The Berlin press speculated as to whether the British population could tolerate the conditions of aerial siege.

There were many hints that the Germans were watching closely for signs of governmental and social collapse in England under the steady blows of the German air force.

"How long?" asked Adolf Hitler's Volkischer Beobachter. "Churchill is prepared to keep his word — to convert London into a heap of wreckage. The question arises whether the English people will, or how long they will follow Churchill along this course."

Meager press comment on Prime Minister Churchill's speech to the house of commons yesterday indicated merely that the Germans are resigned to the unchangeable disposition of the prime minister to carry on the war to the bitter end.

German sources declared that weather conditions may limit but no longer can hold up completely air assaults on London.

Early today the authorities announced nazi pursuit planes had turned back a small squadron of British bombers which crossed the western German border last night.

Last night informed sources declared Germany had opened up with a new type of attack on Britain—the shelling of London with long range "super guns" emplaced on the French coast.

Legion Leader Raps 'Hysteria'

Must Combat 'War Hysteria' to Stay Out Of Conflict, Says Kelly

BOSTON, Sept. 17 (AP) — Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, asserted today there was no more important mission for American citizens than to combat "war hysteria... which in the end most likely may lead us into conflict."

Addressing the Boston advertising club, shortly after arriving for next week's 22nd national convention of the legion, Kelly said "the sound policy for our country is to strengthen our national defenses to the utmost, and as efficiently and expeditiously as possible."

"The growth since late last spring of a spirit of fatality, of pre-destination on our part as a people to enter this war, is the very national factor most likely to plunge us into the holocaust," the commander declared.

He said the "virtual conquest of nearly all Europe by a ruthless and superbly organized military machine, has caused a national fear, bordering on panic" in this country within a few months.

Later, in an interview, Kelly said the "fifth column" was more dangerous than any mechanized division on a battlefield.

Selective Service Officials Outline 'Fishbowl' Draft Publicity Policy

War Department Urges Quick Action To Grant Debt Relief for Draftees

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP)—Declaring that the "morale" of draftees and national guardsmen was involved, the war department urged congress today to act as speedily as possible on legislation under which citizen soldiers in financial straits could be granted debt relief.

Maj. Edwin Barber of the general staff told the house military committee that the army wished quick action on a general revision of the 1918 soldiers and sailors civil relief act as a means of improving psychological conditions among the trainees.

Draftees and guardsmen already have been granted an opportunity to obtain some relief under the terms of the conscription and national guard bills. This includes a prohibition against eviction of a draftee or guardsman's family for non-payment of rent where the rent does not exceed $50 monthly, unless a court gives permission. The court is empowered to decide whether the family is hard-pressed or not.

President, 100 Congressmen Join Throng at Bankhead Rites

Six From Cabinet Present at Funeral Services for Speaker

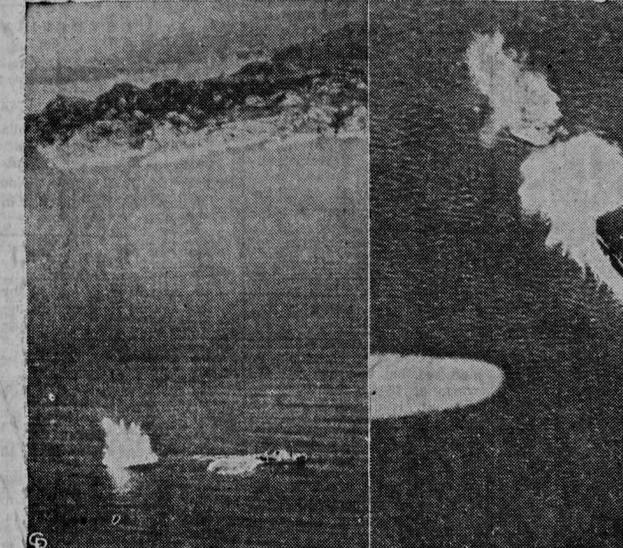

JASPER, Ala., Sept. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt, a host of national leaders and thousands of humble folk joined in paying final tribute today to House Speaker William B. Bankhead in this quiet, little north Alabama community.

The president, six members of his cabinet and nearly 100 members of congress sat with the speaker's family and close hometown friends in the First Methodist church where funeral services were conducted for the veteran political leader.

They were only a small part of the great throng here for the funeral. Thousands of townspeople who kept Bankhead in congress more than 23 years stood with bare heads about the public square listening to the services over loud speakers.

To hundreds of those gathered for the services, the late speaker was known familiarly as "Mr. Will." Many of them had known him since he was a struggling young lawyer in partnership with his brother, John H. Bankhead, now the United States senator with whom the congressman had opened law offices here in 1900.

British Dive Bombers Sink German Supply Ship

Sinking of a German supply ship off the Norwegian coast by British dive bombers is portrayed in the two pictures above, which were passed by the British censor. Winging on a foray against shipping, the British planes spot their prey and drop two bombs, left, one hitting the water behind the ship and the other still further astern. On the next attempt, however, the British marksmen are more successful. In the photo at right, the ship is enveloped entirely by the splash of a bomb which hit close to the starboard bow, causing the ship to list heavily and forcing her crew to take to lifeboats.

F. R. Expected To Sign Order Of Regulations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP)—Selective service officials outlined today a "fishbowl" publicity policy by which, they said, they would keep every man of draft age, his family and friends fully informed of each step taken in selecting men for compulsory military service.

President Roosevelt is expected, soon after his return tomorrow afternoon from Speaker Bankhead's funeral in Alabama, to sign an executive order creating a national organization to administer the conscription act and prescribing general rules for it. Mr. Roosevelt yesterday fixed Oct. 16 as the draft registration date.

The army and navy selective service committee has been working out such an organization and a set of regulations since 1926. It is expected to form the professional nucleus of an organization of some 270 civilians and military and naval employees to be created by the president.

In an effort to minimize discriminations and favoritism and to win public support for conscription, the projected rules call for the entire draft process—local, state and federal—to be opened to the full light of public scrutiny.

When the conscription of some men register at local voting precincts, every man's name and registration number will be furnished to his home newspaper and posted outside the registration place.

When the draft lottery is drawn in Washington to establish the order in which the men will be called to duty, the entire nation may listen in by radio and the lottery numbers will be furnished to the newspapers immediately.

When the conscription of some men is deferred because of their jobs, family responsibilities or other reasons, their names will be published for everyone to see. Any interested person in the community—a man's wife, mother, father, guardian or employer—can challenge the local draft board's decision to defer or not to defer a man.

Each time one man is deferred, of course, the man holding (See DRAFT, Page 6)

British Tank Units Retire Before Attack

English Assert That No Major Battle Has As Yet Been Fought

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 17 (AP)—Italian motorized troops fought their way tonight beyond Sidi Barrani, almost 60 miles inside Egypt from Libya, reaching the beginning of an asphalt road leading 350 miles eastward to the Suez canal, vital link of Britain's empire life-line.

British tank units retired before the Italian coastal sweep after inflicting heavy casualties, British headquarters announced. No major battle yet has been fought, nor have the main British troops collided with the blackshirts, it was said.

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's troops employed two tank columns supported by a strong rearguard in the drive into Sidi Barrani. They occupied it last night. Eleven-ton medium sized tanks and a large number of lighter tanks were used.

Vulnerable Tanks The lighter tanks proved especially vulnerable to British fire, many being disabled, the British said.

The coastal strip now held by the Italians is all scorched desert land with a few mudhut villages and waterholes. Behind Sidi Barrani toward Libya the Italians hold two other coastal cities, the port of Salum and Buqbuq.

The British said three Italian divisions of about 45,000 men were encamped at Salum but larger forces still were massed in Libya. The main fascist offensive will begin when those troops are thrown into Egypt, the British said. The British estimate the Italians have more than 260,000 available men.

British bombers aided tank units in the blistering desert battle under 120 degree temperatures before Sidi Barrani fell to the fascists. Heavy sandstorms also clouded the battle area.

Advocates Help For Migrants

Rep. John H. Tolan Decries Conditions Of People Left Homeless

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 17 (AP)—"We've spent billions for the free flow from state to state of man's creatures—iron, steel and coal—but never a dime for human interstate commerce," Representative John H. Tolan (D-Cal) declared in an interview today as the house interstate migration committee closed a two-day hearing here.

Tolan, committee head, said hearings here and previous sessions at Chicago, New York and the south, had convinced him there should be some form of federal aid for the unfortunates forced from their homes by drought and depression onto the road to wander from state to state in search of a living.

"Everywhere," he continued, "witnesses have agreed this is a problem too big for any one state to handle. Why, last year it was estimated there were four million persons on the road. The causes are varied and the solution must be approached from many angles.

"But we have found there are barriers erected against these people in the various states. They lose their residence in one state and can't establish it in others for from one to five years to qualify for aid."

Tolan expressed the need for federal funds to be allotted to the states and spent for migrant relief.

Japanese, Indo-China Crisis Nears Explosive Showdown

Nipponese Ships Move To Remove Nationals From Troubled Zones

HANOI, French Indo-China, Sept. 17 (AP)—The crisis between Japan and French Indo-China headed swiftly toward a possible explosive showdown tonight and Japanese ships were enroute to take out their nationals if necessary.

Japanese Consul-General Rokuo Suzuki ordered his people in Indo-China to prepare to leave if impending conferences here further complicates the already badly strained relations.

The talks between General Isaku Nishihara, head of a Japanese military mission, and Admiral Jean Decoux, French governor-general, are expected to decide once and for all whether Japan is to gain her ends peacefully or have to fight.

Japan demands troop transit across French Indo-China to enable her to strike at China along Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's vulnerable southern border, and a naval base at Haiphong, strategic port on the Gulf of Tonkin.

Tokyo and the Vichy government of Marshal Philippe Petain have agreed in principle on the demands. This agreement reportedly provides for limited military concessions, including the landing of Japanese troops at three ports and their transit to the Chinese border.

Roosevelt College Clubs NEW YORK, (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., coordinator of young democrat activities at national headquarters, said yesterday it was his "ambition" to have Roosevelt college clubs in each of the 1,541 colleges and universities in the country. There were 215 such clubs during the 1936 campaign.

100-Mile-an-Hour Hurricane Helps British Fighters Drive Away 200 German Warplanes

In the Eleventh Consecutive Overnight Raid On London the Nazis Seem to Be Using 'Gliding Strategy'

LONDON, Sept. 18 (Wednesday) (AP)—A howling 100-mile-an-hour hurricane joined forces with British fighters high above the rolling Kentish countryside last night to disperse waves of more than 200 German warplanes, but the nazi bombers returned in abating weather early today to maintain their "death patrol" over London's rooftops.

At least 12 of the Germans were shot down and three British planes were lost, the air ministry announced. Incendiary and high explosive bombs showered down on the west end district which had been hit in Tuesday afternoon's raids, and on east London.

Casualties were reported in the west end. Two department stores, hit by both types of bombs, suffered severe damage. The furniture department of one store was hit directly.

Several hundred persons crowded in a shelter at the rear of the other store and escaped injury, although glass from the windows was scattered five blocks away, the burglar alarms were set shrieking, and wax dummies sprawled amid the debris.

'Molotov Breadbaskets' Quickly Attacked and Subdued by Firemen and Householders

The Germans seemed to be using a silent, gliding strategy in this, their eleventh consecutive overnight raid on London.

In an effort to surprise the repeatedly following anti-aircraft, the Germans stole in low, with motors idle, dropped their bombs, and then climbed with roaring motors.

Lighter craft were being used for this mode of attack. Meanwhile, the air ministry gave some details of the spectacular, wind-blown engagement of early Tuesday night.

Over Kent, Surrey and the Thames estuary, the air ministry said, battles were fought in a 100-mile-wide—a wind which kept the English channel leaping wildly and thus protected this kingdom from any immediate nazi attempt at invasion.

Defenders Handicapped Although the British defenders were handicapped by heavy clouds, the ministry said, they knocked down at least four German planes, and anti-aircraft gunners along the southeast coast shot down two more.

The Germans, who had been headed for London, were declared then to have "promptly scattered" and to have fled for safety.

The attack on London itself began last night at 8:06 p.m. (1:06 p.m. Central Standard Time) and after midnight still went on high in the thick, scudding clouds over the city. At times the roar of German bombs rose above the hoarse bellow of the anti-aircraft.

Three miles aloft, bursting sharpnel lifted by the defense extremely scarce. (See RAIDS, Page 6)

Hitler Aims at British Nerves

German "deployment" across the channel for invasion went "steadily on," Churchill informed parliament. "We must expect," he added, "that Hitler will make the attempt at what he judges to be the best opportunity."

Behind that utterance can be detected Churchill's firm conviction that Hitler has so committed himself to the invasion of England that neither the advice of his generals nor unfavorable weather will sway him from ultimately issuing the order to his waiting troops and flotillas. As Churchill measures the mind of his arch foe, it is Hitler's pride and prestige that is at stake and will dominate his action. If that is true, the first weather lull in the channel may see the attempt made. Winter is too close for delay. Churchill also noted what had already caught attention, the changed nature of German bombing raids in London in recent days and nights. Despite Berlin reports that only military and industrial targets have been attacked, repeated bombing of Buckingham palace, of shopping and residential areas remote from any possible military targets, indicates that the nerves of the people are the real objective. Berlin claims of super-gun bombardment of London bear out that view of nazi strategy.

Churchill dismissed as "a silly idea" any German notion that all this could result in public pressure on the London government to make peace; yet he repeated his warnings that the worst in air warfare was yet to come. He has said before that the German (See HITLER, Page 6)

Making the Most of It

The importance of making the most out of the things we have to work with oftentimes makes the difference between a fruitful or a wasted life.

That makes of us either ultra-conservatives or dangerous radicals in the eyes of those who do stick close to what we may call "normal thinking and acting."

All in the Same World

In times of stress such as these, the swings from normal are accentuated.

We find those who think Hitler is giving England less than she deserves.

We find, on the other hand, the man who believes the United States should buy South American food products "even if we have to dump them in the ocean or burn them to get rid of them" to prevent further nazi infiltration there.

Neither view could be called exactly normal.

Compulsory military training during peacetime has become reality in the United States.

There were those who saw the draft bill as the only possible course of action for America.

And there was the Congress of American Mothers, black-veiled and stolid, who "picketed" the capital, hung Senator Claude Pepper of Florida in effigy as a protest to what they termed the final blow to all Americans hold sacred.

Again, neither view can lay claim to the norm of public thinking.

Constructive Action

We can place little confidence in those who see the end of the world in each reversal to their own legitimate beliefs. We think the status of the world, and the status of the nation, could be far worse than they are.

This is not an attack upon radicals or ultra-conservatives in thought and action. A man has a right to his views.

But we do believe that no matter what the situation may be, the action of every man and woman should be constructive.

We think it's far better to be altruistic about the future than to hear America's death knell sounded with each passing day. Our work will be far more fruitful if we're altruistic.

We can't work for a better world if we don't believe there is one.

Making the Best of It

We can always make the most of what we have. England's doing that today, with her right to free existence in the balance. Our position in America is more enviable than England's.

The away-from-normal thoughts and actions of the nonconformists creates a disquieting peace of mind—chiefly for the non-conformists themselves.

We'll all be happier if we make the most of what we have. And we still can work for something better.

On Return From Vacation

Something should be done to cushion the mental and physical shock of returning from a vacation into a flurry of suddenly developed work.

And there's nothing quite like returning to Iowa City from a vacation, because one of Iowa City's most striking characteristics is this sudden annual speed-up in the tempo of things in general.

Two weeks ago, Iowa City dozed in the post-summer school calm of Indian summer. That was when the editor left for his vacation.

He returned yesterday.

What's Happened?

It was still Indian summer, but Iowa City wasn't exactly dozing.

This has happened in two weeks:

1. The population of this university town has suddenly turned upward. The number of automobiles seems to have trebled.

2. Rooms that were tenanted aren't any more; dormitories that weren't completely filled are.

3. Eddie Anderson's running Bob Feller a stiff race for public comment.

4. Campus buildings that looked dramatically empty have regained considerable liveliness.

And it's only the beginning.

A Significant Year

Now if we carry through this speed-up to its logical conclusion, which is reached somewhere about Sept. 30, the answer is "Iowa underway again." Another cycle will have begun.

It will be a significant cycle in its own right for a number of things.

It will mark the beginning of the tenure for a new Iowa president—Virgil Hancher of Chicago, who will become the new head of the institution about Dec. 1.

It will find more eager eyes turned upon the Hawkeye football team than ever before in Iowa history.

It will mark the beginning of a year for what may be the university's largest enrollment.

Work to be Done

And because of the very nature of world affairs, it will be a cycle fraught with potentially world-rocking events—a year that will call for the hardest conscientious work any of us have been called upon to do.

It will be here, very suddenly. Already the hum is evident.

While it is disturbing to return from the quiet vacations into a suddenly flowered new university year, the problem is clear. The answer lies in grabbing hold and hanging on.

There'll be other vacations. Right now there's work to be done.

Aerial Traffic Cops by 1990?

Coordination of municipal airport planning throughout the country so that port facilities may serve present as well as future needs is the object of an advisory plan drawn up by the Civil Aeronautics Authority as an aid to states and cities, we're told by the American Municipal Association.

The program, still on its way to completion, contemplates a continuing increase in private flying, mail service and commercial flights, as well as greater airport facilities for national defense. Those factors make fitting together of facilities on a country-wide pattern an important problem.

If someone had told your grandfather fifty years ago that the year 1939 would find enough automobiles running around the United States to mean a national death rate of 32,600 persons during that year, he would have been ousted, no doubt, for inciting mental revolution.

Who knows? Perhaps by 1990 we'll have aerial traffic cops and speed lanes, perhaps cross-traffic stop lights at three, four, and five-thousand feet.

A Man About

MANHATTAN

A Stroll on Broadway Yields Lots of Stories

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Any 15-minute stroll down Broadway, 5th avenue, or 42nd Street is sure to be productive of at least a dozen encounters. Each is worth a story, although the names involved may not always be accustomed to the bright lights.

Here is Missy, whose father, a football coach, is athletic director of Hampden-Sidney college, in Virginia. Missy's real name is Grace Logue Bernier, and she explains that shining light in her eyes with the announcement that she soon is to become the bride of the editor of a weekly newspaper, "somewhere in the east." When that happens Missy will be Mrs. Lamson Smith. Her dad (they call him "Yank") has had quite a career as a football coach. It was he who gave Alabama its first Rose Bowl team—the one that had John Mack Brown on it.

That black-headed young man scribbling a left-handed note on the back of a menu is Frank Wilson. Probably you don't know who he is. But you listen to what he has to say all the time. He writes the Kay Kyser show each week. He is also the author of "The Bishop and the Gargoyle," a radio feature. Frank is a Cincinnati boy, born, he tells you, "in the white-stone-stopped section made famous by Edna Ferber's 'Back Street.'" For a while, after coming to New York, he lived above a speakeasy in genteel elegance, dining on peanuts and chocolate bars. Then he finally got going.

If you pass the old Amsterdam theater on 42nd street you are almost certain to bump into Nat Dorfman, theatrical press agent whose clients include Irving Berlin, Buddy Desylva, and others. But ask him what's new and he won't mention "Louisiana Purchase" or any of his other shows. With that light in his eyes that proud parents are always afflicted with he says, "My kid, he won another tournament. He's sixteen. I think he's going to get somewhere." Nat's "kid" is a strapping young buck who is already regarded as one of the finest amateur tennis players in the east.

Here comes Doris Dudley, a gal in blue slacks, shapely sweater, and dark glasses. She's on her way to keep an interview with one of the drama critics. She got quite a play in the papers a little while back when John Barrymore and his wife staged that rumpus at the opening of "My Dear Children." That was when Doris was ousted from the show in favor of Barrymore's wife, Elaine, and it was then that Doris got off her classic remark to the reporters: "I am in the peculiar position of trying to fight sex with talent." Between Broadway plays, Doris is being featured in a radio drama. Her papa is Bide Dudley, the drama critic.

Well, that's Broadway, that's 42nd street, that's any street. You try to get somewhere and you find yourself talking shop with people you haven't seen, or thought of, in weeks. Most of them aren't known outside of New York, but they are important. They are the people behind the scenes. The engineers who really make the wheels go round.

Recommended—Blue Barron's recording of "Sometimes I'm Happy." A hundred recordings of this fine song have been made in the past, but nobody ever did it right until Barron came along.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Muni, Warner's Part Over 'High Sierra'

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—Paul Muni was happy. He said he was and I know he was.

He was working on a movie with no strings tied to him, no wondering about what was next in line for him, no job to worry about except the one at hand.

The movie was "Hudson's Bay," and the setting was a high-vaulted inn in Montreal—rustic, spacious, with strong oak tables and beams and bright fire leaping in the great stone fireplace.

Around the table were Muni, with his hair shaggy and his beard sprouting; Laird Cregar (the coast star of "Oscar Wilde" with a magnificent shaggy beard, and hair and paunch; and John Sutton, with no beard at all.

Muni and Cregar, in the scene, were trying to part Sutton from his money (for an expedition into the wilds) and yet to dissuade Sutton from joining them. (You end I know what luck they had with our handsome hero, don't we?) Muni and Cregar did their talking in illing, French-inflected English.

Muni's sentences, like the dancing ball on those everybody-sing movie shorts, danced up to the rafters, floated to the floor, up and down and up again... Austrian-born Muni practices his French—which he knows none—from phonograph records.

This is Muni's first movie away from the Warner lot since he and the makers of "Pasteur," "Zola," et al parted somewhere over the "High Sierra."

"Hudson's Bay" is at 20th Century-Fox, offspring plant of the old Fox studio where Muni 11 years ago made his first picture, "The Valiant," and what might have been his last, "Seven Faces." The latter (which Muni enjoys forgetting) caused him to make faces at Hollywood until Howard Hughes persuaded him to try "Scarface," which was a different story and which set the Muni movie career.

The Warner-Muni separation over "High Sierra" was, as usual, "amicable." Muni, because of earlier disagreements with the studio over casting, had sought release before. He was persuaded to sign an appeasement contract which gave him (in his own words) all the best of the bargain. He was given the right to choose his vehicles from those submitted, and to collect on the chosen picture even though for any reason the studio could not make it. The impasse came when Muni agreed to do "Beethoven," which presently was budgetarily inadvisable. He was offered "High Sierra" instead.

"A good picture—but not for me," he replied. "Ideal for Humphrey Bogart, who is playing the role instead. So I asked for release, and they gave it. But that doesn't mean I won't go back to Warner's when they have a picture for me.

"I'm happier this way. There are some actors, including myself, who should never be under contract at any one studio. This way I can work when I please, on pictures that please me, and that is fairer to the studio too. Also—I can plan to do stage plays when I please. And I shall certainly do that. It is better in every way."

And he's dead right about that.

Mothers, Sons Get Diplomas Together

HOUSTON, Tex., (ACP)—Two mother-and-son combinations received diplomas at the University of Houston's last commencement.

When Mrs. Berta Dean and her 21-year-old son, David Boyd Dean, were handed their degrees, it climaxed what David called 19 years of school for himself and 40 years of teaching experience for his mother.

"I started school when I was two years old," David said. "My mother took me with her when she conducted classes."

INAUGURATING THE LONDON OPERA SEASON!

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Gold, British Aid, And Nazis in Mexico

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Topmost ferrets of this government are investigating rumors that have come their official way about undercover nazi efforts to rouse trouble that will occupy our attention with Mexico.

Whispers of information have been floating around in a high altitude here suggesting that within 60 days a couple of American divisions might have to be sent south of the Rio Grande if the Germans succeed in carrying out their designs. Rumors that arms, planes and money have been shipped in there have reached official quarters.

How much residue of truth will be found in these hazy suggestions is not yet apparent, but they are not just his usual stories about Mexico. Officialdom is paying them the respect of a thorough inquiry.

NAZIS AND MEXICO

Suggestions that the disappointed presidential pretender, Almazan may be getting some nazi aid toward establishing his claims are known by our officials to be wholly untrue. Washington has a pretty good line on everything Almazan has done during his stay in this country. He was a thoroughly pro-United States candidate and still is.

But some of the army people supporting him may possibly have been somewhat less scrupulous. He has for instance indicated he had no knowledge of actions taken by some of his affiliates lately in connection with the demanded impeachment of Cardenas. Nor have the nazi infiltration reports been confined to his political side in the combustible Mexican political situation.

One thing is clear: Hitler would certainly enjoy a revolution in Mexico.

GOLD APLENTY!

This country has acquired more gold so far this year than it received the whole of last year.

People who shudder at the sight of a statistic may not be impressed, but they are now the owners of $20,871,000,000 worth. True, it is a "mustn't touch" ownership because they are not allowed to have any, but Secretary Henry M. Morgenthau has dug holes in this ground to hold it in their name. It may not fill a cavity as large as the Grand Canyon, but it is more than two-thirds of all the gold in the world, roughly calculated now at $29,000,000,000.

And still it comes... $408,800,000 imported in August, $499,000,000 in July, $754,000,000 in June. About half the imports represent transfers of capital from the rest of the war torn world. Only one fourth comes in payment for our goods. Another fourth is classified at federal reserve headquarters here as "unidentified capital transactions"—a polite phrase for legal smuggling around restrictions in various countries.

PRICE OF GOLD

What will happen when we get it all, and the other nations are deprived of this medium of international purchases, is not known to anyone here. Propagandists are now publishing numerous books to show that another devaluation may develop or that the fictitious arbitrary value we have fixed at $35 an ounce will bog down to a realistic basis of what gold is really worth for filling a tooth or for other commercial purposes—the primary uses it may then enjoy.

Some goldminded economists have become so excited they think anyone is a nazi who holds such views. That is about as likely as the possibility that it is the nazis who are shipping gold in here to get the $35 an ounce and confound us.

The men who really know the problem most thoroughly—the experts at federal reserve headquarters—are least inclined to jump to conclusions. They are waiting for the forthcoming Wagner committee investigation of monetary policy to find the answers.

LONDON DEFENSES

Daylight raids over London depress the military men who believe the strength of the British air force can be measured by the duration and success of such attacks. They have expected German conquest in the air would be followed immediately by invasion.

Not much faith has been pinned in the new air defense devices claimed by the British. The "new device" seems to be simply the collection and concentration of best AA guns from all over the island, for use in the London sector. At its outset London had only the older AA types.

MORE AID TO BRITAIN

American public opinion is reported within administration quarters to be surging fast toward further British sympathy as a result of the heinous Hitler's ruthlessness. As this has been the guide to Mr. Roosevelt's development of policy, further American aid is considered possible.

Registration Materials for Students Available This Morning

Liberal Arts Frosh Students Need Permit

Engineering, Pharmacy Freshman Will Obtain Materials Next Monday

Registration materials for all students in liberal arts, graduate college and freshmen in engineering and pharmacy will be available beginning this morning.

Liberal arts and commerce freshmen and upperclassmen obtain their materials at the south entrance of Macbride hall. Engineering and pharmacy freshmen obtain materials at the pre-registration meetings Monday at 8 a.m. in the electrical engineering building auditorium and pharmacy-botany building, respectively.

School of nursing freshmen obtain materials as instructed by the director of nursing education. Registration will be held Monday at 7 a.m. in the director's office, Westlawn.

Admission Card

Freshmen must present admission cards when applying for registration materials, the initial step in the week's list of activities.

Upperclassmen receive permit to register when obtaining the registration materials.

Actual registration for freshmen in liberal arts and commerce begins at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the main lounge of Iowa Union, and continues throughout Tuesday.

Upperclassmen in liberal arts and commerce will register at Iowa Union as scheduled on the number slip, which is obtained with registration materials, during the period from 1:30 p.m. Tuesday to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Sophomore students in liberal arts and commerce should consult one of the sophomore advisers upon admittance to the Iowa Union lounge, for advice and approval of their program of studies. Juniors and seniors should consult the head of their major department.

Other Colleges

Upperclass students in law, dentistry and pharmacy may obtain registration materials in the offices of the deans of the respective colleges beginning Monday at 1:30 p.m. through Wednesday at 5 p.m.

Registration materials for advanced students in engineering will register in the office of the dean beginning Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. to Wednesday at 5 p.m.

Advanced students in medicine will register in the office of the dean beginning Thursday at 8 a.m. Classes will begin at 8 a.m. Monday, Sept. 30 for medical students.

Registration materials for graduate students are obtainable in the office of the graduate college, room 116, University hall, starting today. Registration can be done Monday afternoon, Tuesday and Wednesday. Students should consult the head of their major department and dean of the graduate college.

An orientation program is planned to aid each freshman to become acquainted with the university while helpfully guided through the registration procedures. Freshmen students should try to attend all required and as many other scheduled events as possible.

-And They Were Impressed-

"Over here is a portrait of President Macbride," explained Joyce Greenberg, Omaha, Neb., left, to her friend Betty Grossman, Council Bluffs, yesterday as they visited the board room of Old Capitol, where pictures of former presidents and historic pictures of the famed building hang. Like hundreds of other new students, these young women are making tours of university buildings, getting acquainted with the campus before classes begin. (President of the University of Iowa from 1914 to 1916, the prominent scientist was a member of the faculty since 1878. Macbride hall was named in his honor.)

Students May Register Here For Draft

University of Iowa students and others attending colleges throughout the state who are from 21 to 35 years old, inclusive, may register away from home in the peacetime army draft, it was announced yesterday.

On Oct. 16 these men may register at the voting places nearest them, and their cards will be sent back to the local board at their place of residence.

It will take about 10,000 persons to complete the draft registration in Iowa, according to Adj. Gen. Charles H. Grahl.

Registration for the draft will take about 20 minutes a man, officials estimated. There are to be 119 local classification boards in Iowa to determine the availability of individuals for training. Decisions of these boards may be appealed to four district appeal boards in the state.

St. Patrick's Women To Give Card Party

Contract and auction bridge and euchre will be played at the weekly party sponsored by the women of St. Patrick's church in the social rooms of the school tomorrow. The event will be a dessert card party at 1:30 p.m.

Detroit, Yankees Win; Indians Lose

Pressbox Pickups
By OSCAR HARGRAVE

Publicity matter from Big Ten schools this year appears to be the death notices of a style in the pre-season forecasts of coaches—the age of pessimism is over. It used to be that there were squeaks of pain from each and every mentor as he talked of chances in the season ahead, but it's rather a conservative sort of optimism that is prevalent this year.

Eddie Anderson, as Iowa's own shining example, never predicts failure, even when things look tough. He states confidently that his team will play plenty of football and usually he is right. You can't cry about graduation losses and have anybody believe you anyhow.

But getting around to a few others, we find even Bernie Bierman of Minnesota among the optimists. Bierman, if you remember, was sniffling with woe before even the season when he took a national championship—when he had nothing on the squad except Pug Lund, Bill Bevan, Stan Koska, Sheldon Beise, Julie Alphonse, Seydel, Levor and some 40-odd others of note. But Bierman, who lost Harold Van Every and Win Pedersen from the 1939 eleven which did none too well on the field, says the Gophers will be tough this year—a much better team than last season.

That's only a sample. At Wisconsin Harry Stuhldreher, also recovering from a disastrous time in 1939, says his team will be better and win more games. Stuhldreher, in fact, could find crying material in the fact that only 50 men are on the squad, but he says the 50 are good.

Taking a couple of other coaches who might be able to put over a pessimistic act and make it stick, Mal Elward at Purdue talks favorably of his sophomore prospects and Lynn Waldorf at Northwestern fails to lament very loudly over the fact that most of last year's line is gone.

To top it all off, Bo McMillin, in spite of the tough road ahead, says his Hoosiers will be near the top in Big Ten football—he is probably going to be right. But it's quite certain that pre-season crying is passing out of the picture.

From the fieldhouse: Iowa basketball players will start workouts Oct. 1, according to Coach Rollie Williams, with early drills probably coming about three times per week. Vic Siegel, a junior and high-scoring forward, captains the Iowa cagers.

Nile Kinnick will give an exhibition of passing and kicking before the Morningside-Midland college game at Sioux City, Sept. 28. Frank Carideo, ten years out of competition, can flash niftier footwork than most of his Hawkeye backfield men in the drill sessions where they run backwards, sideways and every way but frontwards, just to develop shiftness. Mike Howard, Iowa wrestling coach, speaking of footwork, climbed mountains part of the summer during his vacation.

The 5,000 "T" books that are now on sale appear to be going fast, with a number of Hawkeye athletes working as salesmen. The cost of each contest the books admit their holders to is 31 cents. South Dakota, Iowa's opening grid foe, will be playing its third game of the season here Oct. 5.

End spots on the Iowa grid team may be worked quite a bit by sophomores, although Ken Pettit and John Maher, both vets, are expected to start most of the games. Bill Parker is a hot pass snatcher and fast; Big Steve Mizén, 215-pound Chicago prospect, has been improving fast and Wilford Burkett, Ed Thomae and Glenn Mentzel, all newcomers, are coming along in good shape.

Green May Be Shifted To Left Halfback Post

Cincinnati Wins; Is One Game From Pennant

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17 (AP)—Cincinnati moved to within one game of the National league pennant today by noosing out the Phillies, 2 to 1 in a mound duel between Whitey Moore and Kirby Higbe.

The Reds must win one more game while Brooklyn loses to clinch their second straight title. Brooklyn's 5-0 defeat by St. Louis today widened the gap between the first and second place teams to 11 games.

Iowa Fullback Tries Passing

Bill Stauss Still Works With Varsity During Signal Drills

Coach Eddie Anderson, with his Hawkeye grid squad, nearing the middle of its second week of practice, said yesterday that Bill Green, junior fullback, might get some service at left halfback later in the season, depending largely on his ability to develop as a passer.

Green, who is still working at fullback, has been used as one of the passers during late workouts, but from his old position. Anderson yesterday had Green working under Nile Kinnick, last year's passing star and now a member of the coaching staff.

The Iowa mentor said that he had no definite choice as yet for the left halfback post. Bill Stauss of Creston has been working on the first string in most of the early workouts, with Jim Youel, Bob Bender and Tom Farmer also working on passing and kicking.

Taking advantage of high temperatures, welcomed as an aid to early conditioning, the coaches put the squad through a long session of pass defense work in the morning practice and an equally long signal drill behind closed gates in the afternoon.

Anderson said that he would continue the same practice schedule for the next two days, but predicted scrimmage for his line-men Friday and Saturday.

Frick Hands Fine Suspension To Durocher

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (AP)—Ford C. Frick, president of the National League, today slapped a $100 fine and a five-day suspension on Leo Durocher, Brooklyn Dodger manager, who was banished from yesterday's game with Cincinnati following an argument with Umpires Bill Stewart and George Magerkurth.

Frick, who wired Durocher he was guilty of conduct on the field tending to incite a riot, said the peppery Dodger pilot will be eligible for play Sunday.

Enich All-American
Iron Mike Enich, captain and tackle on this year's Hawkeye eleven, was named to the first team of the Preview 1940 All-American team by Wallace Wade, Duke university coach, in an article in a national magazine yesterday.

Bruno Andruska, Ray Murphy, Bill Green, Al Coupee, Bus Merets, Bob Bender and Bill Stauss were also given honorable mention as players in the same article. Iowa as a team, was listed as a darkhorse in middleweight competition.

COMEBACK

DES MOINES, Sept. 17 (AP)—Jim Braddock, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, will appear here next Monday night in an exhibition with his sparring partners, Promoter Allen Munn announced tonight.

Tigers Regain American Lead With 6-3 Win

Rowe Wins Fifteenth Victory of Season But Strains Shoulder

DETROIT, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers regain first place in the American league's up-and-down pennant fight today—a gift from the Washington Senators, who went down, 6 to 3—but even in victory they acquired a new worry.

Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, whose comeback this year has helped to keep the Tigers up front, was forced out of the game with an aching right shoulder after hurling the first six innings. He was credited with the victory, his 15th of the season, as against three defeats.

Rowe discredited the ailment as serious and said he would be ready to pitch "in three or four days." Trainer Denny Carroll said "all you can do is wait and find out." An injury to the same shoulder two years ago had threatened to end Rowe's career.

Another casualty was catcher Billy Sullivan, who retired after the third with a split finger on his throwing hand, but he was expected to return to the lineup tomorrow.

In a four-run first inning rally the Bengals got only one hit—a single by Dick Bartell—as starter Walter Masterson failed to find the plate. He issued three walks and these, aided by an error, turned the trick for Detroit.

The triumph enabled the Tigers to take over the front spot by a half-game margin as the Cleveland Indians fell before the Philadelphia Athletics.

One of the six Tiger blows was Rudy York's 29th home run of the season with one on base in the third.

In the first, Bartell led off with a single and Masterson then passed Barney McCosky and Charley Gehring to fill the sacks. Hank Greenberg took two called strikes and finally went down swinging, but York walked, forcing in a run, and two more came in when shortstop Jimmy Pofahl fumbled Pinky Higgins' grounder. York tallied the fourth run on a force play.

Two were out in the third when Masterson walked Greenberg on four consecutive pitches and York slammed a 400-foot homer into the lower deck of the centerfield stands.

Thereafter the Tigers could do little with Rene Montague, who relieved Masterson at the start of the fourth and yielded only three hits in the rest of the battle.

Paralysis List Swells to Six

Two New Cases Reported in County Over Week End

The total number of infantile paralysis cases in Johnson county now stands at six, according to officials, who yesterday revealed that two more cases were reported over the week end.

One of the new cases is Tom Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Falls of Hills and the other is Jacqueline Lou McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald of Coralville. This is the second case of the disease to be reported in Coralville.

Other cases in the county have been reported from Cosgrove, Morse, Iowa City and Coralville. Clem J. Shay, president of the Coralville school board, said yesterday that the schools there will be closed until next Monday as a precaution against the disease unless health officials keep it closed longer.

Following report of the case at Hills, officials there promptly closed the parochial school leaving the public school open.

The condition of both new cases is reported as good. None of the cases in Johnson county has been serious as yet.

Hitler--

bombing attack might be doubled or even trebled, that neither side had yet put its full strength into the tremendous air fight.

Mastery of the air over England is the "crux" of the war, Churchill has said. Berlin claims of having achieved it are now freshly challenged by British figures of losses inflicted on German air forces—figures for which Churchill personally vouched to parliament. He still stands on his assertion that German plane losses have averaged three-to-one to British, and Nazi air personnel losses six-to-one.

That ratio, flatly disputed by Berlin, was the basis of Churchill's renewed assurance to his countrymen that they could "await the decision" with "sober and increasing confidence" as long as British nerves endured the strain.

It is no longer the "Battle of Britain" as he pictured it; but the Battle of London and its millions of bomb-harried citizens. Four fifths of Britain's 10,000 civilian casualties this month were in London, he said; yet the struggle still may be far short of the "all-out" air warfare to come.

Still Warm Temperature Stays Above Normal

For the first time in several days Iowa City's temperatures again yesterday soared above normal marks. High reading for the day was 84 degrees with a normal of 77 set for the day.

Low mark for the day was 54 degrees, also above the 52-degree normal low. Following a heat wave a year ago, temperatures a year ago yesterday were again lower with a high of 79 degrees recorded for Sept. 17, 1939. Low mark a year ago was 55 degrees. No rainfall has been recorded in Iowa City for several days. The normal fall for this far this year is 26.69 inches and only 21.91 inches have been recorded, leaving a rainfall deficiency of 5.78 inches for the year.

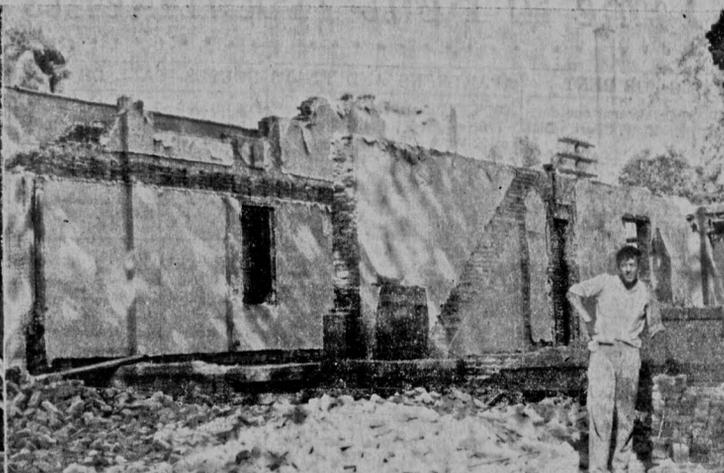

Rebuilding the A and P Super Market—Making Way for a Parking Area

The two pictures above show progress being made on a rebuilding and improvement project at the Iowa City A and P super market grocery store on Clinton street just south of Burlington which was destroyed by a $35,000 fire on Sept. 1. In the picture to the left above, workmen are shown replacing the roof on the $25,000 building, which was completely destroyed by the flames. After the exterior of the structure has been repaired and rebuilt, an entirely new interior will be constructed in the store with new and modern fixtures and a more complete stock, according to C. Merton Spicer, manager of the local store. While the rebuilding work is going on clerks and other employees of the super market have been sent out to other A and P stores in this part of the state. They will return to Iowa City when the store is ready for opening in about a month. In the picture to the right above, workmen are shown tearing down the 90-year old three story apartment house to the south of the super market building in preparation for construction of a parking area for customers of the store. Work on this demolishing project was barely started when the fire destroyed the store two weeks ago last Sunday. Both the store building and the area to be used for parking are owned by Leland Nagle of Iowa City.

Raids--

batteries cast brilliant blobs of fire against the gray background of the sky.

Early reports of casualties showed an undetermined number of Londoners killed in the southwest. In a southern area of the city a string of six high-explosives was dropped simultaneously.

In spite of the reprieve against invasion given to Britain by the heavy action of its bombers against German bases and by the power of wind and billowing fog, Prime Minister Churchill warned the people during the day that preparation for the German thrust with troops across the channel still was continuing hourly.

One Defeat Suffered
The German fleet of ships and barges assembled for the attempt already had suffered one defeat, the air ministry declared; had scattered and sought whatever cover it could find against the menace of the English channel's high, tossing tides, the woolly atmosphere and the constant attacks of British planes.

Throughout the day the wind blew harder and harder, and tonight great, rolling waves broke in fury on the English coast. Rumors that wrecked German barges had been washed ashore were not confirmed officially.

Nevertheless, Churchill told Britain not to bank too much upon all this, nor upon the fortuitous approach of a chill and early autumn; that the danger was still ahead and not gone.

It was true, he said, that "serious injury" had been done to the German fleet, and that Britain's strength everywhere was growing—"by land, by sea and above all by air." Still, he said, "all our preparations must be maintained in a state of vigilance."

All during the day the gray, wet skies of England were alive with aircraft.

Five Raid Alarms
German bombers struck on at London with angry persistence, setting off five raid alarms between breakfast and dinner-time. In their fifth appearance they dropped bombs which could be heard dully in one area of the metropolis while the anti-aircraft made its rejoinder with bursting shrapnel.

British planes, similarly disregarding the weather, carried out a hazardous assignment over the Nazi-held French coast and the channel, keeping ceaseless watch

Police Chief Burns Warns Cyclists of City Ordinances

Chief of Police Frank J. Burns yesterday issued a warning to Iowa City bicyclists about riding bicycles on local streets at night without lights.

Local officers warned eight local riders Monday night, the chief said. He especially warned carriers of morning newspapers who ride on the streets before daylight. According to the city ordinance prescribing bicycle equipment, each must be equipped with a red glass reflector on the rear portion and a headlight on the front part. This light, the ordinance states, must have an illumination equal to that produced by a 1.25-volt electric bulb and battery.

To have such equipment as specified by the ordinance is a protection for the rider and Chief Burns pointed out that it is for the rider's own good that he have the necessary lighting. Severe motorists have recently reported nearly hitting bicyclists without lights at night.

Other frequent violations of the local bicycle ordinance pointed out by the chief yesterday included riding on the sidewalks in the downtown area and in school zones and riding a passenger on the bicycle. These are both prohibited in the ruling, he said.

Fines for these violations, he said, may range from $1 to $100 or the bicycle may be held at the police station for as long as 30 days.

the lottery number below him is that much nearer to being called for service.

Drawing of the draft lottery has been set tentatively for about 10 p.m. (EST), when most of the radio audience is at home, on a night some four to seven days after the registration date. Newspapers of the following morning and afternoon will have a full list of the draft numbers.

While all national publicity mediums will be supplied with information from Washington, an official said, local selective service officials would be instructed to give full information on all phases of the draft. The official also asserted that "the future of selective service depends on the reaction of the boys to their life in camp and what they write home about it."

For that reason, selective service officials have consulted with war department officers in an effort to make certain that no men are called to camp before the army is ready to house, clothe, feed and supply them completely.

Sioux City Boy Killed
SEATTLE, (AP)—Funeral services will be held today for Kenneth Biksten, 14, son of Carl Biksten of Sioux City, who died today of injuries received in sandlot football scrimmage 10 days ago. The youth came to Seattle three months ago to live with an aunt.

7 Mysteries of Europe

Jules Romains this week begins the story of his unique role in recent secret diplomatic maneuvers in Europe. "I had not planned to say all this until much later," states France's first man of letters, "but I think it may be helpful now to give the people of the largest Democracy still intact a chance to see through what weaknesses peace and liberty were lost..." A fascinating, shocking chapter of history, hitherto never told.
