

Local Auto Battered While Passing Through Storm Center

Huddled in an automobile while the Victor cyclone last night drove stories and pieces of timber virtually through its body and hood and toppled a telephone pole onto the rear of the car, Mrs. Victor Keul and Agnes O'Leary, Iowa City, somehow managed to escape the fury of the mid-west's first major spring storm.

Tornado Sweeping From North Wrecks 4 City Blocks at Victor

By DONALD OHL

Sweeping down from the northwest, cyclonic winds and hail demolished about four blocks in the residential district of Victor, a town of 800 population about 12 miles west of Marengo, and seriously injured at least three persons.

Lasting for about 10 minutes the high-velocity winds ripped up buildings, trees, poles and tossed a car into a telephone pole, injuring an elderly couple.

The couple who were in the hospital last night were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Weisskopf. Fred Murray, operator of a filling station, was also in a hospital suffering from injuries when his station was wrecked.

The storm struck hardest in the western residential district, it was reported, broken windows being the main damage in the business district.

Huge Hailstones Hailstones up to two inches in diameter also caused a great deal of damage in conjunction with one-half inch of rain which fell in a few minutes.

The automobile of Highway Patrolman Kermit Rhodes was said to be wrecked by the hail.

In Marengo, on the edge of the storm area, it was reported that windows in business houses, the county courthouse and many residences were broken by wind and hail.

Assisted With First Aid

First hand knowledge of the Victor storm was obtained by The Daily Iowan in an interview last night with Mrs. Victor Keul and Agnes O'Leary. The women, university hospital field nurses, assisted in first aid work following the storm.

According to the local women, the cyclone came upon them suddenly as they drove into Victor. "We could hear the roar of the wind and see the black clouds in the northwest, but we couldn't get out of the way."

Returning from a field trip through the north part of the state they said they had driven for about an hour in heavy rain and hail, but hadn't expected any real storm. They were on their way to Iowa City to attend the annual Public Health banquet here.

"The anticipation was the awful part," Mrs. Keul reported, "when the wind hit, we were trapped. All we could do was sit in the car and wait."

Although the car which the women were driving sheltered them from any injuries, it was damaged from flying debris and from a telephone pole which fell on the rear of the car.

Relief "It was a relief when the pole hit the car," she said. "The suspense was so terrific, that when something did happen, we felt that the worst of the storm had come."

Explaining that the force of the wind almost tipped their car, Mrs. Keul said that the first damage they saw was when a filling station was blown away.

"The first heavy blast of wind that hit near us, picked up the station and the attendant, Fred Murray, and tossed them about 60 feet."

She said that Murray who was badly hurt was very unconcerned about his injuries. "He was worried more about the damage to his station and the loss of his cash box," she said.

Lack of concern by most of the residents particularly impressed the two women. Several people standing nearby failed to offer any assistance as the two nurses and a doctor administered first aid to Murray, they said.

"Although the wind only lasted for about 10 minutes, it seemed like hours," she said. "It came in quick gusts, swirling down one side of the street and then the other."

According to Mrs. Keul most of the damage was centered on one side of the street. She said that a filling station across from Murray's apparently was undamaged.

From Garage to Kindling She said the storm took many queer turns. At one place a garage had been crumpled into a pile of kindling and the car was still standing on the platform.

She said she saw houses pushed over and many small buildings and sheds crumpled. Trees were uprooted and were lying across sidewalks and streets. The air was filled with sticks and boards from the buildings.

Mrs. Keul said that after the storm, which struck about 5 o'clock, she and Miss O'Leary helping a Victor doctor give first aid to several persons, had to do so without equipment or light.

"All the lights were out and the only illumination we had to work by was a flashlight held by some boys." Three persons were seriously hurt, she reported, and they were all taken to the Grinnell hospital.

After two hours of first aid work the women returned to Iowa City, again driving in hail and rain. "Many small buildings and sheds along the way were des-

Greek Troops Forced to Retreat In Biggest Battle of Balkan War

Germans Fail To Pierce Main British Front

ATHENS, April 18 (Friday) (AP)—Greek soldiers engaged in the biggest battle of the Balkan war have been forced to retreat as a result of the "increased power of German troops" and the "situation is developing unfavorably," an authoritative spokesman declared early today.

These reports said British, Australian and New Zealand troops have inflicted enormous casualties on the Germans who have been thrown into the fray, it was asserted, regardless of losses.

While these reports were received in Athens, an authoritative Greek spokesman declared that Greek forces battling at an undisclosed part of the front had been forced to retreat in face of the "increased power of German troops."

Situation Unfavorable This spokesman said the Greek situation was "developing unfavorably."

Mount Olympus is on the eastern hinge of the battle line which apparently extends from the Adriatic to the Aegean seas.

Australian troops holding part of the line in the Mount Olympus sector have been particularly heavily engaged.

The famous Olympus pass itself is held by New Zealanders.

So far the Germans have failed to make a single dent in the main British front, reports indicated, but Nazi advances on the left flank, south of Monastir (Bitolj), Yugoslavia, say might force rectification of the line.

The Greek spokesman said that "the uneasiness and regret regarding the military situation is justified. The struggle against two empires which was imposed upon us by Germany could not last indefinitely."

The officer of a well-known British mechanized regiment, commenting on the violent fighting now underway, said that "tank for tank, we are better than the Germans."

3 Billion Tax Plan Proposed To Congress

Both Parties' Leaders Approve of Raises; New Levies Likely

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP)—A tremendous new tax program designed to add $3,500,000,000 to the government's annual income, perhaps by increasing virtually all present tax rates and assessing new levies as well, was proposed by the administration today—with both republican and democratic leaders approving.

Details of the program remained to be worked out, but Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was authoritatively reported to have advocated raising all present tax rates—income, excess profits, excise, etc.—from 25 to 50 per cent higher than existing levels. The present individual income tax rate is 4.4 per cent; the corporation income tax is 24 per cent.

Excise Taxes In addition to boosts "all along the line," the treasury plan was said also to include several additional excise taxes, such as levies on washing machines, radios and other so-called luxury objects not now taxed.

Whether or not the treasury program is adopted in detail, most sources considered that a big jump in the income tax levies, possibly accompanied by a reduction in exemptions, was a foregone conclusion. Increases in the liquor and other excise taxes, in the excess profits tax and in the estate and gift taxes were considered likely too.

'Can't Be Ruled Out' Although one source said the treasury plan did not include a general sales tax, others indicated such a possibility could not be ruled out definitely.

Explaining that President Roosevelt had already approved the idea of raising $3,500,000,000 of new taxes, and would soon discuss the subject with the people, Secretary Morgenthau outlined the plan to leading members of the house and senate committees in charge of taxes. They, too, agreed that it was necessary to impose taxes to raise the money.

With the vast contemplated expenditures for defense and assistance to England, it was expected that the government would spend $19,000,000,000 in the fiscal year that begins on July 1. It was thought best that at least two thirds of this amount be raised by taxes.

Londoners Dig Out of Debris Left By Heaviest Nazi Air Raid of War

LONDON, April 17 (AP)—Londoners dug for their dead and the entombed living tonight in the smoldering wreckage of the war.

The overnight horror was produced by swarms of bombers, apparently as many as it was physically possible for the German high command to fling against the city.

Authoritative British sources said at least 400 persons were continuously attacking for eight hours, declaring, "they just wouldn't have had fields to fly from or room to fly if they had been any more."

GMC Given Strike Notice

Stoppage Threatened At 61 Plants as CIO Pact Expires Sunday

DETROIT, April 17 (AP)—R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), announced tonight that his union, which only Saturday concluded a 10-day strike at the Ford Motor company, was filing a five-day notice of intention to strike against General Motors corporation.

A one-year union-corporation agreement on wages and working conditions expires Sunday, and Thomas said that a strike, "if necessary," would be carried out to enforce UAW-CIO demands for a new proposed agreement.

The present agreement covers more than three score General Motors plants in the nation employing upwards of 175,000 men. Thomas pointed out that the strike notice involved only Michigan plants, of which there are 30-odd.

Asked if strikes would follow in all GM plants in the country if one were called in Michigan, the union president said, however, "It (the strike) will probably be called in all of them."

A short time before Thomas' announcement of the filing of a strike notice the UAW-CIO headquarters here declared that local unions covering 61 General Motors plants were being instructed to take strike votes by next Thursday.

Bill to Curb Defense Strikes Passed by House Committee

'Cooling-Off' Period, 'Freezing' of Existing Shop Status Endorsed

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP)—A bill to curb defense strikes by requiring a 25-day "cooling off" period and by "freezing" existing closed or open shop arrangements was endorsed unanimously today by the house naval committee and sent to the house floor.

It would require defense contractors and their employees to try to settle differences around the conference table. If that failed, either side could invoke the services of the labor department conciliation service and if a settlement were not reached within five days, either party could call on the national defense mediation board for assistance.

The board then would study the controversy and make still further attempts at settlement and would be required to make public its "report with any recommendations" within 20 days. If the disagreement continued, a strike or lockout could begin.

The closed shop section says that where such a shop exists it "should continue" but "where union and nonunion employees now work together, the continuance of such condition should not be deemed a grievance."

Act Regarded as End Of Nation's Existence

BERLIN, April 18 (Friday) (AP)—Germany announced early today the unconditional capitulation of the remaining fighting units of the Yugoslav army and declared fighting had stopped on all Yugoslav fronts.

The capitulation is effective at noon Friday (4 a.m. C.S.T.), it was stated in a DNB, official German news agency, dispatch. Weapons then will be formally surrendered, it was said.

Negotiations for the Yugoslavs to lay down their arms were made exclusively with Serb military authorities. The Germans have said in effect that no Yugoslav government existed, so the capitulation of the army also was regarded as the end of the little World war-born kingdom.

No Return to Work Until Dispute Settled With Southern Group

NEW YORK, April 17 (AP)—The policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) voted early tonight not to send miners back into the nation's soft coal mines until wage disputes with southern Appalachian coal operators could be settled.

Although the committee approved a contract negotiated yesterday and ready for signature by the union and northern Appalachian operators, John L. Lewis, union president, said that the committee "deemed it inadvisable for the mine workers to divide their forces and expose our membership in the south to economic sanctions that would be imposed upon them by the coal operators in the southern districts."

Lewis Replies to Operators Lewis also announced that he had replied to the southern group, who set up a separate negotiating conference in Washington after bolting the joint conference here last week, that the union would resume negotiations with them but "without stipulations or without prior commitments."

The southern group, earlier, had suggested that the union representative meet their negotiators in Washington and negotiate a separate contract on the basis of the southern group's proposal to increase wages 11 per cent.

Second Request Lewis again requested the southern group to come to New York tomorrow morning "for the purpose of making an agreement and effectuating an early resumption of coal production."

The union chieftain said he was advised that the federal government had been informed by "responsible agents" that the "key to the situation rests with only two companies and two individuals" in the south, although 13 coal associations bolted the conference.

Nazi troops are meeting tougher opposition in Greece than they had to overcome in Yugoslavia, however, German sources admitted, reporting that heavy fighting still was going on with the British in the Mount Olympus region.

Foreign office observers coupled this offensive with Wednesday night's air raid on London.

The Speeches of Winston Churchill— "THEIR FINEST HOUR"

The speeches of Winston Churchill, wartime Prime Minister of England, may well go down in history as among the most stirring, the most eloquent the world ever has known. No man has demonstrated a greater knowledge and appreciation of the language of his birth. No man has used the language more effectively.

Among Churchill's speeches, which are now available to us in bound form through the courtesy of three leading Canadian newspapers, are several which reach pinnacles of poetic beauty, even as they deal with the cold realities of war against the Island kingdom.

We re-print this morning Churchill's statement of Parliament of June 18, 1940, dealing with the collapse of France. This is the first presentation of a general series of the speeches of Churchill. This, we believe, is a masterpiece of literature. So too will be many of the others.

The German army had smashed through Weygand's defense to Paris, and Italy had entered the war. President Roosevelt had promised all possible aid from America. Petain had sued for peace. Bear in mind that as Churchill rose to address the House on this occasion, the first bombs of the Battle of England had yet to fall on that Island fortress.

I spoke the other day of the colossal military disaster which occurred when the French High Command failed to withdraw the northern armies from Belgium at a moment when they knew that the French front was decisively broken at Sedan and on the Meuse.

This delay entailed the loss of 15 or 16 French divisions and threw out of action the whole of the British Expeditionary Force.

Our armies were indeed rescued by the British Navy from Dunkerque, but only with the loss of all their cannon, vehicles and modern equipment. This loss inevitably took some weeks to repair, and in the first two of these weeks the Battle of France had been lost.

When we consider the heroic resistance made by the French Army against heavy odds in this battle, and the enormous loss inflicted upon the enemy and the evident exhaustion of the enemy, it might well be thought that these 25 divisions of the best troops—best trained and equipped—might have turned the scales. However, General Weygand had to fight without them.

Only three British divisions or their equivalent were able to stand in the line with their French comrades. They have suffered severely, but they have fought well. We sent every man we could to France, as fast as we could re-equip and transport their formations.

I am not reciting these facts for the purpose of recrimination. That I judge to be utterly futile and even harmful. We cannot afford it. I recite them in order to explain why it was we did not have, as we could have had, between 12 and 14 British divisions fighting in the line in this battle instead of only three.

Now I put all this aside. I put it on the shelf from which the historians may select their documents in order to tell their story. We have to think of the future and not of the past. This also applies in a small way to our own affairs at home.

There are many who wish to hold an inquest upon the conduct of the government and of Parliament during the years which led up to this catastrophe. They wish to indict those who were responsible for the guidance of our affairs.

This also would be a foolish and pernicious process. There are too many in it. Let each man search his conscience and search his speeches, as I frequently search mine. Of this I am quite sure, that if we open a quarrel between the past and the present we shall find that we have lost the future.

It seems quite clear that no invasion on a scale beyond the capacity of our ground forces to crush speedily is likely to take place from the air until our air force has been definitely overpowered. In the meantime, there may be raids by parachute troops and attempted descents by air-borne soldiers. We ought to be able to give those gentry a warm reception, both in the air and if they reach the ground in any condition to continue their dispute. The great question is, can we break Hitler's air weapon?

Now, of course, it is a very great pity that we have not got an air force at least equal to that of the most powerful enemy within reach of our shores, but we have a very powerful air force, which has proved itself far superior in quality both in men and in many types of machines to what we have met so far in the numerous fierce air battles which have been fought.

In France, where we were at a considerable disadvantage and lost many machines on the ground in the airdromes, we were accustomed to inflict upon the enemy a loss of two to two-and-a-half to one. In the fighting over Dunkerque, which was a sort of No Man's Land, we undoubtedly gained a local mastery of the air and inflicted on the German Air Force losses on the scale of three or four to one.

Any one looking at the photographs of the re-embarkation, showing the masses of troops assembled on the beaches, affording an ideal target for hours at a time, must realize that this embarkation would not have been possible unless the enemy had resigned all hope of recovery of air superiority at that point.

In these Islands the advantage to the defenders will be very great. We ought to improve upon that rate of three or four to one, which was realized at Dunkerque.

I look forward confidently to the exploits of our fighter pilots, who will have the glory of saving their native land and our island home from the most deadly of all attacks.

There remains the danger of the bombing attacks, which will certainly be made very soon upon us by the bomber forces of the enemy. It is quite true that these forces are superior in number to ours, but we have a very large bombing force also which we shall use to strike at the military targets in Germany without intermission.

I do not at all underrate the severity of the ordeal which lies before us, but I believe that our countrymen will show themselves capable of standing up to it and carrying on in spite of it at least as well as any other people in the world.

It will depend upon themselves and every man and woman will have the chance of showing the finest qualities of their race and of rendering the highest service to their cause.

For all of us, whatever our sphere or station, it will be a help to remember the famous lines:

"Ye nothing common did or mean,
Upon the memorable scene."

Therefore in casting up this dread balance sheet and contemplating our dangers with a disillusioned eye, I see great reasons for intense exertion and vigilance, but none whatever for panic or despair.

During the first four months of the last war the Allies experienced nothing but disaster and disappointment, and yet at the end their morale was higher than that of the Germans, who had moved from one aggressive triumph to another.

During that war we repeatedly asked ourselves the question, "How are we going to win?" and no one was ever able to answer it with much precision, until at the end, quite suddenly and unexpectedly, our terrible foe collapsed before us and we were so glutted with victory that in our folly we cast it away.

We do not yet know what will happen in France or whether the French resistance will be prolonged both in France and in the French Empire overseas. The French Government will be throwing away great opportunities and casting away their future if they do not continue the war in accordance with their treaty obligations, from which we have not felt able to release them.

If we are now called upon to endure what they have suffered, we shall emulate their courage, and if final victory rewards our toils they shall share the gain—aye, freedom shall be restored to all. We abate nothing of our just demands. Czechs, Poles, Norwegians, Dutch and Belgians, who have joined their causes with our own, all shall be restored.

What General Weygand called the Battle of France is over. The Battle of Britain is about to begin. On this battle depends the survival of Christian civilization.

Upon it depends our own British life and the long continuity of our institutions and our Empire. The whole fury and might of the enemy must very soon be turned upon us. Hitler knows he will have to break us in this Island or lose the war.

If we can stand up to him all Europe may be freed and the life of the world may move forward into broad sunlight; but if we fail, the whole world, including the United States and all that we have known and cared for, will sink into the abyss of a new dark age made more sinister and perhaps more prolonged by the lights of a perverted science.

Let us therefore brace ourselves to our duty and so bear ourselves that if the British Commonwealth and Empire last for a thousand years, men will still say "This was their finest hour."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

Gregory LaCava And Preston Foster

By ROBBIN COGNS
HOLLYWOOD — The refreshing thing about Gregory LaCava is that he doesn't consider (out loud, anyway) that the pictures he directs are monumental.

He was sitting around the set the other day, chinning with Preston Foster during one of those waits between scenes.

"It's bad enough to make pictures," said LaCava, grinning, "without having to see 'em." And that reminded him of an experience with his own "Stage Door," a film highly lauded, and one which helped Ginger Rogers on her climb from hoofing roles.

When the picture was finished, he got a glimpse of it after the first rough cutting job. Then he went to New York to relax in the congenial company of a newspaper friend. The friend had heard about "Stage Door" and wanted to catch it.

One thing led to another, but never to "Stage Door." On the last day of LaCava's visit, the two set out again to see the picture. But New York is a large and inviting city, and on that day, as always, there were invitations and intriguing byways to counter. When they eventually arrived at "Stage Door," it was too late to get into the swing of it, and LaCava has yet to see what audiences saw in his movie.

LaCava cast Foster for "Unfinished Business," with Irene Dunne and Robert Montgomery, after running off, a minor Foster epic called "News Is Made at Night," the only picture recently in which Foster has worn conventional clothes of the day.

And during their chinning, LaCava told Foster what Jack Kelly, the casting man, had said of his recent work. It was: "This Foster's fine; better than he's ever been."

To which LaCava said he replied: "Is he? I wouldn't know. Never saw him in a picture before."

Foster's comeback was just as broad.

"I can name a few of my pictures that it's lucky for me you didn't see. If you had, I wouldn't be in this one."

Foster, with no more illusions than Greg LaCava about the illusion business they're both in, constantly is amazed at the number of bad pictures he seems to have survived. Sometimes, after a run of actor-killing movies, Foster has wondered about the advisability of turning to more prosaic, stable work than acting. But luck has been with him. Lately he has had, if not a run, at least a fast walk of box-office movies.

"And don't let anybody kid you—or me," he always says. "It's luck."

Luck? Maybe. Having no delusions about his "art" and cherishing a hearty business attitude toward the movies, Foster manages to be "the type" for a variety of types. It's not too soon, after his nine or ten years on the movie rack, to guess that he'll stay around awhile.

Letting Sub-Contracts For Defense Goods

WASHINGTON—A new defense speed up scheme based on sub-contracting is about to be sprung. Messrs. Knudsen, Biggers, and Mehornay slipped off to Boston a few days ago to work out a New England angle. A sub-contracting organization started by the defense contract service commissioner, Robert L. Mehornay, is nearly completed. Its 36 district offices will be opened shortly in federal reserve and branch banks. District managers (local business men all) are being chosen for these salaried jobs to work under 13 coordinators who will receive $1 a year. The idea is to cut every possible defense contract down by sub-contracts to a point where every critical machine in the country is working 24 hours a day.

It sounds good, yet a number of officials in the defense commission and most of the war department are against it, or but mildly interested. That is, they are against forcing defense contractors to make sub-contracts and believe that unless force is used there will be little sub-contracting. They contend convincingly that forced sub-contracting would break every contract they have, relieving the defense manufacturer of personal responsibility for fulfillment of orders on time. In their view it would promote delay rather than speed.

ABOUT INCREASES IN STEEL PRICES—The new dealers are going to stick to their argument against further increases in steel prices, despite wage increases—until public interest dies down at least. They figure this way:

Net earnings of the steel industry last year amounted to $281,000,000. The 10 cent an hour increase, applied to the 603,000 employees of the industry on a 40 hour week basis would cost $125,424,000 a year—not counting overtime. This means roughly the earnings of the steel industry would be cut in half by the wage increases.

The new dealers have an idea the earnings, cut will be even less because of expanded operations since the middle of last year. By taking the last half 1940 earnings, they boost their earnings estimates for this year up to $360,000,000. On that basis they conclude the wage increase will cut earnings only $46,000,000—roughly one seventh.

But what the new dealers are overlooking entirely is the tax increase shortly to be enacted by congress. Some new deal senators have said publicly this tax increase should be 100%, in which case steel, coal and all the other industries in which wage increases recently have been negotiated will find themselves again in the red (steel was in it five of the last 10 years.)

HIGHER PRICES COMING—One manufacturer caught in this vise of increasing wages against an immovable price ceiling has been complaining the only alternative offered him by the government's course is whether to turn his business over to Hitler or Henderson. Another is insisting Mr. Roosevelt has amended his promise that no one would make a profit out of defense to read: "No one except labor unions, shall profit from defense." Even workers will pay a portion of their increased earnings to the government in increased taxes, but the unions pay no taxes. When defense money reaches them, it sticks.

A dangerous threat to capitalism would be presented by this wage-price squeeze play if the new dealers were permanently afloat. But it has always been considered good temporary politics for statesmen to favor wage increases and oppose price increases, just as they favor government expenditures and oppose taxes. The taxes usually come along later, when public attention has been diverted from the cause.

"CORNER DRUGGIST" by Robert B. Nixon, Jr.; (Prentice-Hall; $2.50)

There are people today who never saw a real drug store, usually a cool, dusky place full of rich smells and gossip. There might be a good deal of medicine of some of them, but at least it was possible to reach the prescription counter without tripping over electric toasters for $1.89.

Robert B. Nixon's father worked in a good many old fashioned drug stores, and owned a few. Mr. Nixon tells his father's story, and oddly enough, there is a moral in it. The moral, as deduced from "Corner Druggist," is that the soda fountain and general business which occupies so much space these days is often the salvation of the druggist.

Anyway—"Corner Druggist" is full of the quaint adventures of the man who fills the prescription your doctor gave you. Or just as likely, who gives you what you need and saves you the doctor's bill. Such as the time Nixon Pere heard a woman screaming down the block, knew she had a paralytic husband, and dashed to the rescue. She was bleeding to death from varicose veins as her helpless husband watched. He stopped the flow, left the proper medicines, and next morning the medicines were returned for credit. And not even a thank you.

The elder Nixon worked in every sort of neighborhood, too. Some of his most startling experiences were Tenderloin experiences. Some were from more peaceful districts, however—such as the woman who bought sulphuric acid to throw on her husband's inamorata, and did throw it. Mr. Nixon had guessed what it was, however, and had diluted the mixture to harmlessness.

It would not be fair to the reader to leave it at this, however. "Corner Druggist" is full of good material, but it is padded out of all reason with personal reminiscences of the central character, who was an "original." It is also badly organized, jumping from year to year and back again so nimbly that the reader has most of the time, no idea whatever which town or what time is under discussion.

Harrow said, as an example of another practical use, "Oil companies use the gravity survey to determine the location of oil pockets."

Iowa Children's Home Society To Launch Annual Campaign

Drive for Aiding Homeless Children Begins Tomorrow

Iowa's homeless children will be remembered tomorrow as the Iowa Children's Home society launches a publicity campaign in Iowa City.

The organization makes but one appeal a year in each county. Being non-sectarian it must be supported by voluntary gifts, community chest and emblem sales.

Great progress has been made by the society in recent years. Last year it accepted new wards from 76 counties, including Johnson county. At present there are 322 children in its care, some for adoption, others for free foster or boarding homes under the proper care.

These dependent children, ranging in age from infancy to 15 years, are placed with the society by district courts, welfare agencies and individuals from every county and nearly 8000 have been taken care of during the past 38 years.

The young people of the community will hold a contest in connection with the drive. Five prizes and theater passes are being offered. Ruth Jones and Anna F. Fisher are in charge of the event and extend an open invitation for all young people interested to meet at the Jefferson hotel, at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The sponsors are Mayor and Mrs. H. F. Willenbrock, Mrs. C. A. Bowman, the Rev. and Mrs. E. Voigt, the Rev. Father P. J. O'Reilly, Mrs. E. T. Hubbard, Mrs. Clarence Van Epps, Ruth Jones, the Rev. I. H. T. Jones, Mrs. F. B. Olsen, Anna F. Fisher and John Barry, director of county welfare.

Her headquarters for the day will be the Jefferson hotel.

State headquarters are located in Des Moines. The officers are Dr. F. K. Herriott, president; Horace Foskett, vice-president; Harry Ginsberg, treasurer; Mrs. Gardner Cowles Jr., secretary; Dr. Mae Habenricht, executive secretary; Agnes Samuelson and Harlan Miller, newspaper columnist.

Members of the Women of the Moose will meet tonight at 7:45 in the home of Mrs. Ethel Rogers, 1231-2 S. Clinton.

Tuesday night will be 'game night' for members in the Moose hall.

The academy of friendship will give a card party April 29. Mrs. George Unash, committee chairman, will be in charge.

The 20th anniversary party of the Women of the Moose was observed Tuesday evening in the Moose Hall with 23 charter members present as guests.

A play, "Homemaking Club," was presented. Cast members were Mrs. Thomas Abbott, Mrs. Joseph Gerber, Mrs. Don Comas, Mrs. John Ludwig, Mrs. Frank Strub and Mrs. James Wilkinson.

"Better Home Week" was a paper read by Mrs. James Her-ring.

University of Iowa's 9th Annual Art Conference Opens Today

Talks, Displays Will Highlight 2-Day Event

Students', Teachers' Work on Exhibit At Art Building, Union

Ninth grade pupils as well as college administrators will register in Iowa Union and the art building this morning in preparation for the opening this afternoon of the ninth annual University of Iowa art conference.

Highlighting the two-day affair are lectures and demonstrations by nationally famous figures in the world of art. An extensive program is keyed to the interests of teachers and students of high schools and colleges and all others interested in art education.

Afternoon Sessions at 2:30

This afternoon's session begins at 2:30 in the auditorium of the art building. Emil Ganso of the local department will give a demonstration on making a lithograph, and Carl Zigrosser, curator of prints, Philadelphia Museum of Art, will talk on "A Comparison of Prints, Past and Future."

At 6 o'clock tonight, President Virgil M. Hanchey will give the address of welcome at an informal dinner in the river room of Iowa Union. Prof. Earl E. Harper, director of school of fine art, will preside.

Officials urge that tickets for the dinner be secured at the registration desk in the art building or at Iowa Union's main desk.

Illustrated Talk Tonight

A talk on "French Gothic Cathedrals" by Prof. Clarence Ward, head of the fine arts department, Oberlin college, will end the first day of the conference. The lecture, to be illustrated with colored slides, is scheduled for 8 o'clock in the main lounge of the art building.

Visitors to the conference have the opportunity to compare the creative work of both teacher and student in three exhibitions now showing on the campus.

Largest of these is Iowa's 11th annual high school art exhibition which covers corridor and gallery walls of the art building. Over 1,800 entries were critically analyzed by three judges today and ratings given each.

Student Work Displayed

A display of university students' work in the art building auditorium and an exhibit of supervisors' and teachers' work in Iowa Union round out the exhibition program.

Steps are being taken by officials to organize a travelling exhibit from these shows to be sent to various cities throughout the state.

The college of education and the extension division are cooperating with the art department in making the exhibitions and the conference possible. Prof. Edna Patzig, director of art, University Elementary school, is exhibition chairman.

Greeks Win Ah! But That Was Centuries Ago

A Greek victory—centuries ago—is the theme of "The Fall of Troy," dramatic script aired over WSUI at 3:30 this afternoon.

An episode in the "Ten Years at Troy" series, today's dramatization tells of the destruction of Troy by the Greek forces.

After resisting a ten year siege, Troy was captured by forces already within the city. The Greeks were concealed inside of the great wooden horse which the Trojans had supposed to be an idol. Other than the captive women, few Trojans survived the attack. Legend has it that one of the survivors, Aeneas, founded Rome which is again at war with its ancient enemy.

Lieutenant G. W. Glann Stumped by Reprint Of Manuscript—It's in Spanish

"It's a mistake" was the first thought of Lieut. George Ward Glann off Camp Robinson, Ark., upon picking up a current edition of Oral Hygiene, recently received by him.

After leafing through its pages and finding nothing written in English for him to read, Lieutenant Glann finally decided the magazine, written entirely in Spanish, had been sent to him because an article authored by him had been reprinted in it. He recognized his article from the illustrations and the "by-line."

The article concerns a device intended to prevent children's teeth from becoming displaced when the baby teeth are lost too early. The idea was first presented to the dental profession by Lieutenant Glann at the American Dental association convention in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1939.

Later he added improvements and demonstrated the device and the technique of its construction to dentists at several state conventions. The story appeared in the Dental Digest in January, 1940.

Lieutenant Glann was graduated from the university college of dentistry in 1936 and was president of Psi Omega dental fraternity while here. Since his graduation he had been practicing in Sioux City until called to Camp Robinson last fall. Lieutenant Glann was president of the Interstate Chapter of Reserve Officers while living in Iowa City.

Aftermath--

were "heavy" and damage "considerable."

Behind that announcement lay this picture:

A pall of smoke still hung over all London. Hoses lined through miles of wrecked and charred buildings.

Morgues were filled with the dead, and hospitals with the injured. At least eight hospitals were smashed by direct hits of the nazi "super" bombs.

Before a theater an old charwoman, sucking on a cigarette, scrubbed the sidewalk on hands and knees. The back of the theater had been bombed away.

Stenographers and clerks lined up outside offices where they had worked but yesterday. Today the places were wrecked. One employer borrowed a desk and set up his office on the sidewalk.

Souvenirs of Death

Workers, who spent hours getting to their jobs this morning, trudged home in the evening through the streets filled with shattered glass and debris--inanimate tokens of the high-explosives and fire bombs which rained on London from early Wednesday night until the fiery dawn brought respite.

At one of the bombed hospitals, a surgeon had just completed a delicate operation, extracting a piece of glass from a man's eye, when a bomb tore down the door of the operating room and scattered instruments over the floor. Oddly, no one was hurt there.

Besides a 20-foot bomb crater in a west-end street a girl sat studiously sketching the grimy workers.

This Was a Church

The remains of a stately ornamental iron fence around what had been an ancient church lay splattered over the street. Across the way a flock of sheep browsed quietly on the green grass of a fenced park.

Water poured from the top floor of a world-famous department store; down a side street rolled a shiny, horse-drawn carriage, the silk-hatted driver skillfully cracking his whip.

A vicar in his shirtsleeves and a fellow-clergyman, incongruous in cassock and steel helmet, braved fire and falling debris to salvage pictures and books from their church.

At another spot, two men were dug unharmed from the wreckage of a shelter where they had been buried for 12 hours.

"What time is it?" asked one.

When told, he remarked that the pubs were closed.

"Blimey, it's too late for a drink," he complained.

On post where a German bomber was shot down--one of the six bagged during the night--a policeman rescued a German flier who was dangling by his parachute from the roof of a tall building.

Johnson County Men Called for Service Reach Total of 66

An order for 12 Johnson county men to report April 30 for army service under the selective service act was received by the local draft board yesterday, bringing the number of county men called to service to 66.

Board members said yesterday that the group will probably be filled by draftees, adding, however, that there is still time for men to volunteer for the call.

Charles F. Parrott, 1123 N. Dodge, left Iowa City today at 4:47 a.m. for Ft. Des Moines to replace a man who returned home for physical reasons.

The second contingent to leave Iowa City since the state board increased the rate of induction several weeks ago will depart Sunday at 5:50 p.m.

Composed of 12 men, half of them volunteers, the call will bring to eight the number of county men drafted since enforcement of the selective service act last October.

100 Persons Attend 2nd Annual County Public Health Dinner

County Nurses Report Activity Of Past Year

Dr. Kate Daum Talks To Assembled Group On Nutrition Trends

"Let's take a peek at Johnson county's public health activities" was the theme of the second annual county public health dinner attended by more than 100 persons at the Iowa City community building last night. A 33-page booklet summarizing activities of the county nursing service for the year was presented to each guest.

Compiled by Alla Hiltunen and Lois Lang, Johnson county nurses, the report covered communicable disease control, tuberculosis work, maternal and child health, pre-school program, school health program, school sanitation, public health sanitation, morbidity service, crippled children service and adult health education.

Protection of 1,375 county residents against smallpox and 1,305 persons against diphtheria in an extensive immunization and vaccination program last fall was among the year's outstanding achievements. The program received cooperation of physicians and the State Department of Health.

More than 200 visits were made in behalf of communicable disease control, the report revealed. In the interest of tuberculosis, 141 calls were made in the county.

Carrying out an intensive school health program, the county nurses reported 289 teacher consultations, 100 school visits, 666 annual inspections, 1,690 rapid inspections and 184 home visits.

Observing an interest by community groups in health meetings, the nursing service conducted 66 meetings at which health problems were presented and discussed. Classes for women on "home hygiene and care of the sick" were established this year in Solon and near Newport.

Dr. Kate Daum, director of nutrition department and assistant professor of dietetics in the department of internal medicine, discussed new trends in nutrition.

"Variety is the staff of life," Dr. Daum contended, in discussing food. Considering nutritive problems in the light of the present world situation, Dr. Daum explained recent government action to insure citizens adequate diet.

Knowing that malnutrition occurs at every economic level, government officials have recently established state nutrition councils to study the problem. In view of food shortages along certain lines, the government is seeking to stimulate production of fruits, vegetables and milk, Dr. Daum said.

"Modern Magic," a film on milk, and "Mexico," travel film in color, provided additional entertainment. Members of the Johnson county public health council are F. J. Snider, chairman, Mrs. H. J. Dane, secretary, Mrs. P. C. Jeans, John Barry, Dr. P. A. Reed, Elmer Dewey, Mrs. Orpha Zajicek, Mrs. W. H. Reynolds, Mrs. E. L. Baker, Mrs. Lloyd Burr, Dr. Pauline Moore, Margaret Cannon and Dr. J. D. Boyd.

Two thousand dollars of the quota of $2,500 for the Iowa City division of the United Jewish campaign for caring for refugees, building up Palestine and maintaining the Jewish Welfare board, has been donated, campaign officials reported. A total of $25,000,000 is the national quota.

Local officers of the campaign are Joseph Braverman, chairman; Sam Markovitz, vice-chairman; Mrs. Sam Saltzman, secretary, and Sam Worton, treasurer.

On the executive committee are Rabbi Morris Kertzer, E. Braverman, Dr. A. Steindler, L. Shames of Wellman, H. Worton, Dr. K. Lewin, A. Abramsohn and H. Shulman.

Westminster Fellowship Groups to Meet Here

Dr. D. Berger Will Take Part In Services

Dr. David I. Berger, head of the Bible department and dean of the chapel at Coe college in Cedar Rapids, will deliver a Communion meditation at the annual Iowa Conference of Westminster Fellowships to be held tomorrow morning and afternoon in the afternoon in the First Presbyterian church in Iowa City.

Almost a hundred young people representing the Presbyterian student groups of the University of Iowa, Iowa State College in Ames and Iowa State Teachers College in Cedar Falls are expected to attend the all-day meet.

Dr. Berger is a recognized leader in spiritual activities. For a number of years before he joined the Coe faculty in 1939, he was the leading speaker at the Fellowship Week services held each spring at Coe.

Former dean of the Theological Seminary of the University of Dubuque, Dr. Berger earned his M.R.E. degree from the school of religious education of the Theological Seminary at Auburn, N. Y. in 1927 and in 1933 was awarded his Th.D. from the Dubuque Theological Seminary.

Dr. Berger served a number of years as pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Muscatine, Ia., before coming to Coe College. He was born in Austria.

Leading the morning discussion groups will be Dr. Ilion T. Jones, director of the Westminster Foundation and pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Iowa City; Dr. M. Willard Lampe, director of the University school of religion, and Prof. H. J. Thornton of the University history department.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. The devotional worship service at 10 will be followed by the discussion period at 10:30.

The afternoon program will open with the business meeting at 1:30. Reports of the discussion groups will be given at 2, and at 2:30, Enid Ellison, A2 of Webster Groves, Mo., will lead in a panel discussion on "Procedural Problems."

Highlight of the afternoon will be the Communion service at 3:30 featuring Dr. Berger. Robert Live-say, L3 of Toledo, president of the Iowa Conference, will be in charge.

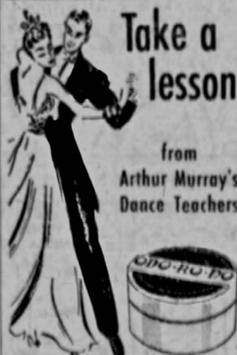

Luncheon will be served in the church basement at 11:15 and supper at 5:15 p.m.

The theme of the conference is: "It is better to fight for the good than to rail at the evil," a quotation from Tennyson.

Following the parade, the three groups will present a short concert between Washington and Iowa on Clinton.
