F. R. Pledges War Supplies To Greek King

Airplanes Head List As America Answers Plea for Assistance

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Embattled Greece has been promised immediate American assistance in an exchange of messages between President Roosevelt and King George II, and high quarters indicated tonight that the aid would include warplanes.

Mr. Roosevelt's message, made public by the state department, did not specify the form in which help would be given, simply pledging King George that "steps are being taken" to provide assistance in line with "the settled policy of the United States to extend aid to those governments and peoples who defend themselves against aggression."

From the Greek legation and high American sources, however, came indications that warplanes urgently needed because of the overwhelming Italian odds in the air, were first on the list.

Cimon Diamantopoulos, the Greek minister, requested assistance in securing warplanes and other war weapons and materials three weeks ago in discussions with Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state.

After Mr. Roosevelt's message was made public, an official at the Greek legation said that Greece had been promised "any kind of help it wants." Warplanes were the major item, he added, but emphasized that his country had been given wide latitude in selecting whatever the United States had available in the category of war weapons or supplies.

The United States presumably is in a position to provide Greece with some warplanes and a limited amount of surplus army weapons without seriously interfering with American defense requirements and the flow of war weapons of all kinds to Great Britain.

American military officials, however, took the view that the primary responsibility of deciding whether planes and guns could be spared rested with Greece's ally, Great Britain.

The army understood still to possess approximately 1,200,000 Lee-Enfield rifles and nearly the same number of Springfield rifles, which are gradually being replaced by semi-automatic Garands. Greece might be able to utilize some of the "surplus" nations.

Other war weapons might include field guns, mortars, and machine guns of a type adapted to the mountain warfare the Greeks have waged against the fascist legions which attempted to invade the Greco peninsula, but there was no official hint of just what the army general staff considers "surplus" among those weapons.

German Subs Strike Hard At Shipping

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP)—The threat of the German U-boat to the commerce by which Britain lives is sharply defined by the figures compiled by neutral sources which put average weekly British, allied and neutral shipping losses at 84,000 tons for the last 12 weeks compared to an average of 43,000 tons a year ago.

The increased submarine activity since the Germans established themselves in the French ports of Lorient, Brest and Cherbourg has bumped the weekly average for the war to 62,000 tons to date.

April, 1917, was the worst month for Britain in the World war. She lost 852,000 tons that month.

At that time the convoy system had not been adopted. Today it is in use.

The reasons for this increase, according to neutral naval sources, are the new German bases plus the operations of bombing and scouting aircraft which operate between 600 and 700 miles west of Ireland.

There is no doubt the British navy, especially the destroyer force, is doing its utmost to combat the threat, but more long range aircraft and more destroyers appear to be needed by the dozens and scores, not by ones and twos.

Hit by Shells From a Nazi Sea Raider—

CRUISER LIMPS INTO PORT

Captain Refuses to Tell Number Killed

MONTEVIEJO, Uruguay, Dec. 7 (AP)—Hit by nearly a dozen shells from a German raider, the British auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle put into Montevideo harbor late today and her Captain, H. M. H. Hardy, declared his opponent "ran away so badly damaged that she will undoubtedly be caught and destroyed."

He declined, however, to disclose how many of his own sailors had been killed by the German shells. Other details of the hour and a half battle Thursday likewise remained hidden behind "admiralty silence."

However, unofficial estimates of casualties ranged as high as seven dead and 22 injured.

It was learned authoritatively that a Uruguayan naval commission reported after a survey that the ship would require at least 72 hours to repair damages. She was said to have two hits at the waterline, four near the waterline and another directly on the exhaust line, which was out of commission.

The bulky merchant cruiser

By HAROLD K. MILKS

put into Montevideo harbor a week less than a year after the German raider Admiral Graf Spee arrived.

The Graf Spee was blown up by her own commander in the harbor rather than engage British warships waiting for her to leave this refuge.

The right side of the Carnarvon Castle showed a dozen hits. Some of these were on her broadside. One struck the starboard part of her superstructure, forward, blowing out that portion of the ship, cutting her anti-mine belt, and setting a fire which spread over two decks before it was extinguished.

Naval experts who viewed the vessel from the dock said it appeared at least one enemy shell exploded inside her.

Captain Hardy issued this statement:

"The engagement lasted one hour and a half. It began with a high speed chase after which the enemy continually tried to end the action and finally disappeared after making a smoke screen."

The damages suffered by the Carnarvon Castle, while of a somewhat spectacular nature, are rather superficial and easy to repair. The German ship undoubtedly suffered much more damage and the chances are it will be caught and destroyed very soon.

New Food Plan For Europeans Finds Opposition

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—A "national committee on food for the five small democracies" with former President Herbert Hoover as honorary chairman was formed today in order to "save millions" from the "inevitable famine and pestilence which confront them."

Coincidentally, opposition to the "Hoover plan for feeding conquered populations in Europe," came from "25 outstanding women" who said in a statement that America's own national security would be endangered by any action making easier Hitler's task in holding the small conquered nations in subjection.

Among those listed as signers were Helen Hayes, actress; Margaret Culkin Banning, author; Marion Edwards Park, president of Bryn Mawr college; Mrs. Sherwood Anderson, wife of the author; Alice Duer Miller, author; and C. Mildred Thompson, dean of Vassar college.

Listed as members of the national food committee were former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes and several cabinet members in the Hoover administration; General John J. Pershing, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former governor general of the Philippines; Hendrik Willem van Loon, author; Alice Roosevelt Longworth, 37 educational leaders, and 29 theologians.

The national food committee said that before the next harvest there would be in Finland, Norway, Holland, Belgium and central Poland "a tragic problem of the loss of lives of millions of children, of women and of men, and the aftermath of a stunted and diseased generation."

The committee said its purpose (See FOOD PLAN, page 3)

Two-Point Plan for Financial Aid to Great Britain Discussed

England Asks Loans To Bolster Morale; Plan War Purchases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—

A two-point plan for financial aid to Great Britain is being discussed, it was learned today, by highly placed administration aides, some of whom predicted that it would be adopted.

The plan:

1. The British would use their own investments in this country to buy war supplies, as long as the investments lasted.

2. The United States would make a flat promise to grant loans when those British resources were exhausted. (Some officials suggested that such loans might perhaps be backed by certain British collateral.)

As seen by persons in influential positions, the situation is that the British have enough money to pay for their multi-billion dollar war purchases here for a year or more, but want to know where the money is going to come from after that. The British were said to have raised the question of immediate loans in order to pin down future commitments.

The British view was said to be that the promise of future loans was necessary for these reasons: (a) bolstering the morale of the British people; (b) better planning of war purchases; (c) reassurance of American manufacturers who might be hesitant to make large expenditures for factories and tools to fill British orders unless they knew that they were going to be paid.

An indication of the American view that the British ought to spend their own money before getting loans was seen in the conversations between Treasury Secretary Morgenthau Jr. and Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury. They started their talks Friday and will meet again Monday.

Both told reporters that they were not talking of loans "at this time" but were discussing the "fact" of British resources and purchases.

Announcing this today, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, emphasized that the present aircraft defenses of the fleet were good but said that contemplated alterations would improve them.

The whole program is designed to have our ships not only abreast of requirements but ahead of them," Stark added.

The navy department estimated that from five to six years would be required to complete the proposed alterations on ships already with the fleet. Presumably, the improvements would be included in ships under construction.

"Information on developments in the European war, augmented by experience obtained during our own fleet maneuvers," Knox wrote, "has conclusively indicated the necessity of improving the means by which our combatant vessels may oppose aircraft attacks and the entire question has been under study in the navy department for some time."

Disclosure that the navy intended to strengthen its surface ships against air attack first was made by former Secretary Edison Barton, New York republican, whose unsuccessful campaign against democratic Senator James M. Mead cost $36,667. Mead reported he spent $30,104.

Barton reported contributions of $36,714 and Mead $30,349.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—A total of $479,937 was spent on their campaigns by 95 candidates for 35 senate seats at stake in the recent election.

A survey of reports filed with Edwin S. Halsey, secretary of the senate, shows the largest expenditure was that of Rep. Bruce Barton, New York republican, whose unsuccessful campaign against democratic Senator James M. Mead cost $36,667. Mead reported he spent $30,104.

Soviets Prepared To Fight at Any Minute, Defeat Any Enemy?

MOSCOW, Dec. 7 (AP)—From

Miracles by Faith

Faith, extreme heart-felt faith, can and does work miracles. The great heaps of crutches and braces piled before the gates of religious grottoes of faith throughout the world are mute evidences of the work of this powerful quality.

Solemn belief in an healing agent might more clearly illustrate the miracles wrought by faith.

The simple natives of Cispotia in South America had been told by an over-stimulated missionary that some Christmas Eve the Savior would come up river in a boat rowed by an homine and that he would spend the night in their village.

Kenneth Irving Brown, a professor of botany making studies in South America, on the 24th of December at twilight was sighted by the villagers of Cispotia approaching in a boat and accompanied by an homine.

He was at once associated by the natives with the prophecy of the missionary. Mr. Brown was greatly puzzled when they knelt at his feet in a posture of reverence. He drew away from them to think the situation over. He watched them huddled in earnest conversation.

Suddenly a young native girl came toward the botanist, she walked haltingly on a staff, apparently her left side was paralyzed. As she drew near Mr. Brown, in her fright and eagerness she fell, he caught her easily and held her trembling body a moment. Then, with a wild cry she bounded back to the group of huddled natives.

Mr. Brown learned later of whose place he had taken, and he understood the vital part he had played in the lives of those people. He had seen the miracle of healing by faith.

In our own "civilized" nation, faith is a great healing agent. In curing "hysterical blindness," loss of sight through some intolerable situation in the afflicted person's life, a peculiar approach does wonders.

If no organic cause is present, some insoluble problem of life has brought on the "blindness"; has caused the mind to take this unconscious way out of the dilemma. The cause is a functional one.

The procedure is to establish within the patient a complete faith in method. The patient's eyes are heavily bandaged after being treated with a common eye wash which burns the eyes sufficiently to convince him that he is being helped.

He is told not to open his eyes at once when the bandages are removed, for the light may bother them at first. There is no suggestion throughout the entire treatment of the possibility of not seeing again. Everything that is said or done is with the conviction of sight restoration—and it works.

Is it quackery? Or is it something infinitely more profound?

Representing Iowa as a Whole

It's an extremely interesting thing, and not at all frequent, to sit down with a group of University of Iowa students—about 20 in all—realizing that they represent the student body in its entirety.

Once in that situation, one realizes for just about the first time that Iowa, with her large professional colleges and her diverse schools and departments, is a unique campus in a good many respects.

It follows, therefore, that the problems of the student body as a whole are by no means standard with such problems on other campuses.

Two sessions with the student convention considering a central governing council for this campus has convinced us of that!

The sessions of that convention will continue until, on the basis of a thoroughly comprehensive study of issues, needs and justifications, the body decides to set up such a council with the faculty, or vetoes its formation as unjustified.

May we point out to the Iowa student body that this particular organization is carrying out in an enviable manner a project which should arouse a maximum of general campus interest. These representatives of every college and organized living groups are facing questions and making decisions of prime importance to every student, on bases of fact and democratic discussion.

As the qualified representatives of Iowa students, they deserve the attention and the assistance of every one of us.

An informed student body can supply the attention and the assistance. It should be the student's business to follow this discussion as it goes through the convention.

Blitz in Reverse

And Tirana by Christmas!
(A Review of the Week's News)

Too Much for Badoglio

Disaster, from military losses at the hands of the Greeks to increasing dissension at home, dogged the tiring footsteps of Premier Mussolini during the week just passed. The counter-blitz of little Greece carried Italy's Albanian troops backward at an impressive clip, right through strategic Porto Edda on the coast, nearby Argirocastro, and points between.

So Marshal Pietro Badoglio quit, and said he hadn't wanted Mussolini to blitzkrieg Greece in the first place. The younger General Ugo Cavallero steps in.

Grecian troops are shouting "Tirana by Christmas!"

People who have the habit of saying "I wish I were a little mouse" somewhere "so I could hear what's going on," wish they were little mice somewhere near Hitler or Mussolini. So do we.

Bulgaria has become the center of Hitlerian interest. King Boris visited Hitler a few weeks ago, apparently found him not to his liking, and is holding the diplomatic fort.

Turkey summarizes the situation in this manner: Hitler hopes to move his troops through Bulgaria—then through Turkey—then into Asia Minor—then into Syria, which would put him frighteningly close to Britain's Suez canal. A Bulgarian refusal to play the game of button, button who's got the Suez halts progress, even if Mussolini were winning the war in Greece, which isn't even in Greece anymore, having moved into Albania.

The Other Half of the War

But to offset Hitler's bunch of black Fridays in the Balkans, the other half of the war for Europe, the Battle for Britain, found Nazi sea raiders taking an increasingly heavier toll of British shipping, while Nazi air raiders poured tons of bombs on British industrial centers with far greater damage than's reported in any press.

At home, the advocates of a Christmas truce for the British were overwhelmingly relegated to the storm cellar. In commons, four voted for such a peace, 341 against it.

Something like the proverbial calm hung over the Oriental end of the axis.

The Nation--

Calling a Spade a Spade

Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, sparked the national diplomatic tinder last mid-week by declaring, quite without reservation, that England is a good risk for long-term war loans.

That is another way of saying something with which a great many more people would agree: England is a good long-term risk for anybody who'd hate to see England fall.

This is one war when Americans prefer a spade called a spade and a long-term loan to Britain dubbed a gift to world democracy. And America, we believe, is in a Christmas spirit.

Suggestions that American ships convoy British merchantmen or carry supplies to England themselves met with a non-hearing ear in official Washington.

Martin Dies urged the continuation of his committee, which he hopes to bring to the midwest. Thursday the un-American seeker got together with the justice department on the business of exposing Nazi and fascist propaganda in the mails. All of which may affect the office force of a certain number in New York's Battery Place.

Admirals Tear Their Hair

Negotiations are underway between the United States and Mexico with the possible transfer of a few over-age American destroyers (in exchange for the use of certain Mexican naval facilities) as the background.

And a few American naval commanders, the ones who'd have to fight a war if one were to come, presumably tore their hair.

An airliner crashed near the Chicago airport, killing nine persons; four workers were blown to bits in a Tacoma, Wash., explosion; 160,000 draftees will be inducted next month; Grover Cleveland Bergold said he'd like to serve in the military training program, but he was 23 years too late. . . .

And at Home--

Honest-to-Goodness Government

Dean of Men Robert E. Rienow was honored at a Hillcrest-Quad dinner early last week. He has done more for student government—the honest to goodness brand—than any other one Iowa man. (The honest-to-goodness brand begins with the individual's ability to govern himself.)

The worst Iowa fire of the winter struck close to Iowa City, in Lone Tree. . . .

Bill Diehl, Iowa's veteran center, took over the captaincy of the Hawkeye gridiron team.

Mrs. Ethel Gilchrist shared the national spotlight with the announcement of her perfection of a new permanent wave—Turban-wave.

And with Grinnell's President-Emeritus John Nollen as the speaker, the Rev. L. A. Owens and the First Congregational church will dedicate today the Little Chapel, dedicated to the worship of all faiths. . . .

What better way for two weeks to merge... .

Broadway Plans For New Year's Eve

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Well, Pals, I'll bet you can hardly wait to hear what the boys over on Broadway have got cooked up for your New Year's Eve entertainment. They've figured out a little scheme that practically doubles their admission prices, and when I think how right Barnum was it makes me want to toss this typewriter right out the window and get over on Broadway myself.

To be specific, all the big musicals which normally are $4.40 will jump to $7.70 for New Year's Eve. These include "Panama Hat," "Louisiana Purchase," "Hold On to Your Hats," and "Boys and Girls Together."

Then there is the long running "Hellzapoppin," which goes from $3.30 to $6.60. After this come Ethel Waters in "Cabin in the Sky" and Helen Hayes in "Twelfth Night," which move from $3.30 to $5.50. Admission to "George Washington Slept Here," "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and "Life With Father" will show only a modest 33 1/3 per cent increase, going from $3.30 to $4.40. There will be no increase whatever in Joe Cook's farce on skates, "It Happens on Ice," nor in "Separate Rooms," with Lyle Talbot, and in "Young Belinda." But "Tobacco Road," now entering its eighth year on Broadway, will go from $1.10 to $2.20.

Bear in mind these are merely box-office prices, which will hardly do you any good at all.

They do not include the legal commissions collected by ticket brokers, who by now have all the remaining worthwhile seats anyway. Their commission, fixed by the legislature, is 75 cents on an ordinary $3.30 ticket. On New Year's Eve they will rise accordingly.

This ticket agency business is a part of the New York adventure not easily appreciated by outlanders unless the Long View is taken. This view includes tolerance and an attitude of leniency toward the world in general, the hands of one or several dominant brokers, thus creating a monopoly.

Meanwhile, the year's end looms and old John S. (for Sag) Public forms cheerfully in the line to the right. How is he taking it? Say, have you ever noticed that look of bovine contentment in the eyes of a cow and the middle men in particular who stand between you and the box office. Live and let live is the idea. Probably ticket brokers are a necessary evil. Many producers believe them indispensable. They say a fair distribution of tickets would be impossible without them.

"The Letter." Screenplay by Howard Koch from Somerset Maugham's story and play. Directed by William Wyler. Principals: Betty Davis, Herbert Marshall, James Stephenson, Frieda Inescort, Gale Sondergaard.

Sooner or later Betty Davis had to wrestle with this famous melodrama, played on the stage by Katharine Cornell, on the screen by the late Jeanne Eagels. The Maugham heroine, author of a crime of passion, might have been designed for the Davis talents. These talents are equal to the demand.

"The Letter" is a moody film, its tense melodramatics moving quickly and inevitably to a dire climax. Sondergaard as the half-caste wife of the killer's victim is a terror, successfully sinister. Stephenson as the attorney who saves the Crosbie neck, however, is a new prospect for stardom.

"Escape to Glory." Screenplay by P. J. Wolfson from story by Sidney Biddle and Fredric Frank. Directed by John Brahm. Principals: Pat O'Brien, Constance Bennett, John Hall, Melville Cooper, Alan Baxter, Edgar Buchanan, Marjorie Gateson.

Grand Hotel again—this time on a freighter fleeing England for America at the outbreak of current hostilities. Assorted melodramatic characters—including O'Brien and Bennett who haven't much to do—have their lives changed by German submarine warfare. Unevenly paced, the picture seems unable to decide whether it shall be a philosophical tract or a rip-roaring "meller." It is not too successful as either, though the sea fight sequences make its unrelenting tolerable.

I do not look upon the matter this way. It seems to me the theaters themselves could open additional box offices and do just as well for themselves while saving the public thousands of dollars. Those who can afford to attend the theater three or four times a season could attend an extra performance if they didn't have to spend the extra commissions.

As matters stand, the brokers receive about 40 to 60 per cent of the choice seats for all shows opening on Broadway. Currently they are organizing a fight against the legislature to increase their margin of profit, contending they cannot keep going under the present arrangement. They argue that unless the legal limit is increased many small members will be forced out of business, leaving speculation in being led to the knife? That explains John exactly.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Britain as a Risk; Methods of Aid—

WASHINGTON—Cold official silence froze those now famous words of Jess Jones, "I think Britain is a good risk." It is true Treasury Secretary Morgenthau grunted a couple of terse verses when newsmen pressed him hard for comment on the Jones edict, but Mr. Morgenthau was in obvious pain when he did so. Caught between the alternatives of endorsing or repudiating his fellow cabinet officer, he could only squirm and assent.

But other government fiscal authorities rather generally disavowed the implications of the Jones statement in private. One inquired: "Is there any way of keeping Jones quiet?"

Off the record denials were made in every quarter to the inference that the government was adopting a settled policy to make large new loans of billions to the beset Britshers—just as still unpaid loans were made in the last war. Methods of furnishing any really necessary financial assistance were being canvassed under Mr. Morgenthau's direction, it was said officially, but the negotiators were apparently trying to steer away from unsecured non-interest bearing gifts under the name of "loans," such as the old unpaid 1918 obligations now seem to represent.

ANYTHING BRITISH WANT—

This soothing interpretation seemed at least partly confirmed by the manner in which the Jones statement was made. Such an announcement was not in the material which he had privately prepared for announcement at his press conference that day. He just blurted the assertion when a newsmen asked him the direct question. A few minutes later he told his hearers, "I don't know how I could make a stronger statement." The impression of his audience was thus doubled that he was wholly in favor of lending the British anything they wanted.

This is one inaccuracy they will not be able to blame on the press. It was wholly Mr. Jones—and insistently.

U.S. WOULD BEAR COST—

What disturbed the other cautiously working administration officials particularly was that it came as a climax to a series of loose phrases with deceptive intonations that have been bandied around lately by those who are propagandizing emotionally for violent pro-British action, out of all reason and common sense as to what the British are asking or really need.

The idea that Britain is a good fiscal risk in banking terminology (and Mr. Jones is a banker) obviously bore some aspects of official facetiousness. The British financial condition is no secret and is certainly considered far from satisfactory or sound by the British in London. Official acceptance of such a flat in accuracy could possibly be a wedge whereby the cost of the war could be borne hereafter in large part by the United States.

Sale Chairman Will Report On Progress

Local Drive Forms Basis for State; 'Over the Top' Here

Atty. Emil G. Trott, chairman of the 1940 Johnson county Christmas seal campaign, tomorrow will submit a report on the progress of the local drive to the Iowa Tuberculosis association. It will be used as a basis for comparison throughout the state.

According to Trott, the sale here is progressing far ahead of schedule with hundreds of replies to campaign letters already answered.

Explaining the use made of funds obtained in the annual sale, Attorney Trott pointed out that the first job in the fight against tuberculosis is to find the person who has the disease.

"Since tuberculosis in its early stages usually does not show its presence by physical signs, this job, to be properly done, means discovery of cases before symptoms appear," Attorney Trott said.

The Johnson county program is worked out in cooperation with the county nursing service, the Iowa Tuberculosis association and the state department of health.

Reports on a survey completed in 1938 showed that out of 89 families, the majority of which had been in contact with known cases or deaths from tuberculosis, 86 were X-rayed and 59 were requested to have another X-ray in a year. Fifty others were contacted but did not cooperate.

With money received from the annual Christmas seal campaign, the Johnson county Tuberculosis association provides for tuberculin testing and X-rays at Mercy hospital for patients who cannot afford the treatment.

Subtotal of Red Cross Collection Surpasses 1939

Although 10 per cent of the collections have not been reported, Johnson County's Red Cross roll call contributions yesterday passed last year's total by $100, Richard Sidwell, roll call chairman, announced.

The subtotal yesterday stood at $2,034. Last year, county residents contributed $1,930 to the campaign.

Returns from the divisions yesterday amounted to $623.

They included university administration, $67; business district, $92; Mercy hospital, $24; clubs and organizations, $25; residence section, $320; rural division, $18; liberal arts, $60.

The local chapter will convene Tuesday night in the Iowa City public library to discuss the campaign, Sidwell said.

AAA Program Committee To Meet Tuesday

Committee members in charge of the cotton mattress-making program for low income bracket rural families will meet Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the office of Emmett C. Gardner, county agent.

Applications will be made out for persons interested in applying to the local AAA committee for assistance. The committee will pass on the eligibility of applicants and recommend eligibles to the government.

Rural families in Johnson county with a total net income of less than $500 a year, plus $50 for each member of the family in excess of four persons, are eligible for government aid.

Rural families who receive mattress material will perform the labor necessary to complete the mattresses under supervision of a home demonstration agent or the county agent.

The program, part of a government plan to help utilize surplus cotton that is in storage in the south, will be carried on by representatives of the following organizations:

Farm security administration, county AAA, farm bureau, extension service, board of supervisors, relief organizations, county engineer and other local governmental organizations.

D. Koser and Mrs. H. M. Hines; while Mrs. Charles Kennett, Mrs. F. P. Schone and Mrs. Merle Webster are the bridge committee.

Members are asked to make their reservations for the dinner by tomorrow night at the Iowa Union desk.

Tuberculosis Film

"Clouds in the Sky," a picture depicting the results of tuberculosis, will be shown by Aila Hiltsunen, county nurse, to members of the North Liberty nursing committee tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in North Liberty school. Miss Hiltsunen will discuss "Prevention of Tuberculosis."

The Merchant's Middle Name Is "Charity"

By CHARLES BECKMAN

No one, unless he is himself a merchant, can fully realize how much heart, effort and charity there is in the merchant. Few days pass without some business man getting several pleas for help.

The lady who has asked him for help, and so often does it, is the Blank Church cook-book, has hardly gone out the door before another lady comes in with a similar request. And on her heels comes a solicitor for some good character. And after she goes away, and yet another. And then, at the service club luncheon, a collection is taken up for just one more worthy cause. And so it goes, day after day, year after year.

Now, know of no merchant here who objects to the practice of failing to contribute in even a pittance to the limit of his ability. All of them accept, as their civic responsibility, the job of keeping church and charity functioning. But it does grip them when, however reluctantly, they see local folks driving miles and miles to some other city, in order to save a dime on some dinky little purchase.

You might bear in mind, during this shopping season, that, without your local merchant, the local church and charity here would suffer sorely. And do your shopping accordingly.

Next week Mr. Beckman Funeral Home will comment on The Men Who Carry the Mail.

The Little Chapel Will Be Dedicated

Religious, Community Leaders Voice Their Approval

At 10:45 a.m. today, The Little Chapel in the Iowa City First Congregational church will be dedicated. The ceremony will take place in the main auditorium of the church.

Mr. John Nollen, president emeritus of Grinnell college, will deliver the dedicatory address. Many university and community religious leaders will take part.

Following is a symposium in which community and campus leaders express their approval and appreciation of the town's newest all-denominational place or meditation.

William H. Morgan, Protestant professor in the university school of religion:

"I venture that the quiet conclusion and simple, restful beauty of the Little Chapel will become the means by which an ever increasing number of people will find resources for life."

Rev. Elmer E. Diersk, president of the Iowa City Inter-Faith Council:

"This Little Chapel, near to the heart of the campus, fills a long-felt need. Thanks to the splendid spirit of fellowship in this city and on the campus, there will be a general disposition to encourage its use."

Mason Ladd, Dean of the college of law:

"In the busy life of the campus it is helpful to stop and think of the course which is being followed, to give direction in the process of spiritual growth. The Little Chapel is indeed a worthy undertaking."

Prof. M. Willard Lampe, administrative director of the school of the church of religion:

"After the university religious conference and emphasis week of two years ago, students were agreed that such a place as the Little Chapel was among the chief religious needs of the university and community."

Mrs. Carl E. Seashore, wife of Dean Emeritus Seashore and chairman of the Little Chapel committee:

"The Little Chapel is an intimate refuge for meditation and for prayer. Here we stress not the non-essential differences but the binding likeness of the common faith. The Chapel inspires reverence and worship."

Dr. Alexander C. Kern of the university English department and member of the board of directors of the YMCA:

"The pace of our lives is such that a fitting place for reverent thought and sincere worship is not only desirable, but necessary. This Chapel will greatly enrich the lives of our students."

Rev. Elmer E. Diersk, president of the Iowa City Inter-Faith Council:

"This Little Chapel, near to the heart of the campus, fills a long-felt need. Thanks to the splendid spirit of fellowship in this city and on the campus, there will be a general disposition to encourage its use."

Mason Ladd, Dean of the college of law:

"In the busy life of the campus it is helpful to stop and think of the course which is being followed, to give direction in the process of spiritual growth. The Little Chapel is indeed a worthy undertaking."

Rabbi Morris N. Kertzer, professor of religion at SU:

"I look upon the Little Chapel which has been introduced to our community as an invaluable spiritual asset for Iowa City and the university. In a world which offers us so little opportunity for self-analysis and quiet contemplation of the profound issues of life, it is almost indispensable that such a "Little Chapel" be made available for us. I look upon the chapel as a symbol for those who would pause in the precipitated rush of modern existence to contemplate life's meaning and thus strengthen our moral and spiritual being."

The Rev. Fr. Donald Hayne, Catholic chaplain and professor of religion:

"The idea of providing, in a religious atmosphere familiar to our non-Catholic students, a place open to them at all times for meditation and private prayer helps to fill a real and an increasingly urgent need. I trust that the Little Chapel may be much used by those for whom it is intended and I know, that if it is, much good will come from it in deepened personal concentration to the love and service of our common Father."

Adelaide L. Burge, Dean of Women:

"Almost within the shadow of Old Capitol we find the Little Chapel established at the request of our young people, indicating that in these troublous times there is a demand for an emphasis on spiritual values and a feeling of the need of the strength and inspiration that religion gives."

As an inter-denominational service in helping to meet this need by providing a retreat for meditation and prayer, in an atmosphere of reverence and beauty, the Little Chapel is a significant contribution to the life of our university community."

Rabbi Morris N. Kertzer, professor of religion at SU:

Plea Made for More Warm Clothing, Bedding for Britain

Sixty Local Women Knit to Fill Bundles; Plan Further Activity

Urgent need for more warm clothing and warm bedding is the message which comes from overseas to the local Bundles for Britain chapter.

Mrs. Winston Churchill cables, "most urgently required are navy blue pullovers with long sleeves, sea-boot stockings, gloves with fingers, and socks." Lady Reading in charge of civilian requirements asks for men's clothing, woolen underwear and warm bedding. Woolen blankets to be used in air raid shelters are greatly needed, the messages state.

Increasing interest in the Iowa City branch of the organization is indicated by growing contributions of money, clothing and household supplies.

Financial Receipts

Bundles for Britain, which was formed in October, reports financial receipts of $219.74 during its first month and an increase to $606.33 during November.

In addition $296.76, collected by a group of physicians in University hospital, purchased operating tables, instrument cabinets and a large assortment of surgical instruments to be sent overseas. Other funds have been used to buy wool for knitting warm garments, for hospital cots for children and additional medical equipment.

Funds have been raised by ingenious committees, which have held food sales, silver teas and bridge parties or have sold emblem pins, compacts, playing cards and Christmas greeting cards, sent here from New York headquarters. Students have swelled the receipts by sale of chrysanthemums and the distribution of penny boxes over the city. Rural and city clubs have given clothing and money.

Knitting

Sixty Iowa City women are knitting for Bundles for Britain. They have already sent one shipment of sweaters, scarfs, helmets, mittens, socks and sea-boot stockings.

Many are expected to follow the example of Mrs. R. M. Perkins, 1014 Woodlawn, who made a large wool blanket from bright pieces from her scrapbook. The edges of the squares of cloth were buttonholed and the pieces sewed together to make a warm coverlet.

The Iowa City chapter of Bundles for Britain meets each Thursday in the parish house of Trinity Episcopal church to pack crates of clothing, hear reports and make plans for further activity.

All members are urged to attend the meeting.

Mittens, socks and sea-boot stockings.

Officers of the Mercy Flanders society, C.A.R., are Donna Diane Rayner, president; Betty Lou Albert, recording secretary; Frances Foster, corresponding secretary; Shirley Sherburne, registrar; Jean Slavata, treasurer; Bonnie Ann Willets, color bearer, and Edith Slavata, historian.

Society Members

Members of the new society are Frances Jean Foster, Helen Shirley Foster, Bonnie Ann Willets and Betty Lou Willits, all of Muscatine; Marilyn Ann Agne, Mary Louise Witmer and Betty Lou Albert of Tipton; Donna Diane Rayner and Shirley Sherburne of Lone Tree; Jean Peet of Solon; Joanne Aker of Tipton; Michael Paine Hoffman of Glenwood, and Helen Jean Slavata, Edith Clair Slavata and Frances Hilliard of Iowa City.

A special guest at the organization was Mrs. J. Arthur Baker of Oskaloosa, C.A.R. deputy organizer.

Mercy Flanders, whose name was taken by the society, was the wife of Nathaniel Fellowes, a soldier in the American Revolution, whose burial place is marked on highway No. 6, west of Coralville.

Nathaniel Fellowes was the first Revolutionary soldier to die in Iowa and the only such veteran in Johnson county.

Clark Kuney to Portray the Great Emancipator at Long Last

By WALTER H. HOGAN

Seriously considered for the leading role in John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln," at the University of Maine, a freshman, was "practically heart-broken" when a senior was cast in the part.

And now, almost six years later, that freshman—Clark Kuney, now a graduate student of Iowa City, is going to portray the famous historical figure in University theater's production of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which opens tomorrow night for a run of six performances.

Prof. E. C. Mabie, head of the speech and dramatic arts department, is director of the Pulitzer prize play by Robert Sherwood. The opening tomorrow night climaxes five weeks of intensive rehearsals on the show in which over 200 people are involved.

Players

Other famous historical figures will be played by Lois Tallman, A2 of Iowa City, as Ann Rutledge; Ruth Weber, G of Columbus Junction, as Mary Todd, and Michael Enserro, G of Jamestown, as Stephen Douglas.

Miss Weber has long hair to make her "Mary Todd" curls, but Kuney had to stay away from a barber shop. Kuney, dark-haired, dark-eyed, and soft-voiced, smiled when he said, "Well, my hair grows fast. So I've just had to let it grow four weeks."

With his make-up under stage lights, Kuney's resemblance to the martyr president is amazing. Richard Segel, A1 of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, supervises "Abe's" make-up.

Experienced Actor

But Kuney is no newcomer to grease paint. Besides a number of major roles in his undergraduate career, he has worked two seasons with stock companies at New London, N. H., and at the Lakewood theater in Skowhegan, Maine. He has appeared in "Hedda Gabble," "He Who Gets Slapped," "Our Town," "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" and many others. "I think stock company training should be used to supplement university theater training and vice versa," Kuney said.

From Lakewood theater, Kuney came here last year and made his debut as Father Shaughnessy in "The White Steed." Last summer he appeared as Capt. Tony Dale in "American Landscape."

Nor is Lincoln his only historical role. In an experimental production of Robert Whitehead's "Return to Exile," Kuney was Andrew Jackson.

Ambition

Acting is not Kuney's sole ambition. He wants to be a university and community theater director, and turn to playwriting during summers. Several of his one-act plays were produced experimentally at Maine.

Kuney's role as Lincoln is part of his thesis for a master of fine arts degree. He is studying here as a result of his being given a $1,000 award by the national theater conference.

In Every Scene

Kuney appears in every one of the play's 12 scenes, which keep the stage crew and revolving stage busy, for with nine different sets, a new setting is required each time.

Of the role originally played by Raymond Massey, Kuney said, "The part presents the same problems as if you were playing Christ. You can't play it in such a way

Lincoln and a woman famous for her role in his life are pictured above in a scene from University theater's production of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," opening tomorrow night for a run of six performances. Lois Tallman, A2 of Iowa City, will appear as Ann Rutledge and Clark Kuney, G of Iowa City, as Abe Lincoln. Seat reservations may still be made for tomorrow night's performance in room 8A, Schaeffer hall or at the box office.

Medical Society

Announces 1941 Essay Contest

Rules and regulations governing the Mississippi Valley Medical Society's 1941 essay contest on any subject of general medical interest have been received, the administrative office of University hospitals announces.

The society offers annually a cash-prize of $100, a gold medal and a certificate of award for the best unpublished essay on any subject of general medical interest.

The winner will be invited to present his contribution before the next annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Medical Society.

That you'll please everybody." Then he ran his fingers through his "Lincoln" hair. "But it is a swell opportunity for acting."

et at Cedar Rapids, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 1941. The society reserves the exclusive right to publish the essay first in its official publication, the Mississippi Valley Medical Journal.

Contributions must not exceed 5,000 words, must be in manuscript form, submitted in five copies and be received not later than May 1, 1941.

The winning essay of the 1940 contest appears in the January, 1941, issue of the journal.

Further details of the 1941 contest may be secured from Dr. Harold Swanberg, secretary, Mississippi Valley Medical Society, 209-224 WCU building, Quincy, Ill.

Pediatrics Problems

Dr. Jackson Urges Attention to Vitamins In Children's Diets

"Diet problems are the most common complaints brought to the attention of the pediatrics today," said Dr. Robert L. Jackson, pediatrics instructor of the college of medicine, at a meeting of the Child Study club yesterday. The organization met for a luncheon and business meeting at 12:45 p.m. in Iowa Union.

"This does not necessarily mean an insufficient amount of food, but too much food with not enough attention to the vitamins, Dr. Jackson explained.

"Mothers should not be influenced by individualistic opinions of commercialists which tend to be biased, but should be guided by specialists so that the physical conditions, as well as emotional and social status of the child are understood."

"The pediatrics department has a close relationship to the child welfare group and to the child psychologists. A whole study of the child, both mentally deficient or normal, is undertaken by the pediatrics to understand the pathological developments," he concluded.

Mrs. Dean Lierle reviewed, "Consider the Child and How It Grows," by Manswell and Fahs.

"The underlying philosophy of Thanksgiving day, Christmas and the subjects of birth and death should be explained early to the child so that the observations of such may be better comprehended when he grows older," stated Mrs. Lierle.

A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Arnold Small,

In a basketball unveiling that has probably never been surpassed for thoroughness, Coach Rollie Williams exposed his 1940-41 Hawkeye cage team, and its countless substitutes to the gaze of 2,500 spectators at Iowa fieldhouse last night and saw his charges set a new Hawkeye scoring record by pasting little Monmouth college, 75-35.

Scots Were Weak

Against competition that would be little better than a quintet picked at random out of the freshman class, the Hawkeyes had little trouble surpassing the former mark of 62 points, set in the Illinois game last winter.

Taking the game's events in chronological order, it can be found that Williams' boys handled the Scots in very easy style, were never even faintly threatened and could probably have added a couple dozen more points.

The Hawkeyes, with Capt. Vic Siegel and big Milt Kuhl as pacemakers, scored nine points before the Scots counted their first basket, and had a lead of 38-8 at halftime and then rolled along just as easily until the final minutes.

The last part of the game was the signal for a scene of wholesale substitution on Williams' part, with everyone except Williams and Assistant Coach Pops Harrison getting in for a few minutes. All told, the Iowa coach used 17 players, including four centers, six guards and seven forwards.

Team Shows Power

Although the woefully weak Monmouth team failed to give the Hawks a test that could be called conclusive, it must be admitted that Williams' squad did show potentialities, especially in its first strong lineup.

Working around Kuhl, who dominated the rebounds and tossed in a total of 13 points in less than half of the total playing time, the Iowa starters gave a few glimpses of what seems to be real scoring power.

Guards Score

The guards, especially, must have given Williams a few pleasant moments. The Iowa back court combination of recent years have been impatient in the scoring department, but there was no sign of such weakness last night as Rudy Soderquist opened his junior season auspiciously by carrying four field goals for eight points and Paul Siglin added five markers from the other guard post.

Chapman Looks Good

Among the reserves, who have occasioned some concern on the part of the Iowa coaches, there appeared to be some improvement, with Tom Chapman, the aggressive forward from Storm Lake, dropping in nine points, and several other second team members, including Wild Willie Wheeler, showing up well. Ben Trickey, only sophomore on the starting quintet, worked smoothly on the floor and managed to count three buckets for a point total of six. For the losers, the outstanding performer was Berstead, who counted 11 points from a guard position.

In their second start of the year, the Hawkeyes are scheduled to face Wabash here Friday night.

Ramblers Journey to Dubuque

Sueppel's Marians Tangle With Loras Academy at Dubuque Tomorrow

St. Mary's Ramblers go to Dubuque tomorrow evening to meet Loras academy's eagles in the Loras college fieldhouse. The game is a preliminary contest to the Loras-college-University of Arkansas tilt. Both games will be broadcast over station WKBE, Dubuque, at 7:15.

Coach Francois Sueppel's Marians run up against strong competition in Loras, consolation champions in the National Catholic high school basketball tournament the last year and runners-up in the state meet.

Loras boasts a strong ball club again this year with many of last year's regulars returning. They also have the psychological edge of the game insofar as the Ramblers have never been able to come back from Dubuque with a victory.

On the other hand, the Iowa City team has an enviable early season record with wins over St. Mary's of Muscatine, Catholic Central High of Ottumwa and Catholic Central of Ft. Madison. Sueppel's basketeers trounced Muscatine 53 to 7 in the season's

Joe Pasqua Kicks S. M. U. To 7 to 6 Victory Over Rice

Mustangs Only Gain
27 Yards Running;
Score On Pass

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 7 (AP)—A guy named Joe kicked Southern Methodist university into tie with the Texas Aggies for the Southwest conference championship today and ruined the last chapter of Rice's football season.

Rice was leading 6-0, after rolling far downfield in five great surges, when the Methodists scored in the fourth period.

Then Joe Pasqua, big tackle, came into the game and sailed the ball above the crossbars to give SMU a 7-6 victory.

Except for the one offensive burst by SMU, Rice was far the better team today, rolling up 190 yards on the ground as it drove goalward five times. The Mus-

AGGIES ACCEPT BID

WACO, Tex., Dec. 7 (AP)—Once-beaten Texas A. and M., co-champion of the Southwest conference, was named host team for the Cotton bowl post-season game at Dallas against Fordham on New Year's day.

Dr. Henry Trantham of Baylor university, president of the southwest conference, said that A. and M. had accepted the invitation extended by the conference.

Southern Methodist university won a share of the title today by defeating Rice Institute, 7-6, but had informed Dr. Trantham before the game that in the event it defeated Rice, it would waive its claim on the Cotton bowl classic in favor of the Aggies.

The Aggies defeated S.M.U., 19-7, five weeks ago.

tangs' net running yardage was 27 yards. But Rice wound up in a deadlock with Texas university for third and fourth places in the conference scrap.

Southern Methodist's winning touchdown came on a great passing exhibition which began on its own 15.

Ray Mallouf, quarterback, pitched five passes to carry the Methodists practically the entire 85 yards to the Rice goal-line. The first three, one to Red McClain and two to Bill Mullenweg, backs, gained 55 yards to the Rice 30. Then Mallouf found Mullenweg with another heave on the 9. McClain gained four yards on a reverse and Mallouf shot the touchdown pass to E. L. Kefon, end.

Rice scored in the second. Halfback Dick Dwelle intercepted a pass on his five and raced to the Owl 26. Then he sailed a shaft to Bob Brumley, Rice's powerhouse fullback, on the 44.

The touchdown came on the next play, with Dwelle fading far back and tossing a long pass to little Barron Ellis, halfback, who raced across standing up.

Brumley had no chance to attempt the extra point because of a poor pass from center.

Michigan 'Too Good'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Matt Mann, University of Michigan swimming coach, returned yesterday from the Western conference meetings at Chicago with only two Big Ten meets on the schedule of his championship team.

"Michigan is out of Big Ten football because it was no good," said Mann grimly. "Michigan is out of Big Ten swimming because it is too good."

In their second start of the year, the Hawkeyes are scheduled to face Wabash here Friday night.

State Positions Open for 1941

Written Examinations To Be Offered In January for 43 Jobs

Written examinations will be conducted in January, 1941, for positions in four state agencies.

Agencies are (1) department of social welfare (2) states services for crippled children (3) unemployment compensation commission and (4) department of health, the state merit system council announced.

Applicants must secure application blanks and have them filed with the merit system supervisor on or before Dec. 21, 1940. Mailed applications must be postmarked before midnight of the closing date.

Qualifications

Applicants must be citizens of the United States and have been residents of Iowa for at least two years prior to appointment.

Application blanks may be obtained from any public employment service office in Iowa or by writing to L. W. Mahone, merit system supervisor, 627 Insurance Exchange building, Des Moines. No applications will be accepted unless upon official form.

Eligible candidates will be notified of the time and place of the examinations. Written examinations will be held on a Saturday after Jan. 1, 1941, in the following cities:

Burlington, Cedar Rapids, Council Bluffs, Davenport, Des Moines, Dubuque, Ft. Dodge, Mason City, Ottumwa, Sioux City and Waterloo.

Positions

Forty-three positions for which examinations will be given include social welfare workers, social welfare supervisor, county directors, child welfare worker, supervisor, consultant and director, accountants, clerks, statisticians, stenographers, business manager, business equipment operators, telephone operator, property counselors and insurance analyst.

Detailed information concerning these positions and salaries may be obtained at any Iowa public employment service office or by writing to the merit system supervisor.

Driver Posts $500 Bond In Traffic Court

Ervin Letts, 213 S. Madison, posted a $500 bond yesterday and was bound over to the grand jury by Police Judge Burke N. Carson on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Sam K. Lane, 816 N. Dubuque, was arrested Friday night on a reckless driving charge after his automobile collided with an auto driven by B. W. Eiler, 808 Hudson, at the corner of Iowa avenue and Gilbert Lane will be tried in police court tomorrow.

Ruth Irons, 728 E. Washington, a passenger in Lane's car, suffered bruises and was taken to Mercy hospital. She was discharged yesterday.

The impact of the collision carried Lane's car across the street where it struck the side of the Mary V. Saunders residence, 409 Iowa avenue.

Two other cases were tried in the Saturday session of police court. Charles Dainen, Winnipeg, Canada, and Wayne Henneberger, Austin, Texas, were arraigned on speeding charges. Dainen was fined $2 and $1 costs while Henneberger was fined $1.

For the first lady on your Christmas gift list . . . a Saybury housecoat, featured in the December Mademoiselle and Vogue and shown in all their finery on STRUB'S FASHION FLOOR. A gift of youthful glamour . . . a Saybury . . . She'll stay at home and like it in a beautiful Saybury. You don't have to guess . . . you can be sure she wants one. Why? Because if there is anything a woman prizes above all else, it is the thought of looking beautiful, not just for her public, but for her family, her friends . . . in all her leisure hours. These are housecoats to wrap her in luxury. Marvelous gift pieces with the glamour, the glory, the beauty of line that will thrill her on Christmas morn . . . Every robe is named romantically and fittingly, as: Leopard Lady, Picture Plaid, Lazy Lovely, Femme Fatale, Pick Pocket, Warmest Wishes, Bermuda Garen, or Dinner for Two . . . STRUB'S housecoats are so lovely, they're easily mistaken for formal gowns. Trimmed with soft velvet, slippery satin and leopard skin, milady will wear her Saybury for dinner, for bridge, or to entertain her friends in the evening. You'll be astonished to see these flattering, gorgeous housecoats so reasonably priced . . . from $6.95 to $12.95 . . . on STRUB'S FASHION FLOOR.

There is something new in compacts! And TOWNER'S exclusively handles one of the most original of the originals.

It's featured in the latest Mademoiselle . . . the answer to your shopping worries . . . for it not only solves your "what-to-get" problem but will add a definite air of originality to the giver.

The vanity is molded to resemble a water-color box that you used to carry to grade school, if you can remember. The rouge of various shades fits into round containers to imitate the water colors, the eyebrow pencil is your drawing apparatus, the brush your painting utensil. Lined up beside powder on t'other side are three lipsticks, done up oil-tube like. It's the cutest novelty we've seen in years.

Buy her one and she'll love you even more for not only being thoughtful but original as well.
