Colombia, Venezuela Attempt to Bring Chile Into Allied War Bloc

Reconciliation With U.S. Listed as Chief Aim of Joint Effort

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Colombia and Venezuela were reliably reported yesterday to have initiated a joint effort to bring Chile into closer hemispheric cooperation, with a reconciliation between Chile and the United States as their first objective.

A high Colombian official said the project had been undertaken by Presidents Alfonso Lopez of Colombia and Isaias Medina of Venezuela at their neighborly good will conference here.

The informant said the two presidents had discussed at length the possible methods of winning fuller support from Chile and of then trying to win Argentina over.

(In Havana, Spruille Braden, U.S. ambassador to Cuba, engaged in an apparently significant conference for the second time in two days with the Chilean minister, Martin Figueroa, and the Cuban secretary of state, Jose Augustin Martinez.

Braden was formerly ambassador to Colombia and significantly was once prominent as an engineer and a business man in Chile, where he married a Chilean.

The Colombian and Venezuelan presidents hope to re-kindle the affections of Chile for the United States, which suddenly cooled after Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles in a speech at Boston, Mass., last week accused Chile and Argentina of permitting operations of axis agents.

President Juan Antonio Rios of Chile thereupon deferred his plan to visit the United States on an invitation he accepted from President Roosevelt several weeks ago.

President Roosevelt in a letter made public Wednesday expressed to President Rios the hope that they could still confer in Washington.

Meantime, reports Wednesday from Santiago said Chile had detained Dr. Hans Borchers, the former consul-general in New York, and one-time consul in Cleveland, Ohio, who turned up in Chile without credentials last March after having been expelled from the United States.

Borchers was reported under police surveillance at the Chilean seaside resort where U. S. Ambassador Claude G. Bowers spends his summers. Three other men arrested as German spies in Chile and refused entry into Argentina were also marked for detention at the shore resort.

Maltese Down 94 Axis Craft Since Sunday

CAIRO (AP)—Axis air losses over Malta increased to 94 since Sunday with the destruction of 13 more enemy craft over the rocky island fortress yesterday morning as the Germans and Italians strove mightily to reinforce and supply their stalled army in Egypt.

The toll probably will rise when afternoon and night results are added to the three bombers and eight fighters already brought down. The preliminary account from Valletta included only the morning fighting.

Malta has undergone more than 3,000 air raids since Italy entered the war, and has accounted for more than 1,000 planes.

The intensified air siege was in its fifth day after the British had shot down 23 axis planes during four enemy swoops on Malta Wednesday, losing only five Spitfires from which three pilots were saved.

Heavy United States bombers in daylight Wednesday again attacked Tobruk—chief axis supply base and destination of axis convoys. A large merchant ship was hit directly by two bombs, and a nearby lighter was destroyed.

Students to Be Deferred Until End of Year

House Leaders Plan To Consider, Pass Measure Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (AP)—The house military committee unanimously approved a bill making 18 and 19-year olds subject to the draft yesterday, after adding new safeguards intended generally to prevent the induction of married men while single men are available for army service.

The senate military committee planned meanwhile to report a similar measure today. Overnight it asked the war department for confidential information on how it intends to use an army of 7,500,000 men. That figure has been made the goal for 1943.

At the same time, house leaders scheduled the measure for consideration and passage, after two hours of debate tomorrow. Opposition was at a minimum, and they were confident their plans would be carried out.

The house committee acted after less than two days of hearings and less than an hour devoted to discussing the measure in executive session. It voted to report a bill introduced by Representative Wadsworth (R-NY), the author of the original pre-war selective service act.

In addition to reducing the draft age from 20 to 18, the measure endeavored to settle a controversy over the interrupted educations of the youths to be called. The bill provides that a high school or college student called for induction shall be deferred until the end of the present academic year. After July 1, 1943, no educational deferments are to be granted.

Additional security for married men was provided by an amendment proposed by Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.) As things now stand, each draft board receives its monthly quota. This must be filled regardless. If there is an insufficient number of unmarried eligibles to make up the quota, the practice has been to fill it out with married men.

Under Kilday's amendment, the quotas would be made statewide, instead of applicable to one town or one section of a city. Thus a draft board may not order the induction of a married man, if elsewhere in the state there are eligible single men. Similarly, it may not send a married man with children into the service, while elsewhere in the state there are eligible childless married men.

In this connection, Major General Lewis B. Hershey, the chief of the selective service, said in the course of the hearings, that with the passage of the pending bill the induction of married men with children was not contemplated before 1944.

Nine Persons Killed In Army Transport Crash Near Chicago

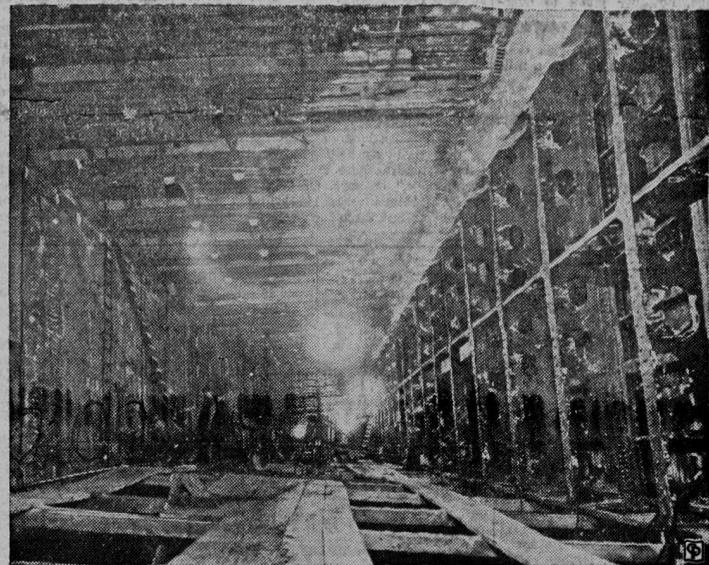

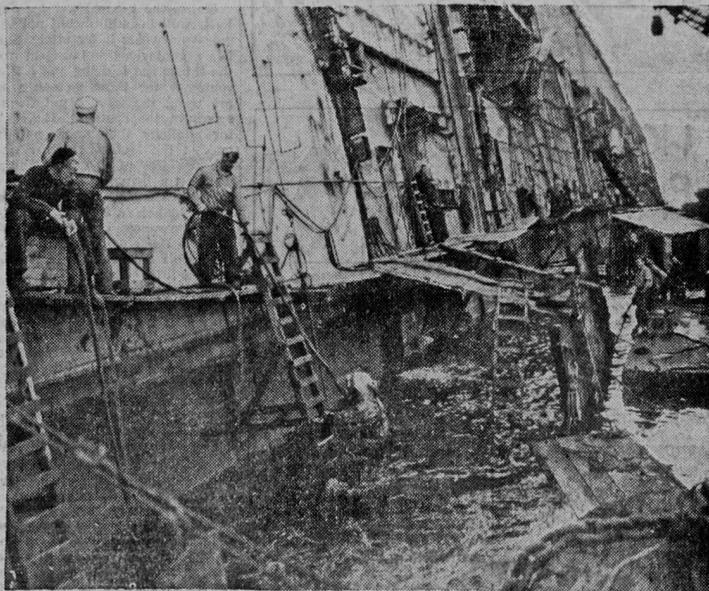

CHICAGO, (AP)—Nine persons were killed yesterday when an army transport plane crashed and burned in a prairie on the southwest side, the army public relations office of the sixth service command announced.

A spokesman at the office said the pilot, the co-pilot and seven passengers, who presumably were military personnel, were killed in the crash. The plane was enroute from Sedalia, Mo., to Chicago, he said.

The two-motored craft plunged to earth about two miles west of the west side municipal airport.

George Boldenow, who works in that vicinity, said he heard the sound of an airplane passing over at a low altitude and then heard a "sharp explosion."

Lafayette to Float Again

These pictures show how the under-water work of repairing the U. S. S. Lafayette, lying on her side in the Hudson river at New York City, is progressing. The Lafayette, formerly the French luxury liner Normandie, turned over and sank after catching fire while she was being converted into a naval vessel. Top photo shows a diver going down to assist in the clearing of under-water sections and sealing of all openings. Lower photo shows interior of the huge vessel. Above-water work has been completed and the task of refloating the ship may soon begin. These pictures have been approved by the navy censor.

Nazis Hurl 100 Tanks, Huge Air Formations Against Stalingrad But Gain Only 'Slightly'

1,500 Germans Slain, 45 Tanks Destroyed By Soviet Defenders

MOSCOW, Friday (AP)—The Germans, in a new offensive spurt, hurled two infantry divisions supported by 100 tanks and huge air formations against northwestern Stalingrad yesterday, and "succeeded in slightly pressing back our troops," the Russians announced early today on the 53rd day of siege.

This German gain, made in a race with approaching winter, cost the enemy 1,500 dead and about 45 of their tanks, the midnight communique said.

South of the besieged Volga river city the Russians said another 300 Germans were slain, and five guns and six blockhouses and two munition dumps were destroyed by one red army unit. The nazi blockhouse garrisons either were killed or captured, the communique added.

Above the city where the red army has driven wedges into the nazi flank extending from the Don river to Stalingrad, the communique reported only indecisive fighting of local importance. The Russians were still attacking however, and using their artillery to disperse German concentrations. One nazi infantry company was said to have been wiped out and three enemy planes downed.

In the mid-Caucasian area of Mozdok the Soviet bulletin said the red army fought off three successive nazi attacks, burning or disabling 19 German tanks and killing approximately two companies of enemy infantry.

The Russians in this area also were reported to have broken into a series of nazi trenches where scores of Germans were killed.

Battle Tank Wedge
"Our troops," the communique said, "fought for the annihilation of enemy groups of tanks and infantry which had driven a wedge into our defenses." This wedge apparently was the same one reported in yesterday's communique.

Fighting also flared on the Bryansk front, about 210 miles southwest of Moscow.

The fresh German attempt to recapture battered Stalingrad occurred as freezing cold, already gripping the vast Russian front from the Arctic to Moscow, was creeping on south toward Stalingrad.

For several days there had been only sporadic fighting in the rubble strewn streets of the workers settlement on the northwestern fringe of the city. This absence of nazi activity had caused much speculation.

Military observers said they believed German activities had been halted before their objectives were reached because of the urgent necessity of re-equipping forces for the winter and because the resolute Russian defenses had worn out many nazi units.

Reds Ask Punishment Of Nazi Ringleaders Held Captive by Allies

Specifically Mention Rudolph Hess as One Who Should Pay Now

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government came out bluntly yesterday for immediate trial and punishment "with all the severity of criminal law" of any German ringleader already imprisoned by the allies, and specifically named Rudolf Hess, a captive in Britain, as one of the "organizers of German atrocities" who should pay now for his misdeeds.

The announcement was made in the form of a communique widely circulated by the Tass agency, containing the reply of Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov to a 10-months-old communication from a number of European governments-in-exile.

Sharp Departure
It suggested sharp departure from the plans of the British and United States governments for post-war trial of axis criminals.

British official circles were startled by this entirely new conception of international retribution. In London there were expressions of fear that action along the line suggested by Russia would bring wholesale retaliation against allied nationals now in German hands. Already the Germans have initiated the mass shackling of prisoners of war.

A foreign office press attache, while saying that "Hess, of course," is considered vulnerable to allied plans for indictment of war criminals, remarked pointedly that the former deputy fuhrer made his parachute descent in Scotland on May 10, 1941, more than a month before Germany attacked Russia.

Post-War Trials
On Oct. 7, Lord Simon, the British lord chancellor, announced Britain had proposed creation of a united nations commission to investigate war crimes and to fix these upon individuals, with the object of post-war trial.

The Molotov communication, dealing exclusively with "the leaders of fascist Germany" and ignoring the Italians and other axis figures, cited specifically and in this order: "Hitler, Goering, Hess, Himmler, Ribbentrop and Rosenberg," as "organizers of German atrocities."

Allied Airmen Cripple Enemy Light Cruiser

Ground Units Battle For Access to Pass Over Owen Stanleys

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Friday (AP)—Allied airmen supporting their comrades fighting the Japanese in the lower Solomons bombed and "evidently seriously damaged" an enemy light cruiser yesterday near Faisi in the upper area of the island chain, a communique said today.

The cruiser, attacked from a low altitude with 500-pound bombs, "lost speed, turned and came to a dead stop, evidently seriously damaged," General MacArthur's headquarters announced. Faisi is a tiny island off the southern tip of Bougainville island, one of the multiple Japanese bases the enemy is using in an effort to dislodge the U.S. marines from Guadalcanal, approximately 325 miles to the southeast.

Meanwhile allied ground troops still were fighting the Japanese in the northern slopes of the Owen Stanley mountains at a point some 12 miles above Kokoda, mid-way between Port Moresby and the Japanese base of Buna on the Papuan coast.

There were no details of the progress of this rugged struggle which has been going on since patrol clashes began last Monday. It was being fought in the vicinity of Templeton's crossing where a winding trail descends toward Kokoda.

Battleships Reported in Nippon Armada Moving Up for Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—Japanese bombers have struck anew at the Guadalcanal airfield held by American forces in the Solomon islands, the navy announced last night, as a great struggle for domination of much of the southwest Pacific ocean raged on.

The latest air attack was disclosed in a communique which added but a few sparse details to what had already been told of the crucial aero-amphibious conflict in a communique earlier in the day.

It was stated that enemy naval forces were still operating, at last reports, in the vicinity of Savo island, which guards the approaches to the Japanese-held northern section of Guadalcanal, and there was no mention of any action involving either American air or surface forces.

The Japanese armada had been disclosed earlier to include battleships. This was the first time the enemy has risked his capital vessels in the vicinity of Guadalcanal and the fact emphasized his grim determination to regain control of the island and smash the American offensive in the southwest Pacific at virtually any cost.

While the outcome of the struggle still hung in the balance, the navy added these details of information in yesterday's communique:

Twenty-seven enemy bombers blasted the Guadalcanal airfield shortly after noon on October 15, Guadalcanal time. Results of this raid were not announced.

On the night of October 14-15, American positions on Espiritu Santo island, site of an air base, in the New Hebrides, were shelled by an enemy ship believed to be a submarine. Espiritu Santo is 450 miles southeast of Guadalcanal, and the action had the appearance of a diversionary move by the Japanese.

Three enemy transports, which the navy previously had reported bombed by U.S. planes on the morning of October 15, have now been observed beached and burning. Meanwhile, the enemy surface forces, including two transports, were "still in the vicinity of Savo island."

An earlier communique, however, had said that American army troops now were fighting shoulder to shoulder with the marines, who originally invaded the island and captured its airfield from the Japanese last August.

These land forces have met the enemy's reinforced jungle legions in rough country west of the airport and it appeared that the main land fight was developing there. The main Japanese objective is the airfield which, with its supporting defenses, is the spearhead of the first American offensive in the Pacific.

A mid-day navy communique, which gave the most complete account yet of the action, described the enemy's forces and told of new blows dealt the Japanese in preliminary phases of the fighting. It listed seven Japanese ships, including a battleship, as having been damaged in the last four days, and reported the certain destruction of 23 enemy planes, with ten more either destroyed or damaged.

This line of strongholds guards the southern approaches to Japan itself. And though it is far to the north, the heart of the island empire would become much more accessible to attack, especially island-based air attack, once the line had been broken.

Interpreting Solomons Battle
Success of American Supply Lines Hinges On Today's Struggle

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the great and decisive battles of the Pacific war was being fought yesterday for the possession of a jungle-clad tropical island with the awkward name of Guadalcanal which few people in the world had ever heard about until two months ago.

On the outcome of the violent land, sea and air conflict hinges both the safety of America's vital supply lines to Australia and the entire success of the first actual American offensive in the Pacific.

Beyond these immediate issues, much broader interests are involved: the length of time it would take the allies to defeat Japan, for one thing; and probably the balance of navy power in the Pacific, for another.

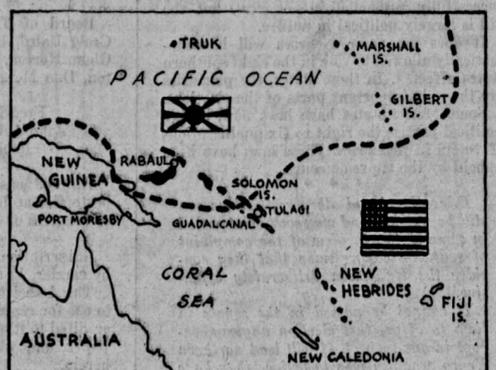

It is obvious that if the battle-hardened marines and fresh American army troops recently sent in to reinforce them can not hold Guadalcanal with the air and naval support available to them, then the first American offensive effort will have ended in disaster.

But it is equally obvious that if the Japanese with their heavy-strengthened jungle troops, their aerial bombing armadas and their battleship-cruiser-destroyer forces can not recapture the strategic airfield on the island and thereby make the American position untenable, then the future of the American offensive effort in that area would be much brighter.

For beyond Guadalcanal lie important Japanese outposts in the northwestern Solomon islands, and after those comes the great line of enemy fortifications extending east and west from the island of Truk, reputed to be the greatest Japanese naval and air base in that part of the world.

This line of strongholds guards the southern approaches to Japan itself. And though it is far to the north, the heart of the island empire would become much more accessible to attack, especially island-based air attack, once the line had been broken.

NEW U.S. BASES IN PACIFIC

In the same communique which announced the loss of three U.S. cruisers in the Solomons, the navy department disclosed the establishment of bases in the New Hebrides and Fiji islands (see map) which strengthen united nations supply lines to Australia and make it virtually impossible for the Japs to successfully launch a full-scale attack against that continent.

Grumbling From the Fireside - - -

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Politics and President Just Failed to Reach Agreement—

WASHINGTON—Professional politicians in the senate and house, many democrats as well as republicans, are still grumbling mildly to themselves about the president's fireside chat. They all seemed to consider it irritating at one point or another. . . his raising of the 18-19 year old draft matter just before their election (not his). . . his avoidance of decisive recommendations on man-power. . . but, above all, his timing of the speech to blanket a late afternoon announcement of the loss of three cruisers in the Solomons last August.

To me it seemed the opposite, in fact the soundest political speech of the year. It signified that the most embarrassing vital war matters which the government was going to put off until after election, are to be met straightforwardly.

But, above and beyond that, it showed this government is swinging away from the defensive and into aggressive action.

Gone was the old tone of caution and warning—caution that we must not expect much military action before next year, warning that we must realize we have a war on.

When you couple this with recent administrative steps, you will find the government is taking the offensive in more than mere speech. His appointment of single-headed control over the confused governmental economic policies and over rubber has strengthened this change of front, and given it substance.

Not only that, but the new war guide he offered the people carried a significant suggestion of the imminence of aggressive military action, not restricted to a second front, but in a vaster theater.

The conception which the public has of a "second front" comes mainly from Russia, and her immediate necessities. Stalin has been agitating for invasion of the continent to relieve pressure on his armies.

Mr. Roosevelt avoided use of the term "second front." He said the military plan contemplates diversions for both China and Russia "by new offensives against Germany and Japan."

This could mean a heavy concentration against Rommel in Africa to annihilate him, perhaps a dozen different attacks between Norway and the Mediterranean islands, further stronger advances by MacArthur in the southwest Pacific, the extinction of the last Jap stronghold in the Aleutian s (it is now a question of whether they can get out of there before they are bombed to pieces) and perhaps even invasion of Japan eventually through Russia, if Stalin will open those Siberian bombing fields to us.

An intimation that the president is thinking aggressively now in terms of early action is conveyed by the fact that, in the very next breath, he talked of what may happen when the axis begins to collapse.

Something Wrong With Conception— It seems to me the president, not on his trip, but before, reached the decision that the congressional conception of good politics was not very good this time.

While the 18-19 year old draft will not be popular with mothers from a standpoint of self-interest, it will certainly be popular with older persons from the same standpoint. But, regardless of politics, the army says it wants these younger boys, and certainly older men are needed elsewhere to sustain both military and civilian life.

In the man-power matter also, the president merely turned down those of his officials who want to handle it the Hitler way, by an arbitrary draft.

Of politics, there was plenty in the speech, true enough. But as it signifies a swing to action, a move to get off the defensive in spirit and movement, and follows many a line critically suggested in this column, I think congressional criticism is petty.

Anti-Poll Tax Largely Political in Nature— Great ado is being raised in some quarters about the anti-poll tax measure now being successfully promoted in congress, but the bill is largely political in nature.

It does not mean Negroes will be automatically allowed to vote in the eight southern states affected. In those states, the primaries are the only important parts of the elections. Some of the states have laws now, giving political parties the right to fix qualifications of voters in primaries. These laws have been upheld by the supreme court.

Educational and other restrictions can still be applied, and may well be expected in some states, in view of the complaint of southern congressmen that they consider the legislation deliberately offensive.

It cannot be passed in the senate in time to affect this election anyway, except in one respect. It will lead northern Negro organizations to believe they have won a victory.

Incidentally, the politicians from one southern state say a local democratic city boss down there is in favor of the bill because he is "tired of paying the poll tax to get all his Negroes in to vote" in every election.

Your Job, Mr. Freshman—

Mr. Roosevelt's late lecture made little dent in the pleasures of most of the university students. The general opinion seemed to be that the president would have accomplished more if he'd spent his time thinking, instead of talking, from the edge of his fire-place.

But his speech did not go unnoticed by the younger members of the student body. That urgent plea for the drafting of 18 and 19 year old boys hit them right between the eyes. Most of us have become hardened to the selective service situation and new views just roll off without sinking in. But not the younger fellows—they've yet to be really affected by the draft board and the prospects of immediate service probably seem a bit rough.

Sooner or later, all of us are going to be in the service. The older fellows around the campus have become resigned to the fact. They've found that their worry can't help the situation and that the best thing they can do is to continue their work so that when their service call comes they will be better prepared to serve.

The same reasoning should be developed by the 18 and 19 year old fellows. Service in the armed forces will come sooner or later. Take it for granted. And then get down to work and prepare yourself so that you will be better able to fill whatever spot you are given in the war effort of the United States.

All branches of the service and of the defense work on the home front are going to need leaders, trained men. Right here at the university is the place for the training of those leaders and you, as students in the university, owe it to your country to do your very best in preparing yourself to fill one of these leadership positions.

Forget the enlistment office, unless you feel that you can better serve your country by enlisting. Your job, until you are called into the service, is to bear down on your studying and get what you can out of school, while you can.

Forget Elastic Checkbook—

The invitations have been sent; the feast is prepared; the Hawks are out to win, and scene is set for the army of Dads that will invade the campus for what may necessarily be the last Dad's day for the duration. Five thousand parents have been invited by President Virgil M. Hancher and A.P.I. Five thousand more invitations from the sons and daughters of those parents should make this the biggest and best of Dad's days!

This week end Dad isn't just the "good Joe" with the elastic checkbook—he's a close buddy whom we want to show the best of times in appreciation of all he has done for us. A wide variety of events have been arranged to entertain him—events that will inspire memories of his college days and make him feel as young as Joe College himself. Dads will welcome a week end of relaxation free from the burdens and worries increased by the wartime emergency.

Gas rationing is only a few weeks away. That means fewer trips home and fewer visitors from home. Because many Dads realize this, a big crowd is expected this week end. They have received invitations from the university. Now is the time to send yours.

"THE LATE MR. BROWN"

Prize Mad-House Moves Away From Hollywood

WASHINGTON—Hollywood can take a seat far back to the rear. Our town no longer can sustain its glory as prize mad-house in the family of cities. This is it now—Washington in wartime.

By comparison with the rush and scramble here, Hollywood is a sane, conservative, placid little village, however given to overuse of "colossal" and "terrific," to pampering its dream girls and boys, to thinking it has done something when it spends a million or so on a movie.

A million? Heh, heh! This epic production here has a budget that wears out the cipher key. 000! Louis B. Mayer who makes the headlines yearly with his tremendous movie earnings could throw it all into the basket here and pay for just a few feet of film on this supercolossal effort.

The way they throw up "sets" in this theater of operations puts Hollywood to shame too. A taxi driver will point out new structures here and there—"temporary," he says, or "emergency." That's what Hollywood builds too, but these look solid.

Washington, as I remembered it, was a beautiful and gracious city. I'm here again but I can't report on it. If there's still scenery, it's obscured by the mob scene in the foreground. The only landscaping I can report is the expanse of bus ceiling straight above. I've got callouses on both hands from strap-hanging. There's nothing like a Washington bus at rush-hour to make you appreciate the wide-open spaces of a sardine can. But I understand they're taking steps. So am I. Mission completed, I'm taking steps straight out of town.

Just from brief exposure to the whirlwind, I'm picking fragments of the alphabet out of my hair. There's something missing in the picture, though.

When I saw her the other day, wearing a uniform and what grandmother used to call "good, sensible shoes," she smiled in that easy girlish way which recalled her firm successes in "Irene" and "Sunny."

"The shoes aren't very glamorous, are they?" she said. "But you can see I'm a vain actress after all, for I cheated a little on the stockings. They are one-thread and not the least bit sensible."

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

Anna Neagle Wearing Natty Blue Uniform—

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—If you should run into a trim blonde having the hint of an Irish accent and wearing the natty dark blue uniform of the civilian defense worker—alphabetically, the CDVO—there's a good chance it will be Anna Neagle, the actress.

Anna has become one of our most active and sincere women war workers. She seems to be making a career out of something started by her roles in photographs. You can't, it seems, portray Nurse Edith Cavell, or Amy Mollison as she does in the new British-made film "Wings and the Woman," without absorbing the crusading spirit of them both.

She is the type of woman who looks well in uniform but not the type who wears it for effect. She has a contagious enthusiasm for the things she is doing and a fine contempt for those women who are using the war to put themselves in the spotlight. It wasn't for publicity that Anna, after making the Mollison picture under the fire of a London blitz, went on a tiring war bond drive through Canada, or spent her brief vacation in New York making appearances in behalf of the CDVO. Her studio claims—and for once I am not skeptical—that it knew little of her plans.

One thing I have liked about Anna Neagle since I first met her is that she is a good listener as well as a good conversationalist. I remember a cocktail party in her honor in which she was possibly the most inconspicuous person present. While a couple of film company objectives bumbled about importantly, Anna sat quietly, but graciously, in a corner. She didn't suffer for attention, but neither did she seek it.

She's not quite five feet five, and weighs only 118 pounds, but has a fighter's chin and thinks women can do a great deal more about winning the war than they are now doing. She is thoroughly sold on women replacing men as ferry pilots, for one thing.

When I saw her the other day, wearing a uniform and what grandmother used to call "good, sensible shoes," she smiled in that easy girlish way which recalled her firm successes in "Irene" and "Sunny."

"The shoes aren't very glamorous, are they?" she said. "But you can see I'm a vain actress after all, for I cheated a little on the stockings. They are one-thread and not the least bit sensible."

Jimmy Heeds the Call

WASHINGTON—About 16 months ago, President Roosevelt elevated Sen. James Francis Byrnes to the United States supreme court.

"Why?" asked both the off-side and on-side politicians in almost the same breath.

"Jimmy" Byrnes, then majority leader of the senate, was the "littie fox" of administration politics. The president, they said, was pulling out his strongest congressional prop. He was, they continued, relegating his most popular legislative leader to that political graveyard—the supreme court.

The answer to that criticism should now be pretty clear. The president was only saying "Jimmy" for that day when he needed him more than he had ever before. For almost a year and a half, with one crisis following another, Associate Justice James F. Byrnes has been sitting serenely on the sidelines, hiding his light under that marble basket which is the highest court in the land; and nursing, through many storms, one of the best political reputations the new deal has turned out.

Then came the necessity of appointing a stabilization czar to

Donations for Food For Starving Greeks Asked by War Relief

Boxes for donations to be used in providing food for the starving people of Greece will be placed in the lobbies of the Iowa State Bank and Trust company and the First Capital National bank, Mrs. Arthur Pickering, sponsor of the Greek war relief group here, announced yesterday.

Nationwide support of the move was asked by Homer W. Davis, national executive vice-president of the Greek War Relief association. He declared that food conditions in Greece today are so severe that 500 die each day from starvation.

"So bad are conditions," he said, "that the allied governments and the enemy powers have allowed us to send food through the blockade with guaranty of safe conduct."

Eight neutral Swedish ships have been chartered for this purpose, Davis stated.

He placed special emphasis on the fact that food will be distributed from soup kitchens by the international Red Cross and that only Greeks will receive it.

MODERN MISS RELAXES

A hot bath and fragrant dusting powder are still the favorite ways of pepping up after a busy day at the office, but a new quirk has been added. None of that out-dated powder puff method for the modern miss. When she prepares for an evening of fun, she jumps out of the shower and picks up her lollipop bath duster. The duster is made of terrycloth, and the long handle makes it easy to scatter the soft powder.

Hoosier Coach Calls Pitt Game 'Toss-Up'

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Entraining for Pittsburgh yesterday with his Indiana university football team, Coach A. N. (Bo) McMillin said he thought the Indiana-Pittsburgh game tomorrow would be a "toss-up" that will depend on the breaks...

He pitched two touchdown passes. Don Robinson and Bob Chappuis have filled in for Kuzma this year, but neither packs the running power of Fritz Crisler's highly-touted halfback.

HAWKLET PASSER BILL SANGSTER

Hawkleys Make Foreign Debut Tonight Against Dubuque Rams

Coach Herb Cormack will watch his City high graders operate on a foreign field for the first time this season tonight when the Hawkleys travel to Dubuque to make their bid for another Mississippi valley conference victory...

Coach Cormack has run his boys through passing drills most of this week which may indicate that the Little Hawks will let loose with their powerful aerial offensive tonight...

Although Dubuque lost by two touchdowns to Davenport last Friday, the Rams showed a lot of speed and deception against the Blue Devils. On the other hand, the Cormacks will try to keep up their record of not letting an opponent score this season.

Dean Yanaush, veteran lineman, will captain the Hawkleys tonight, with Danner, Howard Brown, Dick Lee, Ruben Snider, Tom Hirt and Williams completing the forward wall...

Bill Frey will be unable to make the trip tonight because of a sudden illness. Frey has been alternating with Snider at the pivot post and so Don Trumm will be called upon to replace Snider before the evening is over...

Although the figures point to a Little Hawk victory, Dubuque will be playing its Homecoming game and is worked up to a high spirit. Iowa City is still one of the leaders in the conference standings, however, and will be trying hard to keep on top.

U-High Blues to Try For Fifth Win Today

University high's Bluehaws go after victory No. 5 as they meet Mt. Vernon on the University of Iowa practice field this afternoon. The Blues have been working extra hard this week and are anxious to get going against the Maroons...

After a letdown last week, the Bluehaws have been geared to a fighting edge and might get the jump on their heavier opponents. Coach Paul Brechler named DeWayne Alley and Bill Cobb to man the ends; Capt. Bud Halvorsen and Clark Lums, tackles; Earl Carson and Gene Rummels, guards; and Jack Reed, center. In the backfield will be Bill Helm at quarterback, Don Wagner and Max Seaton at the halfbacks, and Jack Shay at fullback.

Shay may fill the air with footballs if the opportunity presents itself. He has a fine receiver in Alley, and the other backs can get in the open also. Wagner, Shay and Seaton will share the running attack. Mt. Vernon's best players will be Tommy Wolf, back and Ward Hemingway, end.

Yesterday the Blues ran through their plays, and also had a short defensive drill. Jim Rasley and Chuck Kent practiced kicking field goals, and were successful in most of them.

Travel Made Hard for Grid Teams

Players Are Finding Trips As Hard As Game With Special Trains Cancelled

NEW YORK—Travel, travel! There wasn't even a ham sandwich aboard. By much galloping they managed to grab a sandwich and milk at a brief stop. Which about sums up the transportation difficulties confronting our college football teams today...

They arrived at Worcester at 2 p.m., but their uniforms didn't. The suits had been forwarded Friday, but again the transportation problem entered the picture. They finally arrived, on a later train, after the harried Mr. Holahan had all but torn the depot down looking for them.

The Dukes left Worcester at 7 p.m. Saturday, and wearily departed in New York at 1:10 Sunday morning. The world series was on, and the hotels were jammed to the rafters. The boys were finally tucked in, six to a room, to rest, if they could, and at 8 Sunday morning they piled into day coaches again for the long haul back to Pittsburgh.

"Don't get me wrong," Mr. Holahan explained to Mr. McFarlane. "We got all we were entitled to under the circumstances. I'm just describing a few of the difficulties to show how different things are when a team travels today than they were before the war."

The S.M.U. players had to travel two to a berth on the long trip from Dallas to Pittsburgh for the game with Pitt, and when you put two 200-pounders in a Pullman berth it's like trying to play a trombone in a telephone booth. There really isn't much room to move around.

Maybe, after all, Rice didn't act too hastily in cancelling his game with North Carolina. In fact, maybe it was done after a vote by the players who had heard of the experiences of other teams.

But we don't think you'll hear the boys squawking. After all, they're just traveling to a football game, and they know the only kick they've got coming will be in the game.

Those 'In the Know' Say Branch Rickey To Shift to Browns

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The goose that laid the golden eggs for the St. Louis Cardinals may be nesting just across the hall next year. Despite many rumors which have been circulating since it became known that General Manager Branch Rickey was quitting the Cardinal organization, the boys "in the know" around here are pretty confident that Rickey will join up with the reorganized St. Louis Browns of the American league.

In such case Rickey, father of the baseball farm system and one of the most dynamic figures the game has produced, would merely have to change offices at Sportsman's park. The move also would take him back to where he really got his start in baseball, as manager of the Browns.

Seaton will share the running attack. Mt. Vernon's best players will be Tommy Wolf, back and Ward Hemingway, end. Yesterday the Blues ran through their plays, and also had a short defensive drill. Jim Rasley and Chuck Kent practiced kicking field goals, and were successful in most of them.

Iowa Cross Country Team Meets Illinois Trackmen Saturday

Coach George Bresnahan sends his cross country team against its first Big Ten opponent this week as it faces Illinois tomorrow on the two and one-quarter mile run on Pinkbine golf course. The meet is scheduled to start at 11:00 a.m. Capt. Robert Workman and John Frankhouser are expected to lead the Hawkeye runners. Other Iowa men to take part are Dick Lord, Earl Prince, Albert Slater, Maurice Stark, Allan Cutler, Robert Orth and Dick McCarthy.

Coach Harold Osborn's Illinois squad is headed by Clarence Dunn. Other trackmen include Robert Seib, Robert Campbell, Scotty Judy, Art Woods, Bill Sullivan, Don Glading, Bob Rehberg and Henry Walshon.

The varsity members had a practice meet against the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school and the University freshmen last Saturday, and finished a disappointing third. But the team has been working hard this week and hope to do better against Illinois. Workman and Fankhauser are expected to run their usual good race, while Prince, Slater, Lord and Stark are in better condition and should do better this week.

Illinois After Second Conference Victory; Dickerhoof Returns

Penaluna Takes Over Right Guard Position; Ted Curran May Start

Between 20,000 and 25,000 Dad's day fans should watch the University of Iowa play its 1942 Western conference opener against unbeaten Illinois in Iowa stadium tomorrow afternoon. Coming to Iowa City with the eyes of a nation on them, the Illini will attempt to keep right on the win trail, taking up from last Saturday when powerful Minnesota fell prey to the men of Coach Ray Eliot 20 to 13.

The Hawkeyes will have their eyes on Don Griffin, tricky Illinois left halfback who has averaged five yards a try every time he toted the ball this season. Earlier in the week Dr. Eddie Anderson gave the Iowans a look at some Illinois formations as reported by scout Frank Carideo, and also the way the shifty Illini line will operate.

Del Dickerhoof, senior guard from Bellare, Ohio, rejoined the Iowa football squad yesterday afternoon after apologizing for his conduct. Dr. Eddie Anderson had dropped Dickerhoof Wednesday for what he termed "the best interests of the squad." The husky guard's place in the starting lineup will probably be filled by Bob Penaluna, senior from Waterloo.

Two Illinois fullbacks, Capt. Jimmy Smith and Tony Butkovich have also averaged five yards a try, but on 22 and 21 attempts respectively. The Orange and Blue outfit has piled up 113 points in their three games to date to only 13 for their opponents, but two foes, South Dakota and Butler, do not measure up to the standards of the teams faced by Iowa.

Check Details Yesterday the Hawks went through a final checking of details on offense and defense. Operating in the first string line were Bill Parker and Bill Burkett at the ends, John Staak and Bruno Niedziela at tackles, Gene Curran, tomorrow's game captain, and Bob Penaluna at guards and Masterson at center.

The backfield saw Tommy Farmer at quarter, Vacanti and Stauss at the halves and Chuck Uknes and Dick Hoerner alternating at fullback. Ted (Duke) Curran may get the call at half instead of Vacanti in the starting lineup tomorrow.

Ban on Italians Lifted

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A ban against Italians participating in boxing and wrestling in Pennsylvania was lifted by the state athletic commission yesterday in line with Attorney General Biddle's announcement that Italians no longer are designated as enemy aliens. The ban still applies to Germans and Japanese.

Dad's Day Dance Opens Week End Celebrations

Iowa-Illinois Game to Head Activity List

Mass Meeting to Be Tonight on Campus; Dinner Tomorrow

The engineering whistle blowing full blast tonight at 7 o'clock will be the signal for all students and dads to assemble on the east approach of old Capitol for the first mass pep meeting of the year and the first event on the 20th annual Dad's day program. Representatives of Hawkeyes, the coaching staff and the Iowa dads, the university cheerleaders and band will be there to build up a spirit of victory for the Iowa-Illinois game tomorrow.

Sam Lane, C4 of Davenport, will act as master of ceremonies of the program which includes speeches by Ben. F. Swisher of Waterloo, representing Iowa dads; Frank Carideo, assistant football coach, representing the coaching staff; Jim Youel, E4 of Ft. Madison, representing A.F.I. and the football team, and Gene Curran, A4 of Chicago, game captain tomorrow.

Douglas Mills, director of athletics and basketball coach of the University of Illinois, will be introduced by E. G. "Dad" Schroeder, director of the division of physical education and intercollegiate athletics. This will be the first time in many years that a representative of the opposing team has appeared at the mass meeting.

WSUI will broadcast the meeting and the Dad's day dance, which will be held in the main lounge of Iowa Union tonight from 9 to 12. Larry Barrett and his orchestra will play and parents of university students will be guests. During the first part of the WSUI broadcast, Bert B. Burnquist of Ft. Dodge, president of the University of Iowa Alumni association, will be interviewed.

The dinner program of the Dad's day banquet in the main lounge of Iowa Union at 6:30 tomorrow after the game will also be broadcast over WSUI. William Brown, president of A.F.I., will preside as toastmaster.

Banquet Speakers
Speeches will be given by W. H. Godden of Algona, secretary of the Iowa Dad's association; President Virgil M. Hancher; Kathleen Davis, president of Mortar Board, representing Iowa daughters, and Richard Breunler, C4 of Waterloo, representing Iowa sons. Tickets for the dinner may be bought at the Union desk.

Tomorrow morning dads are invited to attend moving pictures at 10 o'clock in the chemistry auditorium, formal mounting of the guard on the campus south of Iowa Union at 10:30, and a demonstration of athletics and acrobatics in the Field house at 11 o'clock.

A large crowd is expected, since many parents, realizing that gas rationing is only a few weeks away, will take advantage of this last opportunity to visit the campus.

Tomorrow marks the 20th celebration of Dad's day, a university tradition that began back in February, 1922, when Edgar Goodrich, then president of A.F.I., asked students to invite their fathers to visit the university, Feb. 24, 1922.

The purpose of that first Dad's day, highlighted by the Iowa-Minnesota basketball game and the Diamond Jubilee Foundation day, was to honor the dads and give them an opportunity to see how the university was operated.

The Daily Iowan wrote the following comment on the affair: "Royally Entertained"

"Visiting fathers were royally entertained yesterday at Iowa's first Dad's day. While no elaborate program of speeches and formal meetings had been arranged, the dads were busy from early morning till late last night, attending classes, looking over the many buildings, browsing through the museum and glancing over a book or magazine in the library while waiting for their son or daughter.

"After a long day of sight seeing, most of the dads declared themselves ready for the big number on the schedule, which was dinners prepared at the various fraternities, sororities, the

Prof. Joseph Howe To Head Hydraulics

Engineering Faculty Member Since 1929 Fills Staff Vacancy

Prof. Joseph W. Howe of the college of engineering has been appointed head of the mechanics and hydraulics department, it was announced yesterday by President Virgil M. Hancher.

The appointment, effective at once, fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. Frederic Mavis three years ago.

Professor Howe received his bachelor of science degree and his master of science degree in hydraulic engineering from the university here. He served as assistant engineer of the Mississippi River Power company of Keokuk for two years and spent two years as instructor in the University of Illinois college of engineering before joining the faculty here in 1929.

He is a member of Theta Tau, professional engineering fraternity; Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering organization; Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity, and Chi Epsilon, honorary civil engineering group.

Prof. Howe also belongs to the Iowa Engineering society, American Society of Civil Engineers, Society for the Promoting of Engineering Education, American Geophysical Union and the American Association of University Professors.

The organization plans to give prizes every two weeks for winners of interteam competition.

Quadrangle and Currier hall. "From every source, comments on the success of Dad's day were favorable, and while a conservative estimate placed the number of visitors at 100, this accomplishment will warrant the establishment of another Iowa tradition."

In those days Old Capitol was surrounded by an open field, and Iowa Union, University hall, the fine arts building and the theater building had not yet been built. The custom of having Dad's day in the fall was begun in 1924 when 150 fathers attended the Iowa-Ohio State football game in the afternoon and a banquet at Youde's inn that evening. Since that time plans for the occasion have expanded so that this year there are eight events on the program.

One of the type used so successfully by the British in their raids over Germany, a 4,000-pound demolition bomb is examined by Brig. Gen. G. M. Barnes left, and Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell before being taken aloft at Aberdeen proving grounds, Maryland, for a test. These bombs acquired the term "block busters" because reconnaissance photos show they can devastate an entire city block.
