Argentina Moves on Axis

Germans Report Destruction Of Fifty Russian Divisions

Nazis Claim Complete Breaking of Soviet Counter-Offensives

Say 4 Red Armies Surrounded During Battle East of Kiev

BERLIN (AP)—Russian counter-offensives in every one of the three major sectors—the most widespread yet mentioned in Nazi dispatches—were reported yesterday, but all were declared broken in a series of German victories highlighted by announcements of the destruction of 50 red divisions trapped east of Kiev.

Of this vast force claimed to have been utterly destroyed—numbering about 750,000 men—380,000 were said to have been taken prisoner in a continuing restriction of the German trap. Authoritative commentaries thus brought to a grand total of 2,000,000 their estimate of the number of Soviet war prisoners—a figure equaling the number of Russian captives taken in four years of the World war.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians, gravely concerned by the growing German threat to the vital Donets basin industrial area, counter-attacked against Nazi forces over hundreds of miles of the front today in a determined effort to relieve pressure on red armies in the south.

Two Divisions Defeated

The early morning communique announced that in the west, above Smolensk, two regiments of a German division were defeated and their remnants thrown back across the Dvina river.

Dark Picture

But it was a dark picture in the south, where Marshal Semyon Eudyenny was making a heroic effort to extricate the bulk of his army from the area behind fallen Kiev in order to defend the vital city of Kharkov, the Black sea port of Rostov and the Donets basin.

Wyland Man Charged With Shotgun Murder Of Keokuk Woman

(AP)—Use of the United States army "where it is needed and when it is needed," together with immediate repeal of the neutrality act, were urged yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox in a fighting speech delivered immediately after the launching of the 35,000-ton battleship Massachusetts.

How the Anti-Democrats Are Achieving Unity for America—

"Patriotism," says the Rev. Ignatius Smith, head of the school of philosophy at the Catholic University of America in Washington, "is more than a pride in the physical greatness of our nation, more than pride in its natural resources and in its tremendous armament."

"Genuine patriotism is a quality rooted deep down in the souls of men and involving their minds, their wills and their lives. It demands honor, love and service of our nation. But this type of thinking and active patriotism is not only rare today, it is difficult."

"This type of patriotism . . . needs aggressive citizens who will take immediate legal and aggressive action against those who enjoy the hospitality of this land with the definite hope of destroying us."

It is unfortunate that when times become critical, democratic nations are faced with what seems almost a repudiation of the principles of which they are most proud in the struggle to save themselves.

Always those who seek to preach doctrines of discontent, to incite revolt among otherwise peaceful people, stand upon their constitutional right of freedom of speech when accosted by action to hush them up.

And we are forced to ask ourselves the question: "What justification have we in such instances to resort to legal action to quell the activity of a legitimate minority, under the terms by which we operate, no matter how subversive that minority?"

And that question is a stickler—or it would be were it not for the fact that when enough people realize that democracy itself is at stake, and recognize the preachments of the "anti-democrats" in their true light, that other fine old democratic principle of the rule of the majority begins to operate, we lose our squishiness at getting tough with a minority now recognized for what it is, and we get busy and clean house in fine style.

Now this very business has been demonstrated by the late lamented speech of Charles A. Lindbergh in Des Moines. More than one question has been raised about Mr. Lindbergh's good intentions at this stage of the America First game. We shan't cogitate over that.

The significant thing is that one of Iowa's congressmen declared yesterday in Washington that Iowa is 80 per cent in favor of the administration's foreign policy, and if Lindbergh will make just one more speech in Iowa, that percentage will jump to 100.

In other words, Lindbergh lost his cause in Iowa because of the kind of speech he made. In fact, Lindbergh came awfully close to losing the whole cause of the America First committee.

The majority will grow larger, the minority smaller, and the American mind will reach the equilibrium one of these days and all the calling over unity will disappear, because we'll have unity.

So it may be that the anti-democrats perform a service after all. It's largely through their efforts that unity is achieved—by forcing everybody else into the opposite camp.

How Old Should They Be Before They Take the Car — — — ?

One of the most active groups in the struggle for highway safety is the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company. Their safety posters adorn many a store window and billboard, and their pleas for more effort to clean up the terrible situation on the highways are among the most urgent.

Not long ago, a letter written by Bessie R. Alston won a company prize offered for a letter dealing with the problem of more than 300,000 youthful accidents each year. Copyrighted by the company, we've permission to use parts of it. How well does it apply in Iowa?

"Thousands of Peter Pans crowd our highways today—children who will never grow up. Some of them are 15, some are 50, but chronological age can no more determine driving fitness than a yardstick can measure faith or courage.

"Put one of these ever young drivers behind a steering wheel and he immediately develops a case of deadly auto-intoxication which is the cause of most traffic accidents; disregarding signals, weaving in and out, endangering lives, he is the world's worst 'show off.' "Keeping these unsafe drivers off the road is the responsibility at once of the home and the license bureau. Of the home, because that is where the driver is made or marred. It is true that most 16 year old youngsters can master the mere mechanics of driving in a day, but it takes from 16 to 20 years to train a good driver, to establish the five special qualities that make up driving maturity. They are intelligent thinking, sane judgement, emotional control, unflinching courtesy and a high degree of good citizenship. No one of these flashes automatically into being at the turn of a calendar page, each is a slow growing product of inborn intelligence and lifelong training.

"Courtesy is the keynote to road safety, yet it is the quality most lacking in many of our American youths. The mother who insists that her child crowd ahead of his elders to snatch the last seat in the bus or who watches indifferently while he runs his trieycle over the neighbor's garden is training, all unaware, the roadhog of tomorrow.

"The dad who chuckles gleefully as he tells his dinner guests of fooling a 'cop' or doing 80 on a 50 mile road is unconsciously teaching little 'big ears' a lasting lesson in contempt for law and safety.

"Emotional restraint, nervous stability, these should be built up before any child is allowed the wheel.

"For too many years we have handed car keys and licenses to youngsters with a queer superstition that these things in themselves possessed the magic that could change an unthinking child into a mature driver over-night. The magic hasn't worked, therefore it is the duty of the state to keep the immature, the mentally deficient and the drunken driver from our highways. New standards must be established, new licensing procedures set up.

"In many states whenever an applicant has passed a simple test in mechanics, shifting, turning, backing, and can read and interpret a few signs he is licensed to drive. This is insufficient. For years I taught mentally deficient boys. Wholly irresponsible, easily enraged, anxious to show off, wholly childish, many of them could and did pass driver's tests, and many of them, too, have had minor as well as serious accidents."

About Agile Tricksters And the Star Spangled Banner

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—John Mulholland is as agile a trickster as ever reached into a sugar-bowl and pulled out a rabbit. . . his activities in legerdemain have included not only the business of baffling pop-eyed onlookers but extend even to the printed page. Magician Mulholland is an editor. He has a magazine called the Sphinx, devoted to the news and views of the profession.

Frequently he receives "subscriptions" from customers, saying, "Kindly send me the Sphinx for one year. My check for $2.50 is enclosed."

Only the check isn't there. It's a gag that sometimes works, for editors have been known to add names to their mailing lists, hoping to collect later on.

The other day, however, Mulholland received a postcard from a reader who said his check was "enclosed" and would the magazine be forthcoming?

"Yes indeed," Mulholland wrote back—on a post card. "Enclosed please find first copy."

There used to be an old vaudeville gag, similar to this, about the patron who writes to a razor manufacturer in this vein: "Dear sir, please find my enclosed check for $5 for which you are to send me one of your Shave-Close special razors. PS: I forgot to enclose the check, but no doubt a firm of your standing won't mind a little matter like that.

The manufacturer replied: "My Dear Sir, we are delighted to receive your order and you are hereby notified that the Close-Shave razor is included in this package: PS: we forgot to include the razor, but no doubt a man of your check won't miss it after all."

There is no telling where a variation of this yarn actually began. But there can be no doubt that people who try to work them year after year. Mulholland has received at least half a dozen new "subscriptions" in which the "enclosed" check has failed to materialize.

In a recent series on night clubs this column noted that the trend has been from "Hello Sucker" to "God Bless America." . . . This was an understatement. In recent weeks 90 percent of the new floor shows have gone red, white and blue with a 48-star bang. It is almost impossible to walk into a supper-club without hearing a chorus of the Star Spangled Banner and the chorus girls likely as not will be dolled in Uncle Sam uniforms.

Harry Richman has a song that well illustrates this trend in recreational patriotism. The song goes something like this . . . "I saw my Uncle the other day . . . My old Uncle Sam . . . He gets around . . . He was holding back a flood on the Mississippi . . . He was building some new houses over in the shums for some people who needed houses. He was harvesting the wheat and sending notes of cheer to the oppressed." . . . It went on like that . . . The response to this number, whenever I heard it, it has been unfailingly great.

Hervey Allen's new book will be published in three volumes—all long ones. He, if you recall, is the author of "Anthony Adverse," which began the current trend toward length in modern novels.

In the Nation's Capital—

Outlining the Dangers Of Defense Priorities—

WASHINGTON—This is another column about the slaughter of the innocents that is sure as sunrise to happen in this country as the vast war production with its arbitrary priorities goes forward into full blast. I mean the wide-spread destruction of the little fellow in business and the jobs of his employees.

The pressure is only beginning to be felt but the program has only started. When it gets into full swing the casualties are going to run into tens of thousands and the justified squawking will create universal sympathy and probably universal soreness—which is bad for both unity and confidence in governmental management.

Farming out of war orders by the big fellows is just a mustard plaster, first because most of these establishments are not equipped to take them and second because it slows production, reduces quality, increases cost and will be done with reluctance and half a heart by those under a stern responsibility for results in military and naval supply.

NO PROBLEM BEFORE—

The problem rarely arose during World War one, because the demand was much less since this possibility had been foreseen and provided for and because much technical military manufacture was contracted for abroad, we furnishing replacement war material. It is all different now. We are the arsenal of democracy—including Russia and China.

It is high time before the slaughter commences to consider means to offset the destruction and the creation here of the greatest monopolistic concentration of business this country has ever known.

The bearing of this sacrifice is not like taxes, assessed on ability to pay, a principle of relative equality and leaving the bulk of small business in both manufacture and sale at least alive. Now it is literally to be wiped out on no rule of equality whatever but because government administration will simply permit these people no supplies with which to carry on their business.

HOW IT MIGHT WORK—

It is a difficult problem but not without its precedent. For centuries in the law of the sea there has been a principle called the "rule of general average." It has varied as among different maritime nations and at different times. It offers complications and only recently—in the last 50 years—has it become more uniform throughout the world. Still it is complicated and not to be compressed into a single principle.

But generally speaking it is something like this. When a ship is in distress and some of her cargo has to be jettisoned (thrown overboard) to save the rest, or when there is a fire and the sea must be let in on some of the cargo to keep all from being destroyed, or when the ship itself has to be run ashore to prevent loss of the whole cargo and several similar instances, the loss to the owners of the destroyed freight is not permitted to fall solely upon its owners. An attempt is made to average the loss over all the owners of all the cargo saved by this sacrifice of the owners of the destroyed cargo.

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE

It seems to me that the principle and its application are very similar to the misfortune we are about to meet and that thought should be immediately given to this or some other application of the ancient rule of justice to the brand new circumstances in which we are bound to find ourselves.

There is a dangerous, if slowly rising, resentment growing up in this country already over the airy, unplanned and arbitrary application of harsh sacrificial laws by men untrained in their application and apparently heedless of their destructive effects. Can't this administration ever learn to act in time to avert or cushion unnecessary war burdens?

America's Movieland—

No Good W. C. Fields Is Guilty of Cribbing

By OTIS CRIBBLECOBBIS (The author of W. C. Fields' new comedy, "The Great Man," Cribblecobbis writes for Robbin Coons, on vacation.)

HOLLYWOOD—My life as a Hollywood writer would be one of unalloyed ease if it were not for a loutish, lazy no-good oaf by the name of W. C. Fields. But I have had the last laugh on him.

Fields is not content merely to act in his pictures. He wants to grab the glory for writing 'em, too. His selfishness is unbounded. I toil and struggle to make him funny, giving my heart's blood to the script.

The thanks I get is to have Fields intimate broadly that it is really he who writes the scripts. He claims Otis Cribblecobbis is simply a name he made up, and that I don't even exist. According to this scurrilous and unconscionable ingrate, he scribbles his own stuff, and for each picture owns a different non de plume. Don't believe it.

Fields alleges he wrote "The Bank Dick" under the name of Mahatma Kane Jeeves. In other words, he'd like you to think there is no Jeeves. Now he says he did this one under the name of Cribblecobbis. The truth is not in Fields. In fairness to all concerned, I want to state the plain fact: Jeeves is just as much a real person as Otis Cribblecobbis.

Perhaps I protest too much, but it is galling to have your brain children snatched from you by a dull, grasping and unimaginative heel like Bill Fields.

But I have had my revenge, and in so fiendishly clever a way that Fields didn't realize it until too late. Knowing he never reads the scripts — there are grave doubts that he can read at all — I carefully plotted his undoing.

UNTIL "The Great Man" all of Fields' writers had catered to him by writing a saloon sequence into his pictures. But he forgot about his wily brain of Cribblecobbis. I fixed him good. When he walked on the set confidently expecting a saloon, he found himself at a soda fountain!

I wasn't finished with the lout yet. Well aware of his hatred for children, I wrote into the story nice fat parts for Gloria Jean and Butch and Buddy. They were in almost every scene. Fields was continually surrounded by groups of children, who at once sensed his animosity and kept plaguing him with practical jokes.

Only one thing more remained to finish Fields, and that was a dog. He hates dogs, too—just to show you what kind of man he is. So I wrote in the biggest, most vicious, dog in Hollywood. It growled and snarled at Fields daily, but it was too tough for him to do any thing drastic about. At the end, Fields withdrew from the maelstrom of soda fountains, kids and dogs. He was a broken man.

DID THE '49ERS MISS THE BOAT?

NEWHALL, Cal. (AP) — Most people consider the California gold discovery to have been made by George Marshall in 1848, precipitating the rush of the '49ers. But a tablet just erected here credits the original California gold discovery to Francisco Lopez, who is reputed to have made it here March 9, 1842.

The Washington Daybook—

The Strangeness That Is Washington

WASHINGTON — It's a strange town:

Associate Justice William O. Douglas, of the supreme court, is enduring his noisiest autumn. Justice Douglas has his home far out where Eastern and Georgia avenues join. Next door is a huge vacant lot where a tabernacle is going up, fronted by the announcement that for some weeks to come a revival meeting will hold forth there. A few hundred feet away, on another branch of ordinarily empty acres, is a jangling little carnival, complete from dismally rhythmic merry-go-round to whistling peanut stand. Less than a year ago a week end guest at the Justice's home commented "It's so quiet out there I don't see how he sleeps."

Capt. James Roosevelt of the U.S. Marines has moved into the federal trade commission with his new boss, Col. William J. "Wild Bill" Donovan, coordinator of the intelligence services. Captain Roosevelt's appearance had nothing to do with it, but the corridor that houses the new offices has become one of the most exclusive in the city. Armed guards patrol it throughout the day, and for all I know through the night. You can't get by without a pass.

It wouldn't be worth mentioning except that the persons most inconvenienced by the new set-up are the officials and employees of the federal trade commission. They can't even walk their own halls without being challenged and forced to show their credentials.

Luis Marin Munoz, president of the Puerto Rican senate, one of the highest officials of that island, arrived in town the other day. He was officially met at the National Airport by Maj. Gen. Edwin M. "Pa" Watson, the president's general military aide. The general's Spanish was a little rusty, but his French being perfect, he addressed Senator Marin Munoz in that language. The amenities flowed back and forth. The general explained that he was to take the senator immediately to the president. But, he added, the president's Spanish, like his own, was not quite up to his French. Perhaps it would be much simpler if the senator would converse with the president in French.

"What's the matter," said Senator Marin Munoz in faultless Americanese, "can't he speak English?"

A few months ago the federal bureau of investigation was rubbing its hands in glee at the way the fingerprints were rolling in. Now the bureau is beating its breast. The deluge of fingerprints, resulting from such things as alien registration and defense plant fingerprinting, has caused a staggering shortage of fingerprint classifiers. The dearth has become so acute that the present staff can't even scan the 2,500 fingerprints that come in daily and are months behind on the 35,000,000 already in the files.

The shortage is just another in-

Iowa's R.O.T.C. Scottish Highlanders Invite Freshmen and Sophomores to Join Their Ranks

No Previous Musical Experience Required Of New Candidates

University Women May Take Try Outs For Dancing Positions

A "wee bit of auld Scotland" at SUI—that's the university's R. O. T. C. Scottish Highlanders, directed by Pipe Major William L. Adamson, recognized as America's foremost piper.

Pipe Major Adamson has announced that university freshmen interested in joining this unique band are invited to come to the record office of the military department in the field house to be interviewed for possible positions in the Highlanders. One of the first requirements for membership is that each candidate must be at least five feet, eight inches in height. Members must have good academic standing, and while previous musical experience is not a definite requirement, it is desired. University women who wish to try out for dancing positions must be of average height, otherwise their requirements are the same as for men.

New members will be given their choice of learning to play the pipes or drums.

There are at present 40 members in the band. About two-thirds of these are pipers, and the remainder are drummers. The drum section consists of bass, tenor and snare drums.

All uniforms and equipment are strictly authentic, much of the materials having been imported directly from Scotland. The pipers wear Royal Stewart tartans with blue doublets (coats) while the drummers wear the Hunting Stewart with red doublets. The drum major and the dancing lassies wear the Dress Stewart tartan with white doublets and red doublets respectively.

The Iowa Highlanders, often called "Iowa's Own Black Watch" because the uniforms worn by the band are the same as worn by the famous Black Watch regiment of the Scottish army, have become nationally known for their colorful appearances in many parts of the United States.

Outstanding in the Highlanders history was the trip to the New York World's Fair, Washington, D. C., and West Point. Two trips have been made to Kansas City, one to Madison, Wis., and two to Chicago, Ill., and Minneapolis, Minn. Trips throughout Iowa have acquainted all the state with this famous organization.

The Highlanders will appear at all home football games and will accompany the team with the university band on the official student trip of the football season.

HE'LL GUIDE U.S. FORCES IN WAR

In these days of aerial warfare, weather is a primary factor and much of the credit for Germany's success to date probably should go to Dr. Franz Bauer, Adolf Hitler's chief weather forecaster. If the United States should enter war, the responsibility of gauging the auspicious time for military moves probably would fall upon the shoulders of Dr. Irving P. Krick of the California Institute of Technology, reputed to be the nation's best weather forecaster. He has developed a technique for predicting weather several months in advance.

Lockheed Offers Jobs to 38 Iowa City Men

John H. Patton, manager of the local office of the Iowa Employment Security commission announced last night that he had been advised by the Lockheed Vega Aircraft corporation of Burbank, Cal., that 38 out of 97 men from Iowa City and vicinity who were recently tested and interviewed in the local junior high school will be offered jobs in the near future.

Unsuccessful as well as successful applicants will be notified of their status by mail within the next few days, Patton said.

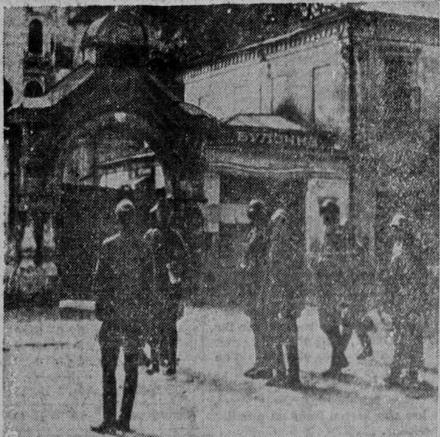

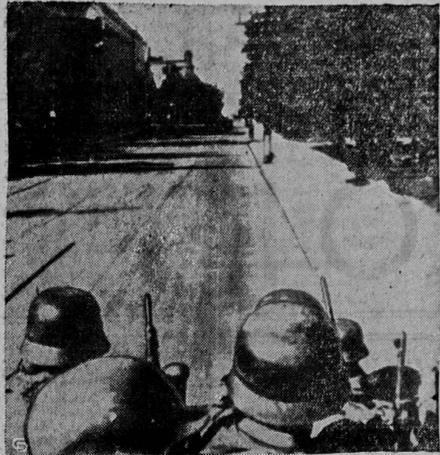

Young men accepted by Lockheed will be trained as skin fitters, riveters, machine operators, router operators, frame builders, jig builders, general installers, and in various other trades.

Most men while in training will draw the minimum wage in the plant and will be advanced at the rate of five cents hourly per month for the first three months. In some cases, men will be asked to take a 15-day training course paid for by the company before starting to work. They will be paid subsistence for each day they are in training.

They will be allowed eight hours overtime work at time and a half in addition to the regular 40 hours. Earnings after the first three months depend upon the progress of the individual. Mr. Patton stated that he still had available Lockheed application forms and testing material and that anyone interested should get in touch with the local office in the Community building for further information.

The Iowa City office has been successful in placing local men at points all over the country through the clearance system, Patton declared. Among these were placed ments at Bridgeport, Conn.; Cuero, Tex.; Pearl Harbor, Honolulu; Cleveland, Ohio; San Diego, Cal.; Wilmington, Del.; Kansas City, Mo., as well as at the new ordnance plants at Des Moines and Burlington.

Patton pointed out that at the present time the local office has clearance orders open for several thousand individuals but that practically all of these orders are for skilled, technical or professional people. Of these, the greatest demand is in the skilled metal working machine operator category.

He explained that the number of orders in any certain skill was governed by the scarcity of that type of worker and gave as an example that while he expected many orders from the Des Moines office for skilled workers at the ordnance plant, he was quite positive that there would be no orders received at the local office for such classifications as laborers, guards or watchmen.

In addition to the above orders, Patton said that there were jobs available through clearance with the Civilian Technical Corps of the British government, the Panama Canal Zone, several positions as technical advisors to the Brazilian government and openings at Wake and Midway islands in the Pacific ocean.

Sokolovsky Says Red Military Losses Less Than Those of Nazis

By HENRY C. CASSIDY WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE CENTRAL FRONT (AP)—The German-Russian slaughter on this front has become Verdun ten or a hundred times multiplied, Major General Vassily Sokolovsky told front correspondents yesterday.

In this continuous grinding of men and material, he contended, the proportions of losses over the last two months has been two to one in favor of the Russians in men, and five to one in favor of the Russians in material. This, he said, was due to superiority of Red army planes, tanks and artillery in this sector.

Sokolovsky, a husky, dark, clean-shaven officer of the modern Soviet school, talked quietly and confidently of the progress of the Red army's counter-attacks in the center.

On a 60-mile front, he said, the Germans have been pushed back from six to thirty miles in the direction of Yartsevo.

Sokolovsky cited these examples of Soviet successes: On one front, the Germans lost 22,500 in dead and wounded from Sept. 1 to Sept. 10; on another sector, they suffered 20,000 casualties in the first seven days of September.

The German air force, he estimated, has lost 1,950 planes in the central area since the start of the battle of Smolensk.

In a single sector, he went on, the German material losses in the first ten days of the month were 148 tanks destroyed, 17 captured, 103 cannon destroyed, 86 captured, 41 mortars destroyed, 53 captured.

"This," he said, "is evidence of how quickly the enemy is being exhausted."

Over hundreds of miles of the front, the general related, the Germans now are digging in and "what lies ahead of them is trench warfare and the winter mud of Russian roads."

But, he said, "what we depend on for resources is not only the U.S.S.R. but also the British and American peoples. . . Every extra plane, shell, tank and gun will be more than welcome, and the sooner they are here the sooner victory will be achieved."

'Y' Units Offer Large Variety of Activities in 1941-42 Program

Two of the oldest campus organizations are Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A., which have had over 55 years of continuous existence on the Iowa campus.

Membership in either association is open to any student, regardless of race, creed or position. In this cross-sectional membership and the policy of free participation in activities, the "Y" is a laboratory of democracy.

Offering a variety of activities of general interest, much of the "Y" program centers around Igniting Democracy on the Campus, small discussion groups.

Subjects for discussion next year will be Community Problems, Contemporary World Scene, Developing My Personality, Extending the Most Out of College, My Vocational Choice, and The Refugee Question.

Activity features of the 1941-42 program include raising funds for student world relief, knitting and sewing for war aid, special freshman program, services of recognition and installation, fire-side chat programs in the sororities, fraternities and dormitories, social events and community service.

The local associations are members of the World Student Christian Federation and also members of the national and world Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. Participation in intercollegiate gatherings is another important aspect of the program. Conferences in 1942 include the National Student assembly during Christmas vacation, the spring area conference at the Palisades park, and the annual student Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. conference at Lake Geneva, Wis., in June.

Iowa AAA to Make Survey of Soybean Storage Possibilities

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa agricultural adjustment administration officials are planning an immediate survey of soybean storage facilities because of the record production in sight for 1941, Albert J. Loveland, state AAA chairman, said yesterday.

"National defense demands that every bushel go into safe storage and its quality be safeguarded," he declared. "We need to know where and how this 1941 crop will be stored; then we can locate areas where special steps must be taken to meet the storage problem."

Texas Hurricane Hits; Thousands Flee From Fury of Tropic Storm

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Houston, Texas' largest city, late last night was at the very center of the tropical hurricane which hurled its fury against the Texas coast this afternoon between Matagorda and Freeport.

Fierce winds suddenly struck the Houston area about 9:45 p.m., whipping into the unprepared south Texas metropolis at 60 miles an hour.

The barometer there dropped to 28.84, the lowest point yet recorded in the present disturbance. Rain fell in torrents, whipping in through closed windows. The Houston Post editorial room was covered with half an inch of water.

D. E. Saxby, superintendent of the Gulf States Utility company, was electrocuted at his home in the Alvin area near Houston as he tried to disentangle a live wire. Officials estimated $1,700,000 damage to the rice crop.

At 11:20 p.m. the barometer hit the dangerously low level of 28.72, 12 points below that registered at Matagorda when the tropical storm struck at 3:25 p.m. (CST) with its winds of 90 and 100 miles per hour.

The wind at Houston reached 65 miles an hour at 11:50 p.m. and then suddenly slackened off to 35—which the weather bureau said was a sure sign the calm center of the storm was moving over the area.

High winds of from 60 to 70 miles an hour were expected to return, blowing in the opposite direction, in a short while.

Although Houston, a city of some 400,000 population, was largely unprepared for such a serious blow, no reports of great damage had yet come through. Most communications, except for a few telephone lines, were out. The weather bureau said the storm should lose its intensity soon as it curved northeastward, but warned that destructive winds of gale force would travel inland as far as 100 miles northwest of Galveston.

The hurricane hurled winds of 90 and 100 miles an hour against the Texas coast from Freeport to Matagorda. This 45-mile stretch on the central coast bore the brunt of the storm, which raised dangerous tides for miles to the northeast and southwest. Thousands of persons had fled to safety.

Cardinals Divide Two, See Hopes Totter

Bucs Shut Out Cards in First Contest, 4 to 0

Split Leaves Birds Same Number Of Tilts Behind Brooks

By DUKE MORAN

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals' chances for the National league pennant went tottering into the limbo of forlorn hopes yesterday as they divided a doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Buccaneers have been cousins for the Cards all season, but they disowned the relationship by capturing a 4-0 shutout in the first game, and St. Louis' furious 9-0 conquest in the nightcap was not enough to offset the damage.

Outlook Woeful

The split left St. Louis still a game and a half behind the Brooklyn Dodgers, who were idle yesterday, but it made a drastic change in their outlook for the future.

Each team has four games left and even if the Cardinals win all of theirs and Brooklyn is beaten once, the Dodgers still would bag the pennant by half a game. This prospect would be desolate enough for the Redbirds, even if the opposition were equal. But while St. Louis is tackling the tough Pirates and Chicago twice each, the Dodgers will be partying with the seventh place Boston Braves and last place Phillies.

Mort Cooper Shelled

Pittsburgh's victory in the first game was at the expense of Mort Cooper, the Cardinals' expert young righthander. The Pirates pelted him off the hill with three runs in the first inning and then coasted home on the strong south-paw slants of Ken Heintzelman.

In the second game the Pirates returned to their familiar role as the stooges who had lost 14 out of 18 to the Cards before yesterday. Lefty Max Lanier pitched steady if not spectacular eight-inning ball, choking off repeated Pittsburgh threats, and the Pirates bolstered the Cards' eight-hit attack with four errors. Two of the St. Louis hits were home runs—by rookie Stan Musial and Estel Crabtree.

Hawket Gridders Put Through Tough Workout Yesterday

Anderson Stresses Signal Drill for 2nd Straight Day

Iowa City Prepares For 1st Conference Encounter of Year

After a day's rest, Coach Herb Cormack sent his team through a tough scrimmage last night in preparation for the first conference game of the season against Clinton Friday night.

The Little Hawks practiced defense against a single wing and tried to perfect their pass defense. The outstanding part of the scrimmage was the way the tackles, Bill Bothell and Dean Yarnash, manhandled their opponents. The big tackles continually broke up plays on defense and opened big holes on offense so Joe Casey and Bob Roth could reel off the long gains.

The Hawklets travel to Clinton not only for their first conference game of the season but also for their first out-of-town game. Coach Roger Bowen of the River Kings had a poor season his first year at the river school, but this year the fans are expecting a different story. The Red and Black team has a line that averages around 180 pounds, and a backfield not much lighter but considerably faster.

Main thorn in Iowa City's side will be Don Schumacher, a veteran from last year's team, who handles the passing department as well as being the main running threat. But the line seems to be the strong point. The two boys that hold up the center are Fred Upchurch, a fiery red-head, and Charley Hicks, a 213-pound tackle.

The Iowa City game at Clinton will be celebrated as "Old Timers Night," with former grid stars of Clinton high being the guests of the school.

WSUI Will Broadcast 'Football Scoreboard Of Air' Every Friday

For the second straight year, WSUI's "Football Scoreboard of the Air," consisting of a board of experts picking the winners of 16 major football games throughout the country, will be aired from the university station, 910 kilocycles, at 12:30 p.m. every Friday.

Participating in the second of the annual series of broadcasts will be Gene Clausen, Iowa City correspondent for The Associated Press; Jim Jordan, Iowa City correspondent for The Des Moines Register and Tribune; Bill Buckley, sports editor of The Daily Iowan, and a different guest expert every week.

This Friday, Sept. 26, in the first program, Nile Kinnick, All-American halfback for Iowa in 1939 and now a member of the coaching staff for the Hawklets, will be guest expert.

After the board member has made one of his four predictions, the rest of the group will vote on the choice. A majority rules the combined prediction of the board, and in case of a tie, Jim Dowler, staff sports announcer, will break the deadlock with his vote.

During the nine-game season in 1940, the Scoreboard's predictions were 82 per cent correct.

Hawkeyes Clinched Claim to State Title By Swamping Bulldogs, 21 to 0, in 1910

Iowa Has Won Ten Of Thirteen Games In Old-Time Rivalry

"We clinched our claim to our first state title since 1905 by swamping Drake, 21 to 0. The Blue and White Warriors, confident after victories over the University of Iowa on two successive years, were able to gain only 76 yards to Iowa's 403 yards."

So wrote a sports expert in The Hawkeye 31 years ago, describing the 1910 Iowa-Drake football game. The series, which now includes 13 games, will be renewed in Iowa stadium Saturday at 2 p.m.

Once this series generated heated rivalry, it began back in 1896 with Iowa winning, 32 to 0. Drake came through with its first win in 1898, 18-3.

Then followed seven straight Iowa triumphs, until the Bulldogs stopped the streak, 12 to 6, in 1908. The 1909 Drake eleven also was victorious on what an old-time sports writer vaguely describes as a "freak play."

Hawkeyes of 1941 enter the current game with the knowledge that the men who played long ago won 10 games to Drake's three, scoring 240 points to Drake's 62. Hawkeyes shut out the foe in seven of those 13 games.

Here are the old-time scores: 1896—Iowa 32-0; 1897—Iowa 16-0; 1898—Drake 18-3; 1900—Iowa 26-0; 1901—Iowa 6-5; 1902—Iowa 12-0; 1903—Iowa 22-6; 1904—Iowa 11-0; 1905—Iowa 44-0; 1906—Iowa 25-4; 1908—Drake 12-6; 1909—Drake 12-14; 1910—Iowa 21-0.

DES MOINES (AP)—Hope faded in the Drake football camp yesterday that right halfback Bob Cobb and veteran tackle Willard Cushingberry will be able to play against Iowa Saturday.

Cobb was injured in the opener against St. Ambrose but may be able to play "if necessary," Coach Vee Green said but Cushingberry, who suffered a leg injury in practice, probably will be lost for the game.

Athletics Knock Red Ruffing From Box; Dickey Sets Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Charley (Red) Ruffing set out for a triumphant tuneup yesterday and instead was knocked out of the box and charged with his sixth defeat as the Philadelphia Athletics scored twice in the ninth to beat the New York Yankees, 9 to 8.

Ruffing hit his second homer and Joe DiMaggio his 28th as the Yanks built up a 6 to 1 lead. Then the A's scored five runs in the seventh and in the ninth Eddie Collins tripled to start a rally that brought two more runs and victory.

Bill Dickey caught the first four innings for the Yanks and attained his much coveted major league record for catching 100 or more games for 13 seasons. He had been tied with Gabby Hartnett and Ray Schalk for catching 100 in 12 years.

Passing the Buck

by BILL BUCKLEY

Max Hawkins, for three years a letterman guard on Iowa's team, said yesterday that he would help coach the freshman team this fall, probably working with the line. Bill Hofer, head freshman coach, will continue his duties there, but Nile Kinnick, his assistant last year, will be working with the varsity this fall.

Francis (Zud) Schammel, an All-American guard in his senior year under Ossie Solem, has been around the campus for the past week, doing the old scenes and watching the current edition of the Hawkeyes work out. Henry Luebeck, giant guard and tackle for the past three years, has also been a frequent practice visitor.

Erwin Prasse, nine-letter man who captained the "Miracle Hawks" in 1939 from his end position, playing guard in basketball and second base in baseball, will go to school this semester, and receive his degree in February. Prasse has been playing professional baseball in the St. Louis Cardinals chain the past two seasons, the last with Asheville, N. C., in the Piedmont league. It's only logical that Eddie Anderson could use Prasse's talents as an end coach to bolster the mediocre Hawkeye passing attack.

Although the Hawks are working hard for from eight to ten hours a day on their football, there are still plenty of wisecracks banded back and forth between the players and coaches. It's all in the spirit of fun, and it was only natural for Line Coach Jim Harris to say, when Alvin Schmoltd, giant sophomore tackle, admitted he didn't know an assignment, "there's the only man on the team who doesn't know anything, and will admit it."

Undoubtedly the outstanding game in the country this week will be the Minnesota-Washington tilt at Seattle, which will go a long way toward deciding the national championship rating of the Golden Gophers. We're not underrating Minnesota, but we'll pick Washington, and here's why. Three pre-season lineups were printed for the Huskies. On the first team were seven one-letter men, and four two-letter men; on the second team were seven two-letter men, six one-letter men, and on the third team were five one-letter men, and eight minor-letter men, two deep in some positions. That's even more reserve strength than the Gophers have, and if we remember rightly, only a couple of fumbles kept the Huskies from trouncing Minnesota at Minneapolis only a year ago Saturday.

In other major games which should go a long way toward telling the public-at-large which way the football winds will blow this fall, will be Missouri and Ohio State at Columbus, Detroit and Indiana at Bloomington, Vanderbilt and Purdue at Lafayette, Michigan State and Michigan at Ann Arbor, Boston College and Tulane at New Orleans, Oregon and Stanford at Palo Alto, Holy Cross and Louisiana State at Baton Rouge, and Mississippi and Georgetown at Washington, D. C.

Far be it from this column to poke fun at other college journalistic endeavors, but this one in the Daily Northwestern is too good to pass over. Nazis Say 'Annihilation' Nearly Completed But Admit Wide Gap in Lines

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Berlin's statement that the greatest "battle of annihilation" in history is about completed against nearly 750,000 Russian troops trapped east of Kiev must be accepted with caution. Russian, British and even German battle bulletins indicate there is still a wide gap through which much of the retreating red force could escape eastward to fight again.

The Russians have been mapped from meager reports, the Germans have lashed eastward both north and south from the Kiev pocket, endeavoring to close the jaws of a new and vaster trap. One drive stabbed direct toward Kharkov from Poltava, captured by the nazis last week. The other, the northern one, has gained another 70 miles eastward of the Konotop-Romen (Romnl) sector.

London notes a Russian counter attack on that northern nazi column at Glukova (Glushkova). Coupled with the red counter attack in the Poltava region, this indicates that the 100 mile span between Poltava and Glukova is open still for Russian retirement from the pocket to form a new front for defense of Kharkov. The importance of that is doubled by the fact that virtually midway of the Poltava-Glukova gap run are the only railroad and highway connections still available to the Russians for withdrawal from the Kiev pocket. Hadyach to the west and Okhtirka to the east were connected by rail not long ago across two tributaries of the Dnieper. That is a vital connection that still could save the bulk of the Russian forces retreating from the Kiev front.

Assuming that the Poltava and Glukova counter attacks mean that heavy red reinforcements have been hurried to block the road to Kharkov from both Moscow and the Smolensk sector in the north and from the lower Donets and Don positions in the south, a north-west battle line in good defensible terrain may be taking shape. Several minor rivers drain the Poltava-Glukova sector, flowing generally south and southwestward into the Dnieper below Kiev. Rugged, rolling ground, much of it now a sea of mud due to the September rains, characterizes this 100-mile span, affording successive water-fronted lines of resistance.

The region also is better equipped with rail and road communications from the east than from the west. Provided the Russians have sufficient forces to hold apart the jaws of the expanding nazi pincer drive east of Kiev; defense lines for Kharkov could be stabilized in very favorable terrain, particularly if any substantial part of the Russian forces still within the Kiev pocket make good their escape via the Hadyach-Okhtirka route.

However, the Germans are already astride rail routes both north and south which could be used to snap shut a gigantic new trap. At Glukova they are beyond the junction of the railroad running southeastward via Sumi and east of the Okhtira-Hadyach escape route. At Poltava they are driving northeastward up the direct rail connection with Kharkov. The junction of these two roads is only 20 miles or so southwest of Kharkov.

London's description of the situation east of Kiev as still "ugly" takes the possibility of a new nazi encirclement via these two railroads into consideration. Whether it can be achieved or not depends on the ability of the Russians attacking the Glukova and Poltava pivots to prevent a new junction of German forces almost within sight of Kharkov. If these Russians fail, a large number of Stalin's troops may be engulfed in a new trap.

Irish Tighten Belts for Hard Winter

Virtual Blockade Forces Neutral Eire To Conserve on Foodstuffs

By MICHAEL ROONEY DUBLIN (Correspondence of the Iowan's Special News Service)—Neutral Eire is tightening her belt for a hard winter.

Prime Minister DeValera has warned his country that because of the geographical situation it must suffer the effects of a virtual blockade.

"We are not going to go hungry," asserts Agricultural Minister James Ryan, "but there will be a lot of things we may have to do without."

Most serious shortage may be British coal. Stocks in the country are very low. Some merchants are unable to supply their customers with the meager ration of a quarter ton a month. The railways are feeling the pinch and services have been curtailed.

No Coal to Be Expected Something approaching dismay has been created by the declaration of the president of the British board of trade that "not a single ton of coal which could be used at home would be exported unless under overwhelming national considerations."

In this difficult situation the Eire government is directing an intense drive for increased production of peat, present in the Irish bogs in millions of tons. But it remains to be seen whether, in the absence of coal, peat can be produced in sufficient quantities to keep the home fires burning.

Petrol is still being imported in small quantities. Private motorists receive an average of about four gallons a month and the result is that most of the private cars are off the road. Dublin city bus services have been reduced. No bus now runs after 11 p.m., after which the city center is deserted.

Harvest prospects are good. Experts say there will be sufficient wheat to last throughout the winter, though there may have to be a mixture with other cereals to make bread, already of a slightly brownish color. There is a greater acreage under potatoes than for many years and a good crop seems assured.

Tea still is rationed at a half ounce per person per week. The sugar ration is one pound per person per week. Coffee is almost unobtainable. Cocoa is becoming scarce. Rice is doled out in small packets by shopkeepers who say they don't know where the next lot is coming from.

When present supplies of American tinned fruits are exhausted, there may be none to follow. We may have to eat our meat without salt, possibly without pepper.

Here are some of the things the Irish housewife may have to do without in the near future:

Vinegar, sauces, chutneys, jellies, baking powders, dried fruits, paints and polishes and creams, paraffin and every week adds new commodities to the list.

In short, as one leading Dublin business man puts it, "Z's goodbye to fancy fare and a lot of other things besides. But we won't be hungry and that's something to be thankful for."

These Are the United States Planes in 'Battle for Britain'

American Bombers, Fighters Prove Superiority Over Axis Aircraft

These are military airplanes which the United States is sending in ever-increasing numbers to Great Britain and her allies. Some types are already in active service. Others are in production or have been ordered. Meanwhile, the American aircraft industry continues to produce record numbers of warplanes for our own army and navy.

British names for the American planes appear in boldface:

FIGHTERS

Airacobra This is the famous Bell pursuit ship with a cannon firing through the propeller hub. (American counterpart: the Army's P-39.)
Buffalo The speedy Brewster shipboard fighter which is on guard in many parts of the Empire, notably in Singapore. (American counterpart: the Navy's F2A-2.)
Mohawk
Tomahawk
Kittyhawk Three Curtiss pursuits of the famous "Hawk" line, the newest of which is the Kittyhawk. Already, the Tomahawks have been credited with numerous victories over Axis planes. (American counterparts: the Army's P-36, P-40 and P-40D.)
Havoc This Douglas model DB-7A began life as a light twin-engine bomber, but because of its speed and striking power was converted into a nightfighter. (American counterpart: the Army's A-20A.)
Martlet The London magazine, "The Aeroplane," credits this Grumman shipboard fighter with being the fastest airplane in service with Britain's Fleet Air Arm. (American counterpart: the Navy's F4F-3.)

HEAVY BOMBERS

Vanguard A large number of these fast Vultee pursuits have been produced for Great Britain. (No American counterpart.)
Fortress I Recent dispatches from England tell of these four-engine Boeing ships raiding Nazi objectives at heights of 30,000 feet, so high they could not be seen from the ground. (American counterpart: the Army's B-17 Flying Fortress series.)
Liberator Large numbers of these new four-engine Consolidated land-planes are being flown across the Atlantic. The RAF is using them for long-range reconnaissance as well as for bombing raids. (American counterpart: the Army's B-24.)

MEDIUM AND LIGHT BOMBERS

Boston
8A-5
Digby Three Douglas bombers. The Boston is the bomber-brother of the nightfighter Havoc. The 8A-5 is a single-engine attack bomber and Digby is a twin-engine medium bomber. (American counterparts: the Army's A-20A, A-17A, B-18A.)
Hudson More than 1000 of these famed Lockheed reconnaissance bombers have been built for Britain and many a Hudson has done yeoman work with the RAF's Coastal Command. (No American counterpart.)
Maryland
Baltimore The first of these Martin bomber types has seen much service in the African campaigns. The new Baltimore, which has just gone into production, is said to be faster than many pursuit planes. (No American counterparts.)

PATROL BOMBERS

Catalina A Consolidated Catalina located the Bismarck after the fleeing Nazi battleship had eluded the British navy. The tremendous range of this twin-engine flying boat makes it ideal for patrolling

DIVE BOMBERS

Bermuda The first dive bomber to be equipped with a power-driven gun turret, this Brewster ship has the range of a medium bomber and can carry a far heavier bomb load than any foreign dive bomber. (American counterpart: the Navy's SB2A-1.)
Cleveland These Curtiss single-engine bi-planes (known as Helldivers) were among the first American aircraft to be turned over to the British. (American counterpart: the navy's SB4-C.)
Chesapeake This Vought-Sikorsky plane is equally useful for dive bombing, scouting, long-range observation, smoke laying and photographic work. (American counterpart: the navy's SB2U-1.)

TRAINERS

Crane Specially designed to train pilots in the operation of multi-engine aircraft, these twin-motor Cessna monoplanes are being delivered to Canada in large numbers. (American counterpart: the army's AT-8.)
Harvard I & II
Yale Thousands of RAF pilots have learned to fly in these sturdy North American basic and advanced trainers which were among the earliest American ships to go to Britain. (American counterparts: the Army's AT-6A and BT-14.)

Other Aircraft

Atlantic sea lanes. (American counterpart: the Navy's PBV-5) N-3PB Northrop produced a fleet of these single-engine patrol and torpedo ships for Norwegian forces serving with the British. N-3PBs were "in the kill" of the Bismarck. (No American counterpart.)

A Daydreamer—

Tahiti - Bound

—On Massive Yacht

By WEBSTER K. NOLAN Central Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Listed among the idler sports of daydreaming in the office is imagining a leisure voyage to the island of Tahiti in a glistening yacht. It is easy to fall into this delightful delusion and the dream dies with the day. But once in a million times, so alluring a dream comes true.

It has come true for an attractive young San Francisco girl, Cecilia Moore. During a momentary lull in the office where she works, Miss Moore not long ago let such a gossamer dream play with her fancies, and then she brushed it aside as an ephemeral and ludicrous thing. But today she is aboard the most magnificent yacht on the west coast, riding the blue Pacific Tahiti-bound, and three months to do it in.

It happened this way: Dining with friends a few nights later, Miss Moore overheard a remark that the Wander Bird, massive 85-foot schooner, piloted by Captain Warwick M. Tompkins, was to sail from Sausalito, near the Golden Gate, for Tahiti at week's end. Captain Tompkins was searching without success for a cook.

'It Can't Be True'

A veteran of the gas range and a housekeeper of high repute, Miss Moore resurrected the dream and for a fleeting few seconds considered applying for the job. Her "practical" sense, however, told her she was not suited for galley work. But that night she kept thinking and dreaming, until at last it got the best of her.

Early the next day she clambered over the dock at Sausalito in the direction of the huge red-winged bird poised at the end of the pier.

A clear-eyed, heavy-set skipper met the spirited young lady and helped her over the side. An hour later Miss Moore left the schooner, whispering to herself, "It can't be true . . . it can't be true."

It was true. The Tahitian-bound crew includes the captain's wife, his daughter, Ann 11, and nine-year-old son, nicknamed "The Commodore," and a handful of other passengers who pay their way but also serve as the crew.

The Wander Bird, familiar to the ports of Boston, Gloucester, Mass., and New York, once sailed from Rocky Neck, Gloucester, for a cruise around the world. That was in 1936, when John Pierpont Morgan, 16-year-old son of Junius S. Morgan, international financier, was an able seaman aboard the schooner. Young Morgan sailed in the tradition of his father, grandfather and great-grandfather. In 1931 the Wander Bird took part in the transatlantic race to England.

Veteran

Captain Tompkins was a member of the University of California varsity crew of 20 years ago, had experience in the United States navy during the first World War, and has sailed the Wander Bird 105,000 miles without mishap.

The Tompkins family lives on the yacht the year around. Ann and the "Commodore" have spent their entire lives aboard.

Weighing 140 tons, the Wander Bird is a 62-year-old Hamburg, Germany, pilot schooner. She is all oak, copper fastened and sheathed, electrically lighted and equipped with radio. However, she is a sailing boat only, having no motor. Otherwise she would probably have been taken over by the navy earlier this year.

Moral: Daydreaming is not always without its dividends. But the rest of us may now go back to work.

KIEV, THE CAPITAL OF UKRAINE, NOW IN HANDS OF GERMANY

Kiev, the metropolis and capital of the rich Russian Ukraine, is now swarming with nazis and German pincer thrusts from north and south of the city have, according to press dispatches from Berlin, cut off a huge number of the forces under Russian General Semeon Budenny. However, German communiques from Berlin last night admitted that strong Russian counter attacks were delaying forward movement of their troops. The Central Press map shows where the German battle fronts are located at present.
