The National Health Is Declining; What Can Be Done to Improve It?

The effects of the past gigantic human feeding experiment forced upon the country by the machine age are becoming apparent in the deterioration of the typical American diet. The effect is deleterious on nutrition and the health of the country.

American people have too long subsisted on soft, highly refined concentrated foods, lacking in elements which supplement the energy-furnishing foods. As a result rickets, poor bone development, and tooth decay have become all too common. Forty per cent of the first million men drafted in this present emergency were physically deficient, especially with dental faults.

Vitamin pills and vitaminized bread are not the solution to better health. Neither will dental care insure sound teeth when there are other more basic reasons for faulty teeth.

Education is one of the more important influences now at work to improve the general state of the health of the average citizen. Interest in better diet and health habits is aroused through advertisement and billboard and through colorful household sections of popular magazines. Appeal is made through these sources to personal improvement, since interest in one's own physical problems is inherent in each individual.

America has become less provincial since the introduction of rapid transportation, efficient refrigeration and large scale canning processes. A better knowledge has been acquired of dishes used in other countries; and through their adoption, less one-sided meals have added greater variety. As a natural result, increased liking has increased consumption of fruits and vegetables and whole grained products—especially since 1918. The indisputable place of milk in a child's diet was also disclosed in the famine in Europe of the first world war.

America spends more money for food than any other country and has the greatest variety and abundance of fruits, vegetables, meat, poultry, and fish. Lavish use is made of cream and butter.

What is the cause of the deficiency caused by the American diet?—Ignorance, indifference, faulty food preferences or prejudices, habit, imitation. Allowances may be made for individual preferences, but one can learn to overcome many food dislikes. Good cooking, variety in foods and food preparation, will prevent monotony and help to cause indiscretion in eating.

To safeguard the diet, as much should be spent for milk and milk products as for meat, poultry and fish. As much should be spent for fruits and vegetables as for milk.

Consider the present status of our health as a nation. Many, though not sick, are below par physically. Most of us do not attain even a proper peak of health and vigor because of faulty diets. Physical breakdowns in middle life could be reduced if we ate more sanely.

We should remember that the body is not a machine, but a complex living organism.

Oriental Version of O'Leary Cow

News from Japan reports among other significant items: bombings of a foreign legation in Chungking, gaining popularity of the anti-U.S. military faction in the Japanese cabinet, and the massing of a huge army along the Siberian border.

The Japanese war ministry comments on the militant restlessness with the following explanation: "We cannot just die off, smothering in an iron bucket clamped over our heads, and at the same time we cannot remove the bucket. Therefore there is no other way but to go forward and prepare for the worst."

It appears that Mrs. O'Leary's cow has an Oriental descendant.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q.—What is one way in which everybody, no matter how small his income, can help to keep down the cost of living, and also aid national defense?

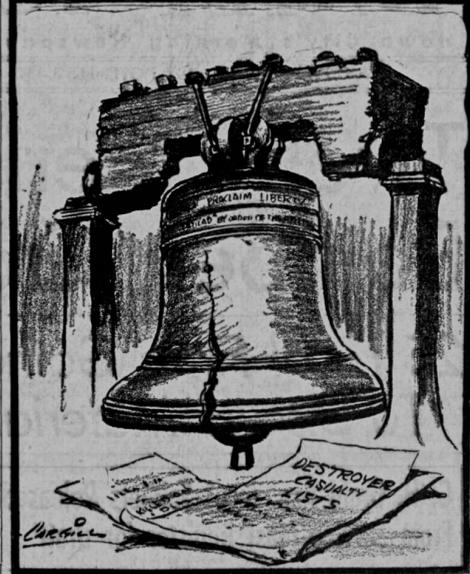

A.—By refraining from spending all his earnings, and investing a part of them in defense bonds and stamps. Thus he also provides himself with assets which will be available when goods are plentiful after the emergency.

Q.—What happens to defense savings bonds that are held beyond maturity?

A.—The interest on defense savings bonds ceases when they mature. In other words, the redemption value of such Bonds does not change after maturity; they may be redeemed at any time thereafter.

NOTE.—To buy defense bonds and stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

OH MY! HARRISBURG, Ky. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clauch had a lot of trouble in two weeks. First their home near here was destroyed by fire, along with all their furniture and clothing. Then Mrs. Clauch, while moving a small safe at the home of her parents, accidentally shot herself in the leg. A few days later the couple's son had a serious operation. Finally, their cow died.

WEATHER REPORT KINGSTREE, S. C. (AP)—Farmers blamed it on the rain when Jesse David's tomato plant grew Irish potatoes under the ground and tomatoes above and W. V. Strong's corn stalk produced a cluster of 39 small ears resembling a bunch of bananas.

Propaganda Bureaucracy Rising

WASHINGTON—Grandest over-twining bureaucracy of them all is rising skyward in the propaganda phase of the government program. Another layer is being added now. It is to be called impressively "the office of facts and figures," (hereafter to be known as OFF.) Its inception affords a better idea of what you may expect from it than its title.

Col. "Wild Bill" Donovan wanted OFF to add his equally overnamed "office of information" (which broadcasts pro - allied news abroad). Mayor LaGuardia of New York, who is not so tame himself, desired it with equal ardor and superior backing. The president finally appointed the poet Archibald MacLeish to look after the so-called facts and figures, and thus left it nearer LaGuardia's hands than Donovan's.

Candidates considered for the advisory board (they will give it the flavor) include Mrs. Roosevelt, LaGuardia, Donovan, and Lowell Mellett, who was really first in this government propaganda business although his "office of government reports" is the bottom layer now. In Mr. Donovan's behalf, it must be related, he was busy fighting Nelson Rockefeller at the time, over who was going to control propaganda to Latin America. Mr. Donovan lost that fight, too. The president decided Rockefeller's bureau of "commercial and cultural relations" should handle the possibilities in facts, figures for the Latins.

But Mr. Donovan has stopped them otherwise. He has moved into the vacated naval hospital and has raided the news rooms of Washington press bureaus for talent. My money is on him for another good reason. He has quietly acquired a brain trust. In the government propaganda trade here, it has become known as Donovan's "faculty club," an organization similar to Hitler's political institute.

Included are scientists, psychologists, professors and just ordinary non-thinking writers. The group meets at the library of congress, where MacLeish, as librarian, had offered the run of the place. They collect all kinds of information about foreign countries, armies, navies, economics, not for publication, but for the president and government officials.

Col. Donovan would have been further along than he is, if State Secretary Hull had not defeated him on another idea. Donovan set up the machinery for 20 minute service, promising to furnish the answer for any criticism made against American foreign policy in that length of time. It was not the time but the substance that irked Hull. He insisted on his right to

JUST MORE PROPAGANDA—

This country may need "facts and figures," but need not hold its breath until the new set-up delivers them. The office by that name is to work directly under command of the president—not to feed out demonstrations of its title to the press or public, but to offer "suggestions" to the grand army of publicity agents in the government from top to bottom. That simply means the MacLeish organization will exert an overall control over established avenues of official news.

Out of it all in the end no doubt will emerge some kind of Creel committee such as functioned in the last war. Possibly the MacLeish advisory board will be it. So far MacLeish, however, has been talking about composing only a modest organization to cost far less than the $10,000,000 which has been rumored.

Whatever is done under whatever name, the result always seems to be less news and more propaganda. MORE LIVES TO BE LOST— It is not possible to explain fully how Mr. Roosevelt's "shoot at sight" theory is working up into a state foreign policy. The 20 minute service was dropped. "get shot first" actuality. The navy is on a war footing in publicity otherwise. What its destroyers are doing on the high seas is a military secret. Indeed, Mr. Roosevelt has announced that even if our ships should happen to sight a sub first and sink it, the news would not be announced. He would not want the nazis to know what happened, he said.

The penetrating fact, however, is that while Mr. Roosevelt's policy is aggressive, the naval operation is defensive. Our destroyers are protecting convoys. Many more lives of our men are to be lost, and much more fighting tonnage that the nazis will lose is certainly doomed, by the very nature of the operation. It is bound to be a losing battle when measured in either men or ships.

Navy tried to do a little better in giving out the destruction of the Reuben James. Announcement was made so promptly, most high officials of the navy heard it first on the radio and then called their publicity headquarters to inquire. Navy Secretary Knox likewise apologized to newsmen because the best details of the torpedoing of the Kearny had been given in a speech by his under-secretary Forrestal. He said news would be given out directly to the press and public through usual channels hereafter.

What Other College Dailies Are Saying These Days

Americans Need No Pep Talk In This Current World Crisis

President Roosevelt's speech on Monday presented a peculiar situation to the American people. On the one hand, he made it clear that the United States is no longer merely the "arsenal of democracy," but the front line of democracy. Nazi Germany is no longer fighting Great Britain and Russia alone, the president said; she is battling the combined strength of these two countries backed by the full resources, material and spiritual, of the American democracy.

But the president made no clear statement of just what this policy will involve, something the American people have been waiting for a long time. He failed to say whether the war would be a naval war, or would require an expeditionary force, or would be a "declared war" at all. President Roosevelt gave the American people a magnificent pep talk, but failed to tell them what they will have to do to win the war which everyone must admit the country has gotten into.

The American people are not children. They know that the measures that their government has already taken can lead to nothing but war. To a great extent they are steeled, prepared to fight, and they believe for the most part that to fight is the right thing.

But the president equivocates. He treats the American people like a helpless crowd of weaklings that cannot be trusted with a frank and clear-cut statement of what the administration has planned.

The charge has often been made that the administration is far ahead of public opinion in its foreign policy. But now it looks very much like the situation is reversed. The nation has made up its mind to defeat Hitler, and now it looks to its government to tell just what is necessary to beat him. The people are in suspense, and if war is the answer, they want to get it and get it over with. Perhaps they have a haunting fear too that if too much time is wasted the job will grow more difficult. If war is the answer which President Roosevelt proposes to give to the American people, he is not dealing with them squarely by refusing to let them in on the secret.—Wisconsin Daily Cardinal.

A Demand for B.E.F. Sounds Strange, Coming from America

From many quarters, both in England and in America, come demands for a British invasion of the continent. It is felt that attacking the continent would be the best thing for Britain to do now, while the main strength of the Nazi war machine is engaged in a bitter life and death struggle with the Soviets.

It is claimed that Germany is now weak in the west, and that such an invasion would force the nazis to divide their forces and perhaps be defeated on both the eastern and western fronts, or not being optimistic, making the aid thus given to the Soviets well worth the cost in lives and material. Even more than this, it is claimed that the enslaved peoples of occupied Europe are straining at the leash, waiting only for the opportunity of giving their lives to rid Europe of the Nazi yoke.

All this is probably true. . . . But who, outside of the British high command, is in a position to know if such an invasion is at all practicable.

"England will fight to the last Frenchman" was the phrase hurled by German loudspeakers across the Rhine to French troops before the fall of France, and today this statement might very well be applied to us. Who are we to demand that the British make an effort which their own generals may regard as suicidal, and as injurious in the long run, to the cause for which we all are fighting.

It may be that the British are even now secretly preparing for an invasion, but it is definitely out of place for the people of the United States to ask Britain, who certainly cannot be accused of not wanting to defeat Nazi Germany, to throw herself into an inhospitable European shore at a time when she is not militarily prepared for such a venture.—Herbert Edelhertz in the Michigan Daily.

A Few Questions and Answers About This Business of Labor

The mounting impatience with industrial disputes expressed by the president in his speech to the American Federation of Labor convention and seconded by "the voice of the people" in the latest Gallup poll bears an investigation. Let us ask and try to answer, on the basis of the facts, some very pertinent questions. Is there an epidemic of strikes? Strikes are more frequent and serious this year than during peaceful 1940 when only six million man days of work were lost. Labor department statistics show a trend this year toward the greatest number of strikes since turbulent 1937. But the statistical increase is largely the reflection of a couple of big strikes like the bituminous coal battle which shut down mines for the whole of April.

Has there been any basis for these strikes? Unquestionably there has, if results of National Labor Relations Board decisions mean anything. In 47 per cent of the cases where unions have struck for higher wages and shorter hours they have been given a favorable decision. Of the rest of the cases 41 per cent were settled on a compromise basis. Where questions of union recognition were involved results were very much the same—and the complexion of the board is hardly pinkish. Furthermore, living costs have been rising. Is defense production being slowed down? During 1940, in what the department of labor classified as the 11 vital defense industries, one-quarter of one per cent of the total number of man days worked was lost on strikes. Yet the lag of defense production behind plans has been far greater than can properly be blamed on work stoppages. Do strikes mean deliveries are being held up? Not necessarily. Accumulated stocks in the industry may enable deliveries to be kept constant. Besides, a strike may be called in a factory where production of a particular part is ahead of the capacity to assemble the final product. If, for example, there are more propellers than airplane motors, a strike in the propeller division of an aircraft factory may not slow up assembly of airplanes at all. Is, then, this mounting impatience justified? It would be if every other element of the nation were putting forth an all-out effort and if we were taking the same attitude toward self-interested policies of various industrial concerns. But it is not if we seek to excuse all the weaknesses of the defense effort by pointing an accusing finger at labor and if we let companies like Alcoa get away with what they do. It is not if we plan to spank labor without making a pass at the just as attractive rump of capital. It would be wise, at this time, to be on the lookout for the seagoing hunters, who in an attempt to screen their own shortcomings, attack unions. Their aim: to place all the blame for bottlenecks on the workers; their motive, to make the most of this opportunity to discredit the labor movement generally and if possible deal it a death blow.—Minnesota Daily.

Only Ignorance Is to Blame For World's Present Dilemma

With the world in this horrible shape and every country on the map fighting somebody, it is hard to see the background clearly. It is difficult, for example, to understand just why Russia and Germany are clashing on a several hundred-mile-wide battlefield, killing off the cream of their younger generations. It is hard to understand (and to find out) why Britain takes the attitude she does, and why she doesn't attack the European continent now that Germany is fully occupied with Russia. It seems peculiar that there are so many millions of people near open revolt against the cruel rule of Nazi Germany, and yet the Nazi continues, apparently in no immediate danger of falling. We can't understand why it is so hard for the United States to become a unified block of citizens, determined on one course. Why are these tremendously important things so vague and mysterious? Is it because there is a certain class throughout the world which is mostly to blame for our present situations? Is it because Germany is all wrong, as Stalin and Churchill and Roosevelt say? Is it because everyone but Germany is of the old-lace school, as Lindbergh so pointedly hints? Are all these men acting with selfish and ulterior motives? Or does the answer lie behind the dark jungle of the past ten years' activities? The past twenty years? What are we fighting for? When and if we beat Hitler, are we safe? Are we safe until we've found out how to educate people? I think not. —Is ignorance to blame? I vote yes.—Eddie Griffin in the Daily Texan.

'British Supply Of Oil is Ample'

Norval Baker Asserts Iraq Wells Furnish Most of Petroleum

"Britain has no scarcity of oil in the Mediterranean at the present time," was the comment made by Norval Baker, British oil expert, when he visited the geology department yesterday.

Baker is the guest of his son, James, a freshman here at the university.

An Iowa graduate of 1917, Baker is now chief geologist for the Iraq Oil company, with headquarters in London. His company furnishes the greater part of the vital oil supplies used by the British Mediterranean fleet.

Since the British government has stabilized conditions by sending troops into Iraq recently, oil has been flowing across the Syrian desert to Raifa, terminus of the line in Palestine, with few interruptions. From there it is supplied to the fleet, and some oil is also being conveyed to the British Isles.

At an informal luncheon with members of the geology department yesterday in the river room of Iowa Union, Baker paid tribute to the geological training he received here under Dean George F. Kay and Prof. A. C. Trowbridge.

Baker also praised the accuracy of a number of original oil surveys in Iraq which were made by Professor Trowbridge for the Iraq Oil company in 1925-26.

PEPLUMS ARE POPULAR

The new "interrupted silhouette" this year is achieved with peplums, tiers and tunics. This attractive creation features a perky, pleated peplum that fastens on like a little apron over the featherweight wool dress of rascal red. Slanted pockets are hidden beneath the peplum to complement the high pockets on the bodice. The look is soft and feminine, typical of this season's trend. It is appropriate for afternoon wear as well as informal evening dates.

President of Clark University Gives Talk

Wallace A. Atwood Lectures on History Of Rocky Mountains

President Wallace W. Atwood of Clark university, Worcester, Mass., presented a lecture on "The Physiography of North America," yesterday afternoon in the geology lecture room at 4:10 p.m.

Centering his lecture around the history and present action of the Rocky mountains, he illustrated his talk with colored slides of his work this summer in the mountain regions of the west.

President Atwood told the audience of students and townspeople that the Rockies were born, worn down, buried, and now are rising again. "These occurrences have importance as to origin of iron ore deposits," said the speaker.

He stated that the evidence of erosion by rivers in the mountains proves that the rivers were in existence before the last uplifting of the mountains.

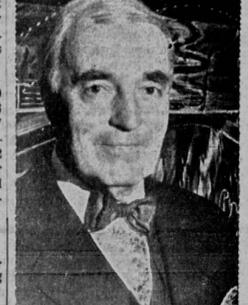

Lecturing during the showing of his slides, President Atwood pointed out various formations in the mountains of the west and told of some whose origin was still not known. "These problems should be a challenge to you," he declared.

Showing pictures of glaciers, the speaker stated that they are now receding and pointed out the evidences of such action.

Five times a delegate to scientific international congresses, President Atwood, as a representative of the United States, has visited nearly every country of the world.

Also an author, President Atwood has written many books that are used in school systems over the country. Among these are: "The Americas," "Nations Beyond the Sea," "The World at Work" and "Home-Life in Faraway Lands."

University of Texas Gridders Rank First in Poll

Experts Pick Texans Over Gophers For 1st Time This Season

Navy Moves From 11th To 6th Place Because Of Win Over Penn

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK—The University of Texas football team, which got into high gear for the opening game of the season and hasn't been throttled down since, yesterday rolled into first place in the Associated Press football ranking poll.

The awesome scoring machine which Coach Dana Bible has perfected in the fifth year of his five-year plan ran a close second to Minnesota the first two weeks of the poll. A week ago the Longhorns moved up on even terms, and in this fourth weekly ranking went out in front by 37 points (one point less, by coincidence, than their average score for six games.)

73 First Places

Of the 121 football experts throughout the country who took part in the voting, 73 made the Texans first choice, and one other split his ballot between Texas and Minnesota. The Longhorns were ranked first or second on 110 ballots, and accumulated 1,148 points to 1,111 for the Gophers, points being awarded on the basis of 10 for a first-place vote, nine for second, eight for third, and so on down.

Minnesota, rated No. 1 team nationally a year ago, slipped from the top after scoring what was perhaps the Gopher's most creditable victory—an 8-7 conquest of Northwestern, achieved in spite of the loss early in the game of Capt. Bruce Smith and injuries to other key men.

Fordham Rams Third
The next three places in the week's tabulation went to holdovers from a week ago—Fordham, third with 852 points, and six first place votes; Duke fourth with 740 and seven, and Texas A. and M., fifth with 585. Beyond these there was considerable shuffling.

Dropped out of the first ten and almost out of sight because of their first losses were Penn and Vanderbilt. Navy moved up from 11th place to sixth on its well-won victory over Penn. With 600-1/3 points, it was given the edge for its game with Notre Dame at Baltimore Saturday, which ranks as the week end's outstanding contest. The Irish, held to a scoreless tie by Army, slipped a notch to seventh.

Michigan moved down from seventh to eighth and Northwestern from ninth to 10th, while Stanford, apparently back on the Rose Bowl track, climbed into the select group in ninth position.

The standing of the teams (first-place votes in parentheses, points figured on 10-9-8-7-6, etc., basis):

- First ten:
1.—Texas (73-1/2) 1,148
2.—Minnesota (34-1/2) 1,111
3.—Fordham (6) 852
4.—Duke (7) 740
5.—Texas A. and M. 585
6.—Navy 500-1/3
7.—Notre Dame 378-1/3
8.—Michigan 368-1/2
9.—Stanford 353-3/5
10.—Northwestern 196-3/5
- Second ten: 11.—Army, 158-1/3; 12.—Duquesne, 89; 13.—Alabama, 70-1/2; 14.—Tulane, 53; 15.—Mississippi State, 24; 16.—Mississippi, 22; 17.—Missouri, 18-3/5; 18.—Syracuse, 11; 19.—Penn., 4-3/5; 20.—Ohio State, 3-3/5.
- Also ran: Oklahoma, 3; Vanderbilt and California, 1 each.

Iowa Cross-Countrymen Resume Practice Sessions After Week End Layoff

Following a week end layoff, the Hawkeye cross-countrymen resumed drills yesterday afternoon in preparation for their meet with Illinois there Saturday.

The varsity workout consisted of a mile run, followed by a fast mile. Freshmen devoted their time to running 220's.

Today's program will include a half-mile team race. The rest of the work will be optional.

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Fullback Jack Graf, main spring of Ohio State's ball-toting, passing and kicking corps, which has been out of action the past two weeks, will be ready for Saturday's Big Ten tussle with Wisconsin at the Buckeye stadium.

Hawk Gridders Get Heavy Opening Drill

Capt. Diehl, Parker Take Light Workouts; Have Slight Injuries

Capt. Bill Diehl and Bill Parker, two of Iowa's star performers in last Saturday's Homecoming victory over Indiana, spent yesterday's workout in sweatshirts on the sidelines, resting from slight injuries incurred in the clash.

Diehl, still nursing a charley-horse from last week and giving a badly bruised hand a rest, did not participate in the drill at all; but Parker, who received a bump on the shoulder Saturday, ran signals with the second string, and then lined up with the varsity in a defensive drill. Both are expected to be ready to go against Illinois Saturday.

Illinois plays were on display the first night of practice, with Coach Nile Kinnick, who has never played against the Illini, sending a mixed team of freshmen and reserves through its paces. The tricky Illinois formations, with a few exceptions, were held in check by the Hawks.

There was plenty of work for the team in its first night of practice after a victory. Line blocking was emphasized, while the backs went through a lengthy signal drill. The Hawks also practiced the T-formation against a 6-3-2 defense from within the 10-yard line, and took their licks on the tackling and blocking dummies.

John Maher operated in place of Parker on offense with the first team, and George Frye replaced Diehl. Ross Anderson was working with the second string, and Bob

Passing the Buck

by BILL BUCKLEY

For the past three weeks a regular Sunday night telegram has come our way, sent by that old Minnesota star, Babe LeVoi, who quarterbacked the famous 1934 Gopher aggregation. . . Babe is still up there at Minneapolis, evidently working for radio station WCCO in an advertising capacity.

Well, along came these three telegrams, to which we paid little attention, because they're mostly about Minnesota and who it played on the Saturday preceding. . . It's an all-conference team of the week, sponsored by Wheaties, and picked by Coach Bernie Bierman; Charles Johnson, sports editor of the Minneapolis Star-Journal; Harry McTigue, WLOL sports announcer, and LeVoi himself.

This week, finally, after three weeks of not giving the Hawks a tumble, Iowa placed one man on the first team. . . That was Bill Green. . . Only Green, after the beautiful game all the Hawkeyes played against Indiana Saturday. . . And at the same time, there were three Minnesota men, one Wisconsin player, two from Northwestern, two from Michigan, and one each from Ohio State and Indiana.

Five Hawkeyes Keep Ironman Tradition Alive

Running true to tradition, the 1939 Ironman situation is still alive in the 1941 season, with five Hawkeyes having played full-time games so far.

Jim Walker leads the pack, having been initiated with one such game in his sophomore year, coming up with two against Wisconsin and Notre Dame last year, and having played full-time against Michigan and Indiana this year. He only missed one minute in the Purdue game, that for equipment repairs.

Capt. Bill Diehl went the route in the Purdue tiff, also, and Bill Burkett, Bill Parker and Bus Mertes were full-timers against Indiana.

Al Couppez and George Frey were Ironmen in 1939, and in 1940, 60-minute men were Diehl, against Wisconsin and Minnesota; Jim Yodel, against Purdue and Notre Dame; John Maher, against Indiana, and Burkett, Bill Green and Gene Curran, against Notre Dame.

As long as we've gone this far, we might as well print the names of the all-stars. . . At left end was Schreiner of Wisconsin, at left tackle Wildung of Minnesota, at left guard Zorich of North-

'Cat Coach Yells Says Gopher 'Sleeper' Play Illegal

CHICAGO (AP)—Lynn Waldorf, reviewing Northwestern's 8 to 7 loss to Minnesota Saturday, revealed yesterday that "our observers in the press box thought Bud Higgins' 41-yard touchdown run on the 'sleeper' play was illegal."

Waldorf, who is not given to popping off, said he personally did not see the play "As I had my head turned toward one of my quarterbacks on the bench when the ball was snapped."

The game-winning play started without a huddle and caught Northwestern flat-footed, not a player laying a hand on the little Gopher back as he sped down the sidelines.

"I understand that none of the cameramen at the game snapped the start of the play because it started so suddenly," Waldorf explained.

Where's Bus Mertes, Jim Walker, Bill Diehl and all the rest? . . . We don't know. . . Maybe it was an optical illusion out there on the field Saturday. . . Maybe Bernie Bierman doesn't believe football's being played down here in Iowa City. . . But maybe there'll be some Iowa names on the Gopher tongues after the two teams tangle a week from Saturday. . . Maybe.

Third South Spoils First's Chances In Hillcrest Intramurals

First's hope of becoming undisputed champ in the Hillcrest touch football league were somewhat squelched yesterday afternoon, when Third South upset the favorites, 8-0. Second North won its game on a forfeit by Third North, which means that the former is tied with First, and that a play-off to determine the Hillcrest victor will be necessary.

Rex Williams booted a field goal late in the opening period to give Third South its slim victory over First. The winners advanced the ball as far as the 15-yard line, and when First suddenly became stubborn, Williams took the only score from the side of the field.

Both teams battled hard from start to finish. Late in the game First marched deep into Third South territory, but couldn't score because of the determined resistance.

Second South toppled Fourth, 13-6, in another Hillcrest game yesterday afternoon. Bob Stolley completed a pass to Sanders for the initial Second South touchdown, and then rifled a short one to Nelson for the extra point. Kelloway galloped the distance for Second's final score of the game. Simmons, halfback, raced over the goal for Fourth's only touchdown.

Gables eked out a 2-0 win over Kellogg yesterday afternoon when Loran Parker of the losers stepped out of bounds behind his own goal. Parker was punting from the end zone, but stepped over the side-line in getting the ball away. Few first downs were made, and neither team could muster the punch to score a touchdown.

Grover automatically won its tilt by a forfeit from Manse. Chesley forfeited to Folsom.

No Quad games were played. Lower B (2) won by forfeit from Upper C (2), and Upper B (2) won by forfeit from Lower D (2).

U-high's Rivermen elected Bud Halvorsen, star right tackle, captain of the 1942 squad yesterday afternoon.

Coach Paul Brechler announced that sixteen boys were 1941 letter winners. They were Bud Halvorsen, Jack Reed, Jack Shay, Clarke Louis, George Lehman, Calvin Stimmel, Emory Stagg, Chuck Kent, Marcus Young, Mark Meier, Earl Carson, Charles Barber, Bill Cobb, Capt. Glenn Stimmel, Gene Rummels, Jim Schneberger, Bob Alderman and Bill Frey.

Illinois Gridders Rest After Michigan

CHAMPAGN, Ill. (AP)—Illinois gridgers enjoyed a respite from work yesterday before beginning preparations for Saturday's battle with Iowa.

Jim McCarthy, varsity end, was one of the few casualties of the Michigan game, suffering a badly-turned ankle. Wes Tregoning probably will replace him. Elmer Engel, tackle, and George Wilson, guard, who were idle against the Wolverines, are expected to be ready for the Hawkeyes.

Illinois scouts returned with ominous reports of the running of Bill Green and Bus Mertes and the passing of Tom Farmer.

Coach Herb Cormack Drills Little Hawks For Centerville Tilt

City high's Little Hawks opened preparations for the coming tilt with Centerville Thursday night minus Dean Yanaush, Bob Arn and Joe Casey, all of whom were absent from practice because of stomach flu.

Coach Herb Cormack sent his team through a general practice session as he drilled on passes, punting, blocking, tackling and added a few more new plays.

"Bullet Bill" Sangster exhibited new skill in punting and passing while Dean Williams was particularly adept at pulling down the aerials.

Linemen had a long workout pushing the blocking sled around, and the backs, endeavoring to get faster starts, practiced running at the line.

The Hawklites finished their Mississippi Valley competition last Thursday night with a win over Franklin. Their conference record for the season is four wins against

Gaffney Dismisses Manhattan Beer Trial In Final Decree Here

Judge James P. Gaffney yesterday dismissed the case of Manhattan Brewing company vs. Rayburn and entered default judgment against the Chicago brewing company for loss of profits under the terms of an oral agreement.

According to his petition, the company offered him exclusive distributing rights of Canadian Ace beer in Johnson and Washington counties, but later permitted distributors in both.

The plaintiff promised promotion of the new product and assured the Iowa City distributor $250 a month net profit, the counter-claim started. Rayburn, however, stated in his petition that profit for the period, May to November, was only $259.

Jury members were dismissed for the remainder of the term after the plaintiff's attorneys failed to make an appearance, Judge Gaffney announced.

The law firm of Stutt, Lucier and Elmquist represented the plaintiff. Atty. W. J. Jackson and the law firm of Byington and Rabe represented Rayburn.

Date Set for Investigation of Prison Farm at Oakdale

County Grand Jury To Hear Testimony On Case November 17

Investigation of charges that Oakdale sanatorium prison farm employees and officials supplied trustees with intoxicating liquor will be heard by a Johnson county grand jury Nov. 17, County Attorney Edward F. Rate announced yesterday.

The special grand jury inquiry was deemed necessary, Attorney Rate stated, following the suggestion made by Judge James P. Gaffney after he heard the three Anamosa convicts testify in district court that they had been supplied liquor by sanatorium employees.

After Judge Gaffney's request that a special grand jury investigation be held, the Iowa board of control announced that it had already conducted its own investigation last summer.

The board stated that the Oakdale employees, charged by the convicts with supplying intoxicating liquor, were no longer employed at the sanatorium and made denial of the convicts' surprise testimony.

The convicts, Robert Mathews, Steve Lepovitz and Joe Yenger, escaped from Oakdale July 8 and surrendered to Anamosa prison officials the following morning at Triumph, Ill., after they "sobered up."

The three convicts, all trustees, were each sentenced to five years for breaking jail at the sanatorium camp and one year, to run concurrently with the other sentence, for driving a state-owned car into Illinois when they made their escape.

During the trial three weeks ago, the convicts testified that they had been on a three-day drunk before they broke jail and that the liquor was furnished by Oakdale officials.

They named Richard Peck, son of Dr. J. H. Peck, superintendent at Oakdale, George Marselliat, head headman at Oakdale, who was in charge of the convicts sent there by Foss Davis, warden at Anamosa, and a "Mr. Day," paroled convict who brought them some liquor.

Dr. Peck emphatically denied the statements made by the three convicts. He said that such conditions did not exist at the sanatorium and that if any liquor was furnished the men it was brought by Chester Day, the paroled convict.

In regard to the convicts' charges that Marselliat allowed the convicts to buy after-shave lotion and supplies to make wine, Dr. Peck stated he had full confidence in Marselliat and that he did not furnish them any liquor.

As far as the convicts getting alcohol from Dr. D. R. Webb, the sanatorium superintendent stated that the men received some in small quantities, but then only on a doctor's prescription.

Following the trial of the three convicts, Judge Gaffney said "the board of control and people of this state are entitled to have this matter cleared up. They can't have liquor in trustee camps."

Before sentencing the men Judge Gaffney promised them "that the men furnishing you liquor are every bit as guilty as you. The men will be brought to court the same as you."

All evidence available will be presented the grand jury, Attorney Rate indicated, and if an indictment is handed down the case will probably come up at the November term of court. If no indictment is returned the matter will probably be considered closed.
