Guard Mobilization Bill Passed by Congress

60,000 Men Are Expected In Early Call

Rest Subject to Call For Training, Service In This Hemisphere

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt received congressional authority today to mobilize the national guard, and in military circles it was anticipated that he would soon order active duty for about 60,000 officers and men.

Senate approval of a compromise bill, already passed by the house, sent the guard legislation to the White House. No dissent was heard in the voice vote.

The measure permits Mr. Roosevelt to order 12 months active service for approximately 396,000 guardsmen, reserve officers and enlisted reserves.

Immediate Plans However, at the time the measure was before congressional committees, army officials testified that immediate plans called for induction into active service of only 55,428 enlisted men, 53 warrant officers and 3,930 officers of the national guard.

These men would receive intensive training and be available to replace on continental duty any regular army troops dispatched to Latin-America, or elsewhere, because of an emergency.

While an early call to this group was expected, it was believed that the date for them to report would not be earlier than the middle of September.

Two-Week 'Furlough' The national guard is now undergoing field training, to be completed August 31. Army officials indicated that at least two weeks would be allowed between the end of these maneuvers and the start of active duty so that men could attend to personal affairs.

Most, if not all, of the remaining national guardsmen are expected to be called to active duty if congress enacts selective service legislation.

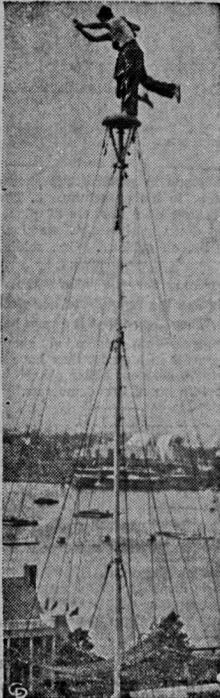

Provisions of Bill Before enacting the guard bill, congress inserted provisions designed to ease the hardships on individuals. It directed that men below the rank of captain, if they have dependents without other means of support, be permitted to resign, and that men under 18 be honorably discharged. It directed, too, that an employer must rehire an employe-guardman when his period of active duty expires.

Leon Trotsky's Attorney Asks For U. S. Memorial Services

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23 (AP)—Leon Trotsky's attorney asked tonight for United States permission to take the old bolshevist's body to New York for memorial services.

The attorney, Albert Goldman, filed his request with the United States consulate, which said it would be given "due consideration." There were indications that American authorities had expressed no enthusiasm over the plan. Goldman, however, said Mrs. Trotsky had "relinquished all rights to the body to me."

Chinese May Leave Capital; Raids Resumed

CHUNGKING, Aug. 24, (Saturday) (AP)—The Chinese central government considered the compulsory evacuation of all civilians except high officials and those directly serving war needs here as Japanese warplanes yesterday resumed their heavy bombing of this capital.

The German embassy and American missionary residences recently built in the suburban hills to avoid bombings were badly damaged in an attack which German corespondents of DNB, the official German news agency, called "inexcusable" in their dispatches to Berlin.

F. R. Demands Quick Passage Of Draft Bill

Delay Endangers Defense, He Warns; Foes Continue Fight

BY RICHARD L. TURNER WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt demanded quick passage of conscription legislation today—lest, he said, the national defense program be seriously delayed—but his appeal had no discernible effect upon the senate's ardent band of anti-draft members.

To the latter, in fact, Mr. Roosevelt's statement constituted a challenge, promptly accepted. They rushed to defend their tactic of exhaustive debate. They asserted that no filibuster was in progress but that such a "revolutionary" proposal demanded thorough examination. One of them, Senator Wiley (R-Wis), said that three more weeks' discussion would hardly be too much.

Year of Delay But, as the president saw the problem and outlined it to a press conference, postponement of conscription would mean nearly a year of delay in building up an adequate army. Volunteering has been at a high rate, he added, but is still insufficient. Conscription had been under discussion in congress since June 20, he said, and the legislators were still talking about it with no action in either house.

Before resuming discussion of the measure, today, the senate took final congressional action on companion legislation authorizing the president to call out the national guard and army reserves for compulsory service anywhere in the western hemisphere, American possessions elsewhere or the Philippine islands. The measure was sent to the White House for the president's signature.

Denounce Measure Then Senator Wiley (R-Wis) delivered a speech highly critical of the civilian draft bill, and Senator Nye (R-ND) denounced the measure as an "insult to our American boys," a "serious departure from the American way," and a proposal that might "help crack our democracy." The bill was proposed, he said, in "response to a hysteria that can definitely lead to dictatorship."

Mr. Roosevelt delivered his appeal slowly and earnestly. Defense preparations had concentrated this summer, he said, on orders for new equipment, much of which would be delivered this fall and early next spring. It had been said many times, he observed, that manpower without equipment would serve no good purpose, and now it was equally true that equipment without manpower would be of no use.

Enlistments Too Slow A total of 400,000 enlistments were needed, he continued, to fill the army and national guard to its present authorized strength, and although enlistments had been numerous, it would still take a year to get the 400,000 at the present rate. In addition, he said, another 400,000 were needed to fill in supporting units, and that would take another year.

Harry Hopkins Will Tender Resignation

Poor Health Reason For Decision to Give Up Commerce Position

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—It was learned tonight that Harry L. Hopkins will tender his resignation soon as secretary of commerce. President Roosevelt is expected to accept it reluctantly.

The president and Hopkins, friends for some 16 years, have been co-workers in New York and Washington for the last decade. The widower secretary of commerce makes his home at the White House, and Mrs. Roosevelt had been a second mother to his eight-year-old daughter, Diane.

U. S. Army Bomber Falls; 11 Men Die

DENVER, Aug. 23 (AP)—An army bomber—held to its course into a lightning-streaked cloud-bank to avert possible collision with a sister-ship—carried nine men to death as it crashed and exploded on a prairie 23 miles southeast of Denver.

Two officers and seven enlisted men were aboard the twin-motored B-18. — a Douglas medium bomber as it fell near the bombing range it had headed for after taking off from Lowry field, air corps technical school here. Its gasoline tanks, containing about 300 gallons, exploded as it struck the ground. Bits of the plane and bodies were blown more than 300 yards.

Isles Under Widespread Attack From Nazis; Thousands Leave Dover as 'Berthas' Pound Port

German Radio Stations Silent During RAF Raid On Interior; British Charge Nazis With 'Indiscriminate Machine Gunning'

LONDON, Aug. 24 (Saturday) (AP)—Unconfirmed reports today said German planes dropped parachutes during extensive raids over the industrial midlands area during the night.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Aug. 23—New raids by British bombers on German artillery emplacements on the Nazi-held French coastline were signaled late tonight by the high barking of German anti-aircraft batteries across the English channel and the dull thunder of bombs.

Flashes from the Nazi guns could be seen first at 10 p. m. (3 p. m. CST) dotting the French side for miles. Occasionally there were more diffused flashes, apparently caused by the falling British bombs.

At that same hour, all German radio stations went silent, suggesting British raids in the interior. A single searchlight beam swept the sky midway along the French shore between Boulogne and Calais, but after a few minutes was cut off.

The RAF's counter-attack across the channel—just 22 miles wide at some points—was one of a series first launched last night when the Nazis opened up with their big guns, bombarding the English coast particularly in the region of Dover, which was heavily shelled.

Tonight, that old channel town was abandoned by thousands of its people as a front-line city in a new artillery war zone.

Britain itself was under widespread air attack tonight. Low-flying Nazi bombers were over southeast and southwest coast towns, and as far as Wales. One flight dropped 20 bombs on a southern residential district, causing some casualties.

Denounce Nazi Attacks The air and war ministries early in the evening officially accused the raiders of "indiscriminate machine gun attacks" at several places in the industrial midlands and in one eastern district.

Bombs fell in three localities and late in the day the number of German planes shot down was put at four. These raids, made by aircraft operating alone or in small groups, followed early morning smashes at three thickly-populated London suburbs.

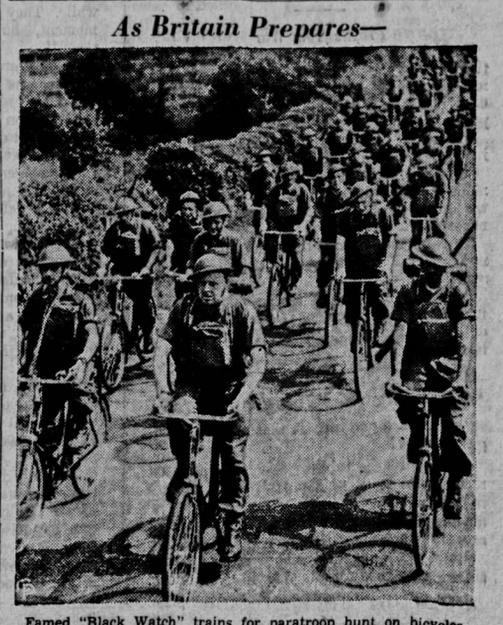

The new Dover artillery front was opened in a series of heavy bombardments that began last night. The British disclosed today that their own coastal guns had fired "a few rounds" back. They insisted the German shells could give the Nazis no more than a "nuisance" advantage.

Can't Get Dover Dover as a military point, they said, could not be knocked out. Nevertheless, Dover's hills were alive all day with moving vans, taking out the belongings of inhabitants who asserted that the German marksmanship was such that their shells might readily land "anywhere."

Just what damage had been done to the Nazi gun emplacements by British bombers sent out to silence them was not made known, the air ministry saying only that they had been "heavily attacked."

McNutt Would Meet Wilkie in Debate

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 23 (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, taking up the challenge that President Roosevelt turned down, offered tonight to meet Wendell L. Wilkie, republican presidential nominee, in public debate.

His statement brought the convention delegates and galleries to their feet cheering. A few minutes earlier, McNutt, asserting that the democratic party "has never been against business," said he believed that there were "more business men in the ranks of democracy than the republicans ever had. "I defy anyone, including their candidate for president, to prove the contrary." Again departing from his manuscript, the keynoter asserted that "in 1928 or 1929 I begged Herbert Hoover, almost on my knees, for an adequate system of preparedness for America, and got 'No' for an answer."

McNutt charged that Wilkie and other republican leaders "appear completely unaware of the basic conditions which made possible the fall of French civilization and which threaten momentarily a black-out of the British."

An Issue to Be Faced

The senate, on a constitutional point of order, Wednesday killed a proposal to draft capital, as the congress paves the way for drafting man-power.

But Senator Champ Clark of Missouri has the right idea. "You may dodge this issue now," he declared hotly, "but you'll have to vote on it sooner or later!"

Which is exactly the situation. In the meantime, unfortunately, we talk and think about compulsory training of men even as business refuses to make the equipment those men will need before they can be 100 per cent effective.

Industry Not Phased

Thursday we had some things to say about industry's unwillingness to cooperate in the "comparatively" profitless venture of preparing to defend this nation from forces which seek to dominate it.

We decided that at this stage in the affairs of the nation, profit is the thing we ought to be thinking least about—that the very question of the survival of individual and corporate profits as we know them may hinge upon the speedy action of arming America for possible war.

That knowledge apparently doesn't phase the industrial leaders of the nation. Out of fairness, of course, we must exclude from the non-cooperative classification certain plane manufacturers and others who have announced their intention of talking defense first and profits later.

'Envious' Position?

But the enormous quantity of guns, tanks, ammunitions, trucks and ordnance supplies will need as fast as they possibly can be made will be lacking long after voluntary and perhaps conscript forces have need of them.

And the plants who could be manufacturing them NOW still growl "no profits—no supplies" in an attempt to force changes in existing excess profits legislation.

Their very action lends weight to fascist boasts that democracy destroys itself with its own blunderings.

Industry demands profits because industry is in such an enviable position to make huge profits.

Let's look at a few more facts.

First Quarter Profits—1940

Steel is one of the most important elements in the defense program.

Profits of the United States Steel corporation in the first quarter of this year totaled $17,114,000, according to the May 9 issue of Annalist.

For all of last year the company reported a net income of $41,120,000, as compared with a deficit of $7,717,000 in 1938.

Where did those profits come from? Where could they have come from but from stimulated buying which followed the approach and outbreak of war in Europe.

Net profits of the Bethlehem Steel corporation in the first three months of 1940 were "the largest on record" for that company, Annalist reported.

Profits from War

Actual profits totaled $10,891,000, "larger than for any corresponding peace-time period. Net profits for 1939 aggregated $24,638,000, as compared with $5,250,000 the previous year."

More "net profits" from stimulated buying brought about by war.

Steel, the backbone of industrial America, made millions during last year and during the opening period of 1940. Steel stands to make millions more.

But this nation must draw the line at those millions being made at the expense of the security of the nation.

We hope that congress doesn't dodge Senator Clark's issue for long, else the vastness of the defense program in its entirety will be stymied.

Painting vs. Photography

What can a painting do that a good photograph can't?

An approach to that problem has been made as a result of the Hollywood project in which nine leading American painters, among them Iowa's Grant Wood, painted scenes from a motion picture.

Both paintings and photographs of the scenes now are on display in New York.

Emily Genauer, art critic of the New York World-Telegram, took a look at the contrasts and decided that there's still room for art in the world.

She found an interesting contrast in Wood's "Sentimental Ballad."

Painting Is Superior

"The same composition appears in both painting and photograph," she wrote. "But in the Wood version it's been tightened up for dramatic emphasis as well as for the sake of design. One of the figures, a sailor playing a flute, has been shifted, because the new spot makes for more compact pictorial organization. It has the superb draftmanship, the realistic perfection to be found in the work of the Dutch little masters of the 18th century."

The exhibition brought forth other observations from the critic.

Questions—and Answers

"What happens," she wrote, "when artists are thrown together in close and continued contact and asked to create? What can you expect when you assign an artist his subject, rather than leave it to him to choose whatever in his world inspires him to creative expression?"

"What validity is there to an art which feeds not on reality or on untrammelled imagination but on the make believe sets and feigned emotions of Hollywood? Will the single circumstance that they are hand-painted give portrayals of characters and groupings greater worth than animated photographs of them?"

The answers, she said, are found in the paintings themselves. "There can be no question that association and observation among the artists have bred tolerance and respect, and resulted in mutually profitable give-and-take."

Cezanne and His Fruit

What of assigned subject matter? "Countless masterpieces are painted as straight commissions," she said. "Despite the fact that many of the greatest art works in the world were born of ecstasy, it would be naive to think that Cezanne went into emotional spasms whenever he saw a bowl of fruit."

There's still room for art, apparently, despite the growing excellence of photographic achievements.

A Man About MANHATTAN

Kurt Steel, Mystery Writer, Gets in Mr. Kagey's Hair

BY GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Dr. Rudolf Kagey admits that Kurt Steel, the author of mystery novels, gets in his hair.

Dr. Kagey is a professor at New York university. He is an Illinois boy of Swiss extraction, who occupies himself with writing such classical items as histories of British Idealism. He has been on this chore now for five years and expects that it will take another five years before it is complete. This, he says tartly, is the fault of Kurt Steel. Steel, the mystery writer, interferes seriously with Kagey, the definer of British idealism. How come?

Well, Steel's last book was a chiller called "Dead of Night." And Kagey read it. Actually, he lived it. He couldn't get it out of his mind. On those nights when he should have been polishing his treatise on a more classical plane, he was debating the wisdom of thrillers with Steel. They pestered each other. They denounced each other. Now and then they clasped hands warmly, and slapped each other on the back. Nevertheless, there was evidence of conflict. Steel himself, began to feel that Kagey was a not altogether satisfactory influence on his mystery writing.

The other day Dr. Kagey, who is also educational director of the New York World's fair, drifted into a group that had given itself over to a discussion of literature. The subject got around to mystery stories. Some one mentioned Steel's latest thriller and suggested that here was a guy who knew what the mystery novel racket was all about. "Well," said Kagey, "he is a fair writer but no one could call his novels really worthwhile. They may satisfy an urge for the moment, but there is nothing lasting to them."

In this group, and getting angrier every minute, was a woman magazine editor. Her eyes fairly blazed as Kagey uttered his mild denunciation of Steel. Suddenly she turned on him and demanded to know what the hell he, a college professor, could hope to know about mystery novels. Who was he anyway to rap a man who was answering a public trend, a definite growing need among the book reading public of the nation.

Kagey swallowed and shut up. He mumbled a sort of apology. Seeing his chance a few moments later, he retrieved his hat and left the room.

But his apology did not satisfy the woman editor, who continued a militant verbal defense of Mr. Steel after Kagey had departed.

But then, after all, you couldn't blame her. Not a single solitary person in that group had been fit to point out to her that Kagey and Steel were the same person.

The only international chain of American-Chinese restaurants in the world is operated by Mrs. Ruby Foo, a diminutive Chinese from San Francisco. She has restaurants in New York, Boston, London and, of course, at the New York World's fair. During her off hours Mrs. Foo goes in for solo flying.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Betty Grable Says It's Just Luck

BY ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—There's a fellow tinkling away at the piano in the rehearsal hall, and in front of a big mirror a girl and a man are dancing away the afternoon. Trick-steps, fast steps, bumps and boo-pas.

The girl is Betty Grable. The man is Nick Castle. Nick's rehearsal Betty in some steps she'll do for the camera, and Betty's working so hard she can't keep that snood on. It's supposed to hold back her burnished gold hair, which won't be held back. Nick is a slick dancer, and Betty's right up with him. They go through the steps again and again, until Betty is plumb tuckered out. She stretches 'till length on a divan, and calls for another pair of shoes.

It's work. "Tiy it some time, if you're a skeptic. When you're through you start right in again. You're never through because there's always another number and another picture — if you're lucky. That's what Betty still says. And that's what Betty, still panting a little from exertion, says she is. Just plain lucky. "It's my rabbit's foot working overtime," she says of her new-found career.

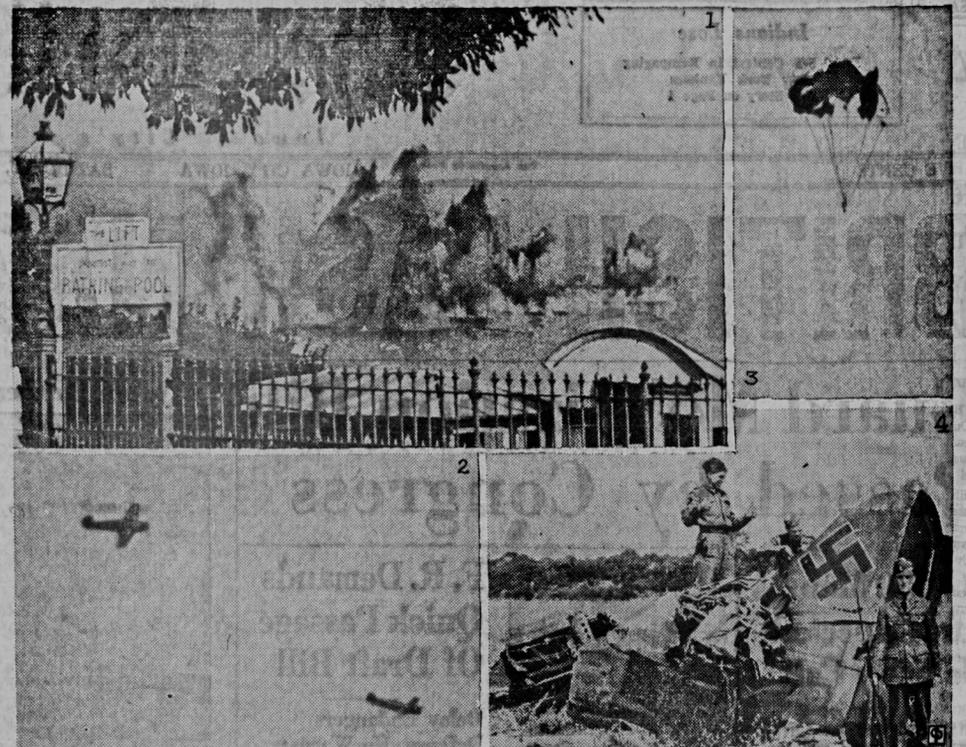

It's been a strange career, at that. Three times in her 10 years in pictures—she started at 13—Betty has thought she was through, and then discovered she was just beginning.

That's how it was last year, when Betty decided to quit pictures for good. Her contract at Paramount had expired, and Betty was fed up with playing cute co-eds in college pictures.

"I was so sick and tired of it I'd made up my mind to leave show business altogether," she says. "I'd saved up enough to keep me a while. I began saving when I was making $60 a week and I've never stopped. Besides, I'm not a career girl. I wasn't going to butt my head against the Hollywood wall just to stay on the screen. So I retired — and then came an offer, unsolicited, to go on a personal appearance tour. I went. Next thing I knew, Mr. (Darryl) Zanuck had seen my picture in the paper and offered me a contract at a lot more money than I'd been getting at Paramount. I took it. Then along came Buddy DeSylva with a part in his Broadway show, 'DuBarry Was a Lady.' Mr. Zanuck said I could take it if I wanted to. I did. The show was successful.

"Then as if all this weren't enough, Alice Faye fell ill just before this picture ('Down Argentine Way') was to start and I was drafted to fill her shoes. If that's not luck I don't know what you'd call it. But that's how it's been all my life. I've had contracts with four studios in 10 years and each time I left one or was dropped I stepped into something better."

Japanese, Nazi Alliance Imminent

WASHINGTON—A few barbed words hidden away in a report from an American commercial attaché in Japan have roused the fears of diplomats who are wondering what Japan is up to. The report quotes the president of the Japanese cabinet planning board, Naohi Hoshino, as saying the time has come for Japan to sever connections with the dollar and pound "in favor of forging a link with the German mark." No more conclusive evidence of Japan's future diplomatic intentions could be found—if it is seriously intended. Attachment of the Japanese currency to Hitler's funny money would mean more than a political or diplomatic alliance. But our diplomats suspect Hoshino is spoofing. Whether Japan does enough commercial business with Germany to make such action feasible is a moot point.

LOWLY CAMPAIGNING

Never at this stage of modern presidential campaigns have there been such evidences of widespread doubt and indeterminateness. It is puzzling but true that the yet undecided groups of voters in widely separated key states as New York and Nebraska are sufficient by large to prove decisive in the result. This conclusion is inspired by all the available private information in partisan and non-partisan quarters.

A survey of New York state has been privately made by a competent poll-taker for certain republican leaders who needed it in their business. Its apparent impartiality was attested by the result which showed Roosevelt ahead in the cities (New York, Buffalo, Rochester, Albany) but by decreased majorities from 1936. As a whole the state stood Willie 43 per cent, Roosevelt 39 per cent, 4 per cent minor parties, and—here's the surprise—14 per cent undecided. This clearly means the undecided vote would swing the result.

The situation is causing sharper scratching for the "don't know" vote and the republicans are elated. They figure that if a man has not made up his mind about Roosevelt in 8 years, they have a 60 to 70 per cent better chance to get him than the democrats.

OFF ON THE WRONG FOOT

Schooled politicians of both parties in congress are groaning in the cloakroom that the campaign got off on the wrong foot. Many a democratic strategist frankly thinks Mr. Roosevelt made a mistake in selecting Interior Secretary Ickes to answer the Willkie acceptance speech. It pushed the whole campaign down to a plane of common political debate in times which demand more serious consideration of really grave issues.

Willkie is being criticized equally by those legislators who think they know how it should have been done. He compounded the Roosevelt error by entrusting a reply to equally sharp tongues in his own camp.

The reaction has already inspired an effort in both parties to lift the campaign back to the level of the Willkie and Roosevelt acceptance speeches.

BARTON FOR SENATOR

Bruce Barton, Willkie friend and congressman, is very likely to seek the republican senatorial nomination to run against democratic Senator Mead. Encouraging reports suggesting more than one-fifth of the New York state voters are undecided about Mead have been put into his hands.

ICKES' STAMPS

A newsman friendly to Ickes had it all fixed with the interior secretary to give him six of those government stamps which Ickes claims are worthless and others claim are worth thousands. It was to be a stunt to demonstrate their lack of value. The reporter had his organization send a photographer to the press conference to record the transaction.

But Ickes apparently became upset by preliminary questions asked him at the conference. When the time for the stunt arrived, he handed the stamps to the wrong man, another reporter, who happened to be nearer to him.

Anniversary of Russo-Nazi Pact Looks Grim for Hitler

-INTERPRETATIVE-

Reich Didn't Profit Fully By the Deal

And Stalin's Place In Position to Make Nazi Future Gloomy

BY EDWARD E. BOMAR
On the first anniversary of the Russo-German partnership in power politics, Adolf Hitler must feel a little grim over the deal. His fellow dictator, Stalin, has cashed dividend after dividend in territory, power and prestige. Germany thus far has collected only immunity from attack in the east. This may have been of great benefit to the nazis by permitting them to concentrate on their whirlwind campaign in the west, but for it the nazis paid a price which only the future can measure.

Germany on Little End
What the reich has obtained in raw materials to offset the allied blockade is a small fraction of the totals pictured in glowing predictions of both Berlin and Moscow.

The evidence is so strong that the nazis have been disappointed in the trade returns that diplomats must smile cynically when reading the anniversary statements of the official Soviet press.

Russia, says the official Izvestia, has given her new-found friend "the raw materials she especially needs . . . because of the blockade organized by Britain." By implication, the government organ asserts that under the trade accord—which with a non-aggression treaty comprised the deal with Berlin—the year's commerce between the two nations was the greatest since the World war.

Unless some of the best informed American economists are badly fooled, however, the commercial exchange has increased only negligibly. Far from being the biggest year in two decades, it may have been no more than a tenth of the total of 1931, two years before Hitler's accession to power. It probably remains smaller than the trade between Russia and the distant United States.

The 10-year non-aggression treaty pledged Russia and Germany to refrain from any act of force or support of warlike acts against the other. It was signed under dramatic circumstances last Aug. 24. The trade agreement came three days earlier.

From Russia, the reich hoped to obtain great quantities of grain, oil, wool, cotton, phosphates, flax, platinum and manganese—all vital war materials. The best evidence is that the expectations were realized only in foodstuffs for hogs and cattle. Russia furnished about a million tons whereas Germany the year before the war imported two and a half times this much.

No Increase in Oil
Actual counts of railway and Black sea steamer shipments reported to official Washington have indicated no material increase in oil shipments to Germany. The nazis received considerable amounts of manganese at first but this flow appears to have halted this year.

Eastern 'Bad Men' Hold Up Right Train on Wrong Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP)—A half dozen bandits, performing in the best wild west tradition, held up a New York Central mail car in uptown Manhattan early today and made a clean get-away.

Executing the robbery at the 225th street Marble Hill station with clock-like precision, the gun-flourishing bad men made only one error—they robbed the right train, but on the wrong day, and got nothing but a sack of "valueless" letters, police authorities said.

Tonight FBI agents, postal inspectors and city police were working on the case. They had one of the bandit's pistols, general descriptions of the men, and a report that they fled in a sedan with New Jersey license plates.

At irregular intervals, shipments of $100,000 are moved by New York Central trains from Grand Central terminal to banks in Yonkers for factory payrolls in that suburban city. The bandits, apparently, wrongly selected today as payroll day.

In today's holdup, the bandits boarded the train when it halted at 1 a. m. (CST) at the near-deserted station. Three men ran from the shadows to the edge of a stone embankment alongside the mail car, pushed a cleated gangplank into the open door of the car and entered with drawn guns. Head clerk Louis Weiler and his assistant, Brooks Hall, said "they were on us before we could get our guns out."

When the bandits found the Yonkers mail bag, they dropped from the car after disarming the clerks.

At the rear of the train, three other bandits had kept the conductor, trainman, and a passenger covered. At a signal, they ordered Joseph Wagman, the conductor, to give the "go ahead" signal. He yanked the signal cord once.

"Give it another yank," growled the signal-wise bandit. Wagman obeyed. While the train pulled 1,000 feet down the track before halting again, the robbers fled in a waiting automobile.

Several hours later a successful robbery was staged in a mid-Manhattan loft building elevator. Two gunmen took a $3,600 payroll from a bookkeeper for a coat manufacturer.

'East Best for Factories' Thinks Political Pressure Seeks to Place Defense Plants in Agriculture Area

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23. (AP)—The Pittsburgh commission for industrial expansion, claiming the industrial east affords the best locations for defense factories, charged today "political pressure" was being used to obtain government plants for nine midwestern states unsuited to industry.

In a letter to W. S. Knudsen, chairman of the defense advisory commission, acting manager Charles E. Robinson of the industrial commission, said the "fundamental requirements for low-cost production" such as raw materials and trained men were located in 14 states east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio rivers.

Robinson told Knudsen it was not his desire "to quarrel with the good congressmen who . . . must bring home as much bacon as they can" or to belittle the nine midwestern states they represent, Arkansas, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, North Dakota and South Dakota."

But, he added, a survey showed the midwestern states primarily fitted for agriculture and indicated "clearly that a satisfactory prosecution of the national defense program might well lie in each man, each district and each doing that for which it is best suited, whether it be raising foodstuffs, mining ores or the production of airplanes, tanks or guns."

Senators Nip Chisox, 3 to 2 In 13 Innings

Bloodworth's Single Scores John Welaj With Winning Run

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Jimmy Bloodworth, Washington first baseman, drove a single against the left field fence with two mates on base in the last of the 13th inning today, scoring Johnny Welaj and giving the Senators a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The game represented the best pitching duel of the season at Griffith stadium, Ken Chase going all the way for the Senators, scattering 11 hits and fanning 12. Bill Dietrich was removed in the 13th and Clint Brown came in to throw one ball—the one Bloodworth hit.

Shut out by Chase's curves until the eighth, the Sox tied the game up 1 to 1 in that frame on two hits and an error.

The game rocked along until the 12th when Mike Tresh, Chicago catcher, squeezed Larry Rosenthal home with a well-placed bunt.

Jake Early, Washington catcher, first up in the Senators' 12th, then belted the ball over the right field fence for a homer and it was tied once more.

Johnny Welaj started the Senators' 13th by getting a walk. Cecil Travis singled him to third, and with Dietrich weakening, the Sox called Clint Brown out of the bullpen to pitch to Bloodworth. Jimmy hit his first pitch for the single that won the game.

Judge Landis 'Rides' Again; Fines Michigan League $500

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Kenasa M. Landis, commissioner of baseball cracked down hard today on club owner control or intimidation of umpires as a situation he termed "saturated with evil and peril to baseball's welfare."

Bluntly warning that "such misconduct hereafter will result in ineligibility of every club or league official participating therein,"

Landis fined the Michigan state league $500 for dismissing Umpire Bob Williams after a July 7th controversy between Williams and Burleigh Grimes, manager of the Grand Rapids club.

The alteration, in which Grimes was accused of spitting tobacco juice in the umpire's face, was followed by Grimes being fined $50 and suspended five days by T. J. Halligan, league president.

Judge William Bramham, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, ruled punishment inadequate and Grimes, subsequently, was suspended for a year.

Landis said the Grand Rapids club, at a league meeting July 29, moved that Williams be discharged for "inefficiency," even though no complaint of inefficiency or for any other nature had been made against the umpire.

The commissioner said the real reason for Williams' discharge was the fact he had reported the Grimes incident to Judge Bramham, an action generally resented by club owners as "bad publicity" for the league.

Ordering the league to pay Williams to the end of the season and also pay him through any league playoff which may develop, the commissioner said:

"Baseball requires absolutely honest umpiring. Most emphatically, that demands that umpires be entirely free of any sort of intimidation, control, domination or influence by officials of clubs affected by their decisions.

"Who would or could expect honest decisions on the ball field from an umpire intimidated by fear that his calling a play as he sees it may cost him his job. Or from an umpire obliged before rendering a decision to consider which of the two clubs competing in the game is more powerful in the league's politics or more apt to bring about his retention or discharge? It is insufferable that any club or combination of clubs should procure, or threaten to seek to procure, the discharge of an umpire in revenge for a decision or for action his duties require him to take, as in this case."

Joe DiMaggio Clubs Out 27th Home Run As Champs Triumph

By BILL WHITE
NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—Steve Sundra gave the New York Yankees a 5-3 victory over the league-leading Cleveland Indians today, the Yankees' fifth straight triumph over the American league's top two teams.

That left the world champions just three games out of second place and only seven astern of the Indians, whose lead over second-place Detroit was cut to four games.

Sundra, in chalking up his third victory of the campaign, allowed Cleveland six hits, and delivered

Rebellion Vitt, Jeff Heath In Argument

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23 (AP)—Another discordant incident between Manager Oscar Vitt and one of his Cleveland players was revealed today.

Vitt suspended outfielder Jeff Heath in Cleveland last Saturday, when the league leaders were playing St. Louis, but settled for an apology the next day on advice of C. C. Slapnicka, Indians' vice president, the latter continued today.

An exchange of words between Vitt and Heath after the outfielder struck out as a pinch hitter led to the unannounced temporary suspension.

"Jeff thought the matter over carefully and considered himself in the wrong," said Slapnicka, who described it as "just an ordinary outburst of temper—the kind you have on a team that is fighting for the pennant."

"Vitt was the target of a player rebellion two months ago. A dozen Indians went to President Alva Bradley and demanded his discharge, declaring he 'made them jittery' with intemperate remarks, but took it back after another meeting with Bradley.

The pay-off punch in the seventh inning when he singled to score Babe Dahlgren and Frankie Crosetti and break up a 2-2 tie.

The Yanks scored their first run in the first inning on singles by Joe Gordon and Red Rolfe and a sacrifice fly, and picked up another run in the fourth when Joe DiMaggio powered his 27th homer into the lower left field stands.

The Indians went ahead in their half of the same inning on Hal Trosky's single and Jeff Heath's 11th homer.

After Sundra broke up the tie, the Yanks scored again in the eighth on a walk and singles by DiMaggio and George Selkirk. The Indians tried to make it up in their half of the ninth but succeeded in getting only one more run on Roy Weatherly's homer.

Brooks Drop Fifth Straight Reiser's Bad Throw Of Leiber's Grounder Gives Game to Cubs

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' shortstop gave the Chicago Cubs an 11-inning ball game today.

With Pee-Wee Reese out with a broken foot and Manager Leo Durocher on the sidelines with ailing legs, the Brooklyn put rookie Pete Reiser in the short-field. In the 11th frame, with the bags loaded, Reiser picked up Hank Leiber's easy grounder and threw badly to the plate, letting in the run that brought the Cubs a 5 to 4 victory.

This was the Dodgers' fifth straight loss and was a tough setback for Luke Hamlin, who went the distance for the Brooklyn.

After the Dodgers took a 3-1 lead, the Cubs tied it up in the sixth on Rip Russell's single with the bags loaded. Al Todd's homer in the eighth put the Cubs in the lead and Babe Phelps' four-bagger in the ninth, off Claude Passeau, who had replaced Larry French, knotted the score again.

Stan Hack's triple and a pair of walks paved the way for Reiser's decisive fumble. The win was Passeau's fourth in nine days.

Brooks Drop Fifth Straight Reiser's Bad Throw Of Leiber's Grounder Gives Game to Cubs

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' shortstop gave the Chicago Cubs an 11-inning ball game today.

With Pee-Wee Reese out with a broken foot and Manager Leo Durocher on the sidelines with ailing legs, the Brooklyn put rookie Pete Reiser in the short-field. In the 11th frame, with the bags loaded, Reiser picked up Hank Leiber's easy grounder and threw badly to the plate, letting in the run that brought the Cubs a 5 to 4 victory.

This was the Dodgers' fifth straight loss and was a tough setback for Luke Hamlin, who went the distance for the Brooklyn.

After the Dodgers took a 3-1 lead, the Cubs tied it up in the sixth on Rip Russell's single with the bags loaded. Al Todd's homer in the eighth put the Cubs in the lead and Babe Phelps' four-bagger in the ninth, off Claude Passeau, who had replaced Larry French, knotted the score again.

Stan Hack's triple and a pair of walks paved the way for Reiser's decisive fumble. The win was Passeau's fourth in nine days.

Willkie Charges F. R.'s Administration with Packing Relief Rolls to Capture Votes

Wants Check On Violation Of Hatch Act

Candidate Lists Rises, Falls In Relief Employment

By WILLIAM B. ARDEY
 NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—With the approach of the November election, Wendell L. Willkie said today, "There is already definite proof that the Roosevelt administration is planning to pack the relief rolls, especially in those states which are politically doubtful."

At a press conference, the republican presidential nominee said relief rolls had increased in election years and declined in others and termed this "a very interesting and striking coincidence." He called on Attorney General Robert H. Jackson to determine whether current WPA activities involved any violation of the Hatch anti-politics law.

Later Willkie issued a statement saying: "During the month of July of this year the relief rolls have increased by nearly 90,000 for the country as a whole over the month of June, despite increased industrial activity, increased employment and the fact the summer naturally would tend to reduce relief needs."

"It is generally conceded that one person placed on relief may affect as many as four votes, consequently, the addition of 90,000 during the month of July could mean a switch of 360,000 votes from the republican to the democratic column."

Willkie gave these figures of relief rolls for the period from June to October of the following years: 1933—relief rolls decreased 15.4 per cent and industrial employment declined 18.5 per cent. 1934—(election year)—WPA increased 11.6 per cent. 1935—WPA decreased 9.6 per cent. 1936—(election year)—WPA increased 14.4 per cent; industrial employment declined 13 per cent. 1937—WPA decreased 16.9 per cent; industrial employment declined 10.5 per cent. 1938—(election year)—WPA increased 19.2 per cent; industrial employment declined 9 per cent. 1939—WPA decreased 25.5 per cent. 1940—(election year)—WPA recipients increased by 90,000 from June to July. (The nominee did not supply figures on industrial employment for the years 1934, 1935 or 1939.)

Hatch Provision
 Willkie then read to his press conference this provision of the Hatch law:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to promise employment, position, work, compensation or other benefit provided for or made possible in whole or in part by any act of congress."

WPA increases in past election years, he said, "certainly have violated the spirit of the Hatch act," which was enacted originally in 1939 and revised this year.

Willkie asserted at his press conference that Pennsylvania offered an example of how WPA operated. In his later statement, he said that in 1936 Mr. Roosevelt carried only 20 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties, and that 19 of those "received the highest relief disbursements of any counties in the state."

Pennsylvania Example Wrong
 Willkie's office announced tonight "that due to an error in these figures supplied him by his research staff" the Pennsylvania example "is not correct."

Saying he might write Jackson about the WPA situation, Willkie asserted: "I am calling this pub-

New Office Building will be Occupied Soon After Aug. 31

$100,000 Job About Finished In Iowa City

60 Per Cent of Space Leased in Structure At Clinton, College

Work on Iowa City's new $100,000 office building at Clinton and College streets is nearing completion and officials said yesterday that occupancy of the new structure will take place soon after

Aug. 31. The first floor of the building will be occupied by the Welt agency and the First Federal Savings and Loan association, both of which now have offices at 114 S. Clinton. On the second and third floors of the building are 25 offices of varying size which will also be occupied soon after the end of this month. Completion work yet to be done on the structure includes painting, some floor work and door fitting and installation of some hardware and fixtures. Partly Air Conditioned The first floor of the building is air conditioned. The upper two floors are served by an elevator as well as a stairway. The stairway is located around the elevator shaft, it was explained. Work on the structure was started last May 8. The old Iowa City Savings bank building had all original partitions, stairways and other interior parts taken out, leaving only a shell. The lower part of the building was taken out and new steel beams installed for support. All new partitions were put in and the exterior of the old building was faced with cement blocks on the lower portions and brick on the upper floors. Large glass brick windows enclose the first floor. The only entrance to the building now faces College street. In addition, there is one store space included in the building, this also fronting on College street where the Krueger Shoe store originally was located. The lobby of the new building is fitted with marble and the other floors in the structure are of moul tile. New Type Windows All windows in the building are new and are set in aluminum, no wood being used in the window casings. Upon announcement of the construction of the building early last May, A. A. Welt of the Welt agency and manager of the new building, said that 60 per cent of the office space had been leased. No further announcement of office occupancy can be made until the time has arrived to actually move in, Mr. Welt said last night.

soft, he said, adding that a 15-mile march was a terrible strain, while across the ocean armies were capable of marching 30 miles a day. His point was that prospective soldiers would need conditioning and hardening. Equipment Is Ready If conscription were postponed until next spring, the defense program would be delayed a year, he said, because equipment was at hand now. He referred specifically to shoes and underwear, as illustrative, saying that while it was desirable that uniform equipment be used, it was not necessary where these items were concerned. There was an abundance of rifles also, he added. Then, too, men would have to be trained in the technical trades of the army, such as operating portable radio transmitters and aircraft detectors, he said, and that would take time. Problems of cooperation between air and ground forces had still to be worked out, and in fact American progress in this direction had been rudimentary up until now. One immediate effect of his

Seeks to Bar F. D. R. From Running Again

TAUNTON, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP)—The Massachusetts superior court was asked today to bar President Roosevelt's name from the presidential election ballot in this state. The request came from Joseph Ferreira, New Bedford attorney, who contended that an "unwritten law," which he said had been promulgated against a third term, "is about to be violated" by the president.

statement, in the opinion of numerous senators, was that the Maloney amendment, postponing conscription until Jan. 1, 1941, and then applying it only if volunteers fail to come forward in sufficient numbers, would be defeated. Since many foes of conscription planned to vote against it, because it contains the principle of conscription and only postpones its application, its defeat had been generally expected. Mr. Roosevelt's statement was considered to have clinched the matter.

Nazi Raider Attacks Ship

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 23 (AP)—New Zealand naval and air forces searched the Tasman sea tonight for an unidentified German raider which attacked the British steamer Turakina three days ago. They also hunted the 8,706-ton Turakina herself. She flashed a radio message Tuesday night that the raider was firing on her and gave her position. Nothing has been heard from her since. The Tasman sea is in the south Pacific between New Zealand and Australia. It was the first report of an attack on a British ship in Australian waters.

Two Children Drown in Tub; Mother Held

DAYTON, O., Aug. 22 (AP)—A two-week-old baby and her 7-year-old brother drowned in the bathtub of their home here tonight under circumstances described by detective E. B. McFadden as "mysterious" and giving "some indication of murder." The victims were Lela Mae and Walter Weyrauch, Jr. Mrs. Lucille Weyrauch, 30, mother of the children, was found wandering in a park "in a dazed condition" a short time after the bodies were found, McFadden said. She was taken to a hospital under guard. The children were discovered in the bathtub by their father when he returned home from work in a Dayton drug store. Detective Capt. O. L. Kincaid said a note found in the house indicated that Mrs. Weyrauch intended to drown herself in the park. He asserted that she would be given a mental examination.

British--

Along with this, the ministry reported, as day after day it had done, that the royal air force had made last night another in a long series of successful raids over German and German-held territory. Bombed, the ministry announced, were these vital objectives: A synthetic oil plant at Bottrop; an airplane factory at Frankfurt; a power station near Cologne; a munitions—high explosive—factory at Greisheim near Frankfurt; docks at the Rhine port of Duisburg; railway junctions at Mannheim and Coblenz; freight sidings at Hamm and Soest; 22 airdromes in Germany and the occupied territory. German planes kept up furtive raids on Britain all day and into the night. During the day they struck fleetingly in the midlands; in the southeast; the southwest and the northeast. Reports that were both brief and incomprehensible suggested that the midlands again had borne the heaviest burden in civilian casualties. There was much speculation during the day as to the Germans' ultimate purpose in losing their artillery batteries from the Nazi-held French coast.

As American as Pork and Beans

SOMEHOW we've come to look upon the newspaper boy as a purely American phenomenon—much like freedom of speech. The right of an individual to earn money in an honest endeavor is just as typically American as pork and beans. It's one of the rights that we've fought for—with battles and with words. HERE and there, perhaps, we've come off a little the worse for it. But in the main, the privilege is still untarnished. No group expresses this American trait as much as the newspaper boy. The money he earns is earned the hard way—and he's proud of it. It helps to finance his education, or to make things a little easier at home. Many of our prominent business and professional men right here in Iowa City were newspaper boys. And they don't pass up the opportunity to mention it, either! The training that these boys get serves to make them self-reliant... teaches them the value of money... the wisdom of saving. WE don't know of any group that's more deserving of praise and encouragement. We salute every newspaper boy in the country and especially our own Iowan staff. His diligence and initiative is a shining light for all of us!

YOUR IOWAN CARRIER BOY IS A GREAT FELLOW TO KNOW... HE'S ALWAYS READY TO SERVE YOU... KNOW HIM BETTER!
