Germans Fight in Leningrad Streets

Hint F.R. Will Request Virtual Repeal of U.S. Neutrality Act

Suggest President Will Request Arming Of Merchant Vessels

Say Administration Urging Elimination Of 'Zone' Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were strong indications yesterday that President Roosevelt would request virtual repeal of the neutrality act next week, and Senator Connally (D-Tex) said he believed American ships should be able to sail the high seas to any port in the world.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated at a press conference Tuesday he would ask that the act be changed to permit the arming of American merchant vessels. He said that he was seeking to decide in conference with advisers to what extent the law might be overhauled.

It was reported in Capitol Hill that administration officials were urging the president to recommend also the elimination of the provisions preventing American ships from entering belligerent ports or "combat areas" defined in presidential proclamations.

Connally, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, predicted that "the neutrality act will be amended in important respects," and added in a statement that it might be completely repealed except that it carries some desirable provisions, such as that providing for government control over munitions exports.

"The prohibition against American ships going into combat zones was predicated on the theory that if they remained out of the combat zones the nazi submarines would not attack them or sink them," Connally declared. "That belief has proven illusory."

"They (the Germans) attacked and sunk the Robin Moor, flying the American flag, and a submarine attacked the destroyer Greer. Neither vessel was in a combat zone. If the Nazis in their ruthlessness are to attack our ships wherever they may be found there is no reason why we should continue to observe combat zones."

Congressional Unit Accepts Restrictions On Property Seizure

Thomas Plans to Seek The Senate's Approval Of Legislation Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — House-approved restrictions on the administration's property seizure bill were accepted by a joint senate-house conference committee yesterday and the action cleared the way for a final congressional vote on the legislation.

The compromise measure authorizes the president to requisition military and naval equipment, supplies, munitions and similar articles until he declares the emergency ended or until June 30, 1943, whichever time comes first. "Fair and just compensation" would be paid.

The bill drafted by the conference committee made important exemptions, however, specifying that nothing in the act shall be construed:

"1. To authorize the requisitioning or require the registration of any firearms possessed by any individual for his personal protection or sport (and the possession of which is not prohibited or the registration of which is not required by existing law).

"2. To impair or infringe in any manner the right of any individual to keep and bear arms.

"3. To authorize the requisitioning of any machinery or equipment which is in actual use in connection with any operating factory or business and which is necessary to the operation of such factory or business."

Senator Thomas (D-Utah) of the military committee said he would seek senate approval of the legislation today.

Argentine Army Officials Relieve Head Of Country's Air Force of His Command

Try to Find Cause For Army Aviation Officer's Uprising

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The head of the Argentine air force was reported relieved of his command last night in the midst of a growing dispute between Acting President Ramon Castillo and the chamber of deputies over responsibility for a foiled uprising among army aviation officers.

Unconfirmed reports said General Angel M. Zuloaga, the air force commander, had been confined to his home, but the news agency Andi, in reporting his dismissal, said he had asked for himself.

Zuloaga was quoted as saying he felt he could no longer count on the support of army officials. Andi's informant said the general had not admitted complicity in any plot but had considered himself offended by the army's attitude.

Castillo, acting president since July, 1940, when President Roberto Ortiz became ill, earlier had charged that radical party members, nationalists, and "others" were involved in the conspiracy against the government.

This promptly caused loud protests from the radicals, one of whom, Raul Damonte Taborda, was instrumental in the vigorous congressional committee investigation of nazi activities in Argentina.

British Draw Plans For Great Post-War Food, Supply House

LONDON (AP) — Britain's allies agreed at a formal council yesterday to help construct the framework of a great reservoir of food and other supplies into which hungry Europe may dip "after the nazi yoke is lifted."

The council, guided by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and assured in a message from United States Ambassador John G. Winant that America believes the plan has "great prospective usefulness," adopted the scheme without formal dissent.

"Our declared purpose," said Eden, "is to insure that with freedom there will come succor at the earliest possible moment to the distressed peoples of Europe... No one can know when this war will end and we should make our preparations in good time."

Hurricane Destruction Estimated at 'Millions' In Gulf Coast Region

100 Mile Wind Causes $5,500,000 Damage To Rice Crop Alone

HOUSTON (AP)—Refugees by the thousands returned last night to the Gulf coast home they fled to escape a tropical storm which caused millions of dollars damage to crops and property. The heaviest blow in years—peak winds of 100 miles an hour were recorded as it lashed inland—spent its violence as it moved northeastward before veering west into Texas again near Sulphur Springs.

Damages Rice Crops Damage to the Texas rice crop alone was estimated at $5,500,000 by Homer L. Brinkley, manager of the American Rice Growers Cooperative association.

In addition the storm buffeted bayshore homes; smashed boats to bits; destroyed flimsy structures; uprooted residences; and uprooted trees; disrupted communications; killed three persons and injured scores, and isolated entire communities.

Houston was the last city to suffer winds of hurricane force. The storm struck without warning Tuesday night and left damage of at least $500,000.

The state's largest city was without electric power in some sections, but hopes were held it would be restored last night. The water pressure was low because most pumping stations were electrically operated.

Smashes Store Windows Plate glass windows—15 truck loads full—were smashed in the business district as the wind beat through the city at 77 miles an hour.

Eight hundred Texas defense guardsmen were enlisted to help police prevent looting.

For farming folk the outlook was bleak, but the government quickly announced plans for assisting them, and the Red Cross and other agencies also were lending aid.

The storm baffled weather observers. Heading inland over Freeport and Matagorda on the lower central coast, it suddenly veered north northeast, catching Houston unaware. Then, its intensity diminishing, the storm apparently was headed for the Shreveport area but ducked westward, still in Texas, where it began to blow itself out without further great damage.

Claim Troops Occupy Suburbs

Locked in a titanic struggle that is costing thousands of lives, both Russian and Germans have claimed new gains on the eastern front, with the Nazis apparently making by far the greatest advances. Berlin says that, following capture of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, the German forces have closed an "iron ring" around hundreds of thousands of Soviet troops east of the city and are "annihilating" them. Berlin also reports further gains in the sieges of Leningrad, in the north, and Odessa, in the south. Reports from Moscow, meanwhile, state that Russian divisions are near Smolensk and are about to recapture that strategic city on the central front.

Morgenthau Wants Six Per Cent Limitation On Corporation Profits During Emergency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Morgenthau coupled an unexpected recommendation to congress yesterday for a drastic six per cent limitation on all corporation profits during the emergency with a warning that further restrictions on credits may be necessary if inflation is to be averted.

The treasury head, urging the house banking committee to speed the price-control bill as an essential step toward preventing inflation, expressed belief that corporations should be satisfied if they could earn six per cent on their invested capital during the emergency.

He asserted that all earnings in excess of that figure should go to the government to help pay for the "fantastic" defense expenditures. While Morgenthau was testifying, Chairman Steagall (D-Ala) of the committee was discussing the legislation with President Roosevelt. He reported that the chief executive "wants a price control bill and he will get it."

In the meantime, Philip Murray, CIO president, came out against proposals to freeze wages as well as prices. In a letter to Steagall requesting permission for a CIO spokesman to testify, Murray said it would be "unwise in terms of sound economics and of proper public policy to attempt to freeze wages in connection with price control."

Morgenthau likewise opposed the establishment of a ceiling over wages, saying that "in free countries labor is not a commodity, human beings are not property, and they should not be treated as such."

Declare Red Position Hopeless; Swarms of Bombers Blast City

BERLIN (AP)—German troops are fighting in the streets of Leningrad suburbs supported by swarms of bombers dropping the "heaviest types" of projectiles, the Germans reported today.

Ground troops were said to have pressed doggedly forward after smashing Russian defenders out of at least two villages in the outskirts.

Level flight and dive bombers attacked troops concentrations, bunkers and artillery positions with the "bloodiest losses" to the Russians, it was asserted. One heavy bomb was said to have hit the center of a Russian barracks.

Military quarters in Berlin said the report that the Germans had smashed their way so far forward showed "the situation of the encircled Soviet troops is becoming more and more hopeless."

The Germans said that the Russian defense at Leningrad was weakening and declared the food situation in the city was bound to become critical. They made no prediction, however, on the possible length of Russian resistance there.

One German infantry unit was said to have advanced until activity in part of the dock region was clearly visible through binoculars.

The dispatches said Leningrad's defenders still were throwing themselves upon the Germans in counter-attack after counter-attack, but these were described as decreasing steadily in intensity.

DNB declared "it is to be expected Leningrad and its population will suffer the fate of Warsaw."

The news service expressed the opinion bombardment of the city and bitter street-to-street fighting would be necessary because of Russian determination to make a last ditch stand.

Germans were told the mopping up of Soviet forces trapped east of Kiev was proceeding methodically, with the encircled Russians split into two tightly-held rings and reduced to impotence by chaotic disorganization.

Other dispatches told of widespread operations of the German air force, said to range from continued battering of the red army's defense ring around Leningrad and last night's renewed bombing of industries at Moscow to smashing blows south of Kharkov in the Donets basin.

Two German regiments were reported destroyed by Marshal Timoshenko's forces on the eastern bank of the upper Dvina, some 200 miles due west of Moscow.

Mexico Union Heads Plan Demonstration To Protest Shootings

MEXICO CITY (AP)—An urgent meeting of union leaders drew plans last night for a giant public demonstration of protest against the shooting of six munitions workers in a clash with Mexican troops Tuesday.

Nine others were wounded when troops guarding President Avila Camacho's home fired on some 1,000 workers who sought a mass interview with the president. Bodies of the slain workers were on display at headquarters of the railway union.

Avila Camacho expressed concern that the clash might undermine the people's faith in the army as their "genuine armed representation" and blamed the incident on "lack of serenity and foresight" on the part of the troops.

Turks Say Serious German Labor Shortage Forcing Hitler's Pressure on Bulgarians

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—of Italian and Balkan workers. It now is estimated that about 1,500,000 foreigners are working in Germany either in vital war industries or in equally vital agricultural production.

Besides these voluntary and semi-voluntary workers, there are at least 1,500,000 war prisoners employed on German farms or building roads and airfields.

Reports current in diplomatic circles here state that Germany is pressing Bulgaria to provide 200,000 soldiers now and perhaps more later. No one here who is informed on Bulgarian affairs suggests that these men would be thrown directly against the Russians in view of the known pro-Russian sentiment of the Bulgarian rank and file.

Germany's own reserve manpower apparently was exhausted a year ago when the reich began importing hundreds of thousands

To Iowa's Students and Faculty: A New Year Begins, It's a Lovely Day, and Where Do We Go from Here?

We met a member of the faculty on the campus a couple of days ago, and stopped to chat for a few minutes on the state of the nation.

The state of the nation, we agreed, is pretty bad. We agreed furthermore that it will get much, much worse.

His chief concern lies, not in the immediate future, but a little bit further along. He's worried about the shock which will follow the war, when millions of men now in the armed forces re-enter private enterprise, and thousands more who are now engaged in defense industries begin thinking once again of private employment.

He's convinced that universities, including Iowa, haven't focused their eyes far enough ahead, down that long vista of the future which leads toward something permanent and definite; a vista that has only a passing glance for wars and depressions.

He's afraid Iowa, and her educational counterparts everywhere, are still too wound up in the ratiocinations of confusing systems to be doing their job of preparing men and women to take specific roles when they graduate.

And he's absolutely right. Yet here we are, ready to begin a new year, on the same old basis. Induction this morning marks the start. Are we going somewhere, or aren't we? Will we do any more this year to fulfill our educational mission.

Among the thousands of students and members of the faculty at Iowa this year, and among the thousands at institutions like our's all over America, there are comparatively few who realize the gravity of the situation we face.

They're the ones who will know what will happen when the war is finished. They appreciate the magnitude of those coming repercussions. And it grinds their souls to think that we're doing nothing about it.

They are the few. The many are the ones who realize in some vague kind of a way that things will be bad, but they'd do nothing in their own sphere of operation—either student or faculty—to expend the necessary further effort to do something concrete about it.

Our friend of the faculty knows, for he has seen, that hundreds of graduates leave universities like this each year with "liberal" education which hasn't fitted them to do any particular type of work.

One goes into an office after a job. He's asked what he can do. His reply is that he's a graduate of a university, but when it comes to the all-important question, "What can you do?" coldly and directly put, far too often there's no answer. Our graduate can do anything, really that he's given to do. Odd jobs, the office boy kind; any kind of unskilled stuff that he could have picked up without bothering about a higher education.

But when an employer asks "What can you do?" he wants something definite. He wants an answer that indicates that somewhere during his college training, that university graduate has learned his physics, and can apply it; or he's learned his principles of economics so that his knowledge plus his ingenuity, demonstrates that he's worth a trial with any business who maintains an economic bureau.

A "liberal" education isn't enough to meet the requirements which must be met a few years from now by college graduates. Competition will be keener. The need for skilled brainpower will be sadly lacking. Liberally trained graduates of colleges and universities will be no better off than those just returning from the army or from defense industries.

And they must be better, or Iowa and her sister institutions will have failed miserably in their jobs. That's the challenge that lies dead ahead. We've got to do a better job of training than we've ever done before. If we're to fulfill a "defense" need of the moment, that is it.

And how do we do that? We mentioned a moment ago that only a few realize keenly the situation. They're the ones who take more seriously their duties—as members of the faculty and the student body.

The serious faculty member sets out to teach; but he does more than that. He's interested enough in his students to think of them, not just as members of his own class, but as college students who are trying to do a job and do it well. Our serious faculty member does everything in his power to develop his students, to plant a grain of an idea which may take root and flower, to be an inspiration even as he lays out the academic facts which make up his own course work.

He's doing his job. He's a credit of the university.

But the other fellow is hired to teach three courses a day in such-and-such a field, and after he lays out the academic course matter, he's through. If the students don't get it, it's too bad, but there's nothing to be done about it.

And he's the one who isn't doing Iowa, nor the profession of which he's a member, any good. He may be doing actual harm.

Unless the instructor, the lab expert, the doctor, the professor anywhere is conscientiously doing more than his share to train his students, as men and women and not just as "members of the class in English I," for example, he isn't doing his part in this job we're facing.

Now this is a two-way business. Students have the same responsibility. Unless they want to fall at the bottom of the ladder when the going gets toughest, they've got to shake themselves loose from this old idea that if the professor is no good, then that's the end of it.

Unless our student body is as conscientious in its receiving of knowledge as our professional body is supposed to be in distributing it, then we'd all just as well go home and wait with resignation for the downfall.

Because the downfall is coming, and only those who ready themselves for it now will be able to weather the storm.

Everyone has asked himself, since September, 1939, how he can best do his part in the defense of America.

There's only one kind of American defense which will defend the future—and that's just as important as the present. And that's the willingness of men and women to do more than their share of carrying the burdens in their own fields—more than their share in light of the physical return they get.

We're engaged in the business of education. As students and faculty members, our collective job is the job of teaching and learning.

And those who carefully, conscientiously, intentionally set out from the beginning to do more than their share—of teaching and of learning—will have carried their share of the educational load.

Unless it's carried, far better than we've carried it in the past, a heavy share of the responsibilities for the downfall which lies beyond this war will be traceable to these hallowed doors.

NEW YORK—Behind the imposing if long-winded title of Co-chairman of the Amusement Division of the New York Defense Recreation Committee is Broadway's John Golden, producer of more hit dramas and comedies than you have any right to ask him to recollect.

Mr. Golden's business is to help keep the boys happy, the boys being service men. In a little more than two months, more than 30,000 free admissions to Broadway theaters have been given to soldiers, sailors and marines on leave in Manhattan, and more than these will be forthcoming during the winter months if a little matter of "tax" is excluded by the U. S. Gov't.

If you go sticking a 10 per cent amusement tax on free tickets to the soldiers you will create a need for a lot of extra bookkeeping. Theater managers have enough to worry about as it is. That is why they have their eye on the new tax bill, which must retain the exemption on tickets given free to service men if the service men are to have a fling on Broadway this season.

It is hoped by Mr. Golden's committee that a minimum of 8,000 tickets a week will be available soon, contributed by all theaters in the city. This does not include movie passes, of which there should be thousands.

Not only is the committee committed to finding tickets for the boys—their chores include providing information as to the arrival and departure of trains, finding rooms and sleeping quarters for them and otherwise lifting the question mark from their bewildered brows when they come among us.

HUNTER'S MOON!

In the Nation's Capital—

By HUGH JOHNSON

Did We Make a Mistake By Having a Big Army?

WASHINGTON—There is a cloud on the horizon of some under-current discussion in Washington, as yet perhaps "no bigger than a man's hand." But it broke in the public prints recently in one of the philosophical discussions of Mr. Walter Lippmann to some such effect as this:

"Isn't it time to reconsider whether we need a 'mass' army and didn't we make a mistake in the panic following the French collapse in assuming that we need to equip and train a large land force?"

The general argument, as I understand it (not Mr. Lippmann's alone) was that when we decided to rearm there was danger of the British navy being wiped out and of Japan seriously threatening us in the Pacific. Therefore we plunged to conscription and the creation of a modern army of 1,500,000 men to defend our shores and against any attack on this hemisphere. Now that these dangers have passed, isn't it time to whittle down our army plans?

As far as this column is concerned, it never did believe in any danger of the elimination of the British fleet nor any Japanese naval combination threatening our shores in the Pacific. Above all, it has constantly argued that the threat of any great modern overseas land expeditionary force to the shores of the Americas is absurd—with one qualification, that we promptly train a reasonable modern army sufficiently equipped to prevent a sudden incursion with such superior armored and armed equipment and training as to make mere numbers of bow-and-arrow troops of no avail.

The great rich and powerful empires of Mexico and Peru were taken by Cortez and Pizarro with a few platoons of Spaniards and the disparity between the equipment axes and cotton armor of the Incas and Aztecs was scarcely greater than that between Hitler's panzer troops and our ancient equipment. At the beginning of our land armament effort, we were too far behind Nazi military developments to see them with a telescope. We are still nearly as far behind although progress is accelerating.

Getting into a "position in readiness" for whatever may happen is no slight task. It takes interminable training and education with modern arms and we do not yet have the arms to do the training. Any kind of safe and decent establishment requires reserves of at least partially trained troops and we are only now and very slowly beginning to pull up those reserves.

Furthermore, we don't know in what direction our land forces must be used. Already by undertaking a tremendous expansion of far-flung outposts from the Philippines to Iceland we have imposed demands on our army that require multiplication of its manpower. It is a hell of a time to talk about cutting it down.

One doesn't have to speculate very long or burn much midnight oil to discover what is behind this suggestion. It is a hope that greater and greater proportions of our increasing stream of military production may be diverted from our own land defenses and delivered to Britain and especially to Russia

Movie Script Writer Explains Herself — ?

HOLLYWOOD—A girl friend of mine has always wanted to tell the public why there were so few women writers in the picture business so when she suggested I do it in this column it seemed like a lovely idea only now she's away and I can't seem to think of any reasons for it although somebody did tell me once that it was because women couldn't stand the strain.

That's silly. Another reason I've heard is that women are more inclined than men to take criticism personally. I don't believe that either although a favorite story of mine is the one of the lecturer who maintained that while he had nothing but admiration for women-kind in general, he had found that they were inclined to take things personally whereupon a little lady in the last row leapt to her feet to say "I don't!"

That still doesn't make it true though, and I've worked with an awful lot of men whose mental toes were so easy to step on that they had to be kept in a constant cotton-batten of soft and pretty words every time we went into conference. Which means that instead of the normal, friendly, this-somebody's-lousy sort of comment, you have to think up things like "What this script needs is less talk and more dialogue" and other subtleties.

Then, too, I've heard that it's difficult for a woman to work only with men. Why? What's the matter with them? Some of my best friends are men and once I even married one of them.

So it may be there's so few of us because women don't like the things they say about female scribers. Or did you know that we're usually supposed to have stringy hair, dirty hands, pay our own restaurant checks, and talk like truck drivers?

That isn't strictly true. I've known times when my hair was hardly stringy at all—when even I could look in the mirror and wonder what Dietrich has that I haven't and I have a girl friend, also laughingly known as a writer, who can out-fumble any football team when the waiter brings the luncheon check.

The dirty hands I'll skip—yep, I look so silly carrying a bottle of hand lotion around for use after washing them—and I've never known any truck drivers well enough to find out if they talked like me. (I did meet a piano mover once though but was a Har-regardless of its effect on our own safety—come what may. We ought not to do that. This is a world of excursions and alarms. Nations fight on one side today and on another side tomorrow. Civilization abroad has degenerated into barbarism and banditry. Prudent aid in our own best interest is one thing. Stripping ourselves of a sufficient modern defense against anything that may happen is quite another thing, especially as we may be indirectly arming future potential enemies. Let's do the best we can on all fronts but let's not forget the home front. It is our first and greatest responsibility.

The New Books—

"THE STRANGE WOMAN," by Ben Ames Williams; (Houghton Mifflin; $2.75).

Jenny's mother ran away with the lieutenant, leaving Jenny to raise her father. She next took refuge with Isaiah Poster, an old man who turned out to be the only one to withstand her in any important measure. Jenny repaid him by willing his death, ruining his sons, and taking all his property. Before she had married her second husband she was responsible for the loss of a ship and the death of everybody thereon except her unlucky second husband. Her manner of handling this band, whose name was John Evered, was to bear him sons and beat them. Then she took herself another lover, did a number of outrageous things, and in dying arranged that her family (partly estranged by this time) should be humiliated one last time by the shocking will she wrote and paid $5,000 to have published in the Bangor newspaper.

IT IS NOT necessarily the business of the novelist to write about lovely and good women; every novelist should be allowed one spiritual harridan for his gallery. One might almost think that Ben Ames Williams had sickened himself with virtuous and charming women, because his spiritual harridan is a beast that should have been quietly shut up in a madhouse—and would have been had if any one of the men she ruined had had the spirit of a mouse.

Jenny started her career in the Bangor of the War of 1812—at four she fascinated a British lieutenant who alone sensed dimly some of her possibilities in advance, and could have quietly dropped her in the river and solved everything.

Dixie Walker Triples In 3 Scores In 7th

Brooks Overcome Unearned Two-Run Boston Advantage

By STEVE O'LEARY
BOSTON (AP)—If Dixie Walker never gets another birthday present, he'll still be way ahead of the game.

Dixie reached the ripe age of 31 yesterday and celebrated with a seventh inning triple with the bases loaded to send Brooklyn's beloved "bums" to a 4 to 2 triumph over the Boston Braves. That was the ball game and another nail driven into the coffin of the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant hopes. The Cards shut out Pittsburgh, 4 to 0, but could not slice an inch off the game and one-half margin. Brooklyn is enjoying each club has three contests left.

Tight Until 7th
Up to the seventh inning the game had been a tight pitching battle between Kirby Higbe, who collected his 22nd victory, and Jim Tobin, who held the advantage until then because of a pair of unearned Boston tallies in the fourth.

Joe Medwick beat out a hit to open the seventh. Lavagetto flied out, but Reese singled, Medwick holding second. Lew Riggs, batting for Mickey Owen, hit to Miller, who threw to Al Roberge, but umpire "Beans" Reardon called Reese safe to uncork a terrific argument in which most of the Boston team joined.

Walker Breaks Tie
Sibby Sisti made a spectacular stop of pinchhitter Jim Wasdell's hot drive and cut down Medwick at the plate for the second out. Up stepped Walker. West, who had come in fast to snare his blooming liner in the third, edged in close behind shortstop. But Walker caught a fast pitch and drove it high and far into left field. The ball dropped near the fence, 350 feet from the plate, for a triple and Reese, Riggs and Wasdell romped over the plate with the three big runs.

Brooklyn added another in the eighth when Lavagetto drew a base on balls with two away and scored on a triple by Reese.

Bosox Clip Nats Twice; Williams Drops to .401

Drake Plays Shown to Hawks First Time in Drills Yesterday

Bulldog Pass Plays Work, But Linemen Nip Ground Attack

Coach Eddie Anderson finally kicked the lid off the Drake formations he picked up in Des Moines last Friday, throwing a third team armed with Bulldog plays against his first and second strings for the first time in practice yesterday, although the Hawks have seen them before in chalk talks.

First Anderson dished out an extensive pass defense workout, with two backfields for defense, and the ends and backs going out from the double wing formation which Drake uses almost exclusively. Nile Kinnick, Tom Farmer and Jim Youel were doing the flinging, and completing a good percentage of their tosses.

Then the first and second string lineups took turns looking at the Bulldog ground attack, as portrayed by the third string. With Kinnick, Frank Carideo and Bill Hofer in the backfield, passes found their mark frequently, but the running game was stopped cold by the Hawkeye line.

Finally the Hawks went back to the old routine of signal drills, and thus wound up the practice, leaving one heavy and one light workout before the Drake game Saturday.

In the passing practice, Kinnick, Youel and Farmer put on a fair demonstration of aerial power, with Youel the more consistent on the long ones. Capt. Bill Diehl forsook his center post to take an end's assignment, and caught a goodly share of short and medium throws. Bill Parker put his speed and deception on display and shone throughout this phase of the drill.

Yankees Triumph Over Athletics, 7-2

Joe DiMaggio Hits Two Circuit Blows; Brings Total to 30

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, getting up steam for the world series, hit two home runs yesterday to lead the New York Yankees to a 7 to 2 conquest of the Philadelphia Athletics. They brought his season total to 30 and gave the Yankees three outfielders each of whom has hit 30 or more round-trippers. The injured Charley Keller previously had collected 33 and Tom Henrich 31.

The Yanks made two double plays and moved to within one of the American league record of 137 set by Cleveland in 1928.

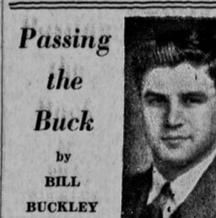

Reds Clinch Third, Blanking Cubs, 2-0

CINCINNATI (AP)—The 1940 world champion Cincinnati Reds sewed up third place in the National league pennant race yesterday, blanking Chicago, 2 to 0, for his 19th victory of the year as St. Louis crowded Pittsburgh out of the running.

The Reds, held to four hits by two Cub rookie hurlers and a regular, were away to a one-run lead in the first on a walk, a single and an outfield fly. The other run came in the fourth on singles by Mike McCormick and Jimmy Gleason, plus Bernie Olsen's error.

Chisox Beat Indians, 2-1, As Lee Hurls 2-Hitter

CHICAGO (AP)—Thornton Lee pitched a two-hitter yesterday and the Chicago White Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians, 2 to 1. Lee outlasted Jim Bagby in a duel which found the White Sox making only six hits off the Indians' righthander. The Indians scored their only run in the fourth when Ken Keltner lofted his 23rd homer of the season into the left field stand.

Passing the Buck by BILL BUCKLEY

Jack Fetis, four-letterman in football at City high, who played in the all-star game at Des Moines this fall, has headed for Grinnell college and a music scholarship, and incidentally to play a little of the gridiron sport for the Pioneers. Latest word is that Jack Hirt, all-state tackle at City high two falls ago, has left for Des Moines to enroll at Drake. And Bill Bock, St. Mary's great basketball guard, is staying in his own backyard and has enrolled at Iowa.

Even before classes officially started here, Hawkeye baseball players petitioned Coach Otto Vogel to let them start fall practice. So yesterday, he let them trot out to loosen up their arms and sharpen their batting eyes. Prospects along the diamond way are bright for next spring, with 11 major lettermen returning, including Capt. Bill Welp, Wendell Hill, Ted Gordinier, Bob Faber, Dick Hein, Rudy Radics, Tom Farmer, Clarence Dunagan, Bob Cook, Ray Koehn and Jack Kenney. Ray has a record of 61 wins, 15 losses and one tie in the three past seasons, with 32 wins and 12 losses in conference games.

In place of the five-man scouting staff of Eddie Anderson, Jim Harris, Frank Carideo, Bill Hofer and Nile Kinnick which glued the lamps on Drake last Friday, a single man will look over Michigan, which Iowa plays a week from Saturday, as the Wolverines meet Michigan State at Ann Arbor. It'll be Jim Harris, a big enough man to take the job by himself.

A newspaper man's usual place is in the press box on the west side of the stadium, but this Saturday in the Drake game, two scribes will be right on the scene of the action. John O'Donnell, sports editor of the Davenport Democrat, will be headlinesman for the tiff and Jack North, sports editor of the Des Moines Tribune, will referee.

Brechler Shakes Blues, Deals Out Scrimmages Getting Ready for Tutors

Tough scrimmages have been dealt out to the University high boys for the last three days in preparation for the game with Teachers high at Cedar Falls this Friday afternoon, on the college field. Coach Brechler, not satisfied with the showing of a few of the boys last Friday, has made an extensive change in the lineup.

Kent and Wagner are fighting it out to decide which one will fill the right-half position left open by Frey, who was injured in the Richland game. This is the only change in the backfield but a big shakeup in the line was made in hope of a stronger defense.

Stag has taken over the left end berth formerly held by Schenberger, while Calvin has filled in the position of left guard. Cobb and Louis are in competition for the right tackle position. Scrimmage, running of plays, defensive work and an insistent drill on passing attack were featured throughout last night's practice. The outstanding part of the scrimmage was George Lehman's receiving of passes and his ability to punt the ball. Lehman, 6 foot, four inch end, drops back on punt assignments, and averaged 45 yards in the Richland game last Friday.

Smoothing out of plays and defensive work will be the main object of this afternoon's practice with the final decision of starting positions against Friday's opponents.

Gumbert Lets Cardinals Keep Up Pace, 4-0

Three-Run Uprising Against Bucs Cinches Sixth Straight Win

By DUKE MORAN
PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Lean Harry Gumbert, a pitcher with a sweeping curve and a stout heart, preserved the St. Louis Cardinals' fading pennant chances yesterday by blanking the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 0, on six widely scattered hits.

The victory was a personal triumph for Gumbert, who was cast off this spring by the New York Giants, but it did nothing more than sustain the 1-2 game distance between St. Louis and the Brooklyn Dodgers, who moved closer to the championship by beating Boston, 4 to 2.

Tobacco Johnny Lanning matched Gumbert, winner of five straight games before he took the game yesterday, in a sterling pitching effort until the sixth inning, when the Cards exploded a three-run offensive which sewed up the ball game.

Johnny Hopp opened with a single, one of three he got for the day, advanced on a sacrifice and scored when the sensational rookie, Stan Musial, singled to center. Estel Crabtree also singled and raced to second as outfielder Vince DiMaggio threw to third in an attempt to cut off Musial. Frank Crespi drew an intentional pass, filling the bases. This strategy backfired when Martin (Slats) Marion doubled, scoring Musial and Crabtree. Fireman Bob Klinger relieved Lanning and quenched the Cards without further damage. The Cards notched their last run in the ninth against Rip Sewell, who took over after Klinger was removed for a pinch-hitter.

Hawklet Gridders Taper Off After Week Of Hard Drills in Preparation for Clinton

Series of Lectures, Roundtable Discussions Conducted at City High

Iowa City's Hawklets tapered off their hard drills of the week's preparation for their Friday night encounter with Clinton last night, for only a light workout and signal drill is in store for them tonight.

Still not satisfied with his defense, last night Coach Herb Cormack drilled his backfield more on pass defense and his line on running defense. Coach Fran Merten took charge of the husky linemen and gave them one of the roughest blocking and tackling drills seen at the high school so far this year.

The Little Hawks travel to Clinton tomorrow night to play the Red and Black. The River Kings have played only one game so far this year and that, was against West Waterloo last Friday. The River Kings came out of the fray on the short end of a 20 to 13 score. But Clinton was not necessarily the weaker team. Coach Roger Bowen's boys at times flashed form that stamped them as a team that is plenty dangerous.

Don Schumacker proved to be the star of the game as he passed and ran rings around the opponents, but could not cross the double stripe. He did figure in one scoring play though, tossing a touchdown pass to Walt Hansen. Pete Brown scored the other Clinton touchdown on a tricky reverse that brought the River Kings within striking distance of the boys from Waterloo, but they couldn't push over another marker and went down in defeat.

City high will be ready for anything that Clinton may throw at them. The Red and White machine drilled all week against all types of offenses, polished up their own scoring machinery and are at full

Same Old Joe Louis Gets Ready for Monday By Moidering Partners

By SID FEDER
GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. (AP)—It may not be the old Joe Louis in training up here in the Ramapo Hills, but its a reasonable enough facsimile.

To this observer, who has been in every one of the bomber's camps for more than three years, the Joe Louis getting ready for his date in the Polo grounds with Lou Nova next Monday night comes closer to being the blaster of his second fight with Max Schmeling than he has been at any time since. He hasn't slipped any more than a skid chain in a sand pile, and as witness of it, he has an assortment of sparring partners who are thinking of applying to Joe's managers for workmen's compensation for their injuries when this training siege winds up Saturday.

Art Cornwall has completely recovered from his bum leg and is back in his regular guard post. Ed Capen, who plays guard with Cornwall, made a fine showing against Indiana and strengthened the Little Hawks considerably. Bill Bothell and Dean Yaunash continued to push all their opponents around, and these tackles along with Williams and Jenkinson at ends make City High's line one of the strongest Cormack has ever coached.

The backfield worked hard all week to perfect their running. Joe Sasey and Bob Roth concentrated on running and spinning, while Bill Sangster and Dave Danner repeatedly tossed aerial bombs which landed right in the arms of waiting receivers.

2 Illinois Pharmacy Professors Develop New Clover Picker

CHICAGO (AP)—An ingenious machine for picking clover tops, which is able to do the work of 2,400 hand pickers, has been developed by two Illinois professors. Red clover blossoms are gathered and dried for medicinal use, chiefly in preparations against colds and certain feminine ailments. American drug firms, which use about 20 tons of clover a year, have previously imported their entire supply. The inventors of the picker, Prof. E. N. Gathercole and P. D. Carpenter of the University of Illinois college of pharmacy, believe their machine will lead to the development of special apparatus for harvesting more than 200 other medicinal plants, many of which grow wild in the United States.

Interpreting The War News Nazis Say Powerful Russian Armies Still Active East of Kiev

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON An admission from Berlin that powerful Russian armies still confront Nazi legions lunging toward the Donets-Don basin lends color to Moscow's claim that substantial elements of Marshal Budyenny's hard-pressed forces have escaped the Kiev trap. The Russian spokesman in Moscow admitted, however, that there was yet no assurance that the force of the German drive to cut the prime source of Russian oil at Rostov had been spent. Vice Commissar Lozovsky expressed concern that both Kharkov and Rostov might yet be lost. This would gravely impair Russia's war industry as well as cut her off from the Caucasus, source of nine-tenths of her oil for ordinary needs. It seems obvious, however, that the Russians have quickly absorbed the first shock of the Kiev disaster and not only have brought up fresh armies for defense of the Kharkov gateway to the Donets; but also have strongly braced their flank southward to the sea. That is the short road to Rostov and its vital pipe line to the Caucasus fields. Once the Germans complete mopping-up operations east of Kiev, where they say they have encircled 500,000 Russian troops in two pockets, the scene of most furious action is apt to shift southward. The strategic importance of Rostov and its pipe line, as well as its potential value as a jump-off base for a Nazi sweep into the Caucasus, makes it a greater prize for the Germans than Kharkov. Its fall would represent a direct threat to the Iran route of communication and supply between the Russians and their British allies. Halting the German offensive on that flank as well as before the Kharkov gateway east of Kiev is the major task now confronting the anti-axis allies. Following dinner and a business meeting, papers on "The Nutrition Program in National Defense" by Dr. Kate Daum and "Physicians and Elementary Education" by Dr. George C. Albright will be read. They will be discussed by Dr. Harry K. Newburn and Dr. W. R. Miller.

Increasing Defense Needs Behind Recent Rise in Flotations of Major Bonds, Stocks

NEW YORK (The Iowan's Special News Service) — New money, poured by American investors into the country's industries, last month topped $325,000,000, nearly six times the previous monthly average rate this year, and nearly half that of fabulous 1929, "when everything was fine."

Wall street men have said for years that the behind-the-scenes, fundamental reason for the depression of the thirties was the reluctance of the American investor, frightened by higher taxes, political ideas under the new deal, and copious regulation of securities trading and investing, to put their money to work in trade and industry.

Has a turn come, spurred by defense and the booming demand for civil goods growing out of fat pay-rolls, which is giving the common opinion of the financial community a chance to prove or disprove itself?

While the answer to this question is not yet entirely clear, money men said, the definitive reply may be in the making in the next few months.

New Borrowing

In August the country's investors absorbed a bit over $400,000,000 of public offerings securities. The slightly over $325,000,000 was new borrowing. The balance was to pay off debt already existing. The former went to new plant and equipment; the latter made no new contribution to the productive facilities of the nation.

That looks like the kind of thing Wall street has been asking for. Is there any catch in it?

The answer seems to be that there is a partial catch, but perhaps not as much as the figures would indicate.

It is true, securities men pointed out, that the August investment totals included a $233,000,000 debenture subscription for new money by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., largest communications concern in the world, which tended to throw the figures somewhat out.

Concerns Raise Funds

Equally, however, it was noted, the remaining amount of almost $100,000,000 of new funds, about twice the year's monthly average, was raised by such diversified concerns as a major oil company, a big western railroad for rolling stock, a chain grocery, and others.

But to some investment bankers the fact that American Telephone, whose securities are the most widely held of any corporation in the country, had offered a huge new issue of debentures—an additional one of nearly $100,000,000 from the same concern has already been revealed—seemed to be significant.

One analyst said that while the unusual size of A.T.&T.'s offering threw the latest investing figures out of kilter a bit, the "solid success" of the issue with the consumer, "the investing public," was almost a sure harbinger of an increase of offerings by other big companies of securities to raise new money for additional plant and equipment.

"New Money" Needed

It was pointed out that the telephone "new money" was needed to a major extent for meeting the unusual demands made on the telephone system by defense.

Other companies, in a dozen instances, may feel similar pressure to borrow or sell stock in coming months, it was suggested.

Plans launched or talked of in such major lines as steel making, railroad equipment and power production call for the expenditure of several billions of dollars in the next year or two, it was pointed out, and many smaller concerns will also need money.

Not all the needs of defense-spurred plants for funds for construction and inventory would necessarily come direct from investors.

Much of it, at least for a time, it was said, would continue to come out of corporation treasuries, "surplus," or unused earnings which have piled up over a long period of time.

Not Bottomless Industry

But, some financial observers suggested, this treasure trove of industry was not bottomless, even though it has been little tapped for expansion in recent relatively lean years.

They pointed to the growing total of loans by banks to commercial borrowers to show that the need for money in industry engaged in defense production was on the increase.

And, they added, the traditional course of management was to use this order in meeting any demand for funds for expansion:

1. Whatever unused or unneeded cash or securities are on hand in the company's treasury.
2. Money borrowed from banks, which, since it is usually available for only short periods and then must be repaid, is not a final solution of needs for permanent improvements.
3. Stocks or bonds sold to investors, the ideal way to get long-term money.

Pascagoula Yards Throb With Activity

Builders Turn Out Ships, More Ships In Construction Rush

(Editor's note: Welding of ships, instead of using rivets, saves metal; pre-fabrication of parts saves time. W. B. Ragsdale describes the work in this second of three daily stories for the Iowan's Special News Service on the program for fulfilling the democracies' demands for "ships and more ships." Tomorrow: Power for Ships.)

By W. B. RAGSDALE

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (The Iowan's Special News Service) — In two years, Robert I. Ingalls Jr., has transformed a few acres of weeds and swamp grass along the shore of the Pascagoula river into a shipyard that hums and throbs with action through two nine-hour shifts a day, six days a week.

It is turning out ships of a quality and at a speed which brings prideful beams from maritime commission officials. Many point to it as the country's best example of the use of welding in the shipbuilding industry.

And 49 per cent of the workers come from these lower Mississippi counties. Most of them were farm boys who never had seen a welder's torch until a few months ago.

At one place or another in the sprawling yard you can find a ship in almost every stage of construction, from the time it is only a chunk of lead on the end of an architect's blue pencil until it lies tied up firmly at the end of the outfitting dock while crews of men do things to her innards.

Initial Steps

Here a keel is just being laid to take the place of a ship that was skidding down the way a day or so ago. Over there a new way is being built to meet a new contract just granted by the maritime commission.

Gantry cranes on their stiff four legs go striding up and down the length of a ship way, passing up steel and materials, edging heavy plates into place. They can handle a ton of steel as easily as you lift the handle of your lawn mower.

The yard is strung out along the shores of the river on land which until February, 1939, was head high in weeds. Since then, four ships have been sewn together by the white hot threads from welders' needles and sent out to do their work on the world's seaways. Two more lie in the outfitting docks waiting for the machinery and ship's furnishings to be laced into their interior. Soon a third will join them.

Sister Ships Launched

These three are sister ships, the SS African Comet was launched on June 28, 358 days after keel-laying. It was built for the American South African line, has a swimming pool and cafe, will take care of 116 passengers, an enormous cargo of refrigerated fruits and lobsters, plus ores and other cargo that has to be less carefully handled.

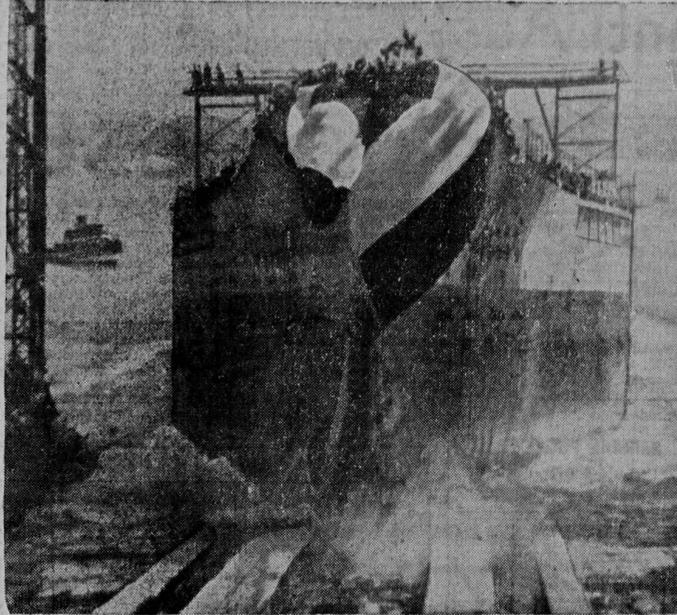

Its sister ship, the SS African Meteor, was launched more recently. The three displace 18,500 tons, are 489 feet long, 69½ feet broad, draw 27 feet, 3 inches, and will clip through the water at 19 knots. Ingalls says they are the biggest ships ever launched in the deep south.

A part of the secret of the speed of Ingalls ship builders is the fact that much of their materials is pre-fabricated in the plants of the Ingalls iron works at Birmingham, sent to the shipyards ready to be sewn into place by molten metal. Welding gives another boost to speedy construction.

Metal Torches Used

The clatter of a rivet gun, which used to be a sure sign of a ship yard, has been eliminated at Ingalls. Along the side of ships, over the deck plates, men with unwieldy masks move with metal torches that spew white hot flame. The flame unites the plates in a molten seam. Shipping men say the seam that is left is the strongest part of the plates.

NEW UNITED STATES BATTLESHIP SLIDES DOWN WAYS

Nearly 50,000 persons watched as the United States navy's new 35,000-ton battleship U. S. S. Massachusetts slides into the water, above, at the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company's yards at Quincy, Mass. The Massachusetts, sister ship of the North Carolina, the Washington and the South Dakota, is the fourth dreadnaught launched under the two-ocean navy program.

Welding enthusiasts with a mathematical turn of mind say it takes 800 fewer tons of steel to build a welded ship than to build one with rivets. That is what they figure is the over-all weight of the millions of rivets that were used to lace the steel plates together. Carrying their calculations a step further, the steel they claim to be saving amounts to enough on the huge ship building program now under way to build more than 325 additional ships.

Cancer Control Cyclotron to Treat Affected Areas

CINCINNATI (AP) — A dramatic story of how two brothers—one a physicist and Nobel prize winner, and the other a radiologist—combined their efforts to force a possible new weapon in the fight against cancer was told last night.

It is the story of application of the cyclotron (the giant machine which breaks down atoms) to the job of sending treatment to the very seat of the trouble—the affected tissue itself—instead of working from the outside of the body or cutting into it.

Use of Cyclotron

With the cyclotron, invented by Dr. Lawrence's brother, Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, 1939 winner of the Nobel prize in physics, all known elements can be made artificially radioactive with properties similar to radium by bombarding a small sample of the element with deuterons, or "atomic bullets," emerging from the cyclotron.

Atoms of elements thus treated, called isotopes, can be added to other compounds and taken by mouth, enabling the radiologist to follow them in their course through the body by watching the rays emitted by the elements.

Treat Abnormal Tissue

By creating a greater radioactivity in certain elements, Dr. Lawrence continued, the isotope can be used for treatment of abnormal tissue or neoplasms in the organ wherein that particular element is deposited in greatest concentration.

He reported that satisfactory results had been obtained in experimental treatment of leukemia (abnormal increase of white blood corpuscles) with radio-phosphorus.

Artificial Radioactivity

Declaring a "two-edged sword" has been given to the biologist and medical investigator as the result of experiments with the cyclotron, Dr. Lawrence mentioned the known value of radium in cancer treatment and added:

"In the field of radioactivity, however, we have not only one radioactive element as in the case of radium, but actually one for each chemical element, which multiplies their possible biological and medical uses. Therefore, their value as therapeutic agents must be carefully and extensively investigated."

Dr. John H. Lawrence of the University of California told it in the annual Caldwell lecture to the 42nd annual meeting of the American Roentgen Ray society and received for his research the society's gold medal.
