British Halt Axis in Egypt

'Axis Forces Rapidly Withdraw' From Engagements With British

Reinforced Imperial Troops Halt Rommel Advance
Forces 62 Miles From Alexandria
With Hand-to-Hand Fighting

CAIRO (AP)—British forces last night slashed at Axis Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's rebuffed forces on the northern end of the El Alamein line, 62 miles west of Alexandria, capturing numerous prisoners and destroying a number of guns which the axis troops were trying to dig in on fixed positions.
(The British radio, quoting a Cairo dispatch, said tanks, artillery and British infantry moved against the axis late in the day but the enemy "withdrew rapidly from all engagements." The broadcast, heard in New York by CBS, did not elaborate on the action.)
The rumble of heavy guns could be heard in Alexandria, but the fact that the fighting kept more or less static indicated that reinforced imperial forces had brought the axis advance to a halt, at least temporarily.
Dispatches from the front said bayonet and hand-grenade fighting continued throughout Thursday night while most of the tanks were withdrawn from the battle for overhauling and servicing.

U.S. to Have Sugar 'Bonus' Of 2 Pounds

Industrial, Institutional
Users Get Increase
Of 10 to 25 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sugar "bonus" of two pounds for every ration card holder, purchasable between July 10 and August 22, was announced by the office of price administration last night because of "somewhat heavier shipments" of sugar into this country than anticipated.
In addition, institutional users will get 75 per cent of their normal sugar consumption for September and October instead of the present 50 per cent, and industrial users will get 80 per cent instead of 70 per cent.
Householders may obtain the dividend allotment by presenting ration stamp No. 7 to the grocery store any time in the six-week period. The bonus is in addition to the regular two-pound monthly allotments obtainable with card No. 5, and with card No. 6.
Price Administrator Leon Henderson, in announcing OPA's decision, said it represented a "conservative gamble" on the likelihood of sugar supplies continuing to arrive in their present volume.
OPA has been under pressure from several quarters to boost the basic allowance of one-half pound a week—or two pounds every four weeks under the recently altered coupon system—because sugar warehouses in some parts of the country were jammed almost to capacity.
The bonus plan represented a compromise which will relieve the warehouses of about 200,000 tons of sugar, but will not commit OPA to larger rations as a settled policy.

Rommel Reorganizes

Reorganizing after their first repulse since the British lost Tobruk June 21, the main body of Rommel's armored forces was still west of the El Alamein defenses. There was no indication they had renewed their powerful drive against Alexandria and the Nile delta.
The concentration points for the axis armies after the battering they received in their first all-out onslaught yesterday against El Alamein were three or four miles to the west of the British defenses of that anchor at the mouth of the Qattara bottleneck.
(Berlin dispatches to Bern, without confirmation from any other sources, said German and Italian troops were within 15 to 20 miles of Alexandria, Friday, that El Alamein was considered won, and that the British were retreating to the Nile.)
Unofficially, the success of the British in holding their line was attributed to two obvious factors:
1. The arrival of the promised reinforcements, and 2. General Sir Claude Auchinleck's crafty encircling attack on Rommel's rear when the axis was using its customary tactic of attacking when the slanting rays of the setting sun were in the opposition's eyes.
In addition to these factors, the British hope of eventual success of saving Egypt and the middle east was pinned on the facts that Rommel's supply lines, ever harassed by American and British planes, are weakened by extreme length, and that the axis has come into tight quarters in the corridor between Qattara and the sea where long planned British maneuvers may be put into practice.

23 Lost as U-Boat Sinks U.S. Vessel in Costa Rican Harbor

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—A low harbor the upper deck remained above the surface.
At least 23 men were reported last night lost in the torpedoing of a United States freighter by a German submarine which sneaked into the Puerto Limon harbor and fired three torpedoes at the vessel.
Officials at the Costa Rican port 220 miles northwest of the Panama canal said that the 23 men were known to have been in the hold of the vessel, the 3,305-ton San Pablo, which was unloading when she was attacked.
A large part of those aboard the ship fled ashore but the 23 were unable to get out.
The San Pablo was hit two hours after she docked. She sank within an hour but because of the shall-

SUEZ CANAL TO BE DESTROYED IF AXIS GAINS IT

Decisive Battle of World War Will Come in France--De Gaulle

F.R. Assails Tactics Used By Farm Bloc

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt bluntly warned the congressional farm bloc yesterday that the people would hold it strictly accountable if it prevented production of an adequate supply of meat for the nation's soldiers, sailors and war workers.
With an accompanying condemnation of "pressure group tactics," the chief executive endeavored to break the long deadlocked issue of selling government holding of surplus grain at less than parity prices for the purpose of feeding livestock.
The issue is bound up in the $880,000,000 appropriation bill for the agriculture department. The house wrote into that measure a prohibition against such sales. The senate, at the administration's request, voted to permit the sale of 125,000,000 bushels of wheat below parity, for the purpose of booming livestock production.
"The authorization to sell some of selling government holdings of grain for feeding purposes at 85 per cent of the parity price for corn is essential if the armed services and the civilian population are to be assured adequate supplies of pork, beef, milk, chicken and eggs at prices which will neither break through the ceiling nor require excessive subsidies," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Declares Axis Army Faces Final Struggle In French Invasion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Uneasy and hungry Europe was told by the Free French Leader Gen. Charles De Gaulle, last night that the decisive battle of the war would be fought in France, and as he spoke the German masters of the continent were hastily reinforcing their coasts against invasion.
The French general declared the axis, despite its initial success, was further from victory than ever and that the allied forces facing Hitler were five times greater than they were a year ago.
"It is a great thing in war to have won the first battle," he said, "but it is the last one which will decide everything. It will take place in France. Let every Frenchman prepare."
Stockholm reports said the Germans had greatly reinforced their occupation garrisons in Norway and Denmark and were enforcing blackouts. Danes were barred from the beaches and new "invasion alarms" were being practiced in Belgium.
As the Russians engaged the mass of the German army, the Volga Commune added its voice to the second front threat with this resolution.
"Becoming more and more the arsenal of the democratic countries, the United States is actively preparing to participate with the Soviet Union and Great Britain in immediate fights against Hitler's armies. The ever increasing RAF raids against German industrial centers in which the Americans shall soon participate are necessary for successful actions of land troops and the navies which undoubtedly will follow.
The severe food pinch in Hitler's "new Europe"—aggravated by the Anglo-American blockade—brought new rationing or orders to produce more foods in Germany, Italy, Hungary and Switzerland.

Bremen Takes 4th Pounding In One Week

LONDON (AP)—British and Canadian pilots left the German U-boat nest of Bremen a mosaic of flame early yesterday after the fourth powerful attack in a week.
At the cost of 13 aircraft, the city was bombed in fine night weather, and pilots' reports revealed the result "the most satisfying" of any of the four assaults.
Some of the last pilots to reach the target said fires were burning so fiercely that "it was like aiming at a patchwork quilt."
Simultaneous raids were made by lighter forces on air fields in the low countries and on shipping off the Netherlands coast.
Bremen was bombed by more than 1,000 planes the night of June 26, and again on June 27, June 29 and last night by forces averaging about 300 aircraft.
RAF fighters shot down two German bombers during an attempted raid on the English north midlands industrial area early last night, it was authoritatively announced.

Navy's 70-Ton Flying Boat Completes First Successful Test Trip

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lifting her giant shape to the sky with the ease of a tiny trainer, the navy's 70-ton dreadnaught "Mars" yesterday completed her first official test flight.
The Glenn L. Martin ship which is the world's biggest flying boat, made a 30-minute maiden flight as successful as her first try several months ago was disappointing. During her first water test last December, one engine tore loose when a propeller broke.

War's Somber Shadow Shades Nation's 166th Fourth of July Holiday

Men in Armed Forces Carry On as Laborers Work at War Tasks
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With American fighting men in arms in lands and seas around the globe, the 132,000,000 men, women and children of the "home front" gather today to celebrate the nation's 166th Independence day solemnly and fervently.
Aussies Join Yanks
In Australia, 24-hours ahead of the United States in time, citizens joined the "Yanks" down under to mark the Fourth of July with sports events, dances, singing contests and oratory.
Observance of this country's historic holiday, born during an earlier war for freedom, was scheduled in several "good neighbor" nations to the south, including Cuba, Ecuador and Argentina.
At home, war weighed heavily upon the traditional celebration, and production needs kept hundreds of thousands of workers at their factory tasks.
For those free to celebrate the holiday, however, communities throughout the country staged "safe and sane" programs in keeping with the times.
Along resort trails in the middle west and into the mountain and beach playgrounds of the far west rolled millions of motor cars filled with families on picnic jaunts.
In the gas-rationed 17 eastern states, Fourth of July motorists were reduced by more than half, while plane, train and bus travel routes were clogged with travelers seeking an outlet to the great outdoors.
On countless parade grounds, on village streets and greens, soldiers, sailors and marines paraded with civilian defense wardens, auxiliary firemen and police.

Key City's Defense Major Factor In Slowing Nazi Spring Drive

MOSCOW, Saturday (AP)—Sevastopol, Russia's great Crimean naval base and fortress, has fallen a mass of ruins, Soviet Russia officially announced today, but its magnificent defense was hailed as a major factor in holding up the German spring offensive and cost the axis upwards of 300,000 soldiers killed and wounded.
The Soviets announced that the Germans lost 150,000 casualties, including 60,000 killed, in the last 25 days of the siege while the Russian losses in that same period were 11,355 killed and 29,390 wounded or missing.
"German troops suffered huge losses, getting nothing but ruins, the special communique added.
It disclosed that the troops, commanders and wounded men were evacuated from the city, which was yielded to the axis last Wednesday.
"The military significance of the defense of Sevastopol is huge," the communique declared after summarizing the cost in men and materiel. "It pinned down a great number of German and Rumanian troops, frustrated and messed up the plans of the German command.
"The iron steadfastness of the Sevastopol defenders has been one of the most important reasons holding up the so-called spring offensive of the Germans. The Germans have lost time and suffered huge losses in manpower."
In the last 25 days of siege, the communique said, the Germans threw 300,000 troops against the battered defenses of the city and used more than 400 tanks and 900 planes in their furious assaults.
6 Divisions Smashed
The Soviets said their men smashed in those fearful last days six German infantry divisions, three Rumanian divisions, one German tank division, an independent mechanized brigade, four independent regiments, and a large number of units from other forces.
The Russians said the Germans also lost in 25 days 250 tanks, 300 planes and 250 guns.
The regular midnight communique announced the red army also had destroyed hundreds of German tanks and thousands of Nazi infantrymen in bitter fighting now in progress on the Kursk front, 280 miles south of Moscow where the main battle appeared to have turned.
The Russians said their own losses in the Sevastopol battle, in addition to the dead, were 21,090 wounded and 8,300 missing between June 6 and July 3. Thirty tanks, 77 planes and 300 guns were reported destroyed.
The communique said Soviet infantry and sailors, cut off from land communications and fighting with almost no protection from the air, "displayed miracles of courage and bravery in the task of defending Sevastopol."
The last-ditch defenders of the big Black sea fortress evacuated Sevastopol after an heroic eight-month siege, the Russians acknowledged. Presumably the gallant but decimated garrison still is fighting outside the city in a narrow corner of the peninsula.
The greatest action however rolled along the Kursk sector over a wide front where the Germans threw waves of men against the red peasant troops in an effort to break through toward the Caucasus and separate the southern and central Soviet armies.
Of this action which extended as far south as Volchansk, the post midnight communique said:
"During July 3 in the Kursk direction our troops repulsed big and fierce tank attacks of the German fascist troops. The enemy is suffering enormous losses. In one day's fighting the enemy lost over 250 tanks and 15,000 officers and men killed.
"In the Belgorod-Volchansk direction our troops repelled enemy attacks."

Superior Guns Tell in Egypt

Nazi 88-Millimeter Long Range Weapon Out-Shoots British
By EDWARD KENNEDY
AT THE EGYPTIAN FRONT. (AP)—Fierce fighting raged about here overnight as the great battle for Egypt was pressed relentlessly by the British and axis African corps.
Most tanks were pulled out of the conflict for oiling and greasing, and the big guns were most silent after dusk for want of light to aim. But the men continued to fight, because the stamina of a man is greater than that of a tank or cannon.
This means that the bayonet and hand grenade came into its own in the moonlight.
Too Powerful
The nemesis of allied armor is the German 88-millimeter gun whose semi-rocket shells can go through the plates of any tank here if it is fired at close enough range. Since its range is long, it can reach the tanks before their shells can strike the gun.
The sector of desert fighting is 25 miles wide stretching from the Mediterranean to the Qattara depression. It holds the key to the fate of Egypt. Marshal Erwin Rommel's force is delivering sledgehammer blows to the allied position which blocks his way to the Nile, and at the same time is fighting an attack on his flank.

Army to Call 1-Bs in August

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the first draft of selective service registrants classed other than 1-A, the rapidly expanding army on August 1 will begin calling men with minor defects who have been heretofore deferred and placed in class 1-B.
They will be assigned to "limited duty" in which their physical defects will be no serious handicap.
An army announcement yesterday said inductions under the new policy would be limited for the time being to those "able to bring to the army a useful vocation which was followed in civil life."
The 1-B draftees will be ordered to corps area service, the war department organization or other such posts. By taking over these jobs, they will free other physically fit soldiers for assignment to combat units.

Citizen's Defense Corps
A new class for the instruction of Nurses Aides will be started by the citizen's defense corps as soon as the minimum enrollment requirement is reached. Applications are urgently needed now.

War and Economic Dislocation--

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Extent of Problem Becomes More Apparent in New U.S. Surveys

WASHINGTON—Revolutionary extent of our economic dislocation due to the war is only now beginning to be fully apparent in detailed surveys conducted by government and private organizations here.

Getting richest are the old depressed national railroads, inter-city buses and local street car lines in defense boom areas. They never ran at capacity before. Even the Erie railroad paid a dividend the other day for the first time in history.

The rubber and gasoline saving program has taxed street and bus systems in many cities so severely that shoppers have been asked to stagger their hours outside the rush period, and in Washington all downtown stores are remaining open one night a week. Taxi cab drivers are similarly enjoying unprecedented prosperity in boom towns.

Defense industries represent the next most profitable phase of war economy, but their condition is full of contrasts. Some small manufacturers, who never did well, are enjoying amazing success making small defense gadgets, like noise filters for tank radios, special gun parts, and such.

Bulk of big business is in gigantic operations, but profits have not generally been increased, due to limitations specified in government contracts, the excess profits and other profits taxes. Many dividends are down.

And manufacturers who have not been able to convert to war business (largely metal shaping, casting, ornamental chromium, copper, brass makers) are going into retirement. It is believed around 70,000 small manufacturers may fold their cards within the next year, which would be roughly one-third of the manufacturing units of the country.

The farmer is doing well. His income will be up $2,000,000,000 this year, an increase of about 20 per cent. He is buying more and more from mail order houses and in small nearby towns, due to the gas and rubber pinch. In fact some experts here believe the small town may be restored to its pre-automobile dignity in American life before this war is over.

The only organizations which will get rich and stay there, however, are the union labor groups. Size of their large income increase is secret to them, but they are not subject to taxes and hence will not pay their war profits back to the government.

Some carpenters who never made more than $35 a week in their lives in rural areas in the midwest are getting $100 a week. Sons just out of high school are in some sections getting more money than their fathers for unskilled work in booming defense areas.

But both real estate and building industries are feeling a painful pinch. Even in boom areas, no one wants to buy; everyone wants to rent.

Defense building is being handled by a comparatively small number of large contractors. The little builder was practically thrown out by a shortage of materials.

Small stores, handling one class of goods, are beginning to be forced out (radios, phonographs, hardware, household appliances, wearing apparel). Also being eliminated are the small marginal stores which cannot get stocks.

The department stores, however, have ample stocks. In certain instances goods are being sold at less than the wholesale cost of reproduction (New York area report).

The great bulk of vacant stores on main street so far, however, are those formerly occupied by auto dealers.

Food and drug stores are doing well in most communities, but in some rural areas, a large number of people have left for the army or defense jobs, and these sections are suffering.

Wall Street is shot. The amusements businesses offer contrasts as wide as industry. Those in boom areas, which do not depend on motor trade, are profiting, the others are losing out. Seaside beach resorts are living from hand to mouth, and so are the summer vacation places. Summer theaters are dead.

Doctors are scarce, due to army calls upon the profession. Those who are remaining in civilian service are able to collect their bills. Lawyers, on the other hand, are suffering.

The government has discovered more lawyers have come to Washington in search of jobs than any other class. A few big ones, handling large contracts, have profited enormously, however.

The soft drink industry is staggering as far as the public market is concerned, but some of the largest concerns are secretly using their machinery in war business under government contracts. There were about 1,000,000 salesmen on the road in the country, perhaps are not half that many now.

Life insurance business is not good, because the white collar people who buy it generally are hurt deeply by the war economy, while the skilled workers whose income is being increased, generally trust to social security.

In one group, there are 5,000,000 persons employed in state, city and local governments in this country (mostly teachers, police, firemen) who are facing a 15 per cent increase in the cost of living without increases in income.

Some businesses are allowing war restrictions to cut overhead. Restaurants give you much less sugar but do not charge any less.

Delivery services around Washington have virtually been abandoned. Milk dairies now deliver only every other day. Gas dealers cut their overhead with the 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. closing and elimination of Sunday service hereabouts, but the cost of gas has gone up more than 3 cents since the first of the year.

The oil industry was a booming war baby at the start, but has been in depression since the shortage of tankers. Some authorities expect the little independents will be crowded out.

Airlines lost their booming profits when the government seized half their planes. Cleaning shops cannot get fluid for cleaning in the east.

Undertakers, however, are doing about the same business as usual.

U.S. Congressional Committees Begin Streamlining of Budget

Our government is going in for streamlining the national budget in a big way. Yesterday congress abolished the Civilian Conservation Corps and greatly reduced the financial allotments to the Works Progress Administration and the National Youth Administration. Here is proof that Uncle Sam means business when he says that expenditures not relating to the war must be curtailed.

There has been some criticism of congress for throwing as many as 500,000 persons out of work or losing government aid by this new economizing plan. Such criticism certainly is not justified. Defense jobs will welcome a large number of workers to fill many vital posts while at the same time, these men who suddenly find themselves unemployed will make up a good part of our army and navy.

Last year the money spent on CCC, WPA and NYA amounted to about $1,138,000,000. This year the amount has been reduced to $340,000,000. The president asked $78,000,000 for the CCC unit this year but congress would not allow a penny. WPA must get along with about one-third of its 1941-42 appropriation and the NYA allotment has been whittled down to one-half.

The purpose of the three organizations was to create work for the unemployed and began during the depression years. Now the unemployment problem has been temporarily solved by the war which presents a greater and more expensive problem. We will buy bonds, we will be taxed and we will make many personal sacrifices during the war but we may rest assured that our money and effort will be put to its best use by our legislative body.

Once Garden Spot of Black Sea Now—The Port of Wounded Giants

The power of destruction which the Germans have concentrated on Sevastopol has been described as surpassing anything yet loosed in this war. Bombs have fallen on the city at the rate of more than 1,000 a day, and the terror has been increased by the steady pounding of heavy artillery.

Almost the entire city—once the proud beauty of the Black Sea, with its houses of blue and green painted balconies and its streets and parks lined with blooming chestnut trees—is in ruins.

Sevastopol kept its chin up through it all—fought back hard, defiant, its banners flying.

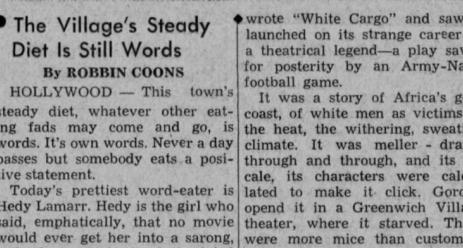

Bitter fights with knife, bayonet, and pistol often raged for hours between the invaders and defenders along its narrow cobble-stone streets.

"Fire upon our positions . . ." A gallant red army battery, hopelessly surrounded by the Germans wired this dramatic message to its own artillery. And under murderous assault they held out for days, dying to the last man rather than surrender.

We said ONCE a proud beauty. Sevastopol, in all its ruins, was never more proud, more beautiful, than it is today.

The Village's Steady Diet Is Still Words

HOLLYWOOD—This town's steady diet, whatever other eating fads may come and go, is words. It's own words. Never a day passes but somebody eats a positive statement.

Today's prettiest word-eater is Hedy Lamarr. Hedy is the girl who said, emphatically, that no movie would ever get her into a sarong, a slendang, or any form of related drapery. And Hedy is the girl who today is playing Tondeloyo, the fiery little viper of tropic passion, in "White Cargo."

"Ah!" said mercurial Hedy, flashing a brilliant white smile through the copper dusk of her make-up. "Ah! somebody is always remembering what people say last month, or two months ago!"

In other words the gorgeous Lamarr had changed her mind. She was playing Tondeloyo because she liked it, and she was holding no punches. Her Tondeloyo would be a wicked, very wicked little girl, with a heart as dark as her skin, and there would be none of Hedy Lamarr in her. Hedy would be an actress, all the way.

What Hedy is wearing, aside from a generous coating of copper-colored grease-paint, is not a sarong or a slendang. Metro has christened it a "lurong"—tribute to Lamarr's allure, to Lamour's sarong—but Leon Gordon says it's just an elongated loin-cloth, a loose skirt. Gordon ought to know because nearly 20 years ago he broth to take away the sand you dip them in melted butter and eat them. When the clams were all gone I drained the butter into the broth and drank it.

Then there came a broiled lobster, with shrimps, potatoes, fresh from Maine's coldest waters, and after this was disposed of the waiter placed before me the half of a broiled chicken. The coffee was brewed on the table in a glass vessel fed by a blue alcohol flame. There were five different kinds of hot breads, including cornbread made of yellow cornmeal, which is less refined but tastier than white. I will not even mention the olive and celery and salad accessories, nor the dessert.

Later, two tugs broke the almost glassy surface of the river, heading down stream. They were the only form of maritime life to interrupt the stillness of the scene. You do not see shipping from the Riviera or from any point along the Hudson as you always have in the past. Even the river boats are few and far between. Traffic is almost non-existent. By now a blue twilight had descended. Across the river the myriad lights blinked on in millions of windows. A waiter came by with a little tray of coconut cookies. He stepped to the windows, looked far below to where the coons were tumbling about the rocks. He tossed the cookies to the coons and then went away somewhere, probably back to the kitchen. I ambled outside and got into my car and drove slowly home through the warm summer night.

We sat in the twilight, overlooking the river, and dined on a shore dinner that went something like this:

There was, first, a glass of dry sherry. Then I had a plate of fresh crab meat. After this came little neck clams that were steamed, and after you dip them in the

Interpreting The War News

Success of British in Egypt Bolsters London, U.S. Hopes

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Wide World War Analyst

British success in stemming the axis drive in Egypt, momentarily at least, and throwing Rommel's legion back for the first time since they lurched across the Libyan-Egyptian border aroused a surge of hope in London and Washington that the backbone of the attack had been broken.

If that proved true, the corridor between the Mediterranean and the Qattara depression could become an axis death trap instead of a field of victory. There was no indication, however, that the decisive moment in the struggle had been reached. Rommel is too well proven a warrior, too dangerous a foe man to justify any belief that he has spent his force and now must run for it.

General Auchinleck has every reason to respect Rommel's capacity for swift decisions and prompt execution of surprise moves. The British commander, now in personal direction at the front, has been schooled by bitter experience.

Nevertheless, British success in halting and outflanking the attack on El Alamein to compel even a slight withdrawal by the foe is highly encouraging. It probably means that British reinforcements have arrived; and that to some extent British tank losses in that tragic battle of Libya of June 13 have now been replaced.

However, if Rommel fell back under the British flanking threat only to reorganize, refuel and strike again, it means only that the first skirmish of the battle of Alexandria terminated in British favor.

If he fell back, too exhausted or short of ammunition and supplies to strike again immediately, and Auchinleck saw and seized his opportunity to take the offensive, quite a different situation would be presented and one filled with glittering possibilities for the British.

Hours should serve to reveal the true pattern of the battle in the Egyptian corridor. With British and American planes battering at his supply lines it is obvious that Rommel has boldly attempted to break through to Alexandria virtually carrying his supplies on his own back. He can have no assurance of prompt deliveries from the rear. His force of tanks, trucks and men must be very largely self contained for fuel, food, water and ammunition. Some supplies could reach him by air but hardly enough for so large a force.

That is the great British hope of turning a grueling and still all but explained defeat by inferior forces into a smashing victory, perhaps wrenching all north Africa from the axis grip in due course.

Symphony Orchestra to Give Concert Wednesday

To Play Compositions By Rimsky-Korsakoff, Tchaikowsky, Mahler

Opening Performance To Be Given in Main Lounge of Iowa Union

The University Summer Session Symphony orchestra under the baton of Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp will play compositions by Tchaikowsky, Mahler and Rimsky-Korsakoff in the opening concert of the summer season Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Two of the works of Gustav Mahler will be offered in this concert, the first in the university's fourth annual fine arts festival. Prof. Herald Stark will sing "Songs of a Wayfarer" in four parts, and the orchestra will play "Adagietto from Symphony No. 5" for strings and harp.

The orchestra will open the program with Tchaikowsky's "Symphony No. 2, opus 17, in G minor," in four movements; andante sostenuto, allegro vivo; andantino marziale, quasi moderato; allegro molto vivace, and moderato assai, allegro vivo.

Rimsky-Korsakoff
Closing number on the concert program is Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Capriccio Espagnol." The five movements of this composition are alborada, variaciones, alborada, scena e canto gitano and fandango asturiano.

While working on his second symphony during the winter of 1872-73, Tchaikowsky heeded the advice of his friends in the nationalistic group — Balakirew, Borodin, Cui, Moussorgsky and Rimsky-Korsakoff—and wrote this composition in a more conscious nationalistic style than he had employed previously.

Revised Symphony
Tchaikowsky was always a severe critic of his own work, and in 1874 he revised the second symphony. The revised edition, however, retained the finale which was based on an authentic folk-melody from Little Russia, and shocked critics because of its desecration of the sacrosanct symphonic form. Many critics of today believe that the second symphony is as full of Russian folk-idiom and imagery as Glinka, foreshadowing much that Rimsky-Korsakoff and even Shostakovich have been credited with "originating" later, and are, therefore, convinced that this work is heard too infrequently.

Mahler composed both music and text of "Songs of a Wayfarer" in 1884, and revised and published them in 1897. The composition consists of four songs, designed to be sung in sequence.

Monumental Work
Commentators have called Mahler's fifth symphony a monumental work of great dramatic intensity. The adagietto, the movement of the symphony which the orchestra will play Wednesday night, is a brief and exquisite expression of contemplative serenity. In the complete symphony, it is the psychological turning point in the progress from darkness to light. Rimsky-Korsakoff, in his autobiography, goes to some pains to assure posterity that the "Spanish Caprice" "is undoubtedly a purely external piece, but vividly brilliant for all that." While conservative listeners will undoubtedly find the "Spanish Caprice" entertaining, they may at the same time find themselves "intoxicated" by Rimsky-Korsakoff's active treatment of the Spanish themes.

'Thunder Rock' Opens Monday At SUI Theater

"Thunder Rock," the third offering of the summer season of plays, will open at the University theater Monday.

In this modern fantasy, playwright Robert Ardrey presents a cynical newspaperman trying to regain his faith in an upset world. Ardrey uses ghosts of the past and modern thinking to solve the problem.

"Thunder Rock" was received enthusiastically by theater-goers in London in 1940 because, according to a critic, "It said what London most wanted to listen to in the dread summer of 1940."

"Thunder Rock" is a play of young earnestness and enthusiasm written by a young man.

Special lighting effects will be used to establish moods, flashing from the realistic to the ethereal. All the action takes place in an interior setting of a lighthouse in northern Lake Michigan.

Ace Righthander Cops 8th Victory of Season; Game Under Protest

Rizzo, Dolph Camilli Lead Dodger Attack Against Six Pitchers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Whitlow Wyatt warmed up for his part in the major league all-star game by pitching the Brooklyn Dodgers to an 8-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils yesterday, allowing only five hits in registering his eighth victory against two defeats. The Dodgers landed on six Philadelphia hurlers for 13 safeties and put the game away in the fifth, when they drove starter Frank Hoerst off the mound, but an umpire's decision caused the remainder of the contest to be played under protest by Manager Hans Lober of the Phils.

Wyatt led off the fifth by slamming the ball toward the left field bleachers. It appeared to have landed in the lower seats and bounced back to the playing field. Umpire Tom Dunn motioned Wyatt to trot around the bases, but the ball was returned to the infield and Al Glossop tagged Wyatt.

Umpire Ziggy Sears, however, ruled that the ball bounced off the bleacher screen and sent Wyatt back to second base with a ground rule double.

★ Wally Butts Can't Hold a Candle To Some Pessimists

By ROMNEY WHEELER (Pitch-Hitting for Whitney Martin)

ATLANTA (Wide World)—If footballs grew on trees, Wallace Butts wouldn't shake a branch, lest an orphaned watermelon bash him on the head.

That's a fair example of Wally's optimism—the sweetness and light which he habitually perceives just over the horizon. But, insists Butts, he can't hold a candle to professional pessimists in the pigskin league, and he thinks it's a sorry shame the way some people carry on.

"Why," exclaims the little round man, "I could really complain about losses at Georgia—but you don't hear me hollering. People don't want to hear a football coach sound off. They're asking about the war."

Wallace the Worrier is working into shape for another football season. And it's painful business because the University of Georgia surprised Wally last season by turning up with an all-America halfback and its first post-season bowl championship.

But what really exercises the L.R.M. is a recent interview with a famous coach, who produced bank-examiner figures to show that his spectacular team of a year ago not only had disappeared but that he would be left this fall without even two full elevens.

"Bosh, bunk and baloney," exclaims the L.R.M. "He's getting paid ten or twelve thousand a year to put out a winning team. The team he had simply graduated. Now he's on the spot, and he's trying to get ready."

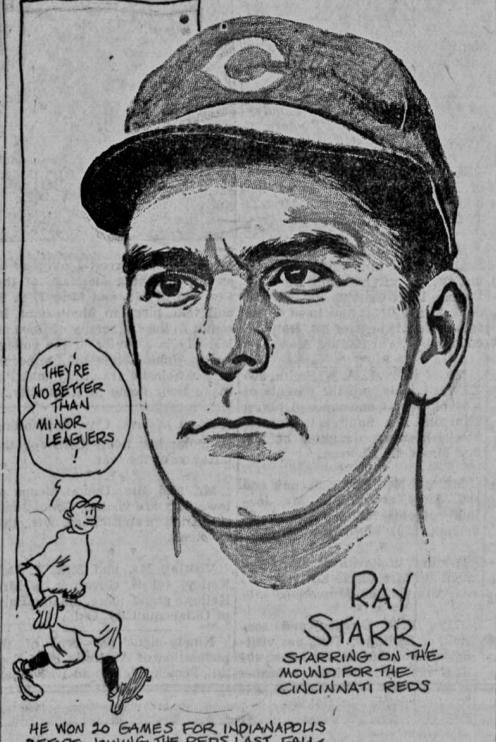

"I've lost as many boys to the armed services as anybody, but I'm not hollering. I'll put eleven men on the field somehow—although what they'll do is anybody's bet."

"I've got six tackles. That's all. Count 'em. Just six eligible men in school—and two of those probably will be in the army before fall. I've got just six guards, and probably I won't have all of those Sept. 1. You can't play a half-league schedule with just half-and-half reserves behind each position."

Friends of the Worrier like to say that when he came to Georgia four years ago from Louisville (Ky.). Male high, the once-powerful

Yankees Drop Hard Pressing Boston, 5 to 3

BOSTON (AP)—The champion New York Yankees, who have appeared to be coming apart at the seams for the past month, stitched themselves back into a four-game lead by taking the opener of their make-or-break series with the second-place Red Sox, 5-3, last night in the first twilight contest in Boston's major league history.

Righthander Spud Chandler kept eight Boston hits comparatively well scattered while gaining his ninth win.

The Yanks opened with a three-run spurge against Broadway Charlie Wagner and collected all of their runs and their eight hits before that right hander was replaced by Mace Brown in the seventh.

The last Yankee blow was Frank Crosetti's fourth homer of the season, which came with two out and none on in the sixth.

With Wagner getting under way in unsteady fashion, the Yankees managed to score thrice in the first inning on a pass by Buddy Hasset, an error by Johnny Pesky and Joe DiMaggio's hard hit grounder and Charlie Keller's single.

Gunnar Hagg Breaks 2nd Record in 3 Days In Great 2 Mile Run

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Two days after smashing the world record for the one-mile, Gunnar Hagg Thursday night did the same thing to the two-mile standard.

The slim Swedish ace, back in action only 48 hours, after being suspended since last fall, ran the long grind in 8 minutes, 47.8 seconds in Stockholm stadium to top 8.2 seconds off Miklos Szabo's recognized two-mile mark and 5.4 seconds off the 8:53.2 Taisto Maki established in Finland in 1939, and which is still awaiting recognition.

Just about the world's "hottest" performer in track and field right now, Hagg put his last record-smashing contribution alongside the 4:06.2 mile he ran Wednesday.

We'd have one great backfield—and nothing behind it."

So Sinkwich will alternate with Trippi at tailback, McPhee will stay at fullback, and lord-knows-who will play blocking back.

Indeed, it's all very depressing to everyone but 20,000 alumni, who think the Worrier can't lose.

All-Star Game Has Large Advance Ticket Sales

CLEVELAND (AP)—Nearly half the 80,000 seats in Cleveland stadium have been sold for Tuesday night's baseball business here between the services and the American-National league All-Star game winner.

Thus unless the last-minute customers decide to stay home and leave all the pitching to Johnny Rigney, Bob Feller and others officially appointed to put it over, the army and navy relief fund clash will be nothing like a private party.

Near-Sellout Crowd
An official reckoned yesterday that some 35,000 ducats already had been sold, pointing to at least a near-sellout crowd for hostilities between Lieut. Gordon S. (Mickey) Cochrane's fighting team and the victor of Monday night's inter-league scrap in New York.

Intensive solicitation of industries produced much of the advance sale. Recognizing a worthy cause and a good attraction when it saw one, an aviation parts plant came through for 2,000 tickets and other industries have approached the figure.

Sailors Play Today
Reinforced by other service stars, Cochrane's Great Lakes (Ill.) naval training squad went to Kalamazoo, Mich., yesterday to continue its warwups by battling a semi-pro club. Around 10,000 are expected to see Great Lakes meet a reinforced Camp Custer (Mich.) team at Briggs stadium in Detroit today with Cochrane and pitcher George Earnshaw—the battery that once helped Connie Mack's Athletics to real championships instead of the cellar kind—reunited for part of the clash.

By tomorrow, 14 members of the service team will be here for a stadium workout, with the remainder following Monday.

New York Giants Drop Boston Braves, 10 to 6, On Home Run Spurge

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants downed the Boston Braves, 10-6, in a twilight-arc game last evening, with home runs by Johnny Mize, Mel Ott, and Mickey Witek accounting for five of their tallies.

The Giants went to work on starter Al Javery in the opening frame. After Bill Webber walked Ott, drove his 12th homer of the season into the right field stands and Mize followed with his 13th.

With two away in the closing frame, the Cards shoved across two runs on a pair of singles and a double and had the tying score on bases as the side was retired.

Only this last minute spurge marred the excellent pitching of Johnny Lanning, young right hander, who held the Redbirds to nine hits, going into the ninth. Lloyd Dietz, Pittsburgh's ace left hurler, was called in to stop the rally with two pitches to Terry Moore.

IOWA U. LEADS Big Ten With 8 Coaches In Service

Iowa, Illinois and Minnesota lead the Big Ten in contribution of athletic coaches to service in the armed forces, with the Hawkeyes ranking first with eight men.

This is shown in a survey of the league, figuring head and assistant coaches in varsity and freshman sports.

Two Iowa Heads Serve
Rollie Williams, basketball, and Otto Vogel, baseball, are the Hawkeyes who were head coaches. Each now is a lieutenant in the navy, assigned to the Iowa naval aviation pre-flight school.

Other Iowans in service or preparing for it are Ted Swanson, track assistant, navy lieutenant; Nile Kinnick, freshman football assistant, naval aviation; John Grim, freshman basketball, naval aviation; Pat Boland, football scout and intramurals, navy lieutenant (j.g.); Max Hawkins, freshman football assistant, navy; and Bill Hofer, head freshman football, aviation.

Illinois has sent seven into the service, including Hartley Price, head coach of gymnastics, and Mac Garret, head fencing mentor. Minnesota's six include Benjie Bierman, head football; Frank McCormick, athletic director and head baseball; and Dave Bartelmus, head wrestling.

Cardinals' Late Rally Fails as Pittsburgh's Lanning Wins, 5 to 4

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Although out-hit the Pittsburgh Pirates beat down a desperate ninth inning rally to jolt the St. Louis Cardinals, 5 to 4, yesterday and drop them another full game behind Brooklyn. The Cards took the series, however, three games to one.

With two away in the closing frame, the Cards shoved across two runs on a pair of singles and a double and had the tying score on bases as the side was retired.

Only this last minute spurge marred the excellent pitching of Johnny Lanning, young right hander, who held the Redbirds to nine hits, going into the ninth. Lloyd Dietz, Pittsburgh's ace left hurler, was called in to stop the rally with two pitches to Terry Moore.

"Fight! Work! and SAVE!"

A War Message on WAR BONDS from the President of the United States

"... The American people know that if we would raise the billions which we now need to pay for the war and at the same time prevent a disastrous rise in the cost of living, we shall have to double and more than double the scale of our savings.

"Every dime and dollar not vitally needed for absolute necessities should go into WAR BONDS and STAMPS to add to the striking power of our armed forces.

"If these purchases are to have a material effect in restraining price increases they must be made out of current income.

"In almost every individual case they should be big enough to mean rigid self-denial, a substantial reduction for most of us in the scale of expenditure that is comfortable and easy for us.

"We cannot fight this war, we cannot exert our maximum effort, on a spend-as-usual basis.

"We cannot have all we want if our soldiers and sailors are to have all they need."

—Franklin D. Roosevelt.
