CAUSES $500 DAMAGE

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) —The enemy submarine which pum- shells into an oil field Monday night in the first attack upon United States soil in the present war caused damage of only $500.

Oil field officials estimated the loss yesterday as land, sea and air forces kept sharp vigil for a possible reappearance of the under- sea craft, described by eye-wit- nesses as monstrous.

Approximately 25 five-inch shells from the submarine's deck gun, fired from an angle approxi- mately one-half mile off shore, raked the beach and the grounds of the oil field, seemingly in- tended for two huge storage tanks. The only object hit, how- ever, was a gear housing in one well's pumping machinery that readily can be replaced.

Only Damage Done

It was struck by a fragment of a shell that first struck a pier, ricocheted about 150 yards, hit a steel beam on the end of another pier, then plowed into the oil well machinery.

One shell fragment slightly dented a 10-inch pipeline which serves one of the large storage tanks. Others tore down a section of power lines.

Allies Abandon Rangoon

189 Officers, Men Lost at Sea As Destroyer, Freighter Sink

Forty-Three Seamen Reach Safety on Swaying Bosun's Chair Slung Over Cliff Above Smashed Vessels

BULLETIN ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (AP)—On a swaying bosun's chair slung over a 200-foot cliff, 43 men from the United States destroyer Truxton and the U. S. naval supply ship Pollux were rescued after their vessels were smashed to bits against the Newfoundland coast in a raging storm.

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the worst sea disasters in United States naval history—loss of a destroyer, a supply ship, and 189 officers and men—was announced yesterday by the navy department in a tragic account of death and destruction on the gale-lashed coast of Newfoundland.

Seldom have ships been battered into wreckage by the deliberate action of enemy guns more quickly than the 1,200-ton destroyer Truxton and the 6,085-ton freighter Pollux were dashed to pieces by wind and wave.

And even in these times of wholesale losses of men and ships on the high seas all over the world, naval veterans here were obviously deeply saddened by the heroic but mostly futile struggle put up by the men of the Truxton and Pollux after their ships ran aground in the storm.

From the Truxton seven officers including the captain, Lieutenant Commander Ralph Hickox, 38, of Washington, D.C., and 90 men were lost. Three additional deaths were expected to be reported later. The Truxton normally carried a crew of around 145.

One officer and 91 men from the Pollux perished. The skipper of this vessel, whose name was not given out, and some others of those on board, were saved.

The two vessels, forming a portion of a convoy, were voyaging along the south coast of Newfoundland near St. Lawrence Bay, at the mouth of Placentia Bay, when the mishap occurred, the navy reported.

Wet, heavy sea had cut visibility virtually to zero, and although it was day time, navigation aids were obscured. The seas, driven by gale winds, were crashing thunderously against rocks and hidden reefs, and it was a bitter cold. Then both ships ran aground.

Under the pounding of the waves, the vessels began to break up immediately. Oil from the fuel tanks spread over the churning surf.

"Heroic efforts to swim lines ashore failed due to the inability to handle them when they became oil soaked," the navy's communique on the disaster related.

Presumably efforts also were made to launch lifeboats but since no mention was made of any getting through, the boats probably were lost, dashed to bits on the rocks and reefs. Finally, the navy said, "A breeches buoy was rigged to a ledge at sea level but some of the survivors were washed away before they could be gotten to the top of the cliff that lined the rocky shore."

"The survivors owe their rescue in large measure to the tireless, efficient and in many cases heroic action of the people of St. Lawrence, Newfoundland," the navy declared.

Adolf Couldn't Leave Front for Celebration Of Nazi's Anniversary

Editor's Note: On Oct. 4, 1941, less than four months after Hitler invaded Russia, he told his people: "Now it can be declared that the enemy already is broken and will never rise again." Now...

MUNICH (From German Broadcasts) (AP)—Adolf Hitler, in a message last night from his Russian front headquarters to Nazi chiefs observing the 22nd anniversary of the party platform here, declared that the red army's hope of inflicting "a Napoleonic retreat" on the German army "has collapsed miserably."

Again, the German leader blundered in the winter weather, "which took us by surprise," and world Jewry for his troubles in Russia, but he said the snow was melting in Russia and "it is impossible for me to leave my place where preparations have been made for the final struggle."

During the last six months of 1941, the chamber's annual report said, the average monthly sinking of British, allied and neutral merchant shipping approximated 180,000 gross tons or a total of more than one million for the period.

During the same period, enemy losses totaled "not less than five or six million tons."

Russians Deal Crushing Defeat to Nazis' 16th in the Vital Staraya Russa District

Declare 12 Thousand Germans Wiped Out In Grand Offensive

MOSCOW, Wednesday (AP)—An entire German army of 45,000 men has been shattered and 12,000 of the enemy killed in a smashing, 10-day red army victory below Leningrad, the Russians announced in a special communique.

The Nazi army—the 16th—was encircled in the vital Staraya Russa district, 140 miles south of Leningrad and 270 miles northwest of Moscow, and suffered one of the most crushing defeats yet inflicted upon Adolf Hitler's legions.

So complete was the rout of the Germans that they left behind vast and still uncounted stores of booty. Guns by the thousands, more than 1,000 motor vehicles, railroad rolling stock, tanks, munitions and horses by the hundreds fell into Soviet hands.

Listed officially as smashed were the 290th infantry division of the second German army corps, the 30th infantry division of the 10th army and a division of Hitler's picked Blackshirt S.S. elite guards.

Besides the enormous losses in men and material, the defeat cost Hitler vital positions he needed to protect his imperiled forces holding the town of Staraya Russa itself, keystone of all his positions on the northwestern front.

The town lies some 12 miles south of Lake Ilmen, and is a communications center on an east-west railroad connecting the main Moscow-Leningrad line and another running south from Leningrad farther west and a third which skirts the west shores of Ilmen and is linked directly to the long line to Murmansk.

Allied Posts Greatly Menaced In Whole of Southern Burma

Commander-in-Chief of India Made Responsible For Operations Conducted in Burma; Rush Supplies to China

BULLETIN CANBERRA, Wednesday (AP)—Japanese parachute troops have landed near Koepong, capital of Dutch Timor, and a strong naval force has been sighted off Dili, capital of the Portuguese half of the island, the Australians announced officially today.

The allied position was imminently menaced last night in the whole of southern Burma and Rangoon itself, the capital of that crown colony and bridge between China and India, was in effect already gone as a British stronghold.

Sharp and immediate was the crisis and it was officially recognized that the battle for Burma had now become actually the battle for the outer defenses of India itself.

This was signalled by the fact that the British commander-in-chief for India, General Sir Alan Fleming Hartley, was made responsible as well for Burma operations—a step that was understood to have pleased the Chinese, who must be depended upon in great measure to help hold northern Burma at least as a link between the two greatest peoples of the Asiatic world.

Rangoon—the sea head of the Burma supply road to China—was being abandoned, and while the American military mission sweated to get out one last shipment of thousands of tons of supplies for the Chinese the British themselves were reported burning all unmovable military stores.

In an offensive strengthened by the arrival of more and more reinforcements the Japanese had beaten forward to and over the last natural defense line east of Rangoon, the Sittang river, and in apparently overwhelming force were smashing at the British imperial forces for 100 miles up and down the Sittang.

The invader stood within 60 miles of Rangoon itself—and within 20 miles of the Rangoon-Mandalay-Lashio rail line of the Burma road.

The Japanese casualties were and had been enormous—but still they came on. In the Dutch East Indies the Japanese, still taking no known steps to reinforce their hard-won beachhead on Bali, sent bombers to raid Bandoeng on Java, the site of the supreme allied command for the southwest Pacific.

Ten bombers assaulted the city, but dropped only light projectiles and caused only slight damage. At least one of the raiders was shot down; others were damaged.

In Australia, where a direct Japanese assault there or upon New Zealand is expected at any time, the nation's political and military leaders conferred long and urgently with a New Zealand delegation.

The enemy's relative inactivity in this theater was again extended to Luzon in the Philippines. There, the war department reported in a morning communique, there had been no action of consequence save for continued incendiary bombing by Japanese pilots behind the American lines.

In Russia, the Soviet armies of the center were reported advancing uninterrupted upon the Germans' Smolensk defensive triangle—the last strongly-held area short of the frontier region of White Russia—from previously recaptured Dorogobuzh.

Tanker Torpedoed WASHINGTON (AP)—The navy department announced last night that the Cities Service company's oil tanker Cities Service Empire had been torpedoed off the Atlantic coast.

Churchill Tells Parliament of Dark Days Ahead In Southwest Pacific: Allies Outnumbered

LONDON (AP)—Painting a somber picture of wrath to come, Prime Minister Churchill fore-shadowed further defeats and disasters in the southwest Pacific in a frank but gloomy speech before the house of commons yesterday.

He warned that the allies there are outnumbered by the Japanese on the sea, on the land and in the air, that reinforcement will be difficult because of a "most serious" increase in shipping losses in the last two months and that Britain's navy flotillas which convoy troops and guns from one part of the empire to another are "strained to the utmost."

The house, mollified by the Prime Minister's reorganization of the government into what he termed a compact and "more tensely braced" cabinet, heard him through without learning from him a single word concerning India, at whose doors the Japanese are knocking as a result of their advance in Burma. But in the house of lords, Lord Cranborne, the new colonial secretary, referring to the India visit of China's generalissimo, Chiang Kai-Shek, announced that the British government "is in favor of India's political freedom."

He conditioned the announcement, however, by explaining that a satisfactory solution in India depends upon Indian leaders getting together and devising a scheme of government which is satisfactory to all.

Churchill's preoccupation with the Pacific situation was taken by informed quarters as an indication that Britain's war effort will be directed more and more toward defeat of the axis in the Far East, in Russia, and in the middle east—with less emphasis upon the

U.S., Great Britain Draw Up Post-War Economic Agreement

Set Forth Settlement Plan for Lend-Lease Accounts With World

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House announced yesterday that Great Britain and the United States had signed an agreement setting forth the general principles for the post war economic world and the settlement of lend-lease accounts.

It is aimed at making effective provisions of the Atlantic charter through elimination of international trade barriers and reduction of tariffs with the purpose of stimulating production and employment and the distribution and consumption of goods.

While the pact was signed only by the United States and Great Britain, it was specifically stated that all other nations may become participants.

Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 republican presidential nominee, was enthusiastic in his praise for the program, and called it "the most significant and beneficial understanding made between nations in the last many years."

The document stated at the outset it was the intention of the United States to continue supplying England with war materials under the lend-lease plan, and that Britain shall supply this country with such reciprocal aid and information as it can give.

When the war is over such lend-lease implements as can be returned to this country shall be returned, if the United States wants them back. Otherwise the settlement of the lend-lease account "shall be such as not to burden commerce between the two countries, but to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world-wide economic relations."

The objectives of the pact were listed as: Expansion of production, employment and the exchange and production of goods by appropriate international and domestic measures.

The elimination of all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce, and the reduction of tariffs.

General attainment of the economic objectives of the Atlantic charter.

The agreement was signed yesterday by Sumner Welles, the acting secretary of state, and Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador.

Representatives Vote 389 to 7 to Repeal Pensions for Congress

Sponsor of Bill Says Public Erroneously Informed About Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—In mood first angry then boisterous, the house rolled up a whopping 389 to 7 vote yesterday for repeal of pensions for congressmen, making virtually certain that the law which had plagued it for weeks would soon be wiped off the statute book.

Iowa: Democrats for—Harrington, Jacobsen. Republicans for—Cunningham, Gilchrist, Gwynne, Leecombe, Talle. Republicans against—none.

Actually, the vote was on a technical motion which will lead to repeal, but they considered that the effect was the same and they eagerly called out a loud "aye" when the long-sought record vote—the first to be taken in the house on the question—began.

The handful of "no" votes included that of majority leader McCormack of Massachusetts. The others were representatives Boland (D-Pa.), Casey (D-Mass.), Flaherty (D-Mass.), Moser (D-Pa.), Mitchell (D-Ill.) and Rogers (D-Okla.).

The crowded chamber got off to one false start as Rep. Martin J. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) interposed an objection to the complicated parliamentary situation in which the pension repealer found itself. Influential members quickly waited him and within an hour, he withdrew.

Democratic Conditions of Living Begin to Appear in America

This month a national incident symbolized democracy within America.

Over the nation grippers were griping about censorship, food rationing, where was the navy, who sank how many of which ships, etc., etc.

But forces more vital than such surface knowledge were in existence in the national situation—forces that might be known as "democratic conditions of living."

At Fort Knox the army—largest group in the country to feel the impact of the totalitarianism that inevitably comes with wartime—met to dedicate its main parade ground there to its first casualty, "killed in action," in World War II.

No rich man's son or political prodigy was Private Robert Brooks. In America, perhaps the greatest victims of undemocratic social, political and economic injustice are 5,500,000 white and 3,200,000 Negro tenant farmers of the south. But Brooks Field honored the son of a Kentucky Negro sharecropper family.

Major General Jacob L. Devers (Chief of the Armored Force) commented for Time: "In this, the greatest democracy the world has ever known, neither riches nor poverty, neither creed nor race, draws a line of demarcation in this hour of national crisis."

This incident was not a lone star on the horizon of "democratic conditions of living." It was more than an empty symbol. For there was evidence that Americans were seeking to keep vital and meaningful the life-tissue of their way of living at home to justify its defense abroad.

Youth in particular was doing something more positive than contenting itself to give a portion of itself to army and navy. There was evidence that youngsters were trying to realize this thing as an actuality, not a myth.

Over the nation on many a campus the Youth Committee for Democracy was planning to "build democracy within America" to the end that peace years might not find the foundations of the temple rotten beneath the floorboards, but sound, strong, sturdy.

One of its first tenets was supporting the economic relief of the south's enslaved sharecroppers. And this time a youth movement went beyond mere "intellectualism." It turned to action. Not merely education of itself and the public in sharecropper problems, but honest, real activity to bring financial aid to America's down-and-outers was its aim.

The Youth Committee for Democracy turned into an actual fact. On our own campus its embryonic chapter has proved a sturdy, vital group, and YCPD's at the University of Iowa will join in sponsoring National Sharecropper's Week March 1-8 on the Iowa campus.

Brooks Field was a moral victory for YCPD's everywhere—it seemed to bring democracy's underprivileged into the spotlight of democracy's blessings. But more, its coincidence with their campaign to alleviate sharecropper ills seemed to indicate that even destiny might have set her approval on their endeavor, as well as on the growth and strengthening of democracy.

The Background of Russia: Will She Weather Her Test?

Russia's entrance into the war finally brought into open conflict the two new governmental changes in the last three decades, communism and fascism. Students of government predicted this clash years ago and many have welcomed it, believing that this clash will leave one dead and the other so weak that it can not survive.

Russia is gambling everything in her war with Hitler. The new Soviet Union, the plan of a people's government, the development of Russia all lie in the balance.

Communism, odious as it is to us, has been the salvation of Russia. From time immemorial, Russia has been the land of nobles and serfs. The wealth of the vast nation lay in the hands of a privileged few and under them were the millions of illiterate, dull, long suffering peasants.

Alexander II tried to emancipate the serfs, but a revolution in Poland brought an end to his experiment. Nicholas II was a weak despot, liberal and cruel by turns. Russia still had a feudal system up to the 20th century.

The disastrous defeat of 1904-05 suffered by Russia at the hands of Japan led to a revolution that was largely a failure. When Russia entered the World War I, she was esteemed as one of the greatest powers in Europe. Russian soldiers fought bravely, but war funds had been spent for pleasures by the irresponsible officials and materials for war were lacking. After terrible defeats, the Russians were forced to surrender at Brest-Litovsk.

The defeat of Russia was the signal for a great revolution. Led by Trotsky, Lenin and Stalin, the Bolsheviks gained control of the government. The Czar was executed and a new form of government, a government that exalted the masses, was formed.

At first the Bolsheviks concerned themselves only with the attempts to spread their communistic doctrines through the world and trying to incite revolutions all over the world. When this met with utter failure, they concerned themselves with the internal improvement of the nation.

First the nobility and upper classes were shorn of their power and property. The vote was given to the poor people and was taken from those who had previously had this privilege. To carry out this plan, many of the men who had been prominent in the Czar's government were executed.

From the beginning of time, the natural wealth of Russia had lain virtually untouched. Under a "five year plan," factories were started, railroads built, motor trucks and farm implements were produced. Russia was transformed from a dull nation to a nation which thought in terms of kilowatts and power. The farms were taken from private hands and state collective farms were operated under the strict control of the government.

The industrialization of Russia was carried on past the old European part of Russia. The Urals, a virgin region of vast natural resources, were industrialized. Southern Russia from Rostov in the west to Khabarovsk in the east was built up. To defend this new union, a great, modern army was formed.

In June, 1941, this new government faced its greatest test. It became embroiled in a war to determine whether a nation that has finally found itself after thousands of years of lethargy can save itself from again being cast into the bonds of eternal slavery.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON — Huddled heads in the treasury, house and senate have just about reached a conclusion of what is needed in the next tax boost bill—another 30 to 50 per cent general increase to bring in around $9,000,000,000 more than now.

How they are going to get it is another thing. The treasury people have been in conference with Senator George and Representative Doughton trying to iron out matters in advance. Shy as always, the treasury is making "suggestions" and wants congress to take the initiative. The treasury always likes to get what it wants, but never likes to espouse openly a "program."

What it wants this time seems to run roughly along this line: Another $3,000,000,000 touch upon corporations through sharply raised profits levies. (Treasury still likes its oft-debated plan to treat excess profits on the basis of capitalization alone, but may drop it, as both George and Doughton are opposed.)

Another $2,000,000,000 increase in individual income taxes, through stiffer rates and lowering of the exemptions to a "subsistence level." How much income an individual needs to subsist has not been officially mentioned, but there is talk of reducing the exemptions on single persons to $500 (from $750).

An increase of $2,000,000,000 in Social Security taxes by increasing the payroll tax as well as extending the system to many classes now exempt. (Farm? Domestic?)

A windfall of $1,000,000,000 by plugging loopholes (abolishing separate returns from husbands and wives, altering the oil depletion allowances, etc.)

March 15 Will Tell Story— This would make $9,000,000,000 or more comfortably, but much of it is subject to disagreement. Senator George wants a special war excess profits tax on corporations, a separate new tax. Considerable dissension has arisen around the new Social Security taxes. Many congressmen want a sales tax on the ground it would be less painful than any other form.

Eased out of the argument apparently is the old treasury proposal for a withholding tax on salaries. The AFL and CIO have been busy against this government form of check-off, both in congress and in the administration. Some congressmen have threatened if it is brought up they will offer a sales tax as a substitute.

For one of these two reasons or both, the treasury is soft-pedaling. Federal reserve Governor Eccles has mentioned it only as credit to be applied against income taxes. Thus it would become a method of paying income taxes in advance — for the present, at least.

The treasury still wants to tax state and municipal bonds and will present the proposition, but without enthusiasm. There is not a chance congress will approve and the treasury knows it.

In view of all this meandering, there is a general disposition to wait until March 15 returns show exactly how much the present rates are bringing in. Action, therefore, will be delayed, although hearings may start in the house ways and means committee in a week.

You can certainly anticipate that the increases will be no heavier than the treasury "suggestions" and probably will be considerably lighter.

An increase of $2,000,000,000 in Social Security taxes by increasing the payroll tax as well as extending the system to many classes now exempt. (Farm? Domestic?)

A windfall of $1,000,000,000 by plugging loopholes (abolishing separate returns from husbands and wives, altering the oil depletion allowances, etc.)

March 15 Will Tell Story— This would make $9,000,000,000 or more comfortably, but much of it is subject to disagreement. Senator George wants a special war excess profits tax on corporations, a separate new tax. Considerable dissension has arisen around the new Social Security taxes. Many congressmen want a sales tax on the ground it would be less painful than any other form.

Eased out of the argument apparently is the old treasury proposal for a withholding tax on salaries. The AFL and CIO have been busy against this government form of check-off, both in congress and in the administration. Some congressmen have threatened if it is brought up they will offer a sales tax as a substitute.

For one of these two reasons or both, the treasury is soft-pedaling. Federal reserve Governor Eccles has mentioned it only as credit to be applied against income taxes. Thus it would become a method of paying income taxes in advance — for the present, at least.

The treasury still wants to tax state and municipal bonds and will present the proposition, but without enthusiasm. There is not a chance congress will approve and the treasury knows it.

In view of all this meandering, there is a general disposition to wait until March 15 returns show exactly how much the present rates are bringing in. Action, therefore, will be delayed, although hearings may start in the house ways and means committee in a week.

You can certainly anticipate that the increases will be no heavier than the treasury "suggestions" and probably will be considerably lighter.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Alfred Hitchcock Had a New Toy

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—Alfred Hitchcock had a new toy, and he was enjoying it.

Outwardly, it was just a movie set. Balroom stuff. Balroom in a New York mansion of the marble stairway, potted palm era, surviving in this strange and hurly-burly today. Dancers. Dress extras in their finest silks, velvets, satins—and early morning yawns too.

And Robert Cummings and Priscilla Lane, coming cautiously but unmelodramatically down a stairway, conversing furtively before Cummings steps into the ballroom, accosts a couple standing near. He says: "Pardon me, sir, you'll think I'm crazy—but this place is swarming with spies and saboteurs!"

The old gentleman, Cyril Ring, regarding him tolerantly, his expression saying "I do think you're crazy"—for after all this is the home of a leader of society, the guests are prominent in social, industrial, financial circles, and the affair is a charity ball—for war relief.

Ballroom, dancers, Cummings Lane, Ring, the situation—what a shiny toy for Alfred Hitchcock! He beamed all over, which is quite a spot of beaming considering his gross tonnage.

"Quite a change," he said between takes, "from the usual musty, dark cellar of mystery and menace. I think it's different." He indicated the bright chandeliers, the gaiety, the richness—the casual sedateness of wealth and position disporting itself. But skullduggery proceeding underneath it all, he assures me, the beam overflowing his second chin.

It was his first experiment with suspense under the bright lights of gaiety. With practically no encouragement, he licked his plotting chops and told all. "They're prisoners of the saboteurs—at this party. They can move around freely, but they can't get out. Footmen guard the doors. They can appeal to any of the guests—you just saw them appeal to one—but they don't know who is loyal, who is in the gang. It is all brightly lighted, in the open. Finally Cummings decides to denounce the saboteurs from the middle of the floor. Then he looks up—at an overlooking window a man levels an automatic at him. He speaks—an appeal for charity funds. He is still in the trap."

Alfred Hitchcock was as excited about these wheels-within-wheels of "Saboteurs" as a kid with his first electric train. He had me that way too. Maybe that's why Hitchcock pictures are that way.

Free air, available at service stations, was a luxury only the rich could buy in 1907.

Navy aircraft carriers are the fastest of any big ships, and almost as fast as destroyers.

LISTEN! THE WIND

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

Broadway Can Be Genuine All Right By GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK — This, to Paul Henreid, is the greatest town in the world. And Broadway is more than a street of eternal daylight, but a token of democracy, burning brightly while the capitals of the old world — Vienna, Paris, Berlin—are blacked out.

Paul Henreid is an actor. But his enthusiasm for democracy isn't an act. And when he returned to Broadway, which gave him his start in this country, the welcome he received wasn't an act either. Broadway can be genuine when it is dealing with genuine people.

An international if ever there was one, the tall young man with classic profile and dark blonde hair escapes being sticky by a comfortable margin. He is a good listener, as well as being a good talker, has a ready laugh, and the gift for making a brief acquaintance seem like an old friendship.

Broadway got acquainted with Paul Henreid not long after his arrival in New York in August, 1940. He was cast as a bombastic German consul in "Flight to the West," a stage success. While the play was running, an English-made film, "Night Train," in which Henreid was a Gestapo agent, began making the rounds in this country—and added to his reputation as an actor. RKO signed him to a long-term contract, the first fruit of which is "Joan of Paris," and it looks like RKO made a ten-strike.

But while Henreid got his start as a man you love to hate, there'll be no more nazis or gestapo agents in his career if he can help it. His hatred for nazis equals only his religion of democracy, and it pains him to be officially classed as an "enemy alien" and under such restrictions as to the amount of currency he can carry, even while looking forward to complete citizenship. For Henreid went after his first papers only four days after he landed in New York, even before he had a job.

Henreid was born in Trieste, son of Baron Carl von Henreid. He was raised as an aristocrat, which only served, he says, to make him democratic. In his book, Austria is an invaded and nazi-dominated country. In 1935 UFA invited him to Berlin to make a film, and when he saw what the nazis were doing to German people, he says, he decided there was nothing to do but get out. He was in England five years, on the stage and in films, before coming to the United States.

MEN AND WOMEN OF THE FBI

Women Find Careers in the FBI With Many Clerical and Stenographic Positions Open

The F B I Girls' Basketball Team, 1941 Champions of the Government Basketball League.

The U. S. government is tremendously busy these days—which means increased opportunity for young men and women to carve out careers for themselves in the government service. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, which is working overtime in its task of law enforcement and counter-espionage, provides a grand chance for ambitious young United States citizens—women as well as men. While there are no "G-Women", the FBI boasts of a large and growing feminine contingent in its stenographic, typist and clerical staff. Stenographers who must take dictation at 120 words per minute start at $1620 a year, typists and clerks at $1440 a year and Under-clerk trainees at $1260 a year. Any girl interested should write to Director John Edgar Hoover in Washington. As with the male clerical employees, feminine stenographers and clerks are sent immediately to the FBI Clerical School, where they find out what's what and who's who on the FBI. They also attend the In-Service Training School once a year to keep their work up to date and improve their positions. Life in the FBI is not all work and no fun. The FBI Recreation Association sponsors dramatics, bowling, swimming, basketball, softball and other activities to keep its girls happy and healthy. For newcomers to Washington, these social and sport affairs are particularly welcome, as the FBI stenographers and clerks have the opportunity to meet their fellow employees after hours on a purely social basis. Mr. Hoover himself takes great interest in the activities of the FBI Employees Recreation Association.

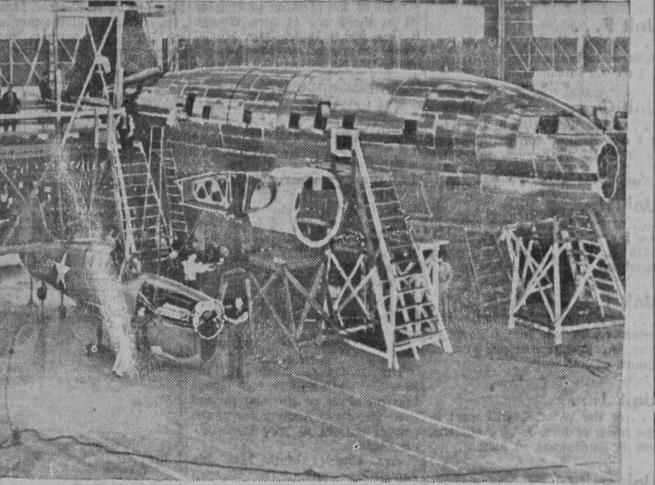

Director J. Edgar Hoover presents a medal for the best performance in the Civic Theatre Tournament of Washington, D. C. to an F B I stenographer.

Music to Come— Out of the Frying Pan

At Beaux Arts Ball

A demon 14 feet high with his head tilted back in a distorted way, his huge stomach bulging, and his hands overhanging the orchestra will be the outstanding attraction in the midst of many planned for the Beaux Arts Ball to be held in the art gallery of the art building from 9 to 12 Saturday, March 7. Originators of the idea, Dick Spencer, A3 of Des Moines; John Granata, A1 of Verona, and Jim Hunt, A1 of Chicago, are already at work on the figure which is to be made of plaster over a framework. The demon will be seated with his huge feet outstretched, and Larry Barrett's orchestra will be seated in front of the creature in a huge frying pan. Flames made red with wires will lick the sides of the big black skillet and come up in front of the demon. By use of cold air ventilators, the fire will appear to be fanned by the wind. On either side of the central structure will be floral reliefs of many colors. The flowers will be built away from the wall to give a three dimensional aspect. The designs will be done in bright colors to add to the fantasy of the decoration. Nine murals have been assigned to art students who will begin work on them Monday morning. Those who will do murals are Max Ballinger, G of Springfield, Mo.; Joellen Hall, A3 of Holdenville, Okla.; Mary Holmes, G of Greeley; David Mitchell, G of Detroit; Shanah Kaplan, G of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Sari Marcus, A4 of Jamaica, N. Y.; Celia Jamison, G of Denton, Tex.; Enid Ellison, A3 of Webster Grove, Mo., and Joe Cox, instructor in art.

Men's Style Council Gives Hints on Hats

Males Receive Eight Methods to Preserve Last Year's Headgear

For the campus men, here are some new tips for old hats. It might be quite a spell before you can buy another imported felt hat, now that war is going on. There'll be no robbery of hats by priorities, but the Hat Style Council urges you to be careful of the hats you have.

- 1.—Brush your hat free from dust regularly, with the nap.
- 2.—Grasp the brim fore and aft when you put on a hat.
- 3.—When you lay aside a hat for the season, push out the crown, turn up the brim and put it away in a hat box.
- 4.—Try to persuade the hat-check girl not to pile other hats on top of yours.
- 5.—If your hat gets wet, dry it slowly, away from heat, and see that it is not pushed out of shape.
- 6.—Turn out the sweatband of your hat at night. That allows perspiration and hair oil to evaporate.
- 7.—When you put away a derby, stand it on its side.
- 8.—This spring your straw hat will need brushing too.

Old Customs Shoved Overboard— Hollywood Joins War Effort

—And Find 'It's Terrific'

Gone are the days when stars had nothing more important to do than sling mink coats over lush night club chairs to the tune of $3.50 dimmers.

Gone too are the days when stars considered a press agent a Simon Legree brute if he forced them to pose beside a stove and stir a boiling concoction. Gone—well almost gone—are the days of studio feuds.

Imagine! Stars are not concentrating so much these days on how to get ahead as they are on how to get ahead of the Japs.

Not that Hollywood is dull; the contrary is true. On recent visits at various studios I found the atmosphere more stimulating than during normal times. As they say at Princeton, "The chatter rocks you." As they say in Hollywood—oh, yes, they say it—"It's terrific!"

I ran into Ida Lupino at Twentieth Century-Fox. A tiny tike in real life, and the last sort of person you'd imagine would get her hands dirty unless a picture part demanded it, she awes you by being a ringleader. She's a second lieutenant in an ambulance corps.

She left the set of "Moonlight" long enough to explain the duties. "We are the suicide squad, the first out in case of blackouts or air raids. I'm in the ambulance corps and have to know, not only about driving, but also a great deal about car repair, and first aid besides, which is no simple matter. We have only three actual ambulances, but we are hoping for the donation of more station wagons to supplement our 15. They make excellent ambulances."

Ida also gets called, once weekly, along with Myrna "Mrs. Thin Man" Loy, Mary Martin and similar pretties, to hand out sandwiches and hot drinks to the soldiers working on coast blackout shifts. "And the other night I was called to Pershing square, the USO headquarters across from the Biltmore hotel, to make a speech that would help sell stamps and bonds. My impromptu words seemed to pass muster but I certainly could have used a dialogue writer."

Warner Brothers studio, that young metropolis of humpbacked sound stages that scare you silly because they look exactly like aircraft hangars, had a problem on its hands, a worse task than camouflaging the Bremen. Not only were the sound stages disguised by the clever scenic department, but also the streets between and the approximate 100 acres included in the lot.

In less than 10 minutes Warner can completely evacuate its studio and safeguard at least 3,500 players in 14 bomb shelters. I was there one day when they photographed Alexis Smith knitting. "Oh, ho, ho!" I thought, then had to change my tune when the needles really began to click like Argentina's castanets. Those girls with the beautiful ankles, Alexis and Claudette Colbert and Lola Lane, can knit better than a bunch of grannies. After I'd watched a while I wiped the typewriter smudge off my fingers and went downtown to stand in front of a needle and yarn counter and feel ignorant.

Carole Landis, too. There are as many protective sandbags at this studio as you see along the levee when the Mississippi is rampaging. Aircraft spotters equipped with field telephones are stationed atop Stages 7 and 21, tallest on the lot, and work with ground wardens. They have several temporary hospitals, including two on large stages of their Sunset boulevard studios, and three surgical ambulances in which operations can be performed.

Carole Landis works for the Bundles for Bluejackets, serving at canteens during the nightly blackouts, as Ida Lupino does for the army. Carole is also a member of the Aero Nurses Corporation of America and is learning to transmit and receive radio messages. It goes without saying that she has been one of the most popular actresses sent out to entertain the soldiers at camp.

The Hollywood Victory committee, composed of Actors Charles Boyer, Jimmy Cagney, Gary Cooper, Ginger Rogers, Tyrone Power, Bette Davis, Clark Gable and others, chooses the celebrities to make these trips, as well as those best suited to help sell Defense Bonds. They are planning good-will tours to Iceland, more Latin American trips and, perhaps, a star-a-month to England.

Warners' Bette Davis donates a large percentage of her salary to the government and Edward G. Robinson gave the entire $100,000 from his last picture. Humphrey Bogart's boat is being used on coast patrol duty and George Brent has relinquished his yacht. All Hollywood's actors and resources are at the immediate call of the government because nothing would make Hollywood forget that "Stab in the Back."

Mrs. O. E. Carroll, president of the Stitch and Chatter club, will be hostess to the group from 2 to 5 p.m. Friday in her home, 119 1/2 E. Washington.

95 Years of Service to the Commonwealth---the University Passes a Great Milestone

HYDRAULICS ENGINEERING LABORATORY

By BEULAH STOWE

Today the University of Iowa is 95 years old. Begun in a single building in 1847, the campus now includes more than 50 buildings and 425 acres of ground. Since conferring its first degree on a single graduate in 1858, enrollment has increased until about 8,000 students attend the university each year.

President Virgil M. Hancher broadcast greetings to all alumni over station WSUI at 8 o'clock tonight in a special observance of Founder's Day, and the University Chamber orchestra will present a concert in honor of the event.

The university was founded on Feb. 25, 1847, only two months after Iowa became a state. Instruction began in 1854, and was carried on in one building until three years later, when state authorities vacated Old Capitol, leaving it for university use. The building was adapted to school purposes, and now houses the administrative offices.

Many problems blocked the immediate expansion of the new university. Limited facilities and financial support held back development and in 1858 the board of regents voted to close the university. Only normal training was continued until two years later, when all the colleges were reorganized on a broader basis. Federal grants of land increased the income of the institution, along with appropriations from the General Assembly.

The nucleus of the Iowa campus, traditional Old Capitol, is the earliest university building still standing today. With six-foot foundation walls of native stone, the building should continue to serve future generations.

After the fire of 1902, destroying Old South hall and the building housing the medical college, came a period of reconstruction and development. Schaeffer hall was completed and construction on the medical laboratories was begun. Erection on natural science hall and the engineering building came next and Currier hall was built in 1903. The Quadrangle was built during World War I by a joint government and university project, and housed the Students' Army Training corps during that time.

Begun in 1911, radio station WSUI now operates day and night from a building added to the engineering building in 1939. The first classroom program was presented in 1928, and the station now has five studios, television equipment and a radio staff. WSUI was closed during the war from 1917 to 1919.

Many changes in curriculum marked the educational progress of the university. Admission of women to the general curriculum and establishment of military training made a double entrance in 1861, and seven years later the law department was established. In succession came the departments of medicine, dentistry and pharmacy, leading up to the founding of the graduate college in 1900.

UNIVERSITY OF IOWA HOSPITAL

After the turn of the century came the college of engineering, the college of fine arts and the college of commerce.

Today the schools of journalism, religion, fine arts, and letters are a part of the college of liberal arts, and the school of nursing has been established as a part of the college of medicine. Other services of the university are the extension division, the child welfare research station, and the division of physical education.

Seventeen presidents have guided the University of Iowa through 95 years. Presidents have been Amos Dean, 1855-1859; Silas Totten, 1859-1862; Oliver M. Spencer, 1862-1867; Nathan R. Leonard, (acting president) 1867-1868; James Black, 1868-1870; Nathan R. Leonard, (acting president), 1870-1871; George Thacher, 1871-1877; Christian W. Slagle, (president pro tempore), 1877-1878; Josiah L. Pickard, 1878-1887; Charles A. Schaeffer, 1887-1898; Amos N. Currier, (acting president), 1898-1899; George E. MacLean, 1899-1911; John G. Bowman, 1911-1914; Thomas H. Macbride, 1914-1916; Walter A. Jessup, 1916-1934; Eugene A. Gilmore, 1934-

1940; Chester A. Phillips (acting president), 1940; Virgil M. Hancher, 1940.

Each of these men played a part in directing the university development from a single building in the middle of a prairie to an institution attended by thousands of students. The present campus, with its laboratories, museums, collections and libraries has come a long way since the days when Old Capitol was the entire college.

The present university, comprising 11 colleges, still remembers the day when only the normal college was maintained during its early history.

SUI Summer Management Course of College Of Engineering to Be Conducted June 8 to 26

18 Experts to Give Advanced Training in Production Methods

The fourth annual summer management course of the college of engineering to train men for war industries will be conducted from June 2 to June 26, Prof. Ralph M. Barnes of the college of engineering director, announced.

This course is open to people in industry who desire more advanced and comprehensive training in production methods. Its purposes are to show how production planning can be coordinated with the various activities of an organization, to present the fundamentals of motion and time study, to afford an opportunity for applying these principles to individual problems in the laboratory, to show how training programs in this field can be carried on in factories and offices and to provide an opportunity for discussing the problems common to production planning and motion and time study work in various fields.

The teaching staff is comprised of 18 experts, 11 of whom are visiting instructors. Members of the staff are Professor Barnes; Marion L. Asa, research engineer in the university's college of engineering; Lee S. Whitson, industrial engineer of the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company, St. Paul; Maynard L. Adams, industrial engineer of Eastman Kodak company, Rochester, N.Y.; Louis E. Davis, research engineer of the university's college of engineering; J. P. McClintock of the Chicago Engineer Procurement district of the war department; Lester Thonssen of New York City college; Lee W. Cochran of the university's visual instruction department, extension division.

Prof. W. L. Daykin of the university's college of commerce; Prof. Dewey Stuit of the university's psychology department; John A. Aldridge of Sears, Roebuck and company, Chicago, Ill.; L. A. Bradley, manager of the university laundry; W. E. Crotley, production manager of International Business Machines corporation, Endicott, N. Y.

Harold Engstrom of Bendix Radio, division of Bendix Aviation corporation, Baltimore, Md.; Lillian M. Gilbreth, president of Gilbreth, Inc., Bloomfield, N. J.; Robert I. Hale of the Glenn L. Martin company, Baltimore, Md.; W. F. Heising of the W. A. Schaeffer Pen company, Ft. Madison, and J. K. Loudon of the National Supply company, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"With America at war, we are confronted with the need for still greater production of equipment and supplies for our armed forces," Professor Barnes said. "Already there has developed a shortage of trained men, especially in the field of industrial engineering and management."

Lectures Tomorrow

Dr. W. H. Seeger will speak on "The Clotting of Blood" at a meeting of the Iowa Section of the American Chemical association in the chemistry auditorium at 7:30 tomorrow evening. A research associate in the university pathology department, Dr. Seeger has spent four years working on the isolation of the clotting principles from blood.

Prof. Quinn McNemar Will Speak Saturday

Prof. Quinn McNemar, on leave from Stanford University, will speak to graduates in psychology at the psychology colloquium here Saturday at 10 a.m. "Degrees of Freedom" is the subject of Professor McNemar's talk on application of statistical methods.

During his leave from the California school, the speaker is associated with the social science research council of New York City.

The meeting, to be held in room E 104, East hall will be preceded by a coffee hour from 9:30 to 10:00.

Nine American towns are named Naples.

University Librarians Show Inter-American Relations in Exhibits

Exhibits of pamphlets and books on South America and inter-American relations are being shown at the general reading room in Macbride hall and the document room of library annex.

The displays are shown in connection with the national extemporaneous-discussion contest of inter-American affairs directed by Dr. Alan Nichols in the office of the coordinator of inter-American affairs.

Mary Humphrey, superintendent of government documents at library annex, is directing a display of documents on Pan-American relations. At general library, Irene Steidl, superintendent of circulation, has arranged a glass case display of travelogue material, books and pamphlets on South America.

Local contest for the inter-American question will be held here Feb. 28, under the direction of Clair Henderliger, G of Onawa.

Prof. A. C. Baird, director of forensic activities, is state director of the program.

With a tour of South America as the grand prize, many students have already entered the contest, but undergraduates can still take part. Further information may be obtained at room 11, Schaeffer hall.

Varsity Rifle Team Will Fire Match With Iowa State Saturday

President to Speak To Hawkeye Alumni For Founders Day

Chamber Music, Talk To Be Heard Tonight On WSUI Program

As a special observance of Founders Day—the University of Iowa's 95th birthday—President Virgil M. Hancher will broadcast greetings to all alumni over radio station WSUI at 8 o'clock tonight.

80,000 College Men May Now Join Navy And Finish Education

A chance to join the navy and still continue their education for two or more years is open to Iowa college men from 17 to 19, according to Lieut. Commander Phillip R. Weaver, Iowa recruiting chief.

The annual enlistment of 80,000 men now in college who may become officers in the naval reserve is made possible under the new training program.

Recruits may be enlisted under a V-1 classification, or an inactive duty status, for two academic years. Their schedules will consist of suggested studies stressing physical training, mathematics and

Passing the Buck by BILL BUCKLEY

One of the brightest lights of Iowa's drive to the top section of the Big Ten basketball heap...

"High on a Wendell" put the clincher on his popularity with that weird overhead shot in the closing seconds of the Indiana game...

Not endowed with natural speed, Hill had to work on other parts of his game to make up for it...

In the early part of the season, "Windy" Hill strained his back, so badly that it's been necessary for him to wear a corset-like brace in all practices and games since...

Not speedy and not a good shot, Hill became the cleverest ball handler on the squad, without doubt in the Big Ten...

That was hardly enough to earn him a regular spot, however, and it wasn't until he improved in two other departments that his post on the starting lineup was secure...

First he developed the knack of popping in baskets when they were needed most... Although he only scores five or six points a night, almost invariably they come at the right time...

Second, Hill began to be a bearcat on defense as well as a center-of-motion on offense... He is, all in all, 5 foot 10 inches, 165 pounds of him, started grabbing rebounds from six-footers, stealing the sphere from amazed foes, and starting the ever-dangerous Iowa fast break.

Last year, Wendell was a little bit too clever for his own teammates, but this season, with the whole Iowa tempo speeded up, the rest of the Hawks kept up with him for the most part...

Wendy is a prime example of the goods in the makeup of this year's team—intestinal fortitude and a yard wide... This season, as never before in the past, it's been concentrated team effort in the interests of all, each man working individually only so far as it betters the whole...

Dodgers' Kimball Injured HAVANA (AP)—Pitcher Newell Kimball of the Brooklyn Dodgers suffered a sprained right ankle yesterday in an interclub game that was the athletic climax of a Cuban celebration and will be kept from practice for a week or 10 days.

St. Pat's, St. Mary's Quintets Reopen City Rivalry Tomorrow

Marians Seeking 12th Straight Victory Over Irish in 48th Meeting

The intra-city rivalry between St. Mary's and St. Pat's will be resumed in the old City high gym Thursday night, when the two teams meet for the 48th time in 23 years.

St. Mary's smothered the Irish earlier in the season, 41-25, to give Coach Suppel's quintet a run of 11 consecutive victories over the Crittamen. In the first years of the rivalry, the St. Pat's eagles won enough contests to give them a slight edge over the 23-year span.

The Marians rested four days after their last victory over Parnell two weeks ago, and then went back to work last Wednesday to get in shape for the Irish tilt. In recent games St. Mary's has been in the best shape of the year.

Although the Stueppelmen will be running up against a team much inspired by recent victories they will enter the scrap with the odds in their favor.

St. Mary's ace scorer, Tony Brack, who has put himself in the spotlight with 345 points to date this season, will lead the attack against the Green and White aggregation Thursday night.

Brack, who has poured in 18 points, all counted from the court.

Shamrocks Underdogs As Rivals Play 2nd Game of City Series

The second game of the St. Pat's-St. Mary's intra-city series will be staged tomorrow night in the old City high gym, in a tilt that should provide the expected capacity audience with thrills galore.

The Marians will go into the game the favorites, but don't count the Irish out without a battle. If the game approximates the Shamrock-St. Ambrose encounter last Sunday, the Red and Blue will have its hands full.

St. Pat's had its heart set on a win Sunday, and but for a momentary lapse in the fourth quarter would have achieved its goal against the winners of the recent Catholic diocese tournament.

The Krittamen jumped into a lead early in the second period, held it 22-17 at halftime and 31-28 at the three-quarter mark, but couldn't get any more than four in the final frame.

Twelve missed free throws was also a big factor in sending the Green and White down to its first defeat in three starts during the week.

Since the game against Oxford last week, the south-siders have been a changed outfit. Four men—Capt. Bob Quinlan, Jim Russell, Earl Murphy and Bob Grady—have all been hitting the hoop and giving St. Patrick's some of the scoring punch it has been lacking all year.

Some of the newcomers have also come through in grand style to provide an ample supply of reserve power.

St. Mary's, on the other hand, has had a well-balanced squad all year that has won 18 of its 22 games so far.

Main Marian scoring threat is sharp-shooting Tony Brack, who has already broken the all-time city scoring record.

Little Eddie Chadek has also been a big help in the triumphs achieved to date.

Nick Kearns Lauds Hawkeye Coaches Acclaims Anderson One of Best Ends in History of Irish

Referee Nick Kearns, who officiated at the Iowa-Indiana basketball game Monday, has worked many contests in his 23 years of experience in which present University of Iowa athletic coaches participated in their undergraduate days, and doesn't mind telling you about it.

"It's unfortunate that no sports writer has ever written about the ability of Eddie Anderson as an end while he played for the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame," Kearns said.

I've officiated at many games in which he played, and although he growled at me a lot, I place him and Roger Kiley, now judge of the appellate court in Chicago, as the outstanding ends in Notre Dame history."

"Frank Carideo, your backfield coach, is one of the smartest quarterbacks I've ever seen operate, and I've seen them all," he maintained.

"It's too bad that Otto Vogel, a good outfielder in his college days, couldn't hit my curve ball on the outside corner, low," joked Kearns, who once was admittedly a good minor league pitcher.

He also reminisced that there never was a man in the Big Ten who could dribble a ball like Rolfe Williams.

"If Rolfe could have scored on all of his attempts at the basket," he laughed, "the end of his teammate, Gus Tubell, now University of Virginia coach, would have established a record that possibly never would be touched."

Kearns had plenty to say about the athletic situation in the present emergency, too, advocating "larger athletic squads in all competitive sports to alleviate the strain on a few squad members who handle all the action."

He likes the idea of eliminating the center jump in basketball, believing that although the change has caused a hardship on certain outstanding players whom the coaches desired to keep in the game, it does work to the advantage of many.

"Although there has been considerable agitation against the new game which so satisfies the customers, I believe that coaches can be found for these evils without going back to the center jump and all its disadvantages," he said.

"Enforced substitutions would force the coaches to develop larger squads, give more of the school's students the opportunity to compete and would finally realize the main object—betterment of general condition," he concluded.

Kearns will be remembered by Iowa fans as the ump who so endeared himself to the fieldhouse crowds of a few years ago that as many came to boo him as came to see the game.

His name wasn't on the program Monday, for he was filling in another man's shoes. But he'll be coming back to Iowa City Saturday for the Purdue encounter, advance publicity and all.

Spartans, Beavers Will Start Football Series in November EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Athletic Director Ralph H. Young announced last night that Michigan State college and Oregon State college, Rose bowl champion, would play here Nov. 28 in the first game of a home-and-home series.

The 1943 contest, he said, would be played Oct. 9 at Corvallis, Ore. At the same time, Young disclosed that Santa Clara, scheduled here Oct. 24, had asked to be released from its contract because of the west coast war emergency.

Crespi Dissatisfied ST. LOUIS (AP)—Frank Crespi, St. Louis Cardinal second baseman, joined the holdout ranks last night with the statement he was dissatisfied with a proffered contract.

Crespi outlined his position with "I'm sitting tight right now. I think I deserve more than they have offered me."

Turns Slugger To Dynamite Franklin Myth

Rapid Robert Takes 2 Rounds of Blasting, Then Goes to Work By Sid Feder CLEVELAND (AP)—Rapid Robert Pastor turned slugger last night and after exploding the myth of Lem Franklin's famed fistic dynamite, fought on to stop the Cleveland Negro in eight rounds before a jam-packed crowd in the local arena.

Pastor weighed 181; Franklin 197 1/2. After weathering all the fistic dynamite Lem had in his arsenal for the first three rounds, the ex-New York collegian gave the local Larryeur a sound boxing lesson for the next few heats and finally put him away with a blistering barrage at 2 minutes, 8 seconds of the eighth in a fight booked for ten.

He fired 30 punches to drop Franklin flat on his face near a neutral corner midway of the round. Lem, a weary, well-battered warrior, got up, but staggered helplessly into the ropes and Referee Joe Seidley raised Robert's hand in token of victory.

Later Seidley said he had counted ten on the knockdown and that Pastor's victory would go into the books officially as a knockdown triumph.

Won Five Rounds For the seven completed rounds, Pastor had the last five in a row on the Associated Press score card, after the 24-year-old Negro took the first two by exploding all his dynamite early.

Throughout the fight, packed with action all the way, a new local indoor record crowd of 13,278 for a fight kept up a continual roaring and cheering for the speed and slugging of the match.

The gross gate was announced as $52,457, which also shattered the old local indoor mark of $50,000 drawn by Joe Louis and Eddie Sims six years ago.

Pastor's victory was little short of amazing, and by it he qualified to become the first fighter to get a third shot at Joe Louis. This probably will come along late in the summer, possibly for the benefit of the army, navy and marine funds and after Louis has taken care of such assignments as they tentatively arranged for him with either Abe Simon or Melio Betina in March and Billy Conn in June.

Rapid Robert was a 5 to 2 underdog in the betting going into last night's tussle and even his best friends told him the best he could expect was to outpoint the kayo specialist, who had won 19 fights in a row up to last night, the last eight of them in order, via the kayo route.

He went along on this theory for seven rounds as Franklin became progressively worse, once he "ran out of gas" with his right hand machine gun.

Franklin opened up like a 50-yard dash man. He ran out with the opening bell, firing his heavy artillery. Two rights snapped Pastor's head back in the first and a long, roundhouse right opened a cut alongside Bob's left eye in the second. But by the time the third heat came along, there was little steam in the feared right hand.

Franklin caught Bob with a smashing right, flush on the forehead, a few years ago that as many came to boo him as came to see the game.

His name wasn't on the program Monday, for he was filling in another man's shoes. But he'll be coming back to Iowa City Saturday for the Purdue encounter, advance publicity and all.

Outboxes Franklin Meantime, the pug-nosed New Yorker kept befuddling him with footwork and slowing him down with digging wallops to the body.

He and the referee got their feet tangled up in the second and Bob tripped and sat on the seat of his pretty silk pants. But he was up, and from the next round on he carried the fight to Lemuel all the way.

In the fifth he opened up his big guns and hurt Franklin so badly Lem held on momentarily. And in the eighth, when he finally saw his opening, he turned tiger. He caught Lem along the ropes near a neutral corner with a left hook and a right cross to the head.

Franklin was both hurt and dazed. He just didn't seem to know what was going on in the immediate vicinity.

Pastor poured leather to his head so fast only an adding machine could have counted the blows. Finally, Lem came tumbling down flat on his face. He rolled over at "eight," then stumbled to his feet, but school was out right then.

Hawks Face Tough Quints This Weekend

Safely entrenched in second place, until Saturday at least, by virtue of its great 55-52 victory over Indiana Monday, Iowa's basketball team faces two of the toughest quintets in the conference this weekend with bright eyes of finishing the highest in the final standings for the last 16 years.

Tied with Indiana, Minnesota and Purdue for the current runner-up spot, the Hawks meet the 30lermakers here Saturday and saga-leading Illinois Monday.

Two victories would almost clinch at least a second-place tie, the best record since the 1928 team tied for first with three others.

Purdue Last Victor Purdue is the last team to have beaten the Hawks this season, winning the trick, 45-44, at Lafayette Feb. 7. The Boilers had to withstand a mighty Hawkeye last-half spurge to win. Illinois boasts a 42-35 decision over Iowa at Champaign, but since the Purdue tilt, the Hawks have won four straight contests, and will be ready for both encounters.

Tom Chapman, already the new university scoring champion for a season's conference schedule, is hot on another Iowa record, Ben Stephens' 1938-39 total of 215 points for all games.

Chapman Seeks Record Chapman seeks Jack Funk's 1923 conference record of 150 points Monday with a 21-point blast against Indiana which brought his aggregate to 153. Now, with an all-game total of 211, he needs only five markers in four games to set a new mark in that department. Three of the contests are at home, and three are conference encounters.

The red-head's total ties him for third place in the current loop scoring race with Northwestern's Otto Graham. Ahead of him by two points is Purdue's Forrest Sprowel with 155, and Wisconsin's Johnny Kotz with 173.

Co-capt. Vic Siegel is second to Chapman in both conference and season scoring with 103 and 141, respectively. Milt Kuhl is third with 95 and 140, and Ben Trickey fourth with 78 and 101. Co-capt. Rudy Soderquist's recent scoring burst has brought him a close fifth with 77 and 95.

Coach Rolfe Williams gave his squad a rest last night, but will start giving them light workouts tonight. Dick Hein, who missed the Hoosier game with a serious case of influenza and strep throat infection, was reported as greatly improved at University hospital yesterday, and may see some action Saturday.

Dubuque Wins, 47-39 DUBUQUE, Ia. (AP)—Dubuque university's Spartans stayed with in shooting range of the Iowa conference basketball title last night by defeating Parsons, 47 to 39.

The Spartans, defending circuit champions, have won 13 of their 15 loop contests and are just a notch behind the leading Luther college outfit.

Little Hawk Cagers Drill for Final Tilt Of Regular Season

Coach Fran Merten drilled his Little Hawks yesterday afternoon in preparation for the last tilt of the regular season against Wilson high in Cedar Rapids Friday night.

City high won a double victory last week end, beating Centerville Friday night and Fairfield Saturday. The game against the Trojans at Fairfield netted $135 for the Red Cross ambulance fund.

The Hawklets drilled some more on their fast break that has been improving with every game. Merten is using every weapon in the books in an effort to get a team in shape that will go all out for the tournament.

In Friday night's game, the Iowa City team will be fighting for third place in the Mississippi Valley conference. Wilson, however, has little chance of climbing out of the cellar. Although the Wilson's Rambler have lost six games in conference play, they have been out scored by a nine point total for all games.

Coach Herb Cormack's sophomores will be up against a different situation. The Wilson youngsters have won six games and lost only one, to hold down second place. Iowa City has won seven games and lost two and are currently in third place.

Notre Dame Wins From Butler, 57-54

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Notre Dame managed to weather a terrific last-period rally by Butler last night and won its eighth consecutive basketball contest, 57 to 54.

The Irish blew a 12-point halftime lead in the final 10 minutes by relaxing defensively. Butler, paced by Capt. Wilbur Schumacher, rallied to close a 46 to 29 gap and pull within four points of the Irish.

The victory squared the season's series between the rival quintets and established some new records in the 38-game series. It produced the highest total score of the series and marked the first time Notre Dame has made more than 53 points against Butler. It also marked the first time Butler has made 50 points on Notre Dame's court and still lost.

Deficit Causes N.Y.U. to Drop Gridiron Sport

NEW YORK (AP)—New York university, the school with the nation's largest student body, last night dropped football as an intercollegiate sport.

The university council, the school's governing body, reached the decision to abandon the sport after being informed that the institution's last two football teams had been maintained at a loss of $65,000.

The council's statement gave no indication if the change was to be permanent or only for the duration of the war. Its sanction immediately abrogated the contract of Head Coach Dr. Mal Stevens, which ran until 1946 at an estimated salary of $10,000 annually.

Operating at Deficit Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of New York university, said in a statement after the meeting that:

"Varsity football at New York university has been carried on for the past two years at a substantial deficit and the university can not maintain the sport any further under the certain conditions that prevail."

The 32-man council gave Stevens and his four man coaching staff a vote of confidence and praised the head coach for his efforts during the past eight years.

Stevens came to New York university in 1934 after the school had enjoyed national standings from 1925 through 1931 under the tutelage of Chick Meahan.

Howard Cann, the present basketball coach, then took charge of the football squad under a de-emphasizing program and turned the reins over to Stevens in 1934.

Under Stevens the Violets played interscholastic schedules until 1940 when only two games out of nine were won. That record was repeated in 1941 with the NYU eleven going scoreless in five straight games midway in the season.

The school, with 35,063 students at the start of the present school year, had only 49 players on its 1941 gridiron roster.

National Association Discards Rifle-Pistol Matches for Duration

CAMP PERRY, O. (AP)—One of America's largest sports features, the national rifle-pistol matches fired annually over the army encampment's range, was erased from the calendar yesterday for the duration of the war.

The National Rifle Association, co-sponsor with the war department in presenting the three-week bullet barrage, announced cancellation of the event, along with all its regional competitions, to conserve ammunition for the armed forces.

U-High Meets West Branch Here Friday Night For Championship of Eastern Iowa Loop

Bluehawks Will Give Proceeds of Contest To Local Red Cross

U-high's Bluehawks play the West Branch Bears here Friday night for the Eastern Iowa conference championship, the proceeds from the game being dedicated to the local Red Cross.

Officials of University high made the announcement yesterday, and stated that they planned to pay the officials and the traveling team's expenses from the school's athletic fund, while the entire proceeds from the game are to be presented to the Red Cross. A large turnout is expected, since it is the Bluehawks' final conference tilt and a victory will mean they are conference champions.

Anamosa in 2nd Place Anamosa, which is in second place with a record of six won and one lost, has now finished its conference play. Anamosa closed out with a smashing 37 to 15 victory over West Liberty, and this week it plays a non-conference opponent while awaiting the result of the U-high-West Branch game.

The Blues had a tough time of it with the fighting Tigers at Tipton last Friday night. The small court decidedly hampered U-high's fast break, and the smothering Tipton zone defense worked to perfection. In addition the Bluehawks were playing a hot team that nearly ran away with the game in the first half.

Blues Fall to Hit The Bluehawks failed to hit in their usual style, but their covering of rebounds plus their fighting spirit in the last half were two bright spots in the play. The Tigers gave Lehman a working over under the basket, and although they covered him in good style, the husky center was able to break clear for 14 points to bring his season average to 15.9.

The U-high-West Branch contest is the final conference game to be played, for all the other teams will have finished their league play by this Friday.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Back in championship form, W. L. Brann's Challeon-horse of the year in 1939 and 1940—sped to an easy victory yesterday after finishing second in his two previous Hialeah park trials.

The six-year-old thoroughbred toyed with five rivals, then won going away with a closing burst of speed. The $1,000 first prize ran his lifetime winnings to $324,335.

Signator was second, Doublab third. Although the three horses expected to give Challeon a real test were scratched before race time, the triumph nonetheless was viewed with respect by handicappers trying to pick a winner for the $50,000 Widener handicap March 7.

Brann's pride took rank with Charles S. Howard's Midland and Louis Tufano's Markest Wise among the early favorites.

The crowd of 11,084 installed Challeon as a $4.50 favorite.

Iowa Thinclads Face Gophers Here Friday In Last Home Meet

Gunning for its second consecutive conference victory, Iowa's track team will swing into action again here Friday night when it meets Minnesota in the Hawks' final home meet of the season.

Last Friday's win over Chicago and Northwestern showed the Hawks have a well-balanced squad capable of picking up points where they are most needed, a factor that should prove them to be a definite conference threat.

Scoring Leaders Sophomore Lee Farmer and Co-Capt. Henry Vollenweider led the individual scoring in last Friday's meet with 10 points each. Vollenweider won the low and high hurdles, while Farmer took care of the 60-yard dash and broad jump. Milt Kuhl won the shot put and placed second in the high jump to win second place honors in the individual scoring with eight points.

Not much is known of the Minnesota crew. Its first meet of the season was Monday afternoon when it upset a strong Wisconsin team, 55 to 49.

Ace Vaultier Outstanding on Minnesota's small 20-man squad is its ace pole vaultier, Jack De Field. De Field's vault of 14 feet was second to Cornelius Wamerdam when he broke the world's record recently at the Melrose games in New York.

Other probable Minnesota point winners include Jerry Smerda in the broad jump, Frank Adams, who was second to Vollenweider in the hurdles last year, Marshall Potter in the sprints and Senior Art Gill in the distance events.

University Engineers Work on Sediments With Federal Experts

University of Iowa engineers have co-operated with six federal government agencies in solving sediment problems, so that the best apparatus may be developed for securing samples of sediment carried by streams to determine amount and size of the particles transported.

With the aid of a set of fundamental relations worked out in the university hydraulics laboratory predictions can now be made of the amount of sand which streams can carry in suspension under various conditions.

University engineers working on the project were Prof. Hunter Rouse, Prof. A. A. Kalinske, and Dr. Paul Nemenyi.

Professor Lane reported that the research involved fundamental laws in sediment transportation and new methods of sediment sampling.

Other work has been done on sediment behaviour in upward flow, relation of sediment characteristics to bed erosion, and the effect of particle shape on its transportation by flowing water.

Out of Chicago Comes— Les Brown's Orchestra

—To Play for Senior Hop

By DALE E. BOYD

Campus rug-cutters are sharpening up their shears these days for the rapidly approaching party of the year, the Senior Hop, Friday evening, March 6, to be held in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

They, like thousands of dance-lovers all over the nation, like nothing more than a real "on the beam" tune by an all-season band, so called because it has been picked so frequently for "Band of the Month" awards that Les Brown and his orchestra have become a young American tradition.

Popular?—what do you think? Last month "Music and Rhythm" magazine selected the 30-year-old band leader and his organization the band with the highest degree of musicianship and still the greatest commercial box-office appeal without cheapening the musician-ship.

University students could give no better approval of the band than their turnout for the Military Ball here two months ago, when the ticket waiting line looked like that in front of a Bronx soup-kitchen at the peak of the depression.

And, it was their "vote of confidence" that induced this year's Senior Hop committee to engage the popular Brown for a return engagement.

Who is this man Brown? He was born in 1912 at Reiner-

Draftees Who Pass Physical Will Enter Army Immediately

WASHINGTON (AP)—Men ordered into the army under the selective service system will be inducted the same day they are given the army physical examination, selective service headquarters announced yesterday.

Previously, induction at army reception centers has followed about 10 days after examinations. Selective service officials said the war department had assured them that under the new system, in any cases where immediate induction would cause undue hardship, the registrant would be given an immediate furlough to adjust his civilian affairs.

Local selective service boards will continue to give "screening" examinations, rejecting the obviously physically unfit men. But to speed up the induction procedure to meet the army's needs, men rated as acceptable for service, instead of receiving a notice to report for physical examination by the armed forces, will be notified to report for induction.

Under the new procedure, officials said, registrants will have the same rights of appeal and of personal appearance before their local boards as they have at present.

Then Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.) proposed that house members of a joint congressional committee on a minor naval bill be instructed to retain a senate rider calling for the pension repeal. The senate took similar action last week by a vote of 75 to 5.

The vehicle was a measure to continue salaries to men in the armed services even though they were missing or captured. Other riders, which will have to be compromised in conference, would authorize a new $8,000,000 set of 800 locks in Michigan and would increase base pay for enlisted men and warrant officers in military service.

Vinson explained to the house that the conferees, which he headed, would see to it that the annuity provision for heads of executive departments, as well as members of the senate and house and President Roosevelt, would be stricken out.

Rep. Ramspeck (D-Ga.), sponsor of the pension legislation which went through the house without debate and with little explanation last December, brought prolonged applause when he said the public had been erroneously informed about the legislation.

He complained bitterly the people had been given the "misleading impression" that "congress had voted itself a pension of $4,000 per year for which they would pay nothing." The criticism, he said, failed to take into account "the $500 per year each member was required to contribute."

LETTER FROM ENGLAND.
Forget for a moment that you are safe from German and Japanese longrange bombers, and read this letter from Bexley Heath, Kent.

Dear Miriam:
I was hoping to plant your poppy seeds today. We have had two weeks of heavy snow, it rained on Saturday, and I planted some outdoor tomato seeds in pots and shallots (for pickling in the summer) in the garden. It is freezing and snowing hard again, so I must wait for another thaw before I can plant again.

... They are my favourite colour; shall spread them out all around front and back gardens, for a border; am quite looking forward to the summer when they will be blooming.

... I thought I read that bombs had been dropped on California. I remarked at the time that Cousin Blanche had relatives there.

Things have been a lot quieter here than this time last year. The Nasty's are very daring on our coasts. Some get through but are stopped, we believe, before they reach our district. We seem to be the last ones to get alerted. Mother and Beatrice do not get them when we do, so we have come to the conclusion they must be turned back definitely hereabouts.

Only last week we had a relative of my daughter's husband here, telling us about their bombing experience. They lived in a bungalow. A bomb dropped between their bungalow and a neighbour's. They had the side ripped away and the bath blown into the street, ceilings down, etc. Their neighbour's bungalow collapsed altogether.

The funny part was, the mother—about 72 years of age—was polishing under the table at the time the bomb struck, a son being in the front room; no one knew he was at home. So after rescuing the old lady, Flo's in-laws began tidying up in their own place.

Presently a head and shoulders came through the bricks and a voice said, "Have you seen Mum. I can't find her." He'd crawled right through the debris into the street. They had to laugh.

... Was listening to the radio to an American speaking to us folks over here. We should have more talks like that. It has pleased lots of folks I've met this morning. They are beginning to realize now that you are really with us; as your speaker said, if you take the right road and we the left, we are sure to reach Berlin in the end.

Always we plan to have our cup of tea after a bad blitz. I always made it, and strong at that, having had a good supply in. If we get blitzed again, I'm afraid it won't be so strong.

You have to reach down to all classes to comfort them. Lots of folks thought us proud as we are rather aloof in our ways, but when they were homeless I found by putting an arm around them or squeezing their hands and smiling they soon began to smile also.

We now have to give up coupons for all cereals. That is certainly going to hit me; I've a small stock by me, but use a lot for soups. I firmly believe they have the means of keeping this family fit.

I myself drank quarts of barley water. I found I did not need to eat as much as usual and so could give the family the benefit of some of my rations.

How very kind of you to remember me for the jacket. Will write immediately if I receive it. Could do with it right now; it's freezing hard, it's so cold in the house the windows being all out in the front of it.

"As I told Cousin Blanche, we could now have the glass in, but John says it's been blown out twice, there is bound to be a third time. I want to chance

Council Adopts City Civil Service Pension Resolution

Guarantee Full Rights To Men Called Into U.S. Armed Forces

Employees' Petition For Higher Salaries Passes to Committee

The city council, meeting last night in the city hall office of Mayor H. F. Willenbrock, unanimously adopted an ordinance providing the preservation of civil service pension rights for men called to the national armed forces and received and referred to the finance committee a petition asking for an increase in wages signed by all employees of the streets, alleys and sanitary departments.

A communication from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Iowa City Post No. 2581, stating that that organization desires to buy certain lots in the new addition to Oakland cemetery for burial space for deceased ex-service men was received and placed on file.

City Engineer Walter J. Buchele reported on the progress of efforts to obtain materials for the repair of the Park Street bridge and stated that an application for preference rating for steel for bridge repair has been received. The Nagle Lumber company was low bidder on lumber materials but no actual purchase plans were made by the council.

The new civil service ordinance was amended by the council to include men called to the state guard. In its present form, civil service employees serving in the military forces will be entitled to complete preservation of civil service and pension rights while on active duty and time spent in the service will be cumulative toward civil service seniority.

The terms set forth will apply only if an honorable discharge is received and if a notification of the desire for re-instatement is made within 90 days after discharge.

The petition of the employees of the streets, alleys and sanitary departments stated that the rise in living costs made the wage increase necessary.

According to the communication of the local VFW commander, lots in the new addition of Oakland cemetery will be purchased by his organization if a price is agreed on. The lots will be used for a memorial cemetery for ex-service men and a suitable monument will be erected.

Class B beer permits were granted to Mrs. George H. Bouck and H. L. Beals. John J. Stika was also granted a Class B permit provided that he furnish proper bond.

The application of the Varsity cab company for a new cab license was granted.

Resolutions were adopted to purchase more fencing materials for the airport, new switches and floats for the city lift station, materials for the city engineer and tax sale certificates on a property now available to the city.

The council unanimously again repealed sections of the road poll tax of the municipal code concerning exempted persons.

A renewal insurance policy on the Community building was held over for further study. Expense accounts of both city health inspectors were allowed and January operation reports on the municipal airport and sewage plant were received and placed on file.
