British Fleet Blasts Matruh in Night Raid

Attack Leaves Enemy Supply Depot in Ruins

Planes, Guns of Fleet Assist Land Armies For 1st Time in War

CAIRO (AP)—The British Mediterranean fleet has entered the battle of Egypt with its guns and its planes, it was disclosed last night, leaving flames and wreckage at Matruh, the axis' most advanced supply port a scant 100 miles behind the front lines.

While the slugging power of Australian and South African battle groups kept the British army in possession of its newly-won positions west of El Alamein, the fleet's warships swept in close to shore at Matruh in last night's darkness and sent salvo after salvo into the harbor.

Naval aircraft had proceeded the warships' assault with a violent raid on the axis anchorage, scoring a direct hit on an ammunition ship. Guns of the fleet finished this ship off while the naval pilots pressed their own attack on the port.

First Time

This was the first time the fleet had found an opportunity and an adequate target ashore for its guns since the battle for Egypt began, and it struck with a vengeance at Matruh, which is only 170 miles from Alexandria, its menaced main base.

Naval planes also were credited with destroying an ammunition dump or a concentration of ammunition trucks west of the El Alamein battle cauldron; other bombers blasted Tobruk and in the daylight, the RAF's fighter-bombers shuttled through a stinging curtain of sand to pound the axis' armored formations.

A Reuter's dispatch from Cairo said two RAF planes had bombed and machine-gunned a "Fieseler Storch" plane of the type used only by the German commander, Marshal Erwin Rommel, and his senior officers, and that all the occupants were believed killed. One bomb was said to have hit the plane when it was only 15 feet off the ground in the El Alamein sector.

Artillery roared constantly over much of the desert front, 70 to 80 miles from Alexandria, and there were sharp attacks and counterattacks of a local nature as both sides went grimly about the business of consolidation, reinforcement and supply for the coming show-down.

The British regard the Tel El Eisa ridge along the sea ten miles west of El Alamein, which was occupied in the week-end advance, as vital to German Marshal Rommel—so much so that he is expected to make every effort to recapture it before trying a general advance.

Ten Iowa Men, One Woman Are Reported In Navy Casualty List

Eleven U.S. Nurses From Manila Region Listed as Missing

(The navy's seventh casualty list, covering the period from June 18 to June 30, included 10 Iowa men and one Iowa nurse, none of which were from Johnson county.)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eleven navy nurses were officially reported missing yesterday in the navy's seventh casualty list of the war.

The young women were last heard from in the Manila bay area prior to the conquest of that section by the Japanese early in the war. Some or all may be held prisoner although classification "missing" means that no authentic word had been received on that point.

Three of the nurses were from California, the others were from Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oregon, Pennsylvania and South Dakota.

Only One Escaped

The only navy nurse now known to have escaped from the Manila area was Miss Ann Agnes Bernatius, native of Exeter, Pa. She went from Manila to Bataan peninsula with an army medical group when American forces retreated into that wilderness stronghold, later was assigned to the island of Corregidor and eventually was removed from there to Australia by submarine.

She reported to the navy department here about two weeks ago.

The names of the 11 nurses missing were on the navy's casualty list number seven covering casualties of navy, marine corps and coast guard personnel—dead.

Local VFW Group Building Memorial For Men in Service

The Iowa City Veterans of Foreign Wars group is constructing a memorial to Johnson county men in the armed services in the vacant lot on the northwest corner of College and Clinton streets.

Work was started on the memorial last week. A huge concrete book, 15 feet high and 48 feet wide, will be set up and on it will be engraved the names of every Johnson county man in armed services of the United States. A gold star will be placed before the names of those killed in action.

A large neon V will be attached to the top of the book. The area will be converted into a small park. Laborers have already begun to sod the ground, and evergreen trees will be planted later.

The project is expected to reach completion within 10 days. Present plans include the engraving of 1,760 names, but there will be enough space on the book for 4,000 names.

ONE OF NAVY'S 'QUEENS' MOVES OUT TO SEA

Flanked by roaring PT's, the Navy's little torpedo boats, a huge American aircraft carrier moves out to sea from an unidentified port, above. Her mission was not disclosed, but the enemy probably will learn it in due time.—to his sorrow.

Nazi Aides May Get 'Treason'

Bold Nazi Plot to Invade U.S. Through Mexico Is Revealed

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A former Mexican military attaché to Berlin said in a published interview yesterday that Germany had planned to land an invasion force in Tampico to attack the United States and had offered Mexico "territorial compensations" for its support.

The plans were completed during the invasion of Poland, two years before the United States entered the war, Lieut. Col. Armando Lozano Bernal said. Bernal has returned to Mexico with diplomatic repatriates.

The colonel said the German plan was discussed with him and that the nazis envisioned taking over the Mexican gulf coast port in the oil region and using it as a base against the United States.

Bernal said his unsympathetic answers to inquiries caused the Germans to cut short their efforts to win him over.

He said the Mexican government was fully advised of the German overtures.

Bernal remained in Germany until last May. Since then, Mexico has returned to Mexico with diplomatic repatriates.

Administration Goes To Aid of Henderson In OPA Budget Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration went to bat in the senate yesterday against weakening of its price control authority, with Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) telling the chamber it would be unfortunate if the people got the impression senators were more interested in patronage than in winning the home front battle.

Demanding a delay in all controversial votes, the 43 senators he said were absent could return to the city, Barkley served notice he intended to fight for elimination of restrictions on the price control administration written into a $1,856,000,000 supplemental money bill by the senate appropriations committee. (A quorum call listed 61 senators present, with 35 absentees.)

14 Persons Accused Of Helping Saboteurs

The Group Includes Six Women and Only One Native American

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charges of treason, it was indicated last night, may be brought against some of the 14 men and women accused of aiding the eight alleged nazi saboteurs now on trial for their lives.

The 14, whose arrest was announced by Attorney General Biddle yesterday, have been held without formal charge.

No Official Word

While no official would be quoted, some officials expressed the belief that a variety of charges to fit the different parts played by those arrested would be brought. At the same time, it was pointed out that J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, declared last week that those who had aided the alleged saboteurs, now being tried secretly by a special commission of seven generals, were guilty of treason and added that "treason shall not become profitable."

The group of 14 includes six women, among them Maria Kerling, wife of Edward John Kerling, leader of the four well-equipped, well-financed nazis who landed from a German submarine near Jacksonville, Fla., on June 17. Also held are the parents and an uncle of Herbert Haupt, a member of Kerling's detail.

Only one native American, Miss Hedwig Engemann, born in Brooklyn, was in the group. The others all were German-born, but nine of them had become American citizens by naturalization.

Announcement of their seizure followed by a few days the arrest of 158 persons reported to be active in the German-American Bund in the New York area, and scattered arrests of alleged German sympathizers and supporters in various parts of the country and in the Panama Canal zone.

These were the 14 as announced by Biddle: (Those identified as "German-Americans" were born in Germany but are naturalized citizens.)

Helmut Leiner, 33, a German, Astoria, Long Island, N. Y. Anthony Cramer, 41, German-American, New York. Miss Hedwig Engemann, 34, native man-American, New York. Hermann Heinrich Fajek, 36, German-American, Astoria.

Mrs. Maria Kerling, 38, a German, New York. Ernest Herman Kerkhof, 36, German-American, New York. Hans Max Haupt, 48, and Mrs. Haupt, 43, both German-Americans, Chicago.

Harry Jaques, 47, and Mrs. Emma

Reds Admit Withdrawals Near Rzhev, 130 Miles From Capital

Chinese Stem Eastern Drive

CHUNGKING (AP)—Fochow, one of two Chinese-held minor ports menaced by twin Japanese drives on the Chekiang-Fukien seaboard, has been defended by counterattacking Chinese troops who landed from boats and drove the invaders out of nearby Futuo island, the Chinese announced yesterday.

The Japanese, who took the island near the Fukien seaport only on Thursday, were forced on Saturday to flee to their ships, leaving behind 300 casualties and considerable quantities of supplies. The Chinese counterattack lasted a night and a day, the communique said.

Germans Continue Smash Toward Caucasus; Crack Soviet Lines at Voronezh, Don Valley

MOSCOW, Tuesday (AP)—The Germans have launched a smashing offensive from their stronghold at Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and after a bloody 12-day battle the Russians have withdrawn toward the capital, a special Soviet communique announced today.

This news came shortly after the regular midnight communique had acknowledged a German breakthrough at Voronezh, 300 miles south of Moscow, and admitted German advances at two other Don valley points in their great drive toward the Caucasus.

The fierceness of the fighting in the Rzhev sector, where the Germans had held out all winter despite heavy Russian attacks, was indicated by the terrific losses on both sides.

The Soviet communique admitted 7,000 Russian soldiers were killed and wounded and another 5,000 were missing, but said the Germans had lost 10,000 killed during the battle which lasted from July 2 through July 13.

(The German high command earlier had announced that 30,000 Russian soldiers had been captured in an encircling movement southwest of Rzhev and that several infantry and cavalry divisions were "under annihilation.")

The regular midnight Soviet communique, which described the situation on the 200-mile Don front as "grave," made no mention of the drive which might become the northern claw of a pincer move to encircle the capital.

The special communique said: "Southwest of Rzhev German forces launched an offensive attempting to encircle our troops by flank attacks and cut their communications in the rear.

"As a result of fighting between July 2 and July 13 against numerically superior enemy forces, our units inflicted heavy losses on the Germans in men and equipment and themselves, sustaining considerable losses, were forced to withdraw and leave the defense area occupied by them."

The Germans not only snapped the Red lines and apparently broke through in great force at Voronezh, the upper end of the Don front where the Russians had held out gamely for more than a week, but also continued to roll on eastward in the Boguchar and Lisichansk areas to the south.

In all three areas the Red army, pitted against overwhelmingly superior forces, fell back steadily. The communique said of this retreat:

"Mobile groups and aircraft covering the withdrawal are pinning the enemy down and inflicting heavy losses on him."

2nd Front

Amid calls for the Allies to open a second front in Europe against the axis, the great German drive to the east with its unchecked gathering momentum threatened to do these things:

Split the central and southern Red armies entirely; gain the Volga at the great industrial city of Stalingrad 200 miles away; seal that waterways route and other supply lines from the united nations to the Russians; and conquer the oil riches of the Caucasus itself.

4 More Allied Cargo Vessels Sent to Bottom

By The Associated Press

The sinking of four more merchant vessels was announced yesterday by the navy, bring to 365 the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

Three united nations ships shelled and sunk a week ago in the Gulf of St. Lawrence with a loss of four lives were not included in the total. Further information also was awaited on a U. S. merchant ship reported sent to the bottom off northern Cuba Sunday.

Torpedoes ripped into one of the four vessels only 90 miles off the Atlantic coast July 8 and two pleasure craft from a fishing lodge picked up 41 survivors.

The only man to die was Captain Patrick S. Mahoney, 56, of Staten Island, N. Y., who was caught in the davits while attempting to lower a lifeboat.

Flames from the burning ship brought vacationers to the rescue. A navy gunner was picked up after swimming so close to the attacking submarine that he could hear crewmen conversing in German.

The other ships sunk were a small Norwegian craft, attacked in the Gulf of Mexico July 6, and two small Panamanian vessels, one hit nearly five months ago off the northern coast of South America and the other in the Caribbean May 23.

Farm Bill Opposition In House-Senate Unit Said to Be Weakening

WASHINGTON (AP)—Another effort to dislodge the $68,000,000 agricultural appropriations bill from a senate-house deadlock failed yesterday, but there were indications house members of the joint committee were weakening in their stand against the administration's grain sales policy.

Nevertheless, chairman Russell (D-Ga) said efforts to reconcile differences over a senate amendment appeared so hopeless he might offer a motion today to discharge senate conferees.

Citizen's Defense Corps

7:30 p.m.—Staff members of the Citizen's Defense Corps will meet in the Community building.

7:30 p.m.—Corps messengers and drivers will convene in the junior high school.

Volunteers are still needed to serve as nurses aides, auxiliary firemen, auxiliary policemen and messengers. Prof. Rollin Perkins, commander of the Iowa City Citizen's Defense Corps, announces.

Persons interested in making application for nurses aides are referred to Lois B. Corder, director of the university school of nursing, auxiliary firemen, to Fire Chief J. J. Clark; auxiliary policemen, to Police Chief Frank J. Burns, and messengers, to H. I. Jennings, head of the local civilian defense council.

Hershey Sets Order of 7 Draft Classifications

Men With Dependents Go Last

WASHINGTON (AP)—Local draft boards were directed by selective service headquarters last night to postpone induction of men with dependents until all other sources of manpower for the armed forces have been exhausted.

A statement of policy, issued by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, established the order in which seven classifications were to be utilized for draft calls, and also contained a list of 34 essential activities compiled by the war manpower commission.

Based on recent amendments to the selective service act, the statement was designed to guide local boards, Hershey said, but in no way altered the statutory ban on group deferments. Its purpose, he said, was to protect bona fide family relationships as long as possible.

The order in which local boards were instructed to consider registrants for induction was: (1) single men with no dependents; (2) single men with dependents, but not contributing to the war effort; (3) single men with dependents, and who contribute to the war effort; (4) married men, not engaged in the war effort, but living with their wives; (5) married men engaged in the war effort, and living with their wives; (6) married men, not engaged in the war effort, living with wife and children, or children only; and (7) married men, engaged in the war effort, and living with wife and children, or children only.

In all cases, said the statement, the dependency must date from before December 8, 1941.

Provision was made for local boards to coordinate their reclassification orders through the state director, to prevent any community from inducing men from one group before neighboring localities have reclassified that same group.

When deferring a registrant for occupational reasons, the local board must decide that the business in which the man is employed is one of those classified as essential, and then determine that his particular job makes him a "necessary man."

In addition, his work must be in fulfillment of a contract for a government agency engaged directly in war activity; concerned with promoting or facilitating war production, or furnishing materials for war production; or concerned with providing food, clothing or "other requisites of the civilian daily life in support of the war effort."

The list of essential activities: Production of aircraft and parts; ships, boats and parts; ordnance and accessories; ammunition; agriculture; food processing; forestry; logging and lumbering; construction; coal mining; metal mining; non-metallic mining and processing and quarrying; smelting, refining and rolling metals; production of metal shapes and forgings; finish-

Gestapo Announces Plan to Shoot All Adult Male Relatives of Hunted French Saboteurs

'Pierre Laval, You Are Terribly Alone,' Collaborator Cries

VICHY, Unoccupied France (AP)—All France was tense last night on the eve of Bastille day as gestapo authorities decided to shoot all adult male relatives of hunted saboteurs, and one of Pierre Laval's own axis-collaborating friends cried: "Watch out, Pierre Laval, you are terribly alone!"

In its effort to cope with anti-German violence in the unoccupied zone, the gestapo announced in Paris that its firing squads would execute fathers, grandfathers, brothers—even cousins and brother-in-laws above 18—of any French saboteur or assailant who does not surrender himself within 10 days.

The mothers, sisters, and grandmothers in any family involved will be put to hard labor, and the children under 18 will be sent to reform schools, the drastic gestapo ruling said. But reports reaching here proved the anti-German struggle continued in conquered France.

A freight train was derailed on the Amiens-Sotteville line, and French and German police stormed a house in the Pas de Calais department at Houdin where grenade-tossing Frenchmen had barricaded themselves. One recalcitrant Frenchman, described as a "communist" was killed and a bystander wounded in the battle, and the Germans said they found a cache of firearms and explosives in the house.

Seize Dutch Hostage

(In Holland German occupation authorities seized another large number of hostages and announced all would be executed if sabotage there continues.)

German authorities in occupied France again forbade any celebration today of Bastille day, France's national holiday. The orders covered all manifestations from hang-

Plan World Wage Rate Increase

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Significant Post-War Planning Is Meeting Plenty of Trouble

WASHINGTON — Some significant post war planning to raise world wage rates already is being urged inside the government by Vice President Wallace's board of economic warfare, but not without encountering difficulty.

The Wallace group wants the state department to run into some of our war trade contracts with Latin American nations a provision which will start raising some wage levels in those nations. It would be a comparatively simple matter for this government to require that certain labor standards be met in any goods it purchases from foreign countries.

Some officials, however, doubt that this is the time to start world social reforming. They want to win the war first and then they think that they could look at what is left with a more objective and experienced viewpoint.

But the Wallace boys believe it is never too early to start reforming and are pressing their views onward.

A decision is likely within a week or two. Experiment in Raising Wage Rates Tried in Haiti—

The only very clearly social experimenting for the post-war world was done in the Haitian development company financing by the export-import bank, and this was done long before the war started. The company was created under government auspices for the growing of sisal and rubber, and has been trying to boost basic Haitian wage averages of 20 cents a day by offering 25 to 50 per cent more.

Another modest experimental beginning of Mr. Wallace's plan for the post-war world is the Peruvian cotton deal. The way the deal is being worked out offers the first concrete evidence of how this government will go about curtailing world farm production, how much it is likely to cost, and the difficulties to be encountered.

Agriculture Secretary Wickard signed in April an agreement with the Peruvian government whereby two-thirds of its cotton crop (200,000 bales) will be bought by this government and put in storage. This government is to continue to take the same amount each year hereafter, at the annual cost of about $10,000,000, the crop to be stored in Peru.

It was done as a good neighbor gesture, but the government has used the action to try out an international crop curtailment idea.

We promised to pay the Peruvians a one-and-a-half per cent increase in price for every one per cent their acreage was curtailed. The scheme also worked the other way, proposing to cut the price an equal amount for every similar increase in acreage.

No one outside the agriculture department paid much attention to the matter until recently, when the American cotton market began worrying about that surplus. Senator Bankhead and others of the cotton bloc then extracted a promise from Mr. Wallace that the crop would not be brought into the United States unless our own production was unable to satisfy war requirements. The post-war difficulty of foreign agriculture production coming into competition with our own was thus encountered at the outset.

As long as cotton senators exist, that cotton apparently will have to be sold by this government to some foreign consumers in some way whereby it will not compete with American cotton. That will be difficult, if not impossible.

The agriculturists here, however, have not let that prospect dismay them.

The Peruvian farm production system is a Spanish hacienda approximation of our own share-cropper condition. The boys here are already feasting their eyes hungrily on that subject, although it is not mentioned in the agreement.

Hitler's Advance Fails to Raise Alarm in Washington—

The Hitler break-through of the Russian lines caused no great alarm here, even after he was able to develop it. With such fire power as the Germans possess—the ability to mass insuperable offensive weapons at a striking point beyond precedent in all history—Hitler could be expected to break through at any time on such a long front.

But as such breaks develop, the issue levels itself down to two main considerations, weapons and fighting spirit, both about equally important. The Russians are short on weapons but even longer than the Germans on fighting spirit.

Consequently, the eyes of Washington have been focused with some apprehension but no despair on the dispatches from the front.

Subs Art Still Attacking Our Convoys—

Isolated sinkings of single ships, recently reported along our Atlantic seaboard, does not mean that Nazi subs are merely picking up strays and avoiding convoys. Frequently they can get into a convoy for one blow, but then have to withdraw immediately to escape detection. Consequently lone sinkings from convoys are common.

Government to Aid Men in Service To Solve Their Domestic Problems

Most of the nation's selectees and volunteers are wondering just what to do about the rent at home, payment on the car or furniture, that note at the bank, insurance premiums, taxes or getting the old job back when the war is over.

According to State Selective Service Director Charles H. Grahl, congress has passed a series of laws to help solve these problems. These laws supersede all state laws and apply in all of the nation's courts. Efforts are being made to improve them, but whether a particular problem comes under the law or not, it can probably be solved in a spirit of fairness and cooperation for all concerned.

Lawyers, legal aid societies and bar associations throughout the country are also putting themselves at the service of the soldier, and usually without charge. They want to help, and consider it a privilege to do so. If a man needs advice, he should get it early. Preventing trouble is better than trying to cure it.

For instance, if the rent of a man in service is not over $80 a month, his dependents are not evicted from their home, unless the landlord obtains approval of a court. The judge may postpone such a case for as long as three months if ability to pay is reduced owing to the tenant's being in service.

"This law does not apply to an office, store or other business property," Grahl said. It does not cancel a lease on a dwelling or business property. However, at least one court has excused an inducted man from office lease because the law made it impossible for him to continue business.

This is only one of the aids the government is offering to service men. Similar protection is given against repossession of furniture, automobiles, tractors and so forth.

Furthermore if the man left a regular job to enter service, after May 1, 1940, the law says he is to have the job back upon his discharge from the service. When he gets back he'll have his job, or one with like seniority, status and pay, unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so.

The selectee must still be qualified for the job, and must apply to get it back within 40 days after honorable discharge. When he gets the job back he cannot be discharged within one year, except for a just cause. In such matters the local U.S. district attorney will represent him without charge, and the federal court can compel the employer to re-employ him in a proper cause.

The government merely tides the service man over. This protection is not granted if the insurance was taken out less than 30 days before a man enters the service, or if loans against the insurance are 50 per cent or more of the cash value.

Dead Weight That Might Be Cut From Government's Expenditures

For years now we've been putting up with an expensive dead weight in congress. Rep. Martin Dies, chairman of the Dies committee, has been using up hundreds of thousands of American dollars in investigating un-American activities, but has few results and many blunders to show for his efforts.

Representative Dies' latest error has to do with his recent outburst against David V. Vaughan of the board of economic warfare. After involving Vaughan's name in a report concerning alleged communists in this country, Dies retracted his accusation—but only after he had made two serious slips. He had deprived himself of congressional immunity by failing to write the letter in which the accusations were made as chairman of the Dies committee; by not waiting for Vice-President Wallace, to whom the letter was written, to make the charges public, he lost the protection of private correspondence's personal immunity.

The fact that Dies now is caught in a $75,000 libel suit is beside the point. The point is that the Texas congressman evidently wanted to cause the board of economic warfare's collapse by an attack on Vaughan. This is only an isolated example of the many seemingly unjustified attacks Dies has made which have hindered our war effort. Perhaps Representative Dies would do well to leave investigations of un-American activities to qualified governmental agencies such as the FBI. And while they're about it, it might be well to cast an investigating eye toward the Texas congressman just to see if there have ever been any flies on him.

THE TIME, THE PLACE, AND THE GIRL!

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

Miles of Platforms Along the Sea Shore

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—We got into a car and drove out through the high noon sun into the country and turned after awhile toward the sea until we came to a supply depot that stretched for four or five miles along an emergency line of track. Flanking the rails were heavy platforms, and on the platforms, as far as you could see, was the accumulated baggage of war—ready to be piled into the holds and on the decks of ships.

It was not possible to count the great packing cases, most as large as piano boxes, others large enough to house a tank. They were there by the tens of hundreds. They had been switched in and deposited there in anticipation of a zero hour. They lay on the platforms with the high grass growing all around them and the sun beating down on them, and as far, too, as you could see were soldiers pacing through the heat of the day, guarding this all-important equipment.

These cases aren't there any more. A few days after I was out there I passed again, and the platforms were empty. The wild grass grew around the empty platforms. The rusty rails were bare of cars. That morning, earlier, we crossed the Hudson and were compelled to wait in mid-stream for a great ship that appeared dirty and patched in her camouflage to pass on her way to the outer harbor. I counted 47 life rafts swinging from her sides, and on her aft deck the rafts were stacked like wheat cakes. She was loaded for beer. The gun crews were at their stations. She swarmed with men. I don't know where she was going but I can tell you now that, wherever it was, she got there.

Here's a bit of anonymous nostalgia that came out of the postman's mail bag this morning. . . . From New Orleans. Unsigned: "Dear Mr. Tucker: Tonight I was riding in a street car. . . . Sixteen young men with mandolins and violins got on. . . . They were happy. . . . They were going home to England. We traveled together about twelve miles, and did they make those instruments talk. . . . The young man who sat in the seat with me was from Manchester. . . . His Lancashire dialect made me sit up and take notice. As I had lived in England for eight years, I was a race rider long before those boys were born, and possibly before their parents were. . . . It's 40 years since I came home. . . . I had two fingers broken. . . . My friends here gave me many good things, but I was too heavy for this side of the pond. I went broke, and gave up the racing game. But that dialect woke up long sleeping memories of pleasant days spent in England, with those long since passed on, and to hear one who was not born then, speaking a dialect long since forgotten, makes me feel sure there will always be an England. He had finished his training and he was going home to fight for his country. He was possibly 20 years old, and in civil life he had been a bank clerk. He and his friends all have my best wishes when they take the air, and my only regret is that I am too old to join them."

"Just an old man, long since forgotten."

THE BOOK PARADE

By JOHN SELBY
"A NEW RUSSIAN GRAMMAR" and "A FIRST RUSSIAN READER," by Anna H. Semeonoff (Dutton; each $1.95); "COLLOQUIAL JAPANESE," by William Montgomery McGovern; (Dutton; $1.85).

Bismarck is said to have sneered one day that a talent for language is a head waiter's talent. Whether because of that strange remark (comparable to "history is bunk" or because of its ignorance) or because of laziness, many people believe Americans are the worst linguists in the world. Perhaps we are.

It may be a little late for us to take up either Russian or Japanese, but if we want to try, the means are at hand. Three books of value have been re-issued in the light of Pearl Harbor. Two are Russian books—Anna H. Semeonoff's "A New Russian Grammar" and the same teacher's "A First Russian Reader."

The last is not really a re-issue. My review copy is from the first American edition and it was published in 1936. The grammar is the fourth edition published in this country.

The third book is William Montgomery McGovern's "Colloquial Japanese," and it is subtitled "a quick, easy way to learn Japanese." This grammar begins by insisting that Japanese is not really very hard—that, indeed, a fair student can get through the book and emerge with a workable command of Japanese in six months. Both grammars are designed for independent study as well as classroom work, and a brief survey indicates that this is not merely wishful thinking. But one day's experience is not enough for me to be sure!

For the amateur, the odd characters of both Russian and Japanese are forbidding. In Japanese there is a good deal of reason for fright, too, because actually there are a number of Japanese languages. The colloquial style of Japanese is the ordinary medium of exchange. The epistolary style is used for letters and post cards. There is a literary style for books and periodicals (about two-thirds Chinese and one-third Japanese).

And finally there is the classical style which is actually Chinese, based on the Confucian Canon. In addition, Japanese may be written in either the ideographic or the phonetic way, and there are three ways of writing phonetically.

Russian has its peculiar alphabet and distinctive orthography, but it at least stays put. Perhaps it would be better to start on

Andy Hardy Talks Back to the Judge

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Set-seeing:

Comes the revolution. Time stops in its tracks. Nothing is the same. Andy Hardy is talking back to the judge.

For five years now, picture after picture Mickey Rooney and Lewis Stone have shared those man-to-man talks. It's in "Andy Hardy's Last Fling"—and don't believe that title as long as the family series makes money—that it happens.

Andy is off to college and the judge, an alumnus, wants to make the trip with him, introduce him to the dean. Andy knows that his college career will be "ruined" if the other boys see him being so sponsored, but he knows also that his father will be disappointed not to go.

Says Andy to the judge, "We've made a kind of habit of man-to-man talks, haven't we?" "They've meant a great deal to me, Andy," says the judge.

Andy: "But they weren't really man-to-man talks. They were just a kid trying to hide that he only had a kid's troubles but pretending he was grown up and trying to make it all seem important."

Then he goes on to say that this must be the real thing—man to man—and from then on Andy does all the talking.

After the scene Mickey Rooney mops his brow, turns to Stone, and says: "Gee, I didn't know whether I could get away with that or not. Me! Telling you! It just doesn't seem right!"

The set of "Wath on the Rhine" is minus its star, Paul Lukas, and its principal supporting player, Bette Davis. Bette will be costarring, of course, but the real starring role is Paul's. He played it for 11 months on Broadway, thus reviving movie interest in him. Bette chose the assignment, beginning work even before "Now Voyager" was completed, just to get her in swat at the nazis. The picture, like the play, is one of the most emotional and strongest of the anti-nazi line, and at the same time one of the quietest.

If Paul and Bette are absent, an unforgettable character is decidedly present, George Coulouris. He's the villain. George was the villain in the play, too, which makes Hollywood seem sort of quiet by contrast. Night after night, those 11 months and four more on the road, George got booed. Lukas and the others would get applause on the curtain calls, but George got only hisses.

"I guess if it was a compliment since I'm supposed to be an actor," he says. "But a man gets tired of hisses every night."

He figures, in compensation, that his villain will be remembered—as villains usually are. He wonders if movie audiences will woo, too. They may not admit. But he won't be there, and he's glad of it.

War Production Film To Be Shown Today

"The Production Front," fifth in a series of educational film programs related to the war effort, will be shown at 4 o'clock this afternoon in room E-105, East hall.

Two films to be presented on the program are "Wright Builds for Supremacy," and "Look to Lockheed for Leadership." These films show construction of aircraft and the methods used for speeding up production.

All programs are open to the public. There is no admission charge.

OPA SPEAKERS ARRIVE FOR CONFERENCES

Mrs. Ruth W. Gavian and Emery W. Balduf of the OPA, who arrived yesterday for a series of lectures and conferences, are shown above with Prof. Elmer T. Peterson of the college of education (left). The visiting speakers will explain to teachers and administrators their part in the government program to educate people in the need for price control. With Iowa City as their headquarters, Balduf and Mrs. Gavian will remain in this area for three weeks, speaking here, and visiting other colleges and universities.

OPA Representatives Arrive Here for Series Of Conferences on Price Control and Rationing

Mrs. Ruth W. Gavian and Emery W. Balduf, representing the educational relations branch of the consumers' division of the OPA, arrived in Iowa City yesterday for a series of lectures, conferences and forums relative to the government education program for voluntary support of price control and rationing.

Working through school administrators and teachers and in connection with the teacher's workshop, Mrs. Gavian and Balduf will appear before various classes, conduct conferences, give lectures and broadcast over station WSUI.

Balduf and Mrs. Gavian came to the University of Iowa from Boulder, Col., where they conducted a similar program. They will be in Iowa City until August 1 and will visit other colleges and universities in the area, explaining to teachers and school administrators the need for their help in the government price control and rationing program. The program is based on the assumption that if people are informed of the need for price control and rationing that they will voluntarily comply.

Meeting Today

The first of the series of meetings will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the University high school for school administrators and teachers. Combining several classes, the meeting will orient the group as to what the school officials can do as to price control.

Consultants from the educational relations branch of the OPA work in pairs and were chosen for their experience in conference planning, work in adult education and lecturing on public affairs as well as their educational background. Balduf was director of the Des Moines public schools for four years and is now on leave of absence from his work as national director of the Union Now movement. Mrs. Gavian, who has done work with the United States office of education, is a curriculum specialist, and has written several articles and a book on education for economic competence.

Begin in May

The program on which these consultants are working started in May under the leadership of Dr. Alvin C. Eulich, formerly of Leland Stanford university, and it was he who chose Mrs. Gavian and Balduf for this work.

Other schools to be visited in this territory by the consultants include Iowa State college, Iowa State Teachers college, Drake university, the University of Omaha and the University of Nebraska.

Stress Body-Building for Victory

Wartime Demands Total Physical Education Program to Meet Adult Needs

Body-building must be stressed in an effective wartime physical education program, according to Prof. M. Gladys Scott of the women's physical education department, teacher of the war service programs course offered at the university this summer.

Purpose of the course is to help teachers and administrators enrolled to integrate their schools' physical education program into an effective service agency for the national and local defense organizations, as well as the army and navy.

Special problems anticipated by Professor Scott which must be worked out in a physical fitness program adequate to meet the demands of the present emergency include (1) broadening of the program to include all ages, (2) securing adequate time allotment in schools, and (3) maintaining health guidance.

War demands that the needs of adults, as well as children, be met in a total program of physical education, where the school's part of the community program is not set apart. The physical fitness division of the federal security agency, organizing through local communities to develop physical fitness for all ages, is depending upon physical education directors in each community to assume leadership.

Most schools in Iowa and surrounding states set aside two hours a week for physical training. Such a small time allotment is inadequate for building physical fitness and must be supplemented by a plan which includes the use of outside facilities during the regular school day, Professor Scott explained.

Health guidance is becoming increasingly important because the average community has less medical service available now that the training centers for the armed services are making heavy demands.

The whole program of building physical fitness is based on the assumption that the individual gets adequate medical care. Communities may have to pool medical services and to screen cases to avoid situations resulting from lack of medical examinations, Professor Scott pointed out.

Two Historical Films To Be Shown Tonight

Two sound films, "The Plover That Broke the Plains" and "The River," both directed by Pare Lorentz, will be shown to University Film society members at 8 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of the art building.

Produced in 1936 for the resettlement administration, "The Plover That Broke the Plains" presents dramatically the social and economic history of the great plains, of the causes of drought and of the necessity for soil conservation and resettlement.

"The River," a story of the Mississippi river basin, was produced by Lorentz in 1937 for the farm security administration. The film pictures the exploitation and ruin of the Mississippi, and points the need for reforestation, flood control and housing schemes.

Those who do not have season tickets for the University Film society series may see the program by paying 25 cents at the door.

The city will start weed cutting on vacant lots tomorrow, it was announced by the office of the city engineer. Those wishing to take care of their own lots should notify the city engineer.

BEFORE AND AFTER

Clothes can be just as attractive with Uncle Sam's approval as they were before government regulation. In these before and after photos an attractive slack suit is shown. The blouse in the first picture has french cuffs, balloon sleeves, a matching sash, and is 24 inches long. Cuffs on the 24-inch wide slack bring the yardage of the entire suit to 6 3/4 yards. With government restrictions applied, the second picture shows a blouse with modified sleeve, a tiny band cuff and no sash. It is 22 inches long. The slack has no cuffs and is 18 inches wide. Four and three-eighths yards of material is used in this new ensemble.

Longman Contends Today's Art—

Individualistic Painting

—Is Anti-Common Sense

"Painting today is individualistic, genuinely spiritual, anti-rational and anti-common sense," according to Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the art department, in his discussion of "The Surrealist Aspects in Contemporary Art," the fourth lecture in the fine arts series, yesterday.

Professor Longman divided his address into three divisions: the general situation of art today, reasons for its existence, and definition of the characteristics of the main movements.

"Hitler's art movement is a reactionary one," Professor Longman said in explaining conditions of art in Germany. "It opposes our prime virtue of originality and stresses raciality. The obligation of the fascist artist is to paint German, Aryan, national, serving a political, but not an artistic, purpose."

American Art

In contrast to Nazi art, art in America today has two main aspects—abstract, or emphasis on pure form, and surrealist expression, or the cultivation of fantastic and marvelous subjects for their own sakes for shock purposes, Professor Longman said. In surrealism there is an accent on the strange, the weird and the enigmatic, he added.

"The creative artist is one who succeeds in enlarging experiences of the human race, not repeating what is already known," the speaker said. "Such painters as Dale Nichols and Colton Waugh paint unoriginal snow scenes and seascapes—cliches."

"The artist today has no thesis, no program, nothing to expound. His work contains a strong element of the fantastic," Professor Longman continued. "Not all fantastic art is original. Some is com-

WAAC Resident Counselor Doesn't Expect Women Trainees to Weep on Her Shoulder

FORT DES MOINES (AP)—The women to whom the WAACs will tell their troubles don't expect many of the nation's first feminine soldiers to weep on her shoulder.

"There will be a lot of feminine problems that will have to be solved in a military way," said Mrs. Ella Newell Putman, 55, in an interview here yesterday. "We won't be dealing with school girls."

"They won't need mothering, but they'll want counsel."

Mrs. Putman, the newly appointed resident counselor of the training school, is the youngest of five sisters. That experience with femininity en masse stands her in good stead now. By December she will have 7,000 women under her advisory wing.

The first 770 WAACs will report Monday.

Mrs. Putman, who has been serving with the American women's voluntary services in New York, doesn't like to be called a "Dean of Women."

"You can see how this setup calls for a woman of more mature years. On one hand we have the army officers who are trainers. On the other are the WAACs who are the trainees. A lot of problems will arise that only a woman will understand."

The counselor is a native of Carthage, Mo. Her husband died in 1936. After several years educational experience in Mexico and California, she organized and administered the WPA household workers training school in Washington from 1935 to 1937 and in 1938-39.

"We want attractiveness and charm here but not glamor," she said.

Col. Don C. Faith, the school commandant, said one of her first duties was to decide what articles should be sold in the post exchange.

"How would I know what kinds of compacts the women will want or what kind of stationery they'll use?" he demanded.

Interpreting War News—

Believe Nazis Likely To Isolate Caucasus From Rest of Russia

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
 Wide World Nazi Analyst

With a widening Nazi wedge biting southeastward through Russian defenses toward the Caspian sea and lower Volga, complete isolation of the Caucasus from the rest of Russia within days or weeks is a grim possibility.

Moscow's admission that Boguchar, just east of the Don and 140 miles southeast of Voronezh, has been lost defines the front in that sector. A similar announcement of Russian evacuation of Lisichansk on the Donetz, 110 miles southwest of Boguchar, completes the picture.

It indicates that the direction of the gigantic Nazi offensive has definitely shifted now from eastward to southeastward. The probable objective is to throw Russian forces back behind the Don-Volga line clear to the Caspian sea, thus completing the isolation of the Caucasus and its defenders.

Corpulent Cadets

Naval School Reports Weight Gains

The men at the Iowa navy pre-flight school have been gaining weight regularly from the time the base opened here May 28. The entire staff is very much pleased with the progress and has released the following data concerning the weight increase.

Among the cadets in the first battalion who have been here six weeks, 181 have gained from five to nine pounds, and 14 have gained 10 pounds or more.

Fifty-five men of the second battalion which has been stationed here for four weeks have gained from five to nine pounds while nine men have increased their weight 10 pounds or even more.

Two weeks ago the third battalion arrived here and already 21 men have gained from five to nine pounds while one man has gained 10 pounds.

13 Iowa University Women Now Serving As Camp Counselors

Thirteen university women, recent graduates and undergraduates, are serving as counselors at summer camps in Iowa and neighboring states, according to an announcement by the women's physical education department.

Fern Newcomer of Iowa City is at Camp Fire, Cedar Rapids. Catherine Chessell of Belle Fourche, S. D., Janet Davenport of Neola, Marian and Jeannette Smalley of Muscatine are at Camp Chickagami, Winters Wis.

Bernice Cooper of Aurora, Ill., is at Warwick Woods, Sayner, Wis. At the Girl Scout camp at Fosters, Ohio, are Jane Brooks of Middletown, Ohio, Billie Young of Cedar Rapids, Hazel Littlejohn of DeKalb, Ill., Ruth Summy, and Merleen Lefler of Des Moines.

Mary Judd of Rochester, Minn., is at Camp Kamaji, Cass Lake, Wis. Joyce Templin of Baraboo, Wis., is at Camp Genesee, Oconomowoc, Wis.

The main Russian hope of averting a German break-through to the Don-Volga line, however, must lie in second-front possibilities, not Anglo-American, but Russian "second front" major operations from the north against the Orel-Voronezh flank of the German position. It is more than questionable that even an Anglo-American attempt to cross the English channel to invade the continent could now develop in time to take pressure off the Russians in the Don-Donetz area.

IT'S VOTING TIME—FOR ALL-AMERICANS

The nation's football fans are voting to determine the starting college all-American football team which will oppose the Chicago Bears, champions of the National football league, in the ninth annual all-star game at Soldiers' field, Chicago, the night of Aug. 28. Above are six of the 1941 season's outstanding performers. Approximately 200 newspapers and radio stations in 38 states and the District of Columbia will participate in the balloting. Normal profits of the game, which is expected to attract 100,000, will be divided equally between the navy relief society and the army emergency relief fund. In addition a campaign to raise $100,000 for the army emergency relief is near its goal.

Smith, Westfall Lead

Vince Banonis Also Favored in Balloting For College All-Stars

CHICAGO, Ill., (Special) Vincent Banonis, University of Detroit's giant center, and two Western conference headlines—Michigan's Bob Westfall and Minnesota's Bruce Smith yesterday continued as favorites among mid-western coaches in the nation-wide football poll. The balloting, which is being conducted in 38 states and the District of Columbia, will determine the starting College All-American team to meet the world champion Chicago Bears in the ninth annual all-star game at Soldiers' field the night of August 28.

Banonis, who participated in the North-South game in Montgomery, Ala., last winter and an outstanding lineman in Detroit's 14 to 17 victory over Indiana university last fall, was named by three of five coaches whose ballots were among hundreds reaching tabulators. Westfall was selected on four lineups, while Smith, who was a unanimous choice of nine Western conference coaches Sunday, again collected votes submitted by the five gridiron leaders.

The coaches joining the Western conference group in picking all-American eleven included Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, who last fall directed the Irish through their first undefeated season since 1930; Charles (Gus) Derais of the University of Detroit; Tom Stidham of Marquette university; Don Faurot of Missouri's Sugar Bowl team, and Charles Bachman of Michigan State college. Selections by coaches in the south, east and the Pacific coast are expected to be cast within the next few days.

In addition to Smith, Westfall and Banonis, Leahy placed Frankie Albert, Stanford at quarterback and Jack Crain of Texas, whose runs and passes helped the South whip the North, 16 to 0, at one of the halfback positions. Two southerners—Holt Rast of Alabama and Joe Black of Clemson—were named as ends. Leahy chose two of his players—Tackle Paul Lillis and Bernie Crimmins, the fullback who was transferred to guard last year. The two others on the ballot were Tackle Alf Bauman of Northwestern and Guard Helge Pukema of Minnesota.

Banonis and one of his teammates, End Howard Keating, were picked by Dorais, who coached the College all-stars to a 6 to 0 victory over the Green Bay Packers in 1937. Dorais' backfield was composed of Smith, Albert, Westfall and Bill Dudley, 20-year-old Virginia halfback, who won the national individual scoring championship last season. One other Pacific coast star, Guard Ray Frankowski of the University of Washington, was selected by Dorais. Frankowski, who recently enlisted in the United States naval reserve, is stationed at Navy Pier, where he is studying to become an aviation machinist's mate.

Darold Jenkins, Missouri center and now a lieutenant in the army air corps, was chosen on the teams by Faurot and Bachman. The coaches disagreed on the quarterback, Faurot placing Crain at the position and Bachman naming Andy Tomasic of Temple. Crain also won one of the halfback posts on Stidham's eleven.

Ted Williams Leads Junior Loop Batters By Six-Point Margin

CHICAGO (AP)—It took Ted Williams, the 1941 American league batting champion, a long time to take over the lead this year. Once there, however, he seems to have scared his opposition into backing away and giving him room to run.

The Boston Red Sox biffer had only a scant six-tenths of a point edge on the Yankees' Joe Gordon a week ago. But through Sunday's games, although Ted dropped down three points to .344, Gordon fell nine to .338 and gave the champ a six-point working margin. Bobby Doerr, Boston's second baseman, held the No. 3 spot at .336 after a 10 point decline.

The rest of the roster of the big ten reads this way: John Pesky, Boston, and Les Fleming, Cleveland, each with .328; Stan Spence, Washington, .320; Dom DiMaggio, Boston and Vernon Stephens, St. Louis each .306; Lou Boudreau, Cleveland, and Ned Harris, Detroit, tied at .298.

Williams held the leadership in the matter of most home runs, with 18, and remained in the van of the run scorers, with 73 to his credit.

Catching Problem In American League Temporary

By GAYLE TABOT
NEW YORK (AP)—While the first to admit that catching in the American league probably has reached an all-time low, Birdie Tebbetts of the Detroit Tigers insists it is only a very temporary condition—a sort of, changing of the old guard, as it were.

"It's simply that a lot of fine catchers have reached the retirement stage in the last few years and the new crop hasn't quite had time to develop yet," said the Tiger backstop who worked the entire game against the National league in last week's all-star contest.

"Bill Dickey is the last of a great bunch of American league catchers to remain in harness, and Bill apparently is beginning to feel the years. Just think, only a few years ago our league had a set of catchers that included Mickey Cochrane, Rick Ferrell, Bill Dickey, Luke Sewell and Buddy Ruel, all in their prime.

"And the National league had a bunch like Gabby Hartnett, Jimmy Wilson, Gus Mancuso, Al Lopez and Bob O'Farrell. They haven't replaced those fellows yet either, though the National league started earlier than ours did to break in a set of young catchers. It takes a few years generally to make a good league catcher out of a minor leaguer.

"By far the greatest prospect in either league right now is James Hegan, the Cleveland rookie. I wouldn't be surprised if he's another Bill Dickey. He's even got those long legs of Dickey's. He handles his pitchers beautifully and has a fine throwing arm. He's not hitting yet, but he will, and don't forget it."

Tebbetts, though admitting that his batting weakness is a "thrown ball," takes mild exception to a widespread belief that he can't hit at all.

"I hit .284 last season," he argued, "and that's not bad for a guy who can't run any faster than I can. In fact, it was exactly the same figure that Dickey hit."

Cleveland Collects Only Three Bingles From Masterson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Young Walter Masterson, Washington righthander, handcuffed Cleveland with three blows to blank the Indians, 7 to 0, here last night. The win gave the Senators one game out of the three-contest series.

Reports of Metrovich Back to St. Mary's

By RUSS NEWLAND
(Pinch hitting for Whitney Martin)

SPOKANE, Wash., (Wide World)—St. Mary's college, home of the galloping Gaels, enjoys a vigorously he-man athletic history.

Over the span have paraded such notables as Joe Corbett of Baltimore Orioles baseball fame during the 1890's; All America football stars Norman (Red) Strader, army Bettencourt and Angel Brovelli.

Wedged in with the names of past gridiron greats is that of one James Vedo Metrovich with the notation: "Wonderful prospect, plagued by injuries."

Ten years ago, in far more peaceful times, James Vedo Metrovich registered at St. Mary's from Gonzaga high school in Spokane where he had been the rage of prep football circles.

He combined all the physical and mental requisites for a great player, 195 pounds of speed and power and a loose, slithering runner in whom Edward (Slip) Madigan envisioned another George Gipp of Notre Dame. He could pass the ball with sure-fire accuracy and kick it a country mile—a punter among punters. Between studies he wrote sports news for the college paper.

As left halfback on the freshman team Metrovich was a stand-out on a squad crammed with good ones. In a few frosh games he practically clinched the berth for his first varsity year. Injuries, however, whittled his sophomore competition to only brief appearances on the field.

Then financial and other troubles beset Metrovich. He drifted out of sight and finally out of memory except to a handful of classmates and inimitable Coach Madigan who used to point to the bench and sadly exclaim: "There sits one of the greatest players I've ever seen and no body will ever know it but me."

This football talent that injuries chained to the bench for most of a season is being discussed again by older St. Mary's men. They have just heard that one of those in the epic stand at Bataan was an American soldier named James Vedo Metrovich.

Whether he is dead, missing or injured has not been determined but he is St. Mary's first known war hero and of him former Gael Tom team beater Tom Fouly reminisced: "He finally got into the biggest game of all... and I'll bet he came off that bench roaring."

Detroit Bows Before Gomez

Rolfe Knocks in Two With Homer in Fifth; Bill Dickey to Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees captured a strange sort of a game from the Detroit Tigers yesterday, 4 to 3, to increase their lead over the idle Boston Red Sox to five full games.

The world champions made only six hits and four of these were produced by Joe (Flash) Gordon, who had a perfect day at the plate. He made two doubles and drove in two runs. New York's other markers came on the first home run of the season for Red Rolfe.

Detroit, on the other hand made only four safeties off Vernon (Lefty) Gomez and not one of the Tigers' runs crossed on a base hit.

The homer by Rolfe, who made his first appearance in the Yankee lineup Sunday after a long illness, came in the fifth inning following a walk to Buddy Hassett.

Bill Dickey, the veteran Yankee catcher, left the game in the second inning because of a pain in his right shoulder and was taken to a hospital for examination.

War-time Maneuvers Of Sixth Army Corps Begins in Carolinas

WADESBORO, N. C. (AP)—Battle practice, promising to feature "smashing offensive tactics, marked by teamwork of ground, air, and armored forces," began in the Carolinas maneuver area yesterday with the sixth army corps taking the field to start the three-month long training program.

A war department source in Washington, still reticent about the detailed program of field exercises, explained the purpose of the maneuvers and disclosed that it was the sixth corps that was launching the operations.

An announcement from the headquarters of Major General E. J. Dawley, maneuver director, said the first problem envisioned a red army located in the vicinity of Columbia, S. C., preparing to move to the northeast and a blue army concentrating in the neighborhood of Ashboro.

Operations, supply problems, the coordination of surprise inspired to be emphasized are night and attack.

London Press Calls For 2nd Front Soon

LONDON (AP)—The press of London called anew last night for the opening of a second front in Europe after the German advances in southern Russia.

"If we fail to open a second front soon enough, because of under-organization and indecision, or sheer low spirits, the price of our ineptitude may be no more freedom—anywhere—forever," the London Daily Herald said.

Other papers took a similar stand.

Major Lodge Praises Yank's Performance In Libyan Tank Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American aptitude for mechanics, and stamina and training received in maneuvers helped a United States tank force make a first-class showing in the tank battle of the Libyan desert, Senator Lodge (R-Mass) said yesterday.

Lodge was there as a major in the United States army and yesterday gave the senate, to which he returned recently, a first hand account of the engagement.

The detachment of United States packing and shipping products; communications equipment; communications services; heating, power and illuminating services; repair and handtrades services (blacksmithing, armature rewinding, electrical and bicycle repair, automobile repair, harness and leather repair, clock repair, tool repair and sharpening); health and welfare services; educational services; governmental services.

soldiers, with their own tanks, volunteered for service in the action to gain actual experience, Lodge said.

Discussing the men who manned the tanks, Lodge said "they had the natural aptitude for motor mechanics, the flair for radio work and the ability to drive a vehicle with skill which is typical of our country's youth."

"They were not cannon fodder. They were not robots," Lodge asserted, explaining that the detachment registered direct hits and stopped German tanks, withstood heavy fire from enemy guns and brought themselves and their tanks out without damage.

Of the American equipment, he said:

"The severe test which our equipment received on maneuvers was intensified in battle. Our trucks, our light tanks and—above all—our medium tank M-3—the so-called General Grant—gave good account of themselves."

has declared war on Germany and her axis partners.

He declared that German strength was being sapped despite military gains and that the war was bound to end in victory for the united nations.

WASHINGTON (AP)—There was no immediate comment in official quarters yesterday on the statement by Lieut. Col. Armando Bernal at Mexico City that Germany two years ago planned an attack on the United States.

Bernal's statement that Mexico had been offered territorial concessions for her cooperation recalled, however, the famous Zimmerman note of the first World War.

Arthur Zimmerman, high German government official on Jan. 19, 1917 addressed an invitation to Mexico to enter an alliance with Germany against the United States. This was months before this nation declared war on Germany. Under the proposed agreement Mexico was to get New Mexico, Texas and Arizona.

The proposal was sent through von Eckhardt, German minister to Mexico, and was intercepted. President Wilson published the note March 1, 1917. Its publication was a factor in arousing public opinion to a pitch resulting in the declaration of war a few weeks later.

the German-controlled Paris press warned Frenchmen to weigh the drastic new gestapo execution ruling "in all its consequences."

It was Marcel Deat, another French friend of the axis, who warned Laval to beware. Speaking at a "national popular assembly" in Paris, he appealed for immediate formation of an official single political party in France, and said:

"Laval, you are attacked everywhere; your government is threatened. France needs it to the last and we are full of anguish when we see the redoubtable swarming of opposition forces, and the mounting wave of lies, calumnies, and weaving of criminal plots."

"Watch out, Pierre Laval, to the right and left, behind and everywhere—they are there surrounding you. Pierre Laval, you are terribly alone."

City Council Okays Milk Ordinance For 2nd Reading

City Engineer Given $7,070.46 to Repair Streets and Airport

City council members heard a new federal and state endorsed milk production ordinance last night, and approved it for second reading by title only.

Questions were raised by several local dairymen on the necessity of having cattle completely tested, or whether vaccination was sufficient. Dr. I. H. Borts, assistant professor of hygiene and preventive medicine of the university college of medicine, told the council that vaccination alone would not prevent bane disease in mature cattle, although it may be used for calves.

City engineer, Walter Buchele announced that the city will move on vacant lots beginning tomorrow, and all property owners wishing to take care of the mowing themselves, must notify the city engineer's office. Cost of city mowing will be assessed in proportion to size of lots.

Alderman Sam Whiting Jr. of the third ward introduced a motion to transfer $6,200 from the city emergency fund to the airport fund to partially cover the city's share of cost for the new runway at the municipal airport. Approved by the WPA, the city's share in the project is $9,750.

Settlement of $300 from the general fund was awarded to Nellie Ginsberg and Dan C. Dutcher for injuries sustained by the woman as a result of a fall on a public sidewalk Feb. 7, 1941.

Alderman Wilbur J. Teeters of the second ward introduced a motion to draw a warrant on the sewer rental fund to David L. Stochl for $5,860. It is to serve as quarterly payment to the sewage treatment, plant bond and interest sinking fund for April, May and June, 1942.

An amount of $1,350 to be transferred from the improvement fund to the bridge maintenance fund for payment of repair material in the improvement of the park bridge was approved.

Alderman Don D. Brown of the fourth ward moved that Mrs. Robert Bittner be paid $53 from the city's general fund for services as police matron for the month of June, 1942.

City Engineer Buchele was authorized to spend a total of $7,070.46 for city needs. A total of $5,600 is to apply on sewer pipes for the airport. Materials for repair of park bridge amounting to $988.26 is payable to Lambert Lumber yards. Other items of ex-hole covers, sewer tile, pavement bricks.

The council also authorized a motion to pay Gartner Motor company an amount not to exceed $123.82, plus $20 incidentals, for overhauling the city's pickup truck. This is to come out of the general fund.

A motion was made by Alderman-at-large Edward Lucas to pay Lawrence A. Jarrard $137.76 for liability insurance covering motorcycle, and firetrucks.

An application by Powell A. Rayburn to sell cigars and cigarette papers was approved.

Clyde R. Burnett was released from city contract of a lot purchase and refunded $100, of the down payment because of imminent army service which forces him to withdraw from his purchase.

Lost Hopes

Chicago Lads Fail To Crash Navy

Three Chicago lads, now being held in custody by Iowa City police, yesterday made apparent their belief in the old geometric theorem that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

John Naylor, 17, Richard Neil, 14, and Lockwood Hanna, 16, wanted to become naval air cadets, but they calculated that the formalities and red tape of enlistment through the proper channels would be a hindrance to their purpose. So the three comrades made their way to Iowa City as best they could, hoping to be accepted as air cadets at the navy pre-flight school here.

Naval officers picked them up in the vicinity of the Quadrangle yesterday, and after questioning them, turned them over to the police, who are now attempting to contact the boys' parents.

"We weren't running away from home," the three aspiring air cadets commented last night.

SABOTEURS—

Jaques, 41, both Germans, Chicago. Otto Richard Wergin, 46, and Mrs. Wergin, 44, both German-Americans, Chicago.

Walter Wilhelm Froehling, 40, and Mrs. Froehling, 32, both German-Americans, Chicago.

The FBI said that the Froehling home on Chicago's north side was to be the center of the operations for the eight nazis, who came to America with enough explosives and incendiaries and enough money—$176,000—to last two years. Hoover said that the Froehling residence was to be used as "a hiding place and a clearing point for the exchange of information."

The FBI chief declared that the investigation of the activities of the 14 still was underway and that other possible contacts were being sought. Those already in custody, he said, were "known to have given shelter to the saboteurs after their arrival in New York and Chicago and to have furnished them assistance which would have aided the foreign agents in their sabotage activities in the United States."

The assistance, it appeared from lice judge, city treasurer, and mayor were received and put on file.

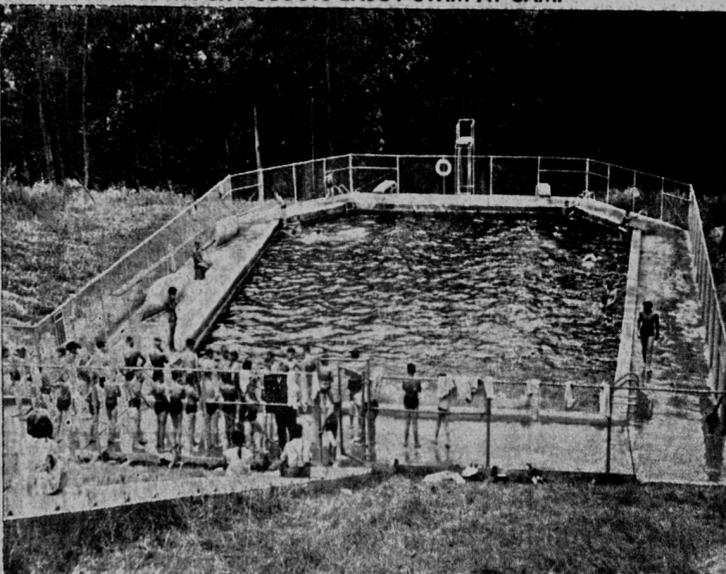

Veterans of Foreign Wars organization was granted permission to attach an electrical unit to lamp post at corner of Clinton and College streets for lighting of a war service scroll now under construction.

City Clerk William R. Condon read a notice from United Airlines stating that Paul B. Shaw was their representative at the local airport.

Linder Tire service was granted $47.03 for sale of three tires and tubes for the police car.

The council meeting was adjourned by Mayor Henry F. Willenbrock until Thursday at 3 p.m. at which time an informal meeting on budget issues will be held. Another council meeting will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m.

IOWA CITY SCOUTS ENJOY SWIM AT CAMP

Twenty-seven Iowa City scouts are taking outdoor life seriously these days at Camp Minneyata, located three miles northeast of Dixon. One of the camp's many facilities is the large swimming pool pictured above. The pool is supplied with three large filter units and the water is changed every eight hours. The scouts, who are living in tents, will be allowed to stay in camp one more week, at which time it will be given over to girl scouts from Iowa City and Davenport. The camp is located in what is known as the "Buffalo Bill" area. Owen B. Thiel, executive scoutmaster of the Iowa City group, is also spending most of his time at the camp.

Today 3 Local Organizations Plan to Meet

De Molay... will meet at 7:30 in the Masonic temple.

University club... will have a coffee-bridge from 9 until 12 o'clock this morning.

Women's Relief... corps will meet at 2 o'clock in the W.R.C. rooms of the Community building.

The FBI description, consisted largely of shelter, changing the bills of large denomination, the purchase of an automobile, and the storing of some of the money. Hoover said that most of those arrested admitted that they knew how and why the nazis came to America.

Going Slowly... Meanwhile, the secret proceeding in which the eight nazis are fighting for their lives against four charges of violating the law and articles of war, apparently was going along slowly.

A brief mid-day statement issued by Major General Frank R. McCoy, commission president, said merely that the ninth witness, who first took the stand on Saturday, still was undergoing cross-examination.

The evening communique by General McCoy disclosed that, after more than two and a half days had been spent questioning two FBI agents, the examination and cross-examination of "certain other government witnesses" was completed during the afternoon.

This renewed the prospect of a conclusion of the trial during the week.

Oil Head Charges U.S. Failed To Okay Fast Rubber Process

WASHINGTON (AP)—An oil company official's testimony that he was unable to gain government approval of a fast way to produce synthetic rubber, drew a quick statement yesterday from Senator Gillette (D-Ia) that "either inexcusable carelessness and lack of action or a very reprehensible purpose" had blocked development of certain processes.

"In view of the situation in the country today," Gillette said at a senate agriculture subcommittee hearing, "I think it is little short of criminal the futility, if not the purposeful hampering, that is existing in some of our government agencies."

"We're rapidly reaching the point where forbearance ceases to be a virtue."

Arthur E. Pew, Jr., vice president of the Sun oil company, testified that the rubber reserve company had rejected the Houdry process to make synthetic rubber from Butane—a natural gas or a by-product of aviation gasoline—on the ground it was insufficiently developed.

He said the process had been worked out jointly by the Sun oil company and the Houdry process corporation of Wilmington, Del. Pew also is vice president of the Houdry corporation.

Conduct Tests... Earlier, Eugene J. Houdry, president of the Houdry corporation, told the subcommittee investigating use of farm products in the manufacture of alcohol and synthetic rubber that tests had shown that Butadiene, the base for synthetic rubber, could be produced successfully from Butane.

The process, he said, consisted of a "one-stage conversion and one-stage purification step, as compared to four or five steps of other competitive processes using petroleum hydrocarbons."

Few said that while the Sun company was unable to get "a fair and impartial hearing," rubber reserve had requested the Phillips petroleum company to "immediately investigate the process before proceeding further with a 45,000 ton Butadiene unit now under construction at Borger, Texas."

"We can't understand," he said, "why they turned down one oil company and then asked that the process be turned over to another oil company."

Both Houdry and Clarence H. Thayer, a director of the Houdry corporation and an engineer for the Sun oil company, expressed the opinion that alcohol offered greater and more positive assurance of success as a raw material than did the program currently approved by rubber reserve based on Butylene as the charging stock.

Thayer added, however, that from a strictly engineering standpoint he would choose Butane in preference to alcohol, asserting that in the case of the former the theoretical yield would be greater, the cost lower, and less material would be needed for the construction of a plant.

After the hearing, Gillette, chairman of the subcommittee, told reporters that the evidence would serve as a basis for a number of questions to be directed at Donald Nelson, war production board chairman, at tomorrow's session.

Child Welfare Leaders Discuss Aims, Types Of Religious Materials

"Where to Get Materials and Information for Religious Training" was discussed yesterday morning by Afton Smith and Mrs. M. P. Youtz, both of the university child welfare station, at a meeting of the mothers' division of the united daily vacation church school in the Methodist church.

Materials and sources of information for this training, it was pointed out, may cover a wide range, but songs, poetry and stories are probably of the most immediate practical use for the parent in the average home.

The speakers claimed that it is difficult to interest children of the intermediate age in the fundamental and beautiful music which may be found in the old classic and standard hymns of the church. This difficulty, it was said, is due to the fact that they more frequently hear the "swing" music of the radio at home and the simplified Sunday school songs.

It was explained that stories selected for religious value should accomplish three trends, namely, give pleasure, preserve traditional religious history and serve as a means of ethical teaching.

At least one well-printed and illustrated volume of Bible stories should be in every child's hands, the speakers emphasized, in spite of the fact that they are more expensive. There are also several inexpensive books on this subject on sale today, and public libraries can usually supply beautiful editions of Bible stories.

Persons interested in obtaining information concerning the purchase and selection of books, pamphlets and phonograph record for religious training are asked to contact the Rev. James E. Waery of the Methodist church or Gene Goodwin of The Daily Iowan city desk.

wounded and missing—as reported to next-of-kin during the period June 18-30, inclusive. Totalling 268, the list included 49 dead, seven wounded, and 212 missing.

"The preponderant share of these casualties resulted from direct action with the enemy, but included in the total are names of those who were lost in accident at sea and in the air on duty directly connected with wartime operations," the statement accompanying the casualty list said. "Actual death or accidents not connected with operations against the enemy are not included in the total."

With regard to those classified as missing, the navy said that some "may have been rescued at sea and landed at isolated spots or otherwise made their way to safety at places from which they have

County to Honor Service Men Friday, 'American Heroes Day'

Observance on South Iowa Union Campus Begins at 9:15 p.m.

Johnson county men now in the armed services of the nation will be honored at a special observance in Iowa City Friday, which has been designated throughout the nation as "American Heroes Day."

The committee in charge, under the general chairmanship of H.S. Ivie, stated yesterday that the program will begin at 9:15 p.m. and will be held on the south union campus, following a university lecture by Dr. John R. Mott.

The new 45-piece navy pre-flight school band will present its first public concert as part of the celebration. The Rev. Louis L. Dunnington, recently named pastor of the Methodist church here, has been scheduled to speak.

It is expected that the Rev. Mr. Dunnington will base his address on his observations and experiences as the only newspaperman who gained access to Czechoslovakia when Hitler absorbed that nation in 1939. He will describe his entrance into Czechoslovakia through Warsaw and his reactions to being constantly shadowed by the Gestapo during his 10-day reporting spree.

Special honors will be bestowed on the parents of the four Johnson county men reported killed in action or missing since America's entry into the conflict. The men believed dead or missing are James Herring, Creighton H. Workman, Greeley B. Williams and John D. Musser Jr.

Prof. Karl E. Lieb of the university college of commerce will preside at the gathering.

A special invitation was issued yesterday to all families in the rural areas and the towns of Johnson county to attend the affair. Mayor Henry F. Willenbrock issued an official proclamation yesterday also urging Iowa Citizens and other residents of the county to turn out for the event en masse.

It is believed that arranging the program to be held in the evening will make it possible for people to attend the celebration from towns and rural areas outside of Iowa City.

Iowa City retailers and their organization, the retail trade division of the chamber of commerce, is sponsoring "American Heroes Day" locally. B.E. Vandekar and Arthur A. Aune are co-chairmen of the retailer's association.

had no opportunity to communicate with United States naval authorities."

The navy's reported casualties now are approximately 11,000.

SUI Graduate Begins Pre-Flight Training At Chapel Hill Base

Robert Smith Ivie, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Ivie, 127 Melrose avenue, reported to Chapel Hill, N. C., last week to begin training as a naval aviation cadet.

Ivie was a Phi Beta Kappa student here at the university where he received his B. A. degree in 1940. He attended Harvard law school from 1940 until last spring when he enlisted in the navy.

After completing the pre-flight course at Chapel Hill, Ivie will be transferred to a naval reserve aviation base for primary flight instruction.

Born in Czechoslovakia, he came to the United States when he was six years old, and has engaged in farming and merchandising since then.

Surviving are his widow, one son, Robert Kile of Detroit, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Pitlick in Arkansas. The body is at the Hohenschuh mortuary. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Hats behind the Headlines

There's more behind the headlines than meets the eye. Hats, for instance. These hats belong to reporters attending the President's press conference each Tuesday and Friday at the White House. Nowhere else in the world would a heap of hats be such a symbol. For nowhere else in the world is the news of a nation's capital covered as it is in Washington. And it is in Washington that The Associated Press has the world's largest local news and photo staff under a single directing head. This is the staff that serves your newspaper and 1,400 other AP members. AP alone provides full coverage of state and federal activities throughout the country. And AP, together with its great associate service, Wide World, has a corps of experts assigned exclusively to the interpretation of Washington news. Look for their bylines daily. CONSERVATION-MINDED? SO ARE SWIMSUIT CENSORS

This year there can be no mistaking the difference in meaning of the words "conservative" as applied to the various town and city fathers who take upon themselves the duties of censors of beach apparel. Keeping in mind the fact that materials should be conserved, the "censors" seem to have taken off all the restrictions of swimsuits that previously were applied. In many places where they once banned, suits with bare mid-ribs, all-white suits and one-piece affairs have appeared with the only reaction being "oh-oh" from the male populace.

WPB Halts Production on More Than 250 Civilian Articles Made of Iron and Steel

WASHINGTON (AP)—The war production board yesterday added more than 250 civilian articles ranging from crochet hooks to pari-mutuel machines to the list of those whose manufacture is prohibited by the iron and steel conservation order.

Production of some of the articles for civilian use already had been halted by another order which limited deliveries of iron and steel to manufacturers holding military priority ratings.

The new group of banned articles is set forth in a list which supplements the previous loan tabulation of articles in which iron and steel is prohibited. A manufacturer of items on the supplementary list is allowed 30 days to fabricate iron and steel for these purposes, but may not use more than 75 per cent by weight of the average monthly amount of all metals he used last year. Assembly of the processed metal is permitted for an additional 30 days.

The new list includes automobile heaters, ball park equipment, barber and beauty shop supplies, shoe buckles, merry-go-rounds, animal cases, containers for cosmetics, crochet hooks, desk sets, curtain rings, reducing machines, garden tools, magic lanterns, many items of hospital equipment, ironing boards, key cases, dog chains and collars, race track apparatus including mutuel machines, siphon charges, swimming pool equipment, lawn tools, trunks, umbrella shafts, vanity cases and weather vane.
