How Not to Make Warplanes--

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Curtiss-Wright Dispute Brings One 'Slowdown' Into Limelight

WASHINGTON — Hemming and hawing over whether the government should seize the Curtiss-Wright airplane factory at Columbus, Ohio, have been reaching the public prints, off and on, in a necessarily vague way, because of the desire of everyone to avoid disclosing military secrets involved.

It should no longer be a military secret that this plant achieved the sensational record of not delivering a single airplane for more than 14 months after it broke ground. The plant was started January 20, 1941, and was finished nearly a year ago in the middle of June. Yet the first delivery was made only a few weeks ago.

A big christening was held last December 4, for what was supposed to be the first plane off the line. Deliveries were supposed to have started then.

Pictures were taken and newspaper stories widely circulated. Since then the only matters about which there has been any publicity have been the accusations and denials that a slowdown existed there.

The christened plane was actually only a test model. After the cameras were taken away and the newspapermen had gone, weights were dropped upon its wings, etc., to determine its durability. It was wrecked in the process, and actual deliveries did not start until about five months later.

Now, there may be disputes as to who is to blame, but there can be no denial of these facts. Among the explanations, which are no doubt valid, are that the personnel in the plant was 92 per cent new to the aviation industry; that the plant itself was likewise new; that the company had to do experimental designing and proving, as well as producing, etc.

Other charges that have been made, however, are: That morale in the plant has been low; that labor has been in a slowdown, and that neither the management nor the labor seemed able to handle its own end of the business efficiently.

Whether a new naval inspector assigned to the plant will change matters remains to be seen.

Regardless of all that, no one here or in Columbus has been able to cut through this amazing situation and give that plant a record of which it should be proud. So far it has produced more explanations than planes.

More Explanations Than Planes

Now Goals for Russia

Stalin's May Day speech was addressed to the red workers, but it sounded like none he ever made before. Gone was any talk of "the revolution." Absent was any suggestion of his kind of collectivism. What he wants now is:

"Freedom and justice."

Moderate also were his demands. He renounced any ambition for territory, beyond the acquisition (he said "freeing") of his own Ukraine and White Russians, Lithuan-ians, Latvians, Estonians, and Finnish Karelians.

While this new presentation of Russian purposes may have been partly conceived for effect on the outside world, its main effect will be upon the Russian people themselves, directing their minds away from old red goals toward a new one.

Political fronts can be swiftly changed in a dictator nation like Russia. This one may also be subject to post-war change without notice.

But for the present at least it will contribute further unity to the cause of the united nations.

Burma Road Hard to Replace

Mr. Roosevelt will have trouble keeping his promise to maintain his shipment of supplies to China. He was no doubt speaking of creating a new Burma road of the skies. He could make it fully efficient only with 100 transport planes, each plane would carry three or four tons. With a round trip a day from India for each plane, the skyway could approximate the peak traffic of the Burma highway. It carried around 15,000 tons a month, although 6,000 of this was gas for the trucks.

A hundred planes, however, are hard to find these days. The Chinese were promised 25 but they have not yet received these.

Very little material has been getting into China since the Japs seized Rangoon.

The Blank Check Fund

No one knows exactly what the president has done with his secret blank check fund of $200,000,000, and it may be two or three years before an accounting is given.

The April 28 daily treasury statement shows the total spent since last June 30 is $147,433,000, nearly twice as much as the previous fiscal year. It says certain amounts have been allocated to navy, army, building, etc., but not how these amounts were spent.

It is known FDR used much of the money to build the Atlantic bases and got these sums back from congress. The civil defense jamboree under La Guardia was likewise partly financed from the fund, but congress denied reimbursement for some of these items.

CAPITAL & CAMPUS

ACP's Jay Richter Reports from Washington

Opportunities For College Folks—

WASHINGTON (ACP) — The weatherman is likely to be a weatherman for the duration. Civil service is looking for college women to fill vacancies at weather stations west of the Mississippi. If you're interested, go to the weather station where you would like a job and ask for blanks. (Incidentally, some stations are still adverse to hiring women—which is something you may want to know in advance.)

At least two years of college work is required, with emphasis on mathematics and physics. The salary is $135 a month—$120 or $105 if you are willing to take less. You'll have to take a written examination.

Reports filtering into the capitol from "the field" indicate that farmers generally are reacting favorably to the student farm-work plan of McNutt's manpower commission. The newly-created commission is going to enlist college and high school students to work on farms in areas where shortage of help threatens.

Of course, the department of agriculture here had already advised its field personnel to use students. And many students and farmers have been planning ahead of any Washington agency for example, in eastern truck gardening areas students and farmers have been working together more than two months.

The manpower commission will obtain students through employment service offices.

A Tour of Life In Just One Day—

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Take a day like today . . . You couldn't tell it was going to be any different. It started out just like any other day. The sun came up. The coffee tasted good. The buses were running. The newspapers were on the corner stands with their big black headlines.

As I stood on the corner, waiting for traffic to slow down a little, my doctor poked his head out of a car and said, "Come on."

"Where you going?" I asked and got in.

"Hospital," he said. "Want to see a Caesarian?"

I had seen them before but never one such as this turned out to be because it was twins, and along about ten o'clock this morning there were two sturdy lads who hadn't been in that room when you first went in. I hate to bore you by telling you that the mother named both of them after General MacArthur, but she did.

Then I went down town and had lunch with a man who manufactures rum in Puerto Rico . . . A lot of rum, he admitted, was at the bottom of the Atlantic, starting the fishes, somewhere between San Juan and New York . . . When he goes down to Puerto Rico now, as he does once a month, he flies . . . "But right now," he told me, "my secretary's getting married, and I'm going to see it, and you're coming with me."

It was a high noon wedding, at the Little Church Around the Corner . . . The actor's church, the little Episcopal Church so beloved by Broadway . . . The church was beautiful, as it always is . . . The music was gorgeous, as it always is . . . The bride was lovely, as I hope she will always be.

We stood at the rear and watched her go down the aisle, and meet the groom, and say the words . . . As usual, all the men were grinning and all the ladies were dabbling their handkerchiefs at their eyes, having a nice little comforting cry, and then the groom with his bride hurried up the aisle, and my friend the rum manufacturer, gave her a big kiss, and they hurried out and drove away in a car . . .

Outside, I got into a cab and drove up Madison to 42nd street . . . As I got out, and turned toward Grand Central, men began to run toward the corner of Vanderbilt avenue, and by the time I got there, there were 50 slandersly crowding around a man who was lying on his back on the pavement.

"Get back you!" the cops were screaming. One of the cops was on his knees, opening the man's collar, trying to pat the man's wrists. But you could tell—anybody could tell—by the blue color and the grey pallor that came over his face that it was too late. This man was dead. Heart attack. Just like that.

I walked slowly back to the office . . . Birth . . . wedding . . . death . . . That's the three great things in a man's life . . . and a woman's . . . I never thought I'd see anything like that when I got up this morning, and drank my coffee, which tasted good, and started out . . . Well, you never know . . .

NUTRITION FOR DEFENSE
Your COUNTRY wants you to be healthy so you can endure long hours of hard work for its defense. For GOOD HEALTH you must eat nutritious food of certain kinds and amounts.

LESSON NUMBER SIX
Two or more servings of FRUIT each day—as excellent sources of valuable MINERALS and VITAMINS for optimal nutrition. One serving should be CITRUS FRUIT or TOMATO, which are especially high in VITAMIN C—necessary for NORMAL CONDITION OF BONES, TEETH, MUSCLES, and BLOOD VESSELS. (C has to do with holding the body cells together) "C" is also essential in glandular function. FRUITS (and vegetables) supply indigestible residue.
Nutrition Committee—Home Ec. Club.

After "The Women" brought Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell and Joan Fontaine together with no serious casualties (barring figurative frost-bite) the good old claw-and-tooth days of hair-pulling seemed definitely over.

Fight fans were hopeful when Alice Faye, Constance Bennett, Jane Wyman and Nancy Kelly were embroiled in "Tailsip," but the only real damage done was to those unfortunates who saw the picture.

"Ladies in Love," with C. Bennett, Janet Gaynor, Loretta Young and the redoubtable Simone Simon, promised even better but added little to feminine fight history. Simone, in those days before her reformation, was pestiferous, and there were a few sparks but not enough to set the stage on fire.

The sad fact, for fight lovers, is that production schedules don't allow much time for temperance, and even the best established star had better think twice before tossing a right hook or a monkey-wrench into the works.

While we talked with Miss Bari, Glenn Miller and band, with Montgomery and Romero, went through rehearsals on their "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" number. Mr. Miller, a studious and hard-working young man, is the idol of millions of swing fanatics, and there can be no doubt that he has something—something more than those frightful, horrendous combinations of weird noises his merry men call music.

What Will Be Read?

A COMPARISON FOR THOSE WHO DON'T WANT TO THINK ABOUT THE PEACE NOW

Are you one of those who still believes that we ought not to discuss peace plans until the war is won?

If so, here are two things to think about:

1. There is no greater morale-builder than the knowledge that people are thinking hard about the kind of world they want to build.

2. On that day when the war ends, will we be ready? A lasting peace cannot be planned overnight.

The new world requires planning and effort and sweat. It needs these things now—and now is the time to plan. Now, while we are fighting for a better world.

Last week the Council For Democracy published a pamphlet, "The New World", which puts the problem very simply. When you pick up your Daily Iowan ten years from today, which one of these stories do you want to read?

THIS . . . ?

Yesterday marked the 10th anniversary of World Federation Day. All over the earth, in a series of remarkable and moving ceremonies, men, women and children met in freedom and peace, and listened to the condensed report on the state of the world broadcast in every known language. Perhaps the most dramatic feature of the report was the announcement of the final conquest of cancer, due to the pooled researches of Dr. Emilio Sanchez of Buenos Aires, Dr. Lin Szu of Nanking and Sir Henry Bolton, M.D. of London.

Less dramatic but more significant was the rise of the basic living standard of mankind from a low of 58 in 1942 to the current figure of 117. While this figure is still unsatisfactory, considering the known resources of the planet, as the Commissioner of Australia remarked, "We have only scratched the surface of man's capacity for growth." The Committee on Wars reported that, for the eighth consecutive year there had been no armed outbreak of any sort in the world.

OR THIS . . . ?

Yesterday the Black Army threw seven new divisions in its drive on the Southern Front and, while heavily counterattacked in certain sectors, claimed a net advance of 37 miles. Casualties of the past month are estimated by neutral observers at 121,000 though this figure is disputed.

A report from officials of the Red Cross states that one-third of the world's population is now living under famine conditions and no alleviation may be expected in the near future. The recent outbreak of plague in Malaysia now seems to have spread to the mainland and cases have been reported from such widely separated points as Brisbane, Honolulu and San Francisco.

CPT Instructor Plans Meeting Of Students

Students at present enrolled in the university's civilian pilot training program and prospective enrollees will meet in room 311, physics building, Thursday at 5 p. m. Elmer C. Lundquist, instructor of aeronautics, reported yesterday.

Details of the local program and instruction concerning enlistment in the armed air services in an active or reserve capacity will be discussed.

Prof. Huber O. Croft, coordinator, and Lundquist will handle the meeting. Students who have enrolled in the reserve corps of one of the United States air services are especially invited, Lundquist declared.

Both primary and secondary students have completed their semester's training. Iowa was the first university in this district to complete its spring session, Lundquist stated further.

Applications for civilian pilot training this summer are still being received in rooms 107 and 109, engineering building. It is expected that a quota of 50 primary students and 30 secondary students will be designated for the summer CPT session.

Stille, Collins Pitch Hawks To Triumph

Hawkeyes Start Fast, Collect Four Markers In First, Two in 2nd

Behind the six-hit pitching of Roy Stille and Bob Collins, Iowa's Hawkeyes opened a two-game series with Michigan State successfully yesterday, by pounding out a 9-2 victory.

Stille granted only five hits during the first six frames, but tired in the seventh, and was relieved by Collins. Collins finished up the game in fine style, and allowed only one hit in one and two-thirds innings.

The Hawks started fast, and counted four times in the first inning and twice in the second. From there on it was just a breeze for Iowa's speedball expert. Stille gave up one run in the second frame, and another in the seventh, but neither was earned.

George Knight, Iowa's hustling third sacker, who has begun to come into his own lately, was the leading figure in the Hawks' offensive as he pounded out four safe slugs in five trips to the plate.

Ranking behind Knight with two hits apiece were Clarence "Doc" Dunagan, Harold Lind and Stille. Stille, who has watched the other Iowa hurlers hit the ball hard lately, kept up the good work by connecting for two hits himself.

Iowa's infield performed in brilliant fashion, and handled 10 ground balls without a miscue. Included were fine fielding plays by Dunagan on a hard hit ball through the box, and by Rudy Radics on a foul fly. Two lightning-like double plays were also registered with Tommy Farmer in the pivot position both times.

The Hawks pounded the Spartans' starting hurler, Joe Skrocki, hard in the first four innings, but his successor, Don Fleischman, held the Iowa bats in check during the four and two-thirds innings he was on the mound.

After the Spartans had been set down in the first half of the opening inning, the Hawks opened up with a barrage of hits in their half to score four runs.

Bud Flanders was safe at first base to get the rally under way when the first baseman, Joe Nelson, dropped the throw from the third sacker, Nick Picciuto, on a ground ball. Knight followed with the first of his four blows, and Flanders raced to third. Dunagan came through with a sharp swing to left field to score Flanders with Iowa's first run.

Knight Goes to 3rd
Knight advanced to third on the hit, and Dunagan went to second on the throw attempting to head off Knight. Both men came home.

RAPID ROY RUNS RAMPANT—Roy Stille, Iowa's fast ball expert, came through with his second victory of the season here yesterday as the Hawkeyes downed Michigan State, 9-2, in the first of a two-game series. Stille previously held a decision over Notre Dame. Rapid Roy limited the Spartans to five hits in seven and one-third frames, when he tired and gave way to Bob Collins. Stille also connected for two hits on his own account, and scored two runs to continue the fine work which Iowa hurlers have been doing at the plate lately.

on Lind's hit to center field, but Lind was out stealing on the first pitch to Farmer. Farmer walked and Radics singled, and Farmer counted the fourth run of the inning when Ray Koehn hit into a fielder's choice.

The Spartans tallied a run in the second inning without the aid of a base hit. Fornari opened the inning by walking, and advanced to third as the next two men grounded out. Bob Andreoli, the left fielder, swung at a low pitch for the third strike, but the ball evaded Capt. Bill Welp, and Andreoli arrived safely at first, and Fornari scored.

Iowa's two-run second inning started with a walk to Stille, Stille stole second, and ran home on Knight's single. Knight went to second, and ran home on Knight's ground ball. Knight followed with second on the throw home, and scored on Lind's second hit.

The Hawkeyes were held scoreless in the third, but the fourth inning saw them bounce back with two more runs. Knight and Dunagan opened with singles, and after Lind hit into a force play, and stole second, Farmer singled Knight and Lind home. That hit spelled the finish for Skrocki, and Fleischman came in to put down the Hawk attack.

Stille and Knight combined to score Iowa's ninth run in the fifth frame. With one out, Stille singled and stole second, from where he scored on Knight's fourth hit.

In the eighth inning, Michigan State tallied its second run and knocked Stille from the mound. Howard Ladue opened the inning with his third hit, and stole second. He advanced to third on an infield out, and scored when Welp threw into left field trying to

★ First Night Tilts
★ Played in Majors
★ Seven Years Ago

NEW YORK—There has been much concern over the future of night baseball in New York in view of the dim-out rule adopted as a war-time safety measure, and an innocent bystander would get the idea that the ball clubs were being deprived of something as traditional and as much a part of the game as the base on balls.

As a matter of fact the first night game in the majors was played just seven years ago in Cincinnati, and for years Larry MacPhail has been going about periodically tapping the other magnates on the noggin trying to get them to come around to his way of thinking, i.e., that night baseball has a definite place in the big leagues.

No Lights For Yanks
He's finally got most of them on his side, although some clubs, notably the Yankees, have yet to erect arcs.

But in view of the fact that, up to seven years ago, the owners would guffaw gustily with a "quit your kidding" insinuation at the mention of night ball, the present alarm over the prospect they might be deprived of arc contests is ironic. It's like a kid who doesn't want something until he finds out he can't have it.

To give the club owners and league officials credit, they have kept quiet during the agitation over the dark, literally, outlook. It was a smart thing, the only thing, in fact, they could do. Any pressure they might use in getting permission to play at night would be construed as a selfish move, and any professional sport is gliding along on thin ice now and cannot afford to allow even a hint of a motive to creep into the minds of the public.

Starting Discovery
Since MacPhail turned on the lights in Cincinnati, 260 games have been played at night in the majors, the magnates making the startling discovery that an occasional night game would outdraw a day game by many thousands of fans.

In fact, the attendance increase was so startling that clubs which

9th Inning Hit Sends Winning Run Over As Bobby Klingner Wins

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Elbie Fletcher's only hit of the game, a sharp ninth inning single, gave the Pirates a 2-1 victory over the Boston Braves yesterday and the Bucs advanced to within a half-game of the idle, league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers.

Veteran Jim Tobin and Bobby Klingner, hooked up in a hurling duel, both allowing only six hits. An error paved the way for the winning run. Shortstop Eddie Miller fumbled Bob Elliott's grounder with one out. Vince DiMaggio singled Elliott pulling up at third from where he scored on Fletcher's hit.

have had trouble drawing their breath at the gate for day encounters, notably the Browns and Senators, are out-shouting MacPhail in their boosting of night contests, and probably would play all their games under lights if possible.

Had the war come along seven years ago this concern over the dim-out would not have been apparent. And, if memory serves, the major clubs prior to 1935 were doing all right playing daylight ball.

That they would do all right this year if forced to switch their night games to day games is probable, although such a procedure undoubtedly would cut into attendance more than a little.

Best Suggestion
The best suggestion that has been made toward determining the advisability of night ball is that lights be turned on and observers placed where submittances might conceivably operate to see if the lights make any difference. If they made even the slightest difference there would be no question but that they should be blacked out for the duration.

The club owners and league officials concerned might very well sponsor such a test themselves, requesting the co-operation of army authorities. There would be no harm in asking, anyway. If it were discovered that it makes no difference whether the lights are on or off, it would be to keep them off to ask the clubs to keep them off would be as senseless as asking a man not to use the sidewalks for the duration.

Anyway, the major clubs got along without night ball before, by preference, and they can do it again, through necessity.

Hawk Tennis Team Falls Before Illinois Netsters Here, 8 to 1

Iowa's net team dropped its fifth straight match of the season here yesterday afternoon as favored Illinois captured eight of nine matches, five singles and all three doubles, to down the Hawks, 8-1.

Bob Basford, playing the number three singles, saved Iowa from a shutout by downing F. Saikly in three sets, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Capt. Earl Crain and Karl Ryerson both forced their opponents to three sets, but both lost out.

Jim Gates took Crain into camp by a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 count, and Jim Lothrop beat Ryerson, 6-2, 1-6, 8-6. The Wendlermen lost the three remaining singles in straight sets, with Bud Houghton going down before R. von Spreckelsen, 6-3; 6-3, and Clint Evans and Oscar Karch losing to Ken Clapper and C. Pilz 6-1, 7-5, and 6-2, 6-2, respectively.

Crain and Houghton, teaming up for the number one doubles, lost out to Gates and Saikly in three sets, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, while the numbers two and three teams lost in straight sets. Basford and Ryerson, in number two, fell to von Spreckelsen and Lothrop, 7-5, 7-5, and Evans and Karch couldn't keep up with Clapper and Pilz, losing 6-2, 8-6.

Yesterday afternoon's meet was the last home tennis competition of the year, but the Iowans still have another dual left on the schedule. Saturday the team will face Minnesota's Gophers at Minneapolis to wind up the year's activities. A meet carded here with Wisconsin May 16 has been called off, as has the Big Ten conference meet.

'Salvage for Victory' Drive Nets More Than Three Tons of Metal

Iowa City's "Salvage for Victory" drive resulted in the collection of more than three tons of scrap metal, according to Dean Jones, local chairman.

He said that Saturday morning's results were above expectations. Proceeds from the collection amounting to approximately $70 will be turned over to the Red Cross war fund.

Such articles as iron beds, radios, ice boxes, stoves, gas stoves and a small printing press were included in the collection, which was made by the local boy scouts and clubs.

Jones asked that all persons who had not been canvassed by the scouts save their salvage to be collected at a later date.

RECRUIT FOR EDDIE . . .
Remember Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Blair? They were graduates in commerce here in 1938 . . . Mrs. Blair used to be Jean Pollock . . .

Well, the stork called at their house on April 24 up in Ft. Dodge, and fetched them a son . . . Out came the following announcement:

"Fort Dodge, Ia., SPECIAL, April 24, 1942.

"New hope for the 1962 Iowa football squad came at 9:25 a.m. today with the arrival of an eight-and-a-half pound boy to Jean and Ray Blair, Class of '38, at the Lutheran hospital here . . .

"Butch and Jean are doing fine. Ray is having his shirts altered to compensate for chest expansion . . . ("Butch's" nickname — Ray Steven.)"

Cover of the announcement carried the accompanying picture of momma and poppa . . .

It ought to be known that the doctor who brought Butch into the world was Dr. Wilbur C. Thatcher, who got his M.D. here in 1933 . . . which keeps the whole thing in the university family . . .

U.S. GEOPOLITICS—

The University of Maryland's President H. C. Byrd thinks it's high time we got busy preparing for the post-war world by doing something more now than just understanding the problems . . .

He sized up the German geopolitical institute at Munich, credited with having a profound influence on Hitler's campaigns, and set up an institute of foreign affairs at his university . . .

It will train students for foreign administrative posts in the post-war world, "in view of the major role this nation will undoubtedly play in world affairs after the war . . ."

Studies of languages, government, military history, social customs and so on will be correlated for all the nations of Europe and the Orient . . . One feature will be a department of psychological relations . . .

The man responsible for all this interest in geo-politics is Germany's Karl Haushofer. . . He has an idea that Europe, Asia and Africa make up a "world island," and that whoever rules that island is in a position to rule everything else around it, including the two little connected islands in the western hemisphere—North and South America. . .

Haushofer has quite a following of young historians, economists and students of geo-politics. . . So far as I know, though, he has never made any specific arrangements for peaceful determination of who will control the island. . .

Currently there are three great powers after it, two (Germany and Japan) by choice; the third (Russia) through necessity. . .

PROBLEMS—

Last week's two tragedies, not the first in their respective categories, seem to be self-suggestive of a couple of ideas worth following up. . .

Seems as though there ought to be a life-line of some kind across Iowa river below the dam, like those at other sites. . .

And it also seems that something should be done to make students increasingly aware that there are facilities here for those who have worries — worries which sometimes lead to desperation. . .

Popular prejudices notwithstanding, Iowa's psychiatric department and hospitals are symbols of a great medical science, no less concerned with the health of this region than University hospital itself. . .

"Officials over there will tell you that, while some people don't like to believe it, people of top intelligence in every social and economic class attach no stigma to the word

Tuberculosis and Health Group Names New Committees

Program and Budget Outline for the Year Decided at Meeting

New committees were named and the program and budget outlined for the coming year at the meeting last night of the officers and directors of the Johnson County Tuberculosis and Health Association at the Jefferson hotel.

The executive committee for this year will include the following officers: Dr. George C. Albright, president; Mrs. H. S. Ivie, vice president; Mrs. Sadie Seagrave, secretary, and William J. Parizek, treasurer.

Also on the committee are Harold Schuppert, new Christmas seal sale chairman, Dr. J. D. Boyd, chairman of the program and budget committee, Atty. Emil Trot, chairman of the education and publicity committee, Dr. J. H. Peck and Dr. M. B. Street.

Members of the program and budget committee are Dr. J. D. Boyd, chairman, Attorney Trot, F. J. Snider, Mrs. Mildred Johnson and Margaret Cannon.

The educational committee includes Attorney Trot, F. J. Snider, Mrs. Johnson and Miss Cannon. Attorney Trot, 1941 chairman of the Christmas seal drive, gave the final report on last year's campaign. Total income from the sale was $4,292.91, of which $1,198.23 will go to the state tuberculosis association.

The treasurer's report was read showing that when the year's expenses had been subtracted, the organization would have approximately $2,872 on hand.

Harold Schuppert was appointed to sign the seal sale contract this year, and he and Attorney Trot were elected representatives to attend the state meeting of the tuberculosis association to be held in Des Moines this year.

Attorney Trot gave a report of the educational committee outlining a three-year program whereby at least one tuberculosis film will be shown in each county school in this time. An essay contest will also be encouraged this fall in connection with the state radio contest, he said. He explained that there will be no early diagnosis campaign, but that it will be carried out next spring with the rest of the state.

Dr. Boyd outlined the program and budget for the coming year. The $2,430 budget will be divided between education, case-finding program, public health nursing, administration expenses and miscellaneous.

Dr. Chester I. Miller, university director of student health, spoke to the organization about needs of the student health department. It was suggested at the April 6 meeting of the association that perhaps some method might be found whereby the money turned in by university students for Christmas seals might be used for them.

Dr. Miller indicated that more money could be used by the department for literature to send to students encouraging them to return for tuberculosis tests. He also said that they could use money for more tuberculin. The subject will be taken up in more detail at the annual fall meeting.

Dr. Boyd, Parizek and Dr. Albright were appointed to ascertain the amount of surplus money available to be put into war bonds and to so invest it.

Former SUI Student Dies in New York City

Word was received here yesterday by Stanley E. Nelson, of the university department of visual instruction, of the death of his brother, Charles B. Nelson of New York City.

Nelson, who at the time of his death was in the advertising department of Conde Nast publications, graduated from the school of journalism here in 1926, where he was a member of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, and Phi Beta Kappa.

"psychopathic" . . . They go there for medical diagnosis and treatment, just as they would go to a doctor for vaccination in the face of an epidemic. . .

Naval Casualty List Reveals Total of 2,991 Men, Officers Killed

69 Iowans Reported Killed or Missing; Cal. Loss Heaviest

The navy department released yesterday its first casualty list of the war, including the names of four officers and 65 enlisted men from Iowa. A total of 2,991 names of officers and men of the navy, marines and coast guard who gave their lives for their country in the first four months of war were made public.

Men in this vicinity included in the list were James Herring Jr., seaman, son of James H. Herring, 430 S. Van Buren, Iowa City, and Creighton Hale Workman, fireman, son of Lee Workman of Lone Tree.

The lists, which were issued for publication on a regional basis only, except for nationally-known figures, disclosed that California had suffered the heaviest losses among the states.

California home addresses were given for a total of 482 officers and men. Other states with more than 100 casualties among their residents in naval service were Texas, 162; New York, 148; Illinois, 142; Ohio, 123; Washington, 118; and Missouri, 115.

Most of the 2,991 officers and men who made up the list of heroic dead lost their lives in action with the enemy, although some were killed in accidents at sea or in the air while on duty directly connected with wartime operations.

The list of dead is the first to be made public covering navy, marine and coast guard casualties for the period Dec. 7-April 15. A list of 2,495 missing is expected to be given out shortly and a list of 907 wounded will follow that.
