Navy Must Have More and Better Ships to Fight Against the Axis

Lieut. (j.g.) Di Dierks, of Davenport, who was an officer on the ill-fated U. S. S. Lexington, told members of the Kiwanis club yesterday some of his experiences in 15 months with the United States navy. In his talk, the young naval officer pointed out that the main reason for the rapid advance of the Japanese thus far in the war is because they outnumber U.S. vessels two to one.

Our navy has done fine work thus far against heavy odds. An occasional victory, however, will not win the war. We must give the enemy defeat after defeat, as they are now giving us, until the axis powers are beaten into submission. The men of our fighting forces are spirited, willing and eager to perform their duties but they lack the equipment to successfully carry out their military missions.

In the case of our navy, we are quickly learning that not only do we need many more ships but the right kind of ships—aircraft carriers, Lieut. Dierks pointed out that for the first time in history, naval battles have been fought with the enemy ships as far as 200 miles away. The only way such encounters can take place is through the use of aircraft.

Although we are learning the hard way, the United States at last is awakening to the fact that modern warfare demands modern tactics, modern equipment and a lot of it. Our navy men would fight with a row boat beneath them and a pile of rocks for ammunition, if necessary, but they can't win until our sea power at least matches that of the enemy.

More Dynamiters Will Be Landed On the Shores of the United States

The case of the eight confessed saboteurs landed on our coast from German submarines and promptly swept into the net of the FBI seems to us as a fantastic plot borrowed from the movies. Actually, these desperate invaders were bringing war to the very heart of this nation.

Naturally, the first question raised is whether any more of these nazi invaders are at large. Apparently the FBI does not think so or it would not have revealed the details so completely. If there are no more here at present, which is doubtful, these dangerous visitors will be back. The German high command is not likely to close its schools of sabotage because its first graduates proved so thick-headed. There is no way that night landings at isolated spots on a 3,000-mile coast can be prevented. If other dynamiters dragging more boxes of explosives and bombs arrive we can only hope the vigilance of the FBI will be equally alert.

It will be noted that two of these men were citizens of the United States and all are members of the German-American Bund. It is clear that they expected the help of friendly fifth columnists and planned to bring others into their fold. These prisoners are living evidence that the Bund breeds treason against the United States and is an aid of the German army.

There Just Hasn't Been a Way Found by Which It Can Be Done

"Never say anything can't be done. Say instead that as yet no man has been found to do it."

That's the advice of a man who knows what he's talking about—a famous inventor and engineer who has given us things like the self-starter and octane gasoline, to mention two of many. According to him, mechanical advances are being made even faster than usual today because of the pressure of war needs. Already we have new devices on our planes and tanks that enable them in many instances to outperform those made by our enemies.

The last war hastened the development of several new products—the radio, stainless steel, and dozens of new alloys and metals. There's no telling yet what things will come out of today's shortages and today's needs. Necessity is the mother of invention, all right, and she gets in some good lies in a country like this where inventors are encouraged by industry and by our traditional patent system that has been protecting their rights for more than 150 years.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Picking a General for Allied Second Front Is Going to Be a JOB

WASHINGTON—Paragraph stories have been creeping into the press, suggesting the Canadian General Andrew George Latta McNaughton might be chosen to head the British and American armies invading Europe.

His choice would be a compromise. Both Americans and British would prefer to have one of their own in command. Not a lot is known of General McNaughton here. He was an artilleryman in the World War and Canadian chief of staff for six years before 1935. In this war he was in France, before Dunkirk in command of the first division. Lately he has been in command of Canadian forces in England.

Next to production of equipment, the selection of generals is the most vital matter of war. The Libyan campaign is proving this pointedly at the moment, but it was true back in the Civil War and beyond.

Obviously generals should not be chosen for any other reason than superior ability—not for political reasons, not for diplomatic compromises.

The man needed to head the invasion of Europe must be the best man in the armies of the united nations for that job. Until somebody arises and says McNaughton qualifies on that ground and proves it, there may be some dissatisfaction with the suggestion.

Meanwhile General MacArthur, who is clearly the best of ours to show himself thus far, and better than anyone the British or Canadians have shown, is defending Australia, a job which seems likely to require less ingenuity than the creation of a second front.

Accounting for British Disaster in Libya

A semi-official British accounting for the Libyan disaster (which is probably more than semi) traces all their troubles back to General Ritchie's premature counter-attack three weeks ago (June 4).

He did not realize the nazi tank strength, having received inadequate reconnaissance reports, and threw his tanks into a daring and risky maneuver which shattered British armor power, enabling Rommel to seize the initiative. The British have been on the run since.

Incidentally, after all the commentating that has been done about the magnificent German 88 mm tank guns, this accounting shows the superior German fire power was not based alone on this gun, which is a mobile artillery field piece. The Germans had 47 mm and 75 mm guns in their tanks, while the bulk of the British tanks (Valentines and Matildas) carried a shorter range two pounder.

This means our General Grant's with their 75s are still a match for the nazis any day. In this connection the semi-official British report says:

"The British had a number of General Grants, but not enough of them."

Thus it appears that while the British had superiority in tanks (as well as planes, ships and troops) they did not have the right kind. Their big six-pounder anti-tank guns began to arrive after Rommel started the campaign, but not in sufficient numbers.

It Brings Up the Future Course of the War

No one here minimizes the gravity of what the British have been defending in Egypt. It is not just the Suez canal, but the whole middle east and its oil, in fact, the future course of the war.

If driven from Alexandria and Cairo they would presumably retire into Palestine and Syria (where they have a very small force) to defend the Mosul oil fields.

Such a defense could not easily be maintained over a long period, with Hitler possessing inner lines of supplies and undisputed hold on the whole Mediterranean, which would become an axis lake. Turkey's neutrality would come under nazi supervision.

Hitler's acquisition of middle east oil, and a possible juncture later with the Japs, through Persia and India, could at least add a couple of years to the war.

Sympathizers Now Working New Angle—Communist sympathizers and their "Daily Worker" are trying now to call even the state department "nazi."

This government has attempted to help the French along moderately in order to keep the French fleet and African bases out of nazi hands. The policy has worked fairly well so far. Now two ships are loading in New York with low grade kerosene, cotton textiles, sugar and tea for French West African ports in furtherance of this policy.

The communistic publications and communist dock workers doubt that these goods are destined for French natives, but choose to think they are going to Hitler with the approval of this government. They will be calling Mr. Roosevelt a nazi next.

Production of War Materials Will Not Be Halted July 4th

We'll celebrate the Fourth of July holiday this year by working harder. Chief of Production Donald Nelson, pointing out that soldiers on battlefields could not observe holidays, told American industry this week "we at home dare not have a July 4 holiday in war production." He said:

"On Independence Day this year we can pay proper honor to our freedom only by working in the defense of that freedom."

"Every factory making important implements of war and where material is available should make this Independence Day a full day of production."

Mr. Nelson need not worry. The American worker will accept his order cheerfully. After all what holiday celebration is comparable to the pleasure of producing arms that will bring us the victory.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Lyons Practically An Institution Now

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Another side of Hollywood.

Jack Lyons, 63, white-haired, bespectacled, holds the key to everything on his movie lot—except possibly the plots. He has been there longer than any other employee, and is practically an institution by now.

Sooner or later, everyone on the lot goes to Jack's shop window, or sends for Jack to come to the rescue. When Cary Grant couldn't open the body-hiding chest in "Arsenic and Old Lace" because the latch stuck, they sent for Jack. Humphrey Bogart almost didn't escape from prison in "The Big Shot" because the gate was locked tighter than the set-designer knew Jack fixed that too.

He is master and record-keeper of some 8,000 keys—to offices, sound stage doors, dressing rooms closets, desks. He holds one of two master keys that open everything.

J. L. Warner holds the other. How does one get to be a key man in the movies? For Jack Lyons it was a roundabout trail from Lancashire, England, via Chicago (where he learned a machinist's trade), San Francisco, Reno and points west, including Hollywood. He has been hotel manager, newspaper circulation man, storekeeper, poultry rancher, mining engineer, U. S. sailor in the Spanish-American War, Department of Agriculture worker during World War I, building contractor, carpenter.

He got into pictures as a carpenter (still pays union dues) and walked into "maintenance" when the opportunity arose. His mechanical bent made locksmithing a cinch. He has been doing it now for 15 years. In 21 years in pictures he has lost only six months from work due to illness and layoffs.

Love may laugh at locksmiths but it hasn't at Jack Lyons. He has been married 37 years, has a step-son and three grandchildren. One grandson, in the navy, was at Pearl Harbor. Another is in the army. Jack's brother is Senator Richard J. Lyons of Illinois.

"Another thing," he'll tell you, "all the years I've been married we've never paid rent." He and his wife went through the San Francisco earthquake and fire together. They were rent-free then because he was a hotel manager. After that, wherever they lived they bought a home. Their present one, in Los Angeles, is 17 miles from the studio, but Jack has good tires and is nursing them. His $72 a week is more than adequate for comfortable living.

They have never been to Ciro's (all night clubs remind Jack of Eddie Cantor's crack about the $70 sandwich, $75 with mustard) but he has seen Garbo on the lot or street several times. His idea of a good time is "plenty of sleep and rest." He gardens a little, takes exercise regularly, goes to movies a couple of nights a week—shopping for light comedies.

His idea of the stars: "They're mostly nice people. If they aren't they try to be. They have to be."

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

Miss Jeanne Cagney Is Plenty Moody

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The Cagney's being Irish, are seldom moody, and by far the most exuberant of the lot—even more so than the irrepressible Jimmy, is Jim's kid sister Jeanne.

Now Jeanne had a home-coming when "Yankee Doodle Dandy" opened in the New York that meant more to her than you could understand. To begin with—it wasn't her picture; it was Jim's, and in it she only played the part of Jim's kid sister, which she is in real life; though on the screen, since Jim was essaying the impersonation of George M. Cohan, she was really Cohan's kid sister.

But it was the first time she had ever seen New York in dim-out. And she is a New York kid, as all the Cagneys are New York kids. There's Jim himself, a New York kid. Then there's his brother Bill, who produced the picture and who is also a New York kid. And there are his two older brothers, Harry and Ed, who are doctors and who are also New York kids, though one peddles his pills in New York and the other in California.

Jim at the moment is kicking around Martha's Vineyard, but Jeanne—they call her Jeaney—is having a cinderella interlude in the big city before she goes on back across the Mississippi and the Painted Desert and the High Sierras to California.

What about her personally? Jim and Jeanne are kicking around Martha's Vineyard, but Jeanne—they call her Jeaney—is having a cinderella interlude in the big city before she goes on back across the Mississippi and the Painted Desert and the High Sierras to California.

Prof. Kenneth W. Spence Named Psychology Department Head

2 Appointments Made In School of Religion

Prof. Joseph B. Code To Become Catholic Religion Instructor

Appointment of Prof. Kenneth W. Spence as head of the psychology department and Professor Joseph B. Code and David C. Shipley to positions in the school of religion was announced yesterday by President Virgil M. Hancher.

Laboratories will be directed by experts, many of whom have given instruction at the course in past years, Prof. R. M. Perkins of the college of law, director of the course, said yesterday.

Charles Mazey, supervising agent of the United States secret service in St. Paul, Minn., will handle the counterfeiting laboratory, with the assistance of Russell Daniel of the Omaha district secret service.

With the exception of Jefferson and Monroe townships all the county has been canvassed and about a hundred tons collected.

"Monday's two hour campaign to clean the city of unnecessary rubber, in which station attendants, bus scouts, and truck owners participated, is one of the main reasons for our success," Jones said.

The gas defense class of the Iowa City civilian air patrol met last night in the chemistry auditorium to receive further instruction under the direction of Dr. H. R. Jenkinson.

The class is now studying the effect of weather, wind and air currents, clouds and temperature on gas warfare.

Last night the class took up the first of the protective measures; individual protection. This included a study of the use of gas masks, the different types used, types of protective clothing and the identification of gases.

First aid measures, for victims of gas attacks, were studied in detail.

The class will receive final instruction in this course at the meeting next Wednesday night.

REDBIRDS' ERNIE WHITE BLANKS PITTSBURGH

Bucs Bow, 4-0, With Four Hits

Ray Sanders, Cooper Lead St. Louis Attack On Ken Heintzelman

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ernie White, last year's freshman star of the Cardinals who has had difficulty getting started this season, blanked Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 0, on six hits yesterday as the Cards clipped a half a game off the lead of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers.

Troubled with a sore arm early in the season, White had won only two games against four defeats prior to yesterday's contest. He had perfect control, striking out two batters and failing to issue a single base on balls.

Pete Coscarart, who led off in the sixth inning with a double, was the only runner to reach third base on White.

The Cards bunched three singles, a sacrifice and a long fly to score two runs in the third off Ken Heintzelman, who has shut out the Cards twice this year.

Walker Cooper led off in the fourth inning with a double to left and scored on Ray Sanders' single to center. A walk and two singles off Aldon Wilkie produced the final run in the eighth.

EFFECTIVE REDUCING—At the U. S. Navy pre-flight school here, Cadet Gerald Fink of Chicago, shows Cadet Joe Kapsch of Gary, Ind., how different he looked after losing 35 pounds in 17 days. Fink was 35 pounds overweight 2 1/2 weeks before he was to take the physical examination for naval aviation cadets. Determined to become a navy flier, Fink lost 25 pounds in two weeks by going on a daily diet of 3 1/2 pints of tomato juice, milk, orange juice, and other liquids and running eight miles every morning. With three days and 10 pounds to go, Fink went to a gymnasium and had the remainder to his avoirdupois steamed and pounded off. He reduced from 205 to 170 pounds, the weight limit for his height.

Auker Annexes 10th Victory By Whitewashing Tigers, 12-0

Detroit Gets Only 5 Hits From Browns' Underarm Thrower

DETROIT (AP)—Elden Auker, veteran submarine ball specialist, became the first American league pitcher to win ten games when he blanked the Detroit Tigers on five hits in a twilight contest last night while the St. Louis Browns were rapping out 14 for a 12 to 0 victory.

Auker permitted only one Tiger to reach third base as he beat Ernie Bonham of the New York Yankees and Jim Bagby of the Cleveland Indians, both of whom have won nine, to the tenth victory. Auker has lost six.

Indians Knock Out Orval Grove to Win 7-2 Over Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—The first seven Cleveland batters that faced Orval Grove, Chicago White Sox pitcher, in the first inning yesterday scored to give Al Smith more than the margin he needed for his seventh victory, 7 to 2. It was the Indians' third straight triumph in the series.

Jake Wade, veteran southpaw picked up by the Chicagoans as a free agent a month ago, made his first extensive appearance in replacing Grove before a man had been retired in the first inning. He held the Indians to three hits while accomplishing 27 outs, with no runs charged against him.

Al Smith, pitching seven hit ball, shut out the Sox until the ninth.

Competitive Golf Sincerely Misses Miss Patty Berg

By CHARLES DUNKLEY (Pinch hitting for Whitney Martin)

CHICAGO (Wide World)—The women's golf scene hasn't been the same this year. Cancellation of the national and the trans-Mississippi tournaments had a lot to do with it. But something more important was missing. It was Patty Berg.

For nine years the American women's golfing parade has been brightened and glamorized by a round-faced, freckled, chubby girl who isn't glamorous at all. There was something about a tournament where Patty Berg played that made it topnotch. Just as Bobby Jones once stood for the best in men's circles, so Patty was miss golf herself.

An automobile accident last winter outside Corsicana, Tex., put Patty in a hospital with a compound fracture of her left knee, now twice its normal size, and fans all over the country wondered if they'd ever again see the little girl in the brown tam over a golf ball in competitive play.

Today Patty is walking without the aid of crutches or cane on which she depended for months after 14 weeks in bed. On the practice fairways at the women's western open in Chicago last week she stood up to the tee and whacked the ball with a fearsome swing that once paralyzed her opponents before they ever reached the first green.

She didn't play in the western open. She wanted to, but at the last minute realized she wasn't yet ready for the test.

The brutal truth is—she never may be able to play competitive golf again.

Patty's fine hand nevertheless was visible in the tournament. Every morning found her at the practice tees coaching one girl and a few minutes later giving tips to the same girl's rival. She couldn't follow a two-some, so she remained in the Elmhurst country club lounge, talking golf, praising winners and losers alike.

"I don't know why people should make so much fuss over a girl's injured knee," she told people who came to sympathize over her mishap.

"Why, when I think of those boys at Pearl Harbor and in the Philippines, and the two boys from my own street who have gone down at sea since the war began, I'm thankful I have both legs and don't worry about one banged-up knee."

When Patty was injured, she was on her way with Helen Dettweiler to play a war relief exhibition round at Beaumont. That's how Patty occupied herself after she turned professional in July, 1940,—competing in many matches for war relief and the army and navy funds. In between times she earned her living giving golf clinics at high schools and colleges.

"After all," she said, "golf did so much for me that I wanted to do all I could to help golf."

Patty already had been a great tonic to golf in the seven years before she turned professional. Her record stands unrivaled—competition in 60 major tournaments, victory in 29. She was runner-up in 14 others. She was named three straight times to the United States Curtis team. In 1938 she was voted the outstanding woman athlete of the year and the outstanding woman golfer.

Patty's mother died on Christmas day, 1939. Her dad, a Minneapolis, Minn., grain dealer, was the first to interest Patty in golf at the age of 15. She was the tomboy of the neighborhood and always played games with the boys, rarely with the girls. She even played sandlot football just for the fun of it.

When Patty is home at Minneapolis, she serves on the city's committee on physical fitness. A great all-around athlete in her teens, the 24-year old Patty still doesn't drink or smoke. She's still miss golf, but in a deeper sense. In a nation at war and suddenly conscious of its people's health and vigor, the famed redhead wants tremendously to do her part.

Japs Swallow More of Vital China Railway

CHUNGKING (AP)—The Japanese have all but closed their giant pincers on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, the Chinese high command indicated last night, but an army spokesman denied a Tokyo announcement that the entire strategic 450-mile line was in Japanese hands.

The high command communique said the Japanese opened a new phase of their railway drive Monday after they had been held for virtually no gains for a fortnight, with Kweiiki on the west and Shangjiao on the east—both in northeastern Kiangsi—marking the limits of a 50-mile gap between their two converging columns.

From Kweiiki the eastbound column plunged 18 miles to seize Iyang while the westbound force fought its way across the Sin river southwest of Shangjiao. That was the situation of Monday and Tuesday, according to the communique, with the enemy's pincers points less than 25 miles apart and pressing hard on the bitterly resisting Chinese.

(The Japanese command for central China announced Wednesday that the two columns had wiped out the Kweiiki-Shangjiao gap, had met at Hengfeng, almost exactly halfway and "consequently the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway has been placed under complete Japanese control.")

Assured of Aid
Government speakers already assured the members yesterday at the opening of the debate that American dive-bombers, more heavy tanks, and British anti-tank guns were reaching the hard-pressed imperial defenders of Egypt.

But the members continued to debate far past midnight, and the session was enlivened particularly at one point when John (Jock) McGovern, the fiery independent laborite, snapped:

"If I had to choose between Hitler and the prime minister the choice would be a very hard one."

While the length of this session could not be divulged, the previous record in January of ten hours and 20 minutes easily was eclipsed.

Winston Churchill's minister of production, Oliver Lyttleton, and the prime minister's long-time supporter, Lord Beaverbrook, like wise confidently bucked the tide of recrimination from critics of all parties and defended both quantity and quality of the weapons with which the British eighth army failed to stop the German African corps in Libya and western Egypt.

Prof. H. J. Thornton Speaks After Parade

Explains Great Need To Defend America By Buying War Bonds

PARADE—

students, dressed in their new summer uniforms, carried automatic rifles, M1 rifles, .22 caliber springfields, four machine guns and two mortar guns. Some of the cadet officers were also equipped with revolvers.

Butchers, bakers, grocers, waiters, cooks, clerks, and many others marched in the section of the parade designated for employees of local firms. Workers in the United States post office and nurses aides from University and Mercy hospitals also took part.

Other parade participants included the Iowa City Grenadiers drum and bugle corps, the Johnson county 4-H club, the Scribblers' Service club, the local boy scout group and the American Red Cross.

A group of 10 planes from the Shaw Aircraft company soared over the business district in "V" formation several times during the afternoon.

The parade proceeded west to Capitol from its starting site; north on Capitol to Washington past the reviewing stand to Dubuque; north on Dubuque to Jefferson; west on Jefferson to Clinton and south on Clinton to the speaking platform at Clinton and Washington.

Speakers

Occupying the speakers platform were President Virgil M. Hancher; Capt. David C. Hanrahan, commander of the pre-flight school; Lieut. Col. Willard Smith of the Prof. H. J. Thornton of the university history department; Mayor Henry F. Willenbrock; H. S. Ivie, chairman of the "Retailers for Victory" drive in Iowa City and Don Mallet, university student counselor.

The Principal address on "The Civilian's Part in the War" was given by Professor Thornton.

"Our business people know that the nation has set itself to buy from its government one billion dollars worth of war stamps and bonds in July," he said. "In achieving this tremendous selling goal, the retailers of America and of Johnson county will give aid and comfort to our government and fighting men, and confusion and damnation to our enemies."

Professor Thornton declared that the American people are struggling now for their very lives because Germans, Japs and Italians are pledged to slay as many Americans as they possibly can.

"And we are fighting to protect our homeland from invasion and defilement," he continued. "The Japanese have boasted they will dictate the peace at Washington. Hitler longs to march his hordes across the borders of Latin America and rain death on our eastern cities."

The speaker said that Americans are also fighting to preserve democracy, "a word which has become hackneyed by much lip usage and slight heart feeling."

"In this battle some will bear arms; all the rest will fight at home," Professor Thornton concluded. "The weapons of our warfare are not the bombs and bullets which we would gladly use but, the bonds which we can use."

Ivie acted as master of ceremonies. Brief addresses were given by President Hancher, Captain Hanrahan, Lieutenant Colonel Smith and Mayor Willenbrock. Mallet led the group singing of "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Iowa City stores were closed between 1 and 3 p.m. yesterday in order that employees could participate in the parade.

Throughout the month of July, war stamps will be available at all retail stores. To stimulate the sale of stamps, clerks will ask customers to take part of their change in war stamps at the end of each transaction.

Civil Service Changes Requirements in Four Fields of War Work

The United States civil service commission has modified requirements in four types of scientific positions, in an effort to secure additional qualified persons for civilian work in federal war agencies.

Appointments are to be made immediately in the fields of metallurgy, physics, meteorology and chemistry. Appointees will work with specific problems in one of these fields. Most of these problems will be connected with some phase of the war program. Salaries for the positions range from $2,600 to $5,600 a year.

College teaching in metallurgy, chemistry and meteorology is allowed as professional experience for any of the positions, provided that all other requirements for the grade under consideration have been met.

No written test will be given. Applicants will be judged from their experience, education and training. Applications will be accepted until the needs of the service have been met. They must be filed with the civil service commission in Washington, D. C.

U.S. NEEDS US STRONG

Help the "Retailers For Victory" Drive ... Take Part of Your Change in War Savings Stamps

Helping To Keep Iowa City Healthy is Our War Job

... and we're doing it in spite of transportation difficulties and short crops in some sections.

Feeding America is one of the most important tasks of the entire war, and we are proud to be part of this great effort.

Fruits and vegetables will play a tremendous part in keeping America fit, and right here in the middle west, where some of the most important war work is being done, we are serving in the ranks, faithfully and ceaselessly. We'll do our job to the best of our ability and resources.

We pledge 100% co-operation.

FROM EACH OF US—THAT EXTRA "SOMETHING"

Sure, we can use the car less and save rubber ... we can get along on less sugar ... BUT, let's really do something BIG! Let's all buy MORE BONDS AND STAMPS and put the Retailers' Victory Drive 'way over the top in Iowa City.
