

In Move Designed to Concentrate America's War Efforts—

Nelson Heads Production

Japanese Seize Rich Borneo Oil Fields

Invaders Pay Heavy Price In Gaining Smashed Wells

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies (AP)—Tarakan off northeast Borneo has fallen to a Japanese assault of overwhelming power, but the one prize for which the invader had paid so heavily in ships and planes and men—the island's oil—is still many a month out of his grasp, the Dutch announced last night.

Almost simultaneously with the disclosure of the N.E.I. command that the small Tarakan garrison had been overrun by vastly superior forces and that only a tragic few of its men had reached the Borneo mainland alive, it was established that the Dutch had meant business when they warned the enemy it would be easier to come for the island's riches than to take them away.

All oil wells and equipment were so smashed by the little band of Dutch defenders, said an authorized spokesman, that many months of labor will be required to get them into production again.

"They have found," he added simply, "that we are far from bluffing when we announced that no oil installations would be permitted to fall into their hands."

Oil Flow Shut Off
This was shut off the source of petroleum flow of 80,000 tons a month—a flow of extraordinary high quality.

Tarakan, the first East Indies possession to fall to the enemy, was overrun by such a swarm of Japanese as to defy official estimate and, because radio communication was broken early in the assault, it was explained that the full story might never be known. The Dutch communique reporting loss of the island made no mention of how the fighting was going in the Minahassa section of the island of Celebes, where earlier landings had been made on the left wing of the Japanese invasion thrust.

Unending Air Attacks
It made clear, however, that the Japanese fleet and troopships were under unending aerial assault. Dutch and allied (Australian and American) bombers already had hit two Japanese cruisers and four transports—this in the first two days of the invasion.

Pitifully Outnumbered
Tarakan's story, incomplete and a story of defeat though it was, was told with no lack of pride in these islands, for the pitifully outnumbered Dutch had held on for two bloody days, out of contact with the world outside, and, reeling back at last to a death that was all but common, had fully discharged their last task of demolition.

Enemy Submarines Sink Steamship Near Nova Scotia Coastline
AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT (AP)—An enemy submarine brought the war closer to American shores within the last two days by sinking without warning a large armed steamship 160 miles off Nova Scotia.

Two torpedoes finished off the liner, presumably British, and accounted for perhaps 90 lives. Ninety-one were known rescued after 20 hours in near zero weather on the bleak Atlantic. Among those saved were 66 Chinese, believed to have been crewmen.

Lozovsky Asserts Russo-Japanese Relations Unchanged, Still Based on Neutrality Pact
KUIBYSHEV, Russia (AP)—Soviet reporter's question.

A. Lozovsky, Russian spokesman and vice-commissioner of foreign affairs, declared yesterday that Soviet-Japanese relations were unchanged, still based on the neutrality pact of last April.

His press conference, first since war broke out in the Pacific, was attended by both Japanese and correspondents of the allied nations.

His comment on relations with Japan was in response to a Japanese reporter's question.

Of the war against Germany, he expressed optimism and said, "Germany now is trying to get new forces from Hungary, Italy and Rumania, but it is more difficult since Germany has weakened. The red army's blows at the reichswehr are reflected not only in occupied countries but also in those hitherto untouched by war."

Jap Progress On Singapore Is Slackened

Destructive Blasting In Path of Invader Slows Enemy Drive

SINGAPORE (AP)—Demolition squads of royal engineers carried out broad and destructive blasting operations in the path of the Japanese invader yesterday, effectively easing pressure on British forces continuing their withdrawal along a line 150 miles above Singapore.

News of the slowed Japanese progress came as Singapore itself shook with exploding bombs dropped by Japanese raiders. But the RAF itself had cascaded tons of bombs upon the Japanese base at Singora, in southern Thailand, during the night.

British airmen followed up this assault on Singora military establishment and railroad yards with a daylight raid upon Port Swettenham, Malaya west coast port some 25 miles south of fallen Kuala Lumpur, capital of the federated Malaya states. The raid was the first recognition that the Japanese had occupied Port Swettenham in force.

Over Singapore, British fighter planes had a busy day chasing Japanese raiders coasting in under cover of low-hanging clouds.

Singapore's people, who scarcely had been conscious Monday of raids in which 125 Japanese planes were engaged by fighters high in the clouds or at some distance from the city, were fully aware this time that attack was on in earnest.

Several sections of the city vibrated and windows rattled. Nevertheless, preliminary surveys disclosed that the aerial invader had wrought little damage. At least six of his raiders were shot down Monday.

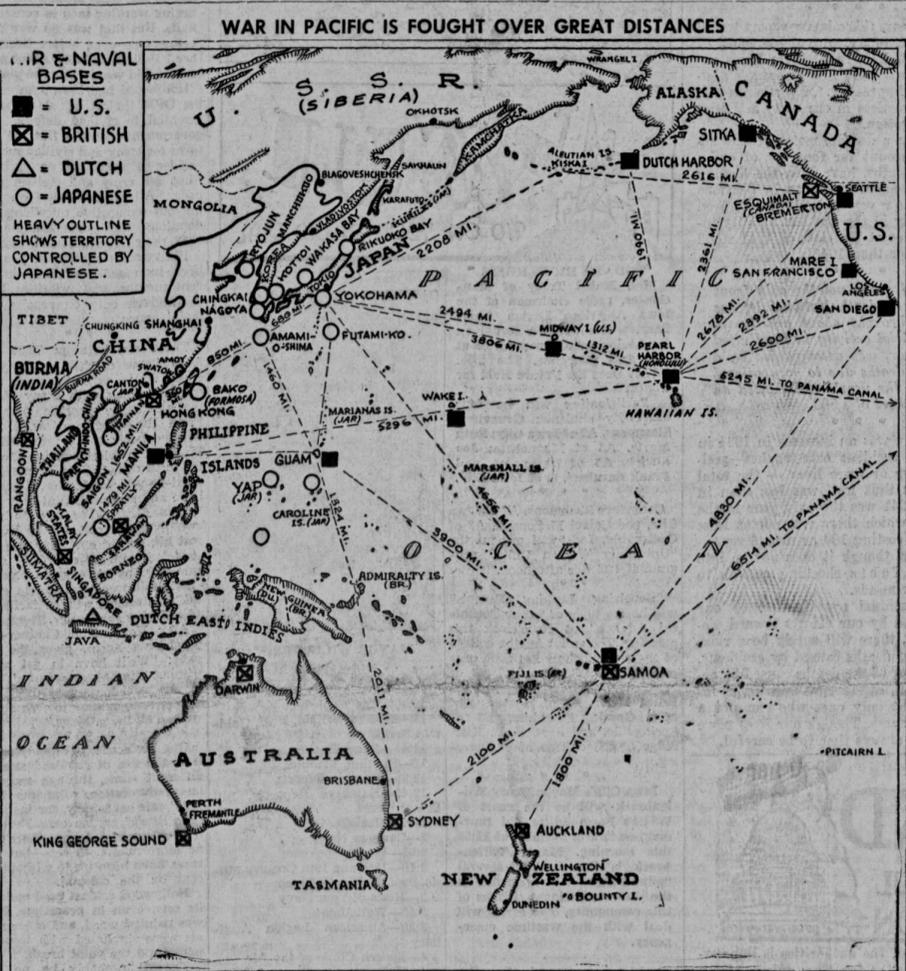

(In London, published reports that an important announcement in Singapore was imminent—possibly concerning the large aerial reinforcements which are so needed there—evoked this official statement:)

"... There is no official authority for statements regarding air strength in Malaya which appeared in certain papers yesterday. It is not in the public interest to disclose air force strength in this or other theaters of war."

These provisions were not contained in the bill as it passed the house.

These provisions were not contained in the bill as it passed the house.

These provisions were not contained in the bill as it passed the house.

This map of the Pacific theater of war proposes to show that the present objectives of Japanese aggression, the names of which are becoming household words, are not just "over the backyard fence" from each other. Singapore, where the main Japanese effort seems to be centered, is 1,479 miles from Manila, and over 3,000 miles, greater than the distance between New York and Los Angeles, from Tokio itself. Because of these great distances, Singapore, the only complete allied ship repair base in the Far East, assumes a major importance in today's struggle.

Red Ski Troops Storm Nazi Defense Positions at Orel

Roosevelt Denounces Price Control Bill

Says Measure Would Compel Inflation, Upset War Effort

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt yesterday denounced the senate price control bill, with its special concessions to agriculture, as a measure to compel inflation and clearly indicated that a veto awaits the legislation unless it is modified.

Speaking at a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said he expressed the same view earlier in the day to house members who shortly will take the bill up in conference and that they seemed sympathetic.

As passed by the senate the bill would permit agriculture prices to rise to 120 per cent of parity, and the secretary of agriculture, would would, furthermore, be empowered to veto any farm price maximum fixed by the price administration. (Parity is the price which would give the farmer the same return, in terms of purchasing power that he received for equivalent products during the period from 1909 to 1914.)

Soviets Claim Kirov Taken, Forces Driving on Smolensk

Germans Admit Army Suffering From New Shortages of Men

LONDON (AP)—Ski-shod red troops last night were storming the German defense cog of Orel, 200 miles southwest of Moscow, and were reported on the verge of over-running the Rzhnev-Bryansk nazi winter line which already has been pierced.

Specially-trained Russian shock troops called "guard formations," aided by sleigh-drawn artillery and other motorized units, were said by Soviet sources to have virtually surrounded Orel, and to have swept on beyond toward Bryansk, 75 miles away.

The BBC, in a broadcast heard by NBC, said it "understood unofficially" that Orel already had fallen. A German broadcast, acknowledging the nazis were suffering from a shortage of men, said the Russians were employing "new" tactics—including the use of a long column of "white" polar dogs pulling white sleds on which were riding Siberian snipers dressed in white coats and masks.

German Desert Army Takes Up New Stand

Fleeing Nazi Forces Halt 300-Mile Flight Near Gulf of Sirte

CAIRO (AP)—The German desert army, in flight for 300 miles, took an unexpected stand last night at the base of the Gulf of Sirte on a line running due south of El Agheila.

Pursuing British vanguards made immediate contact with this main force of the enemy remaining in North Africa, at a point which still is more than 300 miles short of Tripoli, the main axis base.

Isolate Axis Troops
Far back, near the Egyptian frontier, a Scottish regiment from the Transvaal stormed and captured Salum and put 7,000 to 8,000 isolated troops in immediate danger of destruction. Salum is a key to the stubborn axis holdout garrison at Halfaya (Hellfire) pass which begins its ascent some seven miles to the southeast.

U.S. Navy Recruiting Party To Meet Students Here Today

Lieut. Comdr. T. H. Jones and Ensign J. E. Shelledy of the United States naval reserve will speak to University of Iowa men who are interested in the Class V-7 (officer's training) program at 4:15 p.m. this afternoon in Macbride auditorium. Applications will be taken and physical examinations made for juniors, seniors and graduate students who meet the requirements for this program. Those accepted will be allowed to finish their work on their degrees before taking officers' naval training.

One Man Control Over U.S. Industry to 'End Confusion'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt created a one-man control over America's vast war production effort last night with all power concentrated in Donald M. Nelson, as a sort of generalissimo of supply.

The surprise announcement was given out at the White House about two hours before Wendell L. Willkie, republican presidential nominee in 1940, was to go on the air with a demand that one-man control be set up to end "debating society" methods.

An advance text of the Willkie speech had been distributed in Washington early in the day, and Willkie himself had conferred at the White House this forenoon.

Under the president's plan, still incomplete, a new war production board will be established, and Nelson made its chairman. Nelson has been serving as executive director of the supply priorities and allocations board. Members of S.P.A.B., comprising some of the highest officials of the government, will serve on the new board—under Nelson.

Power Over Industry
The big bluff pipe-smoking Nelson who came into the defense program as its purchasing agent months ago and has stepped constantly into more responsible positions, will have the power of final decision on all questions of procurement and production.

As such, he will be the big boss, empowered to tell American industry what to do, and to expect its ready compliance. His only superior officer is President Roosevelt himself. Washington immediately concluded that Nelson's position here would be roughly equivalent to that of Lord Beaverbrook, the British minister of supply.

The new move, too, meets a demand that has been raised almost constantly since the rearmament effort began in 1940, that there be a unified control of production. Before America entered the war this frequently took the form of speeches in congress and elsewhere.

Reorganization Urged
Since America became a belligerent, however, the same demand has increased in intensity. Last night for instance, not only Willkie, but chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the senate foreign relations committee urged such a reorganization.

As announced by the president (See NELSON, page 8)

Allies Serve Warning Against Axis Officials For Mass Executions

LONDON (AP)—The allied nations served grim warning yesterday on axis occupation officials and their quislings that postwar firing squads await those responsible for slayings and brutality to the helpless peoples of conquered Europe.

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, sounded the keynote when he said the German occupation officers and "the quislings have little reason to look to the future with any hope."

Governments of eight occupied nations, and the Free French committee signed an agreement to seek out, try and punish those responsible for persecution. The conference in St. James' palace laid the framework for punishment of such occupation officials as Reinhard Heydrichs, and Gen. Otto von Stuepnagel.

The Dream of World Government: Will We Let It Fade Again?

The great tragedy of our time is that the peoples of the North Atlantic communities less than a generation ago won for themselves, at infinite cost, an opportunity to undertake the governing of the world's states...

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Rumors of Nazi Disunity Are Dangers to U.S. Morale

WASHINGTON—The official lines of information from inside Germany fail to confirm the suggestions that Hitler's regime is about ready to crack.

Hitler Must Be Whipped in Battle

The Bismarck of General Von Brauchitsch also may have been over-emphasized in the outside world. Hitler's personal military strategist is General Jodl. He is always with Hitler.

Danger To Singapore

When the Japs moved into air fields only 175 miles from Singapore, hopes slipped sharply here. Up to then, the Japanese were required to use navy carriers as bases for their pursuit ships accompanying their bombers.

Simplified Containers Coming

Most harassed of all defense organizations is the simplification division of OPM's bureau of industrial conservation. It has been working three months and all it has been able to simplify is toothpicks (actually).

intervention," and "national sovereignty," the slogans which caused the failure of democracy's first chance to establish a World government, were still present in the United States on the morning of December 7, 1941, but before night fell they had disappeared.

New Care in Accident Prevention Must Be a Part of 1942's Program

The dubious distinction of being the second consecutive year to show an upward trend in the accident fatality rate goes to 1941 with its estimated, January through December, total of approximately 100,000.

The 1941 number of deaths from accidents exceeded by more than 3,000 the total of 1940.

In ordinary years this adverse report would be shocking. But, today, with the memory of the loss of 3,000 lives in a single day's encounter of the war, our losses through accidents are less impressive.

For more than a decade, motor vehicle accidents, which account for four out of every ten accidental deaths, have been the leading class of fatal mishap and, as in previous years, the motor vehicle accidents figured most prominently in the accident fatality increase.

The battle front is not the only front where war causes death. National defense work, which brought about greatly increased industrial activity in the United States last year, was accompanied by a sharp rise in deaths due to occupational accidents and the year's end showed an increase just short of 1,500.

Although there was an increase in 1941 in the number of accident catastrophes—accidents taking five or more lives—the total number of lives thus lost, was less than in 1940.

This summary, though it does not go into detail, presents facts shocking enough to stand out in our minds.

With the continual speeding up of our lives, necessitated by our efforts toward victory in the war, there will surely be a rise in the number of deaths caused by accidents.

A great number of the deaths caused by accidents are due to carelessness and we, as individuals, are the only ones who can put a check on carelessness. Though our lives move swiftly, there is always time to be careful.

HOLLYWOOD FIGHTS SOUNDS

Filmland's Slogan Is 'Cut Out Waste'

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood's the place where they used to say, "I don't care if it costs a fortune, get it!"

It's a place where a director once imported thousands of real apple blossoms and kept a crew working all night affixing them to branches—just for one movie scene.

But that was long ago. That was in the opulent silent days. That was long, long before the war—and long before the era of national defense.

In this town that used to spend fortunes on one flashy party to spread its name for glamour, it's odd to see signs around the lots urging working men to conserve nails. But that was no war development—even before December 7 Hollywood knew about priorities and was feeling the pinch.

Hollywood had been assured by the OPM that it has an industry essential to civilian defense. The government wants a flow of pictures for army and civilian morale besides a speed-up on training films for army and civilian purposes.

All studios now are filling out exhaustive questionnaires detailing their construction in 1942, their estimated needs in 1942. Hollywood's equipment has not been increased materially in recent months, and priorities have been given only on repairs and maintenance.

There are between 7,500 and 8,000 items carried regularly in studio stocks as necessary to production, along with many others purchased for specific pictures.

From the questionnaires, Hollywood expects to be informed by Washington what can be allotted for pictures, what scarce materials must be procured, what it cannot have and must substitute.

It's difficult to say as yet where Hollywood will be hardest hit, except obviously in materials requiring chemicals and metals. But it's easy to predict that Hollywood, trained in creating illusions, will be facile in developing substitutes.

Alex Kelly, 20th Century-Fox purchasing agent, gives the answer: "We'll have to get along without the things we can't get. Maybe we'll have to go back and see how we made pictures before we had all these things."

One big economy already in effect: the use of standard sets for different films, through more or less redecoration. "Panama Hat-tie's" cafe set is now, for instance, "Rio Rita's" garden cafe. Perhaps, if developments decrease, there'll be no more mammoth sets—but pictures have been made without accent on the colossal.

Hollywood seldom used metal in its sets, even in peacetime. Steel was painted wood, and other metals were simulated with wood or paper and the paint brush.

There'll probably be no new cameras, and probably no new cameras, no new lights. Not immediately a concern, but regarded for the future, is a possible shortage of chemicals for film-developing processes.

Some other scarce items (used to make bomb fragments for war scenes as well as many other purposes); shellac (a domestic substitute will be used); carbon tetrachloride (best and least dangerous cleaner for wigs, also used in making movie explosives); guns (they can be simulated with painted wood.)

(Tomorrow: What About Glamour?)

To prevent fraud, the Census Bureau has suggested setting up a central "index of death" against which birth certificates might be checked. Federal investigators report that some persons have attempted to pass off the birth certificates of deceased persons as their own.

Today people in the United States eat slightly more than two bushels of potatoes a year in contrast with three and one-half bushels per person 20 years ago, according to the Census.

University Lecturer

RUTH DRAPER

Students May Secure Free Tickets at Union Beginning January 16

Ruth Draper, whose character sketches have been delighting audiences round the world for the last two decades, is on a coast-to-coast tour of the United States and will be presented as the sixth university lecturer, Tuesday, Jan. 20, at 8 p.m. in Macbride auditorium.

Free tickets will be available to students at the main desks of Iowa Union, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 16, 17 and 18. Remaining tickets will be distributed to the public on Monday, Jan. 19.

Miss Draper's recent activities have been divided between her personal appearances in North and South America and the tours she undertook for the benefit of the British war relief and the Red Cross.

Miss Draper is a creative storyteller. She dramatizes by projecting each character in such a way that the story is completely visualized by the audience.

Her acting is rich imagery. Although acting is Miss Draper's instrument of expression, her gift for character delineation in sketches is remarkable.

Her properties consist of one small trunkful of assorted shawls, hats and coats plus a few sticks of furniture which supply all the background necessary for dispensing monologue magic.

In contrast to the gigantic sets, glittering costumes and innumerable "props" most shows need, Miss Draper's trunk and furniture present the apex of lavishness in her trouping history. There was a time when she needed no more than a handbag for baggage.

During those days Miss Draper would be invited to a social function to regale the company with two or three of her "delightful things." She would arrive with her toolkit containing a couple of shawls and stamped the party with exorcising satire.

The limited number of furniture pieces and various shawls comprise the total wardrobe necessary for the illusion she creates.

Although Miss Draper uses these bare tools to impersonate about 10 characters in the flesh, at the end of a program the audience has made acquaintance of no less than 50.

H. Craddock Will Fill Negro Forum Vacancy Left by O. McCraney

Hazel Craddock, A3 of Des Moines, has been elected secretary of the Negro forum to fill the vacancy left by Ola Mae McCraney.

Miss McCraney accepted the position of a junior typist in the war department in Washington, D. C. in December.

Other officers of the forum are: Edward L. Wilkerson, A3 of Terre Haute, Ind., president; Philip Hubbard, E2 of Des Moines, vice-president; Mrs. Allyn Lemme of Iowa City, treasurer; Jean Morris, A3 of Des Moines, chairman of the social committee; Annie Marie Nicholson, A3 of Davenport, chairman of the program committee, and Charlee Harston, J3 of Ottumwa, chairman of the public relations council.

Fencing Demonstration To Be Given Tomorrow

Mitchell Marcus, G of Jamaica Plain, Mass., and Henry Hinck, G of Moline, Ill., will give a fencing demonstration in the women's gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This sport, popular in eastern schools, has been in such demand here that plans are being made to teach it next semester. All women on the campus are eligible for instruction and the exhibition tomorrow is open to the public.

Mayor Lists Groups in Charge Of Local Waste Paper Drive

The Iowa City and Coralville Bundles for Britain organizations will be in charge of collecting waste paper in this vicinity for the government, Mayor Henry Willenbrock of Iowa City disclosed last night.

The mayor appealed especially to the public, urging full cooperation in the saving of waste paper. His appointment of Bundles for Britain for the job followed receipt of a letter from Leon Henderson, national price administrator, which requests the conservation of waste paper in Iowa City.

"As you know," the letter said, "waste paper is vital to defense because it is the principal raw material for the paper-board containers used to ship defense materials. Department of commerce figures show that about three-fourths of the paper produced in the United States each year is burned."

Three types of waste paper will be collected, according to Mayor Willenbrock. They are newspapers, magazines and cardboard cartons.

To facilitate collections and storage of waste paper, Bundles for Britain officers request that everyone cooperate with the drive by tying collected newspapers, magazines and cartons in separate packages, since Bundles for Britain has no place for sorting waste paper after it is collected.

Area captains' names will be published by the end of the week, when the collection organization will be ready to begin work.

Dr. W. M. Hale Will Present Baconian Lecture Tomorrow

"Some Characteristics of Viruses" is the topic chosen by Dr. William M. Hale, head of the department of bacteriology, for his Baconian lecture tomorrow night at 7:30 in Senate chamber, Old Capitol.

Dr. Hale will attempt to untangle the mystery surrounding the understanding of viruses by laymen and to manifest the differences between bacteria and virus, describing common behavior of the latter.

Since he came to Iowa in 1938, Dr. Hale has devoted practically all of his research to the study of this poison. He has been attempting during the past year to isolate the virus which probably causes the common cold.

The difficulty in this type of work, Dr. Hale indicated, is the lack of a satisfactory experimental animal, since only man and the chimpanzee are susceptible to colds. Another experiment being carried on in the bacteriology laboratories at the present time concerns the influenza virus.

Some of the most prevalent diseases caused by the virus are smallpox, measles, chicken pox, influenza, the common cold (probably), the cold sore or fever blister, common seed warts and yellow fever, Dr. Hale explained.

MEET CUSCUS—MUSEUM ODDITY

Looking more like "The Boy with the Wistful Eyes" than a marsupial mammal, the grey cuscus is a small, harmless animal found only in Australia. A vegetarian, the cuscus is for the most part nocturnal in its habits. Like the kangaroo, it has a pouch for carrying its young, and it uses its prehensile tail for grasping branches in the trees where it lives. About two feet long, it weighs from 12-15 pounds, and though its tail is thick its coarseness prevents it from being of value commercially.

University Students to Hold First Series Of Debates Tomorrow in Schaeffer Hall

Men and women debaters will hold the first series of debates on the newly announced question, "World Federation" tomorrow night in Schaeffer hall.

Fourteen women will speak on the topic, "Resolved, That the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations Should Form a Permanent Union." Two rounds, consisting of ten-minute constructive speeches and five-minute rebuttals will be held at 7 o'clock and at 7:40 p.m.

The first half of the program will be devoted to the quartet in D major" by the modern Italian composer, Respighi. The work is in four movements as follows: allegro moderato; theme with variations; intermezzo, and finale; allegro vivace.

"Quintet in F minor for piano, two violins, viola and violoncello" by the French composer, Cesar Franck, will conclude the broadcast. The three movements are: molto moderato quasi lento-allegro; lento, con molto sentimento, and allegro non troppo, ma non troppo.

The program will be given in the audience studio of WSUI and the public is invited to attend.

University Women Hold First Of Series of Knitting Meetings

Roberts Discusses Background of War in the Pacific Area

While knitting needles clicked, university women heard Prof. T. Hew Roberts of the education department outline the background of the war in the Pacific area in relation to the past and present world situation yesterday, afternoon in the river room of Iowa Union.

Yesterday's informal discussion was the first of a series of meetings sponsored by the University Women's association as part of its women's work in the war program.

Everyone interested in learning about current affairs and her part in national defense are invited to attend these meetings held every Tuesday and Thursday from 4 to 6 p.m. Knitting and sewing on Red Cross projects will be done at this time, but those who do not knit may also attend.

Knitting instructions will be given at the U.W.A. office in Old Capitol every Tuesday and Friday afternoon from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Yarn will also be dispensed at this time.

Professor Roberts in his lecture explained the present situation in the light of the past history of Germany and Japan and their long struggle for survival against opposing powers.

Roberts pointed out that English, French and American money built up Germany as a barrier against the rising power of Russia, and that today the same powers are backing Russia against Germany.

At the same time America and England built up the Japanese power to counteract Russian forces in the Far East. As a result American trained naval officers commanded ships at Pearl Harbor which are the product of American and English industrial encouragement in Japan's Pacific attack.

Having taken the initiative in the Pacific since World War I, Japan built up army and naval forces in the Pacific area while America left bases thousands of miles away unarmed and took only minor precautions while war hovered imminently.

For years America has sat snugly at home calling themselves isolationists and being supposedly neutral according to Professor Roberts.

"There is no such thing as isolation," he said. "In a world of sovereign states every state has a right to do as it pleases, and no one is right or wrong."

"Japan is not in this war on German backing. They have ideas of their own. If Germany collapses, which is unlikely, at the present time, Japan will and must fight to the end of their tether."

Professor Roberts also explained that the European situation and the Pacific situation are just a part of the world state and that every power is responsible for the present state.

A tea dance will be held from 4 to 5:30 this afternoon in the river room of Iowa Union. All university couples are admitted without charge. Music is by popular recordings.

To Hold Tea Dance

The program will be given in the audience studio of WSUI and the public is invited to attend.

U.S. Army Authorities and Soldiers Join In Extensive Camp Beautification Campaign

Landscaping Program To Prevent Erosion, Maintain High Morale

Although poring over seed catalogues to plan flower gardens and shady lawns seems quite remote to Iowa City homemakers at present, that is just what army camp authorities are doing right now.

Individual soldiers as well as the army authorities are getting successful and extensive beautification programs under way at many of the cantonments.

Despite the intensive training incident to war effort, the landscape scars and barren areas left by the camp construction program are being beautified. In some instances this camp improvement drive is for the purpose of preventing soil erosion. Rye seed has been introduced at Jefferson Barracks in Missouri to hold back the earth topping the smooth, muddy waters of the Mississippi river flowing beside the camp. Soldiers are planting grass seed on their encampment sites in the south.

Use Native Flora

In transplanting trees, flowers and shrubbery at Camp Stewart, Ga., emphasis is laid on the native flora. Thousands of square feet of sod, dozens of palmettos, casino berries, cedars and magnolias were found in the woods and placed in the military reservation. The trees and ferns were placed along miles of thoroughfares and flower beds were laid out. A large greenhouse is being planned where approximately one hundred floral varieties will be grown scientifically for experimental uses. Mother Nature is demonstrating that beauty can be combined with big guns.

In direct contrast to this array of gorgeous blooms, trainees at Camp Sibert, near Boulder City, Nev., have pricked their fingers turning the sandy wastes of their camp home into an exhibit of desert vegetation. Specimens of the beaver-tail, barrel and other types of cacti are being planted around the buildings.

Receive Trucks of Plants

Camp Roberts, Cal., was presented with two truck loads of evergreens, Chinese bamboo and mirror and broom plants by Father Gilbert, custodian of plants at the University of Santa Clara. These plants are valued at more than $1,000.

Camp Lee, Va., is getting some of its beautification from the graduating classes of the Quartermaster school. The first group to win diplomas after the school removed from Philadelphia planted five silver spruces with appropriate ceremonies and the hope that succeeding classes would follow the example.

The Camp in New York likes to point to its thousands of pine trees that give scenic beauty to its military acreage and to remind its residents that Camp Livingston, La., surrounded by glorious pine trees lacks the finishing northern touch of a snow blanket.

The army cannot yet convert its swords into ploughshares but it is turning martial motor convoys into florists' vans whenever possible. Beauty, too, is doing its share as a morale builder and an aid to national defense.

Potatoes Help Keep The Nation Healthy

Potatoes are one of the best means of helping national health as well as keeping up your family's health standard. Both sweet and white potatoes are good for stretching your food dollar and for their nutritive value. They are excellent sources of vitamins C, B and A.

Conservation will help us win this war and one part of your conservation job is storage. For white potatoes, a moist, cool, dark place is best. Sweet potatoes should be kept dry and cool, since they spoil easily. Always avoid rough handling and bruising.

Make Them Interesting Because potatoes are healthful is no sign that they should be dull. Vary the way you serve them, get a little excitement into your preparation. Here are a few suggestions for preparing potatoes.

Boiling potatoes is a delicious way to serve them, using a firm, waxy potato. Make potatoes hold their meaty goodness by baking them.

An interesting way of preparing sweet potatoes is to parboil and then candy them; this adds even more nutritive value. You may also use them with baked meats. Dark-skinned, mealy ones are best for this "sweet" purpose. And here's a most economical secret—cook all potatoes before peeling to maintain maximum food value.

Look for the Best Do you know good quality potatoes when you see them? Quality is indicated by freedom from marks of decay, such as soggy or rough spots in white potatoes, moist and soft spots in sweet ones. Smoothness, shallow eyes, uniformity of size and clean skins are indications of white potato quality. Brightness of color and smoothness are to be sought in sweet potatoes. Freezing discolors sweet potatoes.

Do your part for national health—serve potatoes to your family twice a day. Potatoes will give them the added vigor necessary to face these busy days.

Jap Operations Extend Over Area— Mapping the War—By Comparison

—Comparable to United States

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK (Wide World)—To get some idea of the extent of Japanese war operations, let's project a map of the southwest Pacific onto the more familiar outlines of North America.

The generally-recognized key to allied operations in the southwest Pacific is Singapore. To keep most of the other major points on the American mainland, we'll locate Singapore at El Paso Tex., as a starting point.

We now find that, ignoring for the moment the Malayan campaign itself, the Mikado's raiders have since Dec. 7:

Occupied the northeast edge of Sandy lake, in the Canadian province of Ontario 430 miles due north of Duluth, Minn., (Hongkong); Marched into Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. (Manila);

Make Landing Effected a landing (and had their warships devastatingly bombed by U. S. fliers) at Petersburg, Va. (Davao, on the southern Philippine island of Mindanao);

Captured or established beachheads at Hamilton, Tex., 500 miles east of El Paso and slightly west of Waco (Kuching, capital of Sarawak on the island of Borneo); Bob Burns' home town of Van Buren, Ark. (Miri, in Sarawak); Viola, Ark., on U. S. highway No. 62 (Brunel, capital of the Borneo principality of the same name).

Sent their bombers on raids scattered along a west-east line running from Vicksburg, Arizona, 430 miles west of El Paso (Medan, on the east coast of Sumatra), through McLean in the Texas panhandle (the Natolea islands, off Borneo's northwest corner); Calhoun City, Mississippi (Tarak, Dutch oil port on Borneo's east coast); Folkston, Georgia (Amoerang, on the eastern peninsula of Celebes); Fort Pierce, Florida's east coast (the Dutch military and naval base of Ambon) and on out to a point 1,750 miles into the Atlantic from Fort Pierce (Rabaul, on the island of New Britain in Australia's Bismarck archipelago).

Target of Raids Transposing other major points

La Conga, Most Recent of— Latin Dance Sensations

—Takes America by Storm

BY PAT FLYNN

Most recent of the Latin dance sensations promoting international relations on American dancefloors is La Conga. It was originally a primitive Cuban dance, taking its name from the Conga drum.

All Conga steps are based on three steps forward or to one side and a kick. Thus you count: one, two, three, kick; one, two, three, kick.

The man begins the basic Conga step with a step to the side on the left foot. The right foot crosses over the left foot in the same direction, followed by another sidestep with the left foot and a forward kick with the right. The step is repeated in the opposite direction by starting on the right foot.

locates Bangkok, tarket of American-British air raids against Japanese-held Thailand, on the south shore of Yellowstone lake in Yellowstone National park. Saigon, principal southern city in Japanese-controlled French Indo-China, bobs up at LaGrange, Wyoming.

Rangoon, base for the British and American flyers who raid Bangkok and possibly marshaling point for an allied threat at the Japanese flank, is transferred to the Idaho-Washington state line 30 miles north of Moscow, Ida. From there the "road to Mandalay" leads north into Canada's Jasper park and ends on the 12,294-foot peak of Mount Columbia. Staying in the Kipling mood for the moment, Moumein and its famed pagoda are at Missoula, Montana.

Chief cities on the chief island of the Dutch East Indies, Java, are Batavia, the capital, and Soerabaja, the big naval base. Batavia now becomes populated with Mexicans, at Nieves in the state of Zacateca, and Soerabaja, as befits a naval base, turns up at Cape Rojo, on the Gulf of Mexico south of Tampico.

A 'Natural' Site The battle for Singapore appears to deserve transposition all its own, and this can be accomplished on the Florida peninsula, with Cape Sable, at Florida's southwestern tip, a "natural" site for Singapore.

This places the starting points of the Japanese attacks roughly at the juncture of the Florida-Georgia-Alabama state lines in the west (where the Thailand-Malaya states border runs down to the sea) and Jacksonville in the east (corresponding to Kota Bharu, where capture of the airport gave the Japanese such a great initial advantage).

Other locales which have become familiar from the communique then would be: Along the west coast—the hamlet of St. Mark's, on Apalachee bay (the naval base of Penang);

Newberry (the inland tin-mining center of Ipoh); Port Inglis, at the mouth of the Withlacoochee river (Kuala Selangor, at the mouth of the Slim river); Port Swettenham (St. Petersburg) and Tampa (the federated Malay states capital of Kuala Lumpur, and Punta Gorda (Malacca).

On the east coast—190 miles away is Melbourne (representing Kuantan); 90 miles off is Fort Lauderdale (Mersing, where the Japanese attempted troop landings), and the small port of Gouids, a few miles below Miami on U. S. highway No. 1, would correspond to Mawla.

Great Fighting Front A natural shift from this scene was to attempt to show on the map of the United States the expanse of the land fighting on the Russian front. The line from Leningrad south to Sevastopol alone—and a straight line, too—would correspond to a line running from St. Cloud, Minn., all the way to New Orleans.

In this projection you find Moscow roughly in the neighborhood of Aurora, Ill., with the German-held town of Moshalsk about due west at Princeton, Ill. Chief magnet in the Soviet counter-offensive in the central sector would be Keokuk, Ia., as Smolensk, and Muscle Shoals, Ala., appropriately would fill the role of Kharkov, the Russian Pittsburgh.

Turning point in the southern fighting, then, would have been the battle of West Point, Ga. (Rostov); the Russian counter-drive into the Crimea would have been launched on the east shore of Mobile Bay (Kerch) at Biloxi, Miss. (Feodosiya) and at Hammond, La. (Yenakievo).

The Russians, in rolling back the Nazi wave, would have recaptured such towns as Menomonee, Wis. (Tchkhvi); Pekin, Ill., home of the University of Illinois (Tula). Still in the grip of the Nazis would be Alton, Ill., on a Mississippi river bend above St. Louis (Orel). But in the Nazi retreat a line running south from Washington, Ia. (Vyazma), to Jefferson City, Mo. (Bryansk), it appeared likely to return to Russian hands.

Enough geography for one day? Class dismissed.

Local Drama Group Will Meet Tomorrow

The January meeting of the drama department of the Iowa City Women's club will be held in the club rooms of the Community building tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. C. S. Williams presiding.

The program, third in a series of "Drama from Different Countries," will deal with the "American Drama from the Soil," including both Indian and Negro drama.

The daily lives of the uneducated Negro will be portrayed in a playlet by Mrs. Clarence Van Epps, Mrs. Grace O. Waterman, Mrs. H. S. Bailey, Mrs. S. J. Davis, Mrs. Lloyd Spencer, Mrs. R. G. Popham and Mrs. George Handry. Negro music will be used in the presentation.

Indian drama expressed through the dance will be demonstrated by four members of Orchestis, honorary dance society. The women, trained by Janet M. Cumming, university instructor of aesthetic dancing, are Eleanor Wisco, A3 of Sioux City; Beverly Martin, A2 of Highland Park, Ill.; Mary Lou Whitney, A2 of Flossmoor, Ill.; and Wendy Robb, A2 of Tucka-hoe, N. Y. They will give impressions of the dances of the Navajo and Comanche Indians, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Vera Marsan.

Club members will sew during the program.

Utility Is Keynote of 1942 Fashions

War-Time Economy in Clothing to Stress Functional Styles, Cottons, Pastels

The "little black dress" was the whirlwind success of the last war's fashion world and one wonders what the new silhouette of this war will be.

From ballroom and bridge table the 1942 style emphasis will switch to factory and civilian defense. Mrs. Uppington will find herself a dress, less in the high style and more in the functional type.

Cotton handbags, shoes, gloves, cotton suits, coats and dresses will have their fling this spring because the maid is out. She is working on a defense job. Cotton can be easily washed in the home laundry tub. Shortages of leather, allocation of wool and shortage of certain cleaning fluids also popularize cotton.

Utility Cloth Now Utility cloth will "soft pedal" luxury cloth. It will have little in common with the flimsy. The extremely chic costume will be eclipsed by the durability of outdoor clothes. It is believed that the United States will husband stocks from the beginning after profiting from Britain's mistake. Stringent rationing has upped the English clothing budget allowance.

Cold weather fashions will be borrowed from the soldiers. Wind and shower resistant cotton is one of the features suggested by the government bureau of home economics. Not borrowed from the army is an action pleated skirt.

Mr. and Mrs. America's closet will not be cluttered this season. The printed jersey popularity that rode in with the cold wave will remain along with that of the casual twill, flannels, gabardines, crepes and prints.

Inexpensive Clothes Basement priced pastel plaid, solid color skirts and wool flannel slacks will lead in spring sportswear. Pastel sweaters in cardigan and slip-on models will still be on deck.

Chinese and Pan-American designs will indicate the nature of the times. Defense areas have already shown an increase in fur coat sales due to lower prices in prevailing stock.

Handbag leathers are of snake-skin and patent leather. Millinery items are of shiny straws, bellings and pastel felts.

Will fashions continue to "cultivate the paradoxical?" Women have never worn longer silk jackets, larger pocketbooks and larger brimmed hats in the face of a shortage of wool, felt and leather.

Organize New Red Cross 'Canteen Corps' Tonight

Community Building Is Site of Womens Registration Meeting

The new county Red Cross "Canteen Corps" will be organized tonight at a registration meeting at 7 o'clock in the Women's club rooms of the Community building, Mrs. C. B. Righter, Canteen corps registration chairman, announced yesterday.

Due to the need for numbers of canteen trained women, the committee has scheduled a nutrition lecture to immediately follow registration at tonight's meeting. "No time will be lost in training the women," Mrs. Righter said.

Forty hours of instruction, 20 in nutrition and 20 in canteen work, are necessary to receive the Red Cross diploma awarded to graduates from the training. Lectures will be under the direction of Dr. Kate Daum, head of the university hospital nutrition department.

Three Red Cross certified nutrition experts from the university hospital nutrition department will assist Dr. Daum in giving the instruction.

To the canteen worker falls the responsibility of mass feeding in evacuation centers and the feeding of rescue workers. Nutrition aides will serve in the nation's homes with their scope of activities focused on family menu problems rising from wartime shortages.

During the World War I flu epidemic, Mrs. Righter said, untrained Iowa City women took up stations throughout the town to feed the sick and homeless. During World War II, if such an occasion should arise, there will be a supply of Red Cross trained canteen workers to scientifically do this work.

Although no uniform is required for those who complete the training, one may be purchased upon request. A canteen workers uniform will soon be displayed in Iowa City.

No cash remuneration is made for the work. Textbooks cost 25 cents.

All persons interested in nutrition and canteen work are urged to attend tonight's meeting.

Society and fraternities, clubs and housewives, and persons who have large families and do large scale cooking are especially invited. Scientifically balanced menus for both large and small groups will be discussed throughout the training.

University women who wish to take canteen training may do so in a special course being offered next semester in the university home economics department. Under the direction of Dr. Sybil Woodruff, 2 semester hours credit will be given to those who complete the course.

Those who found it impossible to continue in the first canteen classes may continue the training in the new course, Mrs. Righter pointed out.

A quiz over nutrition work will be given at the meeting of the first course next Monday and therefore it is extremely important that all members attend.

Eyewitness of Japan's Pearl Harbor Attack Sells Defense Stamps

Mrs. Russell McKray, eyewitness of the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor Sunday, Dec. 7, will assist in the sale of defense stamps in Iowa City in conjunction with the "Build a Bond" day program, Chairman William Grandrath of the junior chamber of commerce project announced yesterday.

She will aid in selling defense stamps at the junior chamber stamp booth in the lobby of the Jefferson hotel Friday afternoon.

Mrs. McKray recently gave a vivid eyewitness account of the bombing attack and is scheduled to relate her experiences in a radio program over WSUI tomorrow afternoon at 1:15.

Both Iowa City banks, together with the post office, Iowa Union and university business office will sell stamps Friday. The Iowa-Indiana Gas and Electric Co. booth will operate Thursday and Friday.

Petit Jurors to Report For Files Case Today

Petit jurors are to report at 10 o'clock this morning, Judge Harold D. Evans announced yesterday, to hear the case of State of Iowa vs. Lee Files.

Files was charged in a Johnson county grand jury indictment with larceny of $114.40.

Men Needed to Fill Construction Jobs

Plumbers, Roofers, Carpenters Wanted For Newfoundland

Men are now wanted to fill construction openings in Newfoundland, John H. Patton, manager of the local employment service, announced last night.

The type of workers wanted, according to Patton, are assistant general carpenter foreman, finish carpenter, carpenter foremen, pipe layer, roofers, plumbers, steamfitters and sheet metal workers.

Wages range from $66 to $100 per week for the above jobs. The men will work ten hours per day for six days of the week.

Usual camp recreation facilities are available, Patton asserted, but the men are not permitted to bring their families. Although no definite age is required to fill these positions, the accepted men must be in good health and citizens of the United States.

Transportation for the men to Newfoundland is paid in advance and the return trip will also be paid if the worker fulfills his contract. Board and room costs are said to range from $8 to $10 per week.

Mayor Urges All Out Effort In Bond Drive

Every I.C. Resident Asked to Participate In 'Build a Bond' Day

Mayor Henry Willenbrock yesterday called for the participation of every resident of Iowa City in the "Build a Bond" day program Friday sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce.

The mayor stressed the need for 100 per cent co-operation in this gigantic project. "We are not asking you to buy a bond, but by putting aside as small a sum as 10 to 25 cents to buy defense stamps you are helping the United States," he said.

Everyone in the city is to participate in a party, either as a guest or host, according to the plan outlined by the junior chamber. One member of each group is to assume the responsibility for distribution of the free stamp savings books and sale of stamps.

Iowa Citizens can accomplish two objectives: serving patriotism and saving money to help Uncle Sam, the mayor pointed out.

The state of Iowa has won nationwide acclaim through the program. Invitations to have members of the junior chamber of commerce explain the program in detail before group meetings would be welcomed, it was announced.

Mayor Willenbrock suggested that several persons get together and form a party. The only requirement is that each person be sponsoring the "Build a Bond" day.

"Let us help put Iowa City on the map in a manner to reflect glory on our city and in every place where democracy reigns," he said.

Lloyd Lantz Receives Suspended Sentence On Larceny Charge

Lloyd Lantz was given a suspended sentence of one year in the county jail and paroled to Sheriff Preston Koser Monday when he pleaded guilty to a grand jury indictment for larceny before Judge Harold D. Evans.

Conditions of the parole are that Lantz must refrain from use of intoxicating liquor and pay the sheriff the sum of $53.81 within 60 days, which must be turned over to Louis Turecek, prosecuting witness.

According to the indictment, Lantz was charged with stealing in excess of $20 from Turecek. He was arrested June 24, 1941, by Sheriff Don McComas.

Atty. Ingalls Swisher represented Lantz.

Judge Evans also awarded the Firestone Home and Auto Supply Stores $135.37 judgment against John Oakes, Hill Top Service station operator.

Atty. Robert L. Larson represented the plaintiff. Atty. Ingalls Swisher represented the defendant.

Col. H. H. Slaughter Tells Kiwanis Club Japan Was Forced Into War by Germany

Predicting that General MacArthur's forces can hold Corregidor and their positions around Manila until July, Col. H. H. Slaughter, head of the university military department, told members of the local Kiwanis club yesterday that Germany forced Japan to bring us into the war to dissipate our help to the allies and detract our attention from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"The island of Luzon is of more importance to the allies than is Singapore," Colonel Slaughter pointed out. Next to Luzon, the Japanese mandated islands around

Officers Warn I.C. Motorists Of Tire Thefts

Motorists yesterday were issued a warning by Iowa City police and the sheriff's office to protect and safeguard their automobiles against stealing of accessories.

With tires and other car accessories being more difficult to obtain due to rationing, Sheriff Preston Koser and Police Chief Frank J. Burns urged motorists to keep their cars in locked garages.

It was advised not to leave cars on parking areas near the homes or in driveways due to the possibility that tires may be taken. It was also suggested that serial numbers of tires be recorded to check them if stolen.

Several cases of tire thefts have been reported, the officers stated, but added that an increase in stealing may be prevented by making it more difficult for thieves by locking your car in a garage.

Joint Meeting Scheduled

A joint meeting of Eureka lodge, Carnation Rebekah lodge No. 376 and Iowa City lodge No. 416 will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the I.O.O.F. hall. Dancing will follow the meeting.

Ask Knitters to Bring Completed Garments In to Sewing Rooms

A shipment of all completed knitted Red Cross garments will be made tomorrow, Mrs. L. E. Clark, county Red Cross production manager, said yesterday. Persons who have completed articles should bring them immediately to the Red Cross sewing rooms in the Community building.

Toddler packs for small children will be shipped together with the knitted garments and finished packs should also be returned at once.

A limited supply of yarn is now available for sweaters, socks and helmets for men in the North Atlantic naval patrol, Mrs. Clark said. These garments must be completed this month and knitting instruction will be given upon request when the yarn is dispensed.

Knitting instructors for this week and the days on which each will be present at the sewing rooms are Mrs. J. J. Hinman, Wednesday; Mrs. H. H. Hoeltje, Thursday; and Mrs. B. M. Ricketts, Friday.

A new shipment of service pins have been received and will be sold upon the customary non-profit basis.

As motor corps volunteers do not receive any compensation for services or expenses, it is requested that they be called upon only in cases of absolute necessity.

U.S. Coast Guard To Double Strength

The United States coast guard must recruit enough men immediately to more than double its regular strength. ## Civil Service Offers Exams for Dietitians

The civil service commission in November announced a student dietitian examination to obtain eligibles for the army medical center at Washington, D.C. Because an insufficient number of applications were received, the closing date for the examination has been extended from Dec. 31, 1941, to Jan. 31, 1942.

Pay for student dietitian is $420 a year less a $350 deduction a year for subsistence and quarters. Those successfully completing the course will be granted certificates of graduation, and depending upon vacancies and efficiency during the course of training, will be eligible for retention in the service in the position of dietitian at $1,800 a year.

Offer Commissions To Medical Students

Third and fourth-year medical students in acceptable medical schools and first-year interns may obtain reserve commissions in the army or navy and then will be permitted to finish their medical training, including a year of internship before being ordered to active duty, according to word received by the Iowa state selective service headquarters in Des Moines.

Such students and interns may be deferred in class II-A pending receipt of their commissions, but all who are eligible for commission and do not apply may be considered for classification in class I-A if they are found physically fit and not deferred for other reasons.

Third and fourth-year medical students rejected after applying for commission, and also first and second-year medical students and those registrants who have been accepted as students in medical schools, may be deferred in class II-A so long as their school officials certify they give indication they will become qualified medical practitioners. However, no group deferment is permissible under the law and each case must be decided by a local board on the facts con-

Passing the Buck

by BILL BUCKLEY

There should be no groans or misgivings over Monday night's loss to Minnesota on the part of Iowa's basketball team or the fans...

The Hawkeyes had a fine start in the game, and just because someone tripped them at the first quarter is no reason not to be present at the finish...

There are no alibis to offer for the last performance—the team doesn't want it that way...

The job at hand is a simple one... This same group of players faced a similar task last season...

This week end is a setup for the boys, who are giving a surprising performance to date, no matter what was expected of them before the season...

So this week is a critical one for Iowa... The undefeated pressure is off, and from now on in, those Hawkeyes must work for a position in the first division...

In the space of two days, two communications have come our way concerning the performance of Iowa's Al Coupee in the East-West game at New Orleans Jan. 3...

The first, a letter from D. O. Thomas, Commerce '27, who is now connected with General Electric Contracts corporation in New Orleans, tells how much satisfaction it gave him to see Al play...

"The fact that Bernie Bierman and Andy Kerr chose Al to direct their team for 48 minutes of the entire game was indeed a worthy tribute to a fine football player...

"Since I was unable to personally congratulate Al after the game, I am hoping you can pass this letter on to him, and possibly to your readers...

Then came a card from Gregg Phifer, a graduate student here at Iowa, with a clipping from a column by Fred Russell in the Nashville Banner, sent up by his father...

Meet Bradley Tech With Soph Talent; 9 Meets Scheduled

A predominately sophomore University of Iowa wrestling team will take to the mat for its opening dual meet next Monday...

So Mike Howard, starting his 21st year as Hawkeye mentor, is optimistic for the nine-meet season which starts with the Bradley Tech clash here Jan. 19.

The team is headed by Capt. Loy Julius of Cherokee, Big Ten 128-pound champion of last year who was fourth in the national collegiate meet...

Bernard Conrad of Council Bluffs, a veteran, is at the 121-pound class, and Roy Pickett of Waterloo, one of the best of the sophomores, is at 128 pounds...

In the heavier departments, several of the starters are uncertain, depending upon the ability of some athletes to make the correct weights...

Art Johnson of Ft. Dodge, senior who was a finalist in the Big Ten 175-pound class last season, is back for more service...

HAWKEYE HIGHLIGHTS

Iowa had only 59 shots in the Minnesota basketball game, Statistician Fred Beebe reports...

In the Wisconsin game, Iowa had 62 shots and made 20 goals, while the Badgers made 20 of 78.

Cancellation of two meets gives the Iowa indoor track team just four contests...

Great Lakes 5 to Play Cyclones at Ames Feb. 3

CHICAGO (AP)—Great Lakes Naval Training Station announced yesterday that its basketball team would play Kansas university Feb. 5 in the Kansas City municipal auditorium.

Rear Admiral John Downes, commandant of the ninth naval district, said the game was arranged after the Missouri Valley intercollegiate athletic association ruled that Big Six conference teams would be permitted to meet service teams in games not held in campus gymnasiums.

NAVAL YARN-SPINNER. . . . Ed Shelley, who'll be interviewing Iowa juniors, seniors and graduate students interested in the navy's V-7 program in Macbride hall this afternoon, can spin navy yarns by the hour when he isn't busy, which is seldom. . . An ensign in the naval reserve, he's a product of the program he's working for now. . .

Ed got his B.S.C. here in 1937, and shortly thereafter enlisted in the reserve. . . He's seen a good deal of duty on the sea and he knows what the fleet can do, so it's reassuring to talk to him right now when the biggest question concerns the fleet. . .

There were two University of Iowa men in Ed's officers' training class. The other was Al Sorensen, who edited Hawkeye back in 1938. . .

Ed sees the day coming when the United States fleet will be a navy of the people, rather than an outgrowth of the tradition of Annapolis. . . As the approach of war made it necessary to train many more officers faster, lots of new blood flowed rapidly in. . . That wasn't too easy for some of the old Annapolis-trained men steeped in the traditions of the naval academy, to take. . .

Ed is a strict adherent to the navy's philosophy of putting men into service where their talents can do the greatest good. . . The thing that thrills him as he travels about the country is the tremendous amount of talent in the avenues and byways of America. There's somebody in this nation who can do anything, and Ed believes that if that talent can be properly channeled in this total emergency effort, there isn't a nation in the world can stand up to us for very long. . .

And he can illustrate that point. . . Not long ago, the registrar of an Iowa college went to Des Moines to talk to Ed about what his school could and should be doing in the interests of the war program. . . Ed's caller, after they'd talked awhile, said, "You know, I might be able to help the navy sometime." . .

It seems the man knew several languages. . . could speak three, he announced casually, and translate five. . . "Well," began the mid-western registrar, "I know Arabic, for one. . . Ed wonders how many Americans know Arabic, and how speedily the navy'd be able to find one of them if they needed him in a hurry. . .

Shelley's own room-mate at his naval training base knew Russian. He'd been born in Russia, spoke it before he knew English, and while he hadn't used it for years the knowledge of the language was still there. . .

One day a bulletin board notice sought anyone at the base who knew Russian. . . Ed talked his roommate into checking up. New the roommate's in naval intelligence somewhere in the Soviet Union, being far more valuable to the service than he would be anywhere else. . .

The navy was on its toes way back in the '30s when the first clouds of war were gathering. That branch of the service took its slogan literally. . . "America's first line of defense." . .

I recall that a dozen or more of the kids in my high school class and the classes around it signed up during a recruiting drive at that time, back around 1935. . . Three of them were at Pearl Harbor, one aboard the Arizona. . .

Just before the war broke, the navy was busy building up a backlog of officer material for the inevitable time when it would be needed. . . Ed had one of his finest sets of interviews here on the campus in mid-November. . .

Biggest problem in filling the need: deck officers have to have math, and too few have had it. . .

And with 18,000,000 tons of shipping due to slide into the water before the end of next year, the need's obvious. . . That's a lot of mathematics. Before the war is over, the U.S. may pass Britain as a nation whose citizens follow the sea. . .

Sixteen states own and operate liquor monopolies. They have annual sales of more than $284,000,000; they make more than $58,000,000 profit and the average family expenditure for liquor in those states is $26.22. . .

Military Department Considers Steps to Stop Ticket Scalping

Col. H. H. Slaughter, head of the university military department, last night said the department is seriously considering steps to prevent scalping of Military Ball tickets.

According to Col. Slaughter, the military department is deeply concerned over the scalping problem, which apparently has become worse than ever before.

He said the department feels that many of the tickets are bought for the sole purpose of scalping and that this practice prohibits many students who would like to go to the dance from buying tickets.

The name of each student, and the number of the ticket he buys is known to the military department, he said, and therefore it would be a simple matter, by using student identification cards, to see that the purchaser is the user of the ticket.

Under this system, the identification card, the ticket holder and the purchaser of the ticket would have to correspond, the colonel said.

Interpreting War News—

Time Is The Vital Factor Concerned In Pacific Struggle

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Wide World War Analyst

The flaming muzzles of MacArthur's guns, shouting grim defiance still at Japanese invaders of Luzon, are sounding a message for American ears as thrilling as the defense of Wake island in the otherwise somber war symphony in the Pacific.

Three times within a week those guns have beaten back the foe from Batan peninsula to keep the Stars and Stripes still flying above that water-moated fortress. In the hands of American-Filipino comrades of more proven skill and dauntless fighting clan, they are exacting as heavy a price in blood and lost time as did Wake's gallant garrison against similarly overwhelming odds.

Disrupting Jap Strategy The defense of Batan may be doing even more to disrupt Japanese strategy than is yet discernible, whatever the ultimate fate of its garrison. Lacking any definite clue to the nature and timing of concerted American, British, Dutch, and Chinese counter measures against the common enemy on the China sea checker board, it is impossible to assess the full significance of the battle of Batan.

It cannot be reiterated too often that time is the vital factor involved. Every day or hour that MacArthur's men and guns can delay full Japanese concentration southward against Singapore or the Dutch Indies is an invaluable asset to the allies, and an irreparable loss to the foe. Every tick of the clock counts, and MacArthur and his men are keeping it ticking fatefully on Luzon.

They are taking every advantage of their chosen fighting ground. Jungle-clad slopes of rugged Batan peninsula are serving their foreseen purpose. High placed American-Filipino guns out-range enemy batteries, nearly a dozen of which, perhaps fifty guns, have been blasted out of action by the accurate fire of the defenders. Enemy tank and foot columns were forced by that demonstrated fire power superiority to advance to the attack uncovered by a barrage from their own guns, to be "shattered and dispersed," MacArthur reported.

Position is Critical It would be useless to argue that the position of the defenders of Batan is not critical. Given air mastery locally to cover reinforcement and supply, they might hold out indefinitely, or even to escape by sea to fight again. It is southward, however, over more vital Singapore and in the Dutch Indies that allied strategy appears to be aimed at first challenging Japanese domination of the air effectively.

Nevertheless, a time might come on Batan when the cost of its taking against relentless and skillful defense would prove too heavy for the strategic values its reduction would yield for the Japanese. A Japanese decision to forego frontal assaults in favor of land-air siege operations, virtually bypassing this tiny island of American-Filipino resistance to concentrate against Singapore or the Dutch Indies, would be understandable. It would involve loss of face, however, a serious consideration in oriental philosophy.

Census figures for 1940 show that over a billion dollars literally go up in smoke curling from the ends of more than 180 billion cigarettes, 7,900,000 cigars and 17,500,000 worth of pipes and cigarette holders manufactured in a year.

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander-in-chief of Allied forces in the Far East, is pictured above as he reviewed a detachment of the Royal Australian Air Force in Singapore. It is not known whether Wavell has already set up his headquarters in Batavia, Dutch East Indies, which, it has been announced, probably would become Allied Far East headquarters.

OPM Extends Ban on Sales of New Cars

WASHINGTON (AP)—The office of production management last night extended until Feb. 2 the ban on sales of new passenger automobiles and trucks pending completion of details of the rationing program.

The original order, halted sales through Jan. 15. Officials said details of the rationing program probably would be ironed out within a few days but that about two weeks would be required to get the administrative setup in operation.

Under the ban, all sales of 1942 model cars, trucks and truck trailers are prohibited except to the army or navy and certain government agencies.

Extension of the ban came as some 400 automobile dealers met with the house committee on small business to canvass their plight.

L. Claire Cargile of Texarkana, Tex., president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, reported that government officials were working on a plan to alleviate their difficulties.

Student Contributions Reach $639.98 Total In Annual Seal Drive

Loren Hickerson, student chairman of the Johnson county tuberculosis Christmas seal sale, announced last night that student contributions total $639.98 to date, $39.98 above the $600 quota originally set.

There are still 2,200 resident students who have not returned either the seals or the money for them. In order that drive details may be completed, the chairman urges that those students return either the seals or the money as soon as possible to the campaign headquarters, 315 Iowa State bank building.

"I want to personally thank the student body of the university for their splendid cooperation in this year's drive," Hickerson said. "Your response has measured up to the expectations of the committee, and we are grateful."

AS JAP DRIVES CONTINUE IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC

This Central Press map shows how the three main efforts of the Japanese southwest Pacific drive are aimed at eventual envelopment of the Dutch East Indies. With Davao (A), in the Philippines, as a base for operations and reinforcement to troops already landed in Borneo (C), fall of Singapore (B) would enable the Japs to attempt an encirclement of the highly important island of Java. The savage resistance of American, British and Dutch forces to date has greatly delayed consummation of such Japanese strategy.

Trapped Axis Forces, Faced With Defeat, Resist Stubbornly

South Africans' Attack Too Deadly For Remaining Germans and Italians

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN THE WESTERN DESERT, Jan. 11 (Delayed) — (AP) — From a ringside seat on the broad escarpment overlooking Salum and Halfaya (Hellfire) pass I watched a South African brigade launch a grand assault upon the last remaining axis nests of resistance in this Egyptian-Libyan border area.

(The British announced the capture of Salum Tuesday, leaving between 7,000 and 8,000 Germans and Italians bottled up in the Halfaya area, and their capitulation appeared only a matter of time.)

Bronzed Scotsmen from South African Transvaal paced the attack across the sandy plain upon Salum, whose port long has been under the guns of British artillery. They attacked first along the north rim of Salum harbor and quickly drove the axis outposts from a ridge down to the sea-front.

After this comparatively easy initial success, real trouble started. The Germans and Italians poured deadly fire into the advancing South African ranks from machine-gun and small cannon emplacements hidden in dozens of caves lining every passageway leading from the seacarpment to the seashore. Axis artillery batteries from the southern side of the harbor barked incessantly and they, too, took their toll. Yet by mid-morning the South Africans had cleaned out most of the caves overlooking the northern section of the mile-wide sandy harbor and shoreline and had occupied every building left standing in the town. As I write this, shell fragments are whistling around our observation post on a high point overlooking the northern end of the harbor. A German artillery battery, shelling a Transvaal platoon pinned in the rocks 200 yards below us, is the source. South Africans scurry along the flats below us in ones and twos. They dive into the sand as shells crack about them.

British artillery thundered all day, seemingly thrashing every foot of the tiny peninsula on the north end of the harbor where South Africans closed in steadily on trapped Germans.

One South African immediately below us made a valiant run across a hundred yards of open sand with bullets cutting a pattern of tiny sand puffs before and behind him.

But bad luck overtook him. Just as he dashed into the shelter of a roofless cabin a German mortar shell scored a direct hit. There was a blinding flash, fire erupted from the ragged walls and through the door. The soldier did not come out. The losses were not one-sided, for the Germans, too, suffered heavily. Prisoners dribbled back in handfuls. One German brought to our observation post his entire platoon had been either captured or killed. His South African captors gave him a tin of corned beef which he wolfed hungrily. "This war has been no pleasure as far as I'm concerned," he told me. This 31-year-old Nazi who won't fight any more is a farmer from near Frankfurt-on-Main. He has been in Africa seven months and it was his first campaign. Like other Germans, he expressed disgust with his Italian partners.

Waste Paper, Old Metal To Be Collected Soon For County Red Cross

Plans are being made to have all waste paper and scrap metal throughout Johnson county, exclusive of Iowa City, collected for the benefit of the county Red Cross war fund, Leslie A. Moore, social activities and projects director for the fund, announced yesterday.

The method of collection will be decided upon at a meeting of county drive chairman which will be held in a few days, Moore said.

Birth Records Requests Keep County Clerk Busy

Since shortly after the outbreak of war, Dec. 8, the clerk of court's office has been more than busy with birth records. By wire, by air mail, phone and by office visits, requests come for certification of the records. To date, an average of 100 persons per week have come to the office for certificates. By mail, and other means, an average of 10 requests per day are received, Clerk R. Neilson Miller said.

John F. Katzenmeyer Rites to Be Conducted

Funeral service for John F. Katzenmeyer, 85, 610 E. Church, will be held at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in the Hohenschuh mortuary with the Rev. Herman Strub, assistant pastor of St. Mary's church, in charge. Burial will be in the Oakland cemetery.

Katzenmeyer, who died at his home Monday night after a lingering illness, was a life-long resident of Iowa City. He was born here Sept. 6, 1857, and was a tinner by trade. He is survived by three brothers, Frank J. of Walker, George P. Katzenmeyer Sr., of Iowa City and Philip at home; two sisters, Mary and Anna, both at home, and several nieces and nephews.

NELSON—

(Continued from page 1) last night, the plan was still only an outline. Under terms of the chief executive's order, Nelson will hold a position, in the production field, superior to vice president Wallace, chairman of the economic defense board; to secretary of the navy Knox, secretary of war Stimson, Sidney Hillman, labor member of OPM, William S. Knudsen, production director of OPM, Harry L. Hopkins, coordinator of the lease-lend program, secretary of commerce Jones, and Leon Henderson, the price administrator, all of whom are members of SPAB and will serve under Nelson on the new board. Nelson originally came into the government as a dollar-a-year man from the Sears Roebuck company where he was executive vice president, to take charge of government purchases for defense. Later as the old defense advisory council was succeeded by OPM and SPAB was superimposed upon the latter, he was given direction over priorities.

Pneumonia—5th Ranking Cause of Death

State Health Department Advises Early Treatment; Precautionary Measures Outlined

Since Hippocrates (470 - 370 B. C.) often called the father of medicine, described pneumonia and methods of treatment as practiced during that ancient period, rapid strides have been taken—many in recent years—to reduce the high rate of mortalities caused by that dreaded disease. The reason that pneumonia, once ranked the third greatest cause of death, now stands in fifth place, is because of the remarkable remedies discovered and applied through the untiring efforts of many scientists and doctors. In Iowa alone, a reduction of 25 per cent in deaths was shown in 1940 in comparison with the average annual number of deaths from all forms of pneumonia during the five year period of 1935-1939.

one should know, according to the state department, are: (1) pneumonia is due to a definite cause, usually bacterial in nature. (2) In most cases the onset is definite and unmistakable, beginning suddenly with a chill, sharp rise in temperature, pain in the side (cough) and the raising of blood (tinged sputum). (3) A physician should be called without delay because the outlook for recovery is much brighter when treatment is started during the first three days. (4) Factors which predispose to pneumonia include the common cold, influenza, exposure to wet or cold weather, undue fatigue and chronic alcoholism. (5) Proper care of influenza and the common cold may prevent more serious complications. (6) Hospitalization is always preferable, although if the patient is to be taken to a hospital he should be moved early and not when the disease is well advanced. (7) Pneumonia in children is similar to the disease in adults; however, children usually need even more special care and precautionary measures than do older patients.
