Registration for Conscription: Here's the Procedure for Residents of Iowa

The Selective Service law provides that on Wednesday, Oct. 16, every male resident of the United States who has arrived at the age of 21 years, and has not reached 30 years of age, shall register for possible military duty.

forces of the United States and the federally recognized active national guard, and officers and enlisted men of the army, navy and marine corps reserve.

able to register may be severe, for the law provides imprisonment of not more than 5 years, or a fine of not more than $10,000, or both.

the regular voting places in the precincts in which registrants reside. The county auditor will be in charge of all places in his county, and a chief registrar at each place.

tion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans, and all other patriotic organizations, and all members of religious and civic groups to offer their service to county auditors to help on Oct. 16.

give him full information as to how he may be registered.

will be set up in each county, and in counties with more than 30,000 population, there will be more than one board.

Broadcast Will Answer Draft Queries Tonight

A national broadcast to answer specific questions of students and faculty members, regarding the Selective Service act and potential military training, will be presented over the nation-wide network of the Columbia broadcasting company from 9:15 to 9:30 tonight.

Although plans have not been completed for the registering of students in the university for military service, the broadcast will answer, with authority, many of their questions about the Selective Service act.

The nearest Columbia network stations, which will broadcast the program, are WMT, Cedar Rapids and Waterloo, and KRNT, Des Moines.

C. C. Williams, president of Lehigh university, and former dean of the college of engineering at the University of Iowa, will be one of those asking questions on the program.

Authorities answering the queries will be Lieut. Col. Lewis B. Bursney, executive officer of national selective service headquarters, in Washington, D.C., and Dr. Frederick Osborne, chairman of the advisory committee on selective service.

The program, sponsored by the American Council on Education, will be entitled "A Student in Selective Service."

Newlyweds of Draft Age Get Equal Chance for Deferment

House Gives Power To Protect Families With Overdue Rent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Selective service officials emphasize today there would be no discrimination against newly-married men in choosing conscripts.

The selective service law operates for five years, and we don't want to stop all marriages during that time," remarked Frederick Osborne, chairman of the president's advisory committee on the draft.

Questioned about recent reports of a rush of marriages in the face of the draft law, Colonel William Draper, another member of the president's committee, emphasized that the question of deferring from service those men recently married would be decided on the same basis as the cases of all other married men.

The day brought these other developments bearing on the draft: The house approved and sent to the senate legislation giving the courts broad powers to stay evictions of dependents of soldiers and sailors from their homes because of overdue rents, and permitting the veterans administration to guarantee payment of premiums on draftees' insurance policies up to a face value of $5,000.

Senator Guffey (D-Penna) introduced legislation to exempt draftees from state or local income taxes.

The American Federation of Labor announced its members would be exempted from dues payments while serving with the military forces.

The treasury announced that

Preparations In Progress For Iowa Draft

DES MOINES, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Iowa selective service headquarters began distribution today of forms and regulations booklets in preparation for the registration of some 375,000 Iowans under the national conscription act, Oct. 16.

Several thousand copies of two regulations booklets went to the 119 local draft board members appointed by Governor Wilson Saturday.

Ready for mailing either Monday or Tuesday, were more than one million sets of registration cards, registration certificates, information placards and information booklets that will be used by precinct registration boards.

Physicians Urged To Focus Energies On National Defense

DETROIT, Oct. 7 (AP)—A plea to physicians to stop bickering over the problem of socialized medicine and concentrate on problems of national defense was made today by the incoming president of the American Public Health Association.

Dr. W. S. Leathers, dean of the medical school of Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., declared in an interview that "the time has come for closer integration between federal and state health agencies and private physicians" in order to protect the health of both soldiers and the civilian population.

RAF SMASHES AT BERLIN

Nazis Resume Raids After Brief Interval

Raiders Lunge At Metropolis, Nearby Towns

London, Outskirts Sprayed With Bombs; Residential Areas Hit

LONDON, Oct. 8 (Tuesday) (AP)—Adolph Hitler's night-riders attempted to make up for lost time last night and early today by striking hard at a number of London districts, following a day of fierce "stratosphere" dogfights above the capital.

Deprived of their timetable assaults night before last by storm-swept skies for the first time in 30 days, the raiders swept back with the stars to lunge repeatedly at the metropolis. In all, 10 London districts and a number of provincial areas were sprayed with high explosive and incendiary bombs.

Incendiary Bombs A southeast coast town was subjected to an ordeal of incendiary bombs which the British said struck residential areas rather than military objectives. No casualties were announced.

About midnight, the raid on London itself lulled, then flared again periodically until dawn, marked by the occasional drone of a plane, whistle of a bomb and crackle of gunfire.

While this was going on, a German plane spread a smoke screen on the French coast opposite Dover, and a flotilla of trawlers and other small vessels set out cautiously along the shore behind the screen.

Daylight Forays The night attacks were a continuation of mass daylight forays in which the RAF broke up formation after formation of German planes four to six miles above the city. The number of raiders was declared authoritatively to have numbered 500.

Adjournment Grows Remote

House Republicans Oppose Program To Recess Until Nov. 18

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Prospects for a congressional recess grew more and more remote tonight, as house republicans banded together to oppose any program which would deprive congress of the power to reassemble itself in the event of an emergency.

Faced also with defections in its own ranks, the democratic leadership was obviously reluctant to press a resolution already prepared under which a recess would be taken until Nov. 18.

Representative Martin (R-Mass) the republican floor leader, said that a party conference, held late today, revealed a unanimous opposition to such a course. He said that if it were followed, not even the president would have authority to call the national legislature back to the capitol during the recess. This, however, was disputed in democratic circles.

Three-day Recess Planned

In any event, Martin and his republican followers, with sizeable support from the democratic side of the chamber, were ready to back a plan under which a series of three-day recesses would be taken. This would involve brief and purely formal meetings of both houses at three-day intervals, lasting just long enough to recess for three days more.

But the democratic leadership was against such a program. Speaker Rayburn said that an effort would be made within the next few days to determine whether there is a majority for the Nov. 18 recess, and if not, the resolution calling for it will not be called up for action.

In that event, also, other democratic leaders made it plain that daily sessions of the house will be held, with a quorum call every day, to reveal the number and the identity of the absentees to the country.

Congress Must Be Able to Act Martin emphatically asserted that whatever is done congress must be in a position to act if foreign developments necessitate it. He said it had been suggested that a recess until Nov. 18 be taken, with any one of the four house and senate floor leaders, (See ADJOURNMENT, Page 8)

Fascist Troops Display Power Before Il Duce

Diplomatic Quarters Speculate on Possibility Of Mussolini Speaking

ROME, Oct. 7 (AP)—Fascist legions, readied for war, displayed their prowess before Premier Mussolini today in northeastern Italy while Rome diplomatic quarters speculated on a variety of events, among them the possibility that Il Duce might be about to make a speech on the axis' next move.

Mussolini was in the Verona area continuing his troop inspections along the Po. On Thursday he will review more units at Padua, in the same area, and informed circles expressed belief he might say something then about his Brenner Pass confab with Hitler.

Mussolini's plane landed at San Nicola, the Lido, near Venice, early this morning and he hurried away to review motorized divisions at Monselice.

British Sub Sunk

The Italian high command reported another British submarine had been sunk by a flotilla of motor speedboats, the same group which was reported yesterday to have sunk a British undersea craft.

The high command declared a civilian was killed and six others injured when a British submarine shelled the city of Savona, in northwestern Italy near Genoa.

Italian warplanes, attacked a British convoy in the Red sea, the communique said.

Italian naval casualties during September were listed officially as 55 officers and sailors, five African native sailors and two civilian workers killed, 60 wounded and 118 missing.

2 Army Fliers Killed in Crash Of Attack Ship

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 7 (AP)—Two army fliers died today as their two-seated attack ship crashed against the side of a mountain.

The victims were believed to be Lieut. James E. Mather of Salt Lake City and Private Homer C. Lloyd of Rosebud, Mont. A watch bearing Mather's name was taken from one of the bodies, both of which were burned.

One of the men made no movement, but the other was alive after the plane crashed.

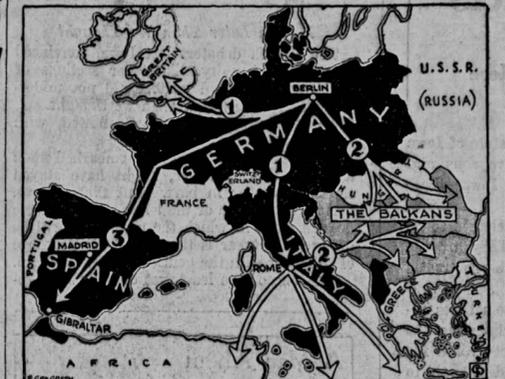

His agonized cry: "For God's sake, hurry up and get me out of here," reached W. S. Olsen, forest service foreman, first on the scene.

The ship lay on its back and the man was trapped in the rear cockpit, Olsen said.

"I smashed the glass but the window was too close to the ground and I couldn't get the man through," Olsen explained.

"I then tried pulling him out through the bars at the side, but the bars were too close together. The man tried to help me but we just couldn't do it. Finally the heat got so intense I had to abandon him to his fate."

Three Moves for Axis Possible

Three possible moves which may be made by Reichstuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy are illustrated above. It is believed Hitler and Mussolini may have decided on one or more of these moves at their conference at Brennero. They are: 1—Germany, leaving sufficient airpower at home to defend herself against Great Britain, might transfer much of her air force to Italy in an attempt to smash British sea power in the Mediterranean. 2—Axis powers might push into Balkans, gaining control of vast stores of wheat and oil for a spring offensive against Britain. 3—With the cooperation of Spain, they may attempt to take Gibraltar and thus cut Britain's Mediterranean life line.

Worst Attack German Capital Has Undergone

Several Berliners Killed, Wounded By High Explosives

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (Tuesday) (AP)—British warplanes, in a raid of record-setting violence on the German capital, killed and wounded several Berliners last night and early today and struck storehouses, rail lines, various apartments and two hospitals with explosive and fire bombs.

One British plane was shot down by the terrific concentration of anti-aircraft fire.

A German communique issued shortly after the raid gave a terse outline of what happened in the four hours and 42 minutes of bombing and artillery fire, which topped all previous raids on the German capital.

The communique said: In the past night, British planes attacked the Reich's capital and dropped explosive and incendiary bombs at various places.

Target Hit "Among other things hit were two hospitals, various apartment houses as well as storehouses and rail lines.

"The fires started were soon brought under control. "Several dead and wounded are to be reported.

"One airplane was shot down by anti-aircraft artillery."

This spectacular destruction of a British bomber came fairly early in the raid when the plane was at a height semi-officially estimated at 9,000 to 12,000 feet.

Caught in the converging cone of at least 16 searchlights, the plane was held relentlessly in a quarter-mile path of light into which the guns from the ground poured volley after volley of the heaviest caliber of explosive shells and shrapnel.

A companion plane, apparently seeking to divert some of the lights and the gunfire, sped into the glare, but to no avail, and ducked out into the darkness again.

The raid came as DNB, official German news agency, announced that 22 British and 7 German planes had been destroyed in yesterday's fighting.

During the entire alarm there was scarcely a quiet moment as the bombers droned back and forth across the city, evidently trying to make up for the past three calm nights, while the cannonading from the ground maintained a hot pace.

Twice searchlights caught British bombers on focus and one appeared to have been shot down. The other wriggled out of the concentration glare and evidently escaped.

The raid lacked several minutes (See RAIDS, Page 8)

Germans Reported Building Naval Bases on Black Sea

Nazis Admit Armed Forces in Rumania To Halt British Action

BUCHAREST, Oct. 7 (AP)—German aid for building a big naval and air base on Rumania's Black sea coast, enlargement of an existing submarine plant there and construction of an east-west cross-country highway was reported on the way tonight amidst signs of increasing Nazi collaboration in bolstering defenses of the kingdom.

Reports that German already had sent large armed forces into Rumania created a sensation throughout the Balkans and were described officially as "premature," although a government statement mentioned the existing close relations and technical aid promised by Germany.

Military circles said several divisions are expected shortly. Quarters already have been prepared.

(Authorized sources said German troops already were in Rumania as a precaution against British undercover activity. Rumania has oil and other supplies badly needed for the Nazi war machine.

(Informed Nazis described as "absolutely nonsense" Bucharest reports of the planning of Black sea bases.)

Balkan military observers speculated on the possibility of plans to bring this country, Bulgaria and Hungary into an axis military alliance, for some form of campaign against the near east.

It also was held likely the retaliation (See BUCHAREST, Page 8)

Germans Use Smokescreen To Veil Action

DOVER, England, Oct. 8 (Tuesday) (AP)—A German plane laid down a mysterious white smoke-screen along the French coast across from Dover early today and a bustle of activity was reported shortly afterward among small boats off the continental coast.

The English channel was glassy smooth after several days of stormy, invasion-forbidding weather.

Shore watchers on this side were mystified by the unusual German operations. It was agreed the smokescreen, unlike anything seen before along the German-held French coast, was intended to hide some major shore activity in the Boulogne vicinity.

Soon after the plane completed its mission, several trawlers and drifters put out from the French shore and moved cautiously westward along the coast.

If the smokescreen was laid down to hide this operation, it was a failure for British shore batteries, on the alert for every sign of an invasion move, saw the entire proceedings through powerful field glasses.

This mysterious activity came as Adolf Hitler's night-riders stormed against London in one of their most persistent night attacks following a day of fierce "stratosphere" dogfights above the capital.

Senate Orders Investigation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—The senate ordered its interstate commerce committee today to make a "thorough and complete" investigation of the extent to which foreign interests may influence American defense industry.

The chamber approved the inquiry despite a protest by Senator Austin (R-Vt.).

"I do not want to see congress furnish the department of justice with material to club industrial enterprises over the head at a time when we want harmony in this country and want complete cooperation in building up the national defense," Austin said.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), chairman of the interstate commerce committee and sponsor of the investigation resolution, told Austin he was "entirely mistaken" if he thought "this resolution is to be used to club industry."

"There is no politics in it," Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) assured Austin, adding that certain contracts entered into by business firms before the war "may very seriously handicap our own industries in the matter of national defense."

The resolution declared among other things that "information has come to hand that some large concerns important to national defense have deferred national interests to monetary considerations by giving preference to foreign munitions orders."

Meanwhile, the house completed congressional action on a bill which Representative Voorhis (D-Cal), its author, said would require the communist party, the German-American bund and the Nazi party to file detailed reports with the justice department.

The following types of organization would have to register with the department:

1. Organizations engaged in political activity and under the control of a foreign government.
2. Organizations engaged both in political activity and military activity.
3. Organizations engaged in military activity and under the control of a foreign government.
4. Organizations whose aim is to overthrow the United States government by force, violence or military measures.

Our Dads

Get 'Em Down Here
This Week End

There are a lot of dads in the state of Iowa and across the nation who have sons and daughters at the University of Iowa—there are thousands of them.

A lot of them didn't have a chance to go to any college or university. They are the prouder that their sons and daughters do have that chance.

It's too bad that dads are sometimes regarded merely as some one who runs the household and pays the bills, recognized for the first time when we got old enough to realize that someone has to run the household and pay the bills.

It's pretty easy for sons and daughters to forget the deep feeling of pride dads have in their children, and in what they accomplish.

But show us a dad who doesn't have that feeling.

University of Iowa Dads

Everything we've said is applicable to mothers, too, but right now our paramount interest is in dads.

Furthermore, our big interest this week is in the dads of University of Iowa students. Because Saturday is Iowa Dad's Day. Now we might work up a lot of misdirected sentimentality about Dad's Day, but we'd rather not do that.

But there's no question in our minds that Dad should be invited to come to Iowa City this week end. There's a program in his honor, highlighted by the Iowa-Wisconsin game on Saturday.

A few of the unfortunates among us haven't any dads. They'll have no trouble in finding foster fathers—older fellows who manifest a fatherly interest in what we accomplish and how we go about it.

And they should be invited too.

Chips Off the Old Blocks

The objective of Dad's Day, in the mind of us students, should be two-fold:

1. We can show him a rousing good time, the university cooperating, and
2. We can let him know that the pride he manifests in us, his faith in what we do, isn't misplaced.

Well, this has turned out to be somewhat sentimental after all. No matter.

Get Dad down here this week end. It's HIS day. He's YOUR dad, and only we can give him the pleasure of knowing we're chips off the old blocks, even in college.

He may have been here before. That's fine. Whether he has or not, he's got to be here this week end.

Tell him to bring Mother along, even for Dad's Day; she can bring him down for Mother's Day next May.

But get him here, and we'll make the occasion entirely his, to the last Iowa touchdown on Saturday.

An Iowa Tradition Broken

The ravages of war cut deeply, affecting every phase of life in every section of the world.

The Battle of Britain has affected America in many ways, and the University of Iowa in many ways.

One of the least, yet one of the deepest ways in which the university will be affected this year by the Battle of Britain, is to be found in the field of what may be called international good will.

Because this year the university will not have the privilege of hearing university debaters from British universities on the Iowa campus.

A Tradition Broken

This will be the first year since 1924 that England's students have been unable to come to America, to charm audiences the nation over with their profundity of knowledge, their pleasantness of wit.

The cause they served was one of international good will. They came to America, stayed a few brief months, and returned to their native England convinced, in their own words, that this nation's people are finer than they had dreamed, that this America is greater than they thought.

And in America they served the cause of England well.

A Living Value to the World

Iowa's Prof. A. Craig Baird was the first American debate coach to take an American team to the British Isles. He started that practice when he was a teacher of speech at Bates college in Maine.

It grew, and with it grew the greatness of the value of that practice to the world.

The Battle of Britain has halted all that, temporarily. Professor Baird's attempts to get students from even the "foreign" state of Canada have met with failure.

And so, apparently, for the first time since 1924, Iowa will have no international debate.

We recall the night of Nov. 15 last year when, on the platform in Macbride hall, two British gentlemen urged an Anglo-American alliance.

The Iowa position was one of incredulity; we told them, plainly, that England needed no help from us, that the very power of her empire was enough to stay the onrushing tide of nazism in Europe.

The war then was nearly three months old. The United States had repealed her embargo upon arms.

That, we maintained, would be quite enough.

It Was Later Than We Thought

The British debaters left Iowa, convinced that this university, like other sections of the nation they had visited, did not understand that it was later than we thought.

The ravages of total war followed, with those world-wide disruptions.

Now, the United States has embarked upon a policy which, earlier, might have stayed the current war in part. But that is over.

As a result, one of the least, yet one of the deepest ways in which the university will be affected this year is the loss of the privilege of debating with the gentlemen from Britain.

Yes, one of the least, yet one of the deepest.

A Man About MANHATTAN

A Column Devoted, Almost,
To Actress Bette Davis

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Quick now — and no guessing — which is stronger, heredity or environment? ... We don't know, and maybe this won't get us anywhere, but during a visit with Bette Davis the other day we saw a jug of cider and a box of big red apples on her table. ... Even ten years in Hollywood couldn't get New England out of her.

Here is the sad story of Captain Eugene LaBarre of the N. Y. Police department. The captain also is conductor of the World Fair and New York police bands. After rehearsing 18 hours with his band for the big Police show at Madison Square Garden, he strolled across the Fair grounds and got into his car, which was parked on the side of the road. Hitched to the windshield-wiper was a police ticket for overparking.

Another traffic offender of the week was Doris Dudley, the blond actress, who was due to go on the air for a "Meet Mr. Meek" broadcast and had only a few minutes to get there. When the cop finally herded her car into the curb he got off his motorcycle, took off his gloves, strolled over and said bluntly "What's your name." She told him. Instantly he brightened.

"Aren't you really going to eat me alive?" asked Doris incredulously.

"Not this time," he replied, "my sister is your cook."

This started out to be a column about Bette Davis but it seems to have trailed off into anecdotes. We're apologizing and skipping right back to Miss Davis pronto, the reason being that she impresses us as being a very determined person. The way she shakes hands is impressive. She really shakes your hand. The way she moves through a crowd is also impressive. When you see her start from one side of a room for the other you know she's going to get there. She isn't a young woman who is easily dissuaded.

An example of this innate confidence in her convictions, which sometimes runs counter to the convictions of her employers, is to be found in a play that she bought a couple of years ago. Miss Davis read the play, liked it, and saw great possibilities in it for herself, either as a stage presentation or a motion picture.

But her studio, Warner Bros., didn't share her enthusiasm. It attempted to dissuade her. Finally the studio agreed to permit its production on Broadway (with some other actress) with this provision: If it clicked as a stage play, Bette could then portray it on the screen.

It didn't click. It opened on Broadway under the title of "The Woman Brown" and proved an abrupt failure. As I recall, it ran about a week. That seemed curtains for the idea as a film, but Bette still thinks otherwise. She thinks it would make a superlative movie, or even a play. And maybe she's right—if she played the leading role. The quality of performance that went into "Of Human Bondage" could put just about anything over.

This eastern vacation, now in its sixth week for Miss Davis, has been one of frequent commuting between her farm at Franconia, N. H., and Broadway. Her escort to all the new shows and the night clubs has been her good friend and ex-husband.

Labor Problem Out 'Til After Election

WASHINGTON—Mr. Roosevelt has definitely buried the embarrassing problem of the national labor relations board in the backyard of the White House until after election. He called in William Green, AFL, chief, and told him where the body lay. It was done in a conference disguised as a Green call to invite the president to make a minor address.

The un-reappointed chairman, J. Warren Madden, has likewise been officially disposed of quietly and smoothly. He has been shipped off to Canada to study labor conditions for the labor department. The president engineered his appointment by Miss Perkins for this study because he personally likes Madden, believes he merely became too deeply involved in the Pressman-Witt-Smith leftwing CIO clique on the board.

NEW LABOR CHAIRMAN

The double disposal was engineered after Mr. Roosevelt had a poll taken secretly in the senate and discovered Madden not only could not be confirmed for re-appointment, but his nomination would never have emerged from the senate labor committee.

Green's polls apparently confirm this prospect, although those of CIO's John Lewis reached the opposite conclusion. Lewis is believed to have told the president emphatically that Madden could be confirmed if sufficient pressure were put behind him. This was the subject of the last mysterious Lewis call at the White House 10 days ago.

Mr. Roosevelt has half promised to the labor leaders (or perhaps "indicated" is a safer word) he will name the 67-year-old University of Chicago economist, Harry Alvin Millis, to the chairmanship after the election.

CANADIAN LABOR

Note: The new Madden job of surveying Canadian labor conditions is not altogether a coal chute leading to the basement. The Canadians, even in the stress of war, have worked out with some ingenuity plans to maintain labor standards during wartime production.

THE BRENNER MEETING

Two little noticed war developments were enough to have sent Hitler and Mussolini to the Brenner pass. The Germans have discovered by experience that the British are ready to employ a new type of mustard gas which can be sprayed as a fog upon water and is doubly deadly in contact with moisture. The existence of this secret British weapon was disclosed at the bottom of this column, October 1. Returning news correspondent, Vincent Sheehan freed from censorship upon his arrival in New York, confirmed that the British had twice used this gas experimentally after invasion alarms.

Unprecedented destruction of British shipping by submarines was a clear indication furthermore that Hitler had been forced to return to this unsuccessful type of warfare. Hitler has few more submarines now than in the early stages of the war when piecemeal destruction of British ships failed to bring any important military conclusions.

F.R., THE PARADOX

Mr. Roosevelt has not only developed the curious habit of not knowing anything about politics during this hardest undercover campaign he has ever led, but he has developed an equally phenomenal blind spot in reading newspapers.

With an almost straight face, he excused himself from comment on an International News Service interview with the Japanese foreign minister promising Japan would declare war on the United States if we entered the European conflict or tried to preserve the status quo in the Pacific, by saying he had never heard of it. George Durno, the well-known INS correspondent, pointed out to him that the interview had been handed to Steve Early in plenty of time for him to see it.

But a few seconds later in the press conference when the president was asked if it were true that Germany and Italy are trying to defeat him in the election, he pulled from his pocket a dispatch from Rome suggesting that possible view and read it to the conference in detail.

At the White House Franklin seldom sees as Mr. Roosevelt says.

The Texas state prison packing plant processed 2,003,044 pounds of meat for prison use in 1939.

The original tailor shop of Andrew Johnson is housed in a brick museum at Greeneville, Tenn.

HOLLYWOOD & SOUNDS

Mr. Orson Welles Gets What He Wants

BY ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — For a gent who has gone so far so fast, Orson Welles knows how to take his time. Lured to the set of "Citizen Kane" by the promise that Orson would demonstrate a dance, I never saw the demonstration because Orson didn't get around to it that day, nor I fear the next.

This was a great personal disappointment, for it would have been a pleasure to witness the boy wonder's struggles in the one act, probably, which is not among his talents.

However, there were compensations. Orson was at work, though not at full productive capacity. He was producing and directing and getting ready to act, but he was not writing. At full steam, under his contract, he should have been doing all four.

The scene is an impromptu banquet in the editorial rooms of Citizen Kane's newspaper, celebrating the sheet's colossal circulation rise. Publisher Kane's associates are gathered 'round a festive, moist and ribald board. But Publisher Kane, minus his frock coat, is behind the camera, and his place is taken by the Welles stand-in, John Huettner.

The time is 1898, and there's talk of war with Spain. At a whistle from Welles (or Huettner) there marches in a surprise, the chorus and Negro band from a musical show down the street. The band comes in first, quick-stepping and pomposity, led by one stout Senegambian with clashing cymbals in a swelter of sweat and gold braid. They're playing "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." Immediately, to cheers, the girls march in—cute tricks with Gibson Girl coiffures, spangled and hippy shorts, and pink stockings-tights.

After five rehearsals of the entertainers' entrance, Orson stalks into the center of the floor. It's a question of timing. Orson asks the bandmen to shed their hot coats and hats and take it easy. Then they rehearse with only the band leader and one of the chorines—four times more. Then it's again — and again — and again — with the whole outfit.

Midway, the last time, Orson comes out with "Stop, stop—the girls are fine but the BAND STINKS ME UP!" So there's more of the same. Orson decides Citizen Kane should break through the marching line of the band to usher in the girls. He picks his spot for the breakthrough, goes through a rehearsal once himself, then before it's finished he calls "I hammed it up. You all watch and tell me what I did wrong."

Then he watches himself, with Stand-in John Huettner doing the break-through. He confers with the sound man and with Gregg Toland, the head lenser, and with himself — and calls for quiet, which there hasn't been much of.

Bailey Fessler, the sound mixer, and one of my favorite cynics on movie matters, assures me there is a lot of sense to it all.

"The results," says Bailey, cynically, "will show the trouble is worthwhile. He gets what he wants."

The percentage of farmers in Texas prisons dropped from 23 in 1912 to 7 in 1939.

The BOOK PARADE

mentally and spiritually older. He has really learned to see the world about him with clearer eyes. "You Can't Go Home Again" opens with George returning to Esther Jack with whom he had such a hectic affair in "The Web and the Rock"; but the returning is no good, they cannot make their love live. George returns to the home of his childhood, Libya Hill, only to flee from it again. He returns to the Germany which he had grown to love during his wanderings on the continent; but it is a changed Germany, and he cannot stay. His novel, which is a mild success, brings him the hatred of Libya Hill; his second novel, highly successful, shows him the emptiness of fame. You can't go home again, George learns—you can't go home again, ever.

But there is no feeling, strangely enough, that all his living has been in vain. No, Thomas Wolfe was not disillusioned. He had a tenacious faith in the validity of living, in the deathless, undiscovered, immortal qualities of America and the American people. What these qualities are Wolfe, unfortunately, didn't or couldn't say. But he believed that they existed. And that is something.

Third Day of Fire Prevention Week Observed in Iowa City

Chief Recalls Old Companies Of Volunteers

They Were Vigilant, Excellent Firemen, Chief Clark Says

One clang... a pause... then three clangs on the city hall bell. The boys of the Alert Hose company swarmed from all sections of the city to the fire station at 204 N. Linn.

The hose and cart team, fully equipped, raced to a northeast section of town, scattering all in their way.

That was in 1893 and the Alert Hose company was one of Iowa City's early firefighting companies.

The scene popped fresh in the mind of Fire Chief J. J. Clark yesterday as the second day of fire prevention week was being observed here.

Far Cry

It was a far cry from the present 10-man company with its 7,800 feet of hose, 1,000-gallon pumper, ladder truck and auxiliary units.

But Chief Clark agreed that the same vigil was kept then as now to prevent fires.

"It is this feeling," the chief added, "which fire prevention week hopes to instill."

The two-story brick structure built in 1893 as headquarters for the Alert Hose company still stands at the same spot on N. Linn, a monument to the old firemen.

At the present time, city road maintenance equipment is housed in it, the chief said.

Total Equipment

The city directory of 1892 proudly lists the total equipment of the old force. It consisted of one hook and ladder truck, three hose carts, one hand engine, two Babcock extinguishers and 2,000 feet of hose.

About 30 volunteers composed the Alert company. Of the city's five crews, it was the only company with a separate station and its own team of horses. Public donations made possible the purchase of the first equipment.

At about the same time, four other companies headquartered at city hall station, all under the command of Fire Chief August Lenz. These crews were not so well outfitted, the chief said, and had to borrow a team from the livery stable whenever a fire broke out. The livery was located at the present site of Engle theater.

Other Companies

The other three companies included Sawyer hose, a hand-drawn hose truck; protection engine and hose, also hand-drawn; and the fire police, whose special duty was to guard against looting and hindering crowds at the fire's scene.

Volunteers in the beginning were not paid, chief Clark said. A city ordinance required all companies in the force to hold an inspection review or participate in at least one parade a year. The banner used in fire department parades as early as 1892 is still a part of parades today.

The first motorized equipment for the local fire department was purchased in 1912 and was supplemented by horse-drawn carts. Until 1929, the Alert Hose company barn was used to house equipment, Clark said.

Originally all alarms were sounded from the city hall bell tower, but later the Iowa City water plant whistle added its blast to the general alarm.

When Mayor H. F. Willenbrock issued his fire prevention week proclamation this week, it marked Fire Chief Clark's 33rd year as head of Iowa City's firefighting forces.

Judge Gaffney Excuses Jury

Members of Johnson county's petit jury reported for duty yesterday morning but Judge James P. Gaffney excused them until Monday.

However, there is a possibility, the judge said, that they will be called for work Thursday.

The case scheduled for yesterday and three others expected to come before the jury this week have been settled out of court, Gaffney said.

A fifth case was postponed because the principal witness for the defendant could not appear.

Old Banner Symbolizes Vigil Against Fire

Fire Chief J. J. Clark proudly holds the red, blue and gold banner and gold-tipped standard, emblem of the old volunteer fire companies here. The banner was used in parades as early as 1872 and is still borne by the local firemen during public celebrations. Wind-tattered and worn by years of use, the cloth has been repaired and strengthened with patches several times. When not in use, the banner is on display in a glass case located in the second-floor hallway, city hall.

Boards for Draft Registration Almost Ready, Officials Say

Barnes, Sulek Pick Personnel to Sign Up Students, Townsmen

Within a few days, both city and university are expected to have their registration boards ready to handle men coming under the draft bill.

Civil Engineers Busy

Vacation Months Meant Hard Work; Seniors Had Summer Jobs

To some people the "good old summertime" spells long days of loafing, but not so for the members of Prof. Charles Looney's civil engineering class. For each one of the senior civils carried on some kind of an engineering job this summer.

Albert Fillenwarth, E4 of Charles City, worked in Des Moines for the Iowa Culvert and Pipe company. He had charge of the design and construction of a new type of drainage pipe.

Wayne Cox, E4 of Iowa City, helped the university engineer with repairs on and about the campus this summer.

Don Davis, E4 of Washington, spent two months as army engineer neering inspector on Missouri river construction projects, and one month as draftsman for the Stanley Engineering company of Muscatine.

Dawsons

John Dawson, E4, and Murray Dawson, E1, both of Iowa City, worked on an REA power plant project being built at Maple Lake, Minn.

Bob Borschel, E4 of Cedar Rapids; Darrel Schumacher, E4 of Sigourney, and William Kirkpatrick, E4 of Spencer, all spent part of the summer in engineering camps. Borschel also was a United States engineer on Missouri river construction projects.

Alex Weremy, E4 of Cedar Rapids, was an assistant chemist in the Cedar Rapids sewage treatment plant, and Bill Schlenk, E4 of Iowa City, worked on the university water plant here.

Justin Meyers

As inspector with the United States Engineering company in Binghamton, N. Y., was Justin Meyers, E4 of Buffalo, N. Y. That is just a beginning down the class roll, and who said engineering was a snap?

LAND OF THE FREE, HOME OF SQUARE MEAL

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Peggy, 13, and Jimmy Parkinson, 12, had just arrived in Tulsa after a voyage from their home at Kimberley, South Africa, with their mother, Mrs. L. N. Parkinson.

"What impresses you the most in the United States?" asked relatives.

"The food!" said the children in unison. "It's wonderful."

Rev. Charles R. Brown, Iowa Alumnus, Speaks at University Vespers Service Sunday Night

Served as Dean Of Yale Divinity School From 1911 to 1928

One of the University of Iowa's most distinguished alumni, Dean Emeritus Charles R. Brown of the Yale divinity school, will speak at the University Vespers Sunday, Oct. 13, at 8 p.m. His subject will be "The Handwriting on the Wall."

The Rev. Brown was called to be dean of the Yale divinity school in 1911 from a pastorate at the First Congregational church of Oakland, Cal.

Until his retirement in 1928, the Rev. Brown developed the Yale school into a commanding position among theological seminaries of America.

The Iowa alumnus has written numerous books, one of which, "My Yesterdays," is of particular interest to the university. One chapter of the autobiography tells of his student days in Iowa City.

Dr. Brown has appeared on the campus almost every year during the past two decades. He was baccalaureate speaker in 1933, the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation, and again in 1938, the 55th anniversary of this event.

In every poll of popular preachers in America, Dr. Brown's name appears. He is outstanding for his direct, terse delivery.

Dr. Brown expects to attend the football game Saturday afternoon and the Iud's Day dinner Saturday evening. The vespers in Macbride hall Sunday will be the concluding feature of the Dad's day celebration.

He will be the guest of Prof. and Mrs. M. Willard Lampe during his visit in Iowa City.

Tiffin Boy Hit By Car While Riding Pony

It was reported yesterday that Junior Deutch, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Deutch, Tiffin, was in fair condition at Mercy hospital here, after having been seriously injured when a car struck him Sunday night. The boy was riding his pony near his home in Tiffin when the accident occurred.

Hospital attendants say that his injuries include a fractured skull, a brain concussion, and cuts and bruises.

Reports state that while crossing highway No. 6, the child and his pony were hit by an automobile driven by Howard B. Moffitt of Vinton. Moffitt, coach at Vinton high school, was formerly captain of the university basketball team.

Frytown Youth Succumbs Here

Donald Woodrow Fry, 22, of Frytown, died yesterday morning in Mercy hospital. He had been ill nine days.

Funeral service will be tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Christian church, Frytown, with the Rev. C. E. Clark, Keota, officiating. Burial will be in Frytown cemetery.

and paid increasing attention to the United States.

In Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia, the commentator Mario Appellius foresaw "something big" forthcoming from the Hitler-Mussolini parity. Since America is "not militarily ready" there is little likelihood she will mix in the European war," he said.

Correspondent Asked to Leave. Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's Il Telegrafo, said the axis may have "other diplomatic steps" on the fire to balk any attempt the United States might take to intervene.

Stefani, the official Italian news agency, announced that Herbert L. Matthews, New York Times correspondent, had been asked to leave Italy because of a dispatch in which Stefani said he had "falsely stated Italy was mixing in the United States presidential election and thus tended to disturb the relations between the two countries."

republican as well as democratic, empowered to call a new session, if the need should arise. He would not reveal the source of the suggestion but said he was willing to support it.

London--

dusk last night London had experienced six air raid alarms. Bursting shells and flaming on-lookers flecked the night sky and roof-top observers repeatedly had to duck for shelter as chunks of jagged metal clanked to earth.

A series of heavy detonations sounded in the central area, and many incendiaries rained down, hitting one bus, starting fires in a big block of apartments and causing the sky to flame red briefly.

Coming in a steady stream, the Germans filtered across the London sky attempting to evade the creeping barrage.

Invisible Battle. The air ministry, describing the days actions, in which 28 German bombers and fighters were said to have been sent crashing, said one invisible battle was fought between Hurricanes and more than 50 Messerschmidts zigzagging nearly six miles above London.

Fourteen British craft were reported missing.

Raids--

utes of being the longest Berlin has experienced, but it was one of the most intense, as measured by the din of artillery fire directed at the raiders.

Planes often were at several points over the city simultaneously while circling fingers of light sought to close around them and projectiles exploded with pink, orange and white brilliance in fancy clusters.

Several times four or more flashes in the air at one time, apparently from the planes, drew concentrated fire from small fast-firing guns on the ground.

Bucharest--

puted German moves might herald a diplomatic offensive against Turkey, non-belligerent ally of Britain and guardian of the strategic Dardanelles connecting the Black sea and Mediterranean.

Rumors were current here that the naval and air base would be built at Mamaia, just above Constanta, under German supervision and that a submarine plant and base at Galati, farther to the north, would be greatly expanded.

The proposed highway ostensibly would connect Germany and the Black sea.

The Rumanian general staff ordered the propaganda ministry to move out of the Rex hotel at Mamaia, a large seaside hostelry.

No reason was announced, but unofficial reports said the hotel would be used by a large staff of German officers who will help in constructing a base there.

Draft--

sums an employer paid to an employee absent in the military service would be deductible from gross income for federal income tax purposes.

The selective service committee also published regulations governing the classification of men according to their liability for military service.

"The rules are unexpectedly short and far broader than people have been led to expect," said Osborne, emphasizing that wide latitude would be left to local draft boards in deciding cases of deferment from service for occupation and dependency reasons.

To Coordinate Efforts. In an effort to obtain uniformity in occupation deferments, national headquarters has designated Major Guiston Morgan, city manager of Austin, Tex., to coordinate the efforts of governmental, educational and business agencies which are issuing selective service information.

The instructions to local boards state that they shall defer a registrant considered "necessary" to his business or industry where he cannot be replaced satisfactorily and where his removal would cause a material loss to the health, safety or interests of the public.

Emphasizing that hard-and-fast rules will not work, the instructions advised the local boards to handle dependency deferments "with sympathetic regard for the registrant and his dependents."

While the law says that no one shall be deferred for dependency reasons unless he has some person actually dependent upon his earned income "for support in a reasonable manner," the regulations read:

"Any reasonable doubts in connection with dependency should be resolved in favor of deferment, and in doubtful cases, the local board should be mindful of injuries which may be expected to result from separating a father from his children or a husband from his wife."

Hickerson, Van Allen to Open Debate Schedule

Loren Hickerson, G of Iowa City, and William Van Allen, A2 of Mt. Pleasant, will represent the University of Iowa in the first intercollegiate debate of the year, Oct. 15. The debate will be held with the University of Missouri at Columbia, Mo.

The Iowa team will defend the affirmative side off the subject: Resolved, that a young person casting a first ballot should vote the republican ticket.

She dropped her steak on the table cloth as she was taking a second helping. It rolled slyly into her lap and from there to the floor.
