Army Seeks Longer Draft Training Period

Considers Plan To Keep Men Voluntarily

Current Reports Hint New Selective Service Legislation Sought

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Army officials were reported today to be considering a plan to induce thousands of selective service trainees to remain in uniform voluntarily for two years beyond the compulsory one-year period.

The proposal, army men said, might involve increasing the total land forces beyond the present goal of 1,418,000 men by mid-1941.

Some senators said they had heard unconfirmed reports that the army might seek legislation to keep draftees in training "for the duration of the emergency."

However, sources in the war department inclined to the view that needed combat strength could be raised without resorting to new draft legislation—perhaps offering enlistment bonuses to the ablest draftees.

Hope was voiced that a large percentage of trainees would like army service sufficiently to continue in khaki without added inducement.

473,000 Regulars
In case of war, it was said, the 473,000 regular army troops would be spread dangerously thin along coastlines, through the island possessions and Alaska, and in the Atlantic base sites recently acquired from Britain.

The opinion was expressed that perhaps 400,000 men should be added to the regular army from the ablest of selective service men.

This would necessitate upward revision of the total-strength objective of 1,418,000 by June 30, on which congressional appropriations have been based.

An Inducement
One inducement under consideration was the offering of bonuses, perhaps exceeding the $75 and $150 gratuities now given soldiers who sign up for new "hitches."

Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) member of the military committee, told news men he had heard reports originating in army circles that congress would be asked to declare a complete state of emergency under which conscripts would be held in service until the end of the emergency.

He expressed the opinion that it would be unfair to require more than one year's training of selectees when other eligible registrants had not been called.

Senator Reynolds (D-NC) acting committee chairman, said he had heard similar reports of an extension plan, but added that no decision was likely until June.

Nazi Bombers Hit Southwest English Area

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—A southwest English coastal area was the object of a short but heavy German air raid which ended before last midnight.

Anti-aircraft fire, heavier than usual, was audible more than 50 miles distant.

(The section, unidentified by the British, may have been Plymouth, which was raided heavily Monday night.)

The bombers came in from over the calm sea and with their usual technique dropped bright flares, followed up by explosives and incendiary bombs.

New $3,600,000,000 Revenue-Raising Plan to Have 16.5 Per Cent Levy

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—A system of greatly increased income taxes, providing an effective levy of 16.5 per cent on the lowest tax bracket, was disclosed today to be part of a treasury program for raising $3,600,000,000 in new revenue.

The new system, built around steeply increasing surtaxes and estimated to produce $1,517,100,000, would boost to $72 the income levy of a childless married couple with an earned net income of $2,500. Such a couple now pays $11.

(The house committee, meeting behind closed doors, is considering ways of raising the $3,600,000,000 of additional revenue. Committee members told reporters yesterday that the treasury had proposed an increase in the effective individual income tax from 4.4 to 6.6 per cent but a type-written statement of the treasury

Mine Workers, Coal Producers Agree to Resume Negotiations

College Students To Lead Strike Against War

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—The Youth Committee Against War said today that students at more than 100 colleges would conduct a "youth strike against war" tomorrow.

The committee said that among those at demonstrations would be Senators Charles W. Tobey (R-NH) at Dartmouth; Rep. Knute Hill (D-Wash.) at Columbia; Oswald Garrison Villard at the University of California at Los Angeles; Senator Gerald P. Nye (R-ND) at Yale; and Norman Thomas at Iowa State Teachers college.

Supporting groups, which oppose, said the announcement, "German, Russian, Japanese and other kinds of totalitarianism," include the fellowship of reconciliation, youth section, national council of Methodist youth, progressive students league, war resisters league, youth section, and young people's socialist league.

Wheeler Makes Attack on Edict

Address Hits Opening Of Red Sea, Gulf Of Aden to U. S. Ships

MILWAUKEE, April 22 (AP)—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D-Mont) strongly criticized opening of the Gulf of Aden and the Red sea to American shipping in an address prepared for delivery tonight at the Milwaukee auditorium.

President Roosevelt declared these waters safe "with the German army actually threatening the Suez," Wheeler, leading senate non-interventionist, charged before an America First committee rally.

"But changing the combat zones, making legal by edict what is illegal, will not save a single American boy otherwise destined to a watery grave," he asserted. "No such action in Washington will sweep away any mines . . . no such stroke of a pen will drive German U-boats from the Red sea."

Wheeler intimated that Roosevelt, in opening this area to shipping, broke a promise made in September, 1939, when, according to Wheeler, the president said: "This government clearly and definitely will insist that American ships keep away from the immediate perils of the actual zones of conflict."

The British, at war, are spending far less than America for defense, Wheeler said, asking "why must we spend these millions and billions abroad?"

Halifax Praises Work Of U. S. Red Cross

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Viscount Halifax, British ambassador, said tonight that when history records the "attempts made by Nazi tyranny to plunge the world into darkness" it will say that "one of the brightest pages in these fateful times was written by the American Red Cross in the work which it is doing for stricken Europe."

His remarks were addressed to the banquet of the American Red Cross' largest national convention.

Nazis Reported Bombing Greek Vessels, Ports

Intent on Isolating Country From Aid; Allies Prepare Stand

ATHENS, Greece, April 23 (Wednesday) (AP)—Southern Greece and ships leaving Greek ports are being pounded by swarms of Nazi planes attacking ahead of Germany's Panzer divisions, the government said early today.

In Athens itself sirens screamed air raid alarms seven times in the 24 hours up to last midnight but the Germans appeared to be concentrating on isolating Greece from overseas contacts.

Vessels in the Gulf of Athens were bombed and machine-gunned without regard for their size, and official reports acknowledged considerable casualties and damage in the coastal raids.

Scores of places in southern Greece were reported attacked, but Nazi attention centered on ships leaving port and wave after wave of German planes hammered vessels off the southern coast.

At the front, battered British and Greek troops dug in for a stand at Thermopylae Pass, 100 miles north of Athens, to try to check the advance of Germany's tanks and bombers.

Other units deployed in the Lokris mountain range in this supreme effort to prevent the Nazi tide from sweeping into southern Greece.

Far to the west, beyond the Pindus range, weary Greek warriors backing out of Albania were admitted to be in difficulties, too. They were pressed by the Italians on the north and menaced by Nazi armored divisions on their eastern flank.

The eastern troops, braced at Thermopylae, faced a gigantic and critical task at the spot where King Leonidas in 480 B.C. died with his Spartans in a heroic but unsuccessful attempt to stem a Persian onslaught.

The Greek high command communique said: "The withdrawal of our lines has been completed without any serious hindrance. Enemy air action continues intensely but the enemy suffered considerable losses from the air force and anti-aircraft artillery."

Damage, Casualties
The Greek home security ministry announced repeated German air raids on Piraeus, with one bomb dropped in the Athens region. It said a hospital ship was bombed in the Gulf of Corinth, but escaped damage, while ships in various ports were bombed and machine-gunned with acknowledged damage and casualties.

Italian planes were declared to have bombed Corfu and Crete. Adjustment of British lines was made "without serious interference from the enemy, who has been roughly handled wherever met," a British army communique said.

In Leonidas' day Thermopylae was only a few yards in width, but today the pass affords a battle-troop of from one to three miles wide. Railway and road communications extending from Lamia, 20 miles to the north (which the Germans say they have occupied) lead to Athens and its port, Piraeus.

Germans Claim British in 'Full Retreat'; Athens 100 Miles Away

Allies Fall Back in Greece

Faced by the greatly superior numbers of the invading German armies, British and Greek forces defending Greece have fallen back still further from their original main line of defense. The shaded area in the above Central Press map shows the approximate area occupied by German and Italian troops. The line further south, across the narrowest part of the Greek peninsula, is that along which the allies are likely to make their next principal stand. Nazis report German troops are within sight of the historic Thermopylae Pass.

F.D.R. Says War to Be Won by Maintaining England as Defender of Democracy Abroad

German Airman Under Bond Flees; Attorney General Gives Strict Order

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Attorney General Jackson announced today that Franz von Werra, German war flyer who escaped a Canadian prison train, had fled the United States while under $10,000 bond and apparently had gone to Peru.

Declaring that von Werra's flight while his case was under consideration "constitutes a flagrant abuse of neutral hospitality which had been invoked on his behalf," Jackson ordered a tightening of treatment in all similar cases.

He sent these instructions to immigration officials and United States attorneys:

1. Any escaping prisoner of war must be turned back at the United States borders with whatever force is reasonably necessary.
 2. Any escaped prisoner of war entering the United States must be held for instruction from the attorney general.
 3. In no case may immigration authorities or United States attorneys agree to release such a prisoner in the custody of consular officers.
- Von Werra had fled to the United States after his escape in Canada.
- The 26-year-old airman was arrested at Ogdensburg, N.Y., Jan. 25 after his spectacular flight in sub-zero weather. He said he had paddled a boat with

Nazis Seek to Cut Off Allies in North

BERLIN, April 23 (Wednesday) (AP)—German spearheads are within sight of historic Thermopylae pass, German military commentators said early today, with the British in "full retreat" before them.

The German phrase was that the fight had developed into a "verfolgung"—a following through after a break in resistance.

"And when we say we are following we mean the enemy is running," said a military spokesman.

With Adolf Hitler's panzers rolled up before the fabled pass, the Nazi high command hoped to send them swiftly over the 100 miles to Athens and its port of Piraeus.

The Germans, at the southern edge of the plain of Thessaly, seemed to be in position to cut off the approaches to Athens soon and if that is accomplished any British who might still be in the northern part of the country would be cut off from the best harbors.

The Germans' southward thrust was said to have covered 105 kilometers (about 65 miles) in three days, which, German aid, disposes of stories that they have suffered heavy losses.

"An enemy moving that fast does not have time to pause to set up a gun or conduct a rearguard action worthy of the name," a spokesman said. "When the full story is told the world will be astonished at the small German losses."

It is one thing to win a military victory, such as was won when Larisa was taken and the passes south of Mount Olympus were forced, but another matter to exploit such a victory to the best advantage, the military commentator continued.

"Now we are in the phase of following through in the course of which we reached Lamia, which is getting close to the approaches of Athens," he said. "In this following action the German soldier dropped every burden which could be spared so as to make speed."

"There even were instances of infantrymen with just rifles riding mules to get through rough country speedily."

Occupation by German troops of the old citadel of Lamia, near Thermopylae, had been announced by the high command. Now—should the Germans repeat the strategy they used in Yugoslavia—they will throw a noose of panzer divisionmen about Greece's neck, from the Gulf of Lamia and the Gulf of Corinth.

The air force is credited with playing a most important role in the following-through action. Harbors out front and transports moving in the Aegean, it is said, are being subjected to ceaseless bombardment.

"Nearing End"
"It's nearing the end with the question remaining how many British and how much equipment we catch," was one German comment.

Such a maneuver, if successful, would isolate some British and Greek forces along the lower Pindus mountains, much as the Serbian troops were trapped in the mountainous area between Sarajevo and Mostar just before their final surrender.

Simultaneously such strategy might be calculated to cut off what the Germans claim is the British "second Dunkerque" route toward the port of Athens and (See BERLIN, Page 8)

Prime Minister Of Australians Makes Appeal

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia, in an appeal to his countrymen thousands of miles away, called tonight for the formation of a "truly national war administration."

To criticism of his administration for sending Australian imperial forces to Greece without consulting the Australian advisory council representing all parties, Menzies replied: "The reason is that the Greek expedition represented a major decision of war strategy of the highest possible order and secrecy. So much was this so that discussions in London were confined to the war cabinet and did not extend to ministers generally."

(The labor party, largest in the Australian house of representatives, was reported in Sydney as eager to defeat the Menzies administration for its Greek action. The party has repeatedly refused to join the Menzies coalition cabinet of United Australian and country parties.)

Axis Mediterranean Shipping Suffers—British Warships Hit Tripoli

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—British battleships and lighter units drew up at 5 a.m. yesterday before Tripoli, principal African supply base of the axis, and cast big shells into the harbor and port installations, the admiralty announced.

Dust and smoke rose in blinding clouds, but observers saw that at least seven vessels in port were hit; that a large fire was started near an oil depot; that the railroad station was in flames, and that the axis naval headquarters, military stores depot, power plant and a quay were struck.

Only "ineffective" opposition was encountered from shore batteries, the admiralty stated.

At the same time, the RAF and aircraft from the fleet were dropping more than 10 tons of bombs into Tripoli.

Informed British sources, saying many of the German troops in the Libyan drive had been flown from Sicily to Tripoli, welcomed this British success as possibly the beginning of a forceful blow against the axis air ferry service.

Churchill said the Germans were shot down as the air fleet was bound to Tripoli, adding: "I have not yet heard whether they were full or empty. The fleet was not seriously molested and suffered no loss of ships."

The middle east communique on Libya said merely: "Our patrols again have been active."

Norman Thomas Speaks Today

Norman Thomas, the national leader of the socialist party, comes to the campus today to discuss the deeply significant topic, "What Basis for a Lasting Peace?" Trained at Princeton and Union Theological Seminary, well-founded in the fields of political philosophy and journalism, Thomas ranks among the nation's best public speakers.

His political views conflict with our own, and with those of a great many other people. But a conflict of views is one of the healthiest attributes of democratic society, as much so now (although we may sometimes be led to think differently)—now that democracy is faced with grave crisis—as in times of peace, when conflicting views at their worst are no more than conflicting views.

And Mr. Thomas today will discuss a topic very near to the hearts of all of us.

Lasting peace? After the two decades just passed, after these past two years of terror, many would scoff at mention of a lasting peace. But if we ever are to know a better world than this, then we must have faith in peace, and we must work for peace as we never have worked before.

It may be that today's speaker will contribute greatly to the will for peace—a lasting peace—no matter what political basis for such a peace he may draw.

And if ever we needed the will for a lasting peace, that time is now.

Humanity Will Go Forward

BULLETIN: (Wichita, Kan.)—A brief private service was held for Abdul Ghanzawi, second victim of a shooting which occurred Wednesday between two Afghanistan students attending Wichita university.

Following the short service, conducted by Dean L. Mekhuis of the college of liberal arts, the body was sent to New York for final services and burial, because conditions in Europe prevent sending it home.

The body of Faqir Mohammed, the other youth, was also sent to New York for burial.

A funeral notice arouses little interest. This one took up two inches at the end of a feature column. Very few readers gave it a second thought.

Is there any significance in a notice announcing the double funeral of two Mohammedan boys who died in a middle western city? Perhaps there is.

Two years ago the Afghanistan government sent Abdul Ghanzawi, son of a province chief, and Faqir Mohammed, son of a copper tradesman, to the United States to study police methods in an American college. Wichita university was chosen.

The necessary papers were procured and the dean of men was given their sponsorship.

To the students of the university the arrival of the Afghanistan boys created interest. Different groups entertained and welcome was extended from every department.

The boys had identical schedules and were necessarily together constantly. They could easily be spotted as they walked in perfect rhythm with toes out, smiling their set smiles at anyone who chose to be friendly. In private they spoke their native tongue. In classes they attempted English.

Very few students got to know them well. Language presented a barrier and the absolute contrast in day by day living from what they had always known was almost insurmountable.

The boys had their own private difficulties too. What was done for one had to be done in exact manner for the other. When the international club presented them with a radio for their room there was no appreciation known. Both must have a radio. The idea of sharing one had no place. The unfortunate incident could only be settled by buying a radio for each.

In America we have our differences, but certainly one radio suffices for a room.

Afghanistans do not conciliate on anything. The tribes which constitute the major part of the population have been at war among themselves for centuries. Within the tribes there is constant dissension. Fathers pass on personal debts to oldest sons. It is a land of suspicion ruled only by the "blood for blood" tradition deeply imbedded in their thinking.

From this land came two young men of different castes, different backgrounds, different incomes; united only by the circumstances of being sent away to study together. Life was not easy for them in this free land.

The boys had no outlet for their troubles. The dean of the school was American, he could not help.

Problems and personal antagonism grew out of all proportion. No longer could they share a double room. The copper tradesman's son and the young prince were completely incompatible. The American inability to understand their minds did not help matters either.

The boys began walking on the campus one behind the other, never together. In class they separated. These were the only outward signs of difficulty.

Neighbors began spreading rumors of actual fights that the two had been having. Rumor tells the story. Always the copper tradesman's son, being the smaller, was the one who suffered most. One night after a session intended as a study period, the smaller one was thrown down three flights of stairs. He got up. Blood was streaming down his face. No change of expression could be noted. He merely rose, looked up to third floor and then turned to leave.

Three weeks later he invited the prince to visit his apartment for supper. They sat down to an American table set with American food.

Environment carried no weight this time. The law of revenge blotted out all thinking.

Faqir Mohammed remembered his fall of three weeks ago. With deadly precision he removed a gun from inside his shirt and fired. His guest toppled over dead.

There was another bullet in the gun. He had a place for this one too. A second later he pointed the gun at his own head. A report was heard. He slumped to the floor, dead.

Human life is made up of the same basics the world over, yet these two young men died in the heart of a foreign land chiefly because the habits and customs of that land were beyond their understanding.

Their education had lacked the teaching of tolerance, and understanding. America proved bigger than they could comprehend.

Perhaps there's a lesson here for us, an indication that in our struggle for a new national spirit, we're on the right track—the track of tolerance and understanding.

We're still a long way from "home," but humanity will go forward in America. We're sure of that.

Bits About the People On the Current New York Stage

BY GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Carl Sandburg, silver-haired biographer of Lincoln, has a personal library of more than 5,000 volumes. The original manuscript of his epic life of Lincoln is kept in a fireproof vault in his home. This manuscript is composed of 3,400 pages.

If you do not wish to consider Herman Shulman Broadway's leading producer at the moment, consider this fact. His last four productions have been "The Little Foxes," "The Male Animal," "The Corn Is Green," and "Watch On the Rhine." All have been unqualified financial successes.

A curious history has Lillian Hellman, who wrote "Watch On the Rhine." She used to be a playreader for Shulman. Finally she became interested in the theater herself and wrote "The Children's Hour," a play that touched a forbidden theme yet one that was achieved so deftly that the complaints were non-existent, and the acclaim was great. Then she wrote "The Little Foxes," which, after two years on Broadway and the road, has been sold to the films for Bette Davis.

Miss Hellman also has a double take with the films, for she is under contract to Sam Goldwyn to write the film scenarios of her own plays. She plies between her home in Pleasantville, N. Y., and her east side apartment. At one time she was married to Arthur Kober, who wrote "Having Wonderful Time," but is divorced. Not infrequently she is seen with Dashiell Hammett, author of "The Thin Man."

What are the out-of-towners crying for? First for "Lady in the Dark," say the leading Broadway ticket brokers. Second choice is "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Katharine Cornell is one actress who does not enjoy being called an actress. "I am an actor-manager," she explains and she is one hundred per cent correct.

I was explaining this fine definitive point to Jay Carmody, of the Washington Post, on a recent week end, and he said, "One night at the National I saw Mrs. Roosevelt give Miss Cornell the most gracious compliment anyone has ever received. It was Miss Cornell's last night in town and I called backstage to say goodbye. In a short while Mrs. Roosevelt came in and the photographers at once began clamoring for Mrs. Roosevelt to pose with Miss Cornell. Mrs. Roosevelt smiled and said, 'You'll have to ask Miss Cornell. She's the First Lady here tonight.'"

"I'm slipping" admitted William Knudsen after inspecting five factories on a recent defense tour in Brooklyn. "After climbing 22 flights of stairs, I'm completely winded."

It may amuse you to know that the war already is affecting real estate operators in Manhattan. Penthouse leases now carry a clause saying the leases automatically become void in the event of air raids.

The Secrets of the 'Invincible' Hitler

WASHINGTON—Hitler's war magic seems really invincible in only one line—the propaganda line which is deluding the world into believing he is invincible. His feats are about as baffling as a simple card trick after you know how it is done.

Capture of the impregnable key Belgian defense fort Eben-Emael which crushed the whole Belgian line, was one of his greatest illusions and the most mystifying. Berlin announced it was done with "a secret weapon." Unofficially his propagandists led the world to believe the weapon was a nerve gas which froze the Belgian defenders rigid until the Germans climbed over the fort and pinched them.

The only weapon he used in that fort was the old machine gun. His only secret was his superior will to war and his consequent superior preparation for it. The only gas was in the propaganda afterward.

CAPTURE OF BELGIUM—Years before the attack, the German military men, knowing Eben-Emael was the key to the Belgian situation, constructed a replica of it in Germany. They practiced attacking it for months until they found the way. When the time came to use the way, the same troops which had rehearsed against the dummy Eben-Emael, measuring every foot of the ground, acted out their simple assigned parts.

First day, artillery fire was directed into the vast open-field center of the fort, to create shell craters. Parachute troops, armed with plain old machine guns, were dropped into the fort center on toward evening. Holding themselves into the shell craters, they withstood every effort of the confused and surprised Belgians to dislodge them. Next day, German troops crossed the river four miles above, out of range of the guns of the fort. They besieged it from the outside, while the defenders were machine gunned in the back when they tried to man the guns on the inside. That was all there was to it.

The military facts have come to light in the Field Artillery Journal, a semi-official magazine of the military trade, in a recent issue.

FRANCE FOR BRITAIN—This is the same kind of "nerve gas" Hitler adapted to the French at Sedan, the Norwegians, the Poles and lately the Yugoslavs and Greeks. Each of these campaigns was rehearsed on simulated terrain in Germany, and—here is the main news of this column—right now the Nazis are practicing ferrying across the Baltic around the base of Denmark. They are rehearsing landing operations against defenses built to resemble the British coastal defenses.

THE WILL TO WAR—As military men find out the facts of Hitler's magic, they must become increasingly convinced that Hitler will lose his feigned invincibility when his adversaries develop an equal will to war. The Germans are not smarter. They do not even yet have superior production capacity to make weapons of war. They are far behind in raw materials.

But one thing they have had for a long time, a thing which has been slow to grow in both this country and Britain, the superior will to do it. No coal strikes cut their steel production. Not because their phony system was good. It is really only a receivership for a bankrupt nation. Yet the cool consuming anger which is necessary for the utmost effort in war, continues to rise unsteadily in the democracies, whereas the Germans were born with it. (A further proof that the system has nothing to do with it lies in the experience of Italy, which had the system first.)

U.S. SADLY UNEQUIPPED FOR WAR—Those who are now talking of sending another AEP across to the Suez or Dakar, should look first into the contrasting facts of our own situation:

The U.S. today has at least two and possibly three, seasoned and well equipped divisions (Hitler has 250.)

By next fall perhaps half a million Americans will have had substantial training, although even then, they will not be as thoroughly trained as the army will demand before putting them up against troops that have been working in specialized lines for years. (Hitler has about 3,000,000 in his best trained class.)

At present, we have 27 infantry divisions, mostly filled with raw draftees; two armored divisions with insufficient equipment (even some of their training tanks were taken away recently and sent to Greece); two more armored divisions forming; one

HOLLYWOOD—Stories like Eddie Bracken's are the kind that keep stage-struck youngsters beating their heads against the hard doors of theatrical fame. If Eddie Bracken can do it, they say, why can't I?

Eddie is the young fellow with the classic Roman nose on the classic Irish pan. You'll be hearing and seeing more of him after "Reaching for the Sun." He started in it as a supporting player but now they've told him he will get star-billing along with Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew. It's his fourth movie, so he hasn't been wasting time.

The girl-crazy comedian of "Too Many Girls" isn't the old Eddie Bracken of Hollywood and Broadway. Neither is he the erstwhile Dizzy of the Aldrich family, Eddie, along with Jackie Cooper, outgrew the Aldrich flickers. After the fact he could admit—which he does cheerfully—to his 27 years. Any old time he also will admit, cheerfully but seriously, to an abiding ambition to be a director and producer, but after he has basked awhile in the novelty of what looks very much like life acting success.

It was a long time coming. "Once I got started on the stage," he says, "I made an enviable record. I played in 32 consecutive flops. None of the 32 lasted more than two weeks."

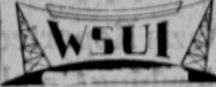

From the time Eddie was four he was crazy about movies and movie stars. Near the Astoria, Long Island, home was the eastern Paramount studio. Eddie couldn't get in, but at parochial school he played boy soprano in the home talent play, and Hal Roach was in the audience. Roach took him west for Our Gang, and made a movie actor of him. Only Hollywood didn't know it as the boy grew older—and out.

Back east again, his connection with the theater was limited to attendance at the Professional Children's school until, at 13, he got a job as understudy to the late Junior Durkin. That made him an actor again but Hollywood still didn't know it. Despite Junior Durkin's aid, he couldn't get inside a studio. He was glad enough to receive bus fare home to take an offered stage job.

"After I got there, and was in the play, I had an offer from here for Mary Pickford's 'Secrets.' I stayed with the play. From then on I did quite a few more flops until George Abbott saw me in one."

Abbott saw him as a 52-year-old man, suitable for the role of the commandant in "Brother Rat." When cherub-faced Bracken reported, Abbott didn't believe it. Eddie played the cadet Bottom, instead—enjoyed two years in the play, a year and a half in "What a Life!" and part of the run of "Too Many Girls."

You couldn't imagine Dizzy doing it, but Eddie Bracken takes his jobs seriously. When he gets a script, he writes out a "life story" of the character he's to play. This pal of McCrea's in "Reaching for the Sun" had a tough background, according to Eddie's account. Out of it sprang all his reactions to the story's situations. "When I know what I've been in a story," he says, "it's not hard to keep on being that person when the story gets under way."

RENT TO WHOM? BUT TO WHOM?

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. (AP)—Curtis Krob is running up a nice bank account, because he doesn't know who should get his rent money. He went to court to learn whether he should pay it to three heirs of his late landlord, or to two other claimants of the landlord's estate. The case went to the appeal court, which remanded it for further hearings.

The Book Parade

AP Staff Writer

"MANHOLD," by Phyllis Bentley; (Macmillan; $2.50).

Phyllis Bentley says that with her latest novel, "Manhold," she has finished "at least for the present" her series of Yorkshire historical novels. It is just as well for she has worn her material thin.

Manhold is much the same story she has been telling through five novels preceding— the story of Yorkshire and cloth. Most of the time there has been a strong Yorkshireman, usually a little vulgar. This time he is Mr. Samuel Horsfall, creator of Manhold, which is a minor industrial principality in the manner of the 18th century. Usually there is a weaker man who gets himself kicked about and this time there are two— Mr. Horsfall's son Richard, the other his brother-in-law Ned, a man who taught the Horsfalls the trick of weaving the worsteds which came to be the foundation of the Horsfall prosperity.

Strangely, Miss Bentley does quite well with her men, and quite badly with her women. There are four women in "Manhold" who really matter, and none is very vivid in the reader's mind. The oldest is Ned's wife, a coarse and somewhat incredible female who dies at last and precipitates the closing catastrophe. Her two daughters are Ann, beautiful and determined to revenge her father's defeat, and Leah, who is gently daff. Richard's wife is chiefly remarkable because she gives him a son, and chiefly memorable because of her deafness.

Tim Bobbin, a character out of history, is the super-clever man behind the scenes and perhaps the most credible of the whole lot. Manhold as a principality is not most credible. Its rise and fall mean something to the reader. But through the entire book I felt I was reading something I already knew; that the Bentley formula had been reworked once too often. Miss Bentley proceeds always in an orderly way. She makes an effect each time. But the novels are all cut from the same piece of Yorkshire cloth.

Local Railway, Motor Coach Group to Hold Weekly Meetings

Mass Sessions To Supplement Strike Work

Cars to Traverse Iowa City Streets Before Gatherings

Beginning Friday night, the Iowa City local of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees will conduct weekly labor mass meetings at the City hall.

President Wade Stephenson of the A. F. of L. affiliate here, leading 11 union bus drivers in a strike against the Iowa City Motor Coach company, said the meetings would supplement strike activities.

Immediately prior to each "educational" session, a parade of placarded cars will traverse streets in town. The gatherings will begin at 8 p. m., featuring local and visiting speakers.

"Men from out of town and who are close to the labor situation will be brought here to explain the union's status in the current strike problem," Stephenson said.

State Labor Officials
A committee representing the local conferred yesterday with state department of labor officials concerning the re-opening of negotiations between the union and the coach company.

According to Stephenson, a similar request telegraphed to Governor George Wilson recently has not been answered. A written reply to the wire is expected in a few days, he said.

Atty. Henry Negus, president of the coach company, faced with the strike since early in February, said last night that he had not been contacted by the special council committee requested to do intermediary work by the union.

Negus Willing
Negus said he voiced his willingness to meet with the committee, headed by Chairman Robert Lucas, but intimated that the delay in negotiations was "unexplainable."

"I don't believe the committee wants to meet with me," the company president said.
Sam Berrong, Milwaukee, international representative of the A. F. of L., is expected to arrive here next week when an attempt at negotiations may be made, union heads said.

Speakers for Friday night's mass meeting will be announced tomorrow.

Clerk Names Filing Deadline

Petitions for May Term of Court Must Be Filed by Friday

Persons desiring to file petitions for the May term of Johnson county district court must do so before Friday, County Clerk R. Nelson Miller announced yesterday. Tomorrow is the last day of service.

Four petitions were filed yesterday. Wilson Sporting Goods company, Chicago, is asking judgment of $464.59 against Walter J. Buchele of Buchele's Sport shop. The plaintiff alleges the amount is due them for an open account of goods, wares and merchandise furnished to defendant at his special request.

Eleanor Wingler filed a petition requesting a divorce from Robert Wingler on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. The couple was married here Dec. 25, 1937.

J. Schultz, Hills Savings bank, filed two petitions yesterday. One asking judgment against George Eisenhofer of $674.97 for a promissory note the defendant is alleged to have made, executed and delivered to the Hills Savings bank March 21, 1934. The plaintiff asks the judgment with interest from the date of the filing.

Forest Fires Spread Destruction in Jersey

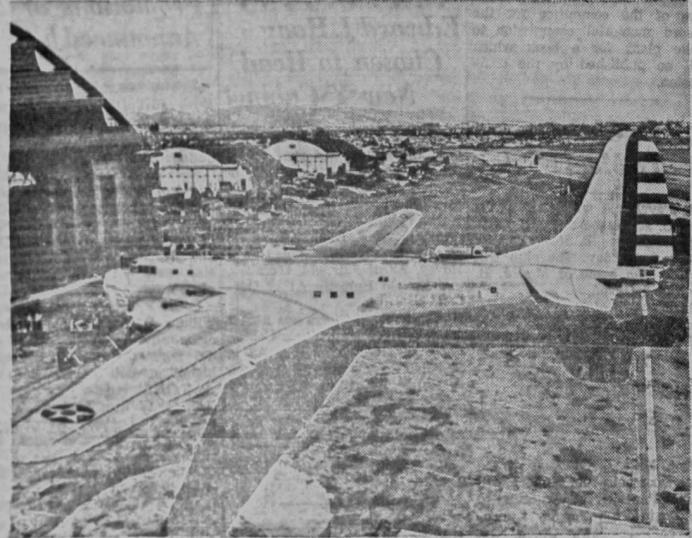

Greatest concentration of fire-fighters in five years battled a forest fire near Lakewood, N. J., where the blaze threatened the resort town's business and main residential section until it was checked. The Lakewood fire, in the New Jersey pine belt, was only one of 145 fires which raged in several eastern states, leaving hundreds homeless and causing great property damage. In this picture, a southern New Jersey home is almost completely ringed by fire as occupants, on road at right, pile belongings into cars to flee to safety. Two-week warm spell had made the forests tinder-dry.

World's Greatest Bomber Ready for Flight

So tremendous in bulk that it dwarfs a standard-sized transport plane in the background and a gasoline tank truck parked next to it, the United States huge new Douglas B-19 bomber is pictured outside its Santa Monica, Cal., hangar as it was given its final inspection and ground tests before taking off for the first time. The huge 82-ton bomber, largest plane ever built, has a range of 7,750 miles—the distance from Los Angeles to London and back to New York. A crew of 10 men mans the plane and it could be refitted as a troop transport with a capacity of 125 men.

$11,060 in Pensions Paid During March in Johnson County

Old age pensions totaling $11,060.20 were paid to 532 Johnson county residents last month, according to a state report. Aid to the blind amounting to $524.61 was given to 24 persons.

Old age payments averaged $20.79 and the average blind assistance was $21.86, the report revealed.

Police Seek Counterfeiters

Editor's note: The Daily Iowan had complete knowledge of the following case Monday afternoon. The Iowan, cooperating with the federal agent and local police, did not print the story on request of the officials. The case was and still is under investigation and full details had not been released Monday.

Iowa City police officials and a special agent of the United States Treasury department yesterday and Monday were questioning 10 high school age youths in connection with counterfeiting "lead" nickels.

Several pieces of counterfeiting equipment have been discovered, in which slugs resembling real nickels were made, officials said.

They reported that some of the equipment was found in homes of the youths questioned and that an investigation is being carried on to determine if an adult "ring-leader" is involved.

No Charges
According to the treasury agent no charges have been filed against highway first aid and accident prevention, and Louis P. Brusco, field representative of the Red Cross mid-western area headquarters, St. Louis.

4 Local People Elected to Iowa Hospital Offices

Noted Times Critic to Appear on Concert Program Tonight

Olin Downes Will Present Piano Solo

Guest Conductors Will Add Color To Iowa Symphony

Olin Downes, music critic of the New York Times, will be the featured soloist when Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp and the University of Iowa symphony orchestra, with two guest conductors, present an all-American concert in Iowa Union at 8 o'clock tonight.

Tickets for the performance may still be obtained at the main desk in the union. The concert will be broadcast by WSUI. The four-part program lists works by four native American composers. Olin Downes will play the piano solo in the late Edward MacDowell's "Concerto in A minor, opus 15."

Downes to Be Guest
Downes, a native of Evanston, Ill., is well known as a critic, editor, publisher and musician. He will appear as the final speaker on the University lecture course in Macbride auditorium tomorrow night.

The MacDowell Concerto, which Downes will play, was written while the composer was studying in Germany. Joachim Raff, under whom MacDowell was studying, urged him to show his manuscript to Franz Liszt. Liszt was delighted and aided MacDowell in getting the work published.

MacDowell dedicated this, one of his earliest works, "To the Master, Franz Liszt." The selection will be conducted by Professor Clapp.

'Comedy Overture' Listed
Professor Clapp will also conduct the "Comedy Overture on Negro Themes" by the late Henry F. B. Gilbert. Gilbert, born near Boston, Mass., in 1868, studied violin at the New England conservatory with Emil Mollenhauer. He also studied composition with MacDowell.

The "Comedy Overture on Negro Themes" was originally intended as a prelude to an opera based on the Uncle Remus stories of Joel Chandler Harris. Circumstances compelled Gilbert to abandon the work before its completion. The Overture was published in 1919.

Professor Alsop Directs
The second part of tonight's program will be devoted to "Three Short Pieces for Orchestra" by Prof. Addison Alsop of the music department. Professor Alsop will conduct the Three Pieces.

A few days ago, Professor Alsop composed a set of six short pieces for piano, which proved so orchestral that friends advised him to arrange them for orchestra. Instead, he composed this set of three orchestral compositions. In them he has used none of the thematic material from the six piano pieces.

The orchestral pieces, which are still in manuscript, bear no descriptive titles, but each embodies its own definite mood.

Final number on tonight's program will be "Symphony No. 3 in C minor" by Prof. Edward F. Kurtz, head of the music department at Iowa State Teachers college in Cedar Falls. Professor Kurtz will conduct his own composition.

Won Awards for Music
Professor Kurtz has studied violin under Kunitz and Ysaye, and composition under Percy Goetschius, Edgar Stillman-Kelley and Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp. He is a four-time winner of first prize in composition contests sponsored by the Iowa branch of the American Federation of Music clubs.

The C minor symphony was completed in September, 1939. It was performed at Cedar Falls in May, 1940, by the Teachers college orchestra. It was also played at the Symposium of American Music, in Rochester, N.Y., in February, 1941.

To Appear at All-American Concert Tonight

Discussing the details of tonight's all-American concert in Iowa Union are four of America's personalities in music. Left to right, they are Prof. Addison Alsop of the music department, who will conduct his "Three Short Pieces for Orchestra"; Prof. Edward F.

Kurtz, head of the music department at Iowa State Teachers college in Cedar Falls, who will conduct his own "Symphony in C Minor"; Olin Downes, music critic of the New York Times, who will appear as piano soloist, and

Birthday Congratulations

It's another year and another birthday for "Huck," so Lucille Zeller, secretary of the college of law, extends her congratulations along with the other law students.

Huck Finn's Birthday Prof. P. Bordwell's Dog Attends Law Classes for Years

By MARY JEANNE STALEY
Huckleberry Finn, the youngest member of the college of law, celebrated his 13th birthday yesterday.

Although poor "Huck" has been attending classes for years now, he'll never receive his degree or take his bar exams.

Maybe it's because he cuts classes every time he has a yen to go rabbit hunting or cat chasing, or because he occasionally speaks when not spoken to during class hours. But more likely it's because he's a dog.

"Huck" belongs to Prof. Percy Bordwell in the college of law. "Huck" has earned a place for himself among the members of the law school. The story is told that once Professor Bordwell was asked whom he believed to be the greatest person to pass through the portals of Iowa's law school, and he replied after thoughtful consideration, "Why, Huckleberry, of course."

Kappa Beta Pi, legal sorority, baked Huck a delicious meat loaf yesterday and wrapped it in a box decorated with willows and spring flowers. "Huck" sniffed eagerly at the box, but it's doubtful if it was the odor of the flowers that fascinated him.

When the number of students in Professor Bordwell's class in "Future Interests" was discovered to be 13, "Huck" was "enrolled" to break any jinx that might be lurking around.

And "Huck's" pretty agile for his age. He's been caught climbing ladders quite often. His only trouble is that when he gets to the top he can't get back down to the ground.

He's everybody's friend, and he accepts the affection offered by the law students as his right.

Combine Hits With Decision To Break Tilt

Upper Iowa's Miller Weakens in Last After Giving Only 2 Blows

By BILL BUCKLEY
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

A combined barrage of base hits, decisions and breaks pulled Iowa's baseball team through a close decision over Upper Iowa here yesterday afternoon, as the Hawkeys scored three times in the ninth inning to win.

For eight innings the curveball slants of Ronnie Miller chained Iowa almost completely, but the pressure of the game going against him in that fatal ninth proved too much, and the Peacock hurler gave up two successive singles which scored the tying and winning runs.

Before that Miller had allowed just two hits, both by Warren Smith, Hawk centerfielder, on one of which he scored an unearned run. Three Iowa hurlers were just as effective, giving up but three hits, but plenty of wild playing gave Upper Iowa its three runs, only one earned.

Clarence Dunagan, first man up in the ninth, survived on the third error committed by Kuehl, Peacock thirdbaseman. Norman Hankins took two straight strikes, then pounded a curve ball to centerfield for a clean single, Dunagan stopping at second. Miller was still unperurbed, and got Bill Welp on of groundout.

Then the blowup came, and there was plenty of reason to understand why the pitcher weakened as he did. First, a low pitch got away from the catcher, Tomms, and the runners advanced. That might not have been so bad, but with Ray Koehn at bat, the Hawkeys tried the old double steal. Timms interfered with the batter, and though he tagged Dunagan out cleanly sliding into home, the run automatically scored and the batter went to first.

That was the end so far as Miller was concerned, for Capt. Frankie Kocur immediately slugged a single to left, scoring Hankins with the tying run, and Rudy Radics followed with a long blow down the first base line which would have gone for a double in any league, but scored the winning run, and merely wasted a base.

Iowa scored its run in the first when Smith singled, stole second, advanced to third on an error by the catcher, and scored as the second-baseman fumbled a grounder with one out. The Peacocks counted in the fifth on a single, a sacrifice and another single. They scored in the sixth on three errors in succession by the Hawk infield. Their final counter in the eighth came on a walk, a sacrifice and a single.

Ted Gordinier, Wendell Hill and Dick Hein all pitched good ball for Iowa—the first two being lifted for pinchhitters. The Hawkeys play Indiana here Friday and Saturday in the Big Ten opener.

Bluehawk Tracksters Will Compete With Tipton, Anamosa

University high will host to Tipton and Anamosa in a triangular meet to be held on the university track Thursday afternoon, and after looking over the season's records it appears quite evident that the Bluehawks should have a big day.

Anamosa and Tipton have been showing about the same strength this season, which was partly demonstrated in the conference indoor meet when the two teams ranked in third and fourth positions with 23 and 22 points respectively. The conference second-place Bluehawks tallied 51-1-10 points in the indoor contest to outscore Anamosa and Tipton combined.

U-high should carry away honors in the half-mile run, with Captain Prazier and possibly Zeller covering the assignment, and Rummels should have little difficulty in winning the hurdles.

Tipton boasts a group of outstanding sprinters which will make things hot for U-high and Anamosa in the dashes. Dice of Tipton will undoubtedly rank high in the shot put division, and Leapheart will be a threat in the broad jump as well as in the sprint races.

Honn of Anamosa, having vaulted 10 feet, 3 inches in the conference indoor meet, may well be expected to place in the pole-vault event Thursday.

Trackmen In Drake Relays This Week End

Almost the entire University of Iowa track team will head for Des Moines tomorrow to take part in the annual Drake relays.

Teams will be entered in four events—the 440, 880, mile and distance medley, along with a half dozen or so in individual track and field events.

At the Kansas relays last week the half-mile quartet made the best showing of the entire squad by capturing a second place behind Texas. The Hawkeye team, composed of Mike Markovitz, Ralph and Walt Todd and Art Schlauder, made the run in 1:28.9.

Another race of this caliber in the Drake carnival over the week end should give other entries stiff competition and perhaps earn the Hawkeyes some points.

First Two Rounds Of Freshman Mat Tourny Completed

No upsets were scored, but plenty of action was seen as the first and second rounds of the freshman wrestling team were completed yesterday. The tournament is sponsored annually by Coach Mike Howard and the winners are awarded freshman numerals. The finals are slated to come off Thursday afternoon at 4:15 p.m.

One of the fastest matches to be completed on the Iowa mat this season occurred in the heavyweight division in the first round when Warren Reitzle tossed Gene Tujetch in the remarkably fast time of 22 seconds.

136-pound class—Rodenborn defeated Henley by default.
155-pound class—Mahrer defeated Von Berg, 4-2. Vaughn decided Himmel, 7-6. Vergamini won from Hollander by default.
165-pound class—Geppert drew a bye.

175-pound class—Bright threw Yocky. Time: 2:06. Dassow won by default.
Heavyweight class—Donovan drew a bye. Reitzle threw Tujetch. Time 1:15.
Second Round
155-pound class—Mahrer decided Vaughn, 7-0.
Heavyweight class—Donovan decided Reitzel, 13-5.

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—The Washington Senators, playing the role of giant killers for the second time in a row, unleashed a 15-blow attack to defeat Boston 12 to 5 here today while young Walter Masterson held the league leaders in check after a shaky start.

Dietrich Stops Tigers, But No-Hitter Spoiled

Chisox Miss Acme in Ninth

DETROIT, April 22 (AP)—Bill Dietrich, 31-year-old Chicago White Sox pitcher, stood at the door of baseball's hall of fame a second time today only to have Hank Greenberg and Rudy York of the Detroit Tigers slam it shut in his face and force him to settle for a 6 to 3 victory.

The bespectacled Sox right-hander, who pitched a no-hitter to beat the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 0, on June 1, 1937, had a second such achievement within 48 days with one out in the last of the ninth Greenberg singled and York homered after an error put a runner on.

Thanks largely to a collapse of Detroit's infield in the fifth the Sox were leading, 6 to 0, when the Tigers took their last turn. Charley Gehring rolled out, but Luke Appling muffed Barney McCosky's grounder. Greenberg let two pitches go by for balls and lined a clean single over second. Hank is Detroit fan-club's no. 1 hero, but this time boom came from the crowd. York finished off with a drive into the left field stands.
