Judge Gaffney Arrives

When Good Men Get Together

Behind the Scenes at Iowa Headquarters

Executive Offices Remain Silent Despite Varied Opinion in Chicago

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—A light schedule of callers left Mr. Roosevelt's long-time political counselor, was at the White House. The justice accompanied the chief executive on a river cruise last week end and has stayed on ever since. Newsmen recalled that he was with Mr. Roosevelt during the Chicago convention that first nominated his friend for the presidency in 1932.

Convention Slights Tradition, Nominates President Roosevelt By Acclamation for Third Term

Farley Pledges Support to Nominee in Motion Seconded by Senators Walsh, Tydings As Delegates Roar

BY RICHARD L. TURNER

CHICAGO STADIUM, July 18 (Thursday) (AP)—Disarding an ancient tradition, the democratic national convention noisily nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term as president of the United States early today—and did it by acclamation.

A smashing majority of the convention's 1,100 votes had been cast for the president, to the clamor of the delegates and the jammed galleries. Before the result could be announced, James A. Farley, once a third term foe, a candidate himself, announced his support for the ticket, and moved that the rules be suspended and the president be acclaimed the party's nominee.

"I am grateful to those delegates to this convention who voted for me and to those delegates who would have voted for me if they had not been otherwise pledged," a smiling Farley told the delegates.

"I want this great convention of democrats to know that I will give that same support to the nominees of this convention."

Farley's motion was seconded by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts and Senator Tydings of Maryland. Rep. Rayburn of Texas already had turned Texas' 46 votes from Vice President Garner to Mr. Roosevelt.

The Farley motion went through on a roaring voice vote that made most of the convention's previous shoutings seem puny, and Chairman Alben Barkley declared the president to be the convention's unanimous choice as its nominee.

Despite the climactic unanimity there was evidence of a memory of opposition to the third term issue and the bitter row it had stirred within the party.

This antagonism was perhaps epitomized in the slight but indomitable figure of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, dramatically denouncing the third term idea as opposed to the party's long standing principles, and grimly and firmly standing his ground against a roaring outburst of boos and derision. Glass nominated Farley.

There remained of course the question of President Roosevelt's acceptance of the nomination. He had told the convention that he had no "desire or purpose" to become a candidate. But he had not said "no," flatly and finally.

Roosevelt leaders, never doubting his acceptance, said it was a good bet that the president would address the convention from Washington tomorrow night, and give it his decision.

Alabama, first in the roll call of the states, and its senator, Lister Hill, were chosen to present the president's name so that it might go before the convention at first crack out of the box, and possibly forestall further nominations.

Nevertheless, although Senator Wheeler of Montana had withdrawn, the backers of Vice-President Garner and Postmaster General Farley were determined to fight it out, no matter how bad the beating they obviously were

National Convention Approves 1940 Platform Promising Not to Fight in Foreign Territories

Amendment Against Third Term Shouted Down by Delegation

By REG INGRAHAM
CHICAGO STADIUM, July 17 (AP)—The democratic national convention shouted quick approval tonight of a 1940 platform promising not to send United States armed forces to fight on foreign land, outside the Americas, "except in case of attack."

Action came after Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, platform committee chairman, read the document amid frequent interruptions of cheering and applause.

Just before the vote, Rep. Elmer J. Ryan of Minnesota, offered an amendment to the platform declaring that no man shall be eligible for a third term for president.

Booing drowned out the clerk's voice as he read the anti-third term proposal and then the delegates shouted it down vociferously by a voice vote.

The 4,000 word document, completed after hours of bickering in the resolutions committee had thrown the convention off schedule, also promised that "all the material aid to our command, consistent with law and not inconsistent with the interests of our own national defense" would be extended to "the peace-loving and liberty-loving peoples wantonly attacked by ruthless aggressors."

Some of its authors said the foreign policy plank would assure a "middle of the road" course in foreign affairs and Senator Wheeler of Montana declared that if adhered to, it would thoroughly protect the United States and guarantee that there would be "no intervention" in foreign wars.

Before it was finally adopted, however, Senator Pepper of Florida had led an unsuccessful fight for a plank pledging "full aid short of war" for the democracies and "a solemn pledge" that the United States would not extend the "hand of appeasement" to dictators.

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins told reporters "there is nothing in this foreign relations plank which changes by one jot or tittle the foreign policy of the president or secretary of state."

"I refer to the present policy and the future policy," said Hopkins, who has been directing third term activities from a hotel room here.

Stimson Says Compulsory Training Needed For Strong National Defense

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—Secretary Stimson told preparedness advocates from 42 states today that there was a "very dark outlook" for national defense unless military service was made compulsory to meet the need for trained men.

"Congress has appropriated literally billions of dollars for material to save the country, but we have not yet taken the step necessary to get the men to run that material," the new secretary of war said.

"There is no way by which those men can be obtained except by a selective service act somewhat similar to that we had 23 years ago."

Other development on the defense front:

1. General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, said the war department favored the exertion of pressure, if necessary, upon employers to keep open the jobs of men who might be called to active service in the national guard or for compulsory military training.

2. Marshall estimated that the "most modern" arms and equipment would be ready by the end of the year for the contemplated

'God Bless America'

At the Wednesday afternoon session of the 28th democratic national convention in Chicago this portion of the first balcony audience are shown singing Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" led by Virginia Verrill from the speaker's platform and accompanied by the Chicago stadium organ. At the Tuesday night session Harry Richman led the singing of this popular patriotic song, the entire packed house enthusiastically singing it over and over again.

Mr. Weems in Person

In the lavish whirl of events of the fine arts festival there is a good chance for some of the closely packed special occasions to pass without their due of appreciation. The kaleidoscopic procession of highlights—plays, concerts, lectures, exhibitions—tends perhaps to give us a surfeit of appreciation. There are simply not enough "ohs" and "ahs" to go around.

It may not be unfitting, then, to call attention especially to the fact that Grant Wood's famous "Parson Weems' Fable" is now on exhibition in the Iowa Union lounge. This is the first time the painting has been shown in Iowa. The fascinating portrait of Professor John E. Briggs, of the political science department (as Parson Weems) has been evoking much comment.

The deep whimsicality of this painting will probably remind a good many who saw University theater's production of Elmer Rice's "American Landscape" last week of one particularly fine quip. Like "Parson Weems' Fable," it revealed much that is characteristic of America.

"Do you suppose George Washington really did cut down the cherry tree?"
"He did if he said he did. George never told a lie!"

'A Job for Britain'

From king of the far-flung British empire to governor of the Bahama Islands seems a long way down the ladder. From ruling millions of British subjects to governing the 67,726 inhabitants of the Bahamas; from an active interest in the industries and enormous trade of Britain to an active interest in the production of sponges, tomatoes, pine timber, shell and crawfish. The American tourist industry has been by far the most lucrative industry in the Islands. The arrival of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor should bring about a boom in tourist trade in spite of food rationing and the red tape attending visiting a country that is on a war basis.

From king to playground supervisor may not be so apt a summing up of the present status of the Duke when consideration is given to the possible uses which war might find for the many isolated harbors of the Bahama Islands, and when the importance of British-American accord in the western hemisphere is considered. Perhaps the post has more significance than meets the eye, but in any event, the romance of the islands and the glamour of Nassau will be enhanced by the arrival of the Duke and Duchess. "A job to do for England"—insignificant, ironical, and perhaps humiliating, but at least a job!

The Lure of the Circus

Do you remember the first circus you ever saw, the unequalled flavor of the popcorn and peanuts, the heady odor of the animals, the exciting atmosphere of adventure and strange people, coming from whither and going whence? The dizzy sensation of tight rope walking, the breathless thrill of hair breadth escapes, the uneasy awareness of ferocious beasts were then just part of the circus and not concomitants of everyday living. The elephants were then just elephants, and the clown's donkey carried no double entendre.

The circus through the eyes of an adult could be a dull affair, but the chances are it wasn't. The gay colors, the band, the crowds and the odors awaken responsive chords in memories, and again we can experience the spine-tingling sense of adventure.

In retrospect, the oldsters may shake their heads—circuses aren't what they used to be; the youngsters may compare it unfavorably with the last movie thriller. But there still seems to be something about a circus, the "lure of the big top" that draws old and young, year after year, to stare, to marvel, to envy, to sniff—and to remember.

Fewer Accidents in 1940

An effort has been made to secure information as to the probable causes of most of the accidents on our streets and highways. The police systems of Iowa are attempting to devise means of decreasing the number of fatalities, occurring annually, through the Iowa department of public safety. Within the past week, there have been meetings of peace officers in various parts of the state. The meetings held here last week were in part for those purposes. The state was divided into sections, and officers of particular divisions, attended their designated meetings. There were some 275 men here, attending the numerous meetings scheduled from July 8 to July 12.

If officers know how, where, when and why accidents occur, it may be possible to devise means to avoid many accidents in the future. Consequently, the desirability of obtaining all the details at the scene of an accident. Road conditions are contributing factors to many accidents. In some cases, engineers are planning changes in the interests of safety. Too, there are times when personal elements contribute to accidents, and proper means of warnings to motorists may help to prevent accidents.

The Minnesota highway commission has set a good example for other states to follow, in ordering all advertising signs and billboards erected on the right-of-way removed by the highway crews. They have gone a step farther by ordering highway employes to remove from the right-of-way all bottles, cans, and other litter thrown out of cars by careless drivers and occupants.

Every person who drives a car should be made to realize the importance of the task with which he has been entrusted by the state. Instead of one out of every 41 drivers having an accident this year, predicted by state officials based upon their judgment of records of the past, it should be possible to make the figure as low as one in several hundred.

The present movement to get complete and accurate information is a movement with which all of us should be more than willing to cooperate. Our peace officers are to be commended on the advancement of such a program.

A Man About MANHATTAN

Manhattan Melodrama—Papa Goldman's $3,590

BY GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—Manhattan Melodrama: Red Hook is an example of what happens when slum clearance becomes really effective. Red Hook is in Queens. It is a huge new housing project that provides thousands of bright, new, well-lit apartments, modern in every manner, for underprivileged families. You aren't eligible to live in Red Hook unless your income is less than $1,399 a year. Among the hundreds of families who live in Red Hook is that of Papa Goldman. Papa Goldman is 67 years old. He is the head of the family and he has a wife and two sons. Papa Goldman's name is David.

One of Papa Goldman's neighbors and friends is a man named Joseph Guarino. One day recently Papa Goldman asked friend Joseph Guarino if he would do a little favor for him. He had an old radio, a baby carriage, and a crib, which he wanted delivered to the house of a friend of his. Would Joe drive them over?

Joe could and would. After the deliveries had been made Joe picked up a couple of extra fares and took them to where they wanted to go. Joe is a taxi-cab driver. Then, for some reason, Joe happened to glance back into his cab, and what he saw almost caused him to have a head-on collision with a telephone pole. It was money—a package of money—great gobs of money in greenbacks. There were 1,500 one-dollar bills... there were four $500 bills... there were five, tens, and twenties... In all, there was a fortune of $3,590.

Wherefore Joe drove straight to the police station and turned in his find. Then he drove home and told Papa Goldman what had happened.

When Papa Goldman heard this he almost had a fit. That was his money. The savings of a lifetime, he said... It belonged to him, and his wife, and his sons... They had hidden it in the radio, and forgot all about it.

At the police station Papa Goldman told his story. But the police weren't willing to turn the money over to him. After all, Joseph had driven two women passengers between the time he had delivered the radio and found the money in the back of his cab.

They sent out a call for the women. They couldn't be found. Papa Goldman was an unhappy man. So was his son, Oscar.

Joe was there, too. When reporters questioned Joe about his part in the story, he told them he had suggested to Papa Goldman that maybe he should have a reward for calling the lost money to Papa's attention.

"If I get it back," said Papa Goldman, "I will give you ten dollars."

That made Joe laugh. "Imagine offering ten dollars reward for three thousand," he told the reporters.

What made it look blue for the Goldmans was the arrival of a woman. Not one of the women passengers.

"I'm from the New York City Housing Authority," she said. "If all this cash belongs to you, what were you doing living in a settlement restricted to people who lack money?"

What Papa's answer to this will be I don't know.

But I do know this. When they left court that night, Joe didn't drive them. And the money was still in the hands of the police.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Something Wrong At the Convention

CHICAGO—This outing of the democratic party could hardly have been less casual if the democratic leadership (outside the White House reform entourage) had decided to take a silent walk on Mr. Roosevelt.

A typical event was the boom for Mr. Bascom Timmons as vice presidential candidate. Timmons is a Washington correspondent, a good friend of Vice President Garner and his proxy in the national committee. News-men sitting around the convention aisles, praying for excitement, decided, probably because Timmons is the only interesting character on the scene outside of National Chairman Farley, to start a vice presidential boom for him. It was a matter of retribution. Practically everyone else was running, so why not Timmons. A band and a parade were organized and Mr. Timmons was true to the occasion. He announced in a premature acceptance speech he would receive no contributions over $5,000,000, while anyone was looking.

Now Mr. Timmons is only a convention bystander, a man who has merely met the wash of the waves as they come, but the mere existence of this wave should inform you this is the most unusual of conventions.

SOMETHING WRONG

No one likes to throw rocks at a parade, especially a national parade such as this meeting should represent, but it is clear from the activities of all the leaders that something is wrong here somewhere. It seems almost as if the schooled democratic politicians who know how to run conventions, had decided that inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt manifest a preference for his politically untutored commerce secretary and friend Harry Hopkins to run this hotel picnic for him, they would just let Hopkins go at it unhampered to see how bad a job he could do of it. Not a single official statement was issued by anyone of authority the first few days of the convention. The only press conferences were those of Mr. Farley and these have been pathetically reported. (The prize of the Farley conference remarks was one that he "often wondered" who is running this convention.)

Brains of the White House publicity staff, Mr. Charles Michelson, have been most active in ushering debutantes about.

If there were not so many grave events going on in the world, it would make a much more pleasant story to report.

NO FISH

You will catch the point from the following collection of inner events:

Ex-Secretary of War Harry Woodring has the widest demeritic smile of the outing. He says he has been receiving 600 letters a day favoring non-involvement in Europe and has had to open two extra offices in his

Kansas home town to take care of the mail since his mysterious retirement from the Roosevelt cabinet... Leon Henderson, the reform economist of SEC and the national defense commission, tried to smoke out Mr. Roosevelt after the last meeting of the NDC in the president's office. None too subtly, he suggested he was a member of the Marching and Chowder club which was going to have its quadrennial camp meeting in Chicago shortly. His fellow members would be asking questions, Henderson told the president, and he would like to have the answer. "Leon," responded FDR, "have you ever been fishing?" "Yes," said Henderson with a knowing smile, "I was fishing yesterday and I did not catch any more than I did today."

SENATE STRONG

The senate influence, which was practically extinct at Philadelphia, is in command of the platform. About twelve senators are running the show of collecting party principles...

The official inside story being circulated among the delegates is that Mr. Roosevelt informed one of his officials last week he would keep his elbows out of the vice presidential situation. Hull had declined. Douglas might be stopped by the convention. Wheeler could be drafted despite denials to the contrary. Douglas and Louis Johnson, assistant war secretary, would be acceptable, he said specifically... There was never such an absence of worrying and thinking at a national political conclave. Mr. Roosevelt's promise to do all of both for the collected leaders, has relieved this gathering of practically any burdensome responsibilities...

REICHSTAG MEETING

A caustic commentator (republican no doubt) at the Farley press conference groaned aloud the suggestion that something should be done to make the convention look less like a meeting of the Reichstag... The convention will be dragged out to five days so hotels can get even, or better... Garnerites claim 55 to 70 votes for president on the first ballot, if there is to be a ballot, but only 50 to 65 per cent of the Texas delegation will stay with him beyond the initial venture... Hopkins, the presidential spokesman here, has definitely said he has "no objection" to Johnson as V. P... The presidential spokesman talks of a Roosevelt-Douglas ticket, however, as the "super" ticket which will banish politics from politics... Chairman Wagner of the platform committee said he would take witnesses in the order of their application, but gave first place to CIO's Phillip Murray who was tenth on the list.

Every convenience is being afforded John Lewis and the CIO here... Mayor Kelly was ambitious for Farley's job, but the party directors decided he was too big a horseshoe to hang on Mr. Roosevelt's neck in a trying campaign... Kelly ran short of money for the show and at the last minute had to solicit contributions in Washington, of all places... When Farley was asked what he thought of John Mack nominating Roosevelt he responded in effect: "Does it make any difference what I think?"

STRONG DRAFT

The draft is so strong at this convention that when Kelly stepped up to the convention microphone he was nearly swept into a vice presidential position... Leo Crowley is being touted responsibly for Farley's job and is more capable of doing it than anyone else who has been mentioned... "It's a shame," said a Texas delegate, "to waste all this money for a government that really is being held in Mr. Roosevelt's hat."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Hollywood's Accent on Youth

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—The big "crash" in the movies right now is not westerns, not war movies, not musicals—but youth.
A few years ago the youngsters played second fiddle to the seasoned troupers. The heyday of Will Rogers, Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore saw film stories created to glorify the middle-aged and beyond. It was the era of "characters."
The "characters" still are in the running, and strongly so, but the kids are in there fighting, and they'll be pushing against the positions now held firmly by established stars of the Colbert, Lombard, Dietrich class.
The war, oddly, may be the cause for the rush to youth, at for two reasons. First, there's the war-born desire for light, sweet stuff in the films, and youth supplies the demand. Second, the war and its direct effect on the studios' foreign markets makes the culture of "new blood" of vital interest. With lessened revenues the lots will find it harder to meet the "fortune a picture" demands of the top names. With upcoming youngsters in reserve (at comparatively small salaries), they can beat down the demands or, failing this, can thrust the newcomers upward to take the chief spots.

The trend is especially noticeable at 20th Century-Fox, where Zanuck's oldest feminine star, Alice Fay, is 25. Zanuck has been giving newcomers unusual opportunities right along, and has cashed in handsomely already on Linda Darnell, stands to win again on Mary Beth Hughes. Lynn Robert (who was Mary Hart in Republic's westerns) has the lead in "Street of Memories" with John McGuire, a young fellow who is making his second try in films. Sheila Ryan (who was Paramount's Betty McLoughlin) was spotted in a "Cisco Kid" part, and Anne Baxter is coming along in "The Great Profile." Nancy Kelly, Marjorie Weaver and Arleen Whelan are other youngsters doing consistent service in the lot's pictures, any of them a possibility for a starring "break" one of these days. And Betty Grable, rejected by Paramount but a quick come-back after a Broadway click, is showered with starring opportunities—first in Alice Fay's role in "Down Argentine Way," which Alice left to get a rest, then in the Irving Berlin musical, "Say It With Music." The lot also has Gene Tierney, only 20, but already big-time because she arrived via a Broadway hit in "The Male Animal."
So "Youth Will Be Served," which is a Jane Withers movie title, is going to be more than that.

Graduate students who expect to receive degrees at the August convocation should check in their theses at the graduate college office, 116 University hall, not later than 5 p.m., July 19. Theses must be finally deposited by 5 p.m. August 1.

Symphony Orchestra to Present Works of Iowa Graduates

Final Concert To Be Heard Over WSUI

Tonight's Program First to Feature Student Compositions

Three symphonic compositions of University of Iowa graduate students will be played by the summer session orchestra under the direction of Prof. Philip G. Clapp in the climactic concert of the second fine arts festival this evening in Iowa Union at 8 o'clock. Brahms' beloved "Fourth Symphony" is also included on the program, which will be broadcast over station WSUI.

Compositions of students to be played are "Introduction, Scherzo and Passacaglia" by Wendell Oley of Iowa City; "The Legend of the Cranes" by Jewel Peterson of Sioux Falls, S. D.; and "The Great Stone Face" by Leon Karel of Iowa City.

Tonight's concert marks the first time that the university symphony orchestra has featured compositions by Iowa-trained students.

"Introduction, Scherzo and Passacaglia" was Oley's thesis for his Ph.D. degree, which he received here in 1939. Composer of "Ten Minutiae Variations on an Original Theme," the young musician is a guest member of the summer music faculty.

He received his B.A. degree from Southern Illinois State Teachers college and is at present a regular member of Pittsburg university music staff.

"The Legend of the Cranes" is a fine poem by Miss Peterson, who received her M.F.A. degree in composition at the June convocation, which was the first degree of the type to be offered by the music department.

Her composition follows the story of the great Greek poet, whose murder was avenged by cranes. She received her B.A. degree from Augustana college, Sioux Falls, S. D., and her M.A. degree here in 1930. She is at present music instructor at Central college, Pella.

"The Great Stone Face" by the local composer, Leon Karel, is an attempt to depict the main scenes and characters in Hawthorne's well-known story.

Graduated from the university this June, Karel was a member of the University chorus and Scottish Highlanders.

Composed of experienced professionals, members of the music faculty and students, the summer session symphony may be compared with professional groups for technical proficiency, tone quality and interpretative ability, according to authorities.

'Pixies' Glamorize the Eyes

The smartest things in piquant novelties are these new "pixie" glasses worn by Louise Reel, G. Tomeson, A.2 of Baltimore, Md. Glasses have been the source of feminine wails almost since the stone age, but no more! Even lasses whose eyesight is practically 100 per cent clamor for these "glamor" frames (and in every pastel and darker shade imaginable), but you can have a whimsical daisy-wreath frame, which will make you look like a cross between class day at Vassar and grandmother's garden, or presto! you can be dazzling in a sparkling pair of rinstone goggles. Whatever your choice, it is certain that the "eyes" have it today!

Music Festivals A Practical Remedy For 'Spectatoritis,' Alloo Declares

Music at festivals as a practical remedy for the modern malady "spectatoritis," was advocated by Modeste Alloo, director of the federal music project orchestra, Newark, N. J., at the second fine arts luncheon yesterday in the river room of Iowa Union.

Defining "spectatoritis," as the passive attitude toward the arts in the day when radio supplies too much "canned music," Alloo stressed the need for more amateur participation in music festivals.

Since music is the outward expression of man's cultural heritage, the speaker said, it is a real concern whether modern participation in the arts was succeeding in expressing what is unexpressed in daily work.

- 20 Out of 24
Two Over .500
Key To Success

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—It's double or nothing with the Cincinnati Reds, and in case that sounds like a lot of double talk it might be pointed out that the National league champions consider it a poor day when they don't take both ends of a double header.

In fact, it is this ability to let go with both barrels on bargain days which is responsible for the Reds' present position at the head of the class. They have played 24 games in double headers, and have won 20 of them. They split even in four of their double bills and swept the other eight.

That gives McKeechies' team an impressive percentage of .833 for their double bill play compared with their percentage for all games through last Monday of .680.

To really appreciate the advantage this whole hog tendency gives the club it only is necessary to point to the apathetic showing of its rivals in the double attractions. Only one other team, which for some mysterious reason is the Boston Bees, is above the .500 mark on the two-a-day circuit. The Bees have won 12 and lost 10 for a .545 figure.

Pittsburgh is even-Stephen with 13 victories and 13 defeats, and the same is true of the Giants, who have split in 24 games. The Dodgers record is 10 wins and 12 losses for .455; The Cubs have won eight and lost 12 for a .400 mark; the Cards have won 10 while losing 16 for a .385 percentage, and the hapless Phils have won seven while losing 13 for a .350 figure.

The importance of being able to pile up victories by twos was aptly illustrated by the Cardinals last year. Until July 23 they were just another ball team, a little surprising to be sure, but nothing sensational.

On the morning of July 23 they were in fourth place, nine games out of the lead. On Sept. 23, the day the Reds clinched the pennant, St. Louis was only two and one-half games back, and had had the Reds so jittery they were throwing double balls to the umpires.

Double-header triumphs largely were responsible for this surge. Little Ray Blades may have kept his pitchers galloping in and out like they were bringing in election returns, but nevertheless and notwithstanding his Red birds, starting on that sultry July 23, won eight consecutive double bills. Not on eight consecutive days, naturally, but taking them as they came.

From July 23 to the end of the season they won 27 and lost five of their double header games for the astounding average of .844. They hadn't been so hot up to then, and their hap-hazard performance before July 23 brought their season's average down to .654.

Pitching is the key to success when the double header season rolls around, and pitching is something Bill McKeechie has nothing else but. In addition to his three aces—Bucky Walters, Paul Derringer and Junior Thompson, he has capably added to his staff capable performers like ancient Jim Turner and youthful Joe Beggs whom he can drop into the vacant spots in the twin bills with some confidence that they'll be around when the 5 o'clock whistle blows.

McKeechie is one of the shrewdest, if not the shrewdest, handlers of pitchers in the business. He'd rather pitch the bat boy than have one of his regulars pitch out of turn, and his second line of moundmen is capable enough to hold the fort while the aces are getting their necessary rest.

Armstrong Wins by Technical Knockout Over Lew Jenkins

Henry Comes Back To Win

Jenkins Unable To Come Out For 7th; Floored Six Times

BY SID FEDER NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—A wild assortment of high-explosive bombs dropped square in the middle of the Polo Grounds tonight, and when the smoke cleared away, there was Lil' Henry Armstrong the bossman again.

He didn't come through without absorbing some damage, but his cannon packed more dynamite, and he put lightweight champion Lew Jenkins away in six rounds as wild and woolly a battle between two little men as has entertained the customers since Benny Leonard and Lew Tindler were serving them up. No title was at stake.

For three rounds, the welterweight champion just waded in and took a good sound licking. Then he found the range. He battered the lightweight title holder to the floor six times through the next three heats and hurt him so badly that the Texas thin man just couldn't make it for the seventh. He slumped to his knees in his own corner ten seconds before the bell rang opening the seventh and the state athletic commission ruled it a six round technical knockout for the great little Negro.

A fair-sized crowd, somewhat less than expectations because of the day-long threatening weather, loved it. They roared when Jenkins started to pitch his right hand in the early going. They howled when he opened a cut on "Henry the Hammerer's" left eye in the fourth. They shook the stands when Lew went down for the first time in the fourth, and from there on to the finish they pulled out all the stops as Jenkins went down twice more in the fifth and three times in the sixth.

Afterward, in his dressing room, the skinny slugger from Sweetwater said he didn't remember a thing after the early minutes of the fight. For the last five minutes of the fight, he was going up and down like an elevator, and must have been all worn out getting to his feet.

He was game to the finish, but gameness wasn't the prescription the doctor ordered tonight. Henry, gone back somewhat from the fine little fighting machine who held the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight crowns simultaneously at his peak from 1936 to '39, still is a great brawler.

He proved it beyond the doubts of even Jenkins' sturdiest supporters by going out there and slugging with a little fighting man who was riding along on a streak of eight-straight knockouts, who, in the past year, had climbed from the hamburger and cheese circuit to the lightweight championship of the world by stiffening Lou Ambers a couple of months ago, and who is regarded as the most dangerous punching little man to hit the big time in years.

The round-by-round: First Round Jenkins straightened Henry up with left hand, and landed a right to the head as Armstrong crowded Jenkins toward two lefts to the body and a left to the jaw, but Henry still pushed forward. Second Round Jenkins landed a fast right across and Henry held momentarily. Jenkins fought the round in a half circle, and when he landed a right to the jaw near the end of the round, Henry was so hurt that he was knocked down. Jenkins landed a right to the body, Jenkins' round.

They flailed away at each other's body for several seconds at the start. Then Jenkins landed a left and right off the face, but Henry still crowded in. Jenkins landed two rights to the body and another to the head, and still Henry came on. They exchanged stinging lefts and the crowd roared. Jenkins, backing away, slipped to one knee in the round, but it was not a knock-down. Jenkins bounced two more rights off Henry's head and Armstrong peppered away at him. Henry's eye found its mark again but Henry's left drew blood from Lew's nose just at the bell. Jenkins' round.

Round Three Jenkins' right hand continued to find a target but Henry just kept coming in, trying to land body punches. Armstrong was wide with most of his left hooks up to now. Jenkins assailed Henry with a right to the mouth. Henry snooked fast left hook to the face and then connected with a roundhouse right that "Lew didn't" hit. They stood in mid-ring for several seconds, just clouting away. This was the most vicious round so far, with defenses on each side tossed out for the window. Jenkins' round.

Round Four For a full minute Jenkins held Armstrong off with straight lefts. A left hook, right on the mouth, floored Jenkins near Armstrong's corner. He got up at nine and Henry tore in, trying for the kill. Jenkins backed off trying to recover. Then another left hit him on the mouth and he held. Jenkins bounced two left hooks off the mouth. Henry tore in, throwing swings with both hands. Another left landed on Jenkins' mouth, and still he punched back. A right hand made Lew's knees buckle near the end of the round and cut Lew on the corner of the left eye. Armstrong's round.

Round Five Jenkins tore out and threw punch after punch to Henry's head, cutting Armstrong's right eye with a swinging left. He just backed away as Henry came in and threw about 50 punches before Armstrong could get in close. Henry scored with several right swings to the body midway through the round and Jenkins appeared tired. Jenkins went down from a body punch near his corner for a count of two, then was floored again for a nine count from a right hand. Armstrong rushed in for the kill and was peppering Jenkins about the head at the bell. Armstrong's round.

Hainline Opens Title Defense

Indians Beaten, Take 1st Place

DES MOINES, July 17 (AP)—Hard-hitting Dick Hainline opened the defense of his Iowa singles tennis crown today by smashing through two opponents on the Birdland courts.

The Rock Island, Ill., star, delayed by a tennis school in his home town, brought the men's singles up to date by toppling Charles Ruth and Frank Brody, both of Des Moines, in straight sets.

He had little trouble dropping Ruth, 6-0, 6-2, but ran into strong opposition from Brody. The local veteran took four games in the first set and held a two-love lead before weakening in the second. Hainline ran out the match, 6-4, 6-2.

ERRATIC McNAIR Commits Four Errors; Chisox Lose WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—Erratic Eric McNair, Chicago third baseman, helped the Washington Senators to their fourth consecutive victory today by committing four errors and tying the American league mark for misplays in a single game. The Nats won 5 to 2.

The dubious "record," now held jointly by five players, last was equaled by Pinky Higgins in 1938. Chicago spurted into a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Joe Kuhel riddled his 16th home run of the season over the right field fence, scoring Skeeter Webb ahead of him, but the Nationals produced single runs in the first and fifth innings to tie the score and manufactured three more in the eighth.

Dutch Leonard allowed only eight hits in scoring his tenth triumph of the season. months ago, and who is regarded as the most dangerous punching little man to hit the big time in years.

Don McNeill Wins Easily BALTIMORE, July 17 (AP)—Top-seeded Don McNeill, of Kenyon college, and Alice Marble, the National Women's champion, brushed through their singles matches easily in the Maryland and mid-Atlantic section tennis championships today, but for favorites as a whole it was a sad day of wreckage.

'Great Feud' Over for Year

Ryder Cuppers Beat Sarazen's All-Stars; Gene Loses, 8 and 7

DETROIT, July 17 (AP)—America's Ryder Cup golfers, undefeated since 1933 when they bowed before Great Britain's finest, smashed the challenge of upstart Gene Sarazen's team today by breaking even in singles competition, thereby winning the two-day charity battle by a score of 7 to 5.

Although his team lost, Sarazen, who had criticized the Ryder selections and asserted he could pick a team to beat the cuppers, was still shouting defiance and asking for a rematch. An 8 and 7 personal shelling he absorbed from Henry Picard, the professional golfers association, champion failed to silence effervescent Gene.

"It was too close for me to admit defeat," Sarazen said. "After all, the issue was decided by only one match. And believe me, I'll get together a team next year that will win. The real winner, of course, was the American Red Cross."

The affable Walter Hagen, non-playing captain of the Ryder team, said the match went "just the way I thought it would."

Victory in the Scotch foursomes yesterday, 3 to 1, actually decided the issue in favor of the Ryder Cup squad.

Results of the singles played over Oakland Hills country club course: Ben Hogan of the challengers defeated Sam Snead, 2 and 1. They had best ball of 62. Billy Burke of the Sarazen knights beat Byron Nelson, 1939 national open champion, 4 and 2. Harry Cooper of the challengers won the last hole to defeat Vic Ghezzi, one up.

Ed Oliver, also a challenger, routed Jimmy Hines, 8 and 7. Ralph Guldahl, 1937 and 1938 open king, won for the Ryder team by beating Craig Wood, 2 and 1.

Horton Smith trounced Lawson Little, present open titlist 4 and 3 for another Ryder victory.

Dick Metz turned back Jimmy Demaret, one of the challengers, who played despite a foot infection, 5 and 4.

Picard, as already related, blasted Sarazen by an overwhelming 8 and 7 margin.

Until the final nine of the 36-hole competition, a good possibility had existed that the match might end in a deadlock. Guldahl then rallied to clinch his match against Wood, who had led him one up after the morning round.

Heroes of the match were Picard of the Ryder cuppers and Hogan and Burke of the challengers.

Buck Newsom Breaks Thumb In Two Places

DETROIT, July 17 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers should have "stayed in bed" today. They not only lost a double header to the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 3 and 8 to 5, which forced them to share second place in the American league with Boston, but they lost the services of Buck Newsom, their ace pitcher who had won 13 consecutive games for them.

Newsom's thumb on his pitching hand was broken in two places when he caught a throw from Rudy York while dashing to cover first base on a grounder by Ted Williams in the fourth inning of the opener.

Despite the injury, Newsom pitched to five more batters, retiring the side but giving up two runs in the process.

Up to that time he held a 3-0 lead against the Sox whom he was facing for the first time in 32 games before a capacity crowd of 32,400 that saw the Sox emerge from the day's battling only a half-game out of first place, still held by the Cleveland Indians.

Al Benton took over and gave up the tying run in the fifth, the Sox going on to clinch matters with five runs in the seventh.

Jack Wilson started for Boston but was removed in the fourth after the Tigers had scored all their runs, and Lefty Ostermuller shut out the visitors the rest of the way with two hits in his first victory.

Auto Thefts End in Arrest Of Two Boys

Stolen Car Drivers Risked Confusion With Three Convicts

A series of recent auto thefts in Iowa City was believed to have been broken by the arrest yesterday afternoon of two Iowa City boys who were driving their latest theft prize.

Police Chief Frank Burns said that recently several Iowa City cars had been stolen and then recovered a day or two later apparently without damage except for hard driving.

The two youths, ages 13 and 14, admitted to police yesterday afternoon that they took a car belonging to Marion Mickelson from its parking place near reserve library Monday night.

The police chief pointed out that the boys took a very big risk stealing a car then because the manhunt in the Iowa City area for the three convicts who escaped from Ft. Madison penitentiary was at its height. He explained that it was believed the convicts had stolen the Mickelson car and all patrol cars operating in and out of Iowa City were armed with machine guns.

"Had that stolen car been spotted by the patrolmen the boys would have been lucky to escape alive because the police were acting under orders to shoot first and then ask questions," the chief asserted.

Patrolmen George R. Hall and Harland F. Sprinkle arrested the boys who were driving the car near the City park. The youths will be turned over to the county probation officer, Mrs. Mabel Evans, Chief Burns said.

Special Caucus Elects Dutcher

Attorney Will Lead Republican Delegates At Burlington Friday

Members of the republican delegation to the state judicial convention to be held at Burlington tomorrow named Attorney Dan C. Dutcher chairman of the group at a special caucus in the Johnson county courthouse Tuesday.

At the caucus delegates selected Attorney R. G. Popham for vice chairman and Attorney A. C. Cahill as secretary.

A report on the candidates and the positions to be filled was given by Attorney Dutcher.

The general opinion of the delegation from Iowa City was that Judge Ralph A. Oliver of Sioux City will be renominated at the Burlington convention. Judge Oliver, who made his home in Iowa City during the winter, ends his term this year.

Attorney Henry Negus, Prof. Percy Bordwell and Attorney Popham also gave short talks at Tuesday night's meeting.

Board Names Men to Direct Weed Cutting

The Johnson county board of supervisors yesterday announced the appointment of weed commissioners in Newport and Graham townships to aid in the direction of the annual cutting of noxious weeds along the roads.

Louis J. Sedlack was appointed commissioner in Newport township, and Matt O'Brien was appointed in Graham township.

A resolution passed by the board June 10 ordered all landowners of Johnson county along county trunk and local county roads to destroy all noxious weeds and wild brush on and near their property.

The board said that cutting is progressing according to schedule and that the farmers have so far shown full cooperation.

Delegates Stage Demonstrations

Spectators at the 28th democratic national convention in Chicago stadium got their first view of parades and convention delegates demonstrations Tuesday night when Sen. Alben W. Barkley, in his address to the convention, twice brought up President Roosevelt's name. Lasting more than a half-hour each time, the delegates paraded around the floor

doomed to take. The platform, approved after a rousing row within the resolutions committee on the question of assistance to Great Britain, was whooped through on a roaring voice vote.

As finally drawn, the document pledged the party to extend to "all liberty loving peoples want-only attacked by ruthless aggressors . . . all the material aid at our command, consistent with law and not inconsistent with the interests of our own national defense—all to the end that peace and international good faith may yet emerge triumphant."

Wheeler Withdraws
Vice President John N. Garner and Postmaster General James A. Farley were still in the race, and their supporters awaited only the proper point of the program before submitting their names. But Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana had finally withdrawn. It would "serve no useful purpose," he said, "to be placed in nomination."

Speaking in a more than faintly sardonic tone, the senator asserted that while he had assumed Mr. Roosevelt would not be a candidate, last night's developments had changed that opinion. "We are now convinced," he said, "from the president's statement and the character of the demonstration—staged by his managers—who control the convention, that he desires and will accept the nomination."

Second Place Question
Speculation was turning to the question of who would take the second place on the ticket. The friends of Jesse Jones, Texas banker, and federal loan administrator, were more than confident, and there was much activity on his behalf.

J. R. Drake, Bank Examiner, Records Receivership Reports In Office of County Clerk

District Court Hears Standing of Banks For 12-Month Period

Annual reports of the receiverships of the Iowa City Savings bank and the Johnson County Savings bank were filed in the office of County Clerk R. Neilson Miller yesterday afternoon by J. R. Drake, the examiner in charge.

Each of the reports covers the 12-month period from June 30, 1939, to June 30, 1940. The public hearings on the reports will be Wednesday morning before Judge Harold D. Evans in the district court.

According to the report for the Iowa City Savings bank, the receivership had $25,100.41 on hand June 30, 1939. During the 12 months receipts totaled $76,473.26, expenses were $9,392.23, advances to conserve assets, $7,356.38, and dividend payments, $122.05. The cash balance on hand June 30 was $84,703.01.

The Johnson County Savings bank report showed a cash balance on hand June 30, 1939, of $39,535.10. During the following 12 months receipts by the receivership amounted to $59,145.20. Disbursements by the receivership were $8,550.84 for expenses and $2,670.01 advances to conserve assets. The balance on hand at the close of the period covered in the report was $87,459.45.

Under an order issued by Judge Evans last week the receiver will offer the remaining assets of the Iowa City Savings bank at public sale July 30 at the courthouse. Drake said that a final dividend closing the receivership will probably be made in August.

The attorneys for the Iowa City Savings bank receivership are the law firm of Messer, Hamilton and Cahill and Attorney J. M. Otto. Attorney Will J. Hayek, Attorney Henry Negus and the firm of Wilson, Clearman and Brant repre-

had caused a delay in the carefully drawn schedule of convention leaders, a time-table calling for the renomination of the president quickly, noisily and, if possible, unanimously.

In spite of the big night ahead, only about half the delegates were in their places at the time set for the session to start. Officially decided to wait a while before starting.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, in a dark summer suit, was on hand early, smiling broadly and greeting friends on the platform.

'One Name: Roosevelt'
Senator Wagner of New York, chairman of the resolutions committee and with a copy of the freshly drafted platform in the pockets of his brown coat, fidgeted in his chair waiting for the preliminaries to be cleared away so he could read the document to the convention.

Senator James M. Slattery of Illinois brought the first big outburst of applause when he said Illinois was joining in a call to President Roosevelt to continue service.

"Tonight the prairies of Illinois send out one word, one name: it is Roosevelt," he said.

A roar went up when Wagner came up and adjusted his glasses to begin reading the platform, which he said was proposed unanimously by the resolutions committee.
