BERLIN UNDERGOES HEAVY RAIDS

German Air Force Slashes Six Times at English Coast

British Gird For Possible Hitler Invasion

Three Daylight Raids On London Fought Off by Defenders

By The Associated Press
A Nazi armada of from 600 to 700 planes slashed six times at southeastern and southwestern England yesterday where British defenders girded for a possible German attempt to land troops during "Indian summer" weather.

These heavy assaults coincided with four daylight smashes at London, three of which were fought off. After dark Nazi bombers returned for the 24th straight night assault on the capital.

The air ministry said 47 German planes were shot down during the day to 22 British. Twelve British pilots were saved, it said.

The earth-shaking battle of Britain, with aerial bombs and cannon shells bursting on both sides of the channel, provided a continual obligato for axis discussion of these grave items:

Spain's imminent but possibly informal alliance with Germany and Italy for an assault on Gibraltar and possible occupation of French Morocco.

"New Order"
Redefinition of Soviet Russia's role in the program for a "new order" in the old world.

Broad Nazi-enforced revisions in conquered Holland.

The British said three of the German daylight attacks were beaten off with heavy German losses, but acknowledged that the Nazis, using "cavalry" tactics in the air, got through on the fourth attempt and inflicted casualties and damage.

At the same time, Britain's long-range guns started shelling the French coast, and the Germans quickly replied.

Watchers on the Dover coast said last night the shell-set fires in France illuminated the waterfront at Calais, more than 20 miles distant across the straits.

Counter Offensive
The British reported their aerial counter offensive on the continent inflicted heavy damage Sunday night on oil refineries, gas works, freight yards and airfields in Germany, Belgium and Holland.

Negotiate to Define Russia's Part In Future Axis Plans

By The Associated Press
Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP)—Despite a Nazi press chorus shouting "all's well with Russia," the impression prevailed in political circles tonight that negotiations between Moscow and Berlin are taking place to define more clearly the Soviet Union's role in axis plans for a new Europe, Asia and Africa.

With the signs turning toward aggressive axis diplomacy aimed at both Moscow and Madrid, the usual secrecy closed down around political preparations.

But it seemed evident that either German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop will go to Moscow in the near future or a Russian envoy, perhaps Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet premier and foreign commissar, will come to Berlin.

Officers Start Aerial Tour

Seek Closer Unity Between Nations Of Western Hemisphere

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—High military officers from Latin America gathered here tonight to start an aerial tour of this country's defenses—a trip which General George C. Marshall, United States chief of staff, predicted would lead to closer cooperation for the security of the western hemisphere."

At the same time, Marshall said that the war and navy departments had begun work on plans for United States bases at Bermuda and Newfoundland, where sites were donated by Great Britain in exchange for destroyers.

It was also made known that the joint army-navy board which has been inspecting these sites, would leave tomorrow on the cruiser St. Louis for an extensive tour of the Caribbean area, where additional sites are available.

Marshall stated the United States high command and the visitors would not engage in formal staff conferences on hemisphere defense.

F. D. R. Nears War—Willkie

New Deal Governing By Force, by Fear,' Says G. O. P. Nominee

DETROIT, Sept. 30 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie told an audience of Republican women tonight that the New Deal is pushing the nation "ever closer and closer to war," and added:

"The closer Mr. Roosevelt gets us to war, the more people say we ought not to change horses in the middle of the stream. How did we get there? The man who got us in is not the right one to get us out."

Addressing a meeting of the national federation of women's republican clubs, the republican presidential nominee asserted that the New Deal now "is governing by force and by fear."

"I will clean out the cynics and unbelievers, the nuts and the bunk-artists," he said. "My administration will be composed of men who believe in the American people."

An assertion that democracy did not need "to ask for the lives of your sons, your husbands or your brothers in war" evoked rounds of applause.

"Pray God that day may never come," he said.

Willkie inserted a sentence in his prepared talk to say that the American congress would have been like the German reichstag if the people had submitted to the purge."

At one point during his speech a tomato landed near him. (See LONDON, Page 8)

General Marshall Announces Army Organization will Undergo Change

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—General George C. Marshall announced today a "drastic" change in army organization to expedite training of soldiers, including national guardmen already being mobilized and the conscripts soon to be drafted.

At his press conference, the

Two contrasted conditions of London and Paris are described in the following two dispatches which, by chance, reached the United States the same day from staff reporters of the Associated Press in the capitals of the erstwhile allies. J. Norman Lodge, in London, is a native of Methuen, Mass., and a decorated veteran of the AEF in the World War; Robert Okin, in Paris, is a native of Hackensack, N. J. and had his baptism of fire in the Spanish civil war, whence he went to report the collapse of Spain and France.

By J. NORMAN LODGE
LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP)—In London were New York, this is the scene that would meet the eye of a stroller down Fifth avenue from Central Park to the Empire State building.

On both sides of the avenue, every plate glass window is gone and about every third or fourth store building is disembowled.

That is the picture of London's "Fifth Avenue" — Oxford street from Regent to Marble arch.

Now, still in New York, go down to Rivington street and along the old Bowery.

Every flop-house is levelled. Every dingy building is a mass of broken brick. The Mott street police station has been laid flat. Over in Foley square, the huge courthouse is gutted. The Brooklyn bridge subway station in army chief of staff said that nine tactical army corps commands would be created for the first time since the World War. In 1917, the corps were established for combat duty but now their principal function will be training." General Marshall said.

Manchukuo, Russia Negotiate Border Dispute

While Japan was negotiating a tripartite military alliance with Germany and Italy, from which Soviet Russia was omitted, officials of the Soviet and of Manchukuo, Japan's puppet state, were meeting to settle a border dispute.

Russian negotiators, right, are shown at the conference table with the Manchukuoan representatives left. It was reported that Russia's price for acquiescence to the new pact would be restoration of half of Manchuria or the abolition of all fortifications along the Korean and Manchukuoan frontiers by Japan.

Axis-Japanese Alliance Hits U. S. Interference

"Creation of new orders" in the far east and in Europe must not be interfered with by any power not now participating in the European or Sino-Japanese wars, Germany, Italy and Japan have warned in their new tri-totalitarian military alliance signed in Berlin. Although the United States was not mentioned by name, the treaty was regarded as a direct warning to the U. S. either to drop present aid to Britain or to enter the war actively. It also hit U. S. interference with Japanese moves in the Orient. As matters now stand, the nations shown in black, above, are aligned actively or inactively against Great Britain; Spain (1) is ready to join with the axis; the Balkans (2) are being forced into the totalitarian lineup, and pressure is being applied to isolated Sweden and Finland (3). On the other side of the world, the threat of British and American interference and the defenses of China and the French and Dutch governments stand between Japan and further aggression.

New Loans to Britain Urged

Senator King Asks Reduction On British Debt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—Senator King (D-Utah) proposed in the senate today that Great Britain be offered a reduction in her indebtedness to the United States as well as new loans in consideration for British possessions in the Pacific.

King told his colleagues that the "attitude of Japan" made it necessary to "protect our interests" in the orient.

Under his proposal the president would be authorized to acquire by lease or otherwise, any British possessions in the Pacific that he might find necessary for national defense.

The legislation would exempt Great Britain from the Johnson act's prohibition against loans to governments which have defaulted on their debts to the United States.

In both London and Washington meanwhile, there were indications that Britain planned to reopen the Burma road for shipment of supplies to China. The new $25,000,000 American export-import bank loan to China last week was reported to have been granted in anticipation of such a step.

Secretary Hull again today reaffirmed the American government's stand in opposing the closing of the road in July. It was closed under an Anglo-Japanese (See JAPAN, Page 8)

Deans, Bishop Oppose F.D.R. For Third Term

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—Two law school deans and a Methodist bishop expressed opposition today to a third term for any president, and urged a senate judiciary subcommittee to approve a constitutional amendment to limit the chief executive's tenure.

Young B. Smith, dean of the Columbia university law school, and Ignatius M. Wilkinson, dean of Fordham university law school, testified in favor of a single, six-year presidential term. Chairman Burke (D-Neb) read into the record a statement by Bishop A. W. Leonard of the Washington area of the Methodist church.

"I believe," Smith told the committee, "that if a president is permitted to remain in office for more than two terms he can through patronage and the use of federal funds achieve such personal power and build up such a political machine that freedom of nomination and freedom of election will disappear and the ultimate power of the people will be lost."

He apparently was recovering following the operation, but complications developed and his condition became critical last night.

His two children, William Harrington, a student at Yale, and Miss Eleanor Harrington, were at the bedside. Harry Hopkins, former secretary of commerce who is a close personal friend of Harrington and Howard Hunter, the deputy WPA commissioner, also came here when they learned of the seriousness of his condition.

Commissioner Of WPA Dies

Col. F. C. Harrington Stricken Following Intestinal Operation

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 30 (AP)—Colonel F. C. Harrington, national commissioner of the works projects administration, died tonight at a hospital here where he underwent an operation a week ago.

Colonel Harrington was stricken ill while visiting at the summer home of his brother-in-law, William Rayburn, and entered the hospital about two weeks ago. Physicians said he was suffering from an intestinal obstruction.

He apparently was recovering following the operation, but complications developed and his condition became critical last night.

His two children, William Harrington, a student at Yale, and Miss Eleanor Harrington, were at the bedside. Harry Hopkins, former secretary of commerce who is a close personal friend of Harrington and Howard Hunter, the deputy WPA commissioner, also came here when they learned of the seriousness of his condition.

Nazis Claim Hitting Targets

BERLIN, Sept. 30 (AP)—"Extraordinary" damage to British military targets by waves of German bombers in raids over the length of the British Isles was reported by German sources to-night.

New German dive-bombers swooping down in a surprise attack on the Hastings airport, the official German news agency said, destroyed two hangars and pitted the runways so badly they were made useless. The raid caught the British off guard, it declared, so that neither fighter planes nor anti-aircraft interfered.

The latest tally of the day's air fighting, according to Nazi reports, showed the British had lost 33 planes and 14 German craft had not returned home.

German accounts emphasized damage to the London docks and other objectives in southern England following dusk-to-dawn attacks in which hits were said to have been scored on Aberdeen, Edinburgh and Leith in Scotland and "extraordinarily widespread" fires started in Liverpool ware-

Draftees Offered Chance to Advance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—The army announced today that men to be called up for service under the compulsory training program will be given a chance to become commissioned officers.

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, said the war department was working out details of "candidate schools" to which trainees who show promise will be admitted for the last three or four months of their year's service. There they will work for commission as lieutenants. The officers will probably become reservists.

Spanish Aid to Axis Seen

ROME, Sept. 30 (AP)—Plans for Spain's aid in an axis attempt to seize Gibraltar, possibly to be followed by occupation of French Morocco, are expected in political circles to be completed when Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish minister of government, confers with Premier Musolini tomorrow.

Whether Spanish Generalissimo Francisco Franco would enter a formal alliance with the axis powers remains problematical.

Gayda, writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, said Spain had been "geared more directly" to axis policy in recent conferences in England.

Professor Sowers has conducted classes in the University of Iowa since 1923. At present he teaches courses in modern drama, drama writing, dramatic criticism and modern British drama.

Following the granting of his Ph.D., Professor Sowers held a traveling fellowship from Harvard university. Before coming to the University of Iowa, he taught dramatics and was director of the little theatre at the University of Texas.

For a number of years, Professor Sowers has spent part of each summer in London renewing his acquaintance with the British theater. Between the semesters of the school year he spends two or three weeks attending New York stage productions.

Other members of the school of letters staff will also appear on the series. Among them will be Prof. Rufus Putney on English fiction, Prof. Bartholow V. Crawford and Prof. Wilbur Schramm on American fiction. Rene Wellek on continental fiction, Prof. Austin Warren, Prof. Joseph Baker and Prof. Hubert Hoeltje on biography and criticism, Charles H. Iowa Union Library Popular

Recent Additions to Bookshelves Afford Recreation for Students

A popular place for students is the "browsing library" in Iowa Union. The library was started as an experiment, and the popularity it enjoyed has insured its life on the campus.

Among the recent additions to the library bookshelves is Jonathan Daniels' A Southerner Discovers New England. In this entertaining and honest tale, Daniels assumes the role of a roaming reporter who gleams material from the characters by his questions.

The author takes his readers from exciting situations to deserted mill towns. You meet governors and are lost in the slums. The result of the book is that you are made to realize in a most interesting and entertaining manner just what New England means to itself and to the entire United States.

Another of the books is written by a man who truly knows that which he writes. Oliver La Farge is eminently qualified to write "As Long as the Grass Shall Grow."

As president of the American Association on Indian Affairs, he is able to present clearly the picture of the American Indian, his passage from the time of his strength, when the grass was long and the buffalo ran in herds.

Hillel club, starting its annual membership drive, will hold a reception in the river room of Iowa Union Sunday night from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

F.D.R. Makes Tour of Major Defense Plants

Sees Tanks, Weapons In Action; Pleased With Preparedness Progress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—President Roosevelt made a 117-mile tour of major Maryland defense facilities today and saw guns, tanks and mechanized army weapons in action, a plant turning out big bombers for the army and navy and military post where 25,000 fledgling soldiers will train.

At the end of the trip, he said he thought things were going along in fine shape.

It was a day of innovations for the chief executive, who had seen nothing like the Aberdeen proving ground, the Glenn L. Martin aircraft factory, and Fort George G. Meade since he began visiting defense projects late in July.

Army Tests

Mr. Roosevelt started off at Aberdeen, on the shore of Chesapeake bay, where the army tests every type of ordnance. While he watched, a 37-millimeter anti-tank gun spit out a burst of shells, a Garand semi-automatic rifle spewed bullets at a target, a trench mortar arched some duds into a gray sky, and tanks, scout cars and motorized artillery careened over a stretch of rough ground.

Afterward, he told reporters that some of the things he had seen already were in production, and that new models were ready for manufacture. And, he said, standardization had been attained for many models so that speed would not be lost, as happened in the World war, by changes in design after contracts were let.

Flying Boat

Near Baltimore, at the plant of the Martin company, which is producing a new type of naval flying boat and a twin engine army bomber reputed to be the world's swiftest, the president saw planes on the assembly lines.

The company, he was informed, has $225,000,000 in unfilled plane orders and expects additional contracts approaching $175,000,000.

To take care of its share of the defense program, the firm is more than trebling its working space.

Stopping by Fort Meade on the way back to the capital, Mr. Roosevelt saw a crew of carpenters putting together new barracks at a post which will serve as the receiving center for recruits in the third corps area.

Only 2,100 men are stationed there now, but Mr. Roosevelt said 25,000 would be there by February. A $10,000,000 expansion program is under way at the fort, most of the money being applied to housing.

Japan Convicts Seven Britons

TOKYO, Sept. 30 (AP)—Seven British residents of Japan, arrested in the July roundup of each other's nationals by Japan and Britain, have been convicted of espionage, the authoritative Domei news agency announced tonight.

Three other Britons have been indicted and five more are under investigation on similar charges, the news agency reported. Their names and details of the trial procedure of those convicted were withheld for unexplained "official reasons."

The arrests were made during a nationwide hunt for alleged spies in mid-July. Following this action Britain disclosed an empire roundup of Japanese, including the London representatives of the powerful Mitsui and Mitsubishi interests.

Not Reprisal

Although the British contended their action was in no wise reprisal, and most of those arrested, including the two London businessmen were released, the incidents accounted for one of the sharpest rifts in Japanese-British relations.

The tension eased somewhat for a time but increased again with the recent arrest of six Japanese in Singapore.

(Later Singapore dispatches said all but two of the Japanese arrested there had been released.)

(Informed British sources in London indicated today that because the "whole situation" in the far east has changed, Britain intends to reopen the Burma road, vital supply line for China, after consultation with the United States. The road was closed for three months July 17 following an agreement between Britain and Japan.

(Although Japan's new link with the axis powers was believed to have been chiefly responsible for Britain's consideration of such action, the dispute over the arrests and counter-arrests was understood also to be a possible motivating factor.)

The foreign office spokesman, Yakichiro Suma, said tonight some 150 residents of Britain are returning home voluntarily. He added, however, several hundred others are remaining in Britain.

To Kill Self if He's Deported, Tells Children

Andy Pallo, of Wierton, W. Va., shows his two children, Mary Ann, seven, and Andrew Richard, four, how he intends to kill himself if deported to his native Czechoslovakia. Pallo says he fled Nazi persecution, was deported once before by the United States and turned, using the name of A. Dead American. Pallo says that if he is forced to return to Germany, which would be the case if he is again deported, the Nazis will kill him—so he may as well do the job himself.

closed to trains, but up to 10,000 residents of New York's lower east side sleep there at night.

That's a brief glimpse of New York—if New York were London.

By ROBERT OKIN

PARIS, Sept. 26 (Via Berlin, delayed) (AP)—The Champs Elysees, nearest Paris equivalent to New York's Fifth Avenue, looks more like Berlin today than the capital of France.

The Germans have centered many of their activities along the wide park-like avenue, with the arch of triumph at one end and the spacious Place de la Concorde at the other.

Walking up from Rond Point, with its crystal fountains that play every Sunday, you find a cafe turned into a "soldatenheim" where German army men eat and lounge on the terrace.

A little farther on is a "soldatenkino" where German pictures are shown for German soldiers only. Next is a German theater where German-language plays are produced by traveling companies of the Nazi "strength through joy" organization.

houses and along the Mersey river waterfront.

The government, meanwhile, authorized parents to send their children away from Berlin and assured Germans their food supply easily would tide them over the winter.

Move Children

Although it was stated officially that there had been and would be no forced exodus of children from Berlin, it was announced that the national socialist welfare organization would pay for the dispersal of poor children whose parents wanted them removed and that parents with sufficient means could send theirs away at their own cost.

Similar arrangements were reported being made for other endangered German areas.

A grain harvest only two percent under the peacetime average assures "the stability of bread rations in Germany for a long time to come," Walter Darre, minister to agriculture, reported.

German Harvest

He gave these estimates for the German harvest: grain—24,600,000 metric tons (903,000,000 bushels); potatoes—60,000,000 metric tons (2,203,000,000 bushels); sugar beets—20,000,000 metric tons.

These figures, he said, meant 5,000,000 more metric tons of potatoes, Germany's great staple, than the previous average, and a surplus after human needs are filled of 42,000,000 tons which would be available for feeding stock.

The food situation in general is satisfactory, Darre reported, with plenty of vegetables and enough fat and meat for current rations to be continued through the winter. He said, however, there would be a pronounced fruit crop failure.

Raids--

Mussolini in Rome today, and Italian political circles expected them to complete plans for Spanish entrance into the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis.

The authoritative fascist editor, Virgilio Gayda, said plans of The American Association for the Advancement of Science, that he had succeeded, apparently for the first time in any laboratory, in extracting a substance from human cancer that would produce cancers in experimental animals.

The experiments were not sufficiently convincing in Dr. Menke's mind to warrant the definite conclusion that a cancer-causing factor had been found. Other experiments are under way which will determine finally whether this is true.

"All's Well"

Gayda hinted, however, that Spanish aid might not be in the form of immediate military action. Foreign circles believe Germany had sought permission to use Spain as a base for troops and planes.

Berlin political circles sustained an impression that a new German-Russian conference was in the cards, even though the Nazi press caroled: "All's well with Russia."

Secrecy was enforced, but a Berlin or Moscow conference between German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Russian Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov was expected in the near future.

Nazi Displeasure

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Germany's Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had held long talks with Anton Mussert, leader of the Netherlands Nazis.

Experiment On Cancer Cause At Stanford U.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30 (AP)—An experiment which may mean that the cause of cancer has been found was reported today from Stanford university medical school.

Dr. John Frederick Menke, research surgeon, announced in Science, the official publication of The American Association for the Advancement of Science, that he had succeeded, apparently for the first time in any laboratory, in extracting a substance from human cancer that would produce cancers in experimental animals.

American and British officials were understood to feel that China should be given as much aid as possible for resisting Japan.

Secretary Hull conferred today with Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, and it was understood they discussed the possible effects of the new Japanese-German-Italian alliance.
