HAVANA, Cuba, (AP)—Authentic informants said yesterday that the United States merchant vessel Texan had been sunk by enemy U-boat action off Nuevitas, north Cuba, and that all but nine of the 47-man crew was accounted for.

War Comes to Wall Street as—

Ack-Ack Guns Fire Accidentally

NEW YORK (AP)—A random shot from an anti-aircraft battery, whose gunners accidentally let go with eight shells, yesterday chipped a piece off one of New York's financial towers with a crash that brought the war into Wall street's citadel.

The "direct hit," which sent dozens of police cars and fire trucks into action, knocked pieces of brick from a ledge between the 37th and 38th floors of the 40-story Equitable building at 120 Broadway. Brick dust particles and fragments of steel fell into the street below.

No one was reported injured and no windows were shattered. Luckily no one was struck by the two-inch sections of steel which detectives discovered on the pave-

Russian Forces Smash Forward in Ukraine As RAF Bombers Blast France, Nazi Ports

Soviets Announce 63,700 Nazi Soldiers Slain Within a Month

MOSCOW (AP)—A special Russian announcement today listed 14,000 Germans killed on the northwestern front in 15 days, making a grand total of 63,700 Nazis officially reported slain between Leningrad and Moscow within a month.

Today's announcement said the latest recorded toll was inflicted on Hitler's invaders between Feb. 22 and March 10 on the northwestern front below Leningrad. In this area the red army liberated 84 towns and villages, the Russians announced.

It followed by two days another special communiqué telling of the killing of 49,700 Germans on the Kalinin front, stretching north of the Smolensk area toward Lake Ilmen, from Feb. 8 to March 5.

Vast quantities of booty fell into the hands of the victorious Soviet forces, and 91 German planes—including 60 big three-engined transports used by Hitler in a vain effort to reinforce his trapped 16th army at Staraya Russa—were declared destroyed.

Matching the achievements in the north were continued advances in the south.

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's massive Ukrainian offensive was steadily beating forward last night, a week ahead of the return of spring to Russia, and in every other sector of the front Soviet troops were simultaneously hacking their way westward.

The official publication of the Russian armies, Red Star, declared that Russian arms had so firmly seized the initiative that the new season would bring not the long threatened German counter-offensive but rather a continuation of aggressive action against Hitler's "worn out army."

Somewhere in the south (where Timoshenko was reported by Russian sources in London) to be attacking with more than a million men on a vast front extending from the Sea of Azov northward to the upper Ukraine), military dispatches announced two Nazi fortified areas had been smashed and spoke of toe-to-toe fighting in the streets of Donets basin towns.

(The German high command admitted the Nazi forces were on the defensive in the Donets basin of the Ukraine, counter-attacking "strong enemy forces."

Action also was violent far to the north in the Kalinin sector northwest of Moscow, where concentrated German counter-thrusts were declared bloodily broken with 2,000 Nazis killed in a single action.

Joseph Wells and Henry News, receptionists, who were on the north side of the building, reported that they heard "a whistling noise" and saw "two red balls about the size of a golf ball."

"At about 2:30 p.m. (CWT) this date, one of the automatic anti-aircraft weapons located along the East river accidentally discharged eight rounds. As far as can be learned to date, seven of these rounds are believed to have fallen into the river and one did not explode until it hit the building about 400 feet up."

"Preliminary investigation indicates that the accident occurred through some mechanical failure in the firing mechanism of the gun. Further investigation is being carried out."

Axis Submarine Sinks Norwegian Merchantman Off Maryland Coast

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two torpedoes from an enemy submarine sank a small Norwegian merchant ship within 90 seconds off the Delaware-Maryland coast last Tuesday night, killing the captain and possibly five others, the fourth naval district announced last night.

The British announced the loss of five of their own fighters which swept to the attack "in force" following a fiery overnight assault upon the 26,000-ton Nazi battleship Gneisenau at Kiel. No British bombers were lost yesterday.

The biggest scrap of the day occurred over Hazebrouck, about midway between Armentieres and St. Omer, where the railroad yard of this industrial center was the target of RAF bombers.

The British announced the loss of five of their own fighters which swept to the attack "in force" following a fiery overnight assault upon the 26,000-ton Nazi battleship Gneisenau at Kiel. No British bombers were lost yesterday.

"If Australia goes the Americas are wide open," he said.

Stressing that attack is the best defense, Curtin asserted: "I say to you that saving Australia is saving America's west coast. If you believe anything to the contrary you delude yourselves."

The prime minister's latter statement was prompted by what he said were reports going the rounds that the Japanese would by-pass Australia and that they could be met and routed in India.

"The tide of the war flows madly," he said. "You in America, for us in Australia, it is flowing badly. Let me then address you as comrades in this war."

"I am not speaking to your government. We long have been admirers of Mr. Roosevelt and have the greatest confidence that he understands fully the critical situation in the Pacific and that America will go right out to meet it... it is to the people of America that I now am speaking."

Reviewing the progress made by Japan, Curtin continued:

"It therefore is but natural that within 20 days after Japan's first treacherous blow I said on behalf of the Australian government that we looked to America as the paramount factor on the democracies' side in the Pacific."

"We looked to America among other things for counsel and advice and therefore it was our wish that the Pacific war council should be located in Washington."

Acting Captain James Pyke, in charge of the Kennecott Copper corporation, whose offices are on the 37th floor, said he was sitting at his desk near the window when he heard "a whistling sound, saw a flash and then felt a concussion."

Two Great Things Andy Jackson Taught Us; Never Forget Them!

The anniversary of the birth of Andrew Jackson will be observed tomorrow. And, in wartime, we ought to think about Old Hickory and the lessons he taught us.

Andrew Jackson came out of the wilderness of Tennessee, raw and uncouth and unpolished, an ambitious yet handicapped individual. He was handicapped to the extent that he couldn't express himself well and he had not the bearing of a gentleman. Frequently in the senate he grew so purple with rage that his fellow senators suspected he was in mourning. When he did so, he was unable to speak above a choleric whisper.

When Jackson acceded to the White House, Washington society witnessed one of the greatest debacles of all history. Rough, uncouth mountaineers out of the Appalachians, drinking and carousing with utter disregard for the fine furnishings of the presidential mansion. Standing on the richly-fitted chairs, tearing down lush portieres. It must have been a great sight.

Jackson was a hard-bitten old man. He dealt harshly with his enemies and trusted only a few of his friends. In large measure he was interested in rewarding those who had elected him, and he originated what we now call the spoils system.

The voice of many has been raised against Old Hickory. But there are two lessons he taught us that we cannot, we dare not, forget:

1. The United States is made up of people, human beings who live and breathe and have being, and the government ought to be directed to the rail-splitter as well as the society matron.

2. Anything worth having is worth fighting for.

It is difficult to say which of these lessons is the more important. Certainly it is time we realized that if we want to be free we've got to fight for it. Certainly we ought to understand that we are not unbeatable, that an attack fed upon red meat is so very much stronger than one fed on sugar candy.

Andrew Jackson taught us that we can't get along on sugar candy alone. He taught us the lesson that there are those who eat red meat, and while they may eat with their fingers, it is for them, too, that we exist as a national state, that it is for them that government must labor to make a better society.

The United States has sickened. A kind of sugar diabetes it is. We have fed ourselves on so much sugar candy that we know not the taste of red meat. And we face an enemy bred and raised on red meat, and red meat has the tendency to bate a greater affinity for it in the partaker thereof.

Andrew Jackson has been dead for a good many years. It is well over a century since he occupied the White House. We tend to forget these lessons. But we submit that it will be a tragic thing if we forget Old Hickory's lesson that a man fed on sugar candy cannot stand up against one fed on red meat.

Dish up the beef. Our red corpuscles are crying for it.

Well, How About Really Taking Us Into the U.S.' Confidence?

President Roosevelt has repeatedly told the American people that he felt they could be taken into confidence on all military matters that are of no possible aid to the enemy.

Statements recently issued by some of the responsible heads of the government belie the President's assertion. Following the bombing scare at Los Angeles, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox declared that there were no enemy planes over that city. A day after Knox gave out his version, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said that there definitely were enemy airships over Los Angeles, a direct contradiction of the former report.

When two of the leading figures in the administration indirectly call each other liars and give out reports designed to confuse the people, it's about time that something was done to straighten things out.

Maybe if enemy planes were over Los Angeles and the report were given out, it would be of assistance to the enemy, we don't know. If that is the case wouldn't it be better to say nothing about the whole matter and let it go at that? But if the people are to be told about it, why not give them the whole truth after the officials issuing the statement have conferred on the matter and agreed upon a joint declaration?

This, evidently, can be brought about only by closer cooperation among the various departments of the government.

At the present rate when San Francisco is bombed, somebody in Washington undoubtedly will deny it.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLONCauses for Far Eastern Fall*Laid Long Before War Began!

WASHINGTON — Commentative moping about Far East results seems to hold that campaign up as the feeblest-witted of all—including Norway and Greece.

The British lost their entire Malayan army at Singapore (the Japs say it numbered 78,000 on surrender day).

The British lost their entire Malayan army at Singapore (the Japs say it numbered 78,000 on surrender day).

The Dutch, British and our own navy seem to have lost much of the Far Eastern fleet. The Dutch are supposed to have surrendered one army in Java numbering 93,000, although only untrustworthy Jap figures again are available.

Noting this evidence, current popular reasoning seems running along the line that Gen. Wavell's defensive strategy was stupid and that of the Dutch nearly as bad . . . "Too little, too late," they say . . . "If these scattered 171,000 troops had been put together with all the scattered naval forces for a drive against the China coast the results might have been different," they say . . . if . . . if . . .

You can get nearly any better result than the one that happened by reshuffling strategy and forces on paper now, but all this discussion overlooks the basic reason why the Far East is gone.

The original error was the fatal one, the all inclusive one which never could be redeemed. It was simply that the British and Dutch were sitting out there for years upon the richest portion of the earth and failed to take modern precautions for its protection.

Specifically they had no air force worthy of the name. They had not even built air fields enough to house an airforce if one came. If every allied plane in the world had been shipped out there last December 7, few could have gotten off the ground because no air fields for them had been built.

The British and Dutch had not provided sufficient anti-aircraft guns to defend any vital point. Their troops were not trained to the type of warfare they would encounter, while the Japs had spent years preparing for this special mission of conquest. They simply, madly under-estimated what they needed and what the Japs had.

These are fundamental mistakes which date back long before the fighting began. They could not be corrected in a few weeks or a few months. After them, nothing effective could have been done.

Age-old Mistakes

Dismayed British and Dutch statesmen are inclined, like the public now, to analyze events of the past three fighting months in search of the answer for their troubles, rather than these older and more important truths.

It can be seen now the Japs won the Far East before this war began when they took Indo-China, with the placid acquiescence of Vichy. Without it their campaign would not have been possible. The British depended on Thailand to fight, and particularly to offer air fields, but this error, too, proved disastrous. The Japs were half-way down the Malay peninsula before the British even knew where they would have to fight or how.

Reinforcements Were Impossible

The Far Eastern correspondents talked of "reinforcements"; and the Dutch and British echoed this call, but everyone can see now reinforcements within the necessary 30 to 60 days was wholly impossible from the start. From San Francisco to Batavia is 36 days by convoy. A jam-up occurred in our Pacific ports, due largely to a shortage of ships available-on-the-spot after the war began, but even if sufficient non-existent ships, planes, tanks, trained personnel had been waiting in port to go at the outbreak of war, they could not have altered the result in view of the original pre-war mistakes.

What could have broken the back of the Jap offensive is a naval blow at the Jap lines of communications, establishment of a beach head on the China coast, maintenance there of a force of dive bombers to prey upon Jap shipping. After Pearl Harbor, we did not have the navy to do it.

The Story As It Is

These facts have been obscured by the deceptive and childish modes of allied publicity and censorship—such things as the Singapore censor suppressing CBS correspondent Cecil Brown for hinting that Singapore was in a bad way only a week or so before it fell.

They constantly held out hope to the public that Malaya or Java could be defended if only "reinforcements" could be sent, long after they knew reinforcements were impossible, and that the Far East had been doomed by faulty pre-war preparations. The responsibility was British and Dutch, not ours.

That is the plain story of the Far-East as history will write it.

When two of the leading figures in the administration indirectly call each other liars and give out reports designed to confuse the people, it's about time that something was done to straighten things out.

"CALIFORNIA, HERE WE COME!"HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS*Turning Tables*On Mr. Laemmle

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Some fun at Fort Monmouth, N. J., according to our special carrier pigeon service. A couple of lads who used to work for Carl Laemmle, Jr., preceded him to the army. The pair asked and were granted the privilege of putting Laemmle through his paces when he reported for Signal Corps training—and they were planning the paces with loving care . . .

Jeffrey Lynn's number is up for a uniform—emphasizing the movies' growing war problem concerning leading men. If they howled about a shortage of romantics before, they're going to be moaning soon. Might come to a pass where all the leading men will be Ronald Colman. Or where all the important starring roles will be feminine, thus reversing the trend of the past few years . . . year like the last, for example, in which only Bette Davis and Judy Garland ranked among the top ten box-office stars . . .

There seems to be a new formula developing to cover an old movie problem, which is what to do about women in war pictures. Shall they be beautiful on the sidelines, to say goodbye when heroes leave and welcome when they return? The trend at Warner Bros. is different. In "Dive Bomber" the girl, Alexis Smith, appeared now and then for decoration's sake and to try to distract the hero from his scientific pursuits. Otherwise she didn't count. In "Captain of the Clouds" the girl, Brenda Marshall, is a slightly bad one, soon disposed of. She's the only girl, which leaves the picture without a heroine. Feminists should resent this and march on Warners in a body, in uniform.

The girls are taking a beating in the westerns too. Out at Republic they've had former ingenue Lynne Carver serve as the "heavy," a female cattle rustler. To compensate, Lynne is Roy Rogers' leading lady now, but the "heavy" again is a woman—brunette Beryl Wallace from the Earl Carroll show . . . The other day Miss Wallace was being the "heavy" to the production crew as well. Didn't like the dress provided, sent for one of her own, thus holding up matters while one of the "most beautiful girls in the world" was made more beautiful. "What's she think this is—a million-dollar picture?" groaned a waiting henchman, Miss Wallace, blithely unaware, is learning that the movie range is no cafe . . . She's being talked for the "Jungle Girl" serial role which boosted Frances Gifford . . .

Michele Morgan, after "Challenge to the Night" for RKO, is going to Universal for a picture. The U also has French director Jean Renoir tied, which suggests a teaming . . . The girl has gone over big in "Joan of Paris." . . . Ditte her co-star, Paul Henreid, who is up for the Paul Lukas role in "Watch on the Rhine" at Warner's . . .

Estelle Taylor, owner of a Peke, was advised of her election as an honorary officer of the California Pekinese society. Estelle's reply by wire: "Dogs are dogs, but men are men—and I've got a date with the Navy. Sorry." I understand it wowed the good ladies . . .

By BOB BUCKLEY

Iowa City's Little Hawks last night advanced to the finals of the district tournament and were assured a trip to the sub-state next week when they soundly trounced Keokuk's Chiefs, 29 to 23.

It was a hard fought ball game from the beginning, but Iowa City had little trouble keeping the lead that it had built early in the game.

Keokuk's height advantage wasn't of much use as the Hawklets played better ball in every department. Usually Dave Danner is the one who has to take care of the rebounds for the Red and White, but last night every man on the team shared the burden.

Danner Leads Hawks

Danner was the individual star of the game as he directed the Little Hawks masterfully and poured in six baskets and two free throws for a total of 14 points—high point honors of the contest.

Iowa City made plenty of mistakes, mostly in bad passing, which will have to be ironed out before it can go far in the sub-state next week.

Bob Roth came out of hibernation shortly after the fray was underway and played the best floor game of his career besides accounting for four points.

City high grabbed a three point lead at the start on a flash of form by the Hawklets guards, Bill Sangster and Bucky Walter, who combined a free throw and a bucket. But the Chiefs came back strong and Klann dumped in a basket and a charity toss while Smith added another free throw to give Keokuk a one-point lead.

Hawklets Get Hot

Then Keokuk widened the margin three more points through the collaboration of Graham and Smith, and at this point the Hawklets got hot. Danner fairly flew down the floor three times in succession and got two baskets and a free throw for his trouble. Roth came to life and added two more baskets before the Chiefs could score. The score at the half was 15 to 9 for the Hawklets.

In the third quarter the Little Hawks got rolling again and at one point held a nine point lead. But Keokuk came back again and closed it up to 25 to 18 at the third quarter. In the final stanza, both teams garnered two more baskets and Keokuk added a free throw and the game ended 29 to 23.

Keokuk could have easily lost the game on free throws as it missed eight out of 13 charity tosses. City high missed four out of nine.

Hawk Diamondmen Prepare for Opening Of 28 Working Out, Eight Are Major, 3 Minor Lettermen

Iowa's 28-man baseball squad, now drilling in the fieldhouse, has begun to bear down in earnest in preparation for the opening of the season, only about three weeks away. Coach Otto Vogel announced that because of the accelerated educational program the baseball schedule still has not been definitely completed.

Coach Vogel is hoping to move the squad outside as soon as possible, but until weather permits, the workouts will continue to be held in the fieldhouse.

Of those working out regularly, eight major lettermen and three winners of minor awards are present.

The letter winners are Bob Faber, Red Kenney, Dick Hein and Wendell Hill, pitchers; Capt. Bill Welp, catcher; Clarence Dugan, Tom Farmer and Rudy Radics, infielders, and Ray Koehn, outfielder. Minor lettermen are Harold Lind and George Knight, outfielders, and Roy Stille, pitcher.

Pitchers who have been practicing daily are Faber, Kenney, Hein, Stille, Leo Stahlke, Al Kolarik, Lowell Smith, Bob King, Pete Anderson, Bob Collins and Maynard Woodbury.

Dunagan, Farmer, Radics, Ben Trickey, Bill Parker, Merle Bennett and Don Thompson are fighting for the infield positions, while Lind, Knight, Max Landes, Harry Rinkema and Bud Flanders are the outfielders reporting.

Welp, Bill Harbor and Roger Hanson have been handling the catching assignments.

During the indoor workouts, however, both the infielders and outfielders have been taking their workouts in the infield, and, as a result, some of the players may shift positions before the season starts.

West Branch Drops Washington, 39 to 29

In the second Class A game of the evening, West Branch took a 39 to 29 decision from Washington after trailing most of the first quarter. At the outset of the second period, the Bears took charge and went into a lead they never relinquished.

Anderson was the outstanding player on the floor as he garnered 15 points, followed by Christensen with 10 markers.

West Branch and City high will play the Class A final tonight at 8:40 while Sharon and Ainsworth will battle it out for the class B title. Under a new ruling, both the winners and runners-up in both classes will go to the sub-state, so win, lose or draw, all four teams will travel to the tournament next week.

Stanwood Falls To Numa 5 In Girls' Tourney

Eva Tometch Scores 23 Markers to Lead Numa Into Semifinals

DES MOINES (AP)—Numa's defending champions, paced by Eva Tometch, advanced to the semifinals of the girls' state high school basketball tournament with a 51 to 47 victory over an inspired Stanwood sextet here last night.

The versatile Miss Tometch divided her time between the two courts, first as a forward and then as a guard. She led Numa to a 17 to 11 first quarter lead but the little southern Iowa team experienced trouble in the second period.

Led by Mary Klahn's three successive baskets, Stanwood pulled up to within two points, 26 to 28, at halftime.

Eva Tometch, however, was sent back to put the chill on Margaret Maesemeyer in the final period after she had garnered 23 points.

WIOOTA WINS

Wioota, with Maxine Armstrong pouring in 20 points, swept into a semifinal battle with Numa by downing highly-rated Seymour, 42 to 32 in the final night game. It was the twenty-seventh straight triumph for the western Iowa conference.

Wioota went into an early lead and remained there all the way in complete command of the game. Seymour, which tied for consolation honors last year, never was able to consistently penetrate the Wioota defense.

Seymour missed 19 of 25 attempts from the free throw line. Havelock and Clutter will clash today in the first semifinal contest.

The Listening Post--

By LOREN HICKERSON

CONTRASTS . . .
If we're fighting for anything in this war, it is for the privilege of being different from our next-door neighbor, simply because we have a right to be. . .

Sometimes that isn't good. . . If you stick to the letter of the idea, you're privileged in being as good or as bad as you want to be, so long as you conform to certain standards set up for the good of everybody. . .

Hence our freedom brings us income tax evaders, draft dodgers, thieves and purifiers, traitors and everything else. . . It also brings us great scientists and artists, and through the years we've had our Lincolns, though maybe not enough of them. . .

The ledger runs up and down, from bad to good. . . Yesterday two army deserters shot and killed an FBI office in Abingdon, Virginia. . . But not long ago an Iowa man, a student in law, underwent a nasal operation at his own expense to qualify for the navy's V-7. . . He could less afford the cost than many of us, but he wanted in. . .

The great thing about our system is that you have a chance to be good in it. . . That comes close to what we're fighting for. . . To the east and to the west of us are systems where you can't be anything unless the state sees a national advantage in it. . . And the axis has never seen any advantage in personal moral fibre. . . or in the way the individual may look at his own soul. . .

There is Hitler's glorious remark: "The greatest of spirits can be liquidated if its bearer is beaten to death with a rubber truncheon." . . .

In the face of this, we calmly permit Washington to bungle, when our collective voices ought to be raised to high heaven for facts and efficiency. . .

Every politician in Washington ought to be required to defend his past year's action in congress before mass meetings in his home district this year. . .

At which time some one of the local folk might read out his congressional votes on the fortification of Guam, the repeal of the arms embargo, lend-lease, the extension of the draft and so on, right down to the present day. . .

If it didn't prove his lack of integrity, it might at least prove his lack of vision. . . And if we don't elect men of greater vision to congress this year than we ever have before, we'd better keep our factories turning out planes in preparation for 1962 . . . assuming that this one will be over by then. . .

FOR SWEET TEETH—
If you get hungry during the long morning or afternoon hours today, drop around to Sidwell's downtown store for a piece of cake or pie baked up by the girls in the home ec department. . .

Every bite you eat contributes a bit to the Phoenix Fund. . . an easy way to buy bonds. . .

Best propaganda song of the season is the singable "Paid My Income Tax". . . More than one local taxpayer has hummed it as he shelled out his taxes this year. . .

"One that should be dropped: 'You're a Sap, Mr. Jap,' since the words just don't fit the tune the Japs have been playing in the far Pacific. . . The greatest confidence in the world won't lick Hirohito unless there are enough planes to put it over. . .

A New York anti-aircraft battery let go "accidentally" with eight shells yesterday afternoon, one of which knocked off a section of the Equitable building in Wall Street. . . The exploding shell caused "considerable excitement" in the Metropolitan area. . .

What'll the first air raid do. . .

Ben Franklin lived too long ago to visualize our 20th century wars, but he once wrote a couple of paragraphs which might mean something America in 1942. . .

"The eyes of Christendom are upon us," he said, "and our honor as a people is become a matter of the utmost consequence to be taken care of. . . If we give up our rights in this contest, a century to come will not restore us to the opinion of the world; we shall be stamped with the character of poltroons and fools. . .

"Present inconveniences are, therefore, to be borne with fortitude, and better times expected . . ."

Iowa City Civil Air Patrol Make Plans for Organization of Drill

Stiff Training Program To Require Regular Attendance at Meeting

Plans for the organization of drill of the local Civil Air Patrol were discussed at a meeting last night held in the assembly room of the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric company.

"The plans are for a rigid program that will require attendance at every meeting," Richard Sidwell, training and operations officer, told those present in outlining the nature of the instruction.

The work will be divided into two separate units, one into first aid instruction under Dr. Harry R. Jenkinson, medical and personnel officer, and the other into drill with the local state guard unit which meets at 7:30 p. m. every Thursday.

Members must complete each unit before starting the next, or take both concurrently, it was explained. As soon as each course is completed, there will probably be new members, and the course will be given over.

Sidwell mentioned the possibility of a government appropriation later on, which will mean expansion of the local program. A study of map reading might be taken up, he suggested, which would fit in with one of the purposes of the CAP program in teaching how to observe territory assigned.

"There probably won't be any flying at first," Sidwell said, "except for those members who want to spend their own money for that purpose."

Only men will be permitted to the drill group which will hold its first meeting next Thursday at the regular meeting of the local guard unit. Both men and women will take part in the first aid instruction.

At the close of the meeting, the first aid group remained for instruction from Dr. Jenkinson.

U.S. Canners Ordered To Save Vegetables, Fruits for Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — The War Production Board ordered canners yesterday to set aside from 15 to 33 per cent of their 1942 pack of various fruits and vegetables to assure adequate supplies for army, navy, lend-lease and other government requirements.

In addition, WPB authorized canners to pack additional quantities of other fruits and vegetables of which had been restricted by quota limitations previously announced.

Both orders were necessary because of the tin plate limitation order which permitted unrestricted use of tin plate for the canning of "primary products foods" but curtailed the amount of tin which might be used in packing "secondary foods."

Canners were required under the new order to earmark for the government the following percentages of whatever quantities are packed this year of the primary foods: lima beans 25; string beans 28; sweet corn 23; peas 26; tomatoes 33; tomato catsup 23; tomato juice 15.
