Amendment To Draft Bill Suffers Defeat

Administration Scores Unexpected Victory In Long Senate Battle

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration scored a victory of unexpectedly overwhelming proportions in the senate yesterday with the rejection of a hotly argued amendment that any extension of the service period of draftees, national guardsmen, reservists and army enlisted men be limited to twelve months.

The result was that all factions were predicting the approval today of an eighteen-month limitation offered as a compromise by the military committee, and backed by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the democratic floor leader.

The vote against the 12-month restriction, 50 to 21, came as a highly pleasing surprise to administration leaders. They had foreseen a much closer outcome and, in fact, at times were actually uncertain of winning.

Wheeler's Vote

The reason for the size of the vote was that Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.), Clark (D-Mo.), La Follette (Prog.-Wis.) and many others who have consistently opposed the administration on questions of foreign policy and the draft sprang a surprise by voting against the 12-month limitation.

Only yesterday, Wheeler, Clark, La Follette and many of their followers supported an amendment by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) limiting the additional service period to six months. They had been expected to follow this up by supporting the 12-month restriction, offered by Taft's colleague, Senator Burton (R-Ohio).

Elated Group

But when the votes had been counted, Clark and Wheeler sat grinning at Barkley and the Kentucky senator, elated at the outcome, grinned happily back. Then he called for a recess until tomorrow, when the 18 month idea is expected to be adopted and the bill passed along to the house.

The reasons stated for the attitude of the anti-administration bloc were various. Wheeler said he had always taken the position that he would support a six-months extension but no more. In addition, some senators opposed to the whole bill were credited with believing that while a 12-month limitation might meet with ready house approval, the 18-month proposal would create a rebellious situation there.

Red Army Has 'Fallen Victim' To Nazi Drive, Berlin Declares

BERLIN (AP)—In a series of announcements introduced with trumpet fanfare the German high command yesterday reported gigantic victories over the Russians in the direction of Smolensk on the Moscow front, and south of Lake Peipus toward Leningrad; had engaged in bloody but victorious battles with the Russians and now are "ready to continue with a new phase of operations."

The high command said that the Germans had broken through the Stalin line at three "decisive" points: south of the Pinsk marshes in the direction of Kiev, in the direction of Smolensk on the Moscow front, and south of Lake Peipus toward Leningrad; had engaged in bloody but victorious battles with the Russians and now are "ready to continue with a new phase of operations."

If the German estimates—"almost fantastic in magnitude," DNB described them—were anywhere close to accurate, the Russian dead in this fierce campaign only seven weeks old already exceed Russia's World War deaths of 1,700,000.

The Russians wounded in the present campaign did not even figure in the German reports or estimates. Informed circles said Germany has no way of checking this figure.

Although the reports, blared over the radio with great ceremony, were hailed as "triumphal," the high command was unable to announce that any additional large cities had fallen to the Germans and there were no great claims of territories taken.

Urges Control Of U.S. Buying

Henderson Tells House Committee of Method To Curb Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Control of "dollar-down-dollar-a-month" buying as a means of curbing inflation was recommended to congress yesterday by Leon Henderson, head of the office of price administration.

Resuming his testimony before the house banking committee in support of the administration's price-control bill, Henderson expressed belief that the federal reserve board had the power, under the 1933 emergency banking act, to control installment credit.

"If there is any doubt of that," he said, "some such authority should be written into this bill." The economist did not go into details on that phase of the question but his suggestion found immediate favor with several committee members, many of whom have contended that private credit was one of the principal sources of inflation.

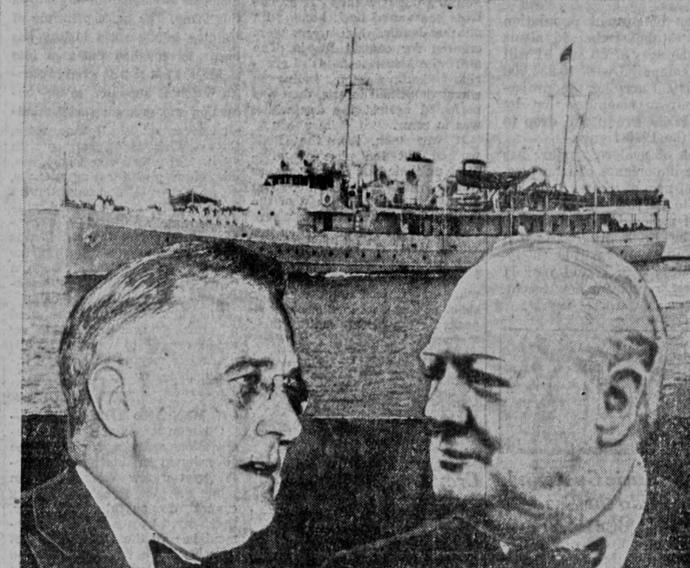

During his lengthy discourse on many angles of the price situation, Henderson told the committee that any increase now in the price of silk stockings could not properly be ascribed to the government's action in freezing stocks of raw silk and could be "pretty generally characterized as profiteering."

Rep. Williams (D-Mo) brought up the question of fixing of agricultural prices and asked the reason for the provision in the bill stipulating that price ceilings for farm commodities could not be established at less than 110 per cent of their parity price or below the market price on July 29, 1940. Henderson, with evident embarrassment, said he understood Chairman Steagall (D-Ala) had accepted responsibility for that provision.

When Williams pressed for the reason behind it, Rep. Ford (D-Cal) broke in with: "Why it was votes!"

Is Roosevelt Meeting Churchill in Atlantic?

Persistent reports from both Washington and London indicate that President Roosevelt, left, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, right, heads of the two great democracies of the world, will meet, or are meeting somewhere, on the Atlantic ocean. Reasons given for this belief are that unusual secrecy surrounds the president's "vacation" cruise aboard the presidential yacht Potomac, top; it has been announced that Churchill will be absent from an important war debate in parliament; nothing is known of the whereabouts of Churchill or Harry Hopkins, F.D.R.'s least-returned representative, who has just returned from Moscow to London, and the chief executive has in the past expressed a desire to meet the British leader.

Declare Huge 'Iron Ring' Broken Apart

MOSCOW (AP)—Mentioning for the first time in days the German-Finnish attempt to smash into Leningrad from the north across the Karelian isthmus, Soviet Russia reported early today that the Red army was fighting stubbornly against the invaders in the Kakisalmi sector, about 75 miles north of Leningrad.

The same war report, issued by the Soviet information bureau, told of continued bitter battles in the familiar Smolensk and Bel Tserkov sectors of the center and south, where official Soviet accounts have told of counter-attacks holding up the Nazi advance.

Still No News About Meeting

Washington Silent On F.R.-Churchill Conference Rumors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Amid widespread but entirely unsubstantiated rumors of a meeting between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill came a message from the presidential vacation yacht yesterday which might—or might not—dispel them, depending upon what was read between the lines.

The wireless message, sent by the skipper of the yacht Potomac and made public by the navy department here, read:

"Cruise ship proceeding slowly along coast with party fishing. Weather fair, sea smooth. Potomac river sailors responding to New England air after Washington summer."

Apparently the "Potomac river sailors" were the president and his companions—Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, his physician; Capt. John R. Beardall, naval aide, and his secretary—who have accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on many week end excursions on the river during the summer.

But anyone inclined to credit the rumors of a Roosevelt-Churchill rendezvous despite the complete lack of confirmation could find food for speculation in the absence of any specific statement that Mr. Roosevelt himself was aboard the yacht.

Workers Strike At Shipyards In New Jersey

KEARNY, N.J. (AP)—Workers at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company yards answered a CIO strike call at midnight which threatened to tie up $493,000,000 worth of contracts on naval and merchant ship orders and throw some 16,000 men into idleness.

Spokesmen for local 16, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, said that a majority of the midnight shift of 1,000 workers, after appearing at the entrance to the sprawling yards, either went home or were turned back by the strike committee.

Maintenance men and union guards were permitted to enter. There was no disturbance, and police confined their efforts to observation and traffic duties.

Peter Flynn, vice president of local 16, announced the strike call a few hours earlier.

Flynn said the union had agreed to accept the board's proposals but the company had not adopted them. He accused the company of taking a "fence straddling attitude."

Flynn added that the bone of contention was the "modified union shop, upon which the union insists but which the company seems determined not to grant."

United States, Britain Send Out Emphatic Warnings to Japanese

WASHINGTON (AP)—In parallel and emphatic warnings to Japan to abandon "movements of conquest" in the Pacific before it is too late, the United States and Great Britain yesterday declared their vital interest in Thailand, the next apparent objective of Japanese expansion.

Almost simultaneously in London, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons that "anything which threatened the integrity or security of Thailand would be of immediate interest to Britain."

Finns, Russians Fight Like Indians of Old

Correspondent Visits Front, Discovers Danger Lurks Unseen in Wooded Sectors of North

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER WITH THE FINNISH ARMY ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT (By Telephone via Helsinki to Berlin) (AP)—War in the Lake Ladoga area is different from anything I have encountered at any front, east, west, or southeast.

The Finns and Russians are fighting with the most modern weapons in much the same manner as the American Indians and their white adversaries fought long ago in the forests with crude weapons.

The front is everywhere and nowhere. You never know where danger may lurk. That queer shape some 50 yards ahead in the trees may be merely a natural bunching of leaves and twigs, or it may be a camouflaged Russian who is ready to pull the trigger the moment his sharp eyes spy you.

Danger Everywhere Hiding in one of the innumerable small dugouts the Finns have constructed near their staff headquarters, you may think you are safe, only to have Russian artillery, shooting from miles away, shatter a nearby tree so that you narrowly escape being crushed as it falls.

Only yesterday three German news men visiting the Finnish front were crossing from one side to the other of a road leading through the forest when a shell hit the road and wounded one of them.

Gradually your eyes become accustomed to seeing that these northern forests are studded with camouflaged staff headquarters, tents, cars, trucks, artillery and machine gun positions.

It is obvious that blitzkrieg methods are applicable only to a limited degree in terrain such as this.

Can't Lose Men Morevoer, every general and Finnish statesman will tell you that this little republic cannot afford to lose many men. In fact, to recover from this war and the winter war of 1939-40, Finnish sociologists will tell you that every married couple must produce at least six children.

Hence, Finland's general staff relies on every native's excellent knowledge of the woods to conquer square yard after square yard of territory with a minimum loss of life.

"The forest is the Finnish soldier's friend," one hears again and again. It is claimed that the Russians are not as much at home in the woods and that success has been on the Finnish side.

Nevertheless, the key position of Leningrad is still a considerable distance away.

Five days with Field Marshal Mannerheim's small but efficient force of Finns has proved to me that the Russians are mighty tough customers. They stay put even when to do so means sure death.

Red Uniforms Best The Russian uniform of a rather muddy brown is admittedly better suited to this landscape than either Finland's bluish-gray or Germany's field gray.

The rifles of individual Russian soldiers are so good that any Finn is happy when he can capture one. Russian munitions are said to be more than sufficient.

British May Enter Finland

Reports from London that a powerful British fleet is in the Arctic ocean off northern Scandinavia is believed to indicate that the British may attempt a landing at Petsamo, Finland, to aid their ally, Russia, in beating off the attack of the axis powers. This Central Press map shows where the landing attempt may be made and also the present line of the eastern front.

Nazi Bomber Called and It's Moving Day Again

Neighbors pitch in and help this London resident move her possessions to a new abode after a German aerial bomb had made a shambles of her home. Note the "V for victory" insignia on the wall, now being spread in England proper as much as in Nazi-held territories.

Only in those areas and in the Estonian sector, where the Germans are trying to put the squeeze on Leningrad from the southwest, was there major fighting, the Russian communique said.

Kakisalmi is a Lake Ladoga port which the Russians gained in the 1939-40 war with Finland.

New Development With this new development on a front hitherto comparatively quiet, official accounts portrayed the Red army as counter-attacking in sustained fashion on the central and southern approaches to Moscow and Kiev in a deepening battle of movement on a 350-mile front.

Moreover, in an account of the successful 32-day fight from entrapment of a "lost division," the official army organ gave the lie to continued German claims of iron encirclement and annihilation of Soviet units.

The Soviet forces met the new German offensive in the Ukraine with the same sort of counter-punch which has blocked the road to Moscow from Smolensk, the Russians said. The first communique today told of battles raging on, day and night, in the mobile fighting of the southern and central quarters, in the wide, fiercely-contested sectors of Smolensk and Bel Tserkov, south of Kiev. Moreover, it was implied that well-entrenched Russian armies of the north were turning back successive assault waves of the Wehrmacht at Kholm, midway between Smolensk and Leningrad, and in Estonia.

Navy Action The Russian navy reported the destruction of a troop and munitions ship, presumably German, by a Soviet submarine operating in the Baltic.

An article in the army newspaper Red Star told of an appeal by military leaders in the Soviet northwest to the people of territories "temporarily occupied by the fascists"—an appeal to "rise in a holy people's war against the German invaders and enslavers."

Strike Threat Among Service Station Labor

NEW YORK (AP)—Gasoline station workers, threatening "definite action" unless relief plans were forthcoming, protested last night to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia that wage hour standards were being nullified in the current dusk-to-dawn automobile fuel ban.

Even as the mayor received their request for a conference, a gas rationing plan, designed for New York state but a potential model for the eastern seaboard, was drawn up for possible use in September. The new plan would limit gasoline consumption by pleasure cars to 15 gallons a week.

Local 917, gasoline station and parking attendants union (AFL), charged in its letter to the mayor that dealers were "taking advantage of conditions" by raising prices, firing night shifts and reducing day staffs. They said 500 of their 5,000 members would lose their jobs within a week and indicated support by the powerful teamsters union which delivers supplies.

The union said it hoped for an end of "palpable injustices and abuses."

How States Raise Money For Advertising, and How It's Spent

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three discussions on state advertising based on a survey by the Council of State Governments. It discusses how advertising funds are raised and spent, and industrial promotion methods.)

To obtain a picture of state advertising and promotion, the Council of State Governments made a survey to determine advertising methods and media, the object of publicity campaigns, and the extent to which industrial encouragements are used to attract new industries.

The council learned that the large percentage of the $6,000,000 appropriated by 39 states for state advertising in 1941 is spent for magazine, newspaper and direct-mail promotion, with most of the states using all three. In addition, motion pictures are used by 16 states, the radio by 14, and billboards and posters by four.

The survey shows a lively competition for the tourist trade by 35 states, with 32 states seeking new industries and 23 trying to find and develop new markets for their products. Eleven states seek new residents this year, four more than advertised for this purpose last year.

A different promotional technique, involving tax concessions and exemptions, or free plant facilities and bonuses, is used by many of the 32 states competing actively for new industries. While the industrial expansion which followed inauguration of the defense program located industries in certain states regardless of concessions, the technique has produced results, as will be shown in another discussion.

The tax concession apparently is the most popular form of industrial encouragement, with municipalities empowered to make the concessions in most of the 18 states where this method is used. In Kentucky, for example, a city council may exempt new industries from local property taxation for five years; in Oklahoma, citizens may vote to extend exemptions. The Louisiana Department of Commerce and Industry may offer tax concessions, and cities may vote bonds to erect and maintain industrial plants processing from products.

In Vermont, local taxes may be waived for 10 years upon approval of the voters. Other states where tax exemptions are granted include Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Rhode Island, Virginia and Wyoming. Plant facilities may be offered in Rhode Island and Tennessee, and in Michigan, where in addition cash bonuses have been given by cities.

Because many states seeking new industries have for several years kept up-to-date files on industrial facilities, including vacant plants, and equipment, and idle or employed manpower, they were able to give immediate and valuable assistance to the national defense program.

The Bureau of Industry in the New York Division of Commerce offers complete information on every plant in the state, and maintains an inventory of metal working facilities including every machine tool in New York. The Massachusetts Department and Industrial Commission has established in cooperation with the Governor's Industrial Committee for National Defense a file of machinery and facilities available for defense.

This 'Man's World' Is Changing!

The increasing degree with which women are entering industry is well illustrated by the census bureau analysis of employment respecting the 1,770,35 retail establishments of the United States.

Even during 1939, before the impact of military demands began to be felt, there were evidences of the growing volume of female workers. In that year retail stores employed an average total of 4,600,217, not including 1,613,673 proprietors and family workers without salary.

Of the regular hired workers, 34.1 per cent were women, compared with 30.5 per cent in 1935. While total retail employment increased approximately 700,000 in five years, female employment in this group increased almost 400,000.

In the retail field, department stores are the greatest employers of women—374,000. Eating places come next with 254,940; variety stores, 182,865, and women's ready-to-wear stores 115,525. More than one-half of all the women engaged in retail trade find employment in these businesses.

Greatest employment for men in the retail field is found in grocery and meat stores with 355,252. Filling stations employ more than 200,000 men, as do eating places.

An analysis of retail trade provides an interesting measure of the dislocation in employment resulting from the practice of excessive buying during the holiday season. December retail employment averages nearly 5,202,000, whereas February retail employment falls below 4,300,000. Reduced to an index figure, if you'd like it that way, the comparison is 108.5 in December with 95 in February.

The retail stores of the United States give livelihood to nearly one-ninth of all gainful workers.

So what was once a man's world is changing. We wonder, as we look around at the modern "home," where today's kids are growing up, if that's a good thing?

Our Peak of Military Strength

The census bureau estimates that the United States will reach its peak in number of men of military age along about 1950, and then decline.

From a projection of present population trends, the bureau estimates that in about 1850 men between the ages of 20 and 34 will number 17,793,000, compared with 16,234,000 of those ages in 1940. Carrying the projection further, the bureau computes that by 1970 the men in this age group will drop to 16,256,000, or near the 1940 figure.

The mechanization of modern warfare has reduced the historic importance of man power, but the number of men of military age will probably continue to be the basic factor in any consideration of national defense.

Let's hope that by 1950, those estimated 17,792,000 men of military age will be engaged in peaceful pursuits, with World War II a figment of the past, no matter how recent. And then let's hope the past stays past.

Tempo Makes the Music Go Round, And Makes Lombardo the Favorite

BY GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—The doughtiest old salt of them all, skipper Guy Lombardo, waved a nonchalant hand toward four speed boats and said, "There they are—my babies."

The "babies" were trim and fast and their names were Tempo-1, Tempo-2, Tempo-3, and Tempo-4. The skipper likes the name Tempo. Tempo is what makes the music go round and round, what makes the money come in, what makes him—by popular poll—the number one orchestra in the country today. Guy also has a yacht, and its name is—Tempo.

He had on a pair of old pants and there were fingerprints on them that showed that his hands had been covered with heavy, black motor oil. He likes to dig into the insides of motors. The only noise in the world to him that is half as sweet as the Lombardo tempo is the sweet hum of propellers. Racing is in his blood. It's hair-raising, sometimes, and he takes spills. But then how does he know he won't trip over a piccolo some night and bust his neck on a public dance floor?

It's old Number 4—Tempo 4—that is the Canadian's current "crush." He'll be at the wheel for the Lido Beach Club trophy races, out at Reynolds' channel, early in August—and he can't wait to get started. Tempo-4 is 18 feet long and eight feet wide and where do you think Guy keeps her. In a boat house? Just an ordinary old beat house? You don't know Guy. He keeps Miss Tempo-4 inside his own house, at Freeport, L. I., which is so close to the water he can sit on his front porch and fish.

What makes Lombardo qualified to do these things is the fact that he can tear an entire motor to pieces, and put it together without having any spare parts left over.

"Push isn't the only thing you need to race boats," Guy says. "Restraint is necessary at times. Take me. At Lake Hopateong I beat the starting gun 25 seconds and was disqualified. I certainly was disappointed."

An average day's routine finds our gay Tar beating up a froth on the Sound by 10 a. m. . . . Sometimes it is for medium-speed runs. . . . Again he will put-put over to Long Beach where Mayor Orenstein has made him an honorary harbor-master, and there he will tinker with the motor in the company of other sportsmen who, like himself, just can't seem to keep their hands off the machinery.

This goes on for hours, and then suddenly he will glance at his wrist in amazement and say, "Whew! I got to run." . . . Meaning that, after all, he still has an orchestra to lead.

Ten Days Will Tell The Story in Russia

WASHINGTON — The Reds have fooled the nazis with a cold cunning that only Hitler hitherto has practiced very successfully. More and more stories of their tricks are coming out.

At a time when the nazis were cooing the Reds into a cooperative quiescence, for instance, it now develops the German high command took certain high Russian military leaders on a tour of the conquered battlefields of France. Pointing out how they did it. The Reds scamped back home with all the details. Maneuvers were ordered for central Russia. The anti-mechanized methods of guerrilla night fighting, hiding in wheat fields and forests, then was perfected against the day which was to come.

It was then, too, the Reds worked out the plan of withdrawing their best fighting planes from advance areas, hiding them back in the hinterland out of the range of German bombers, where they could be fed in smaller lots to the front, after the first blitz was over.

Furthermore when the Reds marched into Poland for their share of that Nazi loot, it now appears they purposely sent up their worst equipment. Their ancient tanks broke down, clogged the roads, encouraged the nazis to believe their military machine was utterly hopeless.

Next ten days will tell the tale in Russia. Military men will read the communiques for the next few days more eagerly than before for a final sign of the result.

WHAT KIND OF AN ARMY HAVE WE?

The minor guardhouse riot at Fort Knox, which caused an apparently accidental death, has fomented discussions among the military about the new morale methods attempted in organizing this army. The basic principle of training in all world history has been to toughen the men into fighters. That is true even in Russia which is supposed to be conducting the greatest social-minded experiment of all time. Here, the army has been furnished with sheets and pillow cases, hostesses, chromium plated eating utensils, movie actresses and entertainers in droves. When a battalion yelled yoo-hoo at the girls, a congressman or two thought it was terrible for a general to make them walk 15 miles, although a boy scout must walk 14 miles before he qualifies as first class. These evidences have inspired a growing school of military thought here to wonder if this country is making an army of individualists, or an army.

OIL MEN AND THE CURFEW

Oil men are giving utmost cooperation with a smile to the government in this gasoline curfew, yet a few cannot restrain some private screaming. They cannot do anything but smile, they say, because the government has all the large companies exactly where it wants them—in a pocket. Threats were made in them that unless their cooperation was satisfactory in all ways the government would abolish brands.

TROUBLE WITH THE TAX BILL

The snap-back rejoinder of Chairman Doughton to the president's tax bill advice (rejecting it on all counts) bore a startling tone even for these days when unprecedented events come with commonplace regularity. Injured tone of Mr. Houghton's response reflected bitterness in his committee. Here it had labored several months, held hearings on all views, sifted, voted three times on one of the president's propositions, and then—after the final decision was made—was asked to reconsider. The fact that it worked in Washington summer heat and humidity also inclined the committee toward abruptness.

Cleavage was personal rather than political, however. No permanently hardened feelings will result.

The Book Parade

By JOHN SELBY "MEN WORKING" by John Faulkner (Harcourt, Brace: $2.50).

I am afraid John Faulkner's "Men Working" will not be very popular with Mississippi people, not even with that section of the state's population which considered the WPA merely an imposition. (For William Faulkner's younger brother has produced for his first novel a combination of "Tobacco Road" and a satire on the governmental work-relief projects which leaves the bitter taste of unfairness in the reader's mouth.)

There could be no doubt but that Mr. Faulkner could, if he wished, point out a few families composed almost wholly of retards, and a WPA project as stupidly run as that in his story. It would be just as simple to point out a number of highly intelligent WPA workers, and a number of productively managed WPA projects. But "Men Working" does not attempt to strike a balance. It merely piles disgust on disgust until the point is reached at which the Taylors' dump their idiot son into his coffin and poke him under their bed, where they leave it a week or more. Then one retches and goes to bed. Or somewhere.

The story is simplicity itself. Paw and Maw Taylor leave the cotton crop they are tending on shares because they can get on the "WP & A" as they call it, in town. Paw and Maw are beyond words stupid, and so are all their innumerable children excepting Hub, the oldest, and Buddy, the cripple who likes to draw. The Taylors live in various old houses in town, sharing each with five or six other families, carrying water from the fishpond in the public square, buying radios instead of groceries, getting laid off, and taken back and talking. Forever talking.

There are a couple of small by-plots, but these are not very important. Most of the book is talk, perfectly set down and sometimes amusing in a pitiful way. But the book is also a study in futility—the Taylors know nothing, learn nothing, do nothing. The same is true of their fellow "WP & A" workers, according to Mr. Faulkner. To complete the record it is only necessary to say that an erratic, non-grammatical style does not run in the Faulkner family—the younger brother writes more like James T. Farrell than like Brother William.

Five Dollar Prize to Be Given Maker of Best Pie in Contest

Winners to Receive Awards in Johnson County Tournament

A $5 prize will be awarded to the woman who bakes the best pie entered in the Johnson county pie baking contest Friday at the community building.

First place winners in each of the five divisions will receive $2 and second place winners will receive $1 each. The five divisions of pies are apple, cherry, berry, peach or apricot and raisin or mince.

Winning pies will be exhibited Friday afternoon, after the judging at a nutrition school to be conducted in the community building by Mrs. Eleanor Sandstrom McKee, Iowa State college extension division food specialist.

Sponsored by the chamber of commerce under the direction of the Johnson county farm bureau, the contest is open to the public, according to Mrs. H. J. Darr, general chairman.

Yesterday Mrs. Darr expressed the wish that all women in the county would enter pies and attend the nutrition school afterward. She said that rules and score cards for the contest may be obtained from the chamber of commerce offices in the Jefferson hotel.

Pies must be entered by 10 o'clock Friday morning following which judging will take place behind closed doors.

Winners will be sent to the district contest and from there to the state contest at Des Moines. First prize district winners will have all their expenses paid to Des Moines for the contest there during the week of November 17. The state contest will be held in conjunction with the Iowa Farm Bureau federation annual meeting.

Advices 'Stay Slim'

Nina Wilcox Putnam Declares Fat Woman Should Be Spanked

NEW YORK (AP)—When Nina Wilcox Putnam said recently that women who allowed themselves to grow unattractively obese should be punished by law, she created a furore she thinks may do some good.

Hundreds of letters have come to her, the majority from older women, who approved what she said. Others came from women who took exception to her views as an infringement on personal matters; others asked advice.

Mrs. Putnam, author of many books and short stories, asserted today she meant all she said about punishment for women who grew fat and added: "They should be spanked in public and made to apologize to themselves and to their husbands. And everyone who looks at them."

She said she wished to stress that she did not include women suffering glandular or other ailments conducive to obesity. "But women who make a minor ailment an alibi for not reducing should be penalized," she said.

On July 26, this reporter saw Miss Putnam, whose fifth husband is Philip Elliot, English-born American architect. At that time, she acted as sprightly as a school girl.

Today she seemed more sprightly. For two months she has been undergoing a rejuvenating program and "before I am through I'll look like 18 instead of 59, which I am," she said.

When the program started, she weighed 187 3-4 pounds. Today she weighed 152 and in another month she expected to weigh only 140, she added. In that period she discarded: 9 1-2 inches from her waist, 7 1-2 inches from her hips, 4 1-2 inches from her upper legs, 1 1-2 inches from her calves, 3 inches from her upper arms, and, 3-4 inch from her forearms.

Her treatments, she explained, have been purely scientific. She refuses to take medicines or diets unless prescribed by doctors. "Now, women will wonder why I ever got so fat in the first place," she smiled. "Well, I was injured in a hurricane in New England in 1938 and was laid up—and inactive—for two years. But the minute I was well, I went to work on myself."

Interpreting the War News

Germans Say War All But Over; Yet Give No Proof of Great Victories

If the German victory claims trumpeted from Hitler's headquarters are correct the war in Russia should be all but over; yet the Nazi leader tells his people that the greatest battles are still to be fought.

Recently the Germans estimated that nine million troops were engaged in the titanic struggle and now they report that Russian losses in killed and captured alone (disregarding wounded) have aggregated almost 4,000,000. Russian war gear, planes, tanks and guns by the tens of thousands have been taken or destroyed, Hitler asserts. Yet as the upshot of this, he can only tell his people that his armies stand "at the gates of Kiev" and are still 100 miles from Leningrad and twice that far from Moscow.

What is holding the Germans at bay on all three fronts if the flower of the red army is already destroyed, Russian leadership paralyzed and without accurate knowledge of the situation, as the German broadcasts say? And why, with complete and crushing victory all but in his grasp, did Hitler find it necessary just now to feed his people nerve tonic in such liberal doses? He had but to wait a little, according to his own version, and all western Russia from the Balti to the Black sea would be in his hands, including Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev and Odessa. If that is not so, and formidable Russian armies still oppose his legions along the vast fighting front, a military miracle has been achieved. Moscow has conjured new millions of soldiers, new resources of fighting gear out of nothing and transported them westward under impossible conditions to keep up the fight.

Aside from the staggering Hitler statements about Russian losses in men and battle equipment, the barrage of claims thundered from Der Fuehrer's headquarters discloses only one significant development to support promises of ultimate German triumph. That is in the Leningrad zone, the least important in a strategic sense of the three main fronts.

The German official version reports a break-through northward between Lake Peipus and Lake Ilmen to a point "close to Narva." If that is true, it means that a Nazi thrust has been driven northeast of Lake Peipus from the Pskov-Prokhorov line to outflank Russian defenses of Leningrad on the extreme Baltic wing. Narva is the junction point where the Tallin-Leningrad and the Pskov-Narva railroads meet. If it falls, all Russian forces still in Estonia and north and west of Lake Peipus will be caught in a trap.

The Hitler resume of the situation on the Kiev front was definitely enlightening. It confirmed a growing impression that an attempted sweep southward to destroy red armies holding the Ukraine flank to the Black sea was in progress rather than a Nazi frontal assault on Kiev. Successful German advance southward from Belyaya Tserkov would force Russian evacuation of at least to the Bug river and possibly to the Dnieper. That is the gravest threat discernible in the latest gist of war news.

American Bombers Ferry Explosives—

ATLANTIC FLIGHT

—Across Sea for British Use

LONDON (The Iowan's Special News Service)—American bombers spanning the Atlantic from Newfoundland to "somewhere in England" are carrying big payloads—of high explosives—according to one United States passenger.

"I came over in a Consolidated Liberator," he related, "and we had two and a half tons of the stuff aboard."

"I don't know anything about it, because people don't go around buttonholing you with war secrets these days."

"But my impression was there was no need to hand 'no smoking' signs around. As a matter of fact, they didn't bother. One hint was enough for me."

"We talked about the stuff a little on the way over, and I got a very good idea that it's terribly, horribly effective."

The American, who is a flier himself, gave a graphic description of what it is to be flying across the ocean—especially with a load of explosives under you.

He was one of three "deadheads" (passengers) on the trip.

The three, he remarked, "felt a little tingly on the take-off," and had to choke an impulse to do a little back-seat driving.

"We sat back there with our thumbs up—you know, the way the British do it. We were figuring that if we hit a bad piece of ground or the landing gear buckled—well—"

"I took a look out the window. We were tearing across the carpet at a terrific clip. Being a flier myself, I estimated at that speed we had about six seconds runway left. It had to be soon or never."

"I remember I started counting out loud—one, two, three. But that's as far as I got. Boy, she took the air, and our troubles lifted with her."

The flier said he shared a bare mattress during the night flight across the Atlantic with an elderly

Britisher who had been negotiating war contracts in the United States.

"He was a good sport, this guy," declared the young American. "It was cold as hell outside when we got up upstairs. The gadget showed three below according to my reading, and our heater wasn't working. We had on flying suits, but they didn't help much."

"The old boy never complained, though. They had packed vacuum bottles of hot coffee in a compartment in the tail, and we used to trot back there pretty regularly. He called the place 'the Savoy,' and had a lot of fun doing an Alphonse and Gaston act. It was always: 'After you, sir.'"

"It was silly, but it had a purpose. All that bowing and scraping helped to thaw out our pipes so coffee could get down."

The young flier, who came over to join the air transport auxiliary, said he hardly slept a wink atop their load of super explosives.

Army Flying Men Coming

R.A.F. Takes U.S. Stratosphere Bombers on Raid

An American-built Flying Fortress is pictured at top roaring down an airbase "somewhere on the English coast" at the start of an intended raid on Nazi territories. Photo at bottom shows an R.A.F. crew entering another Flying Fortress prior to taking off to engage in the raid begun by the top bomber. Since these bombers are capable of flying beyond anti-aircraft ranges, they have proved valuable to the British in bombing targets such as the Nazi battleship Gneisenau, which was recently damaged while at dock at Brest, France.

Dog With False Teeth, Cow That Climbs—Precocious Pets

By GLADWIN HILL

NEW YORK (The Iowan's Special News Service)—For ammunition, the next time your neighbor comes over and starts boring you with stories about how smart his dog is, the Dizzy Digest's public service division presents some really precocious pets.

If your neighbor can top any of these, you can tell him he ought to join a circus as an animal trainer. Herewith the prodigies and their proclivities—

A dog in Fort Hill, Okla.—he collects all the doormats he can find and brings them home;

A cow in Mocksville, N. C.—she climbs up and down stairs;

A cat in Hepner, Ore.—he the payroll of an office building, as a rat catcher, at 85 cents a week;

A crow in Brewerton, N. Y.—he rides around on the handlebars of his master's bike;

A goat in Wichita, Kans.—whereas most goats have litters of one or two, she habitually produces quadruplets and quintuplets;

A cat in Hepner, Ore.—he drinks regularly out of the goldfish bowl, but never molests the goldfish;

A hen in Madisonville, Tex.—she rides into town everyday on the axle of her owner's car;

A dog in Chicago—he chews his bones with a special set of false teeth;

A dog in Salisbury, Md.—he

Chisox Split Doubleheader With Browns

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Thornton Lee held the St. Louis Browns to six singles as the Chicago White Sox won the second game of a doubleheader yesterday 5 to 2 to split even, the Browns having won the first, 9 to 6.

While Lee was stingy with hits he was liberal with passes, granting seven, but the Browns turned only one of them into a run.

Joe Kuhel hit the only home run, for the six in the fifth. It was his tenth of the season.

Six New Champions Shoot Way to Top As Classic Gets Underway

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Six new champions sat upon the national skeet thrones yesterday, setting four new records and tying two others, as the Clay Target Scattergun classic got away to the most auspicious start in its history.

W. C. Perdue, 19-year-old real estate agent from Mobile, Ala., making his first start in the national, furnished the highlight by breaking 100 in a row to annex the small gauge (28-gauge and under) title, for the only perfect mark of the day with the small-caliber weapons.

H. L. Brown, of San Antonio, Tex., Bobby Parker, of Tulsa, Okla., and E. R. Pratt, of Miami, Fla., finished in that order in a shootoff, after deadlocking behind Perdue, with 99, Brown breaking 25 straight, Parker 24 and Pratt 23 in the extra event.

SPORTS TRAIL

by Whitney Martin

- Helps Business
- Amateurs' Goal
- Urge for Best

NEW YORK (The Daily Iowan's Special News Service)—There is something refreshing in the candor of Harry Todd, a golf amateur who doesn't try to hide mercenary motives beneath a patchwork quilt of meek purity, the game-the-thing and that sort of tripe.

Todd possibly has left himself open to a sharp rap on the knuckles at the hands of the U.S.G.A., and some of his remarks, particularly those concerning his delight in crushing the last squeal out of opponents, smack of Bo-bo Newsom in slacks, but he undoubtedly has given voice to well-camouflaged thoughts harbored by many of his contemporaries.

It is the statement that golf helps him in his business to which the U.S.G.A. might take exception. Golf isn't supposed to help anybody with his business, unless his business is golf, and if his business is golf he isn't an amateur.

There are many ways an amateur in good standing can cash in on his golf skill and the prestige it brews. If old Chauncey Moneybags retains a little of the hero-worshipping instinct and likes to associate with someone whose name is plastered on the sports page in 72-point type, and during the association tosses a few orders for farm tractors in the way of his hero or decides he needs a few thousand dollars more insurance for the protection of the wife and kiddies, well, what's a guy to do about it, anyway?

Many a lily-white amateur has enjoyed top-flight company and coasted along in clover on the proceeds of stock and bond or insurance sales when, were it not for his skill at golf, or maybe tennis, everyone knows his moneyed pals wouldn't speak to him if they met on the Sahara desert and on selling ability alone he couldn't sell stamps in a post-office.

Todd's chief complaint is the failure of the U.S.G.A. to select a Walker Cup team. It would be only an honorary team, as the matches are off for the duration, but the pros picked a Ryder team under similar circumstances.

He considers a berth on the Walker team the goal of all amateurs and says there is no incentive when that goal is removed, although it seems there is a tournament called the national amateur which carries quite a bit of prestige. In fact, you can go back and name off quite a few national amateur champions, but just try to name the members of the Walker Cup team five years ago.

It wouldn't have hurt the U.S.G.A. to have named a Walker team, at that. It would have enabled the chosen few to pop the buttons on their vests and, as in Todd's case, it might have helped business a little, and times are tough.

But as far as its omission destroying incentive, we can't quite figure that as it is too much like a football player having no urge to do his best simply because no All-America teams were picked. A real competitor has the urge to do his best at all times, if only for his personal satisfaction.

An amateur plays because he likes to play, and if he plays for any other reason he is not an amateur in the true sense. Golf is an individual game, and if a player doesn't feel like doing his best he isn't hurting nobody but himself.

Senators Tame Athletics, 5 to 1

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dutch Leonard, veteran knuckle baller, tamed Philadelphia with an eight-hit performance as the Washington Senators defeated the Athletics 5 to 1 last night. It was Leonard's 12th win of the season against 10 losses.

Extra-base hitting gave the Senators the advantage, Washington's nine blows including three triples and a pair of doubles. Eight of the Nat blows and all five of their runs came off Bill Beckman, who worked five innings before giving way to Chubby Dean.

Cecil Travis robbed the A's of a score in the eighth with a sparkling one-handed catch of Al Brancato's hard line drive. Travis caught Dean, who had doubled, off second for a double play to end the inning.

McCormick's Homer Helps Down Cards

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds came to life yesterday and the St. Louis Cardinals fell to pieces as the world champions tacked together a 5 to 1 victory behind the eight-hit, seven-walk, nine-strikeout hurling of Johnny Vander Meer. It was Vandy's tenth decision of the year.

The main blow of the game was a phenomenon for the Red fans, a home run by Mike McCormick. Sophomore Mike now has hit all three of the Red homers since June 21, when Bucky Walters' got one. Two men were on base yesterday, and with Vandy striking out the Cards about every time they got a man on third, the game was safe in the third inning.

Vandy himself started the Reds' big third inning with a single after one was out. Eddie Joost doubled him to third and Mike McCormick smacked the ball over the left wall.

With two out, Mize fumbled the throw on Frank McCormick's grounder and Koy and Dick West followed with singles to get him around and put pitcher Bill Crouch out of the ball game.

Red Sox Take First Tilt, 6-3; Yanks Win, 3-1

Breuer Pitches Five Hit Ball as Yankees Salvage Second Tilt

BOSTON (AP)—The New York Yankees, apparently coasting along on their previously acquired momentum, divided a doubleheader yesterday with the third-place Boston Red Sox before a capacity crowd of 34,427.

The Red Soxers slugged Spud Chandler out of action with a four-run fourth inning rally and went on to win 6 to 3, but the Yanks captured the nightcap 3 to 1 on Marvin Breuer's five-hit hurling.

Tennis Meet Resolves Into 3-Way Battle

CULVER, Ind. (AP)—Geographically, the juniors singles division of the national boys' and juniors' tennis championship resolved itself into a three-way dog fight between the east, middle west and Pacific coast as the field reached the quarter-final stage at Culver Military academy yesterday, advancing eight top seeded players.

California's hopes depend on three ranking juniors, Harry Likas, seeded sixth, and Harry Buttner, seeded 12th, both from San Francisco, and Budge Patty of Los Angeles.

Gardner Larned of Chicago, favorite to win the tourney and seeded number one, meets Patty while Jimmy Evert of Chicago, seeded third, takes on Likas. Bill Vogt, fourth-seeded Philadelphia, will take on Buttner. The other match finds Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, meeting Robert Smid of River Forest, Ill.

The boys quarter-finals presents a different picture with two unseeded contenders in the select group. Dick Randall, unseeded from Oak Park, Ill., will meet Don Harris of Los Angeles, ranked third, while the French refugee, Henri Salaun of Dover, Mass., unseeded, meets the second-ranking Jack Tuero of New Orleans. The two other matches will find Bobby Falkenberg of Hollywood, Cal., defending champion, meeting Sam Handel of Philadelphia, fourth-seeded Charles Tichenor of Indianapolis meeting eighth-ranking Charles Oliver of Perth Amboy, N.J.

Silk Stocking Industry End Is in Sight

By CHARLES HARNER
NEW YORK (AP)—A survey of the hosiery manufacturing field indicated yesterday that at least temporarily, the end of the silk stocking industry was in sight but that few, if any, of the nation's 155,000 hosiery mill workers would lose their jobs.

American women, it was said, would be able to keep their legs covered, with good looking stockings, too.

Manufacturers said that when the federal government order freezing raw silk supplies was promulgated last Saturday, they, the wholesalers and retailers had on hand the equivalent of 120,000-000 pairs of silk stockings.

Some mills, it was asserted, have as much as three weeks supplies of thread laid by, others are already cleaned out. The standard operation, it was said, would be for mills without silk to shut down just long enough—a couple of days or weeks—to adjust their machinery for knitting nylon, rayon and cotton lisle.

Although production of nylon stockings began only a year ago, that type of synthetic yarn already supplies 20 per cent of the needs of the hosiery industry.

Some sources said that, under world peace conditions, they believed that the next ten years would have seen American women practically abandoning silk stockings in favor of longer-wearing synthetic materials.

In general, no one seemed to be advocating any attempt to replace silk with rayon. Both hosiery and rayon makers recalled with distaste the rayon promotional efforts made ten years ago when silk prices went sky high and women tried out rayon substitutes. Everybody concerned was unhappy, to say the least.

Vast improvement has been made in rayon since that time and many more can be expected, but neither the rayon people nor the hosiery makers want to make any mistakes in this emergency.

Local Elks Vote $100 Fund For Swimming Pool

The local chapter of the Elks Lodge voted $100 to help defray expenses for a swimming pool which the city has long promised to build, at a meeting last night in the local club rooms.

It was agreed the money should be set aside to be used when and if the city council decides to begin construction of said pool.

A Lodge of Sorrow was held for Daniel M. Callahan and Past Exalted Ruler Edward A. Baldwin, both of whom died during the past month. Eulogies were read by Gus A. Pusateri and Attorney F. B. Olson.

It was announced that the August Frolic would be held Wednesday, August 13, and that Exalted Ruler Karl Ketelsen would leave for Des Moines next Sunday to attend the state convention of Exalted Rulers. The major portion of this conclude will be dedicated to the study and discussion of defense problems.

After the meeting a buffet lunch was served in the club rooms.

The Smolensk action appeared to be the most nearly complete of the three main battlefronts, with a "new phase" about to unfold. Just what it would be the Germans were not saying.

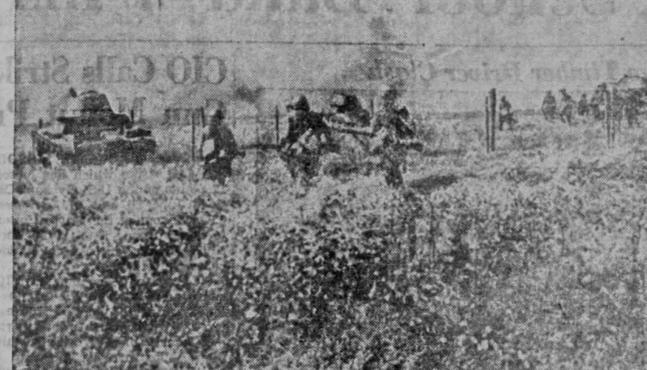

Next to Smolensk the Kiev action appeared most developed. Here, the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said, a "battle to total destruction" is in full swing.

Dienst said that on all fronts the German objective was total destruction of the Russians.

Eldora Training School Band Wins 'Battle of Champions'

Iowa City Unit Takes Second Place Rating

Six Groups Compete In 4th Annual Tourney Of Drum, Bugle Corps

The Eldora Training school band won the fourth annual "Battle of Champions" last night as they competed against five other units before a crowd of about 1,000 persons gathered on Shrader field.

Placement of other groups and the points given to each are as follows: Iowa City, second; Cedar Rapids, third; Des Moines, fourth; Boone, fifth, and Ft. Madison, sixth.

Yesterday afternoon the Eldora Training School marching band gave a "preview" marching exhibition through downtown streets. An exhibition march was given last night by the Moose drill team under the direction of Charles Smith.

Judges last night were Ralph Hartig of Cedar Rapids, Ralph Thompson of Muscatine, and S. D. Gratke, Capt. Irving Borts, Sergt. John Lemons, Sergt. Palmer Peterson and Lieut. Frank Person, all of Iowa City.

Teams were judged on the basis of 100 points, 10 for inspection, 10 for cadence, 30 for marching and maneuvering, 20 for bugling, 20 for drumming and 10 for general effect.

Each team was allotted 15 minutes to perform, 10 in motion and five for standing in formation while playing. At least 13 of the 15 minutes had to be used. They were required to march in a cadence of between 128 and 132 steps per minute and could be penalized from one-one hundredth to one point for any errors.

The program is annually sponsored by the Moose lodge and businessmen, friends and patrons of the Iowa City drum and bugle corps.

In charge of last night's program were Earl Gilpin, Ward Coulter, Mrs. Dan Roth, William Shay, Mrs. Helen McMahon, Mrs. John Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas, Estel R. Williams, Jacob Parker, Marcus H. Sutton, Frank Strub and Dr. J. A. Swisher.

Hitler's Star Is Waning, Says Fortune Teller

CLEVELAND (AP)—For a man who has consistently patronized astrologers, Adolf Hitler is getting few breaks from the students of the stars.

Leaders of the American Federation of Scientific Astrologers which opened its annual convention here yesterday, generally were agreed the fehrer's star is setting.

"Hitler's move on Russia was a great mistake," declared Louis de Wohl, Hungarian astro-philosopher attending the meeting.

"Hitler is on the downgrade. The turning point came when Germany marched into Czechoslovakia in March, 1939. We can't predict a date for his defeat, but if the United States enters the war before next spring, he is doomed."

"President Roosevelt's horoscope is perfectly beautiful," he added. "He towers above all others. A yogi once told me a man born on the date Hitler came into power would cause his downfall. Hitler rose to power on Jan. 10, and that is Roosevelt's birth date."

Six Injured in Mine Timber Driver Clash

Six men were injured, 10 trucks were smashed and their cargoes of mine posts scattered on the highway as C.I.O. strikers attempted to halt deliveries of mine timbers by an independent union on the nation's highway (route 40) near Farmington, Pa. About 50 unladen trucks were parked along the highway, as shown above, waiting to move as pickets patrolled the road. The clash resulted as the convoy of trucks attempted to pass through a picket line of the C.I.O. lumber, timber and sawmill workers' organizing committee, which called a three-state walkout in the timber industry July 21.

Girl Describes Fate of Seven Lost in Desert

YUMA, Ariz. (AP)—Her wrists bandaged, 19 year old Socorro Cornejo told from a hospital bed yesterday of watching five relatives and two acquaintances die of heat and thirst along El Camino Del Diablo—the Devil's highway.

The bandages—similar ones encircled the wrists of 23-year-old Francisco Flores—covered knife wounds self-inflicted in attempts to sustain life by drinking their own blood.

Flores and Miss Cornejo were the only survivors of an intended motor trip from Santa Ana, Sonora, to Mexicali. A peddler came upon them and the bodies of the seven victims yesterday on the desert 35 miles south of Yuma. The party's truck had run out of gasoline six days before.

Her four-year-old niece, Elisa Flores, was the first to die, Miss Cornejo said. The next day Domingo Rocha succumbed, followed

Iowa Graduate Dies in Crash At Marshalltown

MARSHALLTOWN (AP)—Engine trouble was blamed last night for the plane crash which took the lives of Harold Benzing, 26, Daily Times-Republican staff photographer, and Robert Niederhauser, 20, his flying instructor, yesterday.

The motor apparently stalled as the pilot attempted to clear some wires at one end of a hillside field during a forced landing. The plane was equipped with dual controls and it was not known who was piloting.

Benzing, a State University of Iowa graduate, was killed instantly and Niederhauser died a few hours later in a hospital here.

Senate Junks F.R. Veto On Highway Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—With only Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) defending President Roosevelt's veto, the senate voted 57 to 19 yesterday to override the chief executive's veto of a $320,000,000 road construction program.

A two-thirds majority of both houses is necessary to override, and the house is expected to act shortly. The program includes funds for "strategic" highways in connection with national defense and for "access" roads to military establishments and its backers predicted the house would pass it over Mr. Roosevelt's veto.

The house roads committee followed up the senate's action by recommending that the veto be overridden. Chairman Cartwright (D-Okla.) said the vote was unanimous.

Declaring that Mr. Roosevelt's action was "eternally right," Vandenberg drew laughter from the galleries by saying he hesitated "to prejudice the president's case by defending him from the republican side of the aisle."

Congress also had rejected Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion that he allocate the money on the advice of the army, providing instead that the fund be apportioned among the states on a basis of population and other factors. The federal government would pay 75 per cent of the cost and the states 25 per cent.

Besides the $125,000,000 for strategic roads, the program would authorize funds as follows: $150,000,000 for access roads to military establishments; $25,000,000 to reimburse states and localities for road damage resulting from military maneuvers; $10,000,000 for airplane landing strips along highways; and $10,000,000 for surveys.

In at 4:30 Boy Finds Mother, Cops Waiting

NEW YORK (AP)—Johnny Montgomery, at six, has learned what many an errant married man has discovered:

You can't sneak in late undetected.

With scores of police and detectives looking for him and floodlights illuminating dark corners, Johnny tried to sneak into bed at 4:30 this morning by climbing to the roof of a five-story tenement, crossing two other roofs and gumshoeing down a fire escape to his own room.

He was met by his mother whose shriek brought his father. Johnny said he played with some older boys early in the evening, then fell asleep in a car, waking up hours later to hear talk about a lost boy. That convinced him a sneak-in was in order.

Police Seeking Hit-Run Driver Over Wide Area

Iowa City police last night broadcast radio messages for the apprehension of an unidentified driver involved in a "hit-run" accident on highway No. 6, eight miles east of here.

The vehicle was being operated without lights and struck another car, the department reported. A model-A Ford hubcap was found at the scene of the accident. Exact details of the wreck were not known.

CIO Calls Strike at New York Gun Mount Producing Plant

A CIO strike which has closed 17 plants of the U.S. Gypsum Co. since June 26 and a threatened CIO walkout at the Erwin Cotton Mills, Durham, N.C., were certified to the defense mediation board yesterday.

At the same time another CIO strike was called at the Symington-Gould Corp. plant in Rochester, N.Y., which makes tank parts and gun mounts. Workmen said the dispute involved terms of a new contract but company and union officials withheld comment. Labor department officials said the Gypsum company strike, involving some 3,000 members of the gas by-products, coke and chemical workers division of the United Mine Workers, grew out of a demand for a master wage agreement but details were not released. The company has contracts for ordnance plant construction materials.

A picket line bent on collecting dues for the CIO from AFL and non-union workers at the Aluminum Company of America plant in Cleveland threatened to interfere with production of aluminum and magnesium needed for the defense program.

Army Launches Investigation After Gun Battle Among Soldiers in Bus

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A military investigation was launched yesterday into a sudden flareup of gunplay on a crowded Fayetteville-Fort Bragg bus shortly after midnight that sent two soldiers to their deaths and four others to the post hospital for treatment of wounds.

Capt. Clarence M. Rogers, post inspector, began to assemble all available evidence regarding the melee aboard the bus, loaded with Negro soldiers, in which Sergeant Elwin L. Hargraves, a military policeman, and Private Ned Turman, a Negro engineer, were fatally wounded. Upon completion of his inquiry he will submit his report to Col. C. B. Elliott, post commander.

Private Allen E. Katzeman, a member of the military police, the most seriously shot of the wounded, was reported in "fair condition," although he had bullet holes through the neck, chest and cheek.

The others injured were identified as: Technical Sergeant Welton W. Smith, 32, of the military police, shot through the hand; Private Seton Kennebrew, 32-year old Negro, cut on the shoulder, and Private Virgil Brown, 22, not seriously hurt.

Ill Wind Blows Odoriferous And Betrays Family

COUNCIL BLUFFS (AP)—Something in the wind made Mrs. Gad Ellsworth investigate her cellar fruit room.

She found four week-old skunks, their eyes yet unopened. City Poundmaster Chris Christenson turned them over to his nine-year-old daughter, Mable. She is feeding the kittens hot milk with an eye dropper in order to keep them alive.

But there's still something in the wind that makes Mrs. Ellsworth believe mama skunk remains in the neighborhood.

tration's foreign and defense policies, decided to support the Burton amendment in a point effort at unity, and for the sake of the effect which a big vote would make on the house.

But under Barkley the administration leadership refused to go along, and the Kentucky senator yesterday asked and obtained the views of the war department on the issue.

"The secretary of war has authorized me to say," he said, "that it is the unanimous view of the department and the members of the general staff that the reduc-

Petaim Resists Nazi Demands

Marsel Henri Philippe Petaim, head of the Vichy French government, pictured left above greeting French soldiers returning from German prison camps as they arrived at Angone, France, reportedly has turned down Nazi demands that German troops be allowed to "protect" France's North and West African bases.

Warnings-- Think British Raiders Hit Nazi Cannon

Britain, following up their application of strong economic sanctions against Japan, planned active military measures to prevent Thailand from succumbing to the fate of French Indo-China.

In defining the American attitude regarding Thailand, Hull drew chiefly from the statement of Sumner Welles, then acting secretary of state, in denouncing the Japanese move in Indo-China on July 24.

Welles declared that step clearly was undertaken "because of the estimated value to Japan of bases in that region primarily for purposes of further and more obvious movements of conquest in adjacent areas."

Stressing the threat to sources of vital defense materials such as rubber, tin and oil, Welles said the Japanese steps "endanger the safety of other areas of the Pacific, including the Philippine islands" and that they "bear directly upon the vital problem of our national security."

All that Welles said about the Indo-China move and its threat to this country's interests, Hull emphasized, applied with equal force to any similar action Thailand.

Two other theories were advanced—that the blast was the work of saboteurs or that the gun was knocked out by a British naval shelling.

A big explosion was heard there on Monday morning and the channel was lit by a flash at a time when there were no signs of an RAF raid, the Daily Mail said.
