the civil populace.

The alarm sounded as I walked through the hotel to get a midnight snack.

Without sign of panic, veteran "cellar-goers" poured from the bar and hotel rooms and filed to the basement for the tiresome, jittery job of waiting.

Nerve Strain

The place was full within ten minutes. Some from the hotel rooms brought along pillows. Some found relatively comfortable positions, with heads on tables and chairs, and tried to sleep.

There were children there, from babies in arms on up.

The raid came only a few hours after I, with other correspondents, reached the Rhineland on a tour as army guests. We were brought here to see the effects of the British bombings.

The nerve strain of cellar waiting was clearly illustrated when a candle on one table was knocked over accidentally. A dozen dozing persons straightened suddenly.

Several times, at intervals of about 20 minutes, planes were heard overhead at 15,000 feet or more.

So far as we could learn none of the planes was spotted by searchlights. The raids came in the three hours of utter darkness between the late twilight and the early dawn of this season.

In the air attack the previous night, our cellar companions said, the city itself was pounded hard.

We were told the raiding planes machine-gunned the streets. The same story was told us in Hamm and Hesse on the way here. At Hamm we saw where a row of bombs was dropped diagonally across one section—one bomb about every 60 yards—smashing two- and three-story houses.

Germans Raid Coastal Area

135 Casualties Result As Nazi Bombs Fall On Northeast Towns

LONDON, July 3 (Wednesday) (AP)—German bombs caused at least 135 casualties in raids on three northeastern coastal towns and in the open country of the southwest last night.

Early today it was reported that at least 12 persons had been killed and 123 injured.

It was not immediately known whether this represented the casualties of all three northeastern towns which were attacked or only in one of them. The southwest apparently escaped casualties.

Many of the injured were cut by flying glass splinters.

An undetermined number in a poor quarter of one northeastern town were buried in the wreckage of their homes.

It was the second successive time that nazi raiders took advantage of the long English twilight to bomb their targets on the mainland.

The harassment by German raiders echoed in the house of commons where Maj. Albert Newby Braithwaite asserted it was the duty of the United States "to send their fleet and their boats to take our women and children across to their country."

The air ministry announced a major success of its own, declaring that another heavy attack had been made on Germany's great 26,000-ton warship Scharnhorst.

In a raid last night on the Kiel canal, the vital nazi navy base, the Scharnhorst was heavily bombed, the ministry said.

Reorganize Hungarian Army

MOSCOW, (AP)—The soviet radio reported early yesterday that the Lithuanian army has been reorganized and henceforth will be called the "people's army."

Sees World Carved

Observing his 86th birthday in Cambridge, Mass., the noted historian, Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, above, foresees a future in which Hitler and Stalin will attempt to divide the world between them. Famed as a prophet, Hart sees these as future possibilities: (1) Hitler swallowing up Italy. (2) United western Europe dominated by Germany. (3) Russia reaching into central Asia and India to take an empire there and engage in a great war with Japan. (4) Hitler attempting an invasion of the western hemisphere within the next five years by way of Mexico.

Willkie Calls Party Leaders

Refuses Any Aid Offered by Corporations; Invites His Opponents' Managers

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP)—Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie today summoned 12 party leaders from every section of the country—including workers for two of his leading opponents for the nomination—to guide his drive toward the White House.

The candidate then served notice upon corporations that he wanted no "corporate contributions in any guise, whether they be advertising in campaign books, programs or anything else."

"Honorable contributions" would be accepted, he said, but those exceeding $5,000 from any one source would be rejected.

"In my judgement, this is the people's movement and I want to keep it as such," he said.

Willkie put Gov. Harold E. Stas-

Honor Student Held for Trial In Book Theft

OMAHA, July 2 (AP)—A 19-year-old honor student was bound over to district court in police court today on a charge of stealing about one hundred books from the Omaha Public library, including such deep tomes as Schuman's "International Politics," Brinton's "Anatomy of Revolution" and "The Philosophy of John Dewey."

The youth is John Gariss, who was a member of the National Honor society and active in a half a dozen organizations when he was graduated from Central high school a year ago.

He won a scholarship to the University of Omaha and attended there until March.

Police returned the youth last night from Denver, after finding 112 books from the Omaha Public library, the Central high library, and the City library of New Ulm, Minn., at his home a week ago.

Gariss offered to plead guilty on a charge of grand larceny of books. Judge Battin entered a plea of not guilty, however, and held Gariss for district court trial. Bond was set at five hundred dollars.

Defense Without Hysteria

Representative Thomas E. Martin of Iowa City, in the House of Representatives May 24, commented on the national defense program, at that time only just becoming organized in its gigantic state, while the nation felt the impact of the total war in western Europe.

At that time Representative Martin had some significant things to say. He pointed to the evident need for national defense expenditures, but he expressed another important fact, that the building up of the nation's defenses can best be done in an attitude of calm quiet.

The Daily Iowan is pleased to present two excerpts from Representative Martin's remarks. Therein may be found food for meditation.

"We are entering a phase of national defense that calls for especial watchfulness over the expenditure of our money and careful application of our energy for the task at hand.

"It is certainly no time for hysteria, and to the extent that we now lose our sense of balance we will pay in increased costs for the inefficiency that goes with hysteria.

"In asking that you discourage hysteria and wild clamor I do not ask that we diminish our speed in setting about the business at hand. I only wish it were possible to go about our business of building up our national defenses without first developing an acute case of jitters."

"Let me emphasize again that the building of adequate defenses is or should be a sincere move for peace and that there is nothing in this bill that will or should lead us to war unless we build an uncontrollable hysteria through thoughtless ballyhoo and drama.

"Is it not possible for us to proceed with the building of our defenses quietly? Why is it necessary to make so much noise about our plans at this time? Judging from my mail here, people are wholeheartedly in favor of any reasonable strengthening of our defenses, and they do not need to be sold on that point.

"The people of my district have been urging adequate defense preparation ever since the present European war started. What they fear is that we may be drawn into that war, and the excitement whipped up here in Washington has not allayed and will not allay that fear."

The importance of maintaining an attitude of conscientious calm during the defense program is one of the essential needs of this era in American history.

Because, like Representative Martin, we feel that this "is certainly no time for hysteria, and to the extent that we now lose our sense of balance we will pay in increased costs for the inefficiency that goes with hysteria."

The Danger Week!

We're in the midst of that week which annually is the most devastating week in the year, yet which should, this year in particular, be a day of deep significance.

Tomorrow is the birthday of American independence—the Fourth of July. Freedom has been trampled out in eight old-world nations since last July 4. War has come very close to the Americas.

That is a vital national problem. We realize that.

But at the same time, if the history of former American years repeats itself, traffic accidents will take a toll of lives well over half the total of American dead in the First World War.

In the past seven years, says Iowa's State Safety council, more Americans have died than were killed in all the wars in this nation's history.

The council asks the people of Iowa to remember that "it is not only ironic but cruel to celebrate the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness by bringing about death, disability and tragedy.

"Life is cheap today on the battlefields of the world but it is still precious on the highways in Iowa."

So, in the interests of the nation at large, when you leave on that Fourth of July trip, won't you please

"Leave earlier,
"Drive slower, and
"Arrive safely."

Pennies for Defense

American school children have contributed 13,500,000 pennies to a fund to help hungry and homeless children of war-stricken nations.

According to Dorothy Canfield Fisher, national chairman of the Children's Crusade for pennies for the brief 10-day campaign is for Children, the total contributions in pennies to total something like $140,000.

Monday consumers of cigars, beers and liquors, moving picture fare and sundry other luxuries and amusements started paying pennies for a 10 billion dollar bill for national defense.

That will take a lot more pennies, 1,000,000,000,000 of them.

The pangs of war are far reaching. America has started on her course. The pennies are next.

But a trillion of 'em! Phew!

A Comment in Brief

"Physical defense alone is not enough. The American people must rearm themselves spiritually and mentally. They must rededicate themselves to the institutions and the high principles they are preparing to defend. They must recognize that there is no substitute for personal toil and sacrifice and devotion. Only by firm adherence to our traditional American ideals, coupled with adequate military defense, can we be sure that the terrible price the democracies abroad are now paying will not be exacted of us."—National Association of Manufacturers' Bulletin.

A Comment in Brief

"If we are to continue to enjoy the highest standards of living and the greatest individual freedom ever enjoyed by any people under any form of government, we must—all of us—be prepared to make real sacrifices. Defense preparations will cost staggering sums of money. They will demand the utmost thrift on the part of individuals and necessitate strict economy on the part of the government."—National Association of Manufacturers' Bulletin.

A Man About MANHATTAN

Maybe 1940 Will Bring Luck to Jimmy Savo—
BY GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The little man with the wistful face and the baggy pants has not always had his share of luck from those who control the destinies of the children of Broadway. Trooping into stage doors glowing with hope and trooping out again with blasted dreams is not a novel experience for Jimmy Savo. No one can remember when the critics have not written well of him, but somehow his luck has been to be assigned to plays that have seldom "wowed 'em" at the box office.

For this reason one of the greatest, if not the greatest, pantomime artists in the whole length and breadth of the American theater is little known away from Broadway.

But maybe 1940, with its carnage and wars, its horrors and famines and political upheavals, will come through with a new coin of luck for Jimmy Savo. He is in Maine now trying out a new musical comedy—a show that he owns himself—and he will bring it to Broadway this summer. Inquire after this show and he will tell you "It's a one-man revue, full length, and its title is 'Mum's the Word'."

A suggestive title, this. The Savo style is pantomime, not sound. Charlie Chaplin calls him the "greatest pantomime in the world," and perhaps he is. His appeal is, perhaps, other comedians make you laugh. Just as often Savo makes you want to weep.

Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur once wrote a scenario and then filmed a picture with Savo as the star. It was the story of a little Russian hero hobo who wandered through France, finding trouble wherever he turned, and the final fadeout had him trudging down a country road in his baggy pants and his over-flowing shirt, hurt but not down, a wisp of cheer shining through eyes that in anyone else would be dimmed in disillusionment.

As a finished product it was not a good picture. There were obvious theatrical flaws. But moments in it rank, in this observers opinion, with the best patho-comedy ever put on film.

You must not imagine, from the foregoing, that Jimmy has not made money, and that he is not able to get jobs, or that he is on relief. You don't own Broadway revues when you are broke. But only occasionally, since the days when he was worrying his mother half to death as a kid practicing ledger-keeping on her, juggling soup spoons, or attempting to balance the kitchen stove on his chin, has he come into the rewards he deserves.

In Broadway restaurants, Savo is as shy, as Paul Kuzasz says, as a Disney deer. He seems uneasy in crowds. This isn't true at all times. It is only that the gift of pantomime, which always has reflected a wistful sort of pathos, makes him appear that way.

In "Mum's the Word" Savo will sing one song—a special number written for him by the great musical comedy song writing team of Rogers and Hart. Otherwise he will be in pantomime—first as a Swedish maiden, then, in this order, as a hospital orderly, a lonely hunchback, a character from Moliere, a spirited Pocohontas in a war dance, a Chinese concert singer, a sentimental laundress, and last as Eve.

I don't know how long this show will last, or what Broadway will think of it, but if there is only one person I would like to see get all the breaks that anybody can get on a break-queer street like Broadway, it is this same shy little Italian-American in the baggy pants.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

The Great Profile And Its Owner—

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—John Barrymore says "The Great Profile" is not—definitely not—a life history of John Barrymore. He admits, with a lift of the screen's most expensive eyebrows, that the character does bear coincidental resemblances.

"In the first place," he says with a sardonic chuckle, "the hero is a ham actor. In the second, he's nuts. In the third, he is forever hearing the clank of jail doors and begins to miss them when they stop. They become like the music of cymbals to him, ha! I myself have lived lately amid so much noise—the sound of the city—that when I sought quiet I couldn't rest. . . . But no—it's not the story of my life. This picture—and it's very funny—is a compendium of all hams!"

John is attired as Hamlet, sitting on the sidelines of his set, but he's not doing it straight—"a ham Hamlet," he explains.

The "great profile" is not the heroic figure he once was, but there's life, and plenty of it, in the old boy yet. And his fund of stories—related with gusto and liberally sprinkled with picaresque, inimitable profanity—has not been depleted. Mention of Winston Churchill sets him going, recalling the first time he met the man who is now Britain's war chief. It was at a party in Scotland, at which they played charades, and Churchill—"really a great fellow for fun, with a marvelous humor,"—got himself up as a scrublady, complete with red nose and generously padded chest.

Speaking of Churchill reminds him—"I saw an old friend of mine today. Tiny Jones. . . ."

Tiny is a bright-eyed, diminutive Welsh woman who plays bits and parts and is a long-time Barrymore favorite. When John was making "The Man from Blankley's" 10 years ago the same Winston Churchill, visiting in Hollywood, called on Barrymore on the set. It made quite a good story at the time, because John presented one friend to the visitor and casually ignored the others—his fellow actors, the director, and all else but Tiny.

"Tiny," recalls John, "was all aflutter when she saw Churchill and asked if she might shake his hand. They sat down together and talked quite a while. All I could hear was Tiny saying, 'Oh, no, Mr. Churchill!'"

John asked Tiny later what they'd been discussing and Tiny said, "Fruit, Mr. Barrymore. Fruit. He was asking if it were true what he heard about the fruit out here, and I was telling him it wasn't."

Mrs. Barrymore, the famous Elaine, is not in "The Great Profile." Mary Beth Hughes is the girl, and one of John's conferees in comedy is Gregory Ratoff, temporarily abandoning direction to resume his old career.

Ratoff thinks John is "wan-der-vull" and John thinks Ratoff is

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

The Willkie Way Of Campaigning—

WASHINGTON—An auto trailer campaign to hit every possible crossroads of the country in person, was the sensational plan and ambition of Wendell Willkie, when he started his closed conferences with his republican associates to map out their schedule of republican action.

It has never been tried before on a national scale. All presidential candidates of late years have glided around the country on special trains, missing the flag stops, speaking in the larger cities. They depended on radio to reach the crossroads.

That method may have reached the people adequately in the past, but in recent years continuous communities have stretched out along the fast new roads particularly in the middle west and east. The industrial cities of the east and the farm cities of the middle west no longer afford a representative rostrum to reach a complete cross section of the people.

The late Huey Long inaugurated this crossroads type of trailer campaign in Louisiana and Arkansas with astounding success some years ago. He reached down into the grass roots of the electorate by meeting his voters at the side of the road, any road, with sound trucks bearing a lively tune. The politicians said it was undignified but apparently the voters did not think so.

Such a campaign on a national scale requires unique physical energy, but the 48-year-old Willkie indicated he could do it when he milled for a week, elbow to elbow, with the teeming delegates at Philadelphia, anxious to talk with anyone, anytime about anything.

No candidate ever went at it the hard way he chose at Philadelphia. An Indiana news-man wanted an answer immediately to an inquiry while Willkie was taking a shower. When he sent in word he could not wait, Willkie invited him into the bathroom and the interview was held there. Another news-man from Atlanta who did not know Willkie stopped him on an elevator and asked: "What will you do for Atlanta?" The inquiry caught Willkie by his heels for a moment. His answer was: "Have you had lunch?" They went into a cut-rate drug store, sat on a stool at the center while the candidate

"marvelous." Ratoff is cast as the great ham's manager, and they have a scene in which Ratoff expostulates violently with his Hamlet for his latest escapade.

It is interesting to watch Ratoff, the genius of the spattered accent, pitted against Barrymore, the genius of the genus ham. Ratoff is roaringly funny, but the chances are that Barrymore—with eyebrow-lifting and imperious gestures—will be funnier.

Former Naval Commander Will Discuss 'The Far East'

Annapolis Man To Give Fifth Lecture Friday

Admiral Yarnell Won Congressional Medal For Service in Orient

Admiral H. E. Yarnell, former commander-in-chief of the United States Asiatic fleet and native Iowan, will present the fifth summer session university lecture Friday night at 8 o'clock on the south Union campus. His lecture is entitled "The Far East."

Admiral Yarnell, now retired, was born near Independence. He was awarded the distinguished service medal by congress last August for outstanding service to America in handling the many delicate and complex problems which the Japanese invasion of China occasioned.

Far East Authority
Long a student of the political, military and economic history of the Orient, he is today considered one of the outstanding authorities on the Far East.

After his graduation from Annapolis in 1897, Admiral Yarnell saw service in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, the Boxer Rebellion, and subsequently, saw much of the world from the decks of United States warships. He was commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet from 1936 until his retirement this year.

He was a member of the technical staff of the American delegation to the conference on limitation of armaments in London in 1930, and belongs to the Army and Navy club in Washington.

Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion and chairman of the summer session lecture series, will present the speaker Friday night. If the weather is unfavorable, the lecture will be held in Macbride hall.

On Saturday morning, at 9, Admiral Yarnell will hold a round table discussion in the house chamber of Old Capitol.

Professor Spann, Dr. Fehling Write New German Grammar

A new type of German grammar will make its official appearance when "Functional German Grammar," written by Prof. Meno Spann, and Dr. Fred Fehling of the German department, is published by Harper Brothers in August.

The grammar, which has humorous illustrations by James McConnell, G of Iowa City, is the result of the experimenting with methods of grammatical instruction that the two men have been doing for the last four years in their elementary German classes here.

According to Professor Spann, and Dr. Fehling, their new grammar represents three points of departure from the usual method of grammatical instruction. First, simple functional explanations of a practical nature have been introduced by the authors to counteract the tendency to write and explain grammar from the grammarian rather than the pupils point of view.

Second, the consideration that English is the native tongue of the student has been kept in mind to replace the writing of grammars to represent the language regardless of the native tongue of the student.

Third, in order to make grammar teaching interesting as well as accurate, the authors have avoided the stilted German which in the exercises of so many grammars results in faulty German being presented.

Professor Spann has further explained the principles behind the new grammar in the November 1939 German Quarterly in the article, "Bessere Grammatiken," which has instigated discussions about

The Son of Heaven Tradition Makes Emperor of Japan A Semi-Divine

Hirohito, emperor of Japan, is traditionally known as the Son of Heaven. He is semi-divine. He never gives interviews and never speaks over the radio. He is too sacred even to have his picture either on Japanese currencies or postage stamps.

These are some of the statements made by Dr. Sudhindra Bose of the political science department yesterday in his lecture on Japan.

The Japanese, according to the lecturer, are intensely patriotic—more perhaps than any other race of people.

The Japanese who was chiefly responsible for the rise of Japan as a modern power was the grandfather of the present emperor, the speaker pointed out.

Progressive Grandfather
"At the time Grandfather Mutsuhito was born in the second quarter of the last century," he said, "Japan was backward. It was where England was, before the days of the Norman Conquest. So one can say today, without much exaggeration, that Japan has progressed—in the sense progress is understood in the occident—as much in less than a hundred years as France, England and Germany have in 10 centuries."

Dr. Bose asserted that the leaders of Japan do love their military establishment. Japanese think that Japan's unique security in Asia was won by it, according to the speaker. They are sure its future advancement will depend on it. The West has taught Japan to prize it, as though it were a deity, for safety from the all-encroaching whites.

"As long as the whites continue to practice racial discrimination against the Orientals and as long as the Westerners continue to respect nothing but force, Japan will not be easily persuaded to overthrow its military caste," the speaker concluded.

Max Baer Whips Galeto in 8 Rounds

Playboy Scores Technical K.O. To Earn Second Shot at Louis

Referee Stops Bout After Maxie Gashes Two-Ton Tony's Chin

ROOSEVELT STADIUM, JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 2 (AP)—Unpredictable Maxie Baer, still no more consistent than the weather, got "hot" tonight and chilled Tony Galento in eight rounds, thereby defying any and all comers to challenge his right to the championship of the screwballs.

With an assist from Tony's brother, who bounced a beer glass off the Galento chin in a bar-room row two nights ago, the former heavyweight boss cut the walking-beer-keg's mouth so badly that Referee Joe Mangold halted the fight just as the bell sounded to start the eighth round, giving Maxie a technical knockout.

The Blood Runs
Up to that point, the playboy pounder of the Pacific had banged Tony's face with such damaging effect, that at the finish blood dripped from the end of Galento's chin like a leaky faucet.

A near capacity crowd in this International league ball-park cheered Max on as he stopped the 1 to 2 favorite in the long-heralded "battle of the bums."

With his triumph, Maxie also won another chance at Heavyweight King Joe Louis, an honor he may not welcome. He was counted out on one knee in the fourth round when he went against the Bomber in 1935. And the chances are that as an older and wiser head now, he won't exactly start the bands playing for the second encounter, which Promoter Mike Jacobs has tentatively scheduled for Chicago in September.

Troubles for Tony
The beating wasn't all that happened to Tony tonight. He not only wound up with a mouth cut clean through, requiring six stitches, but his left hand was broken in the second round when he bounced a wild swing off the top of Maxie's head. Then, before they ever got into the ring, it was learned Caswell (Keppel) Jacobs, brother of Tony's late manager, Joe Jacobs, had served papers on Promoter Mike Jacobs attaching Galento's end of the purse on behalf of Joe's surviving relatives—two brothers and a sister.

Maxie wasn't supposed to be in good enough condition to stand up four rounds tonight, but he must have been holding out on the boys. For, while he was tired at the finish, he didn't look as though he'd need to leave in a wheel chair. In fact, a midjet climbed into the ring as Galento walked out, and Maxie, as serious as usual, wrestled on the floor with him for several moments.

Baer Had Help
Baer did an expert job for the seven rounds the fight lasted but, in all fairness, he ought to "cut" Tony's brother, Russell, in on his purse. For Russell's high and hard one with the beer glass cut Tony's chin two nights ago, and it was this gash, enlarged and deepened, which brought Baer the victory.

In the first round, this bigger Baer—he weighed 221½ to Tony's 244½—went to work on that cut, and had it opened in the first two minutes. From there on, he just aimed at this target like a bull going after grandpa's red flannels. Tony's mouth wasn't a pretty thing to see when the fight ended, just after Whitey Binstein, one of his seconds, had summoned the referee to examine the wound.

As expected and advertised, these two stretched the Marquis of Queensbury rules a bit. Once Tony rushed in and butted Max under the chin with as much "zing" as he could put behind it. Max leaned over the ropes, spitting teeth and blood, and the referee warned Tony. This round was taken from Galento for his fouling, but it was Maxie's on merit anyway.

Tony also gave quite an exhibition of backhanding on occasion, while Max, not to be outdone, held up his end by hitting on the break once in a while, and leaning on Tony in the clinches until the referee warned him to desist.

Maxie also brought his occasional clowning, grinning tactics into play. In the first round, he grinned when Tony bounced a left off his chin. Then, he ducked under Tony's next three swings, came up inside with short rights and lefts and scored plenty.

Both Were Bleeding
Both were bleeding in the second, Baer from his nose. In the third, both looked tired enough to ask for a night's lodging. After that the pace slowed somewhat, and the referee was the hardest working man in the ring, parting them about five times a minute. The referee, probably was the best conditioned man inside the ropes, too.

Midway of the seventh, it became clear that Max had the fight in the pocket, although Tony still charged in, only to be met with stiff, straight punches. Once Ga-lento charged half way across the ring, swinging, and, as Baer sidestepped, Tony stumbled to one knee.

For the benefit of fistic historians, this was the 19th anniversary of Jack Dempsey's tussle with Georges Carpentier in this town. There was no resemblance in the two. Tonight's was strictly a brawl.

It started, in fact, at the weighing-in when they squared off to pose for photographers. Tony cuffed Max's arm, and Max countered with a right aimed at the body before their handlers stopped it.

In the dressing rooms afterward, Max let the folks in on the secret that Joe Louis had told him how to fight Tony.

"The old champ here," he pointed to the Bomber, who had crowded into the room, "came up to my camp and showed me what to do. Boy, he really did a good job didn't he?"

Galento, meantime, howled for a return match. "I can lick dat bum" he moaned through puffed lips. "I got a tough break tonight, but I shoulda flattened him anyway."

Pat Comiskey, highly-regarded Paterson, N. J., youngster tonight featured the preliminary bouts by putting a quick finish to the metropolitan debut of Bob Sikes of Pine Bluff, Ark.

In what was probably his most impressive performance to date, the big blond belter stiffened the highly-rated Arkansas prospect in 2 minutes, 12 seconds of what was to have been an eight round bout.

On the floor for the third time in the round, Sikes was trying to get up for more when Referee Paul Cavalier called a halt. Comiskey weighed 209½ and Sikes 191.

Iowa Supply's heavy-hitting, peppy ball club pounded out another decision in the senior city league last night, this time over Bremer's, 7 to 3.

The Supply boys counted three runs in the first inning and one each in the second, third, fourth and fifth, letting up enough in the final seventh to allow Bremer's to count their three markers on three hits and a sacrifice fly.

"Silver" Paulus gave but three hits over the route, one of them Nortman's homer with one on in the seventh. Wes Walters led the Supply hitters and Virg Burnett paced Bremer's.

By OSCAR HARGRAVE

We can, with a minimum of hesitation, class Jack Dempsey's two-round knockout of Cowboy Jack Luttrell Monday night as the "So What?" affair of the week. It is interesting, granted, but it goes no further.

The last Dempsey comeback, several years ago, ended with the old Manassa Mauler taking a pasting from Kingfish Levinsky. He is now several years older and worse, which is just about enough evidence that a Dempsey comeback is about as possible as a Dutch victory in the present European war.

Iowa's athletic department, in line with recommendations made by athletic heads at the recent N. C. A. A. meeting, put increased emphasis on the business of conditioning its physical education students, as an aid to any national defense plan that might become necessary.

Director E. G. "Dad" Schroeder says it was pointed out at the meeting that additional stress upon physical fitness is needed and that it is the duty of the universities and colleges to develop their athletic and physical education programs to even greater efficiency.

And the office force, who play ball out in front, aren't wasting their time any more. You can expect some pretty snazzy grenade throwing if such becomes a necessity.

About the briefest of success stories modern athletics has ever known is probably ended with Johnny Vander Meer's return to the minors, but it was a howling success while it lasted, for, to quote Columnist Whitney Martin: "Johnny Vander Meer never was a fellow to do things by halves. When it came to pitching a no-hit game, he didn't stop at one. He made it two in a row. When it came to having his ionisils removed, he had them removed three times. And when he was wild, he wasn't just wild. He was frantic."

"That wildness, combined with that bugaboo of pitchers vaguely referred to as a 'Sore Arm,' is responsible for his current step downward. He couldn't find the plate with a knife and fork, and it's not difficult to imagine gentle Deacon McKechnie calling him aside and saying:

"We're sending you back to Indianapolis, John. We'll call you back here when you have had a chance to work out those kinks."

Right now, according to all the experts, Vander Meer isn't having the same sort of trouble as Dizzy Dean. It isn't lameness. In fact, he is troubled mainly by a lack of the control he had before a siege of illness and a year of real arm trouble.

As Martin adds, "Vander Meer is only 25, too young to start saying: 'Now when I was pitching in the majors...' All he needs is a thermostat for that fireball of his."

St. Mary Fund Drive Reaches $20,000 Mark

Ray J. Baschnagel Says Drive Will Go On to $25,000 Goal

Contributions to the St. Mary's drive for funds to carry out renovation plans in connection with the observance of the Iowa City church's centennial have reached the $20,000 mark, it was reported last night by Ray J. Baschnagel, chairman of the finance committee in charge of the drive.

"Contributions have been very generous," Mr. Baschnagel said, "and the drive will continue until the $25,000 goal has been reached."

Plans for the renovation of the church and rectory are those of the late Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. J. Schulte and are being carried out in honor of his memory.

Carol set up the party, with himself at its head. June 21, and commanded the whole nation to fall in step with the new totalitarian political system based on the Nazi pattern.

(Dispatches from Bucharest to Belgrade, Yugoslavia, told of a movement by Rumania's fascist-inclined iron guard which Carol boosted to important leadership in his new party to compel the king to abdicate on the grounds he was responsible for the loss of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.)

Appointment of the three Carol cabinet members by the soviet occupational authorities was interpreted as a bid for support of Rumanians who became Russian subjects in the newly-acquired territory.

Blackouts ordered. Rumania put into effect additional precautions, ordered a blackout for the first time, leaving only blue street lamps. Police carried carbines.

Rumanian government sources charged tonight that Hungary is trying to foment a revolution among the 1,500,000 Magyars in Transylvania to facilitate the eventual entry of the Hungarian army into the big, rich province.

Rumanian police and gendarmes are understood to have begun widespread raids on Hungarian homes and business houses in Transylvania in a search for arms.

Sources close to palace and cabinet here charged that the Hungarian government is smuggling rifles, hand grenades and machine-guns into the territory.

Fear massacre. They expressed fear lest this influx of weapons put the Magyar minority in a position to massacre Rumanian officials and hamper defense by the Rumanian army when and if, the Hungarian troops cross the frontier.

New Power Plant Equipment Ready for Testing July 15

Roscoe Taylor Reveals Value Of Additions

5000 Kilowatt Turbine In Coralville Building Will Double Capacity

An accurate test of the new 5,000-kilowatt General Electric turbine and an Allis-Chalmers condenser high pressure steam boiler, which are being placed in the new plant addition to the Iowa City Light and Power company plant at Coralville at a cost exceeding half a million dollars, is expected by July 15, it has been announced by Roscoe Taylor, manager of the company.

"As soon as the equipment is installed, we can provide Iowa City with an adequate electric capacity and also complete stand-by equipment which has not been available in the past," Taylor said.

The capacity of the plant is now only 4,000 kilowatts, but with the addition of the new 5,000 watt turbine the capacity will be more than doubled. The addition to the present turbine room, which was built in 1930, makes it possible to house not only the new generator but also a new condenser, two condensate pumps, a two-stage twin air evaporator, two closed feed water heaters and a new vertical type circulating pump, officials explained.

Two New Boilers

The complete new boiler room will house the new boiler which is capable of producing 60,000 pounds of steam per hour with 450 pounds per square inch pressure at 740 degrees temperature. The three boilers used at the present time will also be found here, and there has been provision made for two new boilers to be purchased and installed later, according to construction engineers.

Other equipment in the room will include two centrifugal feed pumps, an economizer, four spreader type stokers, complete coal handling equipment, an induced draft fan and a forced draft fan. Coal will be used for heating the boilers in the winter but gas will be used during the summer months, it was explained.

The work on the new plant addition has been in progress since Dec. 1, 1939, with as many as 130 men employed at one time. Ray Joslyn, engineer in charge of the project, said that from the construction viewpoint, the equipment now installed or to be installed is of the very latest design.

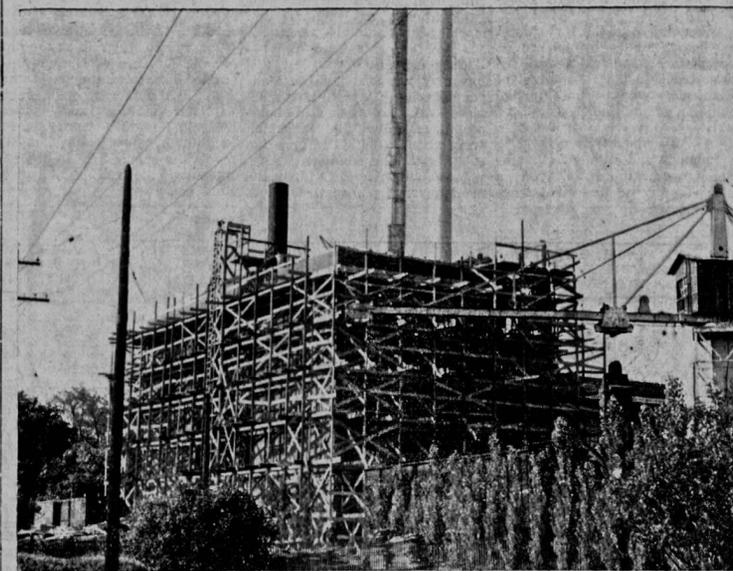

The completed building will be of red brick with cut stone exterior supplanting the older building that has stood for several years.

Half Million Dollar Project Nears Completion

This general view shows the half million dollar plant addition to the Coralville plant of the Iowa City Light and Power company nearing completion. New equipment in the plant is expected to undergo tests beginning about July 15. Included in new equipment is a 5,000 kilowatt General

Electric turbine generator and a modern high pressure steam boiler. The new equipment will more than double the output capacity of the plant which now has a 4,000-watt capacity and will soon have a 5,000-watt additional output. This increased capacity equipment will provide the local power plant with complete stand-by equipment which has not been available in the past. Other new equipment includes modern pumps, fans, water heaters, boilers and stokers. The plant will burn coal during the winter but will consume only gas during the summer months.
