Russians Declare Nazis Driven From Rostov, Hitler's Ukrainian Forces Fleeing in Complete Rout

As Threat to Moscow Grows, Red Leaders Order 'No Retreat'

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government issued this order yesterday to the defenders of Moscow: "To retreat for more than one step is a crime none shall forgive. 'Stop the enemy! Beat them out of their positions. 'This is an order which is not to be broken.'"

MOSCOW — Rostov, anchor in the defense of the Caucasus, has been delivered from the German invader, the southern German army of Field Marshal General Ewald von Kleist has been smashed and five of his tank, motorized and SS divisions are fleeing in rout, the Russians declared last night.

Seven hundred miles to the north, on the northwestern sector of the Moscow front, the Germans also were declared to have been thrown for a heavy loss. The broadcast said winter-hardened Soviet troops had sprung across the ice-bridged Volga southeast of Kalinin and recaptured at least four towns in a drive into the flank of the German salient thrust menacingly toward the red capital.

Sends Congratulations
A special announcement on Rostov said Joseph Stalin had sent congratulations to Soviet troops for the "deliverance of Rostov from the fascist invaders," and raising "our glorious Soviet flag in Rostov."

The Russians smashed into the vital Black Sea port from two directions, one force under Commander Lemidov storming across the Don river and occupying the southern part of the city, while the other under General Karitnov drove through from the northeast.

Two Nazi Soldiers Die in Paris Blast

PARIS (AP)—Two German soldiers were killed by a bomb explosion in a Paris restaurant last night. A number of German soldiers were wounded. German authorities immediately ordered a 6 p.m. curfew in a part of the 18th arrondissement, where the bombing occurred in the Nazi-occupied restaurant Montmartre.

Roosevelt Warns Aggressor Nations—

America Behind Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Alertly waiting for Tokyo's next move in the acute Japanese-American crisis, President Roosevelt warned critics yesterday that America is united behind its foreign policy of opposition to aggression anywhere on earth.

SMILE—SEE PRESIDENT—FROWN

While rumors of continuing Japanese preparations for an attack on Thailand or the Burma road came from the Far East, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, left in the photo at top, Japanese ambassador to the United States, and Saburo Kurusu, right, special envoy from Tokyo, conferred with President Roosevelt in the White House. When they entered, they were smiling, top photo; when they left, the smiles had been replaced by grimaces, lower photo, lending credence to reports that the chief executive had taken a firm stand in negotiations seeking a peaceful settlement of problems in the Orient.

Charge 'Organized Campaign' Being Waged to Break Morale

Naval Heads Condemn Sympathy Letters To Seamen's Families

WASHINGTON (AP)—The navy charged yesterday that an "organized campaign" was being waged to undermine civilian morale by trading on the grief of survivors of American seamen lost in the battle of the Atlantic.

thought their son was dead, told the secretary. "We reject sympathy from such an organization. They belong with the Nazi. Wipe them out of the U.S.A."

'U.S. Influence To Be Purged From Far East'

Premier Tojo Flays Democracies as Japan Replies to U.S. Note

NEW YORK (AP)—Japan has replied to the United States note setting forth America's position in the Far East and expressed dissatisfaction with certain points, the British radio said last night in a broadcast relayed from a Tokyo broadcast. The BBC was heard by NBC.

TOKYO (AP)—Premier Hideki Tojo solemnly and publicly declared last night the determination of Japan to purge British and American influence from East Asia "with a vengeance—for the honor and pride of mankind."

Tojo broadcast this message to the people of Japan, China, and Manchukuo: "Fishing in Troubled Waters
The fact that Chiang Kai-Shek is dancing to the tune of Britain, America and communism at the expense of able-bodied and promising young men in his resistance against Japan, is only due to the desire of Britain and the United States to fish in troubled waters of East Asia by pitting East Asiatic people against one another and to grasp hegemony in East Asia. "This is the stock in trade of Britain and the United States. For the honor and pride of mankind we must purge this sort of practice from East Asia with a vengeance."

Bomb Burma Road
The Domei news agency reported from an army air base in northern Indo-China that Japanese planes had bombed the Burma road, the route for U. S. aid to Chungking.

The dispatch said one bomber destroyed a Chinese convoy of trucks on the road south of Kunning, Yunnan province capital, and nearby warehouses.

The Japan Times and Advertiser, English language organ of the foreign office, said in a front page editorial that Japan must keep Indo-China and Thailand free from "encircling arms"—presumably the United States, British, Chinese and Netherlands influence.

Jury Deliberates Case Of 23 Persons Accused Of Seditious Conspiracy

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A jury of eleven men and one woman, confronted with 2,400 typewritten pages of testimony and hundreds of books and pamphlets of the Socialist Workers party, last night deliberated the case of 23 persons accused of seditious conspiracy against the United States government.

'American Boys May Fight Next Year', F.R. Declares

Signing of the anti-Comintern pact in Berlin by representatives of 13 governments, some of them puppet regimes, has brought about a virtual German 'League of Nations,' including 10 European members and three in the Far East. The European members of the new group are shown on the above Central Press map. In addition, Japan and her two puppet governments in China and Manchukuo have signed the pact.

Trapped Axis Forces Begin New Offensive to Smash British Ring

Report Battle Raging Without Either Side 'Gaining or Losing'

CAIRO — German and Italian forces trapped east of Tobruk have reassembled "their remaining tanks" and, in a mighty effort to escape from their encirclement, have smashed head-on into a British wall and become deadlocked in a new major tank battle, the British announced yesterday.

Axis Problem: To Get Panzers Westward Out of Encirclement

LONDON — The admiralty announced yesterday that two British submarines had sunk at least eight axis troop and supply ships recently in Arctic waters, leading informed British sources to believe that Germany was having to replace battered Finnish troops on the Murmansk front.

Report French Yield To German Demands

LONDON (AP) A foreign source reported last night that the Vichy government had yielded to German demands for air and naval control in French North Africa along both the Mediterranean and Atlantic.

Adds Ominous Note to Crisis In East Asia

President Speaks At Warm Springs Foundation Dinner

WARM SPRINGS, Ga. (AP)—President Roosevelt said last night it was always possible that "our boys in the military and naval academies may be fighting for the defense of American institutions" by next Thanksgiving. Then he conferred with Secretary Hull by telephone, and considered rushing back to Washington because of the latest turn in the Japanese situation.

Mr. Roosevelt made his ominous statement about the possibility of fighting at a dinner at the Warm Springs foundation for infantile paralysis victims. Returning to the "Little White House" on Pine mountain, he found a call from Hull awaiting him, and reached the opinion that he might have to leave here this afternoon, and arrive in Washington tomorrow morning, in view of a statement by Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo.

The premier asserted earlier yesterday that Japan would have to do everything possible to wipe out with a vengeance British and United States exploitation in the far east. Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, told reporters: "As soon as the president returned to the cottage following the dinner last evening, he found a call waiting from the secretary of state and they held a lengthy conversation. "In view of the reported statement—an Associated Press dispatch by the premier of Japan—the president last night was of the opinion that we may have to leave Warm Springs this afternoon, arranging the railroad schedule so as to arrive in Washington tomorrow before noon."

SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIANS UNLOADED

Supplies from the United States and Great Britain to aid Soviet Russia are shown in the two photos above as they were unloaded at a named port on the Persian gulf. Here war materials are trans-shipped to the Soviet Union by rail and caravan. A cargo sling crammed with crates is shown, top, being lowered to the quay. In the bottom photo, native workers are assembling an American automobile.

Words of Wisdom: 'Intelligent Peace making Requires Charity, and Charity Is a Small Ingredient of Victory'

To the Editor: Thanks for taking a liek at the laggards among us who have no time to think about our national future. It was very truly said by a great man that when we no longer had to risk our lives for our rights we would no longer cherish them. There are many people elsewhere who would give all they have for the right of self-government; while here, with men who can't tell us what we need to know and with libraries full of books on the subject, we have no time to make ourselves worthy of the right.

Now here is precisely what I mean. We are involved already in the Second World War. I do not want war; but there is no use in kicking a dead dog. What is needed now is intelligent planning for peace.

There are in this town and all over the nation groups of farsighted people, some organized and some not, who are convinced that "if the peace is lost all is lost." The Atlantic Charter of the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting is a product of such farsightedness.

But why worry about peace when we are not yet actually at war? Because when peace is at hand it will be too late to start thinking. Intelligent peacemaking requires charity, and charity is a small ingredient of victory.

Remember the victorious greed of the French at Versailles, one of whose papers demanded reparations with the remark, "It is not to our advantage to prevent them (the Germans) from breathing; but the surplus above this minimum ought to come to us."

To anticipate so selfish a peace, here are some ideas which I put forward for consideration and comment.

FIRST, that no power or combination of powers—including Great Britain and ourselves—has the right to dominate subsequent world government. The fault of considering ourselves a world police force lies in the fallacy that all peoples have the same notions of desirable government as we have, and are willing to waive their own for ours.

It is our job to institute in effect (not necessarily in fact) a workable world democracy, in which there can be difference without disunion—without compulsion to join, nor exclusion of those nations whom we may righteously label aggressors, but made so attractive that no nation will wish to remain outside.

This end can be served by such measures as free trade agreements, access to raw materials, the sharing of scientific and technological developments, and equal representation at a central council.

Secondly, the limits of any reparations to be paid by defeated nations should be clearly defined in terms of ability to pay, allowing for the normal economic needs of those nations and not based upon the full costs of war. In fact, ideally there would be no indemnity or reparations at all. Even the most prudent administration of the debt must inflict hardship and resentment on the debtor nation, while the creditor nations will find greed and wild speculation hard on the heels of such inflowing wealth—as France discovered in 1919.

THIRDLY, negotiations should proceed on the principle that the guilt of war is not single but divided. All who participate share the blame—some for the actual beginning of hostilities, others for bungling and shortsightedness. When peace comes, it is time to stop saying, "Johnny did it" and resolve for the future that our first and best contribution to world peace will be keeping our own house in order.

FOURTHLY, final territorial and political settlements should be based upon the future stability of such arrangements rather than the immediate wants of the deliberators. The creation of corridors to the sea, the separation of long-united territories, and the fabrication of artificial nations are dangerous experiments. In this connection I think it unwise to impose any governmental institutions—even democratic—upon a people without their expressed will that it should be done. Self-evident as that precept may seem, we are likely to forget it in our zeal to share our own institutions with the world.

FIFTHLY, the actual place of the peace conference ought to be outside Europe, removed from the scenes of battle, where people can breathe deeply, where they have not been embittered. If our share in the war is as great as we are led to believe, we have reason to hold the meeting here. Perhaps a neutral non-European country would be more easily agreed upon. In either place statesmen would be free to make a far more equitable peace.

Now these are random suggestions and may have no merit. But there is one ingredient of peace that cannot be overlooked: and that is the tolerant acceptance of differences. Where there is freedom there are bound to be differences; and the surest sign of tyranny is too great agreement. Departing, therefore, from the naive assumption that it would be best, even if possible, to have our whole way in the peace, we must be prepared to compromise and adjudicate with defeated nations as well as allies.

The point of the peace will not be the ordering of international affairs upon a basis which we judge to be right, but the clearing of a path to harmony and community of feeling, allowing individual nations to retain their own forms and processes.

Only on such a premise can we build a friendly world where children can grow up slowly and bomb shelters be unknown.

Yours very sincerely, C. L. NEUDLING, G. St. Louis

(Sanity in a wartime world blazes forth like a lighthouse in a stormy sea. If a sensible and lasting peace follows this struggle it will be because voices like yours, Mr. Neudling, are raised loudly enough and insistently enough to demand attention.)

(It is expressions like yours which make it unnecessary for Iowa students to "answer" the charges of a certain Iowa columnist that we are "uninformed."—THE EDITOR.)

When O. Welles Does It, They Call It 'Genius'

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When you and I go around in circles, it's pitiful. When Orson Welles goes around in circles—and spends a couple of days doing it—it's genius.

Mr. Welles' circumnavigations, to be sure, were purposeful. They were also tricky. Camera-tricky. "The Magnificent Ambersons"—those turn-of-the-century mid-western folks Booth Tarkington wrote about and Orson Welles is filming—were having a grand Christmas ball.

Orson, who is directing, took the camera to the party to and in and around and over and maybe, though I'm not sure, under.

He wanted to cruise around the festivities with one long, continuous shot, the camera on a crane and truck.

It would start at the buffet supper table, proceed through the hall, take in the stairway, swing around past the mirrored mantelpiece, the music platform, the orchestra. It would pick up scattered, revealing bits of conversation, pause on important dancing couples, end where it had started by the supper table, focusing finally on the dancing and talk of Tim Holt and Anne Baxter, the romantic leads.

Now dolly, or truck shots are not uncommon. But ordinarily they don't have to deal with an Amberson idea of home and home decoration.

For the Ambersons, wealthy and social, had scads of dough in this 1904—before changing times depleted their fortune—and they plastered their mansion with store-bought things. They incorporated in their home designing all the latest, most precious horrors of the American grotesque period in architecture.

They had enormous crystal chandeliers with flickering gas lights; colossal vases, urns, potted plants; stained-glass windows by the stair—well, honoring Love, Beauty, Purity, Art, Literature, Science; gigantic gilt-framed mirrors; objects d'art from some chamber of horrors, and jigsawed scab woodwork everywhere.

For two and a half days the rehearsals proceeded, Orson riding the truck—and sometimes the players—with kingly dignity. At times the camera skidded only inches from some projecting atrocity. At others workmen dextrously removed walls, furniture, vases before its approach, an operation requiring split-second timing. Besides the furniture, there were 74 extras to be in and out of their proper places on time. There were close-ups, medium and long shots in a scene running four or five minutes on the screen.

Wall Street Rebel Directs a Play

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—When, nearly two decades ago, John C. Wilson forsook Wall street, he committed a twin rebellion. First, he ran away from prosperity, which The Street had to give in those days; second, he outraged tradition that all Yale men were irrevocably committed to bond-selling careers.

There have been times, lots of times, when Wilson regretted that flight. But now he has achieved the ambition that actuated it, and he feels better. He has scored a success as a stage director, in Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit." The youthfulness has been justified.

When "Blithe Spirit" played in New Haven recently, a Yale reporter suggested that Wilson had left that college stage—struck. Wilson enlarged upon the impeachment: He had come into Yale stage-struck, bearing the virus down from Andover. There he had been the busiest of prep school actors, just as he became the busiest of college performers with the Yale Drama. His counselor was Monty Woolley, later the astringent house guest in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." A fellow player was a young zealot named Henry Luce.

Wilson entered bonds, in the phase of the times, at the behest of his father. But he solaced his longing for the theater by acting with an amateur group. Finally he professionalized this discontent by joining a touring troupe of "Poly Preferred." A short service to films, as assistant director, tightened his bond with show business.

A studio lay-off allowed him a holiday in Sicily, where he wrote scenarios in job lots. When most of his ideas and all of his money were exhausted, he set out for Wall street again to renew his endeavors to keep body and soul together.

It was at this point that Coward entered his life and rescued him from The Bourse. He became the author-star's manager. Later he organized his own producing firm, with Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt and Coward as associates. The firm's immediate success placed him in the front rank of managers, but it failed to assuage his longing to participate in the actual building of plays. That ambition, born at Andover, never grew smaller. He still hankered for a place on the stage himself.

His misfortune was too many riches. Since Coward and Lunt were peerless directors in their own right, he could hardly propose himself for their jobs. He is not one to suggest improvements on perfection. He resigned himself to the business end of the firm.

But the mail which brought the manuscript of "Blithe Spirit" brought opportunity, too. Coward was held in London. Lunt was committed to a tour. His shot at direction had arrived. Wilson realized the risk he took. Coward's expert direction had become accepted as an integral part of his plays. Should that be lacking, the blame would be squarely on Wilson. His chin was shockingly exposed.

With success have come offers to direct other plays. These are gratifying in the extreme for they are Wilson's assurance that he guessed right in throwing away his stocks-and-bonds kit.

No Student Government UNTIL

To the Editor: Several days ago there appeared an article signed by a certain Mr. Junius Teufelsdröck, in which Mr. T urged that the question of student government be put to a test by ballots. I wonder if Mr. T is exactly aware of the response which he would get from such action?

In my humble opinion, the biggest fault of the entire movement for student government, or for that matter any reform, is ignorance, which must be dispelled before positive actions will follow.

Let Mr. T glance over the names of the people, gentlefolk all of them, who have deigned to commit themselves to print in this column. He will find to his sorrow that they can be numbered on both hands.

It is in a spirit of hero worship that I make the following request. Let Mr. T hold off on his fatal ballot until we hear from a few more of the Isaiahs and Cassandras of the campus. Let us have a few more fulminations from the Furiosus, or at least several monstrosities from the morbid.

Let us go about it in this way. Open before me is a copy of the directory, and from it I have taken names of students who do not know me, nor do I know them. Hence, they can not politely take it amiss when I say that I would be delighted to hear from them, in print.

Louise Sorenson, A2; Loy Julius, C4; Cecil Hinton, E2, and Margaret Germann, A4, all sound like nice, happy, intelligent people, and I am sure that they must be bursting with ideas on the subject. Don't you think so?

Your Friend, and Julius' SARTOR RESARTUS.

(Sartor Resartus is no more Sartor Resartus than Junius Teufelsdröck was Junius Teufelsdröck.)

(But again, the point is well taken. If the students chosen at random from the directory accept S. Resartus' invitation, which we heartily endorse, and express their candid thoughts on this matter, another stone will have been attached to, or removed from, our foundations—in either case to the great good of all.—THE EDITOR.)

BATTLE OF CORKTOWN

The Christmas Seal: A Beacon of Hope--

(Citizens of the city and county, as well as students of the university, are participants at this time in the struggle against tuberculosis. The following discussion tells you exactly what the fight is about, and how the money you provide each year is spent.—THE EDITOR.)

The lighthouse of the 1941 Christmas seal emphasizes the safeguards which have been erected to protect people—particularly young persons—from the danger of tuberculosis. Each year this deadly disease takes fewer lives.

But the safeguards are not yet high enough or strong enough, for in 1940 alone the Great White Plague caused the death of 436 Iowans. More than 4,000 Iowa men, women and children now are sick with tuberculosis. Some will lose their lives. Others—aided by Iowa's "health lighthouses"—will be saved.

FINDING TUBERCULOSIS EARLY

Tuberculosis causes tuberculosis. It spreads from the sick to the well. Those persons who have had close contact with a case of the disease are therefore in the greatest danger. They must be examined early and often if tuberculosis is to be detected in its beginning.

To make possible such examinations, the tuberculosis associations of Iowa, in cooperation with the state department of health and county medical societies, sponsor examinations of family "contact" cases.

Christmas seal funds finance one-half of all costs. Work is limited largely to counties having less than 30,000 population.

During the 18 months from January 1, 1940, to June 30, 1941, these examinations were offered in 69 counties. More than 4,400 tuberculin skin tests were performed and 3,873 chest X-rays were taken during 1940. There were 230 cases of tuberculosis reported; 62 of them had previously been unknown.

Similar work is carried on locally by the tuberculosis associations, medical societies and nursing organizations in most counties having more than 30,000 residents.

In the past, the tuberculin tests and the X-ray have been two of the most important aids in finding early tuberculosis. A new examination device, the miniature film, is now beyond the experimental stage. Through it, large numbers of people may be checked for tuberculosis. This device, which soon will be in use in Iowa, is typical of the new aids science is constantly developing for the most successful conduct of the campaign against tuberculosis. They, truly, are "beacons of hope."

TREATING TUBERCULOSIS PROPERLY

Once discovered to have tuberculosis, the sick person should be placed under treatment without delay. Usually the tuberculosis sanatorium, specially constructed, equipped and staffed, offers the best opportunity for recovery. Iowa has one state and five county sanatoria, with a total capacity of 829 patients. The largest is the state sanatorium at Okdale, with its 420 beds.

Because treatment is expensive and must be continued over a period of months or years, the costs usually are met from tax funds. It is to the public advantage to have care, even though expensive, given promptly. To do so (1) prevents the spread of the disease to others, (2) offers a greater chance for recovery of health by the sick person, and (3) increases the possibility that the patient will again be a useful member of society.

THE CHRISTMAS SEAL—LIGHTHOUSE OF PROGRESS

For a third of a century, the Christmas seal has been a bright beacon in America's fight to conquer tuberculosis. The sale itself reminds people each year of the danger of the disease and the work needed to suppress it.

Funds from the sale make possible tuberculin tests, X-rays and clinics. They pay for nurses who search out cases of the disease and bring patients to treatment. They finance the gathering, compilation and distribution of facts upon the prevalence of the disease and work to combat it. They support a nationwide research program to discover and perfect new methods of warfare.

The statewide Christmas seal financed campaign against tuberculosis was begun with the organization of the Iowa Tuberculosis association in 1915. During the 26 years which have passed, the Iowa tuberculosis death rate decreased two-thirds, from 51.4 per 100,000 persons in 1915 to 17.2 in 1940.

The figures below show the decline in the number of deaths during the 10-year period ending in 1940:

Table with two columns of years and death counts. 1931-574 deaths, 1932-734 deaths, 1933-654 deaths, 1934-619 deaths, 1935-660 deaths. 1936-605 deaths, 1937-538 deaths, 1938-487 deaths, 1939-479 deaths, 1940-436 deaths.

The number of annual deaths is decreasing, but tuberculosis took the lives of nearly 6,000 Iowa residents during the last decade. The fight must go on. Help the Christmas Seal light the way to further progress.

ROOSEVELT

hold next year a Thanksgiving more like an American Thanksgiving. That is something to dream about, perhaps.

"In days like these, our Thanksgiving next year may remind us of a peaceful past; it is always possible that our boys in the military and naval academies may be fighting for the defense of these American institutions of ours."

The president, who twice postponed trips to Warm Springs, where he had planned to observe Thanksgiving, said he could not help thinking of those things and the dangers overhanging the country while he was in Washington contemplating his journey a week and a half ago. And he said he might have to go back tomorrow or the next day, but he did not know.

Whimsically, the chief executive noted that he had been unable to be present here either on the Thanksgiving date he proclaimed or on the traditional date a week later. Last night's dinner was something of a "third Thanksgiving dinner" for him.

And, he said, this was a year for Thanksgiving especially because the people in the Warm Springs dining room, in the community, the state and the United States were in a very unique position today. The United States is one of the largest nations in the world, Mr. Roosevelt remarked, and nearly all the other large nations are involved in a war of some kind or other or normal lives within them are almost completely blotted out or controlled by a dictator.

Leading up to his remark that men from the military and naval academies might be fighting for defense in a year, the president said he had listened to broadcasts of two football games yesterday afternoon, between Georgia and Georgia Tech at Atlanta and the Army and Navy at Philadelphia.

"They were great games, run in the spirit of peace," he said. "And the right kind of national spirit of peace is necessary for the right conduct of either the Georgia game or the Army-Navy game. How many other countries in the world could have things like that going on?"

So, he went on, he thought Americans had great cause to be thankful that in the years since 1918 they had been able to hold their gains or carry on health and education and other programs on a cooperative basis.

The chief executive spoke informally, without notes. Whether his words about the possibility of fighting were based on some undisclosed specific knowledge of events that may be expected in the field of foreign affairs or merely were intended as a generalization and warning was not readily discernable.

Some of those who heard him thought the latter might be true, inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt has said over and over that Americans always stood ready to fight for the preservation of their freedom and their rights.

For the most part, Mr. Roosevelt spoke reminiscently about the Warm Springs foundation which he established, or of his hopes for its future. He said he hoped the institution never would grow up and become of age, because to be successful it must make progress in the future as it has in the past 13 or 14 years.

Yet every time he comes back, the president said, he finds many new things here—so many this time that he will be unable to see them all in the few days he expects to remain.

Mr. Roosevelt sat at the head table with four other trustees of the foundation and some of the younger patients. There had been a brief bit of professional entertainment and an amateur skit by several of the patients who "kidded" the foundation staff and themselves to the obvious enjoyment of the president.

The chief executive was introduced by Basil O'Connor, his former law partner and the president of the foundation, who pronounced the occasion momentous and unique in the nation's history. The president said jocularly that two or three years ago he had discovered he was particularly fond of turkey and "we started two Thanksgivings."

"This year we take another step," he said, "and I don't know how many we ought to have next year. I'm open to suggestions." Following the huge turkey dinner with all the trimmings, the program began with the singing of the national anthem, and then all the 300 patients, friends and relatives who were able rose again and sang a song especially for Mr. Roosevelt: "Hearty Welcome to You," to the tune of "Happy Birthday to You."

For Mr. Roosevelt, it was a "third Thanksgiving dinner." Pressing international and domestic affairs had compelled him to postpone twice his visit to the foundation, and the turkey dinners planned for Nov. 20 and then for Nov. 27 were postponed, too.

WSUI Represents Iowa's Most Interesting Campus Laboratory

First Broadcast Held In Physics Building With Call Letters 9YA

By GRETCHEN HAYES
 "This is WSUI, the broadcasting station of the State University of Iowa in Iowa City, 910 on your radio dial."
 Heard every day by thousands of listeners throughout the state, this identifies one of the most interesting laboratories on the Iowa campus.

With the distinction of being the first radio telephone transmitter west of the Mississippi, WSUI broadcast its initial program under the call letters of 9YA in 1911. At that time it had a 2,000 watt transmitter in the basement of the physics building.

The first course in radio was given with a half-hour each week of demonstration. Carl H. Menzer, now director of the station, was the only operator with a student helper occasionally. Because of the war, WSUI was closed from 1917 to 1919.

WSUI was licensed in 1922 to operate on 850 kilocycles under the call letters of WHIA. At that time, it moved to the studio now known as the old Old Gold studio on the third floor of the engineering building. The room was acoustically obsolete and had only one control booth.

For some time the officials wanted to obtain the call letters of WSUI but could not because they were the signal of a ship. When the ship was put out of commission in 1925, the station received its present letters.

Classroom broadcasting started in 1928, at which time Prof. C. C. Wylie of the astronomy department gave astronomy lectures and Prof. Sam Sloan presented a series on the English novel. In 1930, Prof. P. G. Clapp, now head of the music department, started the music classroom series that have been broadcast regularly since then. These classroom broadcasts were the first known.

Increased power rights were given the station in 1934 when it was authorized to broadcast on 1,000 watts.

For several years power speakers mounted on the roof of the engineering building to send the programs over the campus and business district. Operating power is now 5,000 watts during the day and 1,000 at night. Numerous classrooms and buildings have remote broadcasting apparatus and are the scenes of many regular programs.

The greatest step in growth was taken in 1934 when the university set up a radio staff to assist Professor Menzer in his work. Mrs. Pearl Bennett Broxam was added to the staff the same year and is now program director.

Soon after, WSUI and WOI at Ames, started the first chain of educational stations in the United States, when they agreed to re-broadcast certain of the programs each day in order to cover the entire state.

Experimentation has played a large part in the development of the station. Among the new work was the furnishing of sound for the university's television station, WOXUL. The two stations have worked together for many years presenting television over the air.

In September of 1939, WSUI moved into the new building adjacent to the engineering building. It now has five studios and modern equipment.

Studio A in the basement is the scene of all dramas and serial presentations. Studio D on the second floor is a radio classroom where several professors present radio classes. Also on the second floor is the audience studio, E, which holds 160 people. The "Hawkeye Parades" and various other audience programs are broadcast from this studio.

The two main studios, B and C, on the ground floor, have a large lounge where anyone interested in watching the broadcast may enter at any time the studio is open.

WSUI is non-commercial and is operated by the university. It has never sold one minute of time on the air.

Last year, the first annual conference on applied radio was held here in Iowa City. Sponsored by colleges of the university, it was attended by people from all parts of the United States.

At a dinner in Iowa Union, the new building and the three 225 foot transmitters located near Coralville were dedicated. During the ceremony, Dr. James R. Angell, educational counselor for NBC, said, "WSUI is dedicated to the presentation and enrichment of our American way of life."

Students play an important part in the work done by the station. They write continually, direct productions, announce and provide a large part of the talent.

WSUI has proved its worth as a training center as well as a station interested in forwarding education by the fact that a great number of WSUI graduates have obtained important positions on the larger networks.

Some of the students who have gained prominence are Art Bellaire, now in the news department at NBC in New York City; Fred Keller, chief announcer over WOOD-WASH in Grand Rapids, Mich.; Beverly Barnes, who is working on women's programs at WLW, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Lois Ann Russell, working in the script department at NBC in New York City.

Price of Milk To Increase Cent Per Quart

A one-cent per quart increase in the price of milk will become effective here Dec. 1, the Johnson County Milk Marketing association announced last night through its president, M. F. Sullivan.

The price boost will not affect cream, Sullivan said, but it will include wholesale and retail milk sales. The rise will send milk up to 12 cents a quart.

Sullivan, spokesman for more than 75 farmers who supply the three local dairies, said the increase was in line with similar action taken by dairy men throughout Iowa. Higher costs of feed and distribution as well as the increased demand for dairy products to be shipped to England necessitated the increase, Sullivan said.

2 Conscientious Objectors To Go to Camp Denison

Walter Shogquist, head clerk in the local draft board office, announced yesterday that two Johnson county conscientious objectors, Ronald E. Hartzler and Truman W. Schrock, both of Kalona, will leave Dec. 9 for Camp Denison.

Dean W. J. Teeters Rates Exposition 'A Fine Success'

Approximately 1,500 persons, including scouts from Iowa, Johnson and Washington counties, attended the two-day Boy Scout merit badge exposition which closed here last night.

The scouts presented exhibits and demonstrations of everyday life in booths sponsored by Iowa City business firms.

Owen B. Thiel, local scout executive, said that "the show surpassed all expectations of any of the committee members and was more than the scouts had hoped to accomplish."

"The show was a fine success," Dean Emeritus Wilber J. Teeters, chairman of the sponsors committee, said. "It offered a wonderful opportunity for the general public to see what the scouts are doing," he added.

Johnson County District Court Will Hear Damage Suits in Term Opening Tomorrow

Three Actions Arise From Automobile, Farm Accidents

A Johnson county district court petit jury, to be empaneled tomorrow at 10 o'clock, will hear two suits resulting from automobile accidents and another damage action resulting from a farm accident.

Judge Harold D. Evans, in assignment sheet released earlier this week, scheduled the following cases to be heard beginning Monday: Coon vs. Rieke, Shatto vs. Grabin and Greer vs. Novotny.

Coon vs. Ruke
 In the first civil case, J. L. Coon asks $27,650 judgment against W. H. Rieke for injuries received in a car-truck collision near West Liberty Dec. 30, 1940.

The plaintiff's petition claims that Henry H. Hammer, employee of the defendant, was negligent in the operation of his truck, was driving at excessive speed and that his truck was improperly lighted.

For injuries and disabilities of a permanent nature, hospital services, loss of future time and damages to his car, which Coon claims were received in the collision, he seeks damages in the aggregate amount of $27,650.

Atty. D. C. Nolan and A. C. Cahill represent the plaintiff. The law firm of Dutcher, Ries and Dutcher represent Rieke.

Shatto vs. Grabin
 Robert Shatto, plaintiff, asks for $25,000 damages from Frank Grabin for injuries received while employed on the Roy Willies farm Sept. 30, 1940.

Plaintiff's petition states that

Grabin negligently and carelessly operated a hay stacker and dropped the plaintiff abruptly to the ground as he rode the machine in making a descent from a soybean stack.

In an amended petition, Shatto sought a writ of attachment on the defendant's property to secure his claim.

Grabin in a motion filed later sought to strike the negligence charges from counts one and two of the plaintiff's petition.

Atty. D. C. Nolan and Ingalls Swisher represent Shatto and the law firm of Messer, Hamilton and Cahill represent Grabin.

Greer vs. Novotny
 Fred P. Novotny is defendant in the third action scheduled Monday in which R. G. Greer asks $297.11 judgment as a result of accident on highway 218 north of Iowa City last April.

Novotny in a counter-claim asks that the plaintiff's petition be dismissed and that he be awarded

John Mullinex Funeral Rites Conducted Friday

Funeral service for John D. Mullinex, 80, father of Charles G. Mullinex, 22 N. Gilbert, was held at Shellsburg Friday. Mullinex died at Shellsburg Wednesday after a lingering illness.

The Rev. Elmer Dierks of the First Baptist church in Iowa City, assisted in the service.

Mullinex is survived by his wife, five sons, two daughters, thirteen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

E. J. Smith Jr. Transferred

Ernest J. Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Smith, 741 Dearborn, has been transferred to the Great Lakes naval training school after having passed his naval examination Friday at Des Moines. He will be at the station base for six weeks.

$229.16 judgment for damage to his car and loss of time.

Both Greer and Novotny in their original petitions claim negligence on the part of the other. The accident occurred April 25, 1941, near Curtis bridge.

Atty. D. C. Nolan represents Greer. Atty. Edward L. O'Connor represents Novotny.

Farm Bureau Office Receives 2nd Group Of Parity Checks

A second group of parity checks, totaling $64,452.62, has been received at the farm bureau office and will be distributed Tuesday, Ray E. Smalley, AAA chairman, reported yesterday.

Notices were sent out yesterday to 244 Johnson county farmers cooperating in the agricultural conservation program. John B. O'Connor, treasurer of the county AAA, will pay out the checks between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The first checks were paid out Nov. 5 when approximately one-tenth of the county cooperators received a total of $42,890 in A.C.P. and parity payments.

These two groups of checks are only a part of the quota which will be received, Smalley explained. Approximately 1700 county farmers are participating in the department of agriculture program and will receive the remainder of the checks in the near future.

Checks received to date total $107,000. The average of the individual checks is about $270.

Prankster Boudreau

New Tribe Manager Has Unusual Ability To Mix Work, Play

By DAVE HOFF

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The Daily Iowan's Special News Service—The day's basketball practice was nearly over at the University of Illinois. Fagged-out reserves scrimmaged while Coach Douglas Mills sat in the stands surrounded by sports writers and spectators. Mills called:

"One more basket and call it a night."
They made the basket, and looked to the bench.
"One more basket," boomed an authoritative voice.

The reserves went at it again. Once more the ball swished the nets. Again, came the call:
"Just one more, boys."
This went on several minutes. Suddenly Mills glanced up.

"Say, why don't you guys stop," he shouted. "I said you could go awhile ago."
The players, puzzled, went to the locker room, while in the stands a black-haired youth sat grinning. He was Louis Boudreau, star sophomore member of the Illinois cage team and possessor of the authoritative voice which the reserves had thought was Mills'. That was in 1936.

Today, that same Boudreau, his first name dropped to "Lou," is ready to embark on a career as manager of a major league baseball team—the Cleveland Indians—at the age of 24, or just five years removed from the smiling prankster of college days.

Ready For Fun
Lou Boudreau was always ready for a little fun—after he had done more than his share of hard work. There was the time he swiped Coach Mills' overcoat in freezing weather over at Peoria—"giving me the biggest chill of my coaching career," Mills says. There were times when Baseball Coach Wallie Rottger, having sent Boudreau, his star third baseman to the showers, would find Lou warming up with the pitchers in the bullpen, displaying his fancied prowess with knuckle ball or curve.

Everyone liked Boudreau for his lightheartedness, but when it was time for business, Lou was as serious as they come.

"Describe a play to the boy once," recalls Rottger, "and he grasped the idea completely—sometimes he understood what you had in mind before you finished telling him."

That's the answer his friends make to the cries of "inexperience" that were mingled with congratulatory words when his managerial appointment was announced last Tuesday.

Both Mills and Rottger know Boudreau for a nimble mind, just as men who played against the flying Frenchman know his nimble feet and hands. They're sure he'll meet every baseball situation with the maturity of a veteran and the ability of a clear thinker.

There was one time that perhaps the modest youngster didn't have everything doped out. That was during his junior year at Illinois, when reports came that Boudreau's family was accepting payment from the Cleveland Indians in return for Lou's verbal promise to play baseball for the Tribe after his graduation.

Boudreau didn't duck that pitch. He was promptly declared ineligible for further college competition, and when summer came the fleet Frenchman went off to the minor leagues.

But all the while he was wending a sensational way up to the majors, Boudreau wanted to complete his schooling, and he came back to Champaign to win his degree. Illinois admired his gamesness, his quiet personality and his heady grin. He was good coaching material, and in the off-season they called him back to help out with basketball practice.

Will Continue Coaching
That's what he was doing last Monday when President Alva Bradley's call came asking Boudreau to report to Cleveland. The contract ceremonies over, he hurried back home to his wife and 2½-year-old daughter, Barbara, and made plans to continue his coaching job until February, excepting for trips to the minor and major league baseball meetings.

In grammar school days, Lou Boudreau was just another little kid in the back streets of Harvey, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. Then one day he got hold of a baseball and later a basketball.

He's been a star ever since—not only a star but a leader. He organized his high school baseball team and led his prep basketball team to one state championship and to the runnerup spot two other years.

He won great respect from his coaches and teammates when he went to Illinois. He took his admirable qualities into professional baseball. Alva Bradley summed it up when he announced Boudreau's appointment:

"I don't know of another man of whom I could be so certain that he would be thoroughly respected by players, press and public. Lou is smart, he is a

All-Vet Cage Team Will Probably Carry 20-Tilt Hawk Burden

Season Opens Dec. 13 With Washington U. Of St. Louis Here

An all-veteran basketball team will probably be Coach Rollie Williams' choice to carry the burden through a 20-game schedule opening with Washington university of St. Louis here Dec. 13.

Biggest shift of the practice season has been the transfer of Co-capt. Vic Siegel of Davenport from forward to the backcourt, and the moving up of Co-capt. Rudy Soderquist of Rapid City, S.D., from guard to forward.

Siegel, who has been out of workouts with a fractured cheekbone for the past two weeks, is expected to be back for service sometime next week. He will wear a special steel mask to protect his face.

Veterans Available
Plenty of veterans are available to fortify the forward wall. Tom Chapman, who looped in 100 points last season, will be one of those returning, along with Wendell Hill of Cambridge, a clever ball-handler, and Ben Trickey of Marshalltown, fast and alert grid star.

Two sophomores also expected to see some action up at the forwards are Bob O'Brien of McGregor and Carroll Mullin of Cromwell.

Milt Kuhl of Ida Grove, 6 feet 6 inches, is adequately equipped to take care of the center slot. He was second in scoring last year to Siegel, with 183 points. Dick Hein, who alternates with Kuhl, is now ineligible, but hopes to regain his status by Jan. 10.

Height in Backcourt
Jim O'Brien, a reserve center last year, will probably pair up with Siegel at one of the guards. The object of this move is to give the backcourt more height, as O'Brien is 6-5.

(Pstars)tsud...e4rjt...
If necessary, O'Brien can move up to center to relieve Kuhl, leaving his spot open to either Vince Harsha of Oxford or Bill Wheeler of Newton, both lettermen.

Others who may break into the lineup include Bruce Fountain of Missouri Valley, a minor letter winner; Jim Humphrey of Mason City, guard; and Jack Mowald of International Falls, Minn., a 6-5 sophomore center.

Marquette Capitalizes On Cyclone Errors, 28 to 13
MILWAUKEE (AP)—An alert Marquette football eleven that capitalized on Iowa State errors scored a 28 to 13 victory in the final game of the year for both teams yesterday before a crowd of 8,000.

The Cyclones held Marquette well in check in the early stages but in the final periods Marquette pushed across three touchdowns, all set up by pass interceptions.

Halfback Jimmy Richardson, playing his last game for Marquette, set what was believed to be a new national record in forward passing efficiency as he threw six passes, completing three, to give him a record of 58 completions in 91 throws for a percentage of .637. The best previous record was set by Hugh McCullough of Oklahoma, who had .631 in 1938.

great ball player, a fine young man, a fighter and a leader."
Boudreau was not among the signers of a petition in which some Cleveland players called for the ouster of Manager Oscar Vitt two years ago.

Bradley emphasized that Boudreau's personal record had much to do with his selection as the Indians' manager. Lou does not drink or smoke and he uses restrained language. But he's a firebrand on the field and a lot of fun when among friends. In conversation, he's cordial and frank, but cautious when touching on controversial subjects.

"I know I'll make mistakes," he says, "and there are some who'll blame it on my age. I think I can overcome those mistakes with the cooperation of the players. I'm sincere when I say I think the Cleveland players all like me."
The feeling is mutual.

Two-Year Contract
So the lad who never had too much to eat as a youngster is thrust into a two-year job that may pay him $15,000 a season. It's like the way he was thrust into the captaincy of the Illinois cage team at the end of his sophomore year, because there were no juniors eligible for the title.

"Lou would have been captain anyway," said his teammates. "We would have been looking to him for the right word and the right plays even if he hadn't been formally elected."
That's the way it's been all along for Lou Boudreau.

Navy Comes Back in 2nd Half To Drop Army Eleven, 14 to 6

Victory is Middies' Third Straight Win In Classic Series

By BILL BONI
MUNICIPAL STADIUM, PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The man-power which had sent Navy into action as a pronounced favorite over Army yesterday paid off in the second half.

Outcharged, outfought and outscored by a scrapping, snapping Cadet eleven for the first two quarters, the Middies came back fresh at the start of the third period and never even let Army get its hands on the ball until they had driven to two touchdowns.

That made the final score Navy 14, Army 6, for Navy's third straight triumph in this classic and 17th in the 42 games that have been played.

No Stopping Middies
There was no stopping the Middies in that third quarter, and there was no getting by, through or over them for the balance of the half. Army still was in there trying, but it made only one serious threat, a drive to first down on the Middle 17 that ended abruptly when Bill Busik intercepted an Army pass two plays later.

Busik, bowing out of the rivalry together with a whole raft of first or second classmen who will be graduated into the fleet either next month or next June, made his farewell appearance a dazzling one.

He ran and he passed, but most particularly he ran. The 185-pound six-footer from Pasadena, Cal., was just so many pounds and so many feet of twisting, squirming, fighting dynamite that either hit at the holes or made holes where none had been prepared.

Army kicked off to open the second half, and Fullback Sherry Werner of Reading, Pa., launched the scoring march by taking the ball a yard back in the end zone and coming up to his 31-yard line. Then Busik went into action.

Drives 69 Yards
It took Navy 15 plays to go the remaining 69 yards and Barnacle Bill either ran or passed for all but three of them.

Busik had the wind knocked out of him on the Army's one-yard line, and Phil Hurt, 195-pound sub fullback exploded through the middle of the Army line for the touchdown. Bob Leonard kicked the extra point.

Once more Army kicked off, and once more navy drove straight down the field, 68 yards this time in 13 plays and a harmful penalty rolling with a 20-yard runback of the kickoff, and by carrying the ball into the tiring Army line on three of the next five plays helped take it just beyond midfield.

It was getting a bit groggy by this time, so Coach Emery E. (Sweede) Larson sent in 150-pound Howie Clark to relieve him.

The first time they gave him the ball he went for four yards, and the third time he took it he almost duplicated Busik's touchdown preparing play by turning the Cadet flank left for 15 yards to the two-yard line.

Middle Clark Scores
Army halted two Navy cracks at the line, and seemed to get a lift out of a 5-yard penalty on Navy. It wasn't any help, though, for on the next play Clark, starting to his right as if to pass, suddenly wheeled in his tracks and outsprung the Army defenders to the far left-hand corner. Leonard came in for one play and made it good.

In the second quarter, Army went to work. It had lost Fullback Johnny Hatch early in the game. But it got along without him pretty well through here.

Once, on a tremendous Mazur pass to Jim Kelleher for 35 yards, the Cadets made it first down on the Navy 20. They lost the ball on downs on the 16 but came right back the second time they got it again. Mazur took a Navy punt on his 21, and slipped it to Hill. The sophomore streaked up the west sideline for 57 yards before Werner nailed him on the Navy 23.

Army lost five for having a back in motion, but then sent Mazur slashing for 13 to the 15. On the next play Hank wallowed off the Navy left tackle to be forced out by Clark on the 1. He made two feet on his first try, then turned the job over to Jim Watkins, sub fullback from San Saba, Tex., who on his second attempt belted over the Navy right guard for the score.

Cal's Golden Bears Rise Up to Splatter Stanford Hopes, 16-0

Great Defensive Play, 46-Yard Scoring Run, 2 Blocked Punts Win

PALO ALTO, Cal. (AP)—California's Golden Bears, rising to inspirational heights, wrote a stunning climax to an up and down football season yesterday with a 16 to 0 upset victory over the defending coast conference champions, Stanford's Indians.

A crowd of 70,000 fans saw the 1-0-3 short end Bears blast Stanford's flimsy Rose-Bowl hopes with crushing defensive play after moving into a first period lead on a single touchdown run.

California struck with lightning speed a minute after the game opened to score a touchdown, and add the extra point and go into a lead that never was threatened.

Nine more points were posted in a thrilling last quarter, when the Bears poured through to block two Stanford punts. One resulted in an automatic safety, the ball bounding out of the end zone.

The game barely had started when the Bears, getting the ball on Stanford's 46-yard line, flashed to a touchdown. Al Derian, left half, raced that distance after a cut-back inside right end, Joe Merlo, quarterback, booted the placement to make the count, 7-0.

In the fourth quarter, on the safety scoring play, Jean Witter, right guard, charged into Frank Albert before the left-footed All-American quarterback of 1940 could get the ball out of reach.

With two minutes to go, Al Cole, substituting for Albert, was behind his own goal to kick. Glen Whalen, California quarterback, slipped through this time. The ball popped up into the air and big Bob Reinhardt, left tackle, of the Bears and also an All-American holdover from last season, leaped into the air to clutch it for a touchdown. Merlo added the extra point with a place-kick.

Pro Redskins Meet Green Bay Packers In Lead Game Today

CHICAGO (AP)—The Washington Redskins, who muffed two big chances to get somewhere in the National football league the last two Sundays, are out of the championship running, but they will have one last chance for glory today when they entertain the Green Bay Packers.

Beaten two weeks ago by the Chicago Bears, 35-21, and last week by the New York Giants, 20-13, Washington could dash the Packers' western division title hopes by winning.

The defeats by the Bears and Giants culminated in the Redskins losing the eastern flag to the New Yorkers. All that's left to be decided is the western title, for which the Bears and Packers are virtually tied. Obviously, a Packers defeat would help to settle the mess and the Redskins could do a little gloating.

Washington will pit its passing star, Sammy Baugh, against Green Bay's Cecil Isbell who seems destined to oust slinging Sammy from his position as the league's best thrower. Don Hutson, Green Bay end, will be out to set a new single-season and all-time scoring record in the league. All he needs is one touchdown or two conversions and a field goal.

The Bears will exchange notes on the "T" formation with the Philadelphia Eagles, eastern exponents of the gridiron strategy which marks the George Halas brand of coaching. The Eagles, winners of only two games, are not expected to stop the Bears, but if they should, and if Green Bay beats Washington, the Chicagoans' title chances would vanish.

Outside of those two games the next-to-last week's schedule offers little excitement. The Brooklyn Dodgers will be hosts to the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates in an eastern division tilt and the Chicago Cardinals will meet the Lions at Detroit.

The first half was scoreless, but within the first seven minutes of the third quarter "Choo" Shelton, Beaver fullback, had scored. Sub Halfback Warren Sima's kick for point sailed wide.

Oregon went ahead, striking on the first play of the last quarter. Curt Meacham, who played a whale of a game at halfback, ran to his left with his arm cocked as if to pass. But he cut for the sidelines instead, outdistanced the Oregon State secondary and went over the goal line to climax a 53-yard run.

Beavers Win From Redfeet By 12-7 Score

Sub Joe Day Saves Day With 28-Yard Run Through Center

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Coming from behind in the final quarter, the Oregon State Beavers overcame on a one-point deficit yesterday to defeat the University of Oregon, 12 to 7, win the Pacific coast conference football title and earn Oregon State its first trip to the Rose bowl.

A relentless 60-yard drive, concluding with a vicious 28-yard buck and run through center by Sub Fullback Joe Day netted the richest touchdown in Oregon State's history.

As Stanford fell before California, 16 to 0, yesterday's Oregon State victory gave the Beavers a clear title to the Rose Bowl.

For a while in the fourth quarter it looked as though the conference championship scramble might wind up in a four or five way tie as Oregon held a 7-6 lead.

But the Beavers came back for their winning touchdown and were on the Oregon five-yard line seeking another as the game ended, whereupon the Beaver sub rushed to the field and carried off the battered and happy gridders on their shoulders.

The first half was scoreless, but within the first seven minutes of the third quarter "Choo" Shelton, Beaver fullback, had scored. Sub Halfback Warren Sima's kick for point sailed wide.

Nebraska Noses Out Oklahoma, 7 to 6; Wayne Blue Stars

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Substitute Fullback Wayne Blue picked a Jack Jacobs pass out of the air on a dead run, raced 70 yards to a second period touchdown, and Tackle Vic Schleich sent the extra point kick through the middle of the uprights to give Nebraska a 7 to 6 victory over Oklahoma.

The win gave Nebraska a tie with Oklahoma for second place in the Big Six conference. Each team won three and lost two conference games.

Oklahoma, kicking off and never letting Nebraska get possession of the ball in Sooner territory during the initial period, scored in the last seconds of the quarter. The Sooners, starting their touchdown march from the Nebraska 42, amazed the crowd of 20,000 with their fast stabs into the line.

After Or Mathews spun through the middle for a first down on the Husker 31, Jacobs passed to End E. G. Lamb on the 16. Jacobs started wide around end, cut in sharply and sidestepped two Huskers en route to the goal.

Jack Habberlein's kick was wide. When Nebraska's fullback, Mike Francis was hurt Blue came in. There were four minutes left before half-time and Oklahoma was pressing ahead when Jacobs let loose his ill-fated pass. Blue came in fast to take the ball, angled out from mid-field to the sideline and went 70 yards without a Sooner having better than a desperate shot at him.

Hawk Coaches to Draw Cards of 1942 Rivals At December Meeting

Schedule sessions in which University of Iowa coaches in seven sports will arrange between 40 and 45 Big Ten dual contests will occur in Chicago Dec. 4 to 6.

In every sport except football, basketball and cross country, the Hawkeye mentors will draw their 1942 cards with league rivals. These sports are baseball, track, swimming, wrestling, tennis, gymnastics and golf.

If precedent is followed, the Iowans will return with a dozen baseball games, about six track meets, six swimming contests, five in wrestling, five or six in golf and tennis and three in gymnastics.

Hawkeye Cagers Travel To Muscatine Tuesday
With two wins under its belt, City High's cage team will travel to Muscatine for its first out-of-town game next Tuesday night. The Red and White will play host to Davenport Friday night in a conference opener.

Muscatine, always a power on the hardwood, lost to Davenport, last year's champs, last Friday, 24 to 21, and will be gunning for a comeback win.

Iowa City has shown plenty of power thus far. Dave Danner has been the spearhead of the local attack from his forward post

Navy's Secret Tactics Bad for U.S. Morale

WASHINGTON—Secretary Knox says lagging enlistments may force the navy to draft fighting seamen for the first time in all history. He implies the two destroyer losses frightened parents and presumably also sons. The clique of admirals running his department has hastened forward with collaborating excuses, saying they plan "more attractive advertising in the newspapers" and "relaxation of health restrictions" upon volunteers.

All officials seem to blame their own failures on somebody far away, preferably an unidentified mass of people who cannot answer. This new and saddest of all official commentaries on the lax spirit of American mothers and sons has aroused some resentment within the navy itself, where, down underneath the top-ranking clique, everyone has another notion of who is chiefly responsible for the navy enlistment problem.

YOUTH WANTS ACTION

Young American men generally want action when they go into the armed services of the country. They are NOT timid by nature. The ocean is the place they can get action now, but you would never know it from the secretive policies of the navy admirals. The old seadogs have been trying to keep their part in this war below decks without letting the public know more than absolutely necessary. They will not tell of the great defense job their own navy is doing in the air, and under the Atlantic. Old glories of sea-fighting and heroic traditions, now daily being reenacted, are obliterated in meager navy news. The admirals sit on the lid of every event.

If you protest this blindness, you will be informed that they are at war and secrecy is necessary. Not so in Britain. Even more at war than we, the British give their people full accounts of dramatic incidents and duties in which their navy is engaged.

SECRECY KILLS ENTHUSIASM

But when the survivors of the Reuben James came into New York the other day (weeks after the event) only the surviving petty officer was allowed to talk. He gave a dull restricted story which landed far back in the newspapers. When the U. S. S. Kearny crew reached Iceland, reporters got full stories but censors killed out the best parts. It has been the custom of the admirals in the past to fire the public relations staff whenever their own blunders caused public criticism to rise. Three reorganizations of the navy public relations bureau have already been effected since the war began. There can be three more and the condition of the navy morale will never be improved until the admirals look into their own minds and discover that the cause of the failures lies with the secrecy restrictions they have imposed upon their public relations officers.

BRITISH BLUNDER IN LIBYA

The trap which Nazi General Rommel laid for the British tanks at Sidi Rezegh might have ruined the Libyan campaign had the British fewer tank forces in reserve. Rommel selected a large area south from Tobruk in which he organized great, concealed fields of fire, planted well with tank mines and ambushed with artillery. The outnumbered German tanks led the British into these soft spots in the German lines, where the artillery went to work on them with great destructive success.

It was a bad British blunder but it may delay the success of the campaign only a few days.

AMERICAN TANK BEDLAM

American correspondents on the Libyan front are singing the praises of the American tank, but less conspicuous reports are coming through indicating many defects were discovered in action. Most serious were the rubber treads, merely rimmed with steel, a switch to all-steel treads, for desert fighting at least, is likely. Re-arrangement of the interior to afford greater fire vision and to provide easier ammunition loading, may also grow out of this first experience of American land war implements in action.

NO APPEASEMENT OF JAPAN

Vague noises from within the state department, denoting resentment of any appeasement of Japan, have been heard throughout the whole Kurusu negotiations. Two authorities of the department's Far Eastern division have been transferred to Manila and the Philippines lately acted the head of the Chinese lend-lease negotiations in OPM transferred to price control. Official denials that these shifts were anything more than routine have now been made. But throughout the negotiations leaks developed daily, suggesting U. S. appeasement of Japan was at hand. These came through government employees determined to stop such a trend if they could. State Secretary Hull's announced decision to stand by our friends rather than appease our enemies, proved that these activities were needless.

lines the single example and implies the single answer.

And the single answer is that the agrarian commune be allowed to exist and continue its cooperative way of living undisturbed.

The commune in question is the tiny community of Rumi, a minute village high up in the Peruvian Andes. Its people are Indians; they own their land in common, are ruled by their elected leaders, and live their lives in the cycle of birth, fertility and death, which is the cycle of the land itself. The life of the community is the sum total of all the lives of the villagers, living and dead. The most of the novel consists of the recitations of these lives.

As is usual with novels dealing with victimization, this one has no hero and an over-sized villain. The villain is primarily the intangible force of greed and desire for power, a force the villagers do not understand, but the force is made tangible—though scarcely personified—in the form of a land-holder and politician who desires to add the community of Rumi to his own possessions. Because he can buy the courts, he succeeds.

The Indians leave their village, move higher up in the mountains, and by industry and perseverance, build another community. Again the land-holder interrupts this existence and again is successful in dispossessing them. But this time there is revolution—futile revolution, for stones and ancient rifles cannot compete with machine-guns. On this note the book ends. For the defeated there is neither mercy nor justice.

The book is well and simply written, but its leisurely progress will annoy anyone desiring either action or emotion in large doses.

THE BOOK: "Broad and Alien in the World," Farrar and Rinehart, $3.75.

THE AUTHOR: Ciro Alegria.

THE REVIEWER: Ruth K. Mason.

"Broad and Alien in the World" is the winner in the recent Latin-American prize novel contest. Like the majority of literary prize-winners it is the production of better-than-average talent, interesting and readable, but in no sense a literary milestone. And despite the fact that its author is Peruvian, North American readers will find nothing that is unfamiliar either in content or method of approach. Many of them, in fact, will find both reminiscent of John Steinbeck and "The Grapes of Wrath."

Ciro Alegria's two theses are simple and humanitarian. The unsophisticated man who wrests his living from the soil is both innately good and innately wise, yet both this goodness and wisdom are powerless against the forces of greed and destruction when they are backed by the legal and mechanical devices of an urban culture.

There is nothing new, of course, in this observation of a moral paradox. But unlike most of his fellow writers holding the same viewpoint, Alegria had no general social cure-all. The solution he offers is limited and applicable only to the specific aspect of the problem with which he is concerned—the problem of a small Indian commune at the mercy of a powerful land-grabber. Applied generally to the total problem of greed in modern society, it would be completely ineffectual. Fortunately, he makes no such generalizations. He out-

And a vague sense of frustration will be the lot of the reader who will look for something concrete with which either to agree or disagree.

Suzie College must look smooth at the last university holiday parties... and during the Xmas vacation! And Suzie College knows her ABC's and plans on wearing the just-arrived light weight spring suits from STRUB'S FASHION FLOOR.

...that look as luscious as the first cherry blossom. STRUB'S are first in their spring buying, and are giving Suzie College the opportunity to rush the men and the season with the man-tailored suits in the new tailored cut. She'll be "putting on her topcoat" over a gabardine-twill tailored suit in either dark brown, army tan, beige, navy blue or the covert shades... to wear to informal luncheons, fireside chats, theater dates.

...with a dress skirt to add smart sophistication to the mannish-tailored coat. It's the new long suit coat... as long as your dates... with the full loose fitting sleeves that add the ultra-tailored effect... that are so comfy to slip on when your sweater sleeves are rolled.

...and will want to live up her ensemble with luscious sky blue and chocolate brown plaids... that have a plaited dress skirt... that adds femininity to the tailored appearance.

...our Suzie College will choose a "Season Skipper" or "Sporting" from STRUB'S FASHION FLOOR. She'll love the beiges... the browns... the plaids... with double stitched seams... in the raglan or military sleeves... box or princess fit! She'll be the smoothest tailored gal in town... cause she chooses STRUB'S FASHION FLOOR as her shopping center.

Santa Claus Parade to Highlight Holiday Events

Santa to Give Kiddies Free Candy Tuesday

Evergreen Garlands Decorate Down-Town Streets of Iowa City

Iowa City's Christmas season officially opened downtown last night as the garlands of evergreens interspersed with various colored lights were turned on for the first time.

The annual Santa Claus parade will highlight the pre-Christmas holidays when Santa travels through the district Tuesday morning with a host of Eskimo dogs, reindeer, camels, ponies and floats. Nursery rhyme characters will be shown on many of the floats.

Directly following the parade, Santa Claus will distribute free candy to the children. A free hobby show on one of the downtown streets from noon until 4 o'clock will be an added feature this year.

Parade Music
A large part of the musical portion of the Christmas parade will be furnished by the Iowa City high school band and the Iowa City Grenadiers, junior drum and bugle corps.

In conjunction with the instrumental section of the parade, the Iowa City women's choir will present various Christmas carols from the platform of a truck which will carry them in the parade. The singers' voices will be broadcast to the crowd by the use of amplifiers mounted upon the truck.

Members of the group to present carols are Mrs. Grace Waterman, president, Mrs. Robert B. Wylie, Mrs. Alpha Weiff, Mrs. James A. Waery, Mrs. William J. Dear Friends:

This season, more than ever before, it is important that you choose your Christmas gifts early.

As you undoubtedly know, replacements of merchandise are difficult to get. While we foresee this situation, and early stocked up for Christmas with what we believe sufficient amounts in every line, there is no way of telling how the situation may change. All indications point to a heavier demand than usual, and we may run short in some lines.

In view of this, I can't urge too strongly that if you have decided upon a certain gift for someone to come in now, and make your choice from our complete selections. We will gladly hold it for you until Christmas.

Sincerely,
I. Fuiks
