F. R. Asks Military Needs Be Given Priority in Nation

Sees Shortage Of Warplane Engines Near

Would Stop Expansion Of Commercial Airlines; Build for Defense

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Officials acted today to intensify domestic defense production while undertaking a fresh study of aid for Britain on the basis of reports brought from London by Lord Lothian, the British ambassador.

Foremost on the production front was a proposal by President Roosevelt that commercial airlines suspend any expansion so that airplane factories might devote themselves to military needs.

The president's proposal followed an announcement by Secretary Stimson that the war department had asked the priorities board of the defense commission to prevent commercial airline expansion.

Major Alfred J. Lyon of the air corps reported that "a very large shortage" of engines similar to those used in commercial ships was in prospect for fighting craft.

Mr. Roosevelt, commenting at his press conference, said that he did not want to invoke legal priorities and expressed confidence that producers would cooperate voluntarily.

Production of Planes
Intensification of airplane production was the chief consideration also at a White House conference which studied the problem of strikes in defense industries.

Congressional committees also expressed concern over the strike situation, highlighted by that in the Vultee Aircraft factory in California which was settled during the day.

Lord Lothian held further conferences at the state department today to acquaint officials with England's present situation but said that he made no specific requests for assistance.

Iowa Geologist Selects Land For Oil Testing

CRESTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—W. G. Ocborn, Iowa geologist who was active in development of the Falls City, Neb., oil field, announced today "the first of a series of carefully selected oil tests" which he is undertaking "with the primary object of making Iowa an oil-producing state."

The test site is two miles northwest of Thurman in northwest Fremont county, where a derrick has been erected.

He said drilling tools and equipment will be on the ground this week, and drilling will start immediately. Leasing was done by F. L. Hawk and operations will be financed by J. A. Johnson of Centralia, Ill., he added.

Soldier Kills Army Officer

Evidently Brooding Over Rank Reduction, Say Investigators

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 26 (AP)—A marine captain was killed and a sergeant major wounded at the marine corps base today by a sergeant who, intelligence officers said, evidently was brooding over the possibility of being reduced in rank.

The intelligence office said a board met recently to consider reducing Sgt. Clayton R. Fore to a corporal because of inefficiency. No official action had been taken but, the office stated, the "probable" recommendation would have favored demotion.

The shooting occurred in a barracks adjacent to a building in which Capt. James Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, has his office.

An intelligence office release said Sergeant Fore, 35, formerly of Oxford, Fla., shot and killed his commanding officer, Capt. George Corson, at 7:45 a.m., then wounded Sgt. Maj. Gilbert L. Owen.

The official announcement said Captain Corson was shot from behind with a service rifle as he went up the stairs in the barracks of company H of the sixth marines. He died a half hour later.

Owen, with a superficial flesh wound, was able to return to duty. Sergeant Ira M. McWilliams of the headquarters company of the second battalion, sixth marines, grappled with Fore, disarmed him and held him until he was confined in the brig.

Marine officers said that after Corson was shot, Fore dashed outside the building and encountered Owen, and fired twice at him. One bullet missed its mark, but the other creased Owen's side.

A native of New York, Captain Corson was graduated from Annapolis in 1932. He arrived in San Diego last Aug. 22 to take command of company H, a machine gun company. His widow, Lelis B. Corson, resides here.

S.U.I. Student Convention Meets Again

Committee Reports On Council Problem; Discussion to Continue

The campus-wide student convention whose deliberations will decide whether a central student council will be organized to represent the campus as a whole met for the second time last night, to continue investigations of the questions of need and justification for such a body on the Iowa campus.

A sub-committee of the group, named to study the results of student government at other campuses across the nation, were instructed last night to obtain further evidence to be presented at the next meeting.

Committee's Report
Betty Addington, A4 of Des Moines, chairman of the committee, reported to the convention last night the preliminary findings of her committee, other members of which are Raymond Jennett, M2 of Maxwell, Associated Students of Medicine; Don Galloway, L3 of Cedar Rapids, Law Commons; Otto Huebner, A4 of Glenwood, Town Men, and Patricia Sleszer, A4 of Freeport, Ill., Currier hall.

The findings, in summary, declared: "There is an obvious absence on the S.U.I. campus of an integrated student body which feels a loyalty for its school—not only for her traditions and history but for her accomplishments of the present and for her progress in the future. But this is the inevitable result when an institution is composed of a number of separate units, well-organized within themselves for the most part, but quite unconscious of the activities, interests, functions and progress of the other component parts of the university."

Social Program
"To the attention of a student council could come general needs of the campus as a whole—the orientation of new students, both graduate and undergraduate, publication of a complete university. He declared in the prepared statement issued at his home soon after that the United States' decision to send Vice President-Elect Henry A. Wallace to the Avila Camacho inauguration Dec. 1 had prompted his own renunciation.

No Political Reasons
Almazan, coming home after three months in the United States, declined to say anything at the airport except: "I have not come for political reasons."

He waved to a crowd of 300 of his followers who surrounded his plane, and then was taken by automobile to his residence in suburban Coyoacan. He was accompanied by the six friends who had flown with him from Texas, and all were escorted by some 50 Mexico City police and secret officers of the ministry of interior.

It was announced that the officers were "to give the general every guarantee of safety," and that a 24-hour guard would be maintained around his home.

Almazan then issued his statement giving up his claim to be the successor of President Lazaro Cardenas.

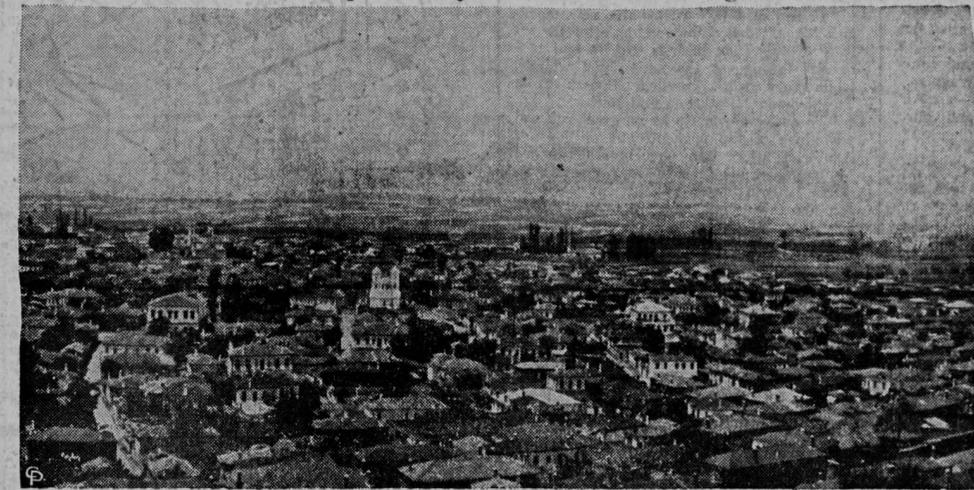

Report Greek Ship Afire in Atlantic Gale Off Cape Race

BOSTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Greek steamer Eugenia Cambanis, believed afire in a gale off Cape Race, Newfoundland, flashed a second distress call at 3:17 p.m. (CST) today declaring she was "in need of immediate assistance."

Tropical radio reported that the steamer had appealed to other ships in the vicinity to "please indicate" their positions and that the British steamer Urla immediately replied that she was "standing by" in the vicinity.

The Eugenia Cambanis gave her position as latitude 45.40 north, longitude 50.20 west, which would place her about 150 miles south-west of Cape Race.

Her first distress call came at 1:32 p.m.

Presidential Candidate Formally Renounces Claims to Office

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26 (AP)—General Juan Andreu Almazan tonight apparently forestalled the possibility of a revolution in Mexico when he formally renounced all claims to "the honored office of president to which," he said, "the people were good enough to elect me last July 7."

Almazan, independent presidential candidate who has consistently refused to concede his defeat by the administration candidate, General Manuel Avila Camacho, arrived here late today by plane from the United States.

He declared in the prepared statement issued at his home soon after that the United States' decision to send Vice President-Elect Henry A. Wallace to the Avila Camacho inauguration Dec. 1 had prompted his own renunciation.

No Political Reasons
Almazan, coming home after three months in the United States, declined to say anything at the airport except: "I have not come for political reasons."

Texas Flood Waters Continue to Rise; Play Havoc With Crops, Livestock

DALLAS, Nov. 26 (AP)—Deep south Texas awaited tonight the blow of more flood waters piled on those which have ravaged it for two days, driving hundreds from their homes, isolating scores, and wreaking inestimable crop and livestock damage.

While the debris-littered panhandle cities of Amarillo, Borger and Pampa thawed slowly, five major Texas rivers—the Brazos, the Colorado, the San Jacinto, the Sabine and the Trinity—threatened to fan over still more lush countryside.

Only the Guadalupe among the larger south Texas rivers showed any signs of settling down.

Arch Glover was reported drowned near Centerville while trying to save 60 head of cattle. He was believed to be the only flood victim in the state.

Other persons reported lost had been rescued or accounted for.

Mrs. Mary Chamberlain, 20, was rescued from a tree in Bear Bayou near Goose creek after having been marooned several hours.

An indication of the tremendous loss of cattle in Harris (Houston) county was given by three ranch-

Fascist High Command Reports Successes Against Greek Troops

ROME, Nov. 26 (AP)—Well-informed sources in Rome said today Nazi Germany was leaving the fight against Greece entirely up to Mussolini's Italian legions, with no intention of intervening there to help her southern axis partner.

The same sources also scouted rumors here that the nazis were preparing to take military action against Turkey.

The reich is only attempting through diplomatic activity to keep Turkey from entering the war on the side of her neighbor, Greece, an informant said.

As evidence, he said, there is no German military movement in the Balkans and only a few Nazi troops are in Rumania and none in Bulgaria, (neutral Balkan sources have estimated there are 1,250,000 German soldiers in Rumania.)

Although Bulgaria has been expected to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance, this source said its adherence to the pact was out of question because Turkey might consider such action grounds for entering the war on the side of Britain.

Spain likewise is staying out of the alliance, this source said, for fear of compromising her position.

Fascists Fight Fiercely Trying to Hold Last Major 'Invasion' Base

ATHENS, Nov. 26 (AP)—Bayonet-thrusting Greeks were declared today to have scattered fresh Italian troops—"a choice regiment of Romans," the Greeks called them—thrown into action in a desperate attempt to bolster the center of the sagging Albanian battle line.

There was no stopping their forces here or anywhere else along the rambling mountainous front, the Greeks reported.

In the north, they said, Greek fighters pushed steadily beyond Pogradetz, Italian stronghold 30 miles inside Albania, and in the south they engaged tattered Italians battling fiercely to hold Argirocastro, the second and last major fascist "invasion" base, and keep open their path to the Adriatic sea.

Planes Captured
The Greek high command's communique tonight said that in the Koritza area six abandoned Italian airplanes, "among other material," had fallen to the Greeks.

A government spokesman declared that not only had Italian reinforcements failed to halt the Greek advance but that these reinforcements were being pushed back in disorder despite their "desperate effort."

"The broken morale of the other Italians," he added, "has been imported to these troops. They have been overthrown and are retreating."

The fleeing troops, the spokesman declared, were abandoning nearly all their vehicles. He added that on the bank of a lake near Koritza the Italians had buried "important quantities" of munitions and other materials which had been dug up by the Greeks.

He confirmed reports that Greek forces had been landed on the Albanian coast opposite Corfu and denied Italian claims that they were annihilated or captured.

Communications Cut
(Authoritative military circles in London reported some Greek units had got beyond the Greek town of Philatates, near the Albanian border on the coast, and others, landed from ships, had severed Italian communications from the rear. The Greeks themselves have reported the capture of Konispolis, Albanian town just north of Philatates.

British Hold Is Strong in Near East

By EDWARD KENNEDY
CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 26 (AP)—British army sources say Britain's position in the near east appears stronger today than at any time since Italy entered the war June 10.

They describe the Italian situation thus: One army in retreat in Albania, a second stalemated in the western Egyptian desert, a third cut off from supplies in Ethiopia.

But situations change quickly and the British say they are alert to meet any new development which might threaten their hold on the vital Mediterranean.

Two possible developments stand out:

Possibilities
Italy may throw heavy reinforcements into Albania in a desperate attempt to regain lost prestige and overwhelm the Greeks or:

Hitler, moving to the aid of his southern partner, may crash through the Balkans, bringing the reich's army and air force to Mediterranean shores.

British officers say now that if Mussolini had attacked Egypt with his Italian legions when he entered the war just as France collapsed, the result probably would have been disastrous for the British here.

The government was too occupied preparing for the expected invasion of England to give much attention to the near east and the mainstay of the allied defense here, Generalissimo Maxime Weyand's French army, was out of the running.

In the British view, here's how the situation has changed since then:

1. Home pressure on England has been relieved and convoy after convoy has poured reinforcements in men and materials into the near east, creating a powerful military machine here.

2. Strong fortifications have been thrown up on the western desert, forming a line which Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani is showing no disposition to attack.

3. The British fleet has had the better of Italian navy in several encounters, destroying a considerable part of it. The RAF also has made inroads on Italian bases while Italian bombing of Egypt and the Suez canal region has been comparatively ineffective.

4. Italy's attack on Greece has given Britain a new ally, a valuable base in Crete, and the opportunity to use Greece for air attacks on southern Italy and Albania.

Defense of Egypt
Plans for defending Egypt from a Libyan invasion, have for years been to halt the Italians at a strategic line, drawing them from their bases with the disadvantages such a separation entails.

For the present the British are adhering to this plan, but as time goes on without the Italians risking an offensive it is not improbable that the British desert forces will carry the battle to them.

A Great Man

The Creator of Mickey Mouse Is One of Our Foremost Teachers of Culture

Greater Defense for Britain

It takes so many kinds of people to make a world, each kind bent upon achieving the greatest possible perfection in the performance of a human task—the building of a motor car, the painting of a canvass, the running, kicking and passing of a triple-threat back, the destruction of a city. . . . Those who achieve perfection, for themselves alone, are great figures—for themselves alone. But those who create a perfection which is felt by a nation or the world are great figures in terms of that nation or the world.

We have had our Shakespeares and Lincolns, our Shakespeares and our Wagners. We've had our Judas Iscariots, too—our Al Capones, our Benedict Arnolds and our Adolf Hitlers.

Greatness of a Different Sort

They are great figures, too—great in terms of nations and the world. But they are great figures for a different reason than are Washington or Shakespeare. They worked, not for the common joy and the common culture, but for the common destruction of ideals.

It seems these workers for the good and evil are to be always in conflict in our world. And in days like these, when the evil forces hold an apparent whiphand over the lives of men, the common people lose courage and turn pessimistic, and say, "The battle will be lost."

They forget that when the forces of destruction hold sway, the flames of those who struggle endlessly for the right, for the liberation of men's bodies, minds and souls, are but shadowed, not extinguished from the world.

The Unsung Greats—

So it is today.

Many of the world's greatest men and women who were workers for the common good lived to die unsung. It isn't easy to see qualities of greatness, nor is it simple to watch the effect of one man's efforts upon the culture of a nation. We can't understand what we cannot see.

And many of the great men of today will die in oblivion for the same reason. But our lack of understanding will not detract from their greatness, which is itself an abstract thing and, though we'll never know just how great has been their contributions to the good, we can doff our hats to them because they struggled, more than the rest of us, for a common and lasting appreciation of the finest things of life.

Great Men of Today

When we pick our great Americans of today, we'll have to look into more fields than just the standard ones—politics, statesmanship, science, philosophy and religion. Perhaps in other, more obscure fields, we'll find heroes who have done far more for the nation as a whole and whose contributions, strangely enough, have been almost tangible in their reality.

There is at work today, in an expanding series of studios in Hollywood, a man who is regarded the nation over as a great artist, a great scientist and a great entertainer.

He is a creator, too—of humor, pathos and great beauty. He has given personalities to the world, far more real and human than a good many real, human personalities we know.

Walt Disney—a Great Man

He is Walt Disney who, with only pen and ink, imagination and endless labor, has given the world much incomparable entertainment, beauty and philosophy.

Let us hope that he has not yet reached the peak of his genius, born of a human little mouse named Mickey and grown to greater proportions in such characters as a dwarf called Dopey and a cricket named Jiminy.

Mickey, Dopey and Jiminy were great characters beyond themselves. They teach humanity in its most understandable form by living it before our eyes. They appear in plots and locales that tell stories with morals, and the greatness of Disney has made their surroundings, like their imaginary lives, beautiful.

Science Adapted to Culture

This man capitalized upon science and adapted it to culture. He started out with simple art forms. The advent of talking pictures gave him sound with which to work. The arrival of perfected technicolor processes added color to the ingredients in his crucible.

He has mixed them up, and given us cartoons, now grown to feature length, with the accent upon perfection, and upon the common good. Possessed of a medium which reaches a tremendous cross-section of the peoples of the world, he has used his talents through that medium for the common good.

We think the world is a little better because we've had Mickey to laugh at and Jiminy Cricket to philosophize for us.

Disney's Greatest Work

But all of this is just the prelude to greatness.

What promises to be Disney's greatest work has just been released to the nation. With it, he may lay claim at some future day to being one of the great men of our times.

Because with his new technicolor "Fantasia," Disney has translated some of the world's greatest music into visible form, adapting it to rhythm, optical motion and living color.

He has, in short, turned Beethoven's "Sixth Symphony" into something the common man can understand and appreciate because he can see it. He has made Franz Schubert's "Ave Maria" a thing of total beauty to the senses. It has appealed to our senses until now through our ears alone.

To such a work as Dukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice" he has added a story which unfolds before our eyes as the crashing music plays upon our auditory nerves.

Looking at Great Music

Disney has succeeded in making great music something to look at, not just something to hear alone. He has given it visual color to add to audible color, visual rhythm and motion as a part of audible rhythm and motion.

Of course, these things are subject to Disney's interpretation. But who can do a better job?

"Fantasia" opens the door to a great new approach to culture and common appreciation of art which is world wide.

"It is plausible," writes the new magazine Stage, "that a few months after the release of this film, barbers, bakers and taxi drivers throughout the nation will whistle, while they work, random themes from Tchaikowsky, Beethoven and Bach.

"This may appear to be no great cultural advantage of the moment, but millions of Americans whose ears have been debauched by pseudo-classic twaddle may find themselves listening with pleasure to suddenly familiar themes played by a symphony orchestra.

"It may be for a little while that many of these newcomers to beauty will suspect Schubert and Moussorgsky of plagiarism; but, better a momentary misunderstanding than a permanent state of bad taste."

'Fantasia' a Masterpiece

Why does "Fantasia" promise to be a masterpiece? First, because it's Disney again. Next, because the music is done by the Philadelphia symphony orchestra under the baton of Leopold Stokowski.

We can expect the Philadelphia symphony and Mr. Stokowski to appear in a local theater eventually, and on the program will be Tchaikowsky's "Nutteracker Suite," Dukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice," Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," Beethoven's "Pastorale Symphony," Moussorgsky's "Night on Bare Mountain," Franz Schubert's "Ave Maria," Bach's "Tocatta and Fugue in D Minor" and Debussy's "Clair de Lune."

Upturn in Culture

We'll not only hear that concert, played by one of the world's great symphonies. We'll see it as well, as only the great Walt Disney could present it.

We may be wrong, but we believe world culture is due for a sudden upturn when a Philadelphia symphony concert can be heard and seen for something like 50 cents at your local theater!

In Defense of Civilians

The defense of Britain goes far beyond the anti-aircraft defenses, the huge bombers and pursuit planes whose pilots seek to knock hostile airmen from the sky.

Looking forward to the day when Germany will seek to land troops on British soil, to seize British cities and British homes, a growing group of Americans has formed a "committee for defense of British homes."

The organization has as its objective the collection of small arms for the use of British civilians in defense of their lives and property in event of an invasion.

"No less important than the defense of British homes is the defense of Great Britain's old schools," writes C. Stuydam Cutting, chairman, "which are homes to many of the nation's future leaders."

The committee is also soliciting arms designated for these schools and has already received a contribution of rifles from the University of Pennsylvania, consigned to Eton college.

"Because of the desperate need for small arms for the defense of British homes and schools," the committee wrote to the University of Iowa rifle team, "we urgently ask your cooperation in posting notices or otherwise informing the members of the rifle team so that those who have weapons to spare and who may wish to take this opportunity to give direct aid to the British cause may know of the efforts of the committee in behalf of the civilians of Great Britain."

All of us are familiar with the growing list of organizations who seek to aid England. This is the latest to be noted among such groups who are throwing every available resource into the struggle to save Britain.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

The Current Need For British Morale

WASHINGTON—A fresh inside disclosure of the British position has been presented to certain sympathetic financial leaders in New York (and presumably later to administration officials here) by a British spokesman just returned from London.

His basic story is that a section of his people need a spiritual bolstering right now, a boost of American aid to thwart an insidious peace trend. . . . morale of the average Briton is perhaps higher than at any time since the war began, but there are many influential persons of prominence who would welcome a compromise peace. . . . their concern about the future has been whetted by the devastation of recent German air attacks on British cities. They see only the prospect of ever-expanding ruin ahead for the next two years. . . . to bolster their backbone, a promise of credits from the United States is needed at once, although the official figures of British holdings in this country (upwards of $4,000,000,000) show the credits themselves are not needed. . . . something strong like that must be done. . . . Thus runs the gist of his story.

HITLER HEARD IT, TOO—

The same surprising account seems also to have reached Hitler. His officially conducted press brought a story out of occupied Paris "by way of Berlin" Sunday suggesting a basis for peace was being "discussed" (by whom was not disclosed.) An easy peace under which Britain might have to surrender only Gibraltar and a few other odds and ends of the empire was dangled as bait.

It is quite possible the same disturbing British internal situation also spurred the war department here to announce the forthcoming transfer of 46 American bombers and flying fortresses to the British. It also explains the otherwise unexplainable bestirings of William Allen White and committee for "something more" to aid Britain when Britain is already getting all we have.

TARGETS FOR NAZIS—

The British spokesman imparted no hope to his confidants that the American flying fortresses will do the British much good—if any. How that deal came up, in view of his position, cannot be explained now. The British must have requested the ships, else they would not have been promised. But certainly the opinion is widespread not only in British circles but inside our own defense services that those ships will be meat for the Germans.

True, their long cruising radius should enable them to make the long trip to Berlin with more bombs than any British ship can now carry. But their cumbersome structure will make them easy targets for fast pursuit ships. The British can send no pursuits along to protect them on such a long journey. What the British need are light fast bombers capable of defense against heavy attack by pursuit ships.

The flying fortress type was designed for the American defense problem of long flights to Caribbean, Central and South American shores for raids upon enemy efforts to establish bases. On such ventures they would not expect to meet much enemy aircraft resistance.

As one American officer expressed it, upon hearing that American observers might accompany the fortresses on their first attacks upon Germany:

"That's one job I don't want."

COTTON FOR BRITAIN—

A windfall of 60,000 bales of cotton is being quietly given the British free in the old cotton-rubber swap. The original bargain provided that the British were to receive the advantage of any subsidy which this government put into effect on cotton. A subsidy was authorized shortly after the deal was consummated in 1938. While the British have not yet filed formal application for the extra dividend, it will be granted as soon as they apply.

We have delivered 584,320 bales of the 600,000 bales due under the deal (delivery as of Nov. 16.) The British then had furnished us 87,343 tons of rubber (88,000 due.) The transaction therefore is successful, although a costly one for us.

Feudin'

A feud has broken out in Washington over the respective methods of uncovering foreign agents and saboteurs used by the Dies committee and by the department of justice. Congressman Martin L. Dies, believing in voluminous publicity to expose such agents, accused the F. B. I. of using the same tactics as those of nations which have been conquered by Germany. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, retorted that the F. B. I. is regarded as perhaps the best investigative agency in the world, that it already knows about everyone exposed by Dies and that the congressional committee simply makes the G-men's work harder.

A Man ABOUT MANHATTAN

Broadway's Hits Are All Comedy

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—With the 1940-41 theatrical season heading into the year-end holiday season, there isn't a single, solitary serious drama on Broadway worth its salt. All the hits are musicals and comedies. The sole drama even to come close to justifying itself is "Johnny Belinda," and this gets by only because of a wonderful performance by Helen Craig. She plays the part of a girl mute whose skill at reading lines in pantomime has won the respect of critics and the public.

Aside from this we have only disappointments and dimmed hopes. This time last year Broadway had at least three dramas of a serious nature that were corkers. Veteran Broadway observers are unable to remember any season during the last ten years when there was such a lopsided balance as this year.

In previous seasons it was the other way round. Good plays were the rule, comedies and musicals the exception. These were the days of the "Strange Interlude," the "Ethan Frome," the "Dodsworths." These were the days of "The Old Maid" and "Idiot's Delight," of "Rain" and "The Letter," of "The Children's Hour" and "Dead End." We had "Journeys End," "Men in White" and "Russet Mantle." We had "Good By Again," "Biography" and "End of Summer."

To think of Broadway now in terms of "Dinner at Eight" or "Tonight at Eight-Thirty" is to ask for a bone that isn't there. For various reasons the men who can write this kind of fare are away. Into their places, for the moment at least, have slipped the gag and tune boys, the book-writers and the score-composers. It may be the war. It may be that people want to laugh. In any case, the only hits in New York are the three De Sylva musicals and a few comedies, plus the Ed Wynn and Al Jolson revues, and plus also the perennial "Helzapoppin'."

The successful comedies include "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Life With Father," "George Washington Slept Here," and a revival of "Charley's Aunt."

There are, in addition, perhaps a dozen others but they are for the most part without any of the winning and comforting merit that makes you glad you went to the theater.

Paul Whitehead has begun a leisurely automobile trip to Texas, where he will join his wife for his first vacation in 20 years. . . . One of the curious mysteries remaining to be solved about the Lindbergh kidnaping case is the whereabouts of the ransom money. . . . You'll recall $50,000 was handed over to the abductors. . . . Only about $20,000 of this money ever has been recovered.

"I can exercise authority over my own child as far as the movies are concerned," the mother wrote. "I find it very easy to keep him home from pictures, because I don't share my authority with the film exhibitor. I do share it, however, with the school. For this part the refreshments are to be hot dogs, spaghetti, cake, pie, salads, ice cream. What of the mother who is trying to train her child to eat sensibly and healthfully, and must let him see other children of his own age (six) eating PIE—with the tacit approval of the PTA and the school?"

White-haired, wrinkle-faced, little Louis F. Roth is a man who doesn't look his job. He looks like anything but a man who would be in charge of the cats and such at a lion farm. Louis and his pets are working now in "The Wagons Roll at Night," in which Eddie Albert plays a lion tamer with Humphrey Bogart and Sylvia Sydney.

Louis says you mustn't ever pet a lion, even the gentlest-looking of 'em. They just don't like it. He admits exceptions, like Jackie, the famous old-liner so often used in movies. One day when Jackie was working in a movie, Buster Crabbe and a press agent tied a string around his neck and led him into the studio cafe. Louis says not a soul moved out when Jackie moved in, sat down at a table, and was fed ice cream from a saucer.

"I know lions all right," says Louis. "But darned if I can ever figure these movie people out. Sometimes I think they're crazy. Imagine taking a lion into a cafe crowded with people. And imagine 'em looking up from what they're eating and saying, 'My, lookee there. A lion. Ain't he cute?'"

A Significant Story Passes Through English Censorship

Correspondent Reveals Seriousness of Great Britain's Condition

(The following revealing dispatch on the seriousness of England's condition is from Drew Middleton, Associated Press correspondent who was with the British expeditionary force in France and who has spent much time with all arms of the British war machine. It is significant because it passed through a censorship which heretofore has frowned on such statements. (It may mean that the British have changed their attitude and believe that a dark picture of their danger would arouse more sympathy in the United States than the confident optimism displayed so far by the government.)

(Drew Middleton is a native of New York City and a graduate of Syracuse university.)

By DREW MIDDLETON
LONDON, Nov. 26 — Britons, painfully aware of their inability to stop the Luftwaffe's night raiders and restive under German domination of the war, more and more are looking to the United States for all-important supplies to wrest the initiative from the Nazis.

The British are confident they have the men, but it is arms, planes, tanks and more ships that they need urgently and must have to battle the axis upon equal terms.

Even the most optimistic officials here in the "front line" admit there is much to be done in preparation before Britain can take the offensive. At first they said an offensive could be expected in 1941; now they talk of 1943 and 1944.

Rules the Waves
Britannia still rules the waves, but needs more American help to do it. A considerable part of recent staggering shipping losses can be traced to deficiencies in escort ships.

Unless Britain can get more United States destroyers to go with the 50 already obtained, shipping losses likely will continue at a high level. There likewise is the need for merchant ships and this need will grow as spring brings an increase in U-boat activity.

Only today Minister of Shipping Ronald H. Cross made the ominous admission that Britain is losing ships faster than she can replace them.

While Britain's shipyards are working at capacity, part of the facilities must be devoted to naval construction and repairs.

"We are therefore anxious," he said, "to get more ships built overseas and we are looking primarily to the shipyards of the United States, since by themselves the resources of the Empire are not enough."

The press is demanding a speed-up of the still-faltering industries and the use of the unemployed, whose numbers are rising despite the war effort.

Partly Blinded
Britains have been blinded partly by patriotism, partly by propaganda and their censorship often is guilty of making a reverse look like a victory because the British can and are "taking it."

Complacency, distortion and reluctance to admit the truth are as dangerous to the British cause as nightly bombings.

Indeed, these are dark hours for Britain — the darkest since the "miracle of Dunkerque" when the British army escaped from the Nazi trap and left the Germans looking longingly at the white cliffs of Dover, only 22 miles away.

The realization is growing that this winter will be the severest test since those black days back in May.

Confronted with this situation, the government is striving to avoid false optimism, but it still is reluctant to admit or deny German claims of bomb damage or anything at all about military equipment or war industries.

The Germans are using new strategy of singling out provincial towns for blitz blows and Britons outside London blame propaganda to the effect that London is unhurt for the shift to the hinterland, which is not so well protected.

People Worried
The people are worried because the Germans appear to hold the initiative in diplomacy as well as in the military field.

The cry for the scalp of Lord Halifax as foreign secretary is raised almost daily in the press. Here is a sample: "Our diplomatic position has deteriorated ever since

Sen. George Takes Duties On Committee

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON
WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Senator Walter F. George, whose motto has been "The American People Do Not Want War," accepted today a key role in the turbulent field of international affairs.

The 62-year-old Georgia democrat started work as the new chairman of the powerful senate committee on foreign affairs through the hands of which go treaties and other pacts coming up for senate ratification. He was elevated to the post to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Senator Pittman (D-Ind.).

George told an interviewer that "I want to talk with Cordell Hull before I say anything."

Secretary of State Hull and George have been friends for many years and this has been reflected in George's support for most of the administration's foreign program, even in those times when he was critical of many domestic policies.

President Roosevelt journeyed to Georgia during the 1938 congressional elections to tell voters that the senator was a "died in the wool conservative" who should be defeated for re-election.

"I'm a liberal within limitations of the constitution," George said in reply to the presidential attack. "I'm sure the people of Georgia want a voice in the senate, not an echo." He was re-elected to the place he has held since 1922. Since that clash, George has criticized a few administration proposals and supported many others. Teaming with Senator Gillette (D-Ia) he blocked action on revision of neutrality legislation late in 1939, but supported these changes later in 1940.

As to the immediate future, the senator said there was little chance for congressional action "upon any controversial legislation" during the remaining days of the present congressional session.

AFL Convention Adopts Resolution Condemning 'Labor Racketeering'

By JAMES MARLOW
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor adopted today a resolution condemning racketeering in labor unions and authorized its executive council to act should union evade their "responsibilities."

There was nothing in the resolution, adopted without a protesting vote, to indicate what action the council could take. With convention approval, the council yesterday stripped itself of the power to suspend a single union but said it should be given power instead to suspend two or more unions engaged in a "dual movement."

AFL's national and international unions were advised by the resolution to adopt necessary legislation for adequate disciplinary action against any of their officers or members "who may have been found guilty of betraying the trust reposed in them."

Adoption of the resolution came after President William Green challenged any one to point out an instance of gangsterism in the AFL.

The resolution, termed a "compromise" by David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, climaxed the stormiest issue confronting the convention but brought forth no comment except Green's when the vote was cast.

Dubinsky introduced at the start of the convention a week ago a resolution to stop labor racketeering. He urged the AFL to oust any union officer convicted of "any offense involving moral turpitude."

The executive council at the same time suggested in its annual report that the various unions use diligence in "preventing exploiters and gangsters from exercising control over their administrative bodies."

As adopted, the racketeering measure was a revised version of the council's report that contained no mention of the phrase "moral turpitude."

"That whenever the executive council has valid reason to believe that a trade union official is guilty of such offense and the national or international union in question seemingly evades its responsibility, the executive council shall be authorized to apply general public Thursday, Dec. 5. These tickets will be distributed one to a person; two tickets to individuals who are married.

Army Rookies Told to Salute Will Be Familiar With Trainees During Year, Say Veteran Officers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—When in doubt, salute.

That's the advice of veteran army officers to the rookie wondering when he should make this gesture of respect and courtesy, and to whom it should be directed.

The salute, given under many circumstances by raising the hand to the hat brim, is one of countless customs with which selective service trainees will have to become familiar during their year of military learning.

Many different stories are told as to how this particular custom originated. One is that it developed among Romans who required subordinates coming into their presence to raise the hand and show that it did not conceal a dagger.

Reciprocity
Generally speaking, officers and men are required to salute each other whenever they meet or pass out-of-doors or in in roofed structures used for troop drills. The subordinate salutes first, but the officer has an equal obligation for sincere and conscientious effort to bring about a fair and honorable adjustment of differences within the labor movement itself.

"It calls for cooperations by labor with employers and with all responsible groups to avoid delay and interruptions—to increase production and efficiency and to preserve and promote human welfare and labor standards at the same time in the defense program which we as a nation have undertaken."

1940 Campaign Costs Subject To Investigation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The justice department today announced a grand jury investigation of expenditures of all national political parties in the 1940 presidential campaign.

Attorney General Jackson said in a statement that party officials would be ordered to bring their records before a special grand jury which will be convened in Washington, Dec. 3. He added:

"If the law has been violated, there should be prosecutions; if there have been evasions, the loopholes should be tightened up."

The jury will hear testimony in support of charges that sums in excess of those prescribed by the Hatch act were spent in the campaign.

Maurice M. Milligan will direct the inquiry with what the department termed "utmost latitude." Milligan is a special assistant to the attorney general named to investigate alleged election irregularities. As a United States attorney in Kansas City he once investigated election frauds in that city.

Evidence concerning election expenditures from all parts of the country will be presented to the jury. Investigation of other types of election complaints, such as fraud and coercion, already is being presented to federal grand juries in Chicago, Philadelphia, Newark, N. J. and Wilmington, Del.

The Hatch act put a limit of $3,000,000 on expenditures by a political committee and a maximum of $5,000 on contributions by individuals.

Committees Report
Up to November 4, the democratic national committee reported to congress that it had received contributions totaling $1,917,213 and had spent $1,848,727. The republican national committee reported receipts of $2,993,991 and expenditures of $2,313,400.

Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) of the senate campaign expenditures committee has expressed the opinion that both major parties spent far in excess of the $3,000,000 limit, but has made no specific charge of violation or evasion.

Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the democratic national committee, said some time ago that he believed that supporters of the two major candidates had spent more than the statutory limit for a national committee, but that the democratic committee itself had stayed within the limit. Republicans denied that their expenditures might have exceeded $3,000,000.

Most Girls Don't Expect Much!

Just Be Smooth, Handsome, Clever, Wealthy, Ambitious, Real 'Nice'

Cheer up, boys, take a new outlook on life. University of Iowa women say you don't have to be the handsome type to be their most eligible bachelor.

They demand several other requisites but not one put a great profile first, when they were asked what the most eligible bachelor, who will be presented Friday evening at the Spinster's Spree, should be like.

Dorothy Ward, A4 of Iowa City, began by saying, "It seems to me he should be definitely unattached if he's to be an eligible bachelor." Then she added, "But he's got to have loads of personality, a sense of humor, and oh yes, he needn't be good looking. I'm a firm believer that looks are only skin deep."

Maybe they don't demand good looks but several asked that he be "smooth." Adele Ronan, A4 of Albany, N. Y., said her eligible bachelor needn't be handsome, but he should be smooth, and she concluded, "He definitely must not be conceited."

"That he be smooth in more ways than from the social standpoint was indicated by Martha Lois Koch, A4 of Evansville, Ind., who gaily replied, "Oh, he should be tall and dark with a cosmopolitan air, should dress with an eye to Esquire, and he should be smooth mentally too."

June Hyland, A4 of Traer, was another coed who puts personality first in evaluating her eligible bachelor. "I think he should be well known on the campus both socially, and from an activities standpoint," she said.

By AGNES AGNEW

Several requisites were stated by Jane Nugent, A3 of Oak Park, Ill., who blithely replied, "Oh girls don't expect too much, just that he be smooth, a brilliant conversationalist, handsome, clever, distinguished looking, wealthy, ambitious and real nice."

The point of character was introduced by Georgia Gaddis, A4 of Ft. Madison, who answered that she thought of "character" first. "I like to know there's more there than just surface," she stated.

Fern Newcomer, A4 of Iowa City, is another coed who set forth quite a list of qualities to live up to. "He should have broad shoulders, be slender, have blond curly hair, a deep coat of tea, beautiful teeth, a really good line, and," she concluded, "I guess that's about all you can expect of one man."

When asked, Fern said she guessed she did have a life guard in mind.

Nice Smile Betty Gilliland, J4 of Des Moines, after a moment's thought said the eligible bachelor needn't be too handsome, but that he must have a nice smile and expressive eyes. "A little bit taller of course," she added, "Although I like them smart I don't care for the smarty type."

Personality again came first for Anna Lou Mucky, A1 of Nodaway, who refused to give any preference as to blond or brunette because, she had decided looks weren't especially important. "Intelligence and a good social presence make a lot of difference," she stated.

Handsome, smooth, intelligent, sun tanned, or what have you, Helen Berlau, A4 of Newton, quite eloquently summed it all up with her remark. "A woman never forgets the man who remembers."

So there you are boys, all you have to do is live up to it.

Candidates for the most eligible bachelor are Mike Enich, A4 of Boone; James Nelson, A4 of Anita; Ed Hoag, A3 of Freeport, Ill.; Jim Brownell, A3 of Cedar Rapids; John Maher, C3 of Springfield, Ill.; John Bangs, A3 of Fairfield, Ill.; Bill Staus, A2 of Creston; Jim Youel, E2 of Ft. Madison; Bill Green, C3 of Newton; Martin O'Connor, A3 of Des Moines; Bob Johann, A2 of Des Moines; Clifford White, A2 of Albion; Clark Kunej, G of Iowa City.

Jim Robertson, A3 of Waterloo; Bob McClure, C4 of Des Moines; Bob O'Meara, C4 of Cedar Rapids; Dick Witt, C4 of Shell Rock; Gordon Cobbs, C3 of Dubuque; Ross Swain, A2 of Springfield, Ill.; John Rhodes, M4 of Ft. Dodge; Joe Behrhard, A4 of Cedar Rapids; Ray Murphy, A4 of Great Neck, N. Y.; Milton Kuhl, A3 of Ida Grove, and Wendle Kerr, P4 of Humboldt.

Richard Markle, A1 of Charles City, spent the week end at the home of his parents.

Dinner guests Sunday of Ernest Bush, C3 of Cedar Rapids, and David Steele, A1 of Charles City were Shirley Rollin, A1 of Des Moines and Barbara Henry of Charles City.

S.U.I. Orchestra Commemorates Sibelius Anniversary Tonight

Plays Music Of Finland's Great Master

Prof. P. G. Clapp Will Conduct Second Concert in Series

The 75th anniversary of Jan Sibelius, great Finnish composer, will be commemorated tonight when the University of Iowa symphony orchestra, conducted by Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp, presents the famous Finn's "Symphony No. 2 in D major."

Sibelius was born Dec. 8, 1865. When last heard from, he was alive and well in his native land. Even the recent Russian invasion failed to dislodge the hardy composer from the country upon which he has bestowed his musical blessing.

Though Sibelius published another symphony before his second, the "No. 2" was presented first in many countries and is probably the best known of his longer works. Among his shorter compositions, "Finlandia" and "Valse Triste" are more familiar. A world-wide interest in the fate of Finland during the recent crisis has led to a growing following for Sibelius and his music.

Service
Pensioned by the Finnish government in recognition of the service he has performed for his country, Sibelius has continued to be brilliantly productive, even during his old age.

Second spot on the program will be taken by Camille Saint-Saens' "Carnival of Animals." Written in 1886, and played only privately before Saint-Saens' death, the "Carnival" was always enthusiastically received by the small audiences. Upon his death, the Frenchman left instructions for its publication, and it has been delighting listeners ever since it was printed in 1922.

Considered one of the finest examples of musical satire, the "Carnival" pokes fun at the players themselves by representing the musicians as animals.

Peter Tschaiikowsky's "Theme and Variations from Suite No. 3" will conclude the program. The moody Russian's more serious work is probably best known in this country.

Choosing a simple theme as the basis for his efforts, Tschaiikowsky whips the gentle phrase into a startling series of sparkling variations. Turning all its facets to the light of the audience, the theme appears as a chorale, waltz, chant and many other forms of musical composition.

Hygienic Lab Rushes Work

Draftees' Blood Tests Checked With Speed Since Rearrangement

The state hygienic laboratory is now prepared to operate, if need be, on a war-time footing. Dr. M. E. Barnes, director of the laboratory, has revealed.

This development resulted from a request issued to Dr. W. L. Biering, state commissioner of health, by the United States public health service to the effect that the state hygienic laboratory be prepared to examine all serologic specimens submitted by the selective service boards in Iowa.

Funds
For this purpose additional budget funds were forwarded by the state department of health, which received the allotment from the United States public health service as part of the national defense program. The state executive committee also appropriated $3,000.

Completed arrangements, a rearrangement of various technical laboratories, will take care of mobilization and military services in Iowa concerned with the handling of blood tests of new enlistees and draftees, officials declared.

Facilities
Present facilities will enable the laboratory to run through 2,000 blood tests a day if necessary. Two years ago 500 tests were considered a full day's work, Dr. Barnes said.

Primary purpose of the blood tests is for syphilis detection. Blood specimens of army recruits are sent in daily from throughout the state. The new set-up has been streamlined to such an extent that specimens, which prove to be negative, can be received, tested and returned to the draft boards within a single day.

Tests
Each specimen upon arrival at the laboratory is subjected to two

Iowa Cagers To Open Tough Schedule Dec. 7

Francis Schmidt to Be Fired, Ohio State Journal Asserts

Mentor Terms Rumor 'Cock and Bull Story'; Other Officials Agree

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Ohio State Journal asserted tonight that Football Coach Francis A. Schmidt would not be re-employed at Ohio State university, but Schmidt termed it a "cock and bull story."

University officials stated the report was without foundation. The Journal quoted an "unimpeachable source."

Schmidt, attending an alumni banquet in Cleveland, declined further comment.

Athletic Director L. W. St. John asserted there "is no foundation whatsoever for the story." J. L. Morrill, chairman of the athletic board and vice-president of Ohio State, remarked that "positively no action of any kind has been taken."

Herbert S. Atkinson, chairman of the university board of trustees and the trustees' representative of the 10-member athletic board, said he had not been "consulted" and knew of nothing "that has taken place that would support any assumption a change is to be made."

Schmidt's 1940 team was crushed 40 to 0 by Michigan Saturday to conclude the worst Buckeye season in 10 years.

The Journal's story said that Schmidt's departure will be made in the most formal manner, and through the regular procedure. "He is employed on a year-to-year basis."

"When it is conveniently possible for all members of the Ohio State athletic board to be present, the first official action will be taken," the Journal said. It added that no meeting is expected to be held before Dec. 7.

Schmidt's 1940 won-and-lost record is not altogether responsible for the forthcoming action, the Journal said. Ohio State lost four of its eight games this year.

"On frequent occasions and especially during the past three seasons," the story said, "Schmidt has been the 'storm center' of numerous arguments throughout the coaching and player ranks."

Schmidt came to Ohio State from Texas Christian in 1934.

Touch Winners Of 5 Leagues Are Announced

Winning and runner-up teams in the various intramural touch football leagues were announced yesterday by Dr. F. S. Beebe, director of intramural athletic activities. The championship and second place teams are as follows:

Cooperative dormitories: Grover, Wilson.

Quadrangle: Lower D, Upper B, Hillcrest: Third South, Fourth floor.

Interfraternity class A: Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon.

Interfraternity class B: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Delta Upsilon.

The cooperative dormitory and interfraternity championships were decided Monday in the final round of the championship tournament. Sigma Alpha Epsilon defeated Delta Upsilon, 14 to 6, on a safety and two markers by Willis, to clinch the title. Morrison scored Delta Upsilon's lone touchdown.

Opheim and Roalson led their Grover team to a 14 to 6 victory over Wilson house for the cooperative dormitory championship. Bull scored for the outclassed Wilson sextet.

In the Army—Low Jenkins Enlists As Instructor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Low Jenkins, world's lightweight champion, enlisted in the army today as a physical training instructor, becoming the first boxing titleholder to sign up in the defense program.

He expects a commission in the next 30 days, probably as a second lieutenant. He hopes to be assigned to a new camp for 60,000 men near Brownwood, Tex., his birthplace.

First Opponent Is Monmouth

Four Games Will Be Played Off Before Christmas; 15 After

The road ahead is rugged for Rolfe Williams' University of Iowa basketball squad this year, despite the prospects for at least a rather capable Hawkeye team.

A typical Big Ten cage schedule awaits the Hawkeyes, with the season opening in Iowa field-house next week end against Monmouth college. Beyond the opener await four more December contests, two of them away from home, and a terrific 15-game grind after the Christmas holidays.

Chief among the scheduled contests, of course, are 12 against Big Ten opponents, all of which will tax Capt. Vic Siegel and his mates to the utmost. Listed as Iowa foes are Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northwestern, Chicago, Ohio State, Indiana, Michigan, Purdue and Illinois, with the highly rated Indiana team on the Hawkeye schedule for two games. Appearing at Iowa City will be six of the conference teams, Northwestern, Chicago, Michigan, Indiana, Purdue and Minnesota.

Stanford Ankle Deep In Trouble

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 26 (AP)—Stanford's hard luck football player, Norman Standlee, tested a weak ankle gingerly today while Clark Shaughnessy's coaching staff mapped strategy for Saturday's all-important game with California on the basis of doing without his fullbacking services.

The 220-pound powerhouse was released from the hospital yesterday.

Milt Vuclinich, a hard driver himself, will handle first string duties unless Standlee's underpinning shows signs of holding up.

Iowa Gridders Rank From Fourth Place To Sixth in Big Ten

Rankings from fourth to sixth in various departments of play in conference games were attained by University of Iowa football team, official figures of averages from the league service bureau show.

Hawkeyes ranked fourth in holding opponents from first downs, the average being 9.6 per game. Iowa was fifth in average number of points, 13.2; sixth in rushing attack, 126 yards; and in punting average, 36.5.

Other figures: Iowa average 174 net yards per game to opponents' 234, and averaged 48 yards by passes to foes' 93.

Writers Honor Enich, Schroeder, St. Ambrose

E. G. "DAD" SCHROEDER

Iowa's football captain, "Iron Mike" Enich, and E. G. "Dad" Schroeder, director of Hawkeye athletics, will share with the undefeated and unscored upon St. Ambrose football team in the awards given this year by the Iowa Football Writers' association, it was announced yesterday.

Enich will receive the association's plaque, given to him as the outstanding player in the state, while Schroeder will get a pen and pencil set, voted to him in appreciation of his efforts toward making conditions more pleasant for the press at Iowa grid contests.

The St. Ambrose team, winner of eight straight games, without a single point scored against them, were stopped only once during the 1940 season. That was Sunday when they were held to a scoreless tie by Loras of Duquesne. Their reward, an engraved plaque, will be presented at a banquet in Davenport Dec. 8. Mal Elward, Purdue coach, will be the principal speaker.

Officers for the coming year for the association will be Bert McGrane of the Des Moines Register, Tait Cummings of the Cedar Rapids Gazette and Ed Moore of the Waterloo Courier.

Three Elevens Name Captains

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 26 (AP)—Bruce Smith of Fairbault, Minn., star halfback of the undefeated 1940 Minnesota football team, was elected captain of the 1941 squad by his teammates today.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 26 (AP)—Purdue university's football lettermen tonight chose captain Dave Rankin, all-Western conference end from Warsaw, Ind., the team's most valuable member during the 1940 season. Tom Melton of Cedar Lake and James Miller of Massillon, Ohio, were elected co-captains for 1941.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 26 (AP)—Joe Turek, junior guard from Chicago, today was elected captain of the 1941 University of Illinois football team. George Bernhard, senior fullback from Riverside, Ill., was named the team's "most valuable player."

Savold Terminates Ring Work for Conn

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—Lee Savold, Des Moines heavyweight, had his last ring workout today preparing for his 12-round bout with light-heavyweight champion Billy Conn at Madison Square Garden Friday night. He boxed three rounds with Jim Howell and two with Maxie Long and scaled 187 pounds at the end of the drill. Savold plans only a light loosening-up drill tomorrow. He has boxed 70 rounds in his two weeks of training here.

Conn put in six rounds at sparring and plans to go six more tomorrow. He followed his usual routine of going three rounds against Willie Pavlovich, two against James J. Johnston and one against Mickey McAvo. Conn's weight was announced as 178 pounds.

Gophers Top Grid Poll Again

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—Though Minnesota definitely declared itself out of the Rose Bowl picture today, the Western conference football champions figure very importantly in one post-season contest.

The Golden Gophers again are the No. 1 team of the country in this week's seventh Associated Press ranking poll, and from the results of today's balloting are favorites to finish in that position when the final votes are cast next week. Yet there still are three teams—similarly undefeated and untied—which stand some slight chance of beating them out.

Minnesota, on top for the third straight week, got 88 of the 170 first-place votes this time (only two of the country's experts rated them worse than fourth) to accumulate 1,562 points. Only 448 points, however, separate the Gophers from fourth-place Boston college, with Texas A. and M. and Stanford second and third with 1,476 and 1,264 points, respectively. All three of these teams complete their regular schedules this week—the Aggies against Texas on Thursday in a game where victory will make them the first team to lead the Southwest conference for two straight years; Stanford against California Saturday, the big one the Indians need for undisputed claim to the coast conference title and the Rose Bowl nomination, and Boston against Holy Cross the same afternoon, a game which will find the Eagles heavily favored to finish with a clean slate and then get a Sugar Bowl invitation.

This week's first ten has a strong mid-western tinge and is likely to retain that to the end. In addition to Minnesota, there is Michigan, one of the Gophers' two extra-point victims, in fifth place; Northwestern, beaten twice but a big winner over Notre Dame in its finale, seventh, and Nebraska, the Big Six champion, eighth.

Rounding out the list are sixth-place Tennessee, which will be favored to complete three regular seasons without defeat when it meets Vanderbilt Saturday; Georgetown, ninth, and Ivy league champion Penn, tenth, with only two points less than the Hoyas.

Penn broke into the select group by its 22-20 victory over Cornell, a feat which also dropped the Big Red into the second tier after they had led the poll for four weeks, been second once and dropped to fifth after the Dartmouth "fifth down" game.

First-place votes, besides Minnesota's, were 41 for the Texas Aggies, 15 each for Stanford and Boston, three for Michigan and eight for Tennessee.

Unbeaten but once-tied Mississippi State heads the second ten, 50 points back of Penn, a margin the Maroons may wipe out should they turn in an impressive showing against Alabama Saturday. Others in order are Washington, Cornell, Fordham, Santa Clara, Southern Methodist and Alabama, Texas Tech and Lafayette in a tie for 18th, and Duke and Hardin-Simmons in a tie for 20th.

Navy Must Win, Larson Warns

Instructions on Board Warn Pupils to Pass; 'Marks' to Pa, Ma

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 26 (AP)—Professor Swede Larson's blackboard bears three words of instruction to his 88 gridiron pupils for the annual Army-Navy football classic Saturday at Philadelphia:

"Navy must win."

And his students had better not flunk their final test of the gridiron term, because head coach Larson is sending "report cards" direct to Ma and Pa.

It's a novel measure, but by no means unique. Navy's genial pigskin prof has been mailing weekly reports about his players directly to their parents ever since the 1940 season began.

Larson considers it "time well spent" to write parents about their sons' football "marks"—academic and physical—and about the team's progress, hopes and aspirations.

The boys don't mind the reports going home, because they sometimes get behind in their letter-writing. And, Larson says, the parents are pleased with the reports, too.

Report No. 9, issued this week, says pass attack and defense are being stressed for the Army game; that right halfback Cliff Lenz and quarterback Bill Chip still are ailing, and that Jimmy Donaldson, a varsity newcomer, may replace Chip Saturday.

"Army has not made an impressive paper record but they have a fine squad and a team capable of inspired football," the report says. "In considering this game and in preparation for it, nothing has been taken for granted."

"We know it is our real test and that we are to face worthy foes. Whatever the odds may be—whatever the dopests may think—this game is a toss-up. We are out to win it. So is Army."

"The team that has it on the afternoon of November 30 will win. That team must be Navy."

Larson began writing the reports after receiving numerous inquiries from parents about their sons' football progress. He says they give parents a "closer feeling toward the school" and give the boys an added incentive to work hard.

Navy's football "school" will end Saturday and Professor Larson has written his final instructions. He's willing to "pass" the whole class, but what goes into the final "report card" depends on what the middies do against the cadets.

Press box Pickups

BY OSCAR HARGEAVE

Always willing to take all I am entitled to, I hereby demand my three guesses on the probable outcome of the Big Ten basketball race. They are not based on cold intellectual analysis, but are the net results of impressions gathered during an exceptionally impressive second childhood.

The guesses:

1. Indiana will be Big Ten champion.
2. Purdue will be champion.
3. Indiana and Purdue will tie for the championship.

Now for the experiences that helped to leave me with such a set of prejudices.

It all started, I think, several years ago. The Big Ten basketball season started and I didn't know who would be champion. Nobody is supposed to know until it is settled. Then, like the end of the journey after a fall from the high chair, my head thumped against the fact that Indiana had won. You can well imagine the effect. In other of the formative years there were more such thumps, all worthy of mention, but none as severe as the first.

Oddly enough, they practically always left me hearing one of two particular noises. It might be that I would seem to hear a bird chirping a song that sounded suspiciously like "I Can't Get Indiana Off My Mind." Or, on other occasions, my head rang with a din like that of Purdue's Boiler-makers at work As explained before, such experiences are powerful influences during the formative days.

Thus, when it comes to picking the next Big Ten champion, I always start out by taking Purdue or Indiana. Not only that, but whatever reasoning I resort to is for but one purpose, rationalization. Not to neglect that habit, I will now proceed, very briefly, to justify this year's guesses.

The final Big Ten standings were compiled last March and, another bump on the head, Purdue was the champion, with Indiana close second. That in itself would be enough to leave an impression, but when it developed that Purdue lost only Fisher and Beretta from its squad and Indiana's losses by graduation could be included in the name Hoffman, I found very real and suspicious meat for my prejudices to feed on.

Suffice it to say that Indiana will present a veteran team, that was good enough last year to win a tournament that was belied with the term "national championship," and that Blanke, Sprowl and Igney of Purdue aren't any weaker than last year. Otherwise, the Big Ten looks like a pretty rugged conference all the way down. Northwestern, Wisconsin and Ohio State all seem to have better than average prospects, while Illinois and Michigan hardly come up with weak sister teams. Chicago probably won't be too rugged, while Iowa's hopes rest on the experience that a bunch of sophomores got last year. They were winning late in the season and should be formidable.

However, unless the habits ac-

LaVerne Lewis Elected Captain Of Cyclones

AMES, Nov. 26 (AP)—Election of LaVerne Lewis, junior guard from Clear Lake, as captain of the 1941 Iowa State college football team was announced tonight by the athletic council.

Lewis, known as "Butch" to his teammates, is enrolled in the science division of the college.

His selection makes the seventh consecutive lineman chosen captain by the Cyclone football team.

Lewis played nearly every minute in games this year until a broken collar bone in the Drake game benched him for the Kansas State and Nebraska encounters. He won a major letter as a sophomore.

The new captain was introduced by Coach Jim Yeager at the eighth annual Ames high school and Iowa State college football banquet sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce.

Yeager related that the team's battle with Nebraska Saturday cost him his complimentary ticket to the banquet. During the tense minutes of the game, he tore his ticket to bits. To save embarrassment, he said, he purchased another ticket.

Gridders Name Captain Dec. 4

Captain of the University of Iowa's 1941 football team will be announced at the all-Iowa dinner Dec. 4 in honor of the 1940 Hawkeye squad.

It is the first time in 20 years that the captain has not been elected following the dinner given by the president of the university. President Virgil Hancher has waived this honor, although he will be host to the players Dec. 10.

The dinner in Iowa Union will be open to men and women. Ticket sales will be limited to 600 persons, with ducats available through the secretary of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce.

On the speaking program will be Major John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Big Ten; President Hancher, Dr. Eddie Anderson and Nile Kinnick. Prof. Karl Leib, chairman of the Iowa athletic board, will be toastmaster. Motion pictures of the Iowa victory over Notre Dame will be shown.

U-High Meets Vinton Tonight

U-High's cage forces will make their 1940-41 basketball debut tonight when they roll into action against Vinton at 8:15 p.m. on the high school floor.

The team is ready and is out to give the season a good start, Coach Paul Brechler said yesterday.

Probable starters include Co-captain Bob Evans and Jim Schneberger at forwards; Lehman at center; Heusinkfeldt and Co-captain Bus Smith at guards.

The second stringers of both clubs will meet at 7:15.

Vinton invades the city as an odds on favorite. The team boasts four senior lettermen. Howard Moffitt, former city high and university grid and cage star, will lead the Vinton clubs in its descent on the city. Moffitt, a new addition to the Vinton staff, formerly coached at Waukon.

Coach Francis Merten's Little Hawks started out their basketball season with a bang last night as they rolled over a Williamsburg outfit by the score of 33 to 18, on the City high floor.

Leading the pack with 21 points, Capt. Ray Sullivan was the outstanding man on the floor last night. High point man last year, Sullivan looked as though he wanted to get off to a good start in the first game as he swished the net time and again from around the free throw circle.

The Red and White defense kept the Red Raiders well out in the court and allowed them only one field goal during the first half. Twelve of the visitors 18 points were made on free throws, the fouls being scattered evenly among the Hawklets.

Forwards Jaro Lepic and John Thompson chased the Williamsburg guards effectively, allowing them no field goals. Other City highers who by their play showed promise of seeing a good deal of action during the rest of the season include Bud Lemons, Norm Paukert, John Schuppert and Bob Towell.

Friday night the Little Hawks will meet Muscatine in the City high gym.

In a preliminary game, Coach Herb Cormack's freshman-sophomore team lost to the varsity reserves by a one-point margin, 22 to 21. The contest was a nip and tuck affair up to the closing seconds when the reserves surged ahead with the winning point. Bill Sangster, Bob Roth, Dave Danner and Dale Schleier looked good for the sophomores.

Paul Peiffer Of Washington Dies of Injury

Paul Peiffer, 60, of Washington, Ia., injured critically in a two-car collision near North Liberty Nov. 9, died late last night in University hospital.

Johnson County Coroner George H. Callahan attributed the man's death to a cerebral hemorrhage and pneumonia. Peiffer had not gained consciousness since the accident, hospital attendants said.

Ed Vittoe, 36, also of Washington, in whose car Peiffer rode with seven others, died the day following the crash.

The body will be removed to Washington for burial preparations.

Britain's Defeatist Attitude Planned To Drag U.S. Into War

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
As compared with her plight last June, Britain's situation today hardly seems to justify the somber note struck recently by many British spokesmen.

There are many war assets Britain can reckon on now that she did not have when her fight for life started after the collapse of France. If her situation is as serious as many British outgivings hint, there has been no previous intimation of the fact.

It seems obvious that the British are definitely trying to convince the American public that American aid short of war not only can insure ultimate victory over the axis but greatly shorten the war if it comes quickly.

If one lists the war assets which can be credited to Britain since her crucial fight began, they reach a substantial aggregate. Her supreme danger, a German invasion, is over for months, if not finally. It would be almost certain to be repulsed disastrously.

The Greeks' miraculous defeat of Italian invaders has already saved Britain indefinitely from mass axis attack in the Mediterranean. It has turned the Italian attack on the Suez canal via Egypt from a doubtful axis asset into a possible heavy liability.

An Italian disaster there is possible. A Hitler repulse on the Balkan diplomatic front fits into the picture.

London has formally bid for continued Bulgarian neutrality, preferring a peace table guarantee of Bulgarian "integrity and independence" if she keeps aloof from the axis orbit.

The will of England's bomb-harried people to fight on has been grimly tested for nearly six months. The obvious fact is that there is no defeatism in England, only a bitter desire to hit back at a ruthless foe.

Merle Miller Visits Campus During Brief Trip From Philadelphia

Merle Miller of Marshalltown, former student of the University of Iowa who is at present a reporter on the Philadelphia Record in Philadelphia, Pa., is on the campus today for a brief visit.

Miller was for more than three years The Daily Iowan's columnist and is a past city editor of The Iowan.

He will be at his home in Marshalltown tomorrow, and will be back in Iowa City this week end before returning to Philadelphia early next week.

not, after all, expected to sign at present. This offer of a British guarantee to Bulgaria—which informed persons here thought was not likely to influence the power of Adolf Hitler's panzer divisions—illustrated the nightmare which has been troubling British strategists, the possibility of a giant pincer closing upon the Suez canal.

This could come about should the Germans strike through a Turkey immobilized by a word from Joseph Stalin while the Italians moved east from Sidi Barrani in Egypt, thus forcing the British to fight two major battles at once—one in the vicinity of the British base of Matruh and the other in Palestine.

The stuff of which this nightmare is compounded is the fact that Russia—which undoubtedly holds a great influence upon vital Turkey—is, as Winston Churchill recently described it, "a riddle wrapped in mystery inside an enigma."

partment of labor's conciliation service, emerged from his first conference with the warring groups to announce: "I am happy that immediate resumption of operations is assured."

Steelman arrived last night after a storm-delayed air trip from Washington and reported after a two-hour session that settlement had been reached, subject to ratification by the strikers.

He gave President R. J. Thomas of U.A.W., who also flew here from the east, "chief credit for mand reported successes today against Greek landing forces on the Epirus coast and British motorized units in East Africa. Greek troops "which disembarked on the Epirus coast were in part destroyed and in part captured with their arms," the high command's communique said.

(Epirus lies in both southern Albania and Greece. The communique did not specify where the landing was made.) In East Africa, the communique said, an attack by British mechanized units "in the Sabderat zone and the Ghirghir valley near Serobatib was quickly repulsed by our troops. Some enemy motor vehicles remained in our hands."

The high command said Italian forces "carried out numerous attacks on the entire (Greek zone of operations in close cooperation with land forces."

The Italians said several buildings—only one of military importance—were damaged in raids by British or Greek planes on the islands of Leross and Stampalia in the Dodecanese.

Meanwhile the newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia said two of three Italian warships damaged by British in Taranto naval base Nov. 11 would be repaired in three or four weeks.

iversity handbook for the benefit of new students, and an enlarged, low-cost social program. "Through the cooperation of an integrated student body, constructive work could be accomplished in various fields that, under the present setup, cannot be accomplished by isolated groups.

"It should not be the purpose of the council to disrupt or replace any existing organization, but to cooperate with them for the best interests of the university; to serve as a clearing house for university-wide student affairs, and to furnish a democratic medium for voicing opinion.

Three-Way Cooperation
"It should be an organization that will accomplish its purposes by a three-way cooperation among administration, faculty and students."

Letters of inquiry will be mailed by the committee to number of schools in the south, west, east and middlewest as the investigation of student government at other campuses progresses.

The third meeting of the convention will be called by Chairman Lewis Layham, A3 of Charles City, when the committee has completed its study.

Greece--

ported, however, Greek troops which landed on the Epirus coast were "in part destroyed and in part captured with their arms."

Advices reaching Salonika from various parts of the front indicated all Italian units were seeking to turn toward the Adriatic in their retreat. (Here 31 words were censored.)

The Italians were reported to have only two main roads to the Adriatic, one leading north from Argirocastro and the other running west from the Yugoslav border.

Both these routes and feeder roads were said to be crowded with troops and motor equipment, under continual bombing and machine-gunning from British and Greek planes.

Hancher Asks City, University To Cooperate, Preserve Peace

Outlines Present-Day Function of Education At Kiwanis Meeting

Kiwanis Speaker

VIRGIL HANCHER

"We are preparing for a moral, intellectual and military defense. We must realize that the times ahead are to be much more difficult than those behind."

This was the statement of President Virgil M. Hancher of the University of Iowa in his talk to the Kiwanis club yesterday at the Jefferson hotel.

The speaker pointed out that the willingness to oppose, up to a certain point, and from there to sink all differences in a common cause is a characteristic of both England and America. He added that for the first time in our lifetime our moral, civic and intellectual ideals are being challenged by something we find it very difficult to understand.

Education, said Hancher, is a field where a great many can be most useful in a world of this kind. He outlined the three objectives of a university as conservation of the past, passing on to current generations the knowledge and wisdom of the past and adding to the present store of knowledge.

"We must keep great scholars, great research men and great teachers," said Hancher. He concluded his address with an appeal to the people of Iowa City to assist the university in cooperating to preserve peace and the American way of life.

Two Accidents In City Area

Two accidents near Iowa City yesterday were attributed by the police to icy pavements created by yesterday's heavy snowfall.

A collision involving three cars about a mile south of North Liberty on highway 218 at noon sent two drivers, Roy Shulander, 31, St. Charles, Ill., and Fred L. Elam, 60, New London, Missouri, to the hospital. The driver of the third car, Tommy George Pappas, 20, Excelsior, Minn., was uninjured.

Shulander was treated for head injuries at the University hospital and was discharged. Elam was also taken there to be treated for cuts about the legs and face, the highway patrol said. Hospital attendants reported his condition fair last night.

Tom Leaky, 19, of Chicago, a trucker for Watson Brothers, was injured when his truck overturned on the slippery pavement about a mile west of Coralville. Both the trailer and the tractor were demolished, police said.

He was taken to University hospital for treatment.

First Snow 'Winter Wonderland' Is Slippery Going

Iowa Citizens slipped and skidded to and from work and school yesterday in the season's first snowfall.

It's "s'no" fun agreed pedestrians and motorists speaking of the uncomfortable weather.

Elmer Q. Grype, the man who quibbles about everything, trudged the streets, wet-soaked, wet shoes, then stopped into a nearby store to have his feet "winterized."

Street department men, campus caretakers, shop keepers and home owners joined in a sidewalk shovel parade.

The old weather prophet squinted at the skies: "When we have a 'white Thanksgiving,'" he said, "it means that on Christmas an' ground hawg day, there'll either be snow . . . or there won't."

Temperatures yesterday ranged between 29 and 35 degrees.

Demolay Group To Initiate Six

'Best Speakers' Named in First Law Club Debate

Horace Hardy of Bloomfield and Sidney B. Smith of Corydon were declared the best speakers by Judge Paul H. McCoid of the 20th judicial district of Iowa at the first of the Junior Law club arguments last night in Law commons.

The theoretical case being tried was one involving unfair competition in the use of a trade name. The case had been dismissed in a lower court for lack of cause of action. Judge McCoid, in rendering a decision, expressed the belief that the Iowa supreme court would dismiss the appeal.

"Attorneys" for the appellant were Sherlock Hartnett of West Bend and Hardy, "Attorneys" for the appellee were Smith and John S. Sprout of Iowa City.

The second of the four Junior Law club arguments will be held next Tuesday.

LES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 26 (AP)—Frank Durr, 35, of Shelby, Ia., is the No. 1 Iowa soldier under the federal selective service act.

Durr arrived here at 12:01 p.m. today with the observation: "Well, here I am, ready and willing."

He was met at the union bus station by Fort Des Moines army post officials and Lieut. Col. Robert Fulton of the state selective service headquarters.

Durr, a Rock Island railroad employe, volunteered for service and was named to fill Shelby county's quota of one. He is single. He is just inside the draft age maximum.

"I think I'm going to like the army," he said, "I'm planning on liking it anyhow. I volunteered because I wanted to get my year's service out of the way early and because I thought maybe those who get in early will have a better chance at army jobs they really would like to do."

Refugee Girl Relates Story

Ruth Enoch Knows Horror of 'New Europe'; Calls America Her Sanctuary

RUTH ENOCH

By BESSIE JEAN ROWE
Again the swastika shadowed her life. Le Havre was bombed by German planes. She relates having seen several of her classmates blown to bits in attempting to reach shelter.

Ruth returned to Paris in March of this year. She was taken into custody by the "fifth column" fearing French government. All persons of German extraction were being arrested, she said.

"Hundreds of us were jailed for 10 days in a six-day bicycle racing shed," she related. "When the destitute French government had no more money to feed us, we were escorted to a place in southern France at the foot of the Pyrenees mountains."

According to the girl's story, the next few weeks of her life she owes to the kindness of farmers and the American Red Cross. She was able to find her mother and sister and the three journeyed on foot to St. Jean, Jean de Luz, a seaside town in southern France.

"We fled from St. Jean the same night France surrendered to Germany," Ruth narrated.

Meeting Kurt Enoch, the father, who by now had lost his business in Germany, the family sought refuge in hostile Spain. According to Ruth, the reception was a bit cool and they journeyed on to Portugal. There, friends purchased steamship tickets for their passage to America.

Ruth has been in the Bush home since shortly after Oct. 19. She enrolled in University high school Nov. 5 and plans to enter the university in January. When her education was disrupted in Europe, she was ready to take qualifying examinations for admission to Oxford university.

Ruth's family is living in New York.

3 Volunteers From County Enter Army

V.F.W. Organization To Give Soldiers Inscribed Billfolds

The three Johnson county volunteers who will leave tomorrow to enter the regular army under the new selective service act are to be given mementos by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, it was announced by the draft board.

The V.F.W. decided at an October meeting to present every draft volunteer and enlisted man from Johnson county with inscribed billfolds.

Two of the volunteers, John V. Van Epps and Chester B. Frantz were honored at a meeting of the Roy L. Chopek post of the American Legion Monday night, the third, Joseph T. Burns, was unable to be present.

Frantz, who resides at 220 Kirkwood, is a 32-year-old farm hand; Burns, 131 Ferson, a 28-year-old salesman; and Van Epps, 32, 430 N. Clinton, a lawyer.

Four other volunteers will answer the next draft call besides the holders of order numbers, it was announced by the draft board.

By the end of the week, 200 questionnaires will have been mailed out to the holders of the first 200 order numbers. Most of the first hundred sent out two weeks ago have already been returned, the board disclosed.

AAA Program Aims at Seeds

Next year's AAA program will stress the importance of using good quality seed when planting soil-building crops more than ever before, according to Joe G. Raim, county AAA chairman.

Although this has been a policy in past years, it will be strengthened in 1941 by a requirement specifying that a farmer will not receive payment for planting soil-building crops if the seed he uses does not fill specifications determined by the county AAA committee, Raim said.

Minimum specifications for determining the qualifications of various seeds will be set by the state AAA committee with the advice of state agricultural specialists. Fulfillment of these specifications by the farmers will be decided upon by the county AAA committee.

Better quality soil-conserving crops having fewer weeds, thereby increasing conservation and improvement of the soil, are the aims of the new provisions to go into effect immediately.
