Germans Advancing at Top Speed

Gaffney Asks Investigation at Oakdale

Claim Some Divisions Already Operating East of Red Capital

Wants Grand Jury to Look Into State Prison Farm Conditions

3 Convicts Testify Employees Supplying Them With Liquor

By DON OHL and VIC KEUL

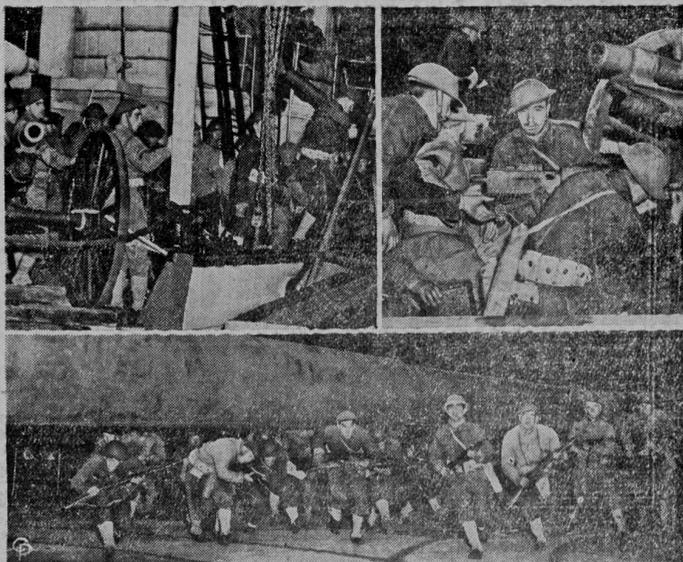

District Judge James P. Gaffney late yesterday afternoon ordered County Atty. Edward F. Rate to call a grand jury investigation of conditions at Oakdale sanatorium prison farm, after hearing three Anamosa convicts testify that Oakdale employees and officials had been supplying them with intoxicating liquor.

President Encourages Red Army Resistance Of German Offensive

Roosevelt Says U.S. Is Rushing Supplies To Aid of Russians

WASHINGTON (AP)—In an effort to encourage Russian resistance to the vast German offensive, President Roosevelt proclaimed to the world yesterday that the United States was rushing large amounts of supplies to help the Soviets' "brave defense."

CAPTURING A POSITION IN "INVASION" OF NEW YORK

Testing the defenses of New York, the Black Army, a make-believe hostile force attempting theoretical invasion of the city with dive bombers, power boats and parachute troops, launched an attack on Fort Tilden and succeeded in wresting the vital defense from the 24th Coast Artillery Regiment there. Top, left, army soldiers leap ashore from a unit of the invasion fleet. Top, right, they set up a machine gun near a captured field piece guarding entrance to the fort. Bottom, the invaders charge directly under the muzzle of a huge 16-inch rifle. After the capture, they turned it around to menace the city.

Labor Disputes Cause Shutdown of Defense Plant, Two Shipyards

U.S. Tank Production Slows to a Trickle As Workers Strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Labor troubles developed yesterday at two shipyards and a government ordnance plant as continuing disputes slowed to a trickle the production of transmissions for army tanks and brought the prospect of a widespread shut-down in the automobile industry.

The Ingalls Shipbuilding yards, Pascagoula, Miss., employing 2,800 and busy on $100,000,000 of naval and merchant contracts were closed after a strike of AFL boilermakers.

A union representative said the strike was caused by "an attempt by the company to start an independent union." A company spokesman said "the boys are out, claiming to be holding meetings to force membership in the union."

AFL carpenters established a picket line at the Houston Shipbuilding corporation, Houston, Tex., which is building a new plant and has contracts for $140,000,000 of defense work. About 600 joined in the walkout which leaders said was a protest against "working conditions on the new plant construction handled in part by outside contractors. Some 350 AFL pile drivers remained off the job in sympathy.

A jurisdictional dispute with AFL hoisting engineers over the right to bargain for 22 garage mechanics led to strike by 45 AFL machinists at the $35,000,000 government TNT plant at Weldon Springs, Mo. A spokesman for the machinists said members of their craft at all defense projects would strike unless the dispute was settled quickly.

Willard's Dress Shop Suffered Heavy Loss In Fire Last Night

Intense Heat, Smoke, Water Cause Damage To Three Buildings

In what Fire Chief J. J. Clark reported to be the largest business district fire in several years, Willard's dress shop late last night suffered an estimated $15,000 to $25,000 damage.

Although firemen had the blaze under control within 45 minutes, the intense heat destroyed practically all of the estimated $15,000 worth of stock and fixtures and caused from $5,000 to $10,000 damage to the building itself.

Most of the destruction caused by the flames was limited to the rear of the building where the fire started. No cause of the blaze was immediately determined. Firemen used two heavy lines of hose to squelch the flames which although confined to the rear of the store, were so hot they scorched the front room walls and practically turned the displays of clothing into ashes.

Dresses hanging on racks and covered with cellophane were the most severely damaged by the heat. All of the fixtures were badly damaged by smoke, heat and heavy streams of water. Before the firemen opened the front door about a foot of water was standing on the floor of the shop.

Firemen had to break the front and rear doors to get at the flames. (See WILLARD'S, page 8)

Some German quarters expressed the opinion that the most advanced nazi detachments actually were operating east of the longitude of Moscow, but more specific testimony of military maps published in the Berlin press put the main German lines at within 100 miles of the Kremlin. This in itself, although the map's preparation might have been assumed to antedate some developments, did not support the theory of a bankrupt Russian resistance.

Soviet quarters for their part insisted yesterday that the nazi thrusts had been slowed down, although not yet brought to a standstill. Specifically, the Russians said that somewhere about fallen Bryansk, which lies 210 miles southwest of Moscow and presumably far back of the farthest German penetration in that theater, an unidentified town had been recaptured by the red armies and that north of Orel, which is about 220 miles south of the capital, red counter-attacks had made some gains.

Moreover, it was declared by the Russians that the German push from the sector of Vyazma—the town itself lying 125 miles to the west of Moscow—apparently was proceeding with falling momentum.

Information from a British source, who under the circumstances would carry the presumption of greater relative objective, was to the effect that the German offensive had been reduced in speed as contrasted to operation in the first two or three days. He added it was "Quite on the cards" that the Germans would be stopped 70 or 80 miles short of Moscow because of the strain on mechanized equipment and "The limit of human endurance" of both sides.

He also corroborated Russian accounts that Soviet reserves still were going into the line. In London there was an increase in popular appeals, as reflected in the press, for more direct British American action.

There was little to suggest, however, that much help could be given the Soviet armies in the present emergency, although indirect support was being provided in the continued British aerial campaign against German war industries and transport.

Berlin's detailed reports yesterday of the situation on the front included an assertion that Russian war prisoners now in hand in the battle areas of Vyazma and Bryansk numbered more than 350,000 and that a third major offensive was smashing to the southeast toward Moscow from the east toward Moscow from the east. Local Community Chest to Begin Fund Campaign This Morning

'Victory First' Say Germans; 'Peace Talk Will Come in Time'

BERLIN (AP)—"Victory first" remains the authorized German answer to foreign gossip that the reich is war weary and is putting off peace feelers.

"Only after arms have spoken and (Prime minister) Churchill and (Foreign secretary) Eden have been removed by the English people themselves will the time have come for peace feelers—but they won't be German feelers, they will be solely and exclusively English," said authorized quarters.

They recalled that Adolf Hitler has declared a clear military decision must be obtained against England, and added, "The time to talk peace comes after weapons have spoken."

Oathout Names 250 Solicitors To Aid Drive

Alva B. Oathout, Community chest drive chairman, last night named approximately 250 solicitors who will work in the official launching of the annual campaign beginning this morning.

Although the drive officially opens today, Oathout said that some of the workers began solicitations yesterday. Pre-campaign contributions accepted at drive headquarters in the Jefferson hotel totaled nearly $1,000, the chest chairman estimated.

In his final appeal before the beginning of the drive, Oathout last night asked Iowa Citizens to expect the solicitors and to be prepared for them.

"In order that the drive be completed in the week allowed for it, it is imperative that donors be ready to sign a pledge or give their contributions to the solicitor the first time he calls, rather than asking him to come back some other time," the drive chairman said.

Oathout also expressed the belief that this year especially is the time to contribute liberally to the Community chest, which besides supporting social service activities maintains organizations which are character-building and health-giving.

"Conditions throughout the world at the present time are certainly indicative of the need of the development of young boys' and girls' characters," Oathout explained. "As to the health standpoint of the United States, a look at the long list of rejected draftees shows the importance of a good health program."

Chinese Say Troops Ordered to Withdraw From Ichang Sector

CHUNGKING (AP)—The Chinese military operations board announced yesterday that withdrawal of Chinese troops from Ichang, westernmost point reached by the Japanese invaders, after "accomplishing their objective of diverting Japanese pressure in northern Hunan province."

The retiring forces were said to have returned to their nearby positions from which a major assault was launched last week against the Yangtze river port 750 miles from Shanghai.

In addition to diverting the Japanese in Hunan province, the Chinese military board said the withdrawal was motivated by a desire to spare the civilian population of Ichang from Japanese aerial gas bombs. The board charged that 30 Japanese planes dropped numerous poison gas bombs.

Axis 'Ivan Terrible' Haunts British Radio

LONDON (AP)—An axis counterpart of Russia's "Ivan Terrible," the crackling kitzber on German broadcasts, broke in on British and Canadian broadcasts yesterday with some intelligible and at times incoherent heckling.

"Why the hell should we go without milk because the Bolsheviks want milk," said the phantom voice during one interruption. This comment apparently was aimed at the food distribution scheme which became effective today.

Officers Plan to Return Confessed Slayer of Golf Star to Kentucky Today

FORT WORTH (AP)—Thomas C. Penney, 32-year-old ex-convict who confessed Sunday to participating in the robbery-slaying Sept. 28 of Golf Star Marion Milley and her mother in her Lexington, Ky., country club apartment, will be returned to Kentucky today.

Tommy Lunsford, 28, and Bud Tomlinson, 28, both of Lexington, who gave information that helped break the case, left for home today in the grey-green sedan which was reported stolen in Louisville and in which Penney was riding when arrested Thursday night.

Only their useless chimneys remain of a block of buildings in the ruined Russian city of Smolensk. This picture was sent out from Berlin where the high command claimed the Russians had destroyed Smolensk before evacuating it.

'Even at the Risk of War Itself'

Officials Urge Arming of Ships

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three cabinet members and other officials called on congress yesterday to remove the ban against arming merchant ships and one of them declared that even "the risk of war itself" must not deter this country from aiding Britain.

Secretaries Hull, Stimson and Knox told the house foreign affairs committee also that the neutrality act's prohibition against American merchantmen entering combat zones ought to be removed in the interest of insuring of lend-lease supplies to British ports.

"The risk we incur in arming our ships and sending them to sea," said Knox, "is far less than the risk of allowing England to lose the war."

In one of the bitterest official condemnations yet of the nazi campaign of conquest, the usually mild-mannered Secretary of State

Hull told the committee: "The blunt truth is that the world is steadily being dragged downward and backward by the mightiest movement of conquest ever attempted in all history. Armed and militant predatory forces are marching across continents and invading seas, leaving desolation in their wake. With them rides a policy of frightfulness, pillage, murder and calculated cruelty which fills all civilized mankind with horror and indignation."

"Institutions devoted to the safeguarding and promotion of human rights and welfare built up through the ages are being destroyed by methods like those used by barbarian invaders sixteen centuries ago."

Repeatedly warning that the nazis are bent upon world domination, Hull said that the failure of many persons in this country and elsewhere to grasp the fact "has been, and still is, the greatest single source of peril to those free people who are yet unconquered and who still possess and enjoy their priceless institutions."

Hull described revision of the neutrality act as "imperatively required" and asserted that "we should not sit with our hands tied by these provisions of law."

"If Hitler should succeed in his supreme purpose to conquer Great Britain," he warned, "and thus secure control of the high seas, we would suddenly find the danger at our own door."

Although the committee has voted to consider only the question of arming merchant ships, Stimson and Knox contended that American ships should be permitted to enter combat zones.

Mr. Shakespeare---

LISTEN WHILE WE TELL YOU A STORY OF THE GREATEST TRAGEDY OF ALL---

 We oftentimes wonder if the immortal Shakespeare realized that the biggest scene on the stage of civilization was to be played in 1941. We wonder if he ever pictured the terrific sums of money, the mass murders and the leading players who dominate our gigantic stage production.

Mr. Shakespeare, you would have loved this scene. As a man of the theater you would have realized this to be the greatest scene of all time. Civilization is throwing away all its greatest treasures of the moment to insure the success of this production—the proper ending.

After a 20-year divorce, Minerva has married Mars again, and selfish Mars is turning over his wisdom to destruction. Turn over in your bombshaken grave, Mr. Shakespeare, and watch the climax while we try to make things a bit clearer for you.

The leading roles are being played in mankind's new play by four dominating personalities. Do you see that short, thin fellow over there? The one in uniform with the mustache? Well, Mr. Shakespeare, he is the villain in our play. He keeps saying he isn't, but we saw him cut the curled ends off his mustache.

Everything he lives for is tied up in egoistic desires of world conquest. They call him everything from maniac to words unprintable. His real name is Hitler. Already he controls almost all of Europe, including the home of your good friend, Julius Caesar. He is a man with insensate ambitions, Mr. Shakespeare—the son of a paper-hanger named Schickl-gruber.

You want to know about that squat fellow with the cigar in his mouth? Well, Mr. Shakespeare, that is Winston Churchill. He and a man named Joseph Stalin are fighting a defensive war against Hitler in this play. Mr. Churchill is a wonderful actor in our play, but that is to be understood. He has been rehearsing this role for the last 20 years, while his henchmen in England laughed over the very thought that such a play as this should ever be written. A man named Chamberlain was among those who laughed. He is dead now—but he saw the start of the play—played a terrible role in the tragic opening acts.

But Mr. Shakespeare, this fellow Stalin is the real one to watch. Everybody figured him for a villain through several acts. He had the necessary mustache, the attitude of the villain. He isn't cutting off that mustache, either. But the audience sort of idolizes these current scenes, because this fellow Stalin is helping to destroy a real enemy—a worse villain than himself. You know, Mr. Shakespeare, you can't blame the audience for admiring a fellow who had the little end before he started, who fights the harder while the odds mount. A man who doesn't cast about for help from those who ought to give it, but just goes on slashing away.

The fourth personality, Mr. Shakespeare? Squint a little, and look across that body of water called the Atlantic, and see that tired, aging man smoking a cigar in a long holder; the fellow holding that scotty in his lap.

That is Roosevelt, Mr. Shakespeare. And he may be, he could be the greatest character of them all. He's the type of character who creates great plans, but alas, he's a poor executor. Even his enemies admire this man. They admire the way he defeated ill-health, to become three times the leader of 130,000,000 people by their own choice. The way he speaks is enough to convince anybody that his plans are great.

But something, Mr. Shakespeare, is holding Roosevelt back in this drama. We don't know what it is. He has told his people how desperate is the need of their action, but they're not all convinced that he knows what he's talking about. And when a fellow waits for public opinion to catch up with him, Mr. Shakespeare, he's going to have a peck of trouble. He's trying to help Churchill and Stalin defeat the greatest villain of them all.

Before you roll over again, Mr. Shakespeare, we'd like to ask a favor. Now that you have an idea of our great production, will you help us write an ending. Even at best, it will be a tragic ending, but there must be something in that ending upon which strong men can pin their hopes.

How would you do it? The world has changed since Hamlet's time, Mr. Shakespeare. The stage which he played had fewer props, fewer players, far fewer to distract and divide the thoughts of his tormented mind.

What's that you say! Did we hear the echo of an old line spoken long ago . . . "Oh cursed spite! That ever we were born to set it right . . ." And what makes you think, Will Shakespeare, that we'll set disjointed time to rights this time? A little line that's hopeful? You said it once! " . . . Make war breed peace, make peace stint war . . ." So there's hope in the players after all, Mr. Shakespeare? Well thank you for that. Now to write an ending, hopefully again.

LAST ROUND IN BATTLE OF RUSSIA?

In the Nation's Capital—

How Long Will We Stand For Rank Inefficiency?

WASHINGTON—"Sudden" is the word for S. P. A. B. cracking down on non-war construction was clearly in the cards. It was the object of a major division of the 1918 war industries board which planned its work along in advance with ample notice of its intentions.

The creation of such a unit and the beginning of such an effort has been long suggested by B. M. Baruch and others to our present war industries administration but, through months of indifference, there has been no action or even any imitation of action.

Then, suddenly and without warning, the whole civilian building trades industry is given a sentence of economic death. It seems to be becoming a habit. It is just like the oil administration overnight decree to cut down 10 per cent on gasoline.

"Arbitrary" is also the word for SPAB. There are few parallels of Mr. Sydney Hillman's action in compelling the rejection of a bid for defense housing of $979,000 and acceptance of a bid 44 per cent higher.

Why? So far as is known only because Mr. Hillman wanted a contractor who uses A. F. of L. labor instead of one (such as his own bidder) who uses C. I. O. labor. Another angle was that A. F. of L. objected to this contractor because his houses are, in part, prefabricated on modern mass-production methods.

On this latter question the whole world of students of our housing problem has been waiting for the sunrise—the day when modern American methods could be used to produce a decent house at a price low enough for a poor man to pay. Here it came at last and Mr. Hillman slammed the door in its face. To hell with the cost to the government and the prospective poor tenants, presumably or likely to be labor union people themselves.

Mr. Hillman was playing some kind of union politics which, a cryptic remark of John Carmody suggests, was in part due to a possibility of widespread strikes by A. F. of L. in other parts of the country against the defense housing effort.

Mr. Hillman has announced and so has Mr. Leon Henderson that Mr. Hillman is the boss of Labor policy of this government and what he says sticks. Very apparently that is no exaggeration. But who is Mr. Hillman? He is the head of one of the most powerful labor unions in this country, for which he even now draws pay and is a leader of one wing of the C. I. O. itself.

That's all right. He is one of the ablest, shrewdest and most intelligent labor leaders. But the head of such a union and a leading spirit in such a federation of unions has no business in charge of labor policy in the United States. That job is a seat of judgement. Four conflicting interests are constantly involved—that of government, that of civilian population, that of labor and that of management. Mr. Hillman can't be an impartial judge. He is dealing with himself.

As has frequently been pointed out here and as is becoming more apparent daily the unplanned priorities effort has been botched and bungled and complaints of sufferers throughout the country are rising like a tide.

How long can this kind of confusion, high-handed fumbling, deadly error and smirking hypocrisy go on in this democracy without somebody being called to account by the people through their congress? I don't know, but it is a cinch it can't go on forever.

It is not a political question at all. It is not a question of aiding or blocking our war effort. It is a question of getting some efficiency into that effort and it is not political, because every patriotic citizen is for that.

The known facts are so few and so closely guarded as "military secrets" that it is only these more glaring errors that can't be hid. The need is for searching and constant congressional investigation.

Hugh S. Johnson

America's Movieland—

Surrealism Gets Into the Movies—

HOLLYWOOD—It was bound to happen some day. Surrealism is hitting the movies. Salvador Dali himself is coming out to do his bit.

It was Nunnally Johnson's idea, getting Dali here, though it may be pertinent that Nunnally had the idea for a picture not his own, but Mark Hellinger's. The picture is "Moonlight," which will introduce French star Jean Gabin to American movies.

Dali, whose swooning watch-faces, dripping hands, and ecstatic fried eggs are art in surrealist circles, had a showing here and his canvases were sold in numbers to art-minded movie folk. Afterward Dali was approached to sell his art to the movies. He said no, but emphatically, several times. When they stopped asking him, he said yes.

NUNNALLY JOHNSON, who finds Dali stuff interesting though he does not profess to savvy what it's about, had his idea because in "Moonlight" Gabin, as a drunken sailor, draws a blank. Dali will picture what passes through the subconscious of a cock-eyed sailor during an alcoholic black-out in which he commits murder.

Dali will submit sketches for the two-minute sequence, and the studio will try to reproduce them—"If," says cautious Nunnally, "it doesn't cost me too much. If he asks for ibexes and huge herds of dromedaries, as I understand he did for an exhibit up in San Francisco, I'm afraid we won't be interested. But the man has a terrific imagination, and I think we'll get something unusual."

I suggested he get Gertrude Stein to write dialogue for the dream sequence, but Nunnally didn't cotton to it.

"STEEL CAVALRY," a Wallace Beery movie about the mechanization of a cavalry unit, is under way with Capt. Arthur W. Field as technical adviser, assigned from Washington by the war department.

Captain Field oversees all details pertaining to army phases of the production, and one of his taboos has hit hard: no "leg art" can be taken in connection with the picture.

There is a reason: Pictures taken at army camps, showing selectees with visiting chorines or dance stars, have caused no end of complaint from "girls back home" who are sure that each glammer gal has set her cap for their particular Johnny Selectee. Hence, "cheese-cake" with an army setting is frowned upon as bad for home morale—and, in this instance, leading lady Donna Reed must never be photographed with her legs crossed.

The other leading lady, Marjorie Main, is not affected—she is again the long-time love of an elusive suitor, Sergeant Beery, who has shied at proposing for 19 years.

I'm sure it won't come up in any senatorial investigation, but "One Foot in Heaven" is one of the most blatant instances of propaganda in years.

Fredric March and Martha Scott recreate the lives of a Methodist minister and his wife, as described by Hartzell Spence, in his biography of his father, William Spence, D. D. They are beautiful lives, full of problems, human chuckles, struggles and triumphs. These lives are lived against typically American backgrounds, small towns and large, and Director Irvin Rapper has unreeled them with so much humor, understanding, and dramatic force that you'll remember his film long after the fade-out.

But its propaganda, inescapably. Propaganda for—the Christian life, for militant, unspending, Christianity. Like all good propaganda, it's done so subtly that you may not think of it that way at all. You may merely put it down as one superbly entertaining movie, which it is.

A Man About Manhattan—

By GEORGE TUCKER

Is the Absence of Hobby-Interest A Sign of Depravity in People?

NEW YORK—I ran into Jeb Glib on Broadway the other night. It was the first time I had seen him since the Hauptmann trial. I glanced hastily into his peepers to see if his glass eye was still intact. It was. That eye was a spell-binder. Jeb used to exhibit it without warning, just to hold the crowd's interest.

I said, "Jeb, how's the hobbies?"
 Hobbies were meat and bread to him. They were to Jeb what winning friends and influencing people is to Dale Carnegie. Any man who didn't have a hobby was no good in Jeb's book. "Look in the penitentiaries and you will see men who didn't know what to do with themselves," Jeb says. Jeb always contended that the absence of hobby-interest in a man was a sign of depravity.

One night I heard him deliver one of his pet lectures in Greenwich Village. The lecture was free. Of course, if you wanted to drop a quarter in the old hat, that was another matter. It was at this meeting I got my first glimpse of Jeb's glass eye. He paused in the middle of one of his harangues and removed it. The audience was stunned. Jeb studied the eye critically with his one good peeper and hauled out a hankie and gave the phoney orb a vigorous shining. Then he crammed it back into place and continued his lecture.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q.—Who said: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country?"

A.—Nathan Hale, who gave his life for America, like great numbers of his fellow countrymen. We are only asked to lend our dollars for defense bonds and stamps to defend the liberty for which they died.

Q.—To what very large group of Americans does the government look particularly for extensive buying of defense bonds and stamps?

A.—People in the middle and lower income brackets, where many of the most rapid increases in national earnings are taking place. This immense part of our population can be especially effective in reducing national purchasing power by buying bonds and stamps, thus aiding the country's defense program, while helping to keep down the cost of living.

Cotton Lisle Hose to Popularize New Style In Hosiery World of Fashions for Women

By JOHNNY TRUITT
New in the hosiery world are cotton stockings—not the familiar fuzzy, shapeless ones, but attractive, full-fashioned cotton hose for street as well as kitchen wear.

Several novelties have been developed—shaded effects, heavy mesh designs for sportswear, mesh toes and heels to go with open-toed sandals, delicate lace weaves for afternoon costumes and just plain service weight for everyday.

Although cotton stockings are no more run-proof than any other, even a snag isn't a calamity because a run travels slowly in cotton yarn.

The yarn is mercerized and gassed before being knit. Mercer-

Red's for Fall Fashion Hit for Blond and Brunette

Red's the thing for fall, declare the fall fashion reports. Flaming red dresses, coats, gloves, hand bags and even belts that will make the redheaded lassies wild with longing, and their blond and brunette friends scream with joy.

However, the girls with the red coloring in their tresses needn't give up entirely, as there are many other midwinter fashion notes to occupy their attention. For example the new guils in luscious shades of green, rust, or blue-grey that everyone loves.

Think of the clever necklaces that will go with the all-white dress in corduroy or flannel which is another winter forecast!

Coats are going to have lots of fur with cozy collars which drip over the shoulders. Big fur muffs—the bigger the better—are another aid to the keeping warm campaign.

So good-looking on tall girls and even more popular in mid-winter styles are the two-piece woools with the long torso blouses. A long-sleeved zippy paid is the newest thing in this style.

Mid-winter fashions promise to take care of the "red" problem, the long, sleek silhouettes and the chronic shivers, and have plenty of dash to keep the male eyes aglow.

Taxes End Champagne Parties--- So Debs Study Music and Stuff

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

It looks as though there won't be a blue-blooded debutante glamour girl in New York this year.

The social register debs themselves have turned thumbs down on the idea, which his spotlighted their world since the days of Gloria Baker and Brenda Frazier. True, the pretty blond daughter of a New York banker (who is not listed in the social register) was elected 1941 Glamour Girl by a group of debutantes in a Manhattan night club last August.

But lots of the blue book girls failed to attend that ceremony and took it with a grain of salt.

They say the glamour girl system has been done to death—it gave too much to some girls and too little to others—and they want none of it cluttering up their season. (If you listen you can hear their Park Avenue parents speaking there in firm voices.)

That isn't the only debutante news for 1941-42. Parties will show a big change this year. There will still be a lot of debutante festivities. But because of world conditions and big taxes in the office, parties will be much less lavish.

This year's debs are not going to make their bows against a backdrop of frosted balloons, blaring orchestras and champagne flowing from spigots.

Instead of making their social bows in a hotel ballroom, lavishly decked with flowers and bejeweled guests many debs will make their debuts at dinner parties for 40 or 50 guests given in the Iridium Room or the Persian Room.

Afterward they and their guests may go to a dance at one of the Junior Assemblies or another exclusive debutante ball.

The 1941-42 crop of debutantes is distinctive. It includes a large number of girls from blue-blood families. They are a pretty lively group, who wear smart, colorful clothes instead of the sleek, sophisticated black frocks, which were virtually a uniform in the glamour girl era.

This year's debs take an interest in a number of things besides parties. Many are still in school.

Others are studying music, art or foreign languages. A number are aiming at careers in radio, the theater or dress design.

Some of the leading debs of the east have already made debuts. Miss Anne Bullitt, daughter of William C. Bullitt, former U. S. Ambassador to France, was honored in June at supper dance given at her father's home in Pennsylvania.

Miss Nandine Szechenyi, daughter of Countess Szechenyi (the former Gladys Vanderbilt) was introduced at a small party in Newport this summer and is expected to play a part in the debutante whirl in Washington where her late father was stationed as Hungarian minister to the United States. Her dashing, dark-haired cousin, Gloria Vanderbilt, daughter of the late Reginald Vanderbilt, was forecast as New York's leading debutante this season. But she announced she would not make a debut and is now visiting Hollywood.

New York has numerous other interesting debs who will make bows. Miss Phyllis Anne Adams, daughter of Mrs. Charles E. Adams, who aims at a career in the theater and radio, will make one exception to the small party rule. She will make her debut at a gala party on the St. Regis Viennese Roof on Nov. 28.

Miss Nedenia Hutton, daughter of Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, wife of the former U. S. Ambassador to Russia, will make her debut at an afternoon tea and reception at the Davies' New York apartment Dec. 20. Miss Hutton is a student at the University of Wisconsin.

Cornelia Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Seward Allen, who is studying Spanish and French this year, will make one social bow at a reception at the Colonial Dames of America Club-house on Dec. 6 and another during the Mardi Gras season in New Orleans, where her mother was queen of the fete as a girl. President Justice Pelham St. George Bissell and Mrs. Bissell are introducing their daughter Ophelia at 27.

'U. S. to Blame' for Inter-American Trouble--Bryan

SUI Lecture Series Opens With Travel Lecture and Pictures

By GENE GOODWIN
"We in the United States can blame ourselves almost entirely for the unaffiliated relationships now existing between this country and South America," emphasized Julien Bryan, globe-trotting journalist and cameraman, while speaking here yesterday.

Bryan opened the university lecture series in Machride auditorium with an afternoon lecture on "Brazil" and one at 8 o'clock last night on "Argentina." The evening lecture was to cover "Peru and Chili" originally, but on the last minute advice of Bryan, it was changed to "Argentina."

Audiences at both lectures were charmed by Bryan's witty and enlightening narratives and his vivid array of motion picture studies of life in these two countries. The speaker also answered questions from members of the audience at the end of each reel of film.

Speaking with a slight eastern accent, Bryan mentioned two faults that Americans possess which more or less offend the peoples of South America. "Firstly, our ignorance of the Latin Americas. They are especially insulted by this because they are fairly well informed on the culture and historical background of the United States. How can we expect to put things on a friendly basis with our southern neighbors when we know nothing of their language, tradition, culture, or history?" he asked. "Secondly, our attitude of superiority and condescension," he added. "As long as we continue to consider them as our inferiors, they will never look upon us as friends."

Bryan commented that this country would never be able to carry on extensive trade with South America as long as we disregard the fact that business is a two-way proposition. "We cannot expect them to provide an abundant market for our manufacturers without importing an almost equal amount of their raw materials."

"Argentina has immense food supplies and she could be the bread basket of the world if necessary," he stressed. "One of the reasons that England has been able to keep going is that they have been importing vast amounts of foodstuffs from Argentina for the past two years."

In concluding his lecture on "Argentina" last night, Bryan issued a challenge to the young men and women of the United States to study the languages and historical background of South America and then go down there for a short, inexpensive visit, at least. "There is an amazing future down there," he said. "It'll be tough going. There is danger that you might catch one of the vicious diseases that are rampant on the continent, but nevertheless, I am certain that it will be exciting, thrilling and different."

Bryan left last night to lecture at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He will go from there to Pennsylvania State University and to Town Hall, New York.

Military Program Begins on WSUI

Capt. E. O. Culver Will Speak Weekly On National Defense

A discussion of national defense by a military expert from a military angle is the purpose of a new program—"America's Defense Front"—starting on WSUI for the first time at 12:45 today.

The program features Capt. E. O. Culver of the military department in weekly discussions on phases of America's military efforts and national defense.

On today's opening broadcast, Captain Culver has chosen "Behind the War Games" for his discussion topic.

After a summer of active duty with the army land board at Camden, Ark., he will describe to the radio audience advance planning of maneuvers, and will deal with the reactions of farmers and landowners in Arkansas and Louisiana (where the majority of the maneuvers were held) to war games on their private lands.

The program, to be heard every Tuesday at 12:45, is under the supervision of Col. H. H. Slaughter, head of the military department.

Sociology Club to Hold Coffee Hour Thursday Afternoon at Iowa Union

Sociology club will hold a coffee hour from 4 to 5 p. m. Thursday afternoon in the river room of Iowa Union.

Honored guests will be Prof. and Mrs. Hans von Hentig, and Prof. and Mrs. C. C. Roglar. Professor Roglar is a visiting sociology professor from Port Rico.

Students are invited to get acquainted with their faculty advisors and teachers.

Make Your Phonograph Record Collections Complete—

There's Jazz, Fox Trot, Classical, Boogie Woogie, Rhumba and Sweet

They come in sweet jazz, classical, boogie woogie, rhumba, fox trot, modern and hundreds of other delectable "flavors"—whatever your taste may demand. What is being discussed? Phonograph records, of course!

Play them on a thousand dollar, beam of light machine that automatically changes the records or on a ten dollar portable that you have to wind every five minutes. No matter what type of machine, there is a fascination in choosing music that corresponds to your mood.

By AURDEE OLSON

There is a thrill in discovering a new tune, and at a slight cost being able to hear it whenever you wish. If you don't believe this, invest in a few of these records. They're delightfully different.

A Classic Experiment
Freddie Martin's experiment with a classic, Tschaiakowsky's "Concerto No. 1 in B Flat Minor" (a Bluebird record), is fast becoming a popular favorite. It's name frightens you no doubt, but it's as danceable as any "here today-gone tomorrow" fox trot. You lovers of the classics—it's still very much of this piano concerto is not lost for one minute.

Glenn Miller has also dipped into classical music, producing Brahms' "Lullaby." (Mr. Brahms called it "Wiegenlied.") Ray Eberle vocalizes with all the tenderness due a lullaby. It's the type of thing one should listen to—no "jiving," please—while sitting before a fireplace listening to the patter of rain on the roof. (Bluebird makes it.)

Dorsey Interprets Tschaiakowsky
It's surprising what a popular band can do to make the classics favorites of everyone, not just those comparatively few serious students of music. Even "Joe College" consents to listen to Tschaiakowsky's "None But The Lonely Heart" if it's played by T. Dorsey (reproduced by Victor). A recent release which is hardly recognizable as Dorsey's music, it's almost too sweet. But the quality of "loneliness" and "sadness" that Tschaiakowsky meant it to have is there.

Even Beethoven has been interpreted by Joe Reichman in his "Moonlight Sonata" (another Bluebird record). This sonata is a lovely thing, but Reichman's piano lacks the touch Beethoven's composition needs.

These popular versions of classical masterpieces do not compare with arrangements of such orchestras as the Philadelphia Symphony under the direction of Leopold Stokowski. But, they do offer a delightful introduction to the classics.

"Clair de Lune"
Speaking of Stokowski, have you heard the Philadelphia Symphony's recording of Debussy's "Clair de

Prof. George Glockler Speaks at Chemical Meeting October 21

Prof. George Glockler, head of the chemistry department, will speak on "Separation of Isotopes" before members of the Iowa section of the American Chemical society in the chemistry auditorium, Oct. 21, at 7:30 p. m.

Briefly discussing older methods such as electrolysis of water to produce heavy water, the differential evaporation of liquids, and the method of diffusion, Professor Glockler will stress construction and operation of thermal diffusion column, the latest method for separation of isotopic speakers.

Members of the society will have dinner at the Alpha Chi Sigma house at 6 p. m. before attending the lecture which is open to the public.

Prof. J. Brauer Lectures Before Dentists Meeting

Prof. John C. Brauer of the college of dentistry will lecture tomorrow before the members of the dental society at Washington, Ia. His subject will be "Children's Dentistry."

Lune" (Victor)? For sheer listening pleasure, there's nothing finer than this famous French composition, the melodic interpretation of moonlight.

In contrast to what many popular bands are doing with classical music is Artie Shaw's "Moonlight" and "Dancing in the Dark" (both Victor records). He plays these old, but still of played, songs in a semi-classical manner that features his clarinet.

There's a song called "For Want of a Star." Have you heard it? It was released this summer and became very popular in the east, although it doesn't seem to have hit the west. It's a song without a chorus but with the most fascinating tune and most melancholy words since "Till Never Smile Again." Tommy Ryan of Sammy Kaye's band does a swell job of vocalizing it (Victor).

Indian Love Song
Frank Sinatra of Tommy Dorsey fame also deserves praises for his vocal refrain in a very recent release called "Pale Moon" (by Victor). This is an old Indian love song. Though it has a tendency to be monotonous, it is different.

But let's not listen to all sweet and no swing! One of the best of the jazz bunch this month is Duke Ellington's "Jump for Joy" (Victor). It has a rather deficient vocal, but the whole band, and particularly the alto saxophone man, plays in true Ellington style.

There is Benny Goodman's "Tuesday at Ten" (a Columbia recording) for some superlative trombone.

Artie Shaw's "Don't Take Your Love From Me" (Victor), has some clean ensemble work and a few pleasant solo spots.

And, of course, there's Bob Crosby's "Elmer's Tune" (a Decca record) for the excellent piano.

Recreation Center Releases Statistics

Facilities of Center Used More Widely Than Ever Before

Registrants for the past indoor season at the Iowa City recreation center represents varied social and economic classes as well as all parts of the city, according to statistics released yesterday by Eugene Trowbridge, director of the center.

Although figures of the residential distribution indicate that the center's facilities were used more by youths from certain sections, all parts of Iowa City were represented. The north led with 268 registrations, while only 39 registered from the west part of the city.

The youths came from families whose fathers' occupations varied from professional and "white collar" jobs to common labor and unemployed. The largest group represented were children of skilled laborers.

Only 198 registrants indicated membership in other community-wide youth organizations. The largest group averaged between 10 and 14 years of age, although youths from 8 to 18 years were registered.

'Apartments on Wheels'

Trailers for Boom Town

Workers at the Burlington ordnance plant who have not been able to find a house or apartment in that crowded "boom town" are waiting expectantly for the opening of Uncle Sam's mid-west family size trailer park.

The park, now nearing completion, has 114 "apartments on wheels" each roomy enough for a family of four. Two other parks, which the government plans to build, will provide 286 more trailers.

Trailer camps will furnish emergency or "stop gap" housing until enough permanent dwellings can be built by private capital and government agencies to take care of the big increase in population. When the shell loading plant reaches peak production it will employ several thousands of workers, most of them newcomers to Burlington.

The Farm Security administration, through Ralph L. Herod, project manager, is in charge of camp construction and will supervise operation as long as the trailers are needed.

Three Local Youths Called for Service Under Draft Order

Three Johnson county men were called under the 20th draft order for induction at Des Moines in the United States army Oct. 20, the local selective service board announced yesterday.

The men are: Orlie Dean Finley, route 4, Iowa City; Edward Elmer Vorel, Tiffin, and Reno George Knebel, Hills.

According to officials there have been 1,505 questionnaires issued in Johnson county so far. The next call will be Oct. 27 when one man will be inducted into service.

Order numbers of the men to leave in the 20th call were 486 for Finley, 505 for Knebel and V-3 for Vorel.

From the Pulpit—Highlights in Sermons Of Local Ministers

Rev. A. C. Proehl
Zion Lutheran Church

It is a matter of common observation that the sea is never altogether at rest. Even when there is no wind and no tide, waves still keep rolling over the surface of the water. Hence the expression "as restless as the sea." How like the sea is the soul of man!

We are all familiar with unrest through actual experience. In what a variation of ways it asserts itself in our lives! For instance, we find it asserting itself in man's craving for material possessions. Somehow he has come to believe that the more tangible things he may call his own, the more will he be able to quiet the unrest of his soul. Likewise, we find it asserting itself in man's craving for honor, for positions of power and influence. And then, especially, there is that unrest that comes from work. Always we find our tasks surpassing our capacity.

Alongside these symbols of unrest stands another symbol, a symbol of rest. Our text tells us: "There remaineth, therefore, a rest unto the people of God." That symbol is the land of promise, the crossing of "Jordan" to the land of "Canaan."

If we accept the standing invitation of the Savior, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest!" we shall indeed find rest! But withal it will only be a comparative rest, a foretaste as it were of that rest which still remains, that rest that ends all unrest, all conflict and doubt and all futility of human effort.

A. H. Brayton to Direct Sixth Retail Trade Class

Rev. L. Pipkin to Open 2nd Week of Spiritual Preparedness Campaign
The United Gospel church will open the second week of services in its Spiritual Preparedness campaign tonight at 7:45 with an address by the Rev. Lester Pipkin of Minnetonka Beach, Minn.

The Rev. Mr. Pipkin will also speak during the week on the subjects "When the German Eagle Loses Its Feathers," "What John the Baptist Has to Say About the People of Iowa City," "The Well-Rounded Christian Life," "Gospel Arithmetic," and "Seeing Jesus."

Request numbers will be given by the Rev. and Mrs. O. L. Messmore, who are in charge of music for the services.

The Rev. A. G. Annette of Plainfield, Ill., former member of the LeTourneau Evangelistic center of New York, will next week's speaker for the campaign.

Cadet Examinations Begin October 23

Traveling Aviation Board Will Examine Qualified Applicants

A traveling aviation cadet examining board will be in Iowa City, Oct. 23, to give physical examinations to qualified applicants who have an accepted application on file at Omaha, Neb.

To be qualified, an applicant must be an unmarried American citizen between 20 and 26 years old, in good health and of good moral character, and have 50 per cent of the credits necessary for a college degree.

College students without the necessary educational requirements will be exempted from written examinations on subjects they have completed in college.

During the nine month course cadets are paid $75 a month and given clothing, food and lodging. At the end of the course cadets are given "wings" and commissioned second lieutenants in the Air Corps reserve at a base pay of $245 a month.

Written examinations will be given at Fort Des Moines Nov. 12, 13 and 14.

Civil Service Commission Announces Exams For Openings in Department of Commerce

The Civil Service commission has announced examinations for air carrier inspector, $3,800 a year, and associate inspector, $3,500 a year. These positions are with the CAA, department of commerce.

Applicants must possess a valid airline transport pilot's certificate, must have had extensive solo flying, and experience as first or second pilot on a certificated air line or on multimotored aircraft as used by the United States armed forces. Applications will be accepted until further notice.

Applications for positions as airway and airport trainee and traffic controller, $1,800 a year, must possess a current pilot's certificate of not less than private grade, or have held a rating as a pilot with the armed forces.

Hawaiian Hula Dancing Reveals Ancient Traditional Methods of Island Stories

By Buelah Stowe

Of course you've heard of hula dancing! But it's ten to one that when you think of hula girls you think of carnival barkers and side shows. If you want the real story of the dance, just ask Marjette Fritchen, A2 of Decorah.

She spent the summer in Hawaii, where her father is stationed at Pearl Harbor Naval hospital, and studied dancing with a native teacher.

"There are two forms of hula dancing," Miss Fritchen said. "The modern hula is more popular than the ancient form and is easier to learn. The modern dance is accompanied by guitars, gourd drums and songs in English, while in the ancient hula the dancers use gourds and bamboo sticks."

"Many Americans don't know that every dance tells a complete story of death, love or adventure. Grace of the hands is most important," Miss Fritchen explained, "as the story is told through expressive gestures and symbols. One of the best known dances is called 'Tou Lima Nani E' or 'Our Lovely Hula Hands.'"

Miss Fritchen remarked that the "grass skirts" worn by the dancers are actually made from tea leaves. Gourd beaters who form the native orchestra, wear the "holoku," a kind of long dress with a train.

Leis, the symbol of friendship, are worn during the dance. They are made of gardenias, carnations, or one of the other island flowers.

The Hawaiians, unfortunately, have not remained unaware of the commercial possibilities of their picturesque home. Many American tourists study dancing, Marjette Fritchen reports, and teaching the hula has become a trade.

Even diving for coins thrown by tourists, long a lucrative game for Hawaiian boys, has become modernized. Now the divers are carried out to meet incoming steamers in preparation of their handbook.

A letter from the University of Western Australia requesting a sample University of Iowa handbook, has been received by Grace Van Wormer, library director. The letter post marked in Australia, August 28, carries a "V" for Victory stamp cancellation impress.

The director of the University of Western Australia wishes a copy of the Iowa library manual to use in preparation of their handbook.

U-High Loses Four Regulars for Mt. Vernon Game

Stimmell Brothers, Alderman, Frey Out; Victory Hopes Fade

Frey's Wrist Broken As Blue Scrubs Beat West Liberty, 12 to 7

Ill luck singled out Coach Paul Breechler's Rivermen for the second time this season as he announced that the Stimmell brothers would not report for practice the rest of this week or be able to see action against Mt. Vernon, due to a death in their family.

Bob Alderman, first string halfback, will also be out of the lineup for the rest of the season because of a broken collar bone suffered in the Monticello game last Friday. The third blow came in yesterday's second-team game with West Liberty as Bill Frey, probable substitute for Alderman, broke his wrist.

Four Regulars Back
With four of the Bluehaws regulars absent next Friday against a supposedly weak Mt. Vernon conference team, the chances of a victory for the Bluehaws are beginning to fade.

With only three U-high games left, the future of Capt. Glenn Stimmell looks cloudy. Absent from the Mt. Vernon game, Stimmell reaches the retirement age for high school athletes Nov. 31, the date of the Rivermen's final tilt, automatically ruling him ineligible.

Seconds Scrimmage
Yesterday was a day of rest for most of the Bluehaws, touching last Friday's game against Monticello with a short chalk talk, although the second team saw action against the West Liberty seconds.

The U-high seconds brushed aside the Comets the majority of the game, coming out on the long end with a 12-7 count. The first score came in the second quarter for West Liberty after Owen intercepted a Bluehawk pass to score with a march of end runs and drives.

The Rivermen seconds scored twice in the third quarter with sustained drives by Frey and Barber. Both attempts at extra points failed.

Shortage of Catchers In Hawkeye Baseball Practices This Fall

Fall baseball practices have revealed that there will be a shortage of catchers on the Iowa baseball squad this year.

Capt. Bill Welp is the only returning letterman with any experience behind the plate, but has been the regular catcher during the past two seasons, and is regarded as one of the best receivers in the Big Ten.

John Brueckner, a senior, and Bill Harbor, a junior, are the only other returning veterans on the catching staff. Brueckner has had some experience during his two seasons on the squad, but Harbor has had no actual game experience.

Neither of these catchers is working out with the squad at the present time. Brueckner has been excused from the fall practice because of work, and Harbor has a split finger. Brueckner will start practicing in the spring, while Harbor is expected to rejoin the squad in the near future.

Coach Otto Vogel also has been working Ray Koehn, a regular outfielder, behind the bat in order to give the squad another catcher besides Welp during the fall practices.

Irish Gridders Rest
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Notre Dame's football regulars yesterday took their first holiday since the season opened. "The boys have worked hard this fall," Coach Frank Leahy said, "and I feel a day or two of rest will help them regain some of their lost weight."

Bulldogs Drill on Signals
DES MOINES (AP)—The Drake university football regulars confined themselves to a mild signal drill yesterday while a reserve eleven battled a freshman version of the "T" formation as the Bulldogs prepared for the Illinois game Saturday.

Illini Take Day Off
CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The University of Illinois' football squad took the day off yesterday before beginning preparations for the Drake game Saturday.

Hawkeyes Polish Offensive Attack

Iowa's Hawkeye gridders started down the first of their six straight pre-game trails yesterday, polishing up an offensive attack to match the potentialities of a yet-unproven Wisconsin team which is to be met this Saturday at Madison.

Tom Farmer was boosted into a first-team left halfback spot yesterday, replacing Jim Youel. Farmer is one of the hardest runners on the squad, and fills the other requirements of passing and kicking for the position with only a shade less ability than Youel, so may get the call because of the emphasis on offense.

Coupee's Probable Starter
For two and one-half hours the Hawks ran through signals, directed by Al Coupee, who will probably start at quarterback Saturday, and by the time Coach Eddie Anderson called a halt, had run through almost every play in their repertoire. The drill was conducted against a dummy line and backfield.

Passes, a weapon which has been one of Iowa's most potent on the practice field, but which has never been shown to any extent in a game, came in for a great deal of work, with Farmer connecting regularly to Bill Parker, Bill Burkett, Bus Mertes and Bill Green.

After a week of inactivity, an open date on the schedule, Iowa will go back into action against Wisconsin's Badgers, defeated by overwhelming, but surprising scores in two starts to date. Marquette rolled over Wisconsin two weeks ago, 27 to 7, and Northwestern blasted the Badgers last Saturday, 41 to 14.

Wisconsin Feared
Pre-season calculations placed Wisconsin near the top of the Big Ten heap this year, so the Badgers are not the push-overs the scores indicate. Coach Harry Stuhldreher annually has a late-season power-house, and Iowa will be guarding against any upsurge this week.

All scouting reports by Iowa coaches have been favorable to Wisconsin to date; reports saying that it is a team which has not been as badly beaten as the final

RUNNING ALL OVER MANHATTAN

Right Halfback Bernie Semes runs into some heavy Manhattan opposition as he attempts to plunge through on a Duquesne off-tackle play. He was stopped on this one, but managed to wrap up three of the touchdowns that made the struggling Jaspers a 26-7 victim of the Iron Dukes at the Polo Grounds in New York City last Saturday.

Coach Dana Bible Wants No Bowl Talk For University of Texas Football Eleven

By RAY NEUMANN
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—There'll be no bowl talk for the University of Texas football team if bald Dana Bible has anything to do with it.

Texas has just finished polishing off in crushing fashion three well-regarded teams—Colorado, Louisiana State and Oklahoma. But the little mentor with the basso profundo voice yesterday declared his team, featuring speed, deception and precision timing, still faced the gamut of southwest conference foes and will play them one at a time.

Bible also revealed just how he keeps the boys "up" week after week with all that bowl talk going the rounds. "Saturday we play Arkansas, a greatly improved team, to start our conference schedule," he said. "We have Rice, Southern Methodist and Baylor, all carrying power. After them comes Texas Christian, also potent, and finally Texas A. and M. on its home field. Each game is a separate problem."

Not even members of the squad will talk bowl games. The veteran first string has lasted defeat at the hands of each conference member the past two seasons—and they know what's ahead.

Bible said keeping the boys at a high pitch each Saturday was the hardest problem of coaching.

"Every Monday we review weaknesses shown in Saturday's game. We urge them to correct those defects. Competition for team berths is high."

Second North Edges Fourth In Thriller, Decided by Safety

Fourteen touch football teams, representing Hillcrest, Quadrangle and the cooperative dorms, kept the intramural program rolling yesterday afternoon with a great variety of scores.

In the thriller of the day, Second North of Hillcrest wedged out a victory over Fourth, 14-13. John Tucker and Don Thompson carried over two touchdowns for Second North, and the score was rounded out when Fourth was caught behind its own goal for a safety. Ed Hoag completed two passes to Bob Leighton, who raced over the goal both times for North's touchdowns. Following Fourth's initial score in the first half, Earl Meyers brought down a pass from Hoag for the extra point.

First of Hillcrest gave Third North a sound drubbing, 26-6, the latter's only score coming in the final period when Earl unceremoniously touched down pass to Lightner. Max Landes engineered First to victory by running over three touchdowns, and completing passes for impressive gains.

Hillcrest's Second South, inspired by the successful passing of Buzz Kinky, swept aside Third South easily, 26-6. Bob Nelson and Jack Saunders were instrumental in retrieving Kinky's passes and scoring the touchdowns for Second South. Rex Williams rambled over the goal for the only Third South score of the game.

In the only Quad game, Upper B turned on the heat in the last half to completely overrun Upper C, 31-13. Upper B led by a score of only 12-6 at the half-time, and then, sparked by Louis Bueenz and Frank Webb, surged ahead in the second period to win by 18 points.

Grover furnished the runaway of the afternoon by trampling its rival co-op team, Chesley, 35-7. Bob Opheim helped the Grovers to the top end of the score with his splendid passing, and in the closing minutes galloped to score after intercepting a Chesley pass.

Kellogg shut out an outsmarterd Manse team, 18-0, Johnson accounting for two touchdowns with his passing. In the final half, Johnson changed his tactics and swept through end to score.

The Gables unit smothered Folsom in another co-op battle, 26-13, after leading by the slim margin of 6-0 at the half-time. The Gables stuck to the ground throughout the contest, with Darrell Johnson and Harlan Rabe each racing over for two touchdowns.

Don McMahon Hurt In Intramural Tiff

Don McMahon, A1 of Ft. Dodge, was admitted to University hospital late yesterday afternoon for observation.

McMahon, playing with a Quadrangle team in the intramural touch football league yesterday, suffered a temporary loss of memory after a collision on the opening kickoff. His hospitalization was merely a precautionary measure, physicians said.

Football In Iceland

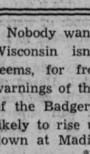

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (Delayed) (AP)—American football made its first appearance on this island when a squad of blue and gold jerseyed players on an infantry regiment held practice on an English rugby field.

Britishers and Icelanders looking on were mystified by the American game, cheering loudly at all the wrong times.

The Americans hope to form three or four teams to play an autumn schedule.

Passing the Buck

by BILL BUCKLEY

Nobody wants us to forget that Wisconsin isn't a pushover, it seems, for from all sides come warnings of the potential strength of the Badgers, and how they're likely to rise up and smack Iowa down at Madison next Saturday.

A card, signed L. W., came in the mail yesterday from Gary, Ind. "Don't sell Wisconsin short in Saturday's game with Iowa," the Hawkeye admirer writes. "They have a sweet passing attack, and a fast team. Northwestern scored three touchdowns on breaks (Wilfords 41, Badgers 14). The boys are going to knock the ears off some high class team before the season is over. So watch out Iowa, or you'll be on the short end Saturday! But here's hoping not. P. S.—Yes, I saw the game and it was a thriller."

That un-asked-for contribution came right on the heels of one from a professional, Backfield Coach Frank Carideo, who scouted that Wisconsin-Northwestern game. "He not only sang the praises of the team as a whole yesterday, but singled out two backs as fine performers. 'They have both a dangerous air and ground attack, and a couple of very fine backs in Mark Hoskins and Bud Seelinger,' Carideo caroled. 'Seelinger is the best of the current Badger sophomore crop, and Hoskins is a 185-pound junior letterman. Stuhldreher has the makings of a strong line to go with them.'

Well, the truth is, we don't need much convincing, and neither do the Hawkeye gridders. They can realize the dormant power of the Badgers, and can still remember as far back as Drake, which was the last time they looked past an opponent to the next one. While it's always a good idea for a team to play its games one at a time, we believe this is one time that Iowa will be ready to take one without any coaxing. Those veterans know from experience you can't take any Big Ten team for granted.

Yesterday Wisconsin rested up from its beating by Northwestern by going through a short workout on fundamentals and then viewing the movies of the defeat. Coach Harry Stuhldreher named Dick Thornally, junior letterman converted from a tackle to center this year, as captain for the Badgers' home conference opener, Iowa.

Nile Kinnick and Jim Harris watched the Minnesota powerhouse blast Illinois, 34 to 6, and have nothing but praise for the highly-louted Gophers. Nile said yesterday that the Ber-men showed only power plays in rolling right over the half-scared Illini, and, take it from him, that was enough. It looks like it'll be hard to even find a test for those mighty northerners this year.

Varsity basketball got underway yesterday afternoon as the Old Gold began preparations for another winter campaign on the hardwoods.

Eighteen men were present for the opening practice, and Coach Rollie Williams wasted no time in starting the men on a two-hour workout consisting of passing, dribbling and conditioning drills.

Seniors reporting were Co-Captains Rudy Soderquist and Vic Siegel, Milt Kuhl, Bruce Fountain, Bill Wheeler and Wendell Hill. Vince Harsha, who has an injured finger, is expected to be ready later this week. Juniors reporting were Jim O'Brien, Tom Chapman, Erwin Wolfe and Kenny Dohse. Sophomores were Bob O'Brien, Jack Movold, Jim Humphrey, Jim Clark, Max Eggleston, Clair Sharp, Carrol Allen and Carrol Mullin.

Iowa Harriers Face Week of Stiff Drills Before Badger Meet

Coach George Bresnahan began the final week of drills for his cross country squad yesterday evening, in preparation for the meet with Wisconsin next Saturday at Madison. The squad was timed for the mile and a half run, with Robert Workman leading the field across the finish line. The evening's work was concluded with a three-quarter mile run.

The spirit of the squad is high and everyone seems to be determined to make a good showing in the coming meet.

Wisconsin was defeated last week by Minnesota at Minneapolis. The Badgers will probably pin their hopes on William Lohm, Frank Stafford, Byron Zolin, Jerry Baird, Ed Bradley, and Jerry Bauer.

The names of eleven Iowa entrants for Saturday's meet have been selected by Bresnahan. They are Robert Albright, Ben Haddad, Richard Keil, Richard Lord, John McCollister, David Meyer, Robert Orth, William Spencer, Garold Stevenson, Don Welf, and Robert Workman. Eight men will be selected from the above group to make the trip.

There is but one injury on the squad at the present time. Richard Lord is hampered by a leg injury received in practice last week, but it is believed that it will be in shape by Saturday.

Coach Bresnahan reports that a tough drill is in store for the tracksters Wednesday, and that Thursday's drill will consist of speed trials. The squad will leave Friday, making the trip to Madison by automobile.

University Tennis Tournament Enters 2nd Week of Play

One Second-Round Match Played Off; Crain Tops Nesmith

The annual all-university fall tennis tournament entered its second week of play yesterday, with a total of five first-round matches completed. One second-round match was played, with five more first rounders yet to be run off.

George Parks took Rex Williams' measure in two love sets; Stan Karnow was an easy victor over Nelson Crow, 6-2, 6-4; Miles Chenault fell before Tom Tabor in two sets, 6-1, 6-2; and Gene Nesmith came out on the long end of a 6-2, 6-2 count.

In the only match to go three sets, Dean Peterson slapped an 8-6, 6-8, 6-0 defeat on Bob Gordon. Earl Crain, who drew a bye into the second round, trounced Nesmith in two sets, 7-5, 6-0, in the first round.

Cyclones Work Hard

AMES (AP)—Still seeking scoring power, Coach Ray Donels sent his Iowa State college football squad through a hard offensive drill against the frosh yesterday.

Later, the varsity got its first taste of Missouri's "T" formation as the yearlings took the ball for a short time. Donels said the team will polish up its offensive today and work on defense the rest of the week.

Interpreting The War News

Most Immediate Nazi Threat; 'Unchecked' Drive Toward Rostov

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON Reports from London and Moscow that the German drive has lost some of its initial momentum seem to refer only to the Nazi thrust along the direct route to Moscow via Vyazma.

Berlin says that a panzer thrust, cutting loose from its support, is speeding eastward from the Valdai hills, northwest of Moscow. It is vaguely located as 140 miles northwest of Moscow and 100 miles from the Vyazma battle area.

Berlin said the drive was headed eastward rather than southeastward toward Moscow. If that is true, it looks to be an effort to drive an encircling arm around

Moscow to the north. There also are intimations from Berlin that panzer columns south of Moscow may have reached points far eastward of Orel or Kaluga.

Unless the Germans have already forced their way well eastward of Vyazma, the Kaluga salient, 100 miles southwest of the city, is their nearest approach to the river defense system that surrounds Moscow in a great circle, roughly 80 miles in diameter.

Presumably it is along this line that London observers hope the Russians can stem the German tidal wave. It would mean, however, either separation of Russian armies in the Moscow area from those to the south, or Russian evacuation of the Donets-Don basin in a race to reach the Volga.

The most immediate threat of grave disaster, however, is neither on the Moscow or Kharkov fronts, sinister as are the portents on both. On the extreme southern flank, an unconfirmed report places Nazi advance guards already in Taganrog on the sea of Azov and within less than 50 miles of Rostov. Berlin insists that Russian resistance on that flank except in the Crimea and on the narrow strip of mainland south of the Dnieper bend has utterly collapsed.

Important to Russian war industry as are Kharkov and the Donets basin, Rostov and its oil pipelines to the Baku field must be the prime Nazi objective of this massive offensive. Destruction of Russian armies in the field wherever and whenever they can be surrounded and mopped up, not the taking of cities, is Hitler's avowed aim.

It appears still possible that a siege of Moscow is the Nazi design if and when the city can be encompassed from north and south as well as west. There is every indication that once Moscow is cut off to the south, Rostov must fall and with it Russia's main oil source.

That alone warrants the conclusion that regardless of the ebb and flow of battle about Moscow, Hitler's generals have mustered forces in the far south for a breakthrough to Rostov and beyond without delay. It is the vital doorway to oil in quantities, and there can be no question that powerful British forces must be deployed in the Caucasus to protect the Baku field in cooperation with Russian armies there, once the Germans turn the Rostov corner.

New Sewer System Plans Submitted to City Council Last Night

Specification Plans Show Cost of About $2,018 to the City

System Will Include Gould Street, Holt And Beldon Avenues

Specifications, plat and schedule for a new sewer system to be constructed at a cost of about $2,018 were submitted to the city council by the city engineer at a meeting last night in the council chambers.

The new system will include installation of sewers in Gould street, Holt avenue and Beldon avenue. The city clerk was directed to give notice for a hearing on the project.

A claim totaling $750 for personal injuries and expenses resulting from a fall was received by the city council from Mrs. Eulalia Reid, 112 E. Bloomington street. The claim stated that Mrs. Reid fell last July 17 in front of the premises at 18 S. Clinton street, fracturing and dislocating her left arm.

The council adopted a resolution directing the city clerk to request the state board of health to investigate the matter of sewage disposal at the town of Cornville. The city engineer was instructed to take preliminary steps to determine the advisability of inspecting and testing the Park bridge and the Benton street bridge over the Iowa river. At the present time, the bridges are believed to be unsafe for heavy loads.

In a resolution adopted by the council, the Iowa City Light and Power company was instructed to install a street light on Jefferson street between Governor and Evans streets.

The council was petitioned for a $10 per month raise for employees of Oakland cemetery. The petition stated that higher costs of living necessitated the increase. Among duties of the cemetery employees, as outlined in the petition, are the care of 8,500 monuments and stones and 57 acres of land. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Permission for the construction of a concrete floor in the hangar at the airport in order to meet government regulations was granted. The improvements will not alter the status of the building which will become property of the city after 10 years. Cost of the project was estimated at $700.

In a communication from the chamber of commerce, the city council was commended for new traffic regulations which were described as beneficial to pedestrians and motorists alike.

H. F. Beranek, Fred H. Lewis and Harlan Sprinkle were reported eligible for promotion to night captain of the police force. Eligible for promotion to the position of assistant chief are Bernard Hauber, E. J. Ruppert, James L. Ryan, G. R. Hall, O. A. White, Arthur A. Schnebelon and G. J. Mulherin.

The fire department answered 16 calls in the month of September, according to a report by the fire chief. Loss due to fire in the month totaled $1,540 the report revealed.

A resolution accepting the bid of Braverman and Worton company for the purchase of four tires and four tubes for the police squad car was adopted by the council. The tires and tubes will cost about $57.

The council also authorized the purchase of transmitting tubes for the police radio from the Collins Radio company at a cost of $126. Because the defense program is threatening to produce a shortage of tubes, the city will buy enough for the next two years.

In a written communication to the council, Wesley Bintz, consulting engineer, asked that he be allowed to appear before the council before any contract is made for the construction of the proposed swimming pool. The letter stated that Bintz could present facts and figures to show that he could save the city a great deal of money on the project because of years of experience in building pools.

The city clerk was directed to prepare a resolution authorizing the investment of $1,000 in government bonds, probably defense bonds. The $1,000 is money that could not be used for any other purposes at the present time.

A resolution directing the installation of a telephone at the city scales house was approved by the council. The telephone will aid in the administration of the street department by enabling engineers to be in contact with street and sewer workers.

At the same time, the city clerk was directed to advertise for and receive bids on the sale and removal of the old scale house. Eleven burials in September were reported by the city sexton. A report by the city treasurer for September was received and filed. Bills for various expenditures by city departments were approved. The council adjourned to meet Oct. 27. Councilman Lucas was absent from the meeting.

Prof. C. Wylie Announces Aurora Borealis May Be Visible This Evening

According to Prof. C. C. Wylie of the astronomy department the northern lights or the Aurora Borealis might be seen either tonight or tomorrow night if conditions are favorable.

Northern lights are caused by electrically charged particles from sun spots. When the particles come into the upper air they cause the gasses to glow somewhat like a neon sign.

"The large 'storm' on the sun which caused a wonderful aurora display on Sept. 18 has now broken into two spots of roughly 40,000 miles each," said Professor Wylie.

Mrs. Elmer Stimmel Dies of Heart Attack

Mrs. Elmer Stimmel, 58, the former Fannie Dollie Long, route No. 1 of Iowa City, died Sunday morning at her home of a heart attack.

She was born March 6, 1883, the daughter of Henry and Elizabeth Long, and lived her entire life in Johnson county.

She is survived by her husband and five children, Mrs. Russell Evans of Oxford, Lloyd Stimmel of Lennox, Calif., Donald Stimmel of Iowa City and Glen and Calvin, at home.

Others surviving are eight brothers and sisters, including a twin brother, Fred Long of Oxford, Mrs. Evelyn Snider of Iowa City, Mrs. Art Turner of Otis Orchards, Wash., Mrs. Otis Wilson of Grangeville, Idaho, Robert Long of Lewiston, Idaho, Frank Long of Spokane, Wash., Harry Long of Portland, Ore., Benjamin Long of Spokane Bridge, Wash., and nine grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The body was taken to the Hohenschuch mortuary.

GERMAN

headwaters of the Volga in the Valdai hills.

This drive, complementing those which had been based about Vyazma and Bryansk, was said to have reached within 140 miles of Moscow. It was described as a major surprise maneuver.

As to the Leningrad theater the Germans implied the nazi offensive action there was settled down to an effort to starve out the city.

In the south, the Germans claimed a final and utter rout of the Russian Ukrainian armies of Marshall Semeon Budyenny and British sources said the nazi advanced forces perhaps had penetrated eastward along the shore of the Azov sea to Taganrog, which is only 45 miles short of the Don river city of Rostov.

Overnight British bombing activity on the western front was heavy over the western, northwestern and southern Germany. It was stated that more than 300 planes carried out this great sweep, striking with particular effectiveness at Nurnburg, where the nazi party's annual congresses are held. There, it was said, the damage was extraordinarily heavy; "Skeletons of burnt-out buildings were left standing out against the blaze."

On the American side of the water, as well as abroad, the great concern was with the Russian drama. President Roosevelt, apparently hoping to encourage Russian resistance, announced that the United States was speeding great quantities of supplies to help the "brave defense" being offered by the red armies.

Some congressional leaders reported that Harry L. Hopkins, the American lease-lend supervisor, had predicted to them that the Russians would go on fighting even if Moscow fell.

there at Oakdale were doing everything but obeying the law by giving that liquor to you.

"The board of control and people of this state are entitled to have that cleared up out there. They can't have liquor in trustee camps."

After the trials, Judge Gaffney said that the offense of giving liquor to trustees was as serious as "peddling liquor to the Indians." He said that if the county attorney didn't call a grand jury investigation he would personally do so.

The men at first were charged with breaking jail and with larceny of a motor vehicle by Warden Davis. On July 28 they entered a plea of innocence before Judge Harold D. Evans and the trials were set for yesterday.

When it was found that the men had been intoxicated and were therefore irresponsible, the charge was changed to operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. The larceny charge carries a five year sentence and the other charge carries a one year sentence.

Mathews and Lepovitz were represented by Atty. Ingalls Swisher and Yenger was represented by Atty. Harold D. Vestermark.

Mrs. Lyle Edleman, manager of the shop, said that both the fixtures and building were covered by insurance and that she could give no estimate on either the damage or the insurance coverage. She said she had been working in the shop earlier in the evening and left for her home about 10:30. She said she was notified of the fire shortly after it started about 11 o'clock.

Both Domb's boot shop and Racines No. 1, stores on either side, suffered heavy smoke damage. Apartments upstairs suffered only minor smoke damage.

Railway Officials Offer To Go Part Way To Meet Laborers Wage Demands

CHICAGO (AP)—The nation's railroads offered yesterday to go part way in meeting the wage demands of 1,260,000 of their organized employees, but representatives of two of the unions involved said the proposal was unsatisfactory.

F. G. Gurley, chairman of the Carriers' conference committee, called the offer a plan of emergency when he submitted it to President Roosevelt's fact finding board today.

George M. Harrison, president of the railway clerks union, commented: "The bonus plan proposed is deceptive in its operation and unsound in adjusting wage rates. It ignores all other relevant factors in wage fixing and perpetuates inequalities of treatment compared with other wage earners who now enjoy wage increases."

The initial effect of the railroads' proposal would be an estimated six per cent increase on earnings up to $30 a week or $65 on semi-monthly payrolls, effective Nov. 1, and amounting to $95,004,000 if it remained in effect for a year.

Based on a formula relating to changes in the index of living costs to the trend in railroad gross revenues, the plan would be operated through Dec. 31, 1942, with any necessary adjustments made quarterly, Gurley said.

Present basic rates would serve as a floor, with a ceiling fixed at not more than a 15 per cent increase on the first $30 a week of earnings.

Gurley explained that the plan contemplated a "composite index" using the number of points of rise or decline in the cost of living and one half the number of points of rise or decline in gross railroad revenues.
