

University High Boys Organize Hi-Y Group

Twenty-four boys in the University High school recently organized a U-HI-Y club under the direction of John Boyle, executive secretary of the university I.C.A., and Khalim Rummel, of Iowa City.

The organization is completely new to the high school. It is a part of a national program involving 7,000 Hi-Y clubs with over 1,000 members.

Clean living, clean speech, clean athletics and clean scholarship is the platform the boys have decided upon for the basis of the club code of the organization.

Frank Zeller was elected temporary president and Jim Pollock, recording secretary.

Under Damage Case Settled Out of Court; Plaintiff Jury Dismissed

The Johnson county petit jury which was to have heard the case of William Linder vs. the Iowa Highway commission yesterday was dismissed for the remainder of the present court term, to call, Judge James P. Frey announced.

The Linder case which was to be heard yesterday was between the two parties of court Thursday. In his original petition, Linder sought judgment from the commission for land which he claimed was worth $250.

Linder was represented by Atty. C. Nolan and the defendant by the law firm of Dutcher, Reis and Dutcher.

448 Hunting Permits Issued Here in 1941

Also included were a total of 1,448 fishing licenses, 177 trapping licenses and 2,747 trapping tags for non-resident fishing licenses issued as compared to one resident hunting license. Seven resident six-day fishing permits were also purchased.

Allies Report Java Losses

War Comes Home to Iowa's Largest Dorm

The war came home with a bang for the 700 residents of the Quadrangle, Iowa's largest dorm for men, at the announcement five weeks ago that the university would be the base for training midwestern naval aviation cadets.

"Pitch" and "hearts" are favorite card games wherever you go. Quad men now living at Lambert house like to play, too. Left to right: Don McMahon, Al of Ft. Dodge; Herb Anderson, Al of Des Moines; Louis Brannaman, Al of Lisbon, and Maurice Johnson, Al of Clinton.

Quad men were to find rooms elsewhere, so that the dorm might be made ready in time for occupancy, beginning April 9, by some 900 naval cadets—the first contingents of the Iowa pre-flight unit.

Behind the scenes in the moving of men from the Quadrangle lie innumerable stories of real personal adaptation to the exigencies created by war.

Many a Quad man who had a west campus board job will complete his semester's board work by crossing the river at job and meal times each day.

Others who had arranged their military training and physical education classes to avoid 10-minute rushes from one end of the campus to the other, will rush from here on out.

Many a Quad medical student who has been living near the hospital and medical laboratories will be an east-of-the-river resident for the rest of the semester.

Quad men chalked off suddenly-created inconvenience and disrupted routine with a minimum of beefing. Day-by-day looks at the war communique have fitted the naval cadets indelibly into the Iowa picture.

Said one Quad man: "One of the reasons we've been losing the war is because our eyes have been blinded to the necessity of cooperation among all factions."

So Quad men began to move. Some 170 of them moved on March 1. About that many are moving this week end. The rest—about half of the Quad's original number—will leave at the end of the month. Hillcrest, too, will be used for housing cadets, but not until after the end of the semester on May 8.

Many of them will live in the Commons, where some already have moved. More than 100 will be located in four small dormitory units—such as Lambert house, which is a major subject of this story.

A good many have moved into professional fraternities, where they already had membership. Others have pledged social fraternities.

And a great many have moved and will move into private Iowa City homes, where a large section of the normal student body now resides.

Quad men are far more appreciative of their big dormitory than the non-dorm students might imagine. There, from the Quadrangle's early days, Quad men have handled their own affairs. Their council and judicial committee have functioned regularly, knitting the dormitory's 700 men into quite a sizable government unit. They've handled their own discipline problems quietly and effectively, and they have cooperated as a unit in the university's social and competitive events.

The Quadrangle's population exceeds that of many a small Iowa town, and it resembles a town in many respects. There's the barber shop and the big cafeteria, the pressing room where boys may put creases in their trousers, the soda fountain and grille and post office.

All of these have contributed to the Quad's homogeneity.

For the duration, the Quadrangle as a unit will make way for a vital wartime cause. And to that cause, in giving up their dormitory, Quad men have contributed, individually and collectively, to a major need of the moment.

But that is only a part of the story.

Despite the temporary suspension of the total unit, the things for which the Quad and its men stood will not be suspended. The Quad will continue to exist as an organization. And the most vital phases of its own self-government already are being perpetuated in the first of a number of little Quadrangles — small dormitory units which will provide homes for some of the dorm men "for the duration."

One such unit is Lambert house, 5 E. Fairchild, an old fraternity house which has been converted into a comfortable, inviting home for Quad men.

The man in charge there is Quad Proctor Dick McMahon, L2 of Ft. Dodge, who moved out of the Quad March 1 after five years there. The Lambert house boys are predominantly freshmen and sophomores.

Lambert house will have 30 men when it is filled. There are more than 20 already living there.

Three other such units will be in operation within a few weeks. Grover house, near the Quadrangle, is well on its way. Next year, the university will maintain perhaps a dozen such houses.

It was a bleak day when Lambert house's new residents first looked in on their new quarters. All of the fixtures which contribute to a student's room weren't there yet. Neither were the furnishings which make Lambert house's lounge comfortable and attractive. There was little more than study desks and beds.

But the Lambert boys got busy. They turned it into "home" in short order, and although many a boy awakened the first couple of days and wondered where he was, life in its new location already is at normal.

Nine of the Lambert men have board jobs—two of them at the hospital and three at the Quadrangle — which necessitate new, long walks from east campus to west. Almost all Lambert residents have military and physical education classes, next to which they once lived.

Self-government immediately took its place. The men formed Lambert House association and elected officers: Paul Waggoner, Al of Centerville, president; Frank Groff, Al of Remsen, treasurer; Don McMahon, Al of Ft. Dodge, secretary.

They named two of their number to the association council, which will deal with discipline; Maurice Johnson, Al of Clinton, and Eddie Claussen, A3 of Rick-

Nippon Planes Raid Islands Off Australia

MELBOURNE (AP)—Japanese bombers raided islands only 30 miles off the northeastern tip of Australia yesterday in a possible softening-up prelude to an invasion attempt against the commonwealth mainland from newly won bases in New Guinea.

The attack, on a small scale, was aimed at islands in the vicinity of Thursday island which lie like stepping stones across the 100-mile-wide Torres strait between Australia and New Guinea.

The raided islands lie opposite Port Moresby, on the southwest New Guinea coast, which has been the target of repeated Japanese air attacks. It is some 270 miles across the Coral sea from Cape York, northernmost tip of Australia.

The Japanese have gained footholds at Salamaua and Lae, on the southeastern New Guinea coast, about 400 miles from the Australian mainland and yesterday's raiders may have come from those bases.

The Australians, keeping sleepless vigil along her threatened shores, themselves struck back at Japanese springboard positions in the commonwealth's outer defenses.

Bombers inflicted heavy damage on grounded aircraft in an attack on the Japanese-held airfield at Rabaul in New Britain, destroying probably three planes and damaging ten others.

Port Moresby on the southeast coast of New Guinea was attacked by Japanese fliers using cannon and machinegun fire Friday but the only casualties cited in the RAAF communique was a leg wound suffered by an Aussie flier.

The sparsely settled continent looked more and more to the United States for a decisive tip of the scales against Japan.

10,000 Germans Slain In Five Days—Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet armies of the south and southwest have killed 10,000 Germans and captured or destroyed vast stores of food, clothing and war supplies in five days of savage fighting over battlefields churned into quagmires by thawing snow and ice, the Russians announced last night in a special communique.

Nazis were slain at the rate of 2,000 a day in the area extending from the Ukraine to the Crimea between March 7-12, said the announcement, which followed by 24 hours another special communique telling of the annihilation of 14,000 Germans in 15 days of fighting on the northwestern front.

Dispatches received in London reported that Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov's divisions of the central front west of Moscow were tightening another giant noose around a large Nazi force in a rough triangle formed by Smolensk, 230 miles west of the capital; Vyazma, 90 miles east and slightly north of Smolensk; and Rzhev, some 70 miles almost due north of Vyazma.

The doffights followed by a few hours a heavy night bombing of Cologne, munitions center and communications hub of the German Rhineland.

The air ministry told of one encounter in which eight out of ten Messerschmitts, flying low over the channel, were destroyed.

"Terrific dogfights in and out of the clouds were fought at heights between 4,000 and 7,000 feet," the ministry said.

"Friday night in the light of hundreds of flares," British bombers swooped over Cologne and dropped a "great weight" of explosives. Many large fires sprang up in the complex target area, returning fliers said.

Ensign F. R. Barnard To Interview Students For Officer Training

Ensign F. R. Barnard of the United States navy will be in room 102 University hall Wednesday and Thursday of this week to interview qualified men interested in training in class V-7 in the naval reserve.

Ensign Barnard will not be able to enlist men here but will explain problems connected with enlistment and will make arrangements to have the recruiting substation in Cedar Rapids handle the preliminary examinations and the forwarding of acceptable applicants to Des Moines for final enlistment.

12 United Nations Warships Sunk in Action off East Indies

ROME (AP)—The democracies will win the war, Vice President Henry Wallace said last night, not merely because we have shown our capacity to fight with a whole-hearted spirit, but because the people of the entire world appreciate that we are fighting for the prosperity and dignity of the common man in all nations.

He delivered that summation of faith in his first major speech since the Pearl Harbor attack, prepared for delivery before a midwest audience here of farmers and city folk, and broadcast over the blue network.

Hitler and Japan, he said, "are driving desperately against time. They must knock us out by 1942 or not at all. All signs indicate that the summer of 1942 will be a repetition of the summer of 1918, with the axis making one last desperate all-out attempt."

"But when the final struggle is brought to a finish, we can have a better peace than that of 1918, provided every person in the United States realizes that his every action every day is producing results in terms of life and death for our young men."

"The industrial leaders and workers who expand the production of rubber and copper, aluminum and steel will save the lives of thousands, the man who stops the production of even a single plane may determine the outcome of a battle on which will depend a short war or a long war."

British Down 10 Nazi Planes Over Channel

LONDON (AP)—Terrific air battles raged over the English channel yesterday and when the skies had cleared ten German planes had fallen and every British fighter had returned unscathed to its base.

The doffights followed by a few hours a heavy night bombing of Cologne, munitions center and communications hub of the German Rhineland.

The air ministry told of one encounter in which eight out of ten Messerschmitts, flying low over the channel, were destroyed.

20 Per Cent Reduction in East Coast Gasoline Deliveries Ordered by War Production Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 20 per cent reduction in gasoline deliveries to filling stations in eastern seaboard and Pacific northwest states was ordered by the War Production Board yesterday in a step which informed quarters said was preliminary to rationing.

The order means the average motorist among the 10,000,000 automobile owners in the affected areas will have to curtail his use of motor fuel by even more than one-fifth since filling stations were directed to meet first of all the "minimum, necessary requirements" of essential users.

Among those classed as essential users were physicians and nurses, government vehicles, school buses, taxicabs and agricultural machinery.

Also as a part of the conservation program, the approximately 100,000 filling stations in the 20 states where the order applies were directed to confine their operations to 12 hours daily and 72 hours weekly. The choice as to hours and days of operation was left to individual retailers.

The order was the second government action of the day affecting automobile owners. Earlier, the White House disclosed that President Roosevelt had written the governors of the 48 states proposing a maximum motor vehicle speed limit of 40 miles an hour.

The chief executive's request was based on the necessity of conserving tires which wear much faster at high speeds than at low

FASCISTS SAY BRITISH LINER HIT BY U-BOAT NEAR RIO; U.S. CRUISER HOUSTON, DESTROYER POPE LOST OFF JAVA

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As a joint British-American communique revealed yesterday that the united nations had lost 12 warships and possibly a 13th in their vain battle to stop a Japanese landing on Java, new sinkings were reported along the North American Atlantic coast and in the Caribbean.

In addition the Rome radio quoted "Argentine maritime circles" as saying the 81,235-ton British liner Queen Mary, laden with 10,000 "North American" troops, was torpedoed and badly damaged several days ago after leaving Rio De Janeiro. The huge ship was reported attempting to reach the British base in the Falkland islands. Reports of this nature are frequently contained in axis broadcasts in an attempt to gain information on movements of ships or troops.

Listed as lost by the allies were the United States cruiser Houston and destroyer Pope, the British cruiser Exeter and destroyers Electra, Jupiter, Encounter and Stronghold; the Dutch cruisers Java and De Ruyter and the destroyer Kortenaar; the Australian cruiser Perth and sloop Yarra and an unidentified warship beached and presumed lost.

This stunning blow was somewhat offset by the toll exacted from the Japanese — a cruiser and destroyer known sunk, a cruiser hit and burning, another of the Mogami class set afire and possibly sinking and three destroyers afire and sinking.

Sub Torpedoes U.S. Steamship Off East Coast

CAMAGUEY, Cuba (AP)—Four survivors of the Colabee, 5,617-ton sugar transport which was torpedoed Thursday night off the Cuban coast, were landed here yesterday by a United States plane. Circumstances of their rescue were not disclosed.

When the battle began the allied fleet, presumably steaming out of Soerabaja, encountered a force of "at least nine" Japanese cruisers and two destroyer flotillas, the navy's announcement said.

Action was joined immediately at extreme range. Almost at once one of the Japanese destroyer flotillas attacked, but was repelled by the allied cruisers. One Japanese destroyer was hit by a shell from the Perth.

Rear Admiral Doorman, of the Dutch navy, in command, ordered three destroyers to counter attack the Japanese flotilla, which meanwhile was withdrawing under cover of a smoke screen. The navy said there was little information as to the result.

American Freighter Sunk in Caribbean

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Torpedoed twice, then pounded by close-range gunfire, the American freighter Cardonia was sunk in the Caribbean, 20 survivors related here yesterday.

The crew members who reached port Friday, left yesterday for their home port of New Orleans — ready for another trip to sea. They said after the torpedoing a week ago, an enemy submarine blasted at least 35 shells into the freighter at 100 yards.

21 of Crew Believed Lost; 7 Adrift 10 Hours Before Rescue

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A small American steamer was torpedoed and sunk off the Atlantic coast early Wednesday morning by an enemy submarine which cruised brazenly about the area for four hours after the attack, showing a strong yellow light from its conning tower.

Seven members of the steamer's crew landed at Norfolk by a rescue ship which picked them up after they had been adrift ten hours on a life raft said there was little chance their 21 shipmates had survived.

The fifth naval district announced the sinking yesterday.

The subsurface pumped two torpedoes, spaced less than 60 seconds apart, into the steamer, the survivors told newsmen in an interview and the stricken craft went down within two minutes. They had no time to launch lifeboats and some of the men swam overboard from the deck, which was awash before they reached their quarters.

Captain Nicholas Manolis, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was cut severely about the face when the impact of the first torpedo shattered a window on the bridge, and lost much blood before he and the other survivors were taken aboard the rescue vessel.

An American Overture---

By ETHAN ALLEN
Iowa Professor of Political Science

(Ethan Allen wrote "An American Overture" as a lecture in 1937—two years before the outbreak of the war in Europe. Five years later, with America now an active participant in worldwide struggles, its message is even more important.)

(It is a message of faith in a great dream, a message of confidence in the goodness in man, a message of hope for the future of humanity.)

(Reduced in length, "An American Overture" is published here for the first time.—The Editor.)

American life today, we are told, is at the crossroads. Those of our thinkers who see only destruction and ruin ahead are typically Jeremiahs in their loud lamentations. Their dire prophecies fill the air with ominous clouds and distant rumblings of thunder which, we are assured, will leave us exhausted and weary with the struggle.

Down the corridors of time will pass our magnificent machine age, leaving not a single permanent reminder of our achievements—if, indeed, we have achieved anything.

Indeed, no less a thinker than that magnificent Prussian, Oswald Spengler, assures us that we are in the autumn of civilization and headed for oblivion. Ahead we see the strangely familiar specters of dictatorship striding the modern scene, casting over modernity the atmosphere of the inquisition and the Dark Ages, and war, threatening the collapse of civilization and fortelling a new Dark Age.

Ignorance, passion, prejudice, nationalism, fear, hatred, selfishness—these are the pigments with which the Spenglers of our day paint, in firm and devastating tones, the picture of modernity's travail. As we gaze upon this masterpiece—a truly awe-inspiring creation of the human mind—we wonder if, indeed, we are of that scene.

Something deep down in the very innermost recesses of our beings cries out to give the lie to such a picture of America's future—come what may to the rest of the world.

Somehow, I think of life, of American life in particular, as a great overture yet to be put to music. If I could put the American Dream to music, I am sure that it would be in the form of an overture. For an overture is, in a general sense, the instrumental prelude to an opera, outlining musically the characters and the themes to be developed during the action.

As I view American life today, I feel that we stand upon the threshold of a mighty opera. The full nature of the theme and the complete cast of the characters we do not know. Nor are we able to clearly picture the full beauty of the divine paths of the finished story. But of this we are certain: we have lived and are now living through a part of a grand overture. We know and feel that the suggestions embodied in that prelude will spring into full life as the opera unfolds before our eyes.

Into this overture has been woven the spirit and life of the American people.

Perhaps the music would begin in the fierce clash of mighty forces representing the England of the early 17th century: mighty armies and rising empires struggle for supremacy; new religious ideas break out in open warfare; rising industrialism, belching forth its black and soul-killing smoke, forcing humanity to its lowest levels.

Yet from the very first, in this fierce play of almost superhuman forces, there is heard the sweet, sad strains of humanity's eternal cry for better things. Again and again this strain seems to be lost in the loud and strident conflict of class and section.

Following the martial music of the Civil war, there is strongly represented the crash of industrialism—building—expanding—building. Throughout the entire overture there would be represented the forces of speed and size, of activity and pioneering, of war and noise, of political feuds and unbridled individualism.

Much, alas, too much of our national overture is to be told in terms of the ravishing of a virgin continent, in the exploitation of human beings, in the heedlessness of things of the spirit—all in our haste to become rich and powerful and great.

Such forces put to music would call for frequent use of the brass section. The tempo would be quickened and our hearts would keep time with the rising crescendo of trumpet and cornet. The constant rumbling of the drums and the thunder of the percussion section tightens our nerves and lifts us to dizzy heights of dreams of empire and world domination.

We are interrupted at this point in the composition of our overture by the voices of our Jeremiahs, those prophets of doom. Well might they say, with the scorn equalled only by that of the noble Roman, "Your overture is simply noise, confusion, meaningless. It well represents the history of your country: you are a nation whose history is simply the froth of existence. With your haste, your speed, your naive reliance upon size and things, your simple belief in panaceas, your blind reliance upon science, your petty localism, your devastating sectionalism, your exaltance in victory and your pessimism in depression, your running hither and yon, puffed up over your accomplishments—with all these things you have produced no meaning existence. You have been simply making a lot of noise. You have no reason for your activity other than the acquisition of things."

Indeed, oftentimes we listen to great music and hear only the rising, crushing crescendo. In viewing our national history, it is well to remember that the music of our lives must be placed against a background of triumphantly active humanity.

But the sensitive soul sees something in American life which the casual observer fails to catch, even as the sensitive ear of the musician hears the intricate harmonies and overtones while the casual observer hears only the oft-repeated melodies.

I would have you bear in mind that the whole overture of American life must be played against the background—if I may repeat—of triumphantly active humanity. For nowhere in modern times has a nation been as active as we are during the greater part of our national history.

But if one sees only activity—and a rather meaningless activity at that—in American life, he misses the real overtones of the American overture. Let me draw your attention to the fundamental and basic harmony of life upon which we have builded our civilization.

These harmonies may be heard in the quieter moments of our national life, rising at times to sublime strains and at other times in the character of a lovely echo of a bygone age. Yet always they are to be heard. Even in times of intense national distress these harmonies are present, oftentimes reaching organ-like crescendos.

And what are these harmonies? They are the outward manifestations of the inward man.

Listen to the overtones of the immortal document: "We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness . . ."

While it is true that the founders of our nation were busy with the material necessities of life, it is likewise true that they had a purpose in their material pursuit. In their writings and in their lives there lived a dream, a dream of a nation free and happy, a dream of a nation where the doors of opportunity would be "wide open" to all men.

They would have agreed with the beautiful lines of Ruskin: "That country is richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy human beings; that man is richest who, having perfected the functions of his own life to the utmost, has also the widest helpful influence, both personal and by means of his possessions, over the lives of others."

Another overtone of American life, another expression of the inner man. Listen!

"The west . . . was exulting in its youth and beginning to glimpse "manifest destiny" in the sunset sky over the western mountains. The plain citizens everywhere felt a thrilling sense of freedom and power. To a crowd that pressed too closely on a political procession, a gentleman at the head called out 'Make way for the representatives of the people! 'Make way yourself!' was thundered back, 'We are the people themselves!'"

"Make way. We are the people." In Spanish and English that cry has now resounded on the continent for nearly three centuries. That cry was hurled at any and all that hindered or helped the steady advance of the ordinary man.

Lifting the expression of the American Dream to its highest peak of literary achievement, Abraham Lincoln, child of the frontier and man of the ages, gave to us his immortal Gettysburg address.

Imagine that tall, gaunt figure, stooped as if the weight of a country torn by Civil war and the spilling of blood brother by brother rested upon his frail but firm shoulders. Imagine, too, that great sea of humanity looking up at their president for words or solemn dedication. Out of that setting there came the voice of the human soul speaking to the human soul in terms of highest and purest passion. The overtones of that famous address are those of the hearts yearnings in America. Again and again they are to be heard in our overture.

" . . . that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Stiffness—the stillness during which soul speaks to soul—hung over the battlefield. Abraham Lincoln had spoken for the heart-sons of his fellow citizens. He knew them for he had lived them.

James Truslow Adams has written a very excellent book, "The Epic of America," the epic of what he calls the "American dream"—a dream of escape from a narrow, stifling, hedged-in existence to a freer, fuller, richer life for every man.

That dream has marched with the American people across the continent from the rising to the setting sun. It has been thwarted again and again. Wherever the "cake of custom" has grown hard and fixed, wherever society has grown stratified, wherever industrialism has put machinery above life, and profiteering above humanity, the dream has ceased.

But again and again that dream has been renewed on every American frontier, and flooded back from west to east and from east to west, until it has become a part of the American temperament and American character. As such it is, indeed, the main melody and the richest harmony of our overture.

"This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity. Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great truth? Who dares fail to try? I summon all honest men, all patriotic men, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them, if they but counsel and sustain me."

Thus spoke Woodrow Wilson Through him spoke the great voice of the unnumbered millions of his fellow men. The Answer?

On the battle-scarred field of Europe, humanity engaged in that great collective slaughter which civilization calls "war."

Of the year following the world war, there is little need to speak. In our naive faith in things, we allowed our deeper values to sink nearly to oblivion. The real harmony of America life seemed to be lost in the crash of the fortissimo and the constant rumbling of the percussion section.

During the past few years, however, we have learned much. We have learned now, as always, that human values, human beings, if you please, are far more fundamental, far more significant and lasting than mere things.

Once again in our overture the real harmonies and the lasting melodies and delicate soul-overtones of the American Overture are to be heard above the clash of petty party conflict. Indeed, in many ways, the sensitive ear will hear that the entire crash of modern life is but a by-product, a side flourish, a technical device of the composer. Moreover, the sensitive ear will know that this technical device is used in order to bring our attention to bear upon the deeper and more lasting harmonies and overtones which form the basic theme of the overture.

We are not merely a nation of shop-keepers. We have a national tradition, a national history of our own, which is certainly no less worthy than that of any European country. We have developed out of our experience national traits which are, I believe, deeper than any dollar-chasing philosophy.

We are, it is true, rather inarticulate both in our talk and in our acts about these traits. We have a national soul, of which we are too vaguely conscious, and which is too often obscured by trumpets of mere sound and fury, and perhaps still more in recent years by an equally intemperate self-detraction.

Would it be merely academic to urge that our teachers and our writers and all who have their part in shaping our national mind would now best serve the nation by bringing clearly into the foreground of our consciousness what Americanism really is? This, if only that our people may stop more securely into the uncertain future from a footing in their living past.

We would, I suppose, not all agree as to what Americanism really means. To Big Bill Thompson, it meant Anglophobia and twisting the Lion's tail forever. To Sinclair Lewis, it means Gopher Prairie and Babbitt. To Upton Sinclair it means the exploitation of human beings. To H. L. Mencken, it meant the crudities and imbecilities which he played up monthly in his magazine under the caption, Americana. To Henry Ford, it means bigger and better mass production. To Madison Grant, it means a triumphant Nordism (whatever that means) and so on and so on.

But such interpretations are, I dare say, mostly the surface froth and bubbles on a deeper national under-current which moves silently on, though we are hardly conscious of it because we are in a sense so familiar with it, even as we are hardly conscious of the air we breathe.

If then, I speak and have spoken of familiar things, and nothing new, it is with the conviction that it is things familiar, though vaguely felt and apprehended, which require renewed emphasis and definition if we are to be in the fullest and richest degree a nation.

What, then, is Americanism? It is a peculiarity of the American spirit that it looks not so much backward as forward to the future. Our pride is not so much in past performance as in the "glory of the unfinished."

"America," said Franklin Lane, "is an aspiration. America is a spirit. It is the constant and continuous searching of the human heart for the thing that is better."

It is easy—all too easy, I know—for the cynic to make sport of this quality. It has so often bodied itself forth in Utopian soap-bubbles which are most gorgeous just at the moment of their collapse. It has so often expressed itself in noisy clamorous ways.

Without doubt, this American habit of projecting a better national future has been at low tide since the World War. If we would find the floodtide, we must go back to the middle or last quarter of the last century, to a period which Lewis Mumford, in his brilliant book, has named "The Golden Day."

Alexander Mackay, an English visitor to America at that time, wrote this observation about us: "Other nations boast about what they have done, but the citizen of the United States exalts his head to the sky in the contemplation of what the grandeur of his country is going to be. Others claim respect and honor because of things done by a long line of ancestors. An American glories in the achievements of a distant posterity."

That was a hundred years ago in the heyday of the robust, exuberant, romantic, hopeful, faithful America. Has America grown old? I wonder.

But if our people think largely in terms of the promise of American life, that does not mean that our thinking is not rooted in the past—in our own past. We have, no less than the older countries of Europe, a tradition and a history of our own—a past which is distinctive and unique, not simply in its brevity, but in its quality—I might say, even, in its worth.

We have thought of our history, defensively, as being homespun, in contrast to the ornate tapestries which are supposed to form the backgrounds of European civilization.

Homespun it is, but with a strong and honest fibre. Only quite recently have we come to realize that the true significance of our history does not lie in the recordings found in the history books, nor even in the battles which we have fought in blue and grey and brown.

The real significance of our history lies in the two-hundred-years-war to conquer and possess a continent. This was accomplished not by a professional army marching to the glare of trumpets and the rattle of drums. It was accomplished by homespun pioneers who advanced beyond the protection of the flag, heaving their way through wild forests and trampling underfoot the hostility of the savages.

These pioneers fought their own battles, built their own settlements, set up their governments, helped each other and themselves, and developed through this experience and this discipline the qualities of self-reliance and self-respect, the spirit of neighborliness and mutual good will. These are qualities which have entered into the very blood and bone of the American character.

That is the real American saga, the true American Odyssey, the beautiful American Overture, matchless in its scope and character. It is no mere congeries of myth and legend. It is a romantic cycle, vital with human interests—with dread and hope, with frustration and triumph, with comedy and tragedy, with prosaic drabness and high adventure—yea, with the stuff of poetry.

In our national life we have come to believe profoundly, and I believe rightly, in certain fundamental principles of life, even though our actions have not always squared with our beliefs.

We believe in democratic self-government, progressively adapted to a changing scene; we believe in freedom of life and enterprise as essential to the self-respect of mature people; we believe that the genius we bring to bear upon scientific research, technological improvement and economic management will lead mankind out of the Death Valley of Scarcity into the Promised Land of Plenty; we believe in individual initiative as fundamental to social progress; we believe in the social value of scientific research; and we believe in the value and practicality of international cooperation and goodwill.

The full story of our opera no man knows. But to those of us who are deeply and sincerely interested, this much seems necessary: namely, the future of this nation lies in the fidelity of the great mass of our citizens to a program of action which not only talks but acts in the light of our own American ideals. Our determination on this point is the eternal cry of mankind.

Down through the ages mankind has come, ceaselessly striving to live as rich and as fine a life as possible. In spite of frequent and severe reverses, there still lives in mankind the hope, nay, the determination, not only to live, but more than this, the determination to live humanely, richly, fully—in short, to become human beings.

SONGSTRESS FOR MECCA BALL

Brown eyed, auburn haired Mary Ann Mercer is featured vocalist with Bob Strong's orchestra which will appear here for the Mecca Ball from 9-12 Friday night in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Miss Mercer was born in Detroit, Mich., and her early education was divided between the public schools and dancing schools. After her graduation from high school, she entered the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor as a medical student.

It was at one of the collegiate functions that fate stepped in to change the destiny of the petite medic. During her dance routine she snapped her ankle, but adhering to the tradition that the show must go on, she finished with a song. Her vocal number was so well received that she decided to continue her career as a vocalist instead of a dancer.

The Yacht Club Boys heard her singing and engaged her for the forthcoming New York bookings. The Yacht Club, Club Eighteen, Leon and Eddie's all followed. Mitchell Ayers heard her and immediately put her under contract to sing with his orchestra. She is now featured on the "College Humor" radio show with Bob Strong and his orchestra.

Tickets for the informal dance will go on sale at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning at the main desk of the Union.

Chaperons for the party will be Dean and Mrs. Francis M. Dawson, Prof. and Mrs. Ralph M. Barnes, Prof. and Mrs. H. R. Reed, Prof. and Mrs. Hunter Rouse, Prof. and Mrs. J. H. Arnold and Prof. and Mrs. Elmer Lundquist.

The fourth in the current series of faculty round-table discussions, "What Can Happen in Central Europe," will be conducted Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in senate chamber, Old Capitol, Prof. Everett Hall, head of the philosophy department and director of the series, announces.

"This round-table discussion will be of a somewhat different character from the previous ones," according to Professor Hall. Questions that will be discussed at the forum are: What kind of people live in Central Europe? What kind of religion is it? What are the social, political, the economic forces which have been in conflict in these countries?

Speakers who will participate in the round-table are members of the university faculty who have long lived in central Europe and are therefore especially qualified to discuss the problems.

They are Prof. Stephen H. Bush, head of the Romance languages department, who organized the

Rita Rummelhart, 13, Wins Johnson County Spelling Contest Here

Hills Student Defeats Joann Paulus in Final Round of Competition

Rita Mary Rummelhart, 13, eighth-grade student at St. Joseph parochial school in Hills, was crowned Johnson county spelling champion yesterday afternoon when she won the title from 82 other grade school children at the county courthouse.

By spelling the word "gristle" the new champion defeated the runner-up, Joann Paulus, 14, route 6, Iowa City. Rita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Rummelhart of Hills, won both the oral and written contests. She was awarded a framed certificate and will represent Johnson county in the state spelling contest to be held in Des Moines April 25.

Judges of the contest were Mary E. Rice, Amelia Hurt and Albert Hogan.

Merle Hays, 13, of St. Patrick high school, Iowa City, was the only city entrant, so he will also go to Des Moines April 25.

Graduates of Iowa's CPT Courses Help In War Emergency

Results of a recent survey conducted by Elmer C. Lundquist, instructor of aeronomics, show that graduates of the university's civilian pilot training courses are doing their part to aid the United States during the war emergency.

Questionnaires were sent to all 245 students who have taken primary or secondary CPT training here since the courses were begun in September, 1939. Only about fifty percent of the questionnaires have been returned, Lundquist reports, but of this total it is estimated that 83 graduates are now occupied in capacities valuable to the country's war effort.

Twenty-eight men are now enlisted in the Navy air corps and 30 in the Army air corps. In addition, it is known that at least one former university CPT student has joined the Royal Canadian air corps and one the United States Marine flying corps.

Two former students are also enrolled in the armed air services in a non-flying status.

Total results of the survey will be released at a latter date when all the questionnaires have been returned, Lundquist stated.

Dr. Johann Ehrenhaft Will Supervise New First Aid Class Here

Dr. Johann L. Ehrenhaft of University hospital will be in charge of the new Red Cross first aid class to be organized at 7:30 tomorrow night in Room 4 of Schaeffer hall, Harold Briceland, county first aid director, announced yesterday.

Briceland emphasized that all persons interested in the training and those who already signed up should appear at the meeting.

If there are more registrants than can be handled in one class, two classes instead of the planned one will be organized.

There are now approximately 700 persons in 30 classes taking first aid training in Johnson county. "The only problem," Briceland said, "is in getting more men to enroll."

Above is a photostatic copy of the consumer sugar War Ration book which will be issued to everyone in the nation shortly. The book contains 28 stamps, one of which will be torn out with each weekly sugar purchase.

Atty. Kenneth M. Dunlop Appointed Custodian For Johnson County Sugar Rationing Program

Johnson county rationing board No. 52, said yesterday that the local program is all set up. "We have just received 37,000 stamp cards, 39,000 consumer applications and appropriate instructions to customers of this county. Outside of waiting for final instructions from the Washington office, we are ready to go," he added.

The local board has not as yet appointed an additional person to handle the registration since the OPA office has not issued complete plans for the sugar rationing.

Dunlop yesterday pointed out a few questions pertinent to the War Ration book which will be issued to all persons in Iowa City and Johnson county soon.

1. Can one person buy a week's supply of sugar for the entire family? Yes, any member of the family capable of shopping.

2. Will sugar be allotted by the month, week or day? It will be allotted on a weekly basis.

3. Will each person of the family have a War Ration book? Yes, every person regardless of their age.

4. How many stamps are required for each sugar purchase? There are 28 stamps in the first book to be issued. For each purchase, one stamp will be taken from the book in the presence of your retail dealer.

5. How much sugar will each person be allowed? Because the OPA office in Washington has not yet issued the final instructions to the local rationing board, this question is still undecided.

6. After 28 stamps have been issued and used, will other War Ration books be issued? This question also will have to be announced when the national rationing office makes final plans.

The Johnson county rationing board is located in the county courthouse.

Bucky Walter played one of the most outstanding games of the season as he broke up opposing passes time after time and tossed in two baskets and two free throws for a total of six points.

Hawklets Start Fast
Iowa City started out in great style, led by Danner, and took an 8-0 lead before the Bears got a chance at a basket. Danner tossed in two baskets and a free throw for the first five points, and Bob Roth added a basket just before Danner whistled another charity toss.

Then Christensen, of West Branch football fame, shot two one-handed push shots from the free throw line for the Bear first scores. The scoring continued in a similar manner, and at the quarter the count was 14 to 8 for Iowa City.

With part of the second team in, the Little Hawks continued their scoring ways in the second period. Jim Thompson, Wally Emmons and Bill Kanak all added baskets to help boost the score to 25 to 13 at halftime. Midway in the second quarter, Coach Fran Merten called a halt to Danner's scoring and let Jaro Lepic show his stuff. At the same time Bucky Walter took a rest and Kanak was shoved in.

Score Again in 3rd
The scoring for the third quarter was mostly by the first team members who were still in, as Bob Roth, Bill Sangster and John Thompson all added points. The score starting the fourth stanza was 40 to 17.

In the last period, the second team played West Branch off its feet. Kanak, Dale Sleighter and Curly Brack all poured in points, as the Little Hawks couldn't be stopped. The seconds almost had an easier time against the Bears than the first team.

The wide margin doesn't really give justice to the manner in which the Bears played ball. They weren't as weak as the score might show. Bill Anderson and Christensen were individual standouts, both on offense and defense, but they had trouble hitting the hoop, as did the entire West Branch outfit. At times the clever ball handling of the Bears made the Iowa City team look far from good.

Clutier Blasts Wiota, 40-26, To Win State

DES MOINES (AP) — Clutier's mighty scoring team, pulling away in the second half with one of its typical point-making drives, won the girls' state high school basketball championship here last night with a 40 to 26 victory over previously undefeated Wiota.

The Tama county sextet, with power to spare in the front court and an efficient defensive combination to choke off enemy forays, ripped to the title in ruthless fashion in the last half after holding only a 17 to 15 lead at intermission.

A crowd of 5,500 fans saw the two rivals battle through a practically even first half in which Delona Zmolek counted 11 of Clutier's 17 points.

Sharon easily won the Class B district title last night by trouncing a scrapping Ainsworth outfit, 27 to 13.

Sharon had little trouble in any part of the game to keep the lead it built at the beginning. At the first quarter the score stood 5 and 2, and at the half it was 14 to 3. Edmonson made the lone point for the Tigers in the second period. Shaffer, Sharon guard, was the individual scoring leader for the game with seven points.

Both the winner and runner-up in both classes of the district go to the sub-state tournament next week, so all teams which played last night will have at least another week of basketball.

Self-Styled 'Typical Small Town Athlete' Is Wendell Hill, Fanciest of Cage Ball-Handlers, Two-Letter Hurler on Baseball Team

By DICK PASCOE

Wendell Hill, one of the fanciest ball handlers ever seen on any hardwood is not only an outstanding basketball player, but also one of those fellows a person meets and instantly likes without knowing why.

Perhaps the reason for the spontaneous feeling is that he's a clean-cut young fellow, who claims he's just a "typical small town athlete trying to get along." His bashful, yet friendly nature instantly makes him friends.

WENDELL HILL
IOWA FORWARD

Strictly on Own
Hill has gone through the university strictly on his own, yet has been able to accomplish those things in the field of athletics that he had planned. He works two jobs a day, and still has found time to letter twice each in basketball and baseball. He will be trying for his third monogram on the diamond as a pitcher this spring.

There are five boys in the Hill family, all of them athletes. Four were older than Wendell, so he had to put out or else. His oldest brother, now coaching at Boone high school, was "Windy's" athletic idol, and he gives all the credit for what he has accomplished at Iowa to that member of the family.

Hill came here primarily to play baseball. He had heard of Coach Otto Vogel, a former Chicago Cubs player, and had decided to keep on with his favorite sport under him.

That self-applied "typical small town athlete" moniker may apply to his lack of allstate honors, but certainly not to his abilities. He played forward for two years on the Cambridge, Iowa, high school cage team, and pitched for four years on the baseball nine. Graduates This Spring

"High on a Wendell" Hill graduates this spring, and has received a draft deferment from the local board until then. But he's another one of the Hawkeyes who will apply for service in Gene Tunney's naval physical unit.

When we asked Hill if he could think of anything else to say, he replied, "No, but have a heart, fellow, and don't make that thing too flowery." Let's hope this story will be O.K., Wendell, but if it isn't, we had to tell them the truth, didn't we?

Wrestlers Finish Fourth in Conference By Winning Second, 3 Thirds, Fourth

Pickett Loses Final, Miller, Capt. Julius, D. Geppert Take 3rd

Purdue Grabs Crown; Illinois, Michigan Tie For Second in Meet

By DICK SPENCER

CHICAGO (Special to The Daily Iowan)—Iowa grapplers brought home one second, three thirds and a fourth in the Big Ten wrestling meet here last night, as the Hawks finished fourth behind Purdue, Michigan and Illinois in the team standings.

Iowa's "mighty mite of the mat", 121-pound Roy Pickett, was the only Hawk to battle through the semifinal round, and he lost in the finals to Malcolm McDonald of Purdue on a 4-1 decision. The bout continued McDonald's undefeated string, and shattered Pickett's.

Three Take Thirds
Russ Miller, 128; Capt. Loy Julius, 136, and Dick Geppert, 155, took third places with consolation victories, and Ed Kemp, 145, finished fourth in his division.

Pickett piled up a wide 10-5 margin over Minnesota's Bob Barber in the semifinals in the afternoon to earn his position in the finals against McDonald.

Cliff Perizzo, Minnesota 128-pounder, nosed Miller, who had previously beaten him in a dual meet, out of a title spot by executing a switch from the bottom position to take the match by a narrow 1-0 margin. However, Miller came back in the final rounds of the consolation to pile up a 3-0 decision over Pyle of Chicago.

Julius Edged Out
Julius fell to Mark Matovina, Purdue's 136-pounder who ended up with a Big Ten crown, by a narrow 5-4 margin, but won his third-place title by throwing Larry Bates of Chicago in 5:30. He had previously won a referee's decision over Wisconsin's Ed Dzirik in a split overtime period.

Minnesota's Jack Morton carried an 8-4 decision over sophomore Ed Kemp to cut down Iowa's title chances in the 145-pound bracket, and the aggressive Hawk also lost his consolation decision to Getz of Chicago, 7-5. He had beaten Northwestern's McMillan, 7-2, in an overtime bout, which was won on better conditioning.

Gregory of Purdue scored a fall over Dick Geppert in 9:45 of an overtime semifinal battle to give the powerhouse Boilemakers another title spot, but the game sophomore brought Busch of Wisconsin under control in their bout for third with an 8-4 decision. He had won the slot with a fall in the second overtime from Leonard Humphreville of Chicago.

Gray, R. Geppert Lose
Jim Galles, defending 175-pound titleholder from the University of Michigan, gained a decision over sophomore Lynn Gray, 6-0, and the Hawkeye later lost a 4-2 decision to Berry, 31-year-old Illinois matman.

In the 165-pound class, Courtwright of Michigan battled out a 5-1 decision over Ralph Geppert to cut short Iowa's hopes for a place in that division.

Final team standings were: Purdue 33, Michigan 18, Illinois 18, Iowa 15, Minnesota 14, Wisconsin 6, Chicago 6, Indiana 4, Ohio State 2, Northwestern 0.

Individual weight champions were: 121—McDonald, Purdue; 128—Frederick, Purdue; 136—Matovina, Purdue; 145—Johnson, Michigan; 155—Seabrooke, Illinois; 175—Roberts, Wisconsin; heavyweight—Ruggieri, Purdue.

Gorsica Appeals Squabble
BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP)—John Gorsica, big right-handed Detroit pitcher and one of the baseball season's last remaining holdouts, announced yesterday he had appealed to Judge K. M. Landis for a hearing on his salary squabble with the Tigers.

51 Frosh Baseballers Practicing Tri-Weekly

Vogel Plans to Slice Squad, Work Outside As Soon as Possible

Iowa's freshman baseball squad, with 51 candidates, has been reporting to Coach Otto Vogel for practice three nights weekly.

The drills, starting at 7 p.m. are held in the fieldhouse, and the nights of practices are announced each week by Vogel.

The practices to date have consisted mainly of the fielding of ground balls and throwing, but the squad also has held two sessions of batting in the cages.

The squad will be cut in the near future, but not until all the candidates have had an ample opportunity to prove their ability.

Vogel is anxious to move the squad outside on the freshman diamond as soon as possible, where they will be put under the direction of Freshman Coach "Pops" Harrison.

Those who have been reporting regularly for practices are pitchers Lowell Ahrendsen, Howard Barnes, Dave DeTempe, Don Kingsbury, Stanley King, Bob Mikolasz, Vernon Persell, Farroll Ramussen, Jim Sandstedt, Howard Sinnerd, Robert Smith, Dean Thompson and Emil Ludvick.

The outfielders who have been practicing are Allen Elger, Adams, Melvin Erickson, Art Heusinkveld, Loras Kregel, Paul Ferrara, Don McNetney, Paul Smoldt and Jack Wadhams.

Six catchers have been drilling Leonard Benhart, R. F. Breene, Darrell Eblen, Tony Pokereyko, Richard Taylor and Lawrence Williams.

Iowa finished fifth with 16 points.

Iowa Gymnasts Score Only 1 Point in Meet

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Illinois gymnasts won their second straight Big Ten gymnastic meet yesterday over a field of five schools, coming from behind Minnesota in the last event, the long horse.

The final results were Illinois, 111; Minnesota, 108; Chicago, 68.5; Indiana, 41.5, Iowa 1.

Caton Cobb, the Illinois standout in the conference meet and the nationals last year, again swung the meet for the Illini by taking first in the horizontal bar, the side horse and the parallel.

Illinois, had been alternating with Minnesota since 1938 for first and second place in the conference.

BULLETIN
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Dr. Rufus C. Harris, president of Tulane university, announced last night that Lowell "Red" Dawson has resigned as head football coach to go to the University of Minnesota as chief assistant in football under Dr. George W. Hauser, acting head coach of the Gophers.

Dr. Harris said that no successor had been selected to Dawson, who resigned yesterday afternoon after considering the Minnesota offer for about a week.

WANT A RIDE?

Hanford Post of the American Legion up in Linn county thought itself up an idea to help the men in service which is a honey...

They've put up signs at four central highway points in the county... inviting motorists to "give a registered service man a ride." A man of the armed forces, en route to somewhere or other during his leave or furlough from service, may stop at one of the points to wait for a lift...

Motorists are urged to stop at the stations as they drive through, and pick up such men who may be going in their direction...

The service man fills out a slip releasing the driver of the car in which he rides from liability in case of accidents... A duplicate of that form stays at the assembly center--a restaurant or filling station...

Service men get rides, and the motorists who cooperate have interesting company... A nice arrangement...

The boys and girls out at city high have agreed on a happy idea to help Uncle Sam at their forthcoming junior-senior party... The boys will give the girls defense stamp corsages to wear...

One of the nicest tributes to the work of the late Grant Wood I've seen comes via the pen of W. K. Kelsey, "The Commentator" of the Detroit News...

"Among Wood's famous pictures," writes Kelsey, "is 'Daughters of Revolution,' three smug guardians of liberty standing before the well-known painting of Washington crossing the Delaware..."

"It may have stabbed many a Daughter into wondering, after all, if the country she is so devoted to defending is the America of today, or that of a century ago; whether her ideal America is not that of the Eighteenth Century, rather than that which the people are now trying to make..."

"Whether the problem is, not to understand the America of the Revolution, but the America of today and tomorrow..."

Wood did that painting after certain patriotic groups had kicked up a fuss over the manufacture in Germany in 1928 of a stained-glass window the artist had designed for the Cedar Rapids Memorial coliseum...

With his tongue in his cheek, he called it "Daughters of Revolution," although it frequently is known incorrectly as "Daughters of the American Revolution"... In this case there's a distinction...

NEW FACE--
You just as well get acquainted with Guayule, because you'll be seeing a lot of him in the next few years...

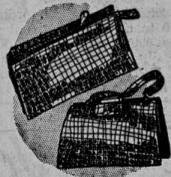

Guayule is a little plant which once grew high on the plateaus of north central Mexico... He had a lot of relatives and they grew there too...

Thirty years ago, some Americans brought the whole family to the United States, and started naturalizing them... Now Guayule is one of America's first families because he produces rubber, which is mighty nice of him...

Guayule's whole family took out their first papers immediately after docking at New Orleans, so they're qualified to serve...

Gas and electric facilities provided by the State University of Iowa and by the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co. influenced the United States government to select Iowa City as a location for its Naval Aviation training school. For the duration, therefore, the maintenance of these essential services is an added responsibility for the employees and management of this company. This responsibility is cheerfully accepted for we all know what a vital part aviation will play in winning the war.
