The Nation's War Effort And the Health of Iowans—

With the nation and state preparing to call increasing numbers of men to the colors, State Health Commissioner Walter L. Biering wisely urges all Iowans to make an "honest, united effort" to prevent spread of communicable disease.

Measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, mumps, chickenpox and other common infections reach top prevalence this season of the year, the doctor said, and "every civilian case should be properly isolated in accordance with the law."

"The danger of spread increases when a nation is in a state of flux with men, materials and to a degree, the civilian population, moving from section to section of the country. At such times communicable disease can easily hurdle state lines and close in rapidly on troop concentrations."

"Iowa can do her share by keeping at home under isolation and quarantine the communicable disease which inevitably will increase during the winter. It's the patriotic thing to do."

Declaring that "many persons in the past have refused to report communicable disease in order to avoid having their homes placarded," Dr. Biering declared: "The time is over for this kind of selfishness. Health authorities must know when communicable disease occurs, where it occurs, who is infected, and what is being done about it."

In line with this statement, the commissioner urged local health officials to "redouble their efforts to locate cases of communicable disease and to enforce isolation regulations rigidly when cases are found."

"Communicable disease hits hard when it strikes armed forces which are of necessity confined in concentrated areas," he asserted, "and we must make certain that disease originating in Iowa does not travel beyond the state."

Dr. Biering said that "persons who scoff at the danger of these communicable diseases through mistakenly believing they are merely childhood infections are far, far removed from the truth."

"Measles, whooping cough, mumps and the others are no laughing matter when they break out in armed camps. They spread quickly among the men who are not immune and create serious problems for the medical corps."

Fortunately, the commissioner added, prevalence of the common communicable disease has been lower in Iowa this year than last.

Comparisons of reported cases since September through the first 10 days of December show 223 measles cases this year contrasted with 379 in 1940, 420 scarlet fever cases compared with 640 a year ago, 221 whooping cough cases as against 222, and 532 cases of chickenpox compared with 688.

Mumps, on the other hand, increased from 305 cases for the period last year to 412 this fall.

This Collegiate World—

By Associated Collegiate Press Here's a release from the University of Cincinnati that we pass on without comment: College papers in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Oxford, Ohio, please copy: If it's any satisfaction to Carnegie Tech and Miami university pranksters, paint they applied to Mack and Mick famous stone lions guarding the entrance to the University of Cincinnati's McMicken halls, has defied the best efforts of the city highway department's high-pressure steam cleaning equipment.

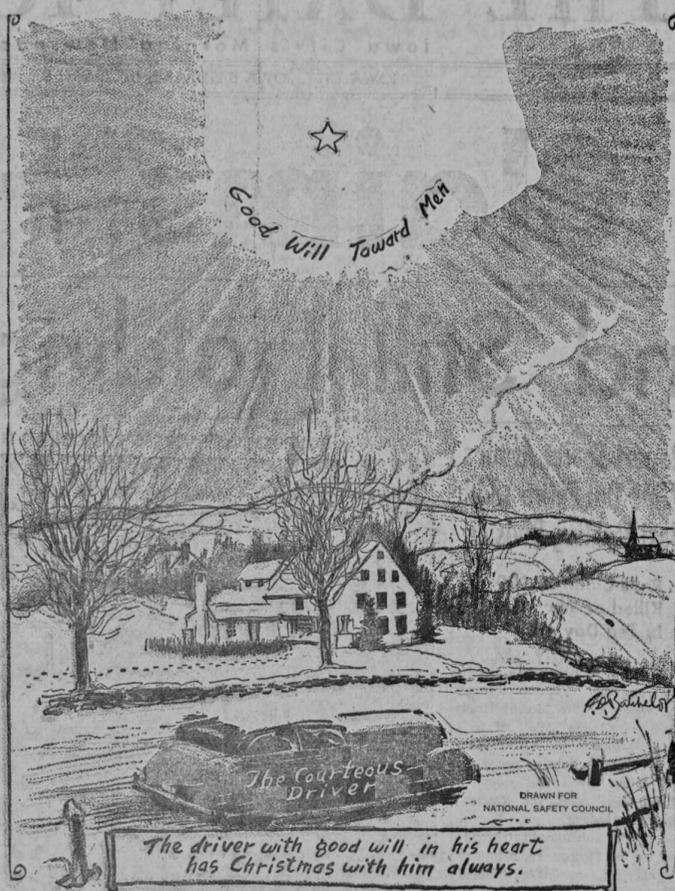

Operators worked for several hours with "cold steam" and chlorinated lime to remove generous traces of excess football enthusiasm in the form of green and red paint. Although the lions do look whiter, the clashing colors are still easily discernible.

The lions were marked with green paint the night before the Carnegie-Cincinnati football game and with red paint several days before the Miami-Cincinnati game.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Associated Collegiate Press "If the people understand what the independent universities mean to the country they will be able to maintain them, or at least those which are of strategic importance, in any economic situation that we can now foresee. Under any political conditions that seem likely to obtain in this country the state universities must live in constant fear that they will be sacrificed to fractional fights or personal ambitions. The example of the independent institutions is their only protection. The bulk of education and research of the country may be conducted by the public institutions. The pace must be set by the independent universities." President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago calls for preservation of the independent universities.

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

Success Story: Mr. Victor Moore— By GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK—Let's have a success story for a change. We haven't had one since several days before yesterday. I know you remember the one about the local boy who made good, but if you will come with me out to Queens I will promise not to excite your envy too greatly with the one about the horse player who hooked his wife's jewels and parlayed a tip into a real estate pie.

On the Bowery, where he obtained $300 in cold cash. To the last red cent this sum was placed on Quadrille's sensitive nose, and Quadrille won, paying $800. Now if O. Henry were writing this tale, he would probably say that Moore refused to buy the property and that a few years later it was worth a million dollars. But Victor Moore is not an O. Henry character, and so next day, after redeeming his wife's pearls at the Sign of the Golden Inn, he turned up at that spot where Roosevelt intersects Broadway, screwed his eye over a piece of bare field, and made a $10 down payment. The tag on the lot was $8,000 and it took him ten years to amortize it. But amortize he did, and so it came to pass that as Victor Moore grew famous and older the real estate in Jackson Heights grew dearer and dearer.

I WILL not prolong the Suspense. Five years ago Victor Moore was offered $250,000 for his Queens holdings, acquired through a noble nag named Quadrille, and refused. Today, he is president of the Victor Moore Triangle, a giant new bus terminal bearing his name on the spot where a bookie, a nag and a pawnshop helped him cement his fortunes for life. As this goes into record Master Moore is rounding out 50 years in show business. Currently he is in Chicago in "Louisiana Purchase," and a few weeks ago he completed Paramount's version of that musical adventure with the Irving Berlin tunes, on the west coast. It's been a good year. I don't know whether he still has a two-spot for the horses or not. I forgot to ask.

Od's and Ends From Hollywood— By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—There's a sensational scene in "Swamp Water"—the shot of Walter Brennan lying down to scoop up a drink of water and getting bitten in the cheek by a cottonmouth snake. It's so realistic that to see it is almost like being "cotton-mouth bit" yourself. It should be realistic. But if it had happened the way you see it, the illustrious career of one Walter Brennan would be over. They used the "split screen" technique: teased the snake to strike on one-half the picture, shot Brennan's reaction on the others. In "In This Our Life" Bette Davis is using a "new" southern accent. . . . It is "new" because it is no accent at all, an innovation so startling that the studio front office hasn't taken kindly to it. Bette merely speaks naturally, but more softly, than usual. The effect is "southern" without being embarrassingly affected. . . . This is the film, from Ellen Glasgow's novel, in which Billie Burke retires from fluttering, hostessing, and leaving sentences dangling in mid-air. As the invalid mother of Bette and Olivia DeHavilland, Miss Burke spends her scenes lying on a couch . . . and acting. . . .

OUR current Hamlet, Jack Benny in "To Be or Not to Be," discards his cigar for the soliloquy scenes. As Poland's greatest actor he would naturally play "Hamlet" straight, even though in off-stage scenes he can retain his stogie. . . . Benny's cigar is his most famous prop now, but he never smoked one until he was 37. He was supposed to smoke a cigarette in one of Earl Carroll's "Vanities" but couldn't handle it, and compromised on a cigar. Even today he puffs but does not inhale, generally throws the butt away when it is one-quarter smoked. . . . Nice for the tobaccoist.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS By PAUL MALLON

Censorship: We Need Affirmative, Not Negative, Policy On News—

WASHINGTON — Mr. Roosevelt's blunt move toward some kind of mandatory as well as voluntary "censorship"—a word he termed "abhorrent"—is apparently causing some abhorrence at the outset. Mandatory censorship could mean blue-penciling of copy, blank spaces in newspapers—but it won't. France had that kind before it fell. The idea has never been tried in this country, and never will be. The confusion will be straightened out, and any loose abhorrence should subside, when details are worked out by the new censor, Byron Price, a conscientious, non-political, experienced news executive with the background of A. P. experience.

Censorship is a negative thing. No nation ever won a war through censorship. Civilian enthusiasm has never been rallied to the giving of utmost energy for victory by the suppression of facts. Censorship might even injure morale by encouraging suspicions and allowing rumors and gossip to fly unheeded. There may be a danger here of the government getting the horse behind the cart. What is needed most is an affirmative policy of news dispensing. The best propaganda in the world for us is factual truth. We do not need radios preaching hate, encouraging bitterness, like the nazis. Events of the recent past speak enough of that. Pearl Harbor spoke enough. There is nothing sly or deceptive about our cause. Our people are united.

Let the government censor anything it wants, but also let it provide news. There should be a civilian reporter with every fighting division of the fleet, with every active army. They should be given the freest rein to tell the people daily how things are going, within the bounds of military necessity.

People these days do not enthuse to flag-waving and fiery speeches, but they enthuse to facts. They want to know. Bad news may be better than good news, to keep their heads up. Here seems to me to lie the job that must be done by the American press and government in cooperation and with equal responsibility.

Only possible danger could develop from individual government officials over-exercising their fear that the Japs may find out something, and denying the stimulating sustenance upon which enlightened people feed their enthusiasms.

NEED FOR A BIG DRAFT—

Some folks are sniffing at the painful extremity of the new draft age scope, saying the new dealers always seek broad powers pretending they do not intend to use them—then do. This proposal did not come from the new dealers. The age scope originated with Grenville Clark, New York lawyer connected with a veterans' organization. The war department is backing it because our military planners think this country needs an army of 6,000,000 men to start. Drafting is being handled strictly as a military problem.

JAP AMBASSADORS' CELEBRATED—

They say the Jap diplomats here did not know war was coming that Sunday morning at Pearl Harbor. Yet, the night before a group of 13 from the Japanese embassy here held a special dinner party at the only Chinese restaurant in town where service regularly was provided for them. They had the two dollar dinner, brought their own wine, and when they left they significantly tipped each waiter $5, shook hands with the proprietor and bade all good-bye. They knew something was coming.

SENATE COMMITTEE VS LANGER—

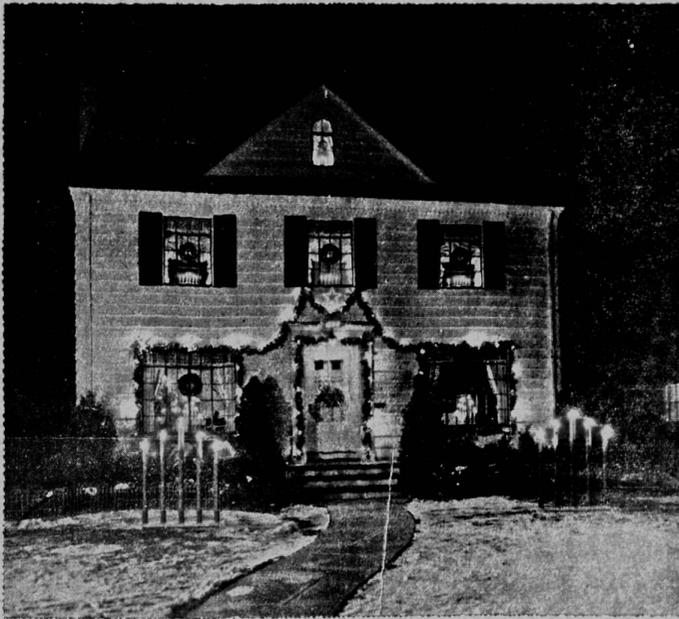

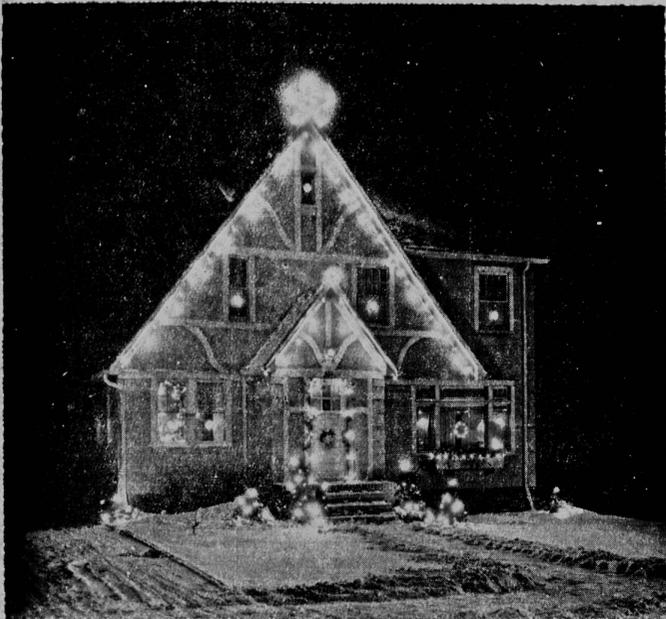

The senate committee was mostly favorable to Senator Langer until ten days back. At that time a North Dakota delegation of republicans and a representative of the democratic governor came in to refute Langer's claim that the people of his state knew the evidence against him before they voted for him. They reversed the tide.

HOW TO WIN THE WAR—

Citizens are asking what they can do to help win this war. Each day this column will carry a suggestion. Today: Save your newspapers, magazines, waste-paper, old tires, rags, kitchen utensils and metal scrap of all kinds, old batteries, rubber overshoes or mats. Save them religiously. Keep them separate. When you have 100 pounds or so (100 pounds of newspapers would stack up about as high as a broom-handle) call your junk dealer and sell them, or give them to the Salvation Army. Do not save tin cans, razor blades, tin foil, old auto license plates. They cannot be used.

Carry the Christmas Spirit Outdoors So All May See and Share—

Multi-Colored Yule Lights Transform Any Home Into A Fairyland

Since the advent of glowing strings of Christmas tree lamps, the custom of carrying the Christmas spirit outdoors has grown by leaps and bounds.

In these times of so little peace on earth, people will appreciate as never before the true meaning of the Yule spirit. For Christmas lies at the unselfish end of the human spectrum. What is a more apt way to express good will toward men than cheerful arrangements of colorful Christmas-tree lamps outdoors where all may see and share?

Some folks seem to be born with the gift of using only a few strings of multi-colored Yule lights to transform a humble home into a fairyland of ruby, emerald, sapphire and opal hues. Their lighting decorations usually reflect their personalities and are in keeping with the style of the house. Feeling the lack of ability to build a neat and effective lighting display, many have put off until next year the lighting of this peace on earth.

Plan Carefully

The charming outdoor Christmas lighting shown on the left is the result of planning the work—if work it is—and then working the plan. Not all the homes will respond to the eave-lighting treatment pictured. But if the angles are pleasing to the eye such as these inverted "V's", then outlining with colored lights and a luminous star to top off the display is recommended.

The well-rounded home decorations include at least one soft light in each window, illuminated ivy trailing around the front entrance, and a generous sprinkling of varicolored "star dust" (outdoor Christmas-tree lamps) over the nearby shrubbery.

If it is a Christmas without snow, the dreaminess of the scene can be obtained through hidden projector-type lamps. Trained on the house, these units project a light of snowy whiteness where ever desired, adding an ethereal quality to your home display.

The picture on the right shows how one home has been transformed into an outdoor Christmas greeting card aglow with lights.

Strings of waterproof Christmas-tree lamps and candle sets as shown in the windows are inexpensive. After the strings of lights were placed to create a graceful effect, holly and sprays of evergreen were used to conceal the wire cording. The twin candle groups placed outside are made of composition tubing.

Good Next Year

Some other year, an entirely different display may be created by letting the strings of tree lights trail like morning glory vines over the shrubbery of the house. A single light in each wreath, red preferred, would take care of the windows. Candle sets could be shifted to other locations indoors.

But supposing you have done no more than use one string of lights over the doorway. Fine. For the sincerity of faith and hope at Christmas time is not measured by a counting of bulbs. And have you ever driven down a street where everyone lighted up just a little, as if by agreement?

No light is too small to illuminate the sincerest "Merry Christmas" ever wished.

Six Johnson county men, charged in county attorney informations Dec. 8 with illegal possession of gambling devices and illegal possession of alcoholic liquor, posted bond yesterday.

The men were George Richmond of Coralville, Leo Zahner of Newport, John Agnew of Iowa City, and Victor F. Oliva, A. E. Ulich and Charles Meyers, all of Solon. Bond was set at $500 in every instance.

In one of the largest raids made here in recent years, on Dec. 2, 10 state agents confiscated the illegal games and liquor at taverns in Newport, Solon, Coralville and Iowa City.

State officials reported the confiscation of two 25-cent slot machines, four 10-cent slot machines, seven 5-cent slot machines, four large box-type slot machines, two small penny slot machines, two punchboards and four cases of liquor.

I. C. to Organize, Maintain Home Guard

Eight Iowa Cities Added to Original List for Stations

Iowa City is listed with eight other Iowa cities to organize and maintain state home guard units for home defense purposes, it was announced yesterday in Des Moines by Gov. George A. Wilson.

The additions will enlarge the Iowa guard to approximately 2,350 men and increase to 27 the number of cities where units will be maintained, the governor's announcement said.

Besides the new organization here, Guard units will be located at Atlantic, Marshalltown, Webster City, Oskaloosa, Centerville, Glenwood, Clarinda, and Newton.

Wilson stated that the costs of expanding the state guard will be negligible because the new cities added to the list already have armories, upon which the state is paying taxes anyway.

Now the new state guard units are situated in nearly all the cities where the national guard had organizations before being called into active service.

Purpose of the guard is to provide effective protection at home while the national guard is away.

Men from 18 to 50 years of age are eligible to enlist.

The local home defense unit, made up of about 50 former national guardsmen, will probably be the organization taken into the state system.

Local officials have expressed the urgency of a state guard because the municipal airport is considered a vital link in the defense of state defense plants.

More Women Students Register for Home Economic Classes Since War Emergency

Mrs. Meryl P. Stone Appointed Associate U.S. Food Consultant

When the war is over and the men in the army are eating in a home of their own once more, they will find their demands for nourishing, well balanced meals well fulfilled.

This is the bright prediction of Mrs. Meryl P. Stone, associate food consultant to the secretary of war. She was recently named to assist Mary Barber in studying army menus, conferring with food authorities and explaining army dietetics to various agencies throughout the nation.

More women students in colleges and schools are registering in home economics and allied nutritional classes than ever before, Mrs. Stone said.

Women Study Foods

The majority of them may be fitting themselves for a definite career in this field, but their knowledge will be spread far and wide among their contacts of various sources. Their families will be served appetizing, nourishing meals.

Mrs. Stone will be available for consultation with the faculty members of the Cooks and Bakers schools also. These institutions set up by the army in posts and camps in all parts of the country have graduated 70,000 cooks for the kitchens serving the new army.

In some of the older forts, the schools are housed in handsome brick buildings with completely equipped classrooms comparable to those to be found in colleges. In addition to stiff courses in the theory of cooking, the soldier students are impressed with the importance of safeguarding the vitamin substance in raw materials.

recipes, Mrs. Stone will be able to bring to the army the most modern ideas about adequately feeding the country's largest single mass feeding unit.

Her most immediate experience was with the General Foods Corporation in New York, compiling information for hotels and hospitals. She was on the staff of Bertha B. Nettleton, internationally known expert in quantity recipes, who headed the food corporations department.

Professional dietitians are required to serve an internship in a hospital. Mrs. Stone did this work at the University of Michigan's hospital in Ann Arbor and was then made a member of the hospital staff in charge of the food service for private patients. Later she went to St. Mary's hospital in Detroit where she organized a student dietetic training course.

On her field trips for the army, Mrs. Stone will join the soldier at dinner to determine the caloric and vitamin values in their menus with a view of futher the present system for feeding the soldier a well balanced diet.

Hawklets Trounce Eagles; U-High Whips Tipton

Little Hawks Win, 62 to 22, in Runaway

Get 26 Points Before Eagles Count; Sullivan, Sangster Lead Scorers

By BOB BUCKLEY

City high romped over a small, weak, but hard fighting team from Eagle Grove last night by a score of 62 to 22.

Iowa City took charge of the game at the beginning and scored 26 points before the Eagles counted. By this time, 12 minutes had elapsed. Coach Fran Merten used 19 men in the run, and all but three entered the scoring column. The first quarter score was 12 to 0, with the half ending 31 to 0. Arden Thompson led the Eagles with 12 points, all baskets, but it was inability to hit the hoop on charity tosses that held the Eagle Grove score down. They connected on only two out of 16 attempts.

Scoring Distributed

City high's scoring was evenly distributed throughout the team, with Ray Sullivan and Bill Sangster each scoring 10 points. Following closely behind were Dave Daner with eight points and Jim Thompson with seven.

The game was ragged from the outset with the ball bounding around on the floor more than being passed among the players. The first half showed that the Hawklets had plenty of power and the game under control, but the second half showed that the Red and White were taking the game as a joke and they played around more than playing basketball.

Thompson was the only threat Eagle Grove had. The rangy center controlled many of the rebounds and directed his team with skill until he was called from the game because of four personals.

Surprise Starter

Merten pulled a surprise with his starting lineup by giving the nod to tiny Jaro Lepic and Bucky Walter instead of Sullivan and Bob Roth. Walter was called because of Roth's ankle injury, but evidently Merten was looking forward to the second semester when Sullivan will graduate, when he started Lepic. The second half he started his regular team of John Thompson and Sullivan, forwards, Daner at center and Sangster and Roth at guards.

After the first team had opened things up and put up a big lead, the City high mentor shoved in a complete new team which showed that there is very little difference in offensive power between the first and second lineups. The second scored more points than the starting lineup, but had eight points scored on them while the others held the Eagles scoreless.

Take Holiday Rest

The Little Hawks take a holiday rest now, and won't see action until Dec. 30 when they travel to Dubuque, followed by a trip to Clinton on Jan. 2. Both games are Mississippi Valley contests.

Coach Herb Cormack's freshman-sophomore team had hard luck in the curtain raiser as they lost to Merten's third team by a score of 29 to 27. The first half was played closely but in the third period the Mertenmen pulled away. A fourth quarter spurge by the sophomores knotted the score, but a basket in the final minutes by "Blacky" Brack, gave the third stringers a two point win.

- Divided by Two

NEW YORK (Wide World)—There is no more effective way for a football prognosticator to work himself into a state of utter confusion than by comparing offensive and defensive records of opposing teams, and to smooth the path to this happy state we give you, in digest form, some guaranteed 100 per cent worthless information on the Jan. 1 bowl games. Here is what the Sugar Bowl teams did the past season:

Team	G	PTS	OP
Fordham	8	180	67
Missouri	9	226	37

This would indicate that the Missourians have both an offensive and defensive edge, although not much, so rush right out and get your two-bits down on the Tigers.

The Rose Bowl (road company):

Duke..... 9 311 41
Oregon State..... 9 123 33

Looks like strictly no contest, with the boxing commission open to criticism for permitting such a mismatch. The record shows the Dukes should win by tossing their helmets on the field.

The Cotton Bowl:

Texas Aggies..... 10 260 46
Alabama..... 10 234 64

There's about as even-tempered a game as you'll find, boys, with the slight edge in both offense and defense going to the Aggies. Maybe it would be a good idea to settle for a tie on that one.

The Orange Bowl:

Georgia..... 10 279 69
T.C.U..... 10 136 95

What won't Wally Butts' pe'l'l boys do to those big Texans? The Georgians will be scoring two touchdowns to every one registered by the Frogs. The records prove it, don't they?

The only trouble with this astounding array of misinformation is that it means nothing, divided by two. Even if rival teams had played identical schedules it would mean nothing. Even the boys themselves don't know how good or bad they will be on a particular Saturday.

Take Duke and Oregon State, for example, inasmuch as that game brings together teams with the biggest variance in scoring.

Oregon State started right in with USC and kept right on down the list of those tough coast teams, with Montana and Utah the only teams which might be considered a little below their class.

Duke accounted for 161 of its points in games with Maryland, Davidson and North Carolina State. Could anyone say how the records would have been had Duke played Oregon State's schedule, and vice versa? You might have an idea, but you'd better not talk too loudly about it.

The same situation holds true concerning the other games. Missouri and Fordham have a common denominator in N.Y.U., but otherwise their schedules are strangers. Georgia fattened its scoring record against Mercer and Centre, while T.C.U. didn't have a chance to take a deep breath all season.

All of which means you can't tell how many marbles there are in a sack until you open it, and those sacks will be opened New Year's day.

WASHINGTON CREW WON THE POUCHKEEPIE REGATTA - JUNE 25

Hawk Cagers Battle Butler There Tonight

Iowa's cagers open an important two-game road trip at Indianapolis, Ind., tonight, as they meet a powerful Butler university quintet in a game which will show just how much success the Hawklets are going to have on the hard-court this season.

Butler, loser of two close games to Northwestern and Illinois, will give the Hawks all the competition they need for a tune-up battle for the Western conference wars which start Jan. 3, for the Bulldogs annually are the most acid of tests for a number of Big Ten foes.

The Hawklets' fast-passing, fast-breaking offense will be matched with a similar style of play on the part of Butler. Although they looked impressive in spots in whipping Washington university of St. Louis here last Saturday night, this game will definitely prove the Hawks' right to their pre-season title of "brightest prospect for the past several years."

Tom Chapman and Wendell Hill will probably start at forwards for Iowa, with Milt Kuhl at center, and Co-captains Vic Siegel and Rudy Soderquist at guards.

A brilliant duel between Kuhl and Sophomore Glenn Miller of the Butler crew is in prospect. Kuhl has come into his own with a bang from a scoring angle this year, and Miller is boomed as one of the most outstanding products of the Indiana high school hard-courts.

When Iowa plays its second and final non-conference road game at Kalamazoo Monday with Western Michigan college, it will be the first meeting of the Hawklets and Bronchos since 1935. Western Michigan was the winner of that game, 48-35.

Against the veteran Iowans, Coach Buck Read of Western Michigan will send a team composed of three veterans and two sophomores. Captain Myron Ballard, high-scorer, and Fred Kahler are the veterans, while Harold Genischen, Del Loranger, and Dick Slater are in their first year of intercollegiate play.

The Bronchos will yield the height advantage to the Iowans. Tallest of the Western Michigan men is Loranger, six feet 2 inches, while Genischen and Ballard are six feet, and Kahler and Slater

St. Mary's went out of its Catholic Big Five conference last night, and found the going easy after a slow first quarter, trouncing Oxford's Black Pirates with a 39 to 18 barrage.

Co-capt. Tony Brack kept up his high-scoring antics in the game, snaring 20 markers on nine baskets and two free throws, and playing the key part in giving the Ramblers their eighth win in nine starts.

Last night's tussle was only a prelude to the real battle at hand, for the Ramblers met their outstanding rival, immaculate Conception of Cedar Rapids, here Monday night. Coach Francis Sueppel believes this tilt will be the most important all season, even though his Ramblers have defeated the foe once already this season.

St. Mary's had a little trouble getting started against Oxford, only leading by a 6 to 2 count at the end of the first quarter. The Sueppelmen rallied, however, and pushed the advantage to 23 to 5 at halftime, and 31 to 10 at the end of the third quarter.

Sam Angoff Decisions Jenkins to Clear Up Lightweight Muddle

NEW YORK (AP)—Running into little more opposition than a heavy punching bag could give him, Sam Angoff won undisputed possession of the lightweight championship last night by giving skinny Lew Jenkins an artistic 15-round beating in Madison Square Garden. Angoff weighed 133½; Jenkins 133.

Clearing up the laughable lightweight mix-up that has existed since Lou Ambers' reign ended a year and a half ago, the Louisville slugger rushed, hooked and hammered the bewildered Texas thumper all over the place, and only on rare occasions did Jenkins appear to have more than a passing interest in the proceedings.

Jenkins No Bomber

The skinny swifter from Sweetwater unwrapped his supposedly explosive right hand bomb on only scattered occasions. Yet despite the kayo specialty he served up on his way to taking the title from Ambers, Lew never had serious Sammy in any kind of trouble.

The Associated Press score card gave Angoff twelve rounds, with two for Jenkins—one of them a gift on a foul, and one even.

From the sixth round on, except for a momentary flurry by Jenkins in the eighth, and a low punch

Florida Welcomes Hawkeye Swimmers

International Aquatic Forum Would Be Incomplete Without Iowa City Contingent

BY TOM McBRIDE
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Dave Armbruster's great University of Iowa swimming team will descend on this resort center en masse Dec. 21 for the seventh annual International Aquatic Forum, which will extend through Jan. 2.

Iowa's contributions to swimming in past Forums have been invaluable and old-time six or seven year attending coaches feel that a Forum just wouldn't be one without the Iowa City contingent.

Defense Through Health

National defense through health will be the theme of this year's Forum, though the usual poolside demonstrations and panel discussions and famous East-West meet also will highlight the 10-day long meeting.

John B. Kelly, U. S. Director of Physical Fitness for Civilian Defense, will address the Forum on National Defense Day, Dec. 30 on the subject of "Hale America," title of America's program of strength through health.

Coaches and swimmers attending the Forum, cognizant of the nation's new peril, will pledge their time and efforts during the meeting to do everything they can to make America strong and healthy. Whatever they can do through health building in the pools, beaches and lakes of this country they will do.

Director to Speak

Kelly's talk and his work with the Forum will amount to a national kickoff for the physical fitness program his office has worked out in Philadelphia and plans to soon have underway in every city and community in the nation.

H. C. Cleaveland, of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, and a great swimmer in his own right, has been designated by Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney to represent the Navy at the Forum.

Several army and navy teams scheduled to attend have cancelled reservations due to existence of a state of war, but collegiate and school teams and coaches will still swell attendance to over the 700 mark.

Demonstration Lectures

All of the emphasis on defense and health will not detract from the Forum's colorful panel discussions, demonstration lectures on stroke techniques, discussions of teaching methods and group problem pull sessions.

By the same token none of the color and suspense that has made the East-West meets one of the outstanding sports events of the country will be lacking. Divers and swimmers of the eastern schools will be pitted against those of the west and are scored on points for each event.

New Strokes Demonstrated

There will be demonstrations of the newer strokes, such as the Japanese crawl, the Kiefer backstroke and the Dolphin.

Perhaps this Forum will introduce still another stroke that will become a great name in the swimming world.

Among the schools that will attend the Forum this year are Matt Mann's University of Michigan NCAA champions; Jim Beilly's always great Rutgers team; Kenyon's big squad of 60; Brooklyn College, Case, University of Chicago, Colgate, Florida, Hun School, University of Indiana, John Hopkins, Harvard, LeHigh, Michigan State, University of Pennsylvania; Phillips Exeter, Rochester Vocational, Springfield College, Trenton, Williams, Wisconsin, Cornell, Ohio State, Columbia, Purdue, NYU, Pitt, Northwestern, Iowa, Kent, Bowdoin, Henry Ford, Penn AC and Firestone AC.

Led and paced by Capt. George Lehman, who scored 22 points, University high went all the way to a ragged, but convincing triumph over Tipton for its second conference victory without defeat, 38 to 21, here last night.

As Lehman went, so went the Bluehawks last night, for the big center, off his floor game but definitely on his tip-ins, controlled the pace of the battle. It was Lehman who started the scoring with two free throws and a basket, and it was Lehman who sewed up the contest with a barrage of baskets in the fourth quarter.

For U-High, it was its least impressive start of the four-game-old, undefeated season, but perhaps its most important. Tipton was also unbeaten until last night, and had two conference wins to its credit. The Blues spoiled that, and also went into the loop lead with a 2-0 record.

Ragged Triumph

Although Coach Paul Brechler's men had the game under control all the way, except for a brief Tiger spurge at the start of the second half, bad passes, wild shots and frequent fouls marred the action.

However, Lehman carried the key to the victory, and he turned the lock easily. Even though the Blues held a large height advantage, Lehman's tip-in shots were the only good to come of it. The Tigers matched U-High evenly off rebounds until the final minutes, and broke up their enemy's over-head passing game consistently.

Lehman's first four points and Emory Stagg's two lay-up baskets gave the Blues an 8 to 3 first-quarter advantage, which they never yielded. Lehman scored six more points in the second stanza, Bob Alderman yielded three and Wagner two, to make the score 19 to 8 at the half.

Tipton came back with some fine play on the part of Carl Wehde and Bud Willer in the third quarter, and closed the score to 20 to 13, but U-High led, 23 to 13, at the end of that period.

Then, after some desperate bandying back and forth, Lehman broke out in a scoring rash in the final quarter, scoring 11 straight points with four baskets and three free throws, to wind up the contest.

Committee to Select Representative For United China Relief

National Organization Working to Raise 3 Million for Supplies

Plans are being made for the selection of Johnson county representatives for the Iowa branch of the United China relief, it was announced last night by Dr. Andrew H. Woods, a member of the state executive committee.

Dr. Woods, Pres. Virgil M. Hancher and Dr. M. Willard Lampe, all of Iowa City, were recently appointed members of the executive committee of newly organized branch of the United China relief drive.

The Iowa regional committee for United China relief is under the chairmanship of Herbert Horton, president of the Iowa-Des Moines National bank and trust company.

Stressing the part the program plays in national defense Horton yesterday said "Now that we are at war with Japan, it becomes more important than ever that we give 'all-out' aid to the support of our Chinese allies."

As a result of a number of conferences with New York leaders, Horton announced "United China relief is a combined organization of eight China relief agencies working to raise a national fund of $3,000,000 to buy medical supplies, food, clothing, industrial machinery and other supplies for the civilian families of China's intrepid fighters, who for five years have kept up their courageous fight for freedom."

The eight China relief agencies taking part in the relief drive are American Bureau for Medical Aid to China, American Committee for Chinese War Orphans, American Friends Service committee, Associated Boards for Christian Colleges in China, China Aid council, China Emergency Relief committee, Church Committee for China relief and Indusco (American committee in aid of Chinese industrial cooperatives.)

With national committees, including such names as James G. Blaine, Thomas W. Lamont, Pearl S. Buck, Henry Luce, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Wendell L. Willkie, Theodore Roosevelt III, and others, this national effort to bolster our first line of defense is getting under way in Iowa.

Contributions may be sent to Iowa headquarters at 509 Iowa-Des Moines building, Des Moines.

Leslie A. Moore was named general chairman of the Red Cross volunteer pledge card system to raise the county's $7,900 war relief quota, J. J. Swamer, general chairman of the Red Cross war fund campaign in Johnson county, announced yesterday.

Moore, who is also general chairman of the Red Cross emergency fund social activities committee, will head a county committee to be announced later, to work out a plan for volunteer contributions.

At a meeting of the war fund executive committee with representatives of rural organizations Thursday night, tentative ways and means of conducting the county-wide pledge system were discussed but no definite plans were announced.

Swamer stated that complete plans and appointment of committee members to serve with Moore will be announced soon.

Purpose of the new drive is to provide essential funds for services to our armed forces and for relief to distressed civilians. The $7,900 figure represents this county's quota in a $50,000,000 war

Clara was better than waist deep in the soft mud, deposited in a low section by the river, when she was rescued by E. G. Bushman, a bus driver, and a pedestrian who heard her cries for help.

The girl said she had dropped her book while crossing Park bridge on her way to school and had attempted to retrieve it.
