HANCHER—The University of Iowa's New President-Elect Will Address His Students This Morning

By LOREN HICKERSON
Daily Iowan Editor

Virgil M. Hancher, the man who will come to the University of Iowa about Dec. 1 as her 18th president, this morning will pay his first official visit on the academic family he soon will head. He will address Iowa's students at the induction ceremonies at 7:45 this morning, on the west approach to Old Capitol. The event foreshadows the beginning of the university's 94th year, and, as president-elect of Iowa, he wants to be on deck.

A hurried trip from Chicago brought him here last night. He will remain in Iowa City only a few hours, then will return to Chicago, where his duties in the legal firm of Pope and Ballard soon will end to permit him to come to Iowa's administrative headship.

With the deans and officials of the university, he will don academic costume and, from the balustrade before Old Capitol, administer the oath of allegiance to Iowa's students in liberal arts, the graduate and professional colleges.

As president-elect, he is here to see them off on the 1940 year. After a brief period, he will be back to stay with them as president.

The University of Iowa band, under the direction of Prof. Charles B. Richter, and the Scottish Highlanders bagpipe unit, under the direction of William L. Adamson, will make their first appearance of the 1940-41 year at the ceremonies this morning. Eight-o'clock classes will begin immediately thereafter.

Last night at his hotel, Iowa's president-elect viewed his approaching tenure at Iowa with enthusiasm, expressed his appreciation of the warm welcomes he already has received here, and talked about the university from which he graduated 22 years ago.

He wanted to know about Iowa students, and what their attitudes might be about the nation and the world.

He was here during a period strikingly similar to the present, during the four years of an earlier world war, and he has by no means forgotten the effect upon the university of that day.

He is tremendously interested in what Americans may do to protect themselves from internal and external dangers, and he sees the answer in self-discipline and hard work.

"Calvin Coolidge said," he remarked, "that if every man did what he knew ought to be done, (See HANCHER, Page 5)

British Halt Attempt to Take Dakar

Franco-American Ties Strained

Air Attacks On Gibraltar Anger Officials

Stubborn Resistance To De Gaulle Forces Receives Criticism

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—French air attacks on Gibraltar and stubborn resistance to the De Gaulle forces at Dakar angered Washington officials today and put a heavier strain on Franco-American relations. Formal comment was lacking at the state department but some administration officials were heated in their criticism of the Vichy government for aiding the axis powers actively against a former ally, Great Britain.

While recognizing France's difficulties as a captured nation, the official view here was that the Vichy regime was displaying an unusual amount of willingness to cooperate with Germany and Italy.

This was the reaction particularly to the bombing of Gibraltar by French planes, while officials made no attempt to conceal their disappointment at the failure of the "free France" forces, aided by the British, to take control of the strategic West African port of Dakar.

Besides studying French activities in Europe and Africa, Washington officials continued to display a lively interest in events in Indo-China, where French forces have clashed with Japanese troops.

The officials, however, have been reserved in discussing the possibility of American aid to the resisting Indo-Chinese forces both because of the physical difficulties involved and the attitude generally of the Vichy government.

Axis Urges Japan Act As Counterweight

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (AP)—Japan and Spain were uppermost in discussions among political circles here today and it was learned unofficially the Japanese are being urged by Germany and Italy to form a counterweight to possible closer British-American collaboration.

That Spain already is about to form closer ties with the axis powers has been foreshadowed for days by the German press. Adolf Hitler's audiences last night and again today with Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish minister of government, threw the spotlight anew on Generalissimo Francisco Franco's brother-in-law emissary.

Willkie 'Completely Satisfied' With Receptions During Campaign Tours

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN EN ROUTE THROUGH NORTH DAKOTA, Sept. 25 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie estimated today that he had seen more than 2,000,000 persons since he started his western campaign tour two weeks ago and told reporters he was "completely satisfied" with his reception.

The republican presidential nominee had a relatively light day, making all his talks from the rear platform of his special train. While traveling eastward, he worked on details of an October trip through Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New England.

Willkie announced that he would make a major address on foreign policy at Cleveland on the night of October 2. It will be an amplification of his San Francisco speech but Willkie said that it

King Haakon Loses Throne

Nazis End Monarchy By Naming Quisling Sole Political Leader

OSLO, Norway, (via Berlin) Sept. 25 (AP)—The end of monarchy and parliament in Norway was announced today by Joseph Terboven, the Nazi high commissioner for this conquered country.

He disclosed that the exiled King Haakon had been removed as chief of state, that the succession had been broken and the King's family deprived of the privileges and powers of royalty. All political parties were abolished; Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian Nazi, was named the sole political leader and in temporary charge of the government was placed a council of 15 selected by Terboven himself.

It was stated that Norway henceforth would be neither a monarchy nor a German protectorate. Thus, no precise definition of the new state was given. The indefinite occupation of German troops was provided and a legality was given to that occupation.

One feature of the change was that hereafter Norway is to have no sort of foreign policy, no independent foreign relations with any country, the indication being that Germany will direct such matters.

No Interference From President

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—The White House said today that, in order not to interfere with football broadcast, President Roosevelt would make an address at 1:30 p.m., CST, Saturday, instead of 2:30.

The address will be made at the laying of a cornerstone for the administration building of a new airport here. The ceremony originally was scheduled for today, but was postponed because of rain.

Japan Expected to Proclaim Herself Ally to Axis Powers

Special Mission Sent By Adolf Hitler To Cement Friendship

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Japan, with a navy that dominates far eastern waters and one of the world's mightiest armies, soon may abandon her role of non-belligerent friend of the axis powers to proclaim herself their ally.

Trustworthy advices received by The Associated Press in New York say that a special mission sent by Adolf Hitler to Tokyo has been successful and that an announcement of Japan's new role in the rapidly spreading conflict is expected soon.

Accumulating evidence of closer cooperation between the United States and Britain has spurred action on the project for a Japanese-German-Italian alliance, these advices say.

Japanese advocates of such a pact have had their hands strengthened by reports, widely current but unconfirmed, that Britain soon may place her great Singapore base, dominating the crossroads between occident and orient, at the disposition of the United States navy.

Action to forestall such a contingency has been urged by military men in Japan. In Berlin it is admitted that efforts have been made to draw Japan into the axis alliance as a counterweight.

School Must Wait on War's Call

This young German school girl is being taught a task in a German munitions factory so that she may replace her mother and thus give her mother a few days extra vacation. The girl, according to the German-censored caption, is a member of the Hitler Youth organization.

Berliners Kept In Cellars By British Bombers

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (Thursday) (AP)—A 5-hour air raid alarm, longest of the war, kept Berliners in chilly cellars most of the night and morning.

Most of the raiding British planes stayed over the city's industrial suburbs. Two waves passed over the city. No bombs were heard bursting in the central district and no fires could be seen.

A communique stated: "In the past night British planes again visited the capitol and dropped bombs aimlessly at several places on residential sections and outlying districts. A number of dwellings and garden houses were destroyed and others damaged."

Anti-aircraft cannon in Berlin's central district went into action twice but most of the shooting seemed to be in the distance.

The long raid came so early that it caught many persons on the way home and they had to spend the night in strange air raid shelters.

Germans Use New Tactics

Speed, Higher Flying In Large Formations Used by Bombers

LONDON, Sept. 26 (Thursday) (AP)—German night raiders, resorting to new tactics of speed and higher flying, loosed fresh cargoes of destruction on London tonight after a day of attacks in which they sent over the biggest daytime bomber formations seen in nearly two weeks.

The Germans darted about the outskirts until they found an opening in London's defenses, then sped across the metropolis, tossing off their bombs. Their changed tactics apparently resulted from a new device the British themselves tried for the first time—a searchlight defense featuring bright beams thrown at right angles to cover every foot of the skies in the assault area.

As this 19th consecutive night of air siege wore on, activity in central London slackened but in the western section the anti-aircraft guns sent up a heavy barrage against Germans whose bombs barely missed a big apartment block. Windows in the entire block were shattered by the concussion.

An early morning air ministry communique said 26 German planes were destroyed in yesterday's air battles, 22 by fighters and four by anti-aircraft.

The British searchlight defense system, not fully explicable due to censorship, consisted of cross-

British Pound French African Port

Navy, French Forces Stop Costly Battle

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP)—The British navy and the "free" French forces of General Charles de Gaulle abruptly withdrew tonight from Dakar, and the British announced officially that they had given up a costly three-day naval and air battle for that key port of French West Africa.

The British ministry of information, in a communique, said it never had been Britain's intention to "enter into serious warlike operations" against the French, and that de Gaulle himself was "most anxious that he should not be the cause of bloodshed with his fellow countrymen."

(The French government at Vichy, before it heard the news, reported the fighting continued full-scale today, with its force of 6,000 colonials staving off the British landing attempts.)

The British acknowledged that the Dakar shore batteries scored hits on British ships, said that the port suffered bombardment, and that two French Senegal submarines were sunk.

Casualties were acknowledged on both sides.

Even the newest of French battleships, the Richelieu, which the British had reported they put out of action in a special expedition to Dakar last July 8, joined in the fray.

Aground, it still used its guns, and the British ships poured shells into the stranded leviathan.

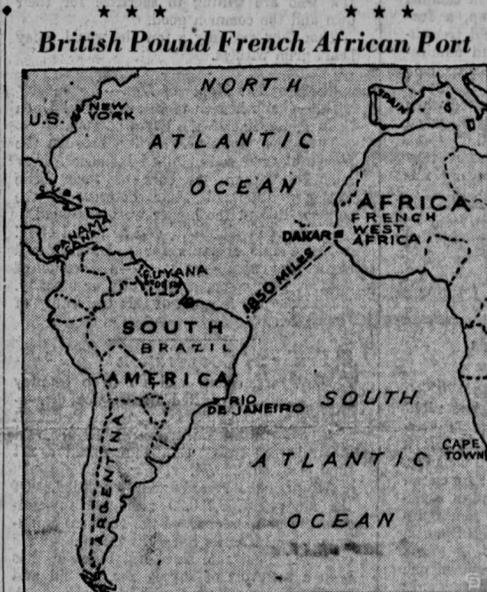

(The Vichy government said three big British warships were badly damaged while the British naval guns and aerial bombs wrought great havoc in Dakar and inflicted heavy casualties.)

(The battleships Barham and Resolution and the heavy cruiser Kent were hit, the French asserted, the latter reeling away from the fight with a sharp list and trailing oil.)

(In addition, the French said their heavy reprisal bombings of Gibraltar had damaged the British battle cruiser Renown and caused severe damage to the Gibraltar works.)

The genesis of the Dakar venture was laid by the ministry of information to de Gaulle, who, it said, had reason to believe that the French colony of Senegal would welcome his arrival, and establish an anti-German situation.

Dakar, capital and chief port of French West Africa, was the object of heavy shelling by British warships which were reported trying to wrest control of the colony from the Vichy government. General Charles de Gaulle, leader of Frenchmen still fighting with Great Britain, gave the order to fire when the French authorities holding Dakar refused to surrender. Military observers have long regarded Dakar, which is only 1850 miles from South American landing spots, as being a strategic "jump off" point for fascist and Nazi forces if they contemplate an attack on British and French possessions in South America.

Authorities Take First Step To Prosecute Muhlenbroich

Identify Woman As Former Wife Of Young Scion

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25 (AP)—First steps toward prosecution of Wilhelm Jakob Muhlenbroich for his "perfect kidnaping" of three-year-old Marc De Tristan, Jr., were taken today by San Mateo county authorities as the FBI promised to turn the prisoner over to the state.

The county grand jury was called to meet Friday to consider an indictment under the California "little Lindbergh" law, providing life imprisonment for kidnaping. The child was recovered unharmed and no ransom was paid.

In calling the grand jury, District Attorney Gilbert D. Ferrell explained this would speed prosecution by eliminating the necessity of a preliminary hearing. He said he would present only enough evidence for the jury to indict him, which I assume they will.

35,700 More for Active Duty

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Another contingent of civilian soldiers—35,700 in all—was called to active duty by President Roosevelt today, bringing to almost 100,000 the number of officers and men summoned for a year of intensive military training since congress made such training possible.

Today's order covered national guardsmen and officers from New York, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Puerto Rico and Hawaii. They will report for training Oct. 15. Previously Mr. Roosevelt had called out 60,500 militia men from other states. The units affected by today's order were designated by the war department on Sept. 16 to report for duty by Oct. 15. The president's order constituted the legal call. The units included:

The 27th division, New York, less its tank company; the 37th division, Ohio, less tank company, and companies E and I of the 112th medical regiment; the 32nd division, less tank company, Michigan and Wisconsin; the 102nd observation squadron, New York; the 153rd observation squadron, Mississippi, and the 107th observation squadron, Michigan. # Formula for a Better World

It Must Be Put to Work at Home; It Is the Pattern of a Few For This New University of Iowa Year

The University of Iowa's 94th year begins today. May it be the greatest year in her history.

Ninety-four years is a long time, long enough for a nation to grow up, almost; long enough for her to fight three wars and bring her into the thick of another, long enough for a tiny middlewestern college to become one of America's leading educational centers.

No one would dare predict what the next 94 years will bring. But the next 94 aren't as important right now as the one just beginning.

We can't control the next 94 years; but we can make or break this one.

We Turn to a Few—

What can we do to make this year the greatest in Iowa history? It's easier than we might think.

Let's not speak in abstract terms. Let's not preach. Let's merely speak of the simplest methods we know to build secure foundations for a better world.

Not many of us are willing to sacrifice for our own good, let alone the common good. But thank heaven there are a few!

It's the job of those few to make of themselves respected, admired leaders.

They'll do that by practicing the Golden Rule. They will do it because they're the few who are willing to sacrifice. They're the hope of the University of Iowa and the world.

Power Not of Strength

The few who are universally respected and admired by the inhabitants of the little worlds in which they move about in campus life—a section of a dorm, a co-op, a fraternity or sorority—those few wield tremendous influence because respect and admiration of them is universal in their little worlds.

They are the quiet leaders, consulted when important decisions are to be made, when problems trouble individuals or the group. Their advice is GOOD advice, because they won their respect and admiration by following it themselves.

A Man About

MANHATTAN

A Character from Cervantes Is San Juan's Will Rogers

By GEORGE TUCKER

SAN JUAN, P. R.—Our host last night was an unbelievable character out of Cervantes. After dinner he dragged out a guitar and, to the wail of plaintive melodies, sang Spanish ballads and also American mountaineer and low-down river music, sometimes in Spanish, sometimes in "mountaineer." Frankie and Johnnie with a Spanish twist is something to hear.

Before dinner we were driving down one of San Juan's narrow streets and suddenly he jammed on the brakes to keep from running over a goat that was having a late afternoon siesta, and also to hail an amigo of his who was a good half block away. He hailed him in Spanish. The amigo hailed him right back, and for five or six minutes they maintained this friendly exchange of greetings at the top of their lungs. Eventually the amigo sauntered down to the car and warmly shook hands. Then we all said "Adios" (I am catching on fast, eh?) and went our ways.

The name of my friend, who is more Spanish than the Spaniards and who is known and liked by even the goats and the dogs in the San Juan streets, is Abraham Feldstein, of New York. To everybody in San Juan except M. Christian Belle, the French Consul (who calls him Ah-bey), he is Abe.

Abe has been in Puerto Rico four years and he says he will never leave until he dies of pure senility. He speaks Spanish almost exclusively, and perfectly. He and his 11 year old daughter, Sheila, even converse at the dinner table or over the telephone in Spanish, a fact that sometimes moves his wife, Ruth, to inquire, "Abe, why don't you take a day off sometime and rediscover the English language?"

When Abe takes a notion to do anything—he does it. Shooting, for instance. He likes firearms, and as a result one room in his home has been turned into an arsenal. He has I don't know how many revolvers, different calibres. He has specially made heavy rifles for target shooting, and lighter ones specially made for his daughter, who likes to shoot too. He has shotguns for skeet shooting, which you can do in San Juan, and also other guns for dove shooting, which you do on the other side of the island.

One day last year Abe got the idea that he would like to learn to fly. On the day I arrived in San Juan he received his pilot's license. That afternoon he suggested that we go up and look at the island from the air. It was a good idea all right, but I declined. Abe is very broad minded. His feelings weren't in the least hurt. That afternoon he went back over to the training field and began working out on double and triple engine craft. "I'm going to be a transport pilot before I'm through," he swore—in Spanish. I believe him.

Through Abe I have met and been accepted on equal terms by beggars, restaurant keepers, government officials, and the constabulary. It was he who took me to the services in the Church of San Jose, where men have worshipped for 400 years, and it was he who took me into half the honky-tonks of San Juan, where even the boys in the orchestras knew him.

Their power is not the power of physical strength, but of moral strength. They exert it unpretentiously, unobtrusively, without thought of reward.

Better Little Worlds—

The little worlds of those leaders are better for their leadership, make no mistake of that.

A number of such little worlds, all bettered by the leadership of the few of whom we speak, make up a bigger world. That's the university a better university, thanks to the few who have qualities of leadership and the many who recognize them.

We have spoken here of the power of moral strength, because we see in moral strength the greatest strength of all. A great moral strength in a few individuals appeals to the finest elements in all with whom they associate.

An Expanding Doctrine—

The stronger the appeal, the more speedily do the baser elements disappear, and the more rapidly does the Golden Rule become a living doctrine for others than "the few."

That process, that simple formula, is the secret of a better university year. It's the secret of a better world.

It's a frightfully altruistic formula, to be sure, but where in the world would we all be if there weren't a little altruism in the world?

High hope and inspiration, morally, is being kept alive these days by only a few—a few who are willing to sacrifice for their own and the common good.

That they are only a few the world today bears grim witness.

The Hopes of Man—

But—thank heaven there are a few! Upon their shoulders rest the hopes of man.

They must work the harder, broaden the spheres of their self-obtained influence. They must break down the bars of their little worlds and spread their doctrine of the Golden Rule in the bigger worlds beyond.

Let them be altruistic, and be proud of it! The simple formula for a better world begins everywhere—at home—in a section of a dorm, in a co-op, a fraternity or sorority.

Let it be the formula of this University of Iowa year.

Fruits of Cooperation

What cooperation will do in a country the size of the United States was demonstrated admirably Tuesday when President Roosevelt was informed that the 1940 "fight infantile paralysis" campaign raised a net total of $1,407,245.74.

All previous records were exceeded. Of the money, $768,780.29 remained in communities and chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis throughout the country. That sum since last February has been a reservoir of supply for the aid and care of those afflicted with the disease. A total of $638,465.45 is available for the national foundation as its share to carry on the all-important scientific and medical work aimed at eradicating and controlling the disease.

The nation's fight against the disease, despite epidemics now raging in several states, is progressing satisfactorily, the president was informed.

One of the states badly hit is Iowa.

Keith Morgan, national chairman of the executive committee for the celebration of the president's birthday, pointed out that "this money, representing literally thousands upon thousands of small contributions, is evidence that Americans stand for complete preparedness against disease as well as any other enemy. They realize the importance of building up the health of the nation in connection with total national defense."

The fact that Iowa this year has had an abnormal outbreak of cases of the dread disease, bringing the dangers close to home, puts new emphasis upon the importance of this particular campaign, new emphasis upon the importance of cooperation in the achievement of desirable ends.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Hitler Hasn't Split With Joe Stalin—

WASHINGTON—Don't fall for the subtle insinuations from Europe that Stalin has split with Hitler.

There is definite information available here that Moscow has been fully advised of every move made by Berlin since they formed Mass Murder, Inc., or the division of Poland. Strictest censorship of all this censored world is on in Moscow, and the only news permitted out of there is what Stalin wants the world to believe at the moment.

Russia was fully advised of the Von Ribbentrop trip to Rome, before and after. Only reason she was not represented is because her agreed share of the forthcoming Mediterranean loot is to be Turkey and that was not involved in the conference.

GOOD CENSORSHIP

You may suspect the British censorship is good too. It kept the sinking of a refugee ship and the loss of 293 lives secret from the world for 5 days. However, those who have had a chance to check the British quietness controls on the ground believe them far too tight and clumsy.

British figures on German plane losses checked nearly accurate but they have sharply minimized their own air losses and concealed the extent of the destruction of London. True disclosure of the destruction, which is inconsequential from a military standpoint, and prompt news of the drowning of child refugees would have fanned faster pro-British sympathies throughout the world.

In their zeal, the British seem to have also censored their victory over Hitler for the winter, a victory now established as a fact at least in the mind of every government official here.

HEALTHY DRAFTEES

In all wars more soldiers have always died of disease than from violence. In the last World War a third more fell before the microbe than perished at the cannon. The casualty list showed 2,215 officers dead in battle, 2805 in bed; and among the troops the ratio was 48,295 against 66,519.

It will not be permitted to happen again here among the guardsmen and draftees who are being called up for a training, at least partly as a result of the efforts of an unknown freshman congressman, Rep. Albert F. Austin, a Connecticut republican. A physician, former health officer, regimental surgeon of the Wolverine division in the World War, he tucked an amendment into the draft bill which is causing Mr. Roosevelt and the General Staff plenty of headaches but may save the trainees from them.

As originally adopted, the Austin amendment would prevent the drafting of anyone for whom there was inadequate housing, light, heat, sewage and hospital facilities approved by the U. S. public health service. The administration succeeded in changing the final form of the law so that the secretaries of war and navy are personally responsible instead of the public health service.

All congress has such confidence in the army and navy leadership as to be willing to trust it where it would not trust the political management of some other governmental departments. Confirmation that their trust is justified lies in the fact that the first summons for draftees is being delayed until the army housing project can be started. Latest inside information is that 400,000 will be called before January 1, and the call will begin about November 15—after the elections are over.

Houses will be provided for all stationed above the latitude of Washington. Tent camps will be built here and further south. The army considers tents superiorly healthful where the climate permits because men do not live under such crowded conditions as in barracks.

BLEEDING FRANCE

The Germans are bleeding France to the bone. The Vichy government cannot escape the inflationary coma into which Germany and her mark were plunged after the last war.

True, the original financial transfusion of 20 francs for a mark has been abandoned in favor of a direct payment by the French of only $160,000 a day. But French gold is tied up in this country and the franc has no backing. Furthermore, Hitler is stripping the occupied region where nearly all the natural riches are. He is taking wheat, canned food, coal, planning apparently only to leave enough to keep the populace from rioting.

WILLKIEISTS HAPPY

Willkieists are much pepped up locally, expecting Wendell to Blitzkrieg the east in the coming weeks of the campaign as he did before the Philadelphia convention. Polls have thrown no cold water on them as they know the straw tests generally are taken anywhere from 2 to 6 weeks before publication and hence cannot be up to the minute. Willkie's San Francisco speech cured the Republican cloakroom trembles.

Hollywood's As Blind as Justice—

BY ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Those who insist that Hollywood is as blind as justice have a new talking point in Laird Cregar.

Cregar is a huge fellow. It's practically impossible not to see, and yet he had to find his show-case before the town could see him. He found it in the play "Oscar Wilde," but before that, for all his massive hulk, he got fewer jobs in Hollywood than a reasonably lucky midget could expect. A midget, at least, could slip through a studio gate. Cregar, standing six feet three inches and weighing some 303 pounds (a point on which he's sensitive) couldn't slip through anything, which means he got into pictures on acting. But not without a struggle.

You'll find him now on the stages of "Hudson's Bay," wearing a heavy beard and the buckskins of a Canadian frontiersman. It's his first movie, but his role is practically as good as Paul Muni's. He'll be wearing beards (he expects) for quite a while yet, because his face isn't as yet aged enough for the characters he must play. He's newly 24, a year younger than Orson Welles.

To begin where he did, Cregar went to Philadelphia public schools until he was 8, then to prep schools in England. That's where he decided to become an actor, and he stuck to it in American prep schools. He acted and wrote plays (one a revue for which he even designed the costumes). When he left school, at 14, he got into stock around Philadelphia—successfully enough to win a scholarship to the Pasadena Community Playhouse. After training he returned to Philadelphia, found actors overly abundant, and settled for a spot in the Federal Theater. Back in Pasadena in 1939, as a professional, he worked steadily from January until July, then accepted a role in "The Great American Family." It closed a month later, and he was on his own in a town full of unemployed actors. From September to April, 1940, he worked a total of five days in pictures, and that was all.

"I tried to get any kind of work—digging ditches, dish-washing, anything," he says. "I finally even tried to get on relief, but was disqualified. I couldn't collect unemployment insurance, for while I had earned the necessary $300, it hadn't been within the required period. Without kind friends, I'd have starved. Yes, it's true—I was sleeping in the back seat of a friend's sedan, eating where I could, before 'Wilde.'"

"Wilde" was his own idea. Having read the play, he set out to find a producer, and Arthur Hutchinson was his man. Cregar as Wilde got rave notices, but no immediate studio bids. The play here was no great financial success, but Cregar ate regularly again. And finally the studios stepped in—five offers at once.

For all his size, Laird is soft-voiced and humble before his current good fortune. Independent, though, for he rejected a studio which would have paid $50 a week more in favor of one in which he "felt comfortable." The other, he said, reminded him of a prison.

Girl Scout Training Course To Be Held Tomorrow at 1:30

Scout Council Work Will Be Discussed At First Meeting

The annual Iowa City Girl Scout leader training course will have its first session at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow in the board rooms of the public library.

The course offers an introduction to Girl Scouting to scout and Brownie troop leaders, council members, troop committee members and others interested in the movement.

The work of the Girl Scout council will be discussed at the first meeting by Mrs. James W. Jones, city scout commissioner.

Also on the program will be talks on "The function of the troop committee" by Mrs. Guy V. Newcomer and "The Activities of the Program Committee" by Mrs. William J. Petersen, chairman of that committee.

The history and background of the Girl Scouts of America and the national and local set-up of the organization will be sketched by Marian Chassell, Iowa City Girl Scout director.

Training for both Girl Scout and Brownie troop leaders will be offered in the first session tomorrow. Two separate training courses will be offered for leaders during the fall.

Brownie Mothers
Mothers of the younger group of Brownie troop No. 22 in Horace Mann school will meet at 2 o'clock today in the school.

The purpose of the meeting is to explain Brownie troops to the girls' mothers and to mothers of new members.

Leader of the troop is Mrs. O. A. White. Her assistants are Mrs. William H. Montgomery and Mrs. L. R. Beals.

Relief Group To Begin Here

'Bundles for Britain' Organization to Donate Clothing, Medical Aids

Iowa City people interested in the organization of a chapter of Bundles for Britain here are invited to a meeting in the Women's Relief corps rooms in the community building at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Many requests have come for the organization of such a group in Iowa City.

Activities of Bundles for Britain include the solicitation of all possible contributions for surgical instruments, hospital and medical supplies to be used in England; the knitting of garments or the fighting forces by regulations from the British Admiralty and the R.A.F.; and the collection of good used clothing and shoes for the thousands of refugees in England and families of men in the fighting forces.

Y.W.C.A. Cabinet To Meet Today In Union Offices

The first university Y.W.C.A. cabinet meeting for the fall will be at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the organization offices. Plans for a membership tea will be discussed.

Members of the cabinet are Patricia Sleezer, A4 of Freeport, Ill., president; Betty Addington, A4 of Des Moines, vice-president; Mrs. Lloyd Mann, A4 of Iowa City, treasurer, and Mary Ellen Hennessy, A4 of Council Bluffs, secretary. Mary Frances Arduser, A3 of Cedar Rapids, chairman of the membership committee, will also be present.

Women Golfers Play Tomorrow

The officers of the Iowa City Women Golfers' association will be in charge of the play which will begin tomorrow at 9 a. m. at the country club and will be followed by a noon luncheon. The officers of the club are Mrs. A. J. Droll, Mrs. W. A. Thomas and Mrs. A. C. Trowbridge.

Chatter Club Meets Friday

A meeting of the Stitch and Chatter club will be held from 1:30 to 5 p. m. in the Iowa City Light and Power company assembly room tomorrow.

The hostess will be Mrs. C. D. Jennings.

Moose Corps To Be Heard Over WSUI

The Iowa City Moose Grenadiers will present a special program on WSUI tonight at 8 o'clock, the first of a series of programs sponsored by the American Legion here.

Directing the series of programs, to be heard every fourth Thursday, will be L. E. Clark of Iowa City.

Ward Coulter is manager of the 65-member drum and bugle corps. Jack Fromm is director, Wendell Coulter, drum major and Kienny Hay, mascot.

Two local men, Robert J. Barry and Roy L. Chopek, post commander, will speak on tonight's program on "The Coming District Convention."

Red Cross Meets Today

The weekly meeting of the Johnson county chapter of the American Red Cross will be held from 8 o'clock this morning until 4:30 this afternoon in the community building. The meeting will continue through noon and anyone wishing to stay for a potluck luncheon may do so.

At this meeting a shipment of finished garments including 10 shawls, 25 pairs of socks, 40 beanies, and 25 sweaters will be sent out.

Newcomers Meet At 2:30 Tomorrow

Union Unveils Loan Pieces For Public

Exhibition Tea Is Planned Sunday For Fine Reproductions

Iowa Union's loan collection of fine reproductions will have a special showing at an exhibition tea in the main lounge of Iowa Union Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m.

All students, faculty and friends are invited to attend the affair, which will introduce the 23 new reproductions added to the loan collection this fall.

For the first time, individual students this year will be permitted to rent the reproductions. Persons will call at the Union for their pictures and exchange them as they wish during the rental period, which extends from Oct. 1 to June 1, for a fee of $2. Preference for the paintings, however, will be given to group organizations, officials said.

77 Paintings

The entire loan collection, which now numbers 77 paintings, will be on exhibition at the tea Sunday. Hosts and hostesses at the affair will be members of Union board.

Students on Union board for this year are Louise Seeburger, C4 of Des Moines; Jean Messer, C4 of Brighton; Ned Anderson, D3 of Atlantic; Robert L. Miller, E4 of Waverly; Donald Dodge, L3 of Oelwein; and John Bangs, A3 of Fairfield.

Other Union board members are James Bromwell, A3 of Cedar Rapids; Martin O'Connor, A3 of Des Moines; Martha Lois Koch, A4 of Evansville, Ind.; Margaret Kuttler, A4 of Davenport; Mrs. Josephine Sidwell Mann, A4 of Iowa City; Henry Hamilton, M4 of Winterset; Helen Fisher, N4 of Ottawa, Ill.; and Wendie Kerr, P4 of Humboldt.

Added to Collection Here

One of the 23 reproductions added to the Iowa Union loan collection this fall is the famous Dutch work by Pieter de Hooch, entitled "Dutch Parlor." Two students, Margaret Hill, Ada, Okla., and Walter Reuser, Kansas City, Mo., are viewing the new picture. The entire loan collection of fine reproductions will be on exhibition at the tea in Iowa Union Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Bombs Close To Home

American Journalist Tells What's Going On While Bombs Fall

By Drew Middleton LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—We are still doing business at the old stand.

The Associated Press London bureau at 20 Tudor St., felt the knuckles of war last night when a high explosive bomb landed at our front door, damaged our building, demolished the office building opposite and started a fire which still was flaring fitfully in the entryway today when I re-entered the office to write this.

Two other bombs fell within 20 yards. Three and a half hours after the bomb fell and sent us scurrying to safety and we were back in the office.

All departments are functioning. Last night we all had kept saying, "We will have a sweet time tonight"—like boasting before going to the dentist. Up to then the bombing had been "just usual."

The office was working smoothly in the basement. English-born Staffman G. H. P. Anderson was up on the roof getting eye-witness dope on German air raiders.

Staffer Edwin Stout, from Winterset, Iowa, was handling copy. Three office boys slept under a table. Staff Member Tom Yarbrough, an Oklahoman, walked home about midnight. I stretched out on a cot here.

Operator Anne Keefe was sending news to New York. Then we felt the first bomb teletype.

This explosion knocked me off the cot and shook the building. Stout said: "That was a good one."

Anderson reported from the rooftop observation post: "They're dropping a goodish bit of stuff." Miss Keefe kept right on at the Teletype.

There were scattered blasts. No one went back to sleep. Even down in our cellar we could hear the German raiders. I went up to the door on the street. It was a swell night. Reverberations came from plane motors, bearing death and destruction.

Scattered Blasts of bombs for half an hour. Then we heard the whizz-z-z-z of one falling and the heavy "Wham!" of an explosion. We crouched by the wall for a long moment.

George Angus, veteran AP traffic employe, dashed upstairs. Fire flared in the street next to us.

"Bring a bucket of sand," he bawled. By the time someone brought up the sand it was too late. Flames were leaping and lighting up a crater 18 feet across in one direction and 30 feet in the other.

The three-story tenement across the street was gone. The farthest wall had a few bricks standing, but that was all. "All out. Get to the shelter. All out!" hollered Stout.

In the shelter, water was staining the wall nearest the explosion. Soon it was inches deep on the floor.

There was a scurry of feet on the stairs and before I turned around everyone was gone.

Stout set up temporary headquarters in another newspaper building a quarter of a mile away.

Fifteen minutes after the bomb fell he was sending messages through to New York.

I stumbled through streets littered with broken glass to another office and duplicated Stout's message, although the duplication was 10 or 15 minutes behind his originals.

Photographer George Baverstock, awakened by the bomb.

Dr. Steindler To Lead Clinic At Dubuque

Dr. Arthur Steindler, head of the orthopedic department here, will direct a clinic at Mercy hospital in Dubuque Oct. 11, as a part of a state-wide program sponsored by the State Service for Crippled Children.

Crippled children from Jones county will attend the free-clinic, where a group of orthopedic surgeons will carry on examinations.

Winning Play Will Be Given Over WSUI

Prize winning play in the recent "Radio Play" contest, sponsored by the Iowa State Federation of Women's clubs, will be broadcast over WSUI during the fall season.

The first place play, "Appreciation of youth," was written by Mrs. J. M. Wyant of Glenwood.

A judge in the contest was Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the local radio station and speech department.

went out and took some shots of the fire and the crater and the censor, with usual British reverence for the letter of the law, refused for an hour and a half to let us say everyone was safe, despite our pleas that relatives would be worried.

"Oh, yes, old boy," said the censor, "but for security purposes we can't give away information like that."

I went back to the office, dodging from building to building when anti-aircraft shells exploded overhead.

Leaping Flames A broken gas main sent flames leaping against the windows. I wanted only one thing—my coat, and what is the American's most important possession in Europe, my passport. The coat wasn't there.

Angus and Editor Edward Robinson had had the foresight to grab all the coats.

While all this was going on Bureau Chief Milo M. Thompson had made his way to the Associated Press secondary bureau, prepared for just such an emergency, and had it open and running by the time the raid ended. Thus our bureau had the choice of two locations while the raid still was in progress.

We worked in the newspaper building three hours. When the raid was over we went down to the office, turned on the lights and went to work.

Miss Keefe, who hadn't batted an eye all evening, sat down and punched out a story.

"Well, we oughta give them a lead on this," said Stout.

Then I went out to inspect the damage.

Three bombs had dropped near us. The one which started the fire and drove us away is on the doorstep—where the doorstop would be if it wasn't for a big oval crater.

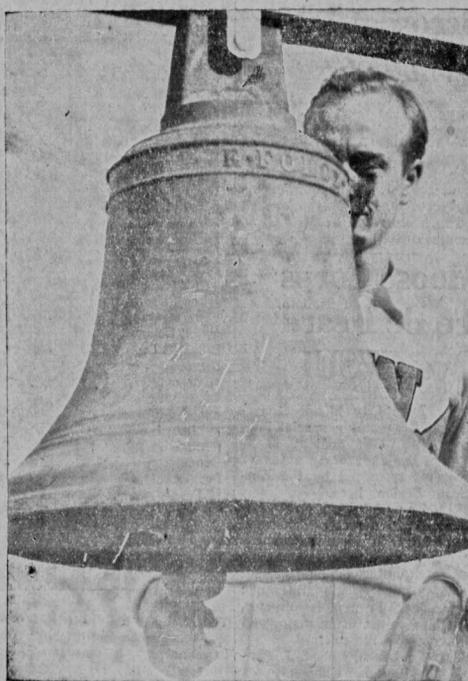

The streets are littered with glass and debris for 50 yards. All the windows are gone on the first floor of the Associated Press building. Most on the second floor are gone. The air is heavy with gas. The floor of the reception hall is littered with debris, but the photo department is almost intact.

Telephone and lights are functioning, but the clocks are stopped. The water which spurted into the shelter now is drained off, but the place will be damp and clammy for days.

Outside they are drilling with pneumatic drills for the broken gas main, which still is burning. Crowds stand gazing at the building.

"Coo," said a Cockney taxi driver who is an old friend of the Associated Press staff. "They don't like you fellers neither."

Old Capitol's Bell Rings Again

... the familiar rings of Old Capitol's bell will be heard at 7:45 this morning, as the first event of the new year, THE INDUCTION CEREMONY, opens on the west approach of the famed building. All students, faculties and administrative staff take part in the traditional ceremony. Classes will begin following the program.

Seals Club in Action

So, you're a "mermaid-co-ed" who likes to swim and swim—then Seals club, honorary swimming organization for women, is the answer to your aquatic hobby. Try-outs for the honorary club will be held Saturday, Oct. 5, from 10 to 11 a.m. and Thursday, Oct. 10, from 4 to 5 p.m. in the women's pool. To be eligible to become a member one must gain sufficient points in several fields, such as speed swimming, form swimming and diving. It is possible to obtain sufficient points to be eligible as a member, if swimmer falls short in any one field. Officers of this year's club include, Kay Shrauger, A3 of Atlantic, vice-president; Mary Lipton, A3 of Ida Grove, secretary; Lois Westcott, A4 of Hampton, treasurer; Betty Colvin A2 of Waterloo, and Judy Cook, A2 of Des Moines, probate sponsors. Faculty advisor for the Seals club is Prof. Marjorie Camp of the women's physical education department.

SHE FELL FOR HIM

ELIZABETH N. J. (AP)—Helen Paczkoski, 19, couldn't get to the door fast enough when boy friend William Tuttle rang. Rushing downstairs, Helen couldn't make the turn at the second floor landing, her momentum carrying her through a window and into the yard. Damages: a fractured left hip and elbow injuries.

Examinations For Graduates

Carnegie Foundation Sponsors New Tests Through University

All first-year graduate students with less than 10 hours of graduate credit are requested by Prof. Harry G. Barnes, registrar, to take the graduate record examination prepared by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

The University of Iowa is co-operating in the administering of these tests and first session is scheduled for MacBride hall Saturday, Sept. 28, at 8:15 a.m. Second session is Oct. 5, one week later, at identical time and place.

Purpose of the examination is to give the student an index of his relative ability in basic subjects in comparison with other graduate students with similar undergraduate accomplishments.

The examination records the present status of the knowledge

So Long May He Remember

As Another Joins the Great Family At the University of Iowa

He just came to go to school. He stumbled blindly into the arms of the first checker who looked at him and nodded reluctant assent.

Then he saw the long tables and all of the signs. He heard the men mumble unintelligible things as they made the checks.

He stood quietly in the line and heard the large, blonde girl next to him shriek at the bald man with glasses, "But you said I had 14 hours."

The line moved forward slowly and he clenched tightly the big white book and the many tan cards and letters. He held out everything in his hand drenched with sweat. Soon he felt it all thrust back at him—all but the long line of white cards.

"You're supposed to make three duplicates of this," said the man who returned it. And the line the student has gained from home background, independent reading, observation, non-curricular interests and formal education.

Dr. Walter Albert Jessup, president-emeritus of the University of Iowa, is executive director of the Carnegie Foundation work.

moved up and a tall boy in a tan sweater and sport coat pushed him aside.

He wandered through the crowded room and thought of people waiting to have their weight guessed at a carnival concession. He wondered slightly what the men who sat at the table marked, "Museum Methods" did.

Out on the porch sat the groups. They smoked cigarettes and marked the sheets. Sometimes they used pens and sometimes they used pencils.

So he sat down and started answering the questions. "Are you married?" the sheets kept asking him. He pondered over the courses and numbers and hours trying to make himself come out even.

Finally he decided to go at them again. Back to the sunporch he went. He called over another student. "Know any good three-hour courses?" he asked.

"How about readings in political science? You get that course arranged?"

"No, I want something I can get in a hurry. I want to go."

So, he went back to the checkers. They looked disappointed that the schedule was so tight.

"I plan to attend classes here—if I get through registration," he muttered as he made a mad dash from the building.

Then, he went to have his fees assessed. Exhausted he walked from floor to floor. Finally, all the white cards were detached. Everything was stamped.

"Am I through?" he questioned the man at the door.

He was outside, confused and registered. But still blocking his path was a vivacious girl, who looked as though she'd had a great summer. She held a stack of cards in his face.

She smiled and asked in a loud voice, "Have you bought your Hawkeye yet?"

ONE BROTHER: HALF 'N' HALF SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—A youth, testifying in a court action here, told a judge that he had no brothers and then changed his mind. "I've two half-brothers—that makes one whole brother, doesn't it?"

ing beams of many lights, like the rafters on a roof, from many farflung points in the metropolis. While one set of lights holds steady, others slide slowly up and down and around them, leaving an unwary raider little chance of escaping the glare over the area so guarded.
The Nazis, attempting to outflank a heavy outer anti-aircraft barrage, flew north and south above the city. The noise of their bombs rose occasionally above the ground fire.
Much of their attack was concentrated in a northwestern area, where flaming incendiary bombs were dropped. The great Hendon military airport is in that general area.
Summing up tonight the heavy action of the day, the air ministry said really large bomber formations had appeared over England for the first time "since the Luftwaffe's defeat of Sept. 15"—the day when 185 German raiders were declared shot down—and added that again this time a high proportion of bombers was destroyed. To illustrate the claim, the ministry said that of the 26 German planes knocked down in the day's action, 18 were bombers.
"During the day the great struggle spread out over a long and irregular battle line extending from London to the French and Belgian coasts.

It Doesn't Take Long
London Bureau Of Associated Press Gets New 'Office'
By EDWIN STOUT
LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP)—It took only 10 minutes and a telephone number today to establish a new "office" when the London bureau of the Associated Press was temporarily bombed out of its home in Tudor street, just off Fleet street's famous "newspaper row."
Then, through London's blacked-out streets, the office was moved a quarter mile under fire to more advantageous quarters.
As night editor, I was filing dispatches on the second floor of our Tudor street building when a German bomb exploded directly before the front door, blasting a 33-foot crater, shattering windows and setting a big fire.
Even before the fire-fighters arrived, we were rushing to a newspaper office up the street to re-establish contact by telephone with the censorship bureau, the cable company and the ministry of information.
In 10 minutes flat, "AP London" was operating again. The cable company arranged to receive all our copy by phone and transmit it across the Atlantic immediately at almost the same speed as if our teletypewriter system in Tudor street were still operating.
Similarly, the censorship office was given the telephone and extension number where we could be reached—an important item in getting dispatches moved quickly.
New Office
The new office proved unsuitable for mechanical reasons, so the cable company and the censorship were notified that "The Associated Press is now heading for a more advantageous building," and they were told to call us there.
It took the office—which then consisted of myself, a girl teletypewriter operator, the night editor of The Associated Press of Great Britain and an office boy—another 10 minutes to reach the second refuge.
We heard firing as we went, and the noise quickened just as we reached the new office.
Two calls were waiting—one from the censor, one from the cable company. Arrangements were rapidly made to have both outgoing and incoming telephones, with the Associated Press of Great Britain using the incoming line to take foreign cables, which were very important to the British at that hour because Berlin was being bombed.
The "APGB," incidentally, was the first to distribute the news of the Berlin bombing to Britain despite our own bomb-forced march and counter-march.
Fierce Attack
Drew Middleton, one of our staff writers, twice went back to our Tudor street office during a heavy bombardment. He toured the bombed area while the raid was thickest and then came back to our new headquarters with a full story of the attack on central London—the fiercest of the war.
Within an hour, the rest of the night staff had been heard from. George Angus and E. Robinson, teletypewriter operators, alternated at staying in the Tudor street building to guard property, arrange for the removal of valuable photo and news files, and keep contact with the new office by telephone.
When the all-clear signal finally sounded, we moved back into the damaged Tudor street offices in 10 minutes again, and, as the British put it, "carried on" amid shattered windows, floors heaped with broken plaster and other debris, the acrid smell of smoke, and down below, in our air-raid shelter, the cellar flooded with water.

tion such as already existed in French equatorial Africa.
The British naval squadron went along, the ministry said, to support de Gaulle if he needed aid, and because of growing German influence in the colony.
Instead of the welcome he expected, de Gaulle and his white-flagged emissaries, sent ashore from his force of about 7,000 men on six transports, ran into fierce gun fire.
Ordered to Desist
The British admiral ordered the French ashore to desist. When they continued shooting, the British guns returned the fire.
Then, after three days, the ministry said, the decision to stop fighting was reached "when it became plain that only a major operation of war" could win control of the strategic capital of West Africa.
(The withdrawal after a bloody fight, recalled similar British adventures in this war: the withdrawals from Norway, from the low countries and from British Somaliland.
Bitter Denunciation
But the ministry asserted "it had never been the intention of His Majesty's government to enter into serious warlike operations against those Frenchmen who felt it their duty to obey the command of the Vichy government."
(The Vichy government, which late tonight had reported that it believed the battle still in progress, was bitter in denunciation of both the British and de Gaulle.
(It said six British landing attempts had failed and the violent attacks had killed at least 250 Frenchmen and wounded 588.)

Her second husband, James F. Atkins, 32 year old Philadelphia bricklayer, first linked her to Dr. Friedrich Sthamer, one-time ambassador to London, reached Tokyo early this month.
The close secrecy which wraps diplomacy in the Japanese capital and rigid censorship prevented correspondents there from cabling accounts of his mission but it is known that he was well received and made rapid progress.
He reinforced the long efforts of German Ambassador Major Gen. Eugen Ott to make Japan an ally. Ott went to Japan as a language study officer soon after the World war, spent several years in close contact with Japanese army officers, even serving for a time with a division in the provinces. Later he became military attache, then, after conclusion of the anti-Comintern treaty in 1936, ambassador.
Hitler's special mission found the ground well prepared. The dominant army faction failed narrowly last year in a campaign for a full alliance of Japan, Germany and Italy. Britain still had powerful friends in Japan who remembered gratefully the two maritime empires' alliance of the first two decades of the century.

balance to growing United States-British cooperation.
The Associated Press' information gives this picture of recent Tokyo developments:
A German envoy, Max Sthamer, specialist on far eastern affairs, confidential aide of Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and a relative of the late Dr. Friedrich Sthamer, one-time ambassador to London, reached Tokyo early this month.

During the day, Mr. Roosevelt also signed into law and army housing bill appropriating $38,263,902 for barracks and other facilities for men drafted into the service.
Selective service officials said it was possible, however, that volunteers rather than draftees would use a large part of these facilities during the first phase of the conscription program. At the rate that men were volunteering for their year's service, they said, a considerable portion of the first compulsory service quota might be filled without a draft.
Many men, they added, have shown a desire to get their year of training out of the way in a hurry, so that they might go into business or attend college without fear of interruption.
Meanwhile, Secretary Knox said that the navy would be able to get all the men it needed from voluntary applicants, of which there are more than 8,000 on the waiting list.
The creation of a new post-undersecretary of war—to facilitate the national defense program was recommended by the senate military affairs committee.

there wouldn't be many problems to solve."
Mr. Hancher is 44 years old, but he has a certain youthful enthusiasm, a certain interested point of view about any given subject that makes him appear even younger.
In those 44 years he has climbed high in the legal profession. Now he's turning from his days at Oxford where legal students traditionally turn to education.
But such a turn doesn't startle him. He hadn't anticipated ever being an educator-administrator, he said, but then one never knows when his activities will be directed along new channels.
He wondered, he said, if George Gallup (who attended Iowa some 20 years ago) had foreseen the American Institute of Public Opinion and the Gallup poll.
Furthermore, he wondered whether I'd ever talked to anyone who had been interviewed by a Gallup interviewer. He hadn't, and the fact whetted an interest in the technique Gallup's interviewers follow.
Of all his many interests, though, the University of Iowa has come to the top. President-Elect Hancher is happy as he can be with Iowa's students and faculty this morning, and he is looking forward in keen anticipation to arriving for a permanent stay somewhere around Dec. 1.
Right now he is involved in the legal angles of a railroad transfer and such cases, he commented, have an unhappy faculty of dragging on.
But by December he will have cleared away his Chicago responsibilities and captured a bit of rest. Then, he said, he'll arrive in Iowa City, fresh and eagerly alert for the stimulation of a new field.

WOMEN'S HOUSES
Plan to Dance Friday Night
Dancing will be featured at an open house given by Coast and Russell houses, women's cooperative dormitories, from 9 to 12 p.m. tomorrow.
Chaperons for the affair will be Mr. and Mrs. Virgil S. Copeland and Mr. and Mrs. George Willoughby.
Members of the committee in charge will be Faye Moeller, proctor of Russell house; Wilma Kerr, proctor of Coast house; Maxine Paulson, A3 of Kellogg, and Kathryn Hepperle, A4 of Rockwell City.

During the day, Mr. Roosevelt also signed into law and army housing bill appropriating $38,263,902 for barracks and other facilities for men drafted into the service.
Selective service officials said it was possible, however, that volunteers rather than draftees would use a large part of these facilities during the first phase of the conscription program. At the rate that men were volunteering for their year's service, they said, a considerable portion of the first compulsory service quota might be filled without a draft.
Many men, they added, have shown a desire to get their year of training out of the way in a hurry, so that they might go into business or attend college without fear of interruption.
Meanwhile, Secretary Knox said that the navy would be able to get all the men it needed from voluntary applicants, of which there are more than 8,000 on the waiting list.
The creation of a new post-undersecretary of war—to facilitate the national defense program was recommended by the senate military affairs committee.

there wouldn't be many problems to solve."
Mr. Hancher is 44 years old, but he has a certain youthful enthusiasm, a certain interested point of view about any given subject that makes him appear even younger.
In those 44 years he has climbed high in the legal profession. Now he's turning from his days at Oxford where legal students traditionally turn to education.
But such a turn doesn't startle him. He hadn't anticipated ever being an educator-administrator, he said, but then one never knows when his activities will be directed along new channels.
He wondered, he said, if George Gallup (who attended Iowa some 20 years ago) had foreseen the American Institute of Public Opinion and the Gallup poll.
Furthermore, he wondered whether I'd ever talked to anyone who had been interviewed by a Gallup interviewer. He hadn't, and the fact whetted an interest in the technique Gallup's interviewers follow.
Of all his many interests, though, the University of Iowa has come to the top. President-Elect Hancher is happy as he can be with Iowa's students and faculty this morning, and he is looking forward in keen anticipation to arriving for a permanent stay somewhere around Dec. 1.
Right now he is involved in the legal angles of a railroad transfer and such cases, he commented, have an unhappy faculty of dragging on.
But by December he will have cleared away his Chicago responsibilities and captured a bit of rest. Then, he said, he'll arrive in Iowa City, fresh and eagerly alert for the stimulation of a new field.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Donald Hornbeck, chairman of the Young Republican National Federation, asserted today that Elliott Roosevelt's acceptance of a captaincy in the air corps reserve was "nothing short of damnable."

Calling upon him to resign his commission, Hornbeck said at a press conference that young men of the nation were "grumbling" over the appointment.

"They feel that honest selective service is the major need of the country," he added, "but to start it off in this fashion will do their morale no good whatever."

Name Directors for Community Chest

Annual Drive To Begin Late In October

Further Chest Plans Will Be Determined At Fund Gathering

Nine board members who will plan and direct the 1940 Community Chest drive in Iowa City were announced yesterday by Edward S. Rose, chairman of the board.

No definite dates for the 16th annual drive have yet been set, according to the chairman, but it will probably be a week late in October, he said. Also to be named yet will be a director of the drive, the goal to be attained and the persons who will conduct the drive and participate in the fund gathering.

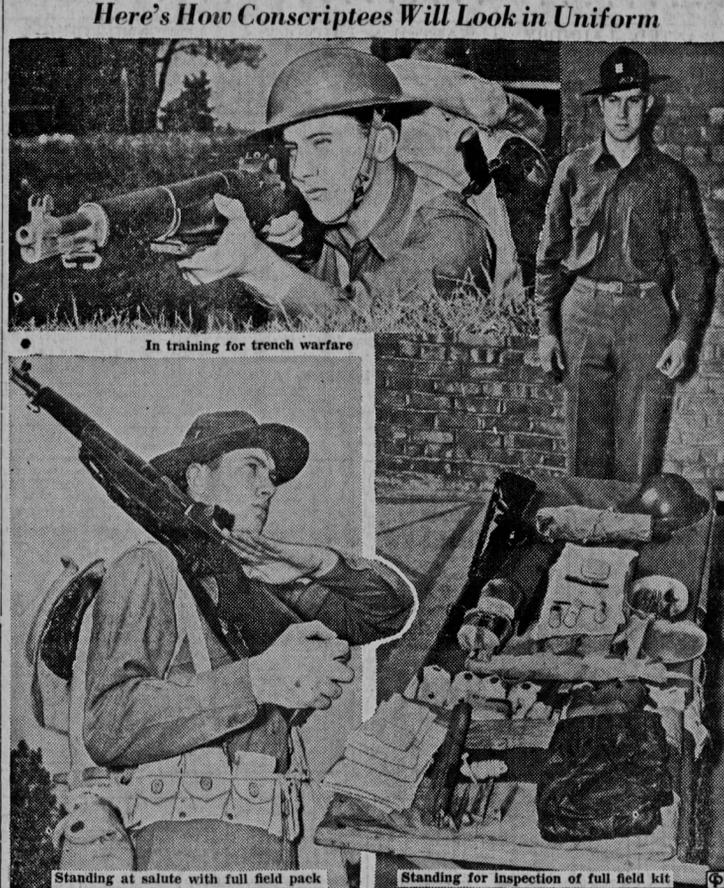

Board members announced yesterday include Mr. Rose, chairman; Prof. E. W. Hills, vice-chairman; Ben Whitebook, treasurer; Prof. C. E. Cousins, Mrs. F. B. Olson, Mrs. F. D. Francis, Harry Shulman, Luella Reckmeyer and J. J. Swamer.

The goal set for the 15th annual drive last year was $17,850. Mr. Swamer was director of this drive.

Funds gathered in the annual drives go to support of five city organizations. These are the social service, recreational center, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the city hall rest room.

Government Needs Skilled Metal Workers

The government needs men skilled in various metal-working and other trades. The United States Civil Service commission announces that while applications are coming in, the number of qualified applicants is not enough. If you are skilled in any such trades, don't fail to get details con-

First Frost Light Frost Recorded Near River

Iowa City temperatures dipped again yesterday in spite of clear skies and the first frost of the fall season was noted in low areas along the river Tuesday night.

High temperature reading for the day was only 60 degrees compared to a 72-degree high, according to records at the weather bureau's climatological station.

Low mark for the day was 37 degrees and normal low was 50. Readings a year ago were 67 degrees with a recorded low of 50.

The frost Tuesday night was described as very light though it marked the first official frost of the season.

Assault Charge Filed Against Alberta Dodd

A grand jury indictment was returned yesterday against Alberta Dodd of Iowa City charging her with assault with intent to inflict bodily injury.

The defendant was taken into custody yesterday by Sheriff Don McComas and was released on $500 bond.

According to the information filed with the indictment, the defendant, on Aug. 2, 1940, did "assault one Bert Emery with a knife with intent to inflict great bodily injury."

No Draft Exemptions President Hutchins Does Not Favor Student Exemptions

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (AP) — President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago said today that he did not favor "any exemptions from the draft for college and university students as such."

He also commented, in his annual report, that "military training and education, at the university level, do not miss."

"I agree with what I understand to be the view of the army and navy," Dr. Hutchins explained, "that military training is best conducted by the army and navy in their own establishments. The university may train people in highly specialized work for which the army and navy have no facilities or personnel. It may offer incidental opportunities to its students to gain some elementary military knowledge, provided such activities do not interfere with their education."

"Beyond these kinds of effort the colleges and universities should leave military training to the military forces and devote themselves to giving their students, while they have them, the best education they can."

"I also agree with the views expressed by Mr. Roosevelt, who has said, 'Young people should be advised that it is their patriotic duty to continue the normal course of their education unless and until they are called...'"

"I go so far as to favor prohibition of volunteering," Dr. Hutchins added. "On the other hand, I do not favor any exemptions from the draft for college and university students as such. Each man called should be put at that work contributing to national defense for which he is best qualified. If he will be most useful to his country receiving specialized training at a university, he may be assigned to work there, or his military training may be

Release Specifications for Airport Work As Local National Defense Plans Materialize

WPA Footing Costs Of Project Cementing Arsenal Protection

Specifications for materials for a proposed $180,694 national defense improvement project at the Iowa City airport under provisions of the works project administration are in the hands of prospective bidders, it was learned today.

Improvements are likely to begin within a few weeks, it is said, and negotiations are under way to acquire about 40 acres of ground west of the field to permit extension of the east-west runway.

Mayor Henry F. Willenbrock and other authorities indicated last night that final formal action in national headquarters at Washington is holding up work.

It is said the purpose of improving the local airport is to provide adequate aerial defense of the U. S. arsenal at Rock Island, Ill., in the event of difficulties.

Special plans, drawn with the special assistance of Engineer E. S. Joehnk, call for the improvement of three runways, one of which will be partially concreted, one completely concreted and two lengthened.

4,000 Feet Long

Ultimate length of the east-west runway will be 4,000 feet, 1,000 more than its present length, and in width it will measure 150 feet. The northwest-southeast runway will be extended 600 feet, and will be covered with a macadam material.

Required for the improvement of the runways and the turn-arounds at the extremities of these will be approximately 76,515 square yards of concrete, Engineer Joehnk announced. Also included will be the installation of 9,200 lineal feet of drainage pipe, as the plans call for slight relocation of drainage ditches, to run from the east end of the new east-west runway to the Iowa river.

An addition of 30 new lights and about 4,500 feet of boundary cable is planned to light up the runways.

Specifications released call for about 18,360 barrels of cement, delivered at the rate of 400 barrels a day, to permit 24-hour operation of a 27-E paving mixer.

If approved, the work will be completed by February, Mayor Willenbrock announced. Bids are being asked before formal approval of the project so as to alleviate delay when the final word does come through.

Civil Service Needs Inspectors For Purchasing of Equipment

An examination has been announced, and is now open until further notice, for procurement inspectors in the material division, air corps, war department, at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. The civil service commission states that there is an urgent need to fill these positions. Qualified persons are urged to apply at once.

There are three grades of positions as follows: The full grade, paying $2,300 a year; senior grade, $2,600 a year; and the assistant grade, paying $2,000 a year. The examination includes six branches of inspection work—aircraft, engines, instruments, parachutes, aircraft propellers and tools and gauges.

Applicants will not be given a written test. They will be rated upon their education and experience as shown in their applications, subject to verification by the commission. Senior inspector applicants must have had at least seven years, inspectors at least six years, and assistants at least four years, of (a) mechanical experience (which may include apprenticeship), in one of the major skilled trades in the optional branch chosen, with an aircraft manufacturing plant; or (b), in aircraft procurement inspection; or any time-equivalent combination of the two. Applicants may substitute college courses in engineering for the experience.

Persons experienced and interested in this type of work should apply for details and the proper application forms to the secretary, board of United States civil service examiners, Wright Field—Fairfield Air Depot, Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio; to the secretary, board of United States civil service examiners at any first or second-class post office; to the United States civil service commission, Washington, D. C., or to any of the commission's district offices.

WOODEN CHECK TAKEN WITHOUT QUESTION

MANHATTAN, Kas. (AP)—When a plasterer completed a job at C. W. Mullen's home he figured his bill on a small board and handed it to Mullen.

Mullen simply turned it over, and then wrote out a check on the other side. The plasterer took the board to the bank, showed it through the teller's window and the teller paid without lifting an eyebrow.

WAR COMES TO DAKAR, KEY TO FRENCH WEST AFRICA

General De Gaulle

Though London denied an attack, the French government at Vichy has reported a Franco-British attempt to seize Dakar, top right, capital of Senegal and French African western outpost. "Free French" forces under General Charles De Gaulle, above, were reported leading the assault. As the map, at right, shows, Dakar is the nearest African point to the American continent. There has been much speculation as to what might develop should Dakar become an air base for the Axis powers.

District Court Closes Friday

Sessions Suspended To Permit Attendance At Legal Institute

District court in Johnson and Iowa counties will close tomorrow afternoon in order that members of the bar in the two counties may attend the eighth judicial district legal institute in Iowa City, it was announced yesterday by the two district judges, James P. Gaffney and Harold D. Evans. The meeting tomorrow will be held at the Jefferson hotel, they said.

Speakers listed on the program include Henry Graven of Clear Lake and Atty. W. K. Carr of Charles City. The first business session will open at 3 p.m. tomorrow and a 6 p.m. dinner in the main dining room at the hotel is also scheduled.

Topics of discussion for the afternoon sessions are "The Allowance and Adjudication of Claims and Probate" and "Widows' Distributive Share in Iowa." Over 100 invitations have been sent out to members of the bar in the two counties, it was announced.
