Soviets Take Immense Booty, Thousands of Captives; Skirmishes Flare Up in Africa as Both Sides Prepare Main Blow

Russia's great winter offensive, which started rolling when Hitler weakened his lines to bolster the second front opened by the allies in north Africa, thundered at a swifter pace over the frozen steppes west of Stalingrad last night and resulted in the capture of 12,000 more Germans and the slaughter of an additional 15,000.

36,000 Prisoners

Three surrounded German divisions were captured southwest of Kletskaia on the Don with their generals and staffs. The amazing bag of 36,000 enemy prisoners suggested a sharp deterioration of German morale, since never before in this war have the Germans surrendered in such numbers.

Stalingrad Advances

The Russians advanced also inside Stalingrad itself, clearing the enemy from several dozen blockhouses in the rubble of factory ruins in the north, killing 600.

Fighting blazed up in southern Tunisia where, Vichy said, the Germans landed strong reinforcements, but the main battle was yet to be joined around the axis pocket defending Bizerte and Tunis on the north African coast. Most action still was in the air where the allies fought for supremacy against growing German squadrons drained from Russia and other parts of Europe.

Allied parachute troops shattered an axis mechanized column in south Tunisia and captured prisoners. U. S. fighters shot up a troop train near Gabes, halfway between Tunis and Tripoli, and destroyed four axis planes. Bombers raided Bizerte and Tunis by night without loss. (See RUSSIAN, page 5)

Some British Appear to Harbor Unpublished Post-War Hopes--

WASHINGTON—An experienced international authority is back from London telling senators that British official thoughts of the post-war world run astray from those our officials have been expressing (world unity, global state etc.)

He thinks the British will not have the same attitude toward world freedom that we have, but are concerned primarily (and naturally) with the kind of a Europe they will have to live with, 20 miles away.

They see Russia rising as a major world power. If Germany is effaced by the peace treaty and France continues the downward path she has been running for decades, Russia might expect to rule Europe.

Therefore, this authority expects Britain to come to the peace table with ideas somewhat like Queen Wilhelmina has softly advanced—against vengeful extermination of Germany as a nation. He believes Britain will want a strong democratic Germany maintained as a balance of European power.

Refugee governments in Britain already are jockeying, if not vying, with each other diplomatically. They seem only to want back what they had before, and, as a whole, tend toward re-establishment of the old Europe, except all are more or less afraid of the Communists.

This information is not intended as a statement of official British position. Churchill will expand his promise to keep the British empire whenever he feels ready.

But it certainly suggests our officials had better get down to earth in their thinking of the post-war world and planning for it, and prepare themselves to meet world statesmen in the knowledge that they are all going to be human beings, and that nobody has turned angel in this war.

First, concrete thought for the peace conference is that it should be held in Washington. This is a world war (the first one, incidentally). Nowhere is there a capital further removed from the politics of Europe, Asia and Africa, than is Washington. The right atmosphere for a good peace is here.

No matter what our diplomats say, for world effect, that we are fighting this war for—the right of the Malaysians to work at so much an hour, or get a quart of milk a day, or world freedom—we all know we are fighting first for our own peace and security. We are fighting because it was challenged.

Therefore, our first consideration at the peace table must be that we get it. Other things we might get. This we cannot do without.

If our statesmen at the peace conference forget this, they will be fooled as much as their predecessors at all world peace and disarmament conferences always have been fooled before.

First military requisite for our security is the acquisition of the air and naval bases approaching this continent. The globe of the future will continue to shrink as the giant plane continues to be perfected.

Britain will owe us billions out of this war, and she will not find it easier to repay now than last time. But her possessions in the Atlantic and Arctic, the Caribbean, Bermuda, Newfoundland, the Bahamas and British Honduras, have a defensive value to us.

An extension of Mr. Roosevelt's original "bases for equipment" deal with Churchill—and to other nations, for we will need bases in Greenland, Dutch Guiana, and the Pacific as well,—must be made.

Extension of our mutual relations with Canada, Mexico, and all the Central and South Americas, at least down to and including the Panama canal, will have to be accomplished.

At the end, we will have the greatest store of arms, tanks and planes any nation ever accumulated. (Lend-lease provides Britain and Russia may repay in kind.) Distribution of these supplies to small nations for goods may be in order.

A new democratic order for this hemisphere must accompany any new hegemony in Europe (by Russia or Britain), or in Asia (by China).

We must make economic provisions so that never again will we be caught without the raw materials to sustain ourselves in war or peace—tin, rubber, coffee, sugar.

These are just the beginnings of initial thoughts—a new line of thought which must be carefully explored and perfected for the peace conference.

But we must also provide for ourselves a two-ocean navy befitting a two-ocean country, and a permanent army equal to the envy with which all nations regard a big power.

We must maintain this superior army and navy chiefly by creating a different public attitude toward them than we have ever had before. They must be popularly regarded as honorable and superior career services, and must be made so, in fact, by maintaining them as the best scientific training schools for young men who aspire to jobs in aircraft, radio, automobile manufacturing or other lines.

Let no one ask hereafter: "Poof—who is going to attack us?"

We have had 110 wars in our existence (counting various Indian wars) and we got into the last two—because we were not properly armed and some adversary saw a chance to beat us.

A MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS SOUNDS

As Suitors of Ingenu Show Their Versatility

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—For the reason that it takes a play audience a little while to settle down, opening dialogue usually is of scant importance. Or perhaps I have that just turned around. Anyway, I was talking to some theatrical people the other day and we got to laughing over the Where-is-everybody.

They are the young men in flannels who burst onto the stage in the opening scene, toss their tennis rackets on the couch, and say in loud and reasonably animated voices, "Where is everybody?"

You understand that these young men, although handsome and virile and usually with curly blond hair, have no place in the story. They are suitors of the ingenu, or something, and after going through their routine at the start, they retire to the stage door steps and smoke cigarets and talk learnedly of Welles and Saroyan, and reappear only in the last scene when they may possibly say "Where is everybody!" once more, but with a different inflection to show their versatility.

It may be insinuated that these young gentlemen are a necessary evil, or that they are attending a theatrical school at the public expense. If they can get enough expression into their three words, they may get a part with five words and golf clubs in the next play.

Naturally, as beginners, they take a lot of ribbing from the old hands. Sometimes the youngsters recognize the unimportance of their parts, and have to be given pep talks. "Everything depends on you," they are told, "You set the tempo of the play." So the poor kids get all keyed up and as soon as they get onto the stage they blurt out "Where is everybody?" at first opportunity. After a while, the audience quiets down, the star makes his or her entry, the spoken lines takes shape and meaning (or sometimes don't, unfortunately), and the play starts.

The play "Janie," which incidentally is turning in a net profit of $5,000 weekly, has quite a few soldiers whose duties on the stage are to be gay and moisy at a house party. Most of them are real soldiers from Camp Longstreet.

The mimeographed magazine "Cues," published by Genius Inc. is having a lot of fun with these soldiers and the order in which they appear on the stage. "Cues" noted that one soldier who had been the fifteenth to come onto the stage had been promoted to ninth.

This is all very frothy, maybe, but everytime I compose a mental picture of a curly-haired young man in flannels bursting onto a stage and crying "Where is everybody?" I get the sickens and maybe you can too. It's certainly a more cheerful thought than the ingenu who pants: "Oh, but you don't understand!"

They're Choosing Conversation Sides

(Last of a series on how the new tax program affects Hollywood.)

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's difficult to find a middle-of-the-road point of view—in Hollywood—on the $25,000 salary ceiling as it applies to Hollywood.

There are the outwardly cheerful shoulder-shruggers, who'll leave it to their business managers to do the figuring and worrying. There are the "glad-to-do-it" contingent, some of whom add the fervent hope that the producer won't be the ones to profit by the measure through cut salaries for talent. They forget, of course, that the producers are equally hit. There are the outraged, some sputtering, some articulate.

One of the latter, a sober business manager for stars, put it this way: "It will not affect me, as I'm on straight salary from my clients, and not a 10 per cent. I still consider it a diabolic measure, violating all the basic laws of contract. I'm for soaking the rich, and for socking on heavy taxes to win the war. But this thing as I figure it, actually returns the government less revenue than it would get if just the new income taxes were applied. If 300 enemy planes bombed Hollywood tonight, they'd cause no more confusion and chaos in this industry than this single decree."

Time and the mathematicians can prove him right or wrong. Meanwhile, Hollywood already had been retrenching—to meet the new tax bill. The fabulous big parties of the old days when movie hostesses outdid each other in spending for effect and a little fun—were finished at Pearl Harbor. "Bad taste for war time," was the explanation. (They also cost money—if so vulgar a matter may be mentioned.)

Movie people who built little 10-room hideaways with tennis courts, swimming pools, and landscaped gardens already had begun trying to get out from under. Advertisements offering "palatial home—5-acre estate" or "marvelous value—2-acre estate, tennis court, swimming pool" have been common the past few weeks. One agent told me he could pick up $100,000 homes in any of the "fancy" communities for $25,000, which gives you an idea. A studio executive some weeks ago gave up his mansion (which required nine servants) in favor of a beach house—but what he'll do with gasoline rationing isn't clear.

That rationing, combined with scarcity of servants and the need to cut overhead, is sending the once far scattered film colony converging upon the center of things—Hollywood itself. This winter there'll be many mansions either closed, or shut off except for a few rooms; the furniture under cloth dust-protectors.

And that may be symbolic of the old gaudy, glittering Hollywood under a shroud.

What's in a Name?

The degree and rapidity with which that conglomeration of syllables, "Hickenlooper," has been transmuted from political liability to political asset is a phenomenon worthy of some collegian's thesis.

No factor in that transformation has been more important than the grand sense of humor which distinguishes Iowa's governor-elect. More than anybody else he recognizes the possibilities for good clean fun in that handle to which he was born.

Somewhere in one of his notebooks is a list of the distorted pronunciations to which he has been subjected by the thousand and one introducers who have worked on his moniker these past half dozen years. Just a few of them:

Lickenhooper, Hoopenicker, Lickenhoopen, Loopenicker, Hookenlooper, Looperhooken, Lookerhicken, Heickenlooper, Dooperhoopen, Lookerdoopen, Dooperhoopen, Hooperdooper, Dooperhooper, and just once in a while, Hickenlooper, which really is the funniest of all, as one of Bourke's own stories suggests.

He was being introduced to the hard-of-hearing grandmother of an acquaintance. Each time the venerable woman would come back with a "How?" or "I can't understand you." Finally she surrendered with a sigh and observed:

"Well, young man, I guess we'll have to give up. It still sounds like Hickenlooper to me."

Another of his stories on himself has to do with a visit to a drugstore where he ordered a quarter's worth of asafetidy and asked to have it charged.

"What's the name?"

"Bourke B. Hickenlooper."

"A quarter's worth of asafetidy for B. B. Hickenlooper? Oh, heck, it ain't worth the effort. Take it along."

In the campaign just ended, Mr. Hickenlooper was in Washington county for the dedication of a corn monument. One of his hostesses took notice of the occasion by inviting in a few Republican women, with doughnuts and coffee for refreshments.

A young son arrived home from school and was attracted by the doughnuts piled high on a table and advanced to claim his share.

"Sorry," said the mother, "but those are for Hickenlooper."

"What's a Hickenlooper?" he asked in a puzzled manner. Most Iowans used to wonder the same thing—WHAT'S a Hickenlooper rather than WHO'S Hickenlooper? Not any more though. They know.

Hickenlooper is a strange name. But its bearer is a man of large ability—one of whom Iowans will be proud in the years ahead.

(For the preceding missile of humor we are indebted to Earl Hall, managing editor of the Mason City Globe-Gazette. For the subject matter, Hickenlooper—pronounced any one of a couple of dozen ways, we are neither indebted nor at fault, the governor-elect actually carries it around with him.—THE EDITOR.)

Washington in Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Buried under those headlines about the united nations' great offensive in Africa is an important footnote in history—a vindication of our department of state for its long-suffering policy of appeasement toward the Nazi-dominated government of Vichy, France.

If those bitter critics of Secretary Hull and our foreign policy toward Vichy had had foresight instead of hindsight, they might have referred to and pondered over a state department memorandum issued in October, 1940 (and that date is correct) pointing out to the army and navy the great military importance of north Africa from Dakar and Liberia all the way through to the Red sea.

If the axis had had foresight, they might have studied that memorandum and seen in it the germ of the military campaign which is being referred to as the second front.

When the news was out and it seemed apparent that our initial beach-heads in north Africa had been established, Secretary Hull held a special press conference. It was on a Sunday afternoon and that was almost as much of a jolt to the little band of reporters who cover the state department as the news that had come before.

The "Old Man," as many of the Washington press corps affectionately refer to the dean of the war cabinet, was in fine form. His conversation, some of it off the record (which is also unusual) was splattered with good old Tennessee talk. It was plain to be seen that a great weight had been lifted from the Secretary's mind. The burden of balancing that precarious load—"Relations with Vichy"—was no longer on the belabored back of the department of state.

A half-dozen times in the last year, the relations with Vichy have stretched to the breaking point. Had they been allowed to reach that point, the axis would have had to move in on north Africa. It would have had no alternative. Somehow, the state department managed to avert all those crises until the army, navy and other military forces in the united nations were ready for the great offensive now launched.

All of that time the department of state was taking it on the chin with charges that it was the most namby-pamby department of our government in prosecution of this war. The criticism reached its zenith recently with the criticism by Wendell Willkie after his return from his world tour.

In answer to that, Secretary Hull said simply that the department of state and the administration were in complete agreement on the foreign policy toward Vichy.

Why shouldn't they have been? By that time, the huge expeditionary force to north Africa was on its way. The behind-the-scenes battle of north Africa entrusted to the department of state—a preliminary without which the main bout would have not been possible—had been won.

There's a Good Side Too—

Coffee was originally sold by cautious pharmacists "for medicinal purposes only," and in Cairo the use of coffee was forbidden shortly after its introduction in 1500, because it was considered as a dangerous stimulant. Perhaps the present-day limit to one cup a day isn't such a bad idea after all!

"Why, yes, I guess I could be The Spirit of Columbia if it would sell War Bonds."

Hawkeyes Prepare for Final Conference Meet

Hawks Place Stress On Offense, Defense

Kane, Niedziela Still At 1st String Guards; Farmer, Youel Pass

Another drill stressing both offense and defense was given Iowa's griders yesterday as preparations continued for the final conference meeting of the year with Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Both Roger Kane and Bruno Niedziela worked with the first string at guards for the second straight day yesterday, and Tommy Farmer again saw some action at the left halfback position, while Jim Youel called the signals.

Dr. Eddie Anderson has made this shift in order to give Farmer a chance to use his running ability and add more power to the offensive attack.

Youel also can do some of the passing, although the bulk of this job will be handled by Farmer as usual. Bill Stauss stepped into the right halfback spot yesterday while Youel was at quarter, and Jim Ferguson worked at fullback.

Bill Parker and Bill Burkett manned the ends, with Bob Yelton and Al Urban at tackles and Bob Lauterbach at center.

The second string got a look at some Michigan plays, with Frank Carideo and Bill Hofer operating in the backfield impersonating Tommy Kuzma and Paul White, two of the Wolverines' offensive threats.

Both Iowa and Michigan have won six and lost three games this season, and both have met three mutual foes—Minnesota, Great Lakes and Illinois.

Michigan's attack has proved the more potent of the two, averaging 283 yards a game to Iowa's 232. The Hawkeyes, however, hold an edge in passing, 90 to 86.

The Iowa-Michigan series, although it started with Iowa's 28-5 win in 1900, numbers only 11 games. The Hawkeyes won in 1924 and the 1929 game was a tie, but the other eight contests went to the Wolverines.

Last fall, Michigan won, 6-0, at Ann Arbor in the opening game of the entire conference season.

St. Patrick's Cagers Face Oxford Tonight

"Tonight will tell whether we have a great team or just a good one," Coach Cliff Krittia told his St. Patrick's cagers as they finished preparation for tonight's game with Oxford.

Krittia warned the Green and White squad that Oxford has a bunch of "firing fools, and all of them veterans." He believes that only by playing the type of ball they showed in the last half of their opener against Cosgrove will they be able to win this one.

Krittia is developing a fast and well-balanced attack, built around the speed and shooting ability of Billy Connell, co-captain and guard. Jim Russell, co-captain and forward, is the only other player sure to start tonight.

Bob Grady, '41 regular, and transplanted center Earl Murphy are battling for the other front court spot. Bob "Doc" Connell, six foot sophomore, and the veteran Gene Leeney are in the running for the starting center job with Don Gatens and Phil McLaughlin alternating at guard.

Against this group of veterans Oxford is expected to throw practically the same team that played St. Mary's here last Thursday. Included in that lineup were Grummer and Dunn at forward, Yelton at center, and Rousher and Underwood at the guards.

Oxford lost the St. Mary's game 49-28 while St. Patrick's won their opener last Friday, 28-15, from Cosgrove.

Jimmy Conzelman's 'Conzelmaniacs' Invade New York for Game With Giants Sunday

By SID FEDER
Pinch-hitting for Whitney Martin

NEW YORK (AP) — The fall social season in our town hits its peak this week, because the social leader of our set is back to make things pop. Any time Jimmy Conzelman lights anywhere, things pop like champagne corks—and with about the same results.

Jimmy is one of those shy guys. He has no more friends than the entire human race. You have to like the guy.

You probably know all about Jimmy Conzelman. He really gets around. At the moment he's here ostensibly getting his pro football team ready to tangle with the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds Sunday. On the side, he's clearing up some of the duty calls that have been piling up in his date book, which is kept, in his absence, by his social secretary, Toots Shor, the local restaurant man. On the official lists, Jimmy's pro club is the Chicago Cardinals. But you almost have to call 'em the Conzelmaniacs now. Jimmy's trade mark is on 'em.

Man and boy, Jimmy has been kicking around having fun out of football—and putting a lot into it—for about 25 years. In that stretch, he's served "sentences" as player (he was with the Navy's Great Lakes team during World War I); coach of college (Washington of St. Louis was the last) as well as pro outfits; and even owner of a club. It has been whispered, that once or twice he's been seen hawking hot dogs among the fans, but Jimmy states emphatically that this is not so.

You get the idea, therefore, that he knows slightly more than one-and-one about the business of booting a pigskin. So when he tells you flatly that the Chicago Bears are the greatest outfit ever put together, you sort of lend him half an ear anyway. And that's about all Jimmy needs, really.

Now, the neighborhood relationship between the Conzelmaniacs and the big bad Bears has been built up to something like the Hatfields and the McCoys in mountain sports, which corresponds, roughly, to the affinity between pickles and ice cream at 4 a. m. What's more, except for a few scattered instances, the Bears have belted the Conzelmaniacs all around the premises year after year.

So, Jimmy doesn't have to go around pinning posies on either the Bears or their coach, George Halas, the head machinist of the Bear model T, who is now putting muscles on our aspiring navy aviators at the Oklahoma Pre-Flight school. Yet, George has always been Jimmy's no. 1 hero, even though Conzelman for years has tried to build up a public picture of Halas as a cross between King Midas and the watchman at the mint. "Why," Jimmy tells you in wide-eyed innocence, "I saw George in his navy uniform the other day. Looks good, too. Only there were lumps showing here

Announce Cage Card
CHICAGO (AP) Ten basketball double-headers for the Chicago stadium this winter were announced yesterday, with De Paul of Chicago appearing as one host every Saturday and Northwestern as the other on five occasions. When the Wildcats do not appear, Notre Dame, Great Lakes or Bradley Tech will be co-host.

Langhurst Will Pilot Pre-Flighters Against Ohio State Buckeyes

Jim Langhurst, regular right halfback for the pre-flight school's Seahawks, will captain his mates when they go into Saturday's game with the Ohio State Buckeyes Saturday. A former Buckeye himself, Langhurst has played a leading role in the Seahawk lineup this season.

Yesterday's scrimmage consisted of dummy drills and the running of touchdown plays. The navy squad also ran defensive and offensive plays. Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman held a chalk talk last night to finish off the day's work.

In meeting the Big Ten champions Saturday the Bierman men will be facing one of the strongest teams in the country. Last Saturday they disposed of the Michigan Wolverines in good form to the tune of 21-7. The Buckeyes displayed a strong defense against the Michigan eleven and are capable of holding an offensive lead once they have started to roll.

On the other hand the Seahawks have not done so badly as far as both departments are concerned. They have tallied scores of 61 and 46 points in different games. As for their defensive average it looks pretty good for the navy eleven. Although they conceded 28 points to Notre Dame in their only defeat of the season very few teams have come close in the other contests.

After the Ohio State contest the Seahawks have to face Missouri of the Big Six conference. Last Saturday they disposed of a conference foe of the Tigers by crushing the Nebraska Cornhuskers, 46-0, in an amazing display of power.

Col. Bierman seemed pleased with the performance of the cadets in the Husker game. The cadet team played most of the way and made a good showing.

Yellow Jackets Need Help of Doctor Now

ATLANTA (AP)—If there's a doctor in the house, Georgia Tech would like to have him pronto for the ailing underpinnings of Jimmy Luck and Pat McHugh.

That's the word from Acting Head Coach Bobby Dodd, as he gets ready to meet once-beaten Georgia Saturday in a game heavy with the odor of Pasadena roses. And if the significance escapes you, the cause for worry is that Luck and McHugh are Tech's leading punters.

Kicking is Tech's long suit. Exchange punts with Dodd's Yellow Jackets a half-dozen times, and you're 50 yards back of where you started. That's the kind of profit Tech makes by booting 'em long, and running back the other fellow's.

Freshman Clint Castleberry, Tech's pint-o-magic, takes care of the latter. In fact, he's the south's leading gainer on punt-returns. But Tech needs the services of Luck and McHugh—especially against Georgia—and both yesterday were nursing foot injuries.

Report Pepper Martin May Pilot Rochester Outfit Next Season

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A report the St. Louis Cardinals will send Pepper Martin to Rochester as manager of their International league farm club was published yesterday in the Sporting News.

However, Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, had no comment on the report.

Martin, one of the most colorful players in baseball during a dozen years of service with the Cardinals, was made manager of their Sacramento farm club in 1941. His team won the Pacific coast league pennant this past season.

Tommy James Back
COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Ohio State's ace "spot" runner, speedy Tommy James of Massillon, who has been out of the lineup with a shoulder injury, worked out briefly yesterday and is expected to see service in the Buckeye-Iowa-Senhawk game Saturday.

Who'll Okay Coach? Comdr. Whelchel Must Sign on Line

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Somebody had better put an okay on the Navy football coach and his players or there is going to be one side missing when the Army shows up for the 43rd service tussle Saturday.

So saith "Chief Ticket Detective" Morris Gilmore and he—better known as Lieut. Comdr. Gilmore, treasurer of the Navy Athletic association—is the man who has the say-so.

"I'm still holding Comdr. John Whelchel's tickets for the varsity squad," Gilmore said. "He sent in the application all right—but he forgot to sign it and he's not getting the duets until he comes over here and signs for them. Rules are rules."

Which gives you some idea about how tough it is to be among the 20,000 expected to see Saturday's "semi-private" game, when midshipmen will cheer for Army (the Cadets can't come), and the Army mule will be one recruited from within the 10-mile eligibility zone.

Although 20,000 isn't much of a crowd, judged by peacetime standards, accept the word of Gilmore that's plenty when questions like these must be asked:

Can You Qualify?

"Are you a resident of a 10-mile radius of the Maryland statehouse? Navy Athletic association member? Member of the Severn river naval command? Midshipman?"

"Well, prove it, bud!" Personal telephone calls, checks with postal authorities and similar steps have been taken to make certain there won't be any "ringers" in Saturday's crowd, and tickets have been refused to persons who gave business addresses instead of residential addresses.

Howard House Takes Intramural Run Title From Delta Upsilon

Howard house, led by Carleton Strand, captured the first all-university intramural play-off by defeating Delta Upsilon in the cross-country run, 15 to 21, on the university track yesterday afternoon.

Buddy Hart of the fraternity champions came in second, followed by Clyde Cammack of Howard.

The distance of the run was 1.25 miles and was completed by Strand in 7:35.4.

Phi Kappa Psi Beats Commons D

Delta Upsilon and the B's of Phi Kappa Psi tangle on the intramural grid fields Friday afternoon to decide the all-university touch football championship. Both sides have undefeated seasons behind them in seven grid tiffs.

Phi Kappa Psi trounced Commons D, dormitory champs, and Nu Sigma Nu, ruler of the professional fraternity league, for the right to enter the finals. Drawing a bye in the quarterfinals, Delta Upsilon swamped Jefferson, holder of top spot in the co-op dormitory league, 33 to 6, to remain the favorite in the championship play-off.

Paul, Lord Capture Cross Country Titles

Elwood Paul from Cedar Rapids won the Cedar Rapids alumni trophy run for freshmen in 17:34, while Dick Lord of Evanston, Ill. won the Ida Grove alumni trophy run for upper classmen in 17:34 last night on the cross country course. Both runs were three miles long.

Other winners in the Cedar Rapids race were Charles Wagner, Elgin, Ill.; Frank Powers, Cedar Rapids, and Dave Maley, Highland Park, Ill. Finishers in the Ida Grove run included John Fankhauser, Des Plaines, Ill.; Albert Stark, Woolstock, and Allan Cutler, Waterloo.

These runs brought the 1942 cross country season to a close.

Manager's department: The Baseball Digest has released some interesting statistics on big league baseball managers who have finished the 1942 season. The all-time records show that Billy Southworth, who has managed four years in the majors, leads all other pilots.

Southworth's teams have won 316 games and lost 189, giving him a percentage of .626, two points better than Joe McCarthy, boss of the New York Yankees. McCarthy, with 17 years in the big show behind him, has led teams to 1,618 triumphs against 977 defeats for a .624.

Only other manager up in the 600s is Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who in four seasons with the Brooks, has won 376 and lost 238 for a .612 average.

Other pilots finished in this order: National league—Mel Ott, New York; Frankie Frisch, Pittsburgh; Bill McKechnie, Cincinnati; Casey Stengel, Boston; Jimmy Wilson, Chicago, and Hans Lohert, Philadelphia.

Behind McCarthy in the American league are—Del Baker, Detroit; Joe Cronin, Boston; Luke Sewell, St. Louis; Connie Mack, Philadelphia; Jimmie Dykes, Chicago; Bucky Harris, Washington and Lou Boudreau, Cleveland.

Dean of them all is old Connie Mack, who began his career back in 1894 with Pittsburgh of the National league, and in 1901 moved to Philadelphia to pilot the Athletics. Mack comes close to the .500 mark with 3,259 games won and 3,314 lost. Considering the material he has had to work with since the great Athletic outfit he built up were tossed away for money, Mack has piled up an enviable record.

For pure baseball sense and the expert and kindly handling of his players, Mack probably ranks as the greatest of all-time managers. He'd undoubtedly get that nomination for the teams he developed and the championships he's led them to, but with Connie Mack you just can't discount the human factor, something that many a big league pilot today would do well to inject into his leadership.

When a man has a world-beating team with men like Mickey Cochrane, Jimmy Fox, Lefty Grove, Al Simmons and others playing on it, and it's broken up for money's sake, it's a real man who can take it with a smile and go right ahead to develop a ball club with what's left.

Certainly baseball owes Connie Mack a debt, and it would be nice to see it paid to him while he is still living.

City high raised the curtain on its 1942-43 basketball card by dishing out a 38 to 13 defeat to the West Liberty Comets here last night. The West Liberty outfit had a lot of height and spirit, but they just didn't have the polish, organization and individual ability that the Hawklets displayed.

Capt. Dave Danner showed he still has the old basket eye by leading the night's scoring with nine field goals and two charity tosses for a total of 20 points. Danner no doubt would have dropped in several more had he played more, but Coach Francis Merten consistently changed his lineup to give his reserves game experience. Iowa City took an early lead which the Little Hawks held throughout the game. The Red and Whites were on top at the half with the score reading 26 to 6.

Although the Mertenmen outclassed the West Liberty five, both teams had their rough spots. Passing and ball handling were not too smooth for either squad which was the cause of a number of sure scores being muffed. City high's fast break still hasn't reached perfection, but should come around in time. Bill Sangster did a good job of monopolizing most of the rebounds, and "Curly" Brack utilized his amazing speed to intercept hurried Comet passes.

West Liberty had a lot of speed and fight, but found the Hawklet defense too tight to work into the basket. Ron Spohr, captain for the Blue and Whites, was the main cog for the invaders.

St. Mary's Ramblers Tackle Solon Tonight

Co-Captains Smith, Seemuth Will Lead Attack in Game Here

In quest of their third victory of the year, St. Mary's Ramblers engage Solon tonight on the old City high court.

Coach Francis W. Suplee has been drilling his boys all week on ball handling, and the Ramblers should be able to coordinate their passes better than they have in earlier games. Co-Capt. Melvin Smith, who scored 19 points against Oxford, will again lead the attack, but will be helped out by Co-Captain George Seemuth, who has been looking good in practice.

Monday night the Ramblers had a practice scrimmage against the Complete Auto team, a group composed mostly of former St. Mary's players. Although beaten by the older cagers the Ramblers benefited from playing in such fast company.

Looking for more speed, Coach Suplee has made two changes in his starting lineup since the Oxford game. Dave Ivie will replace Bill Sweeney at forward, and John Lenoach will hold down Don Braglia's spot at guard. Seemuth will handle the other forward post, Keith Bright will be at center, and Smith will take the other guard position.

The alignment of Dakar and West Africa with the allied cause prompted allied sources in London to predict many of the 60,000 French fighting men there soon would be marching under our banner.

A lull of three or four days may be expected as Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery rolls his main army into assault positions and advances his sky-ruling air force to fields close enough for pulverizing attacks. Both the British and Marshal Rommel's exhausted Africa corps needed rest. The British wrested the Gialo oasis from the enemy, eliminating a threat to their left flank before El Aghella.

The Japanese, facing defeat on New Guinea and Guadalcanal, were massing 150,000 to 200,000 troops for a major drive into Yunnan province in southern China.

Americans continued to advance west of Henderson field on Guadalcanal, aiming to drive the outnumbered Japanese into the sea. Our great naval victory in the Solomons and vigilant patrols night and day have virtually cut off Japanese reinforcements.

Hannibal Gobbler's Photocrime . . .

1. Last seen parading down East Washington courtyard, His Royal Highness, Thomas the Turkey, was taking a stroll before council meeting, wearing his striped morning coat and low crown.

2. It was reported from closest companions that His Majesty paled before the calendar on the date noted as November 26. His consternation was marked by intimate friends, who supposed he was worrying about his income tax.

3. Suspect No. 467, who was found approaching the victim with suspicious gestures, drooling jowls and a wicked gleam in his right eye, is being held for questioning by the local royal police force in regard to the assassination of His Majesty.

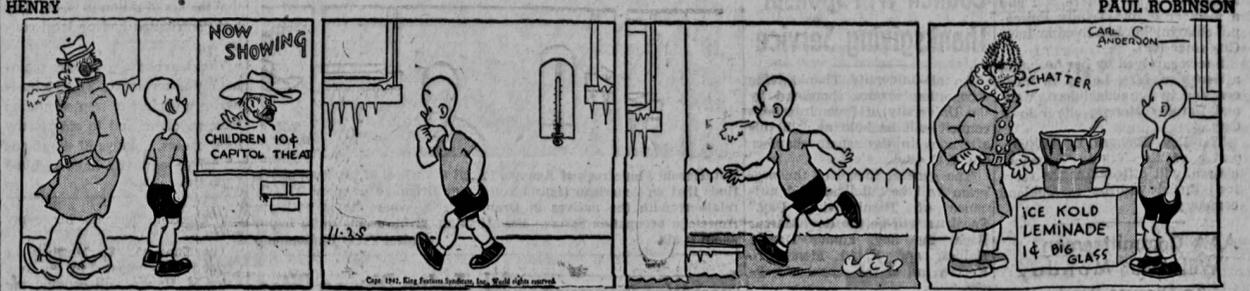

Now YOU Decide

"Who Done It"

Local Hospitality Club For Armed Forces To Open December 5

Ballroom of Recreation Center to Be Changed To Service Lounge

A hospitality club for the armed forces will be opened Dec. 5 in the Recreation Center. The large ballroom will be transformed into a comfortable lounge equipped with radios, phonographs and ping pong tables. The room will be open to enlisted men during the week and to the Navy Pre-Flight school cadets on the weekends.

The United Service Women, the Scribblers club and Sustaining Wings are working with the general board of directors on this project. On the board are Mrs. Louis Pelzer, Mrs. Roy Koza, Mrs. J. J. Hinman, Mrs. Bruce Mahan, Leona Amelon, Mrs. James Herring, Mrs. W. M. Edwards, Margaret Toomey and Mrs. J. D. Boyd.

Co-chairmen of the executive board are Mrs. Pelzer and Mrs. Koza. Working with them are Mrs. Dwight Edwards, Mrs. I. A. Rankin, Mrs. C. O. Ingersoll, Mrs. O. S. Blexrud, Mrs. B. S. Summerwill, Mrs. Jacob Van der Zee, Mrs. C. A. Bowman, Mrs. George Whisler and Mrs. C. W. Wassam.

The plans which were presented are in accordance with the request of the mid-western area camp and hospital council of the Red Cross. Because the U. S. O. does not function in areas where fewer than 5,000 service men are stationed, such activities are under the direction of the Red Cross camp and hospital council. Lieut. A. C. McKelway, chaplain of the Navy Pre-Flight school, is working with the local council on this project.

On the date of the formal opening, Dec. 5, the Red Cross executives in charge of the activities of the camp and hospital council for the mid-west will meet in Iowa City.

Iowa City citizens who are able to donate or lend furniture are asked to communicate with Mrs. Herman Smith (2773), Mrs. Clyde Smith (4897) or Mrs. I. A. Rankin (4402). Items needed to make the clubroom comfortable and attractive are chairs, davenport, piano, tables, desks, card tables, rug, table and floor lamps, radios, phonographs, records, games, current magazines and books. Northeast Des Moines Undergoes Half-Hour Experiment Blackout

DES MOINES (AP)—A large area in northeast Des Moines was in darkness between 9 and 9:30 p. m. last night in the city's first blackout test of the year.

Fifteen hundred members of the city's civilian defense protective corps, including 700 air raid wardens, were on duty. The test was a forerunner to the nine-state blackout planned for the midwest for Dec. 14.

Only two instances of lights not immediately extinguished when the blackout began were reported. One of these was at a residence where wardens found the lights burning but no one at home.

In the other instance reported, a single light had been left burning by accident at a business establishment.

A successful test blackout also was held at Camp Dodge last night, it was announced by Lieut. Col. Orson B. Powers, commanding officer.

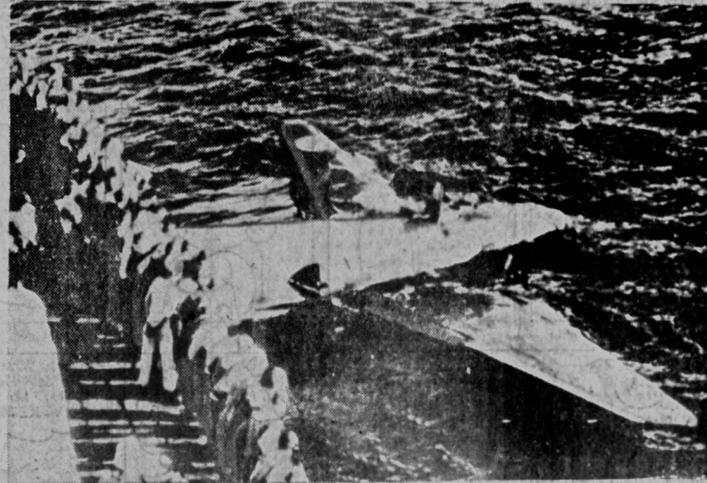

The progressive stages of warning were received and all lights were out for a 25-minute period. The entire post and the adjacent Hyperion club were blacked out.

Businessmen Warned Against Unauthorized C. of C. Solicitations

The chamber of commerce repeated its warning to Iowa City businessmen yesterday to beware of solicitations which have not received full authorization by the chamber.

It was reported to the chamber's retail trade division recently that several businessmen had lent support to a solicitation without first inquiring for the chamber's letter of approval only to discover later that the organization to which they had contributed had no local connection.

The chamber of commerce maintains this service to protect businessmen against misrepresentation from solicitors and to aid worthy local causes. Savings of thousands of dollars annually have resulted from this work.

The Rev. A. L. McQuay of Cedar Rapids, assisted by the Rev. Estes M. Haney, will conduct the service. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Workings of International Law Explained by Prof. Kirk Porter

"We must put our faith in collective responsibility made effective through agencies of international government," Prof. Kirk H. Porter, head of the political science department, told the "World Today" lecture audience last night in a talk on international law.

Contrary to popular belief, international law does not legalize war, he explained. "It affords all manner of remedies, but offers a code of behavior if war does break."

Law is a collection of customs, habits and traditions developed through the centuries, Professor Porter said. When this code of ethics emerges into rules enforced by governing agencies, it is considered law in the narrower sense. International law is the collection of rules built up by the community of states.

The intimate contacts of nations in recent decades increased the need for international law, Professor Porter said. But international law now is in the same condition as "British law 1000 years ago" because of the lack of contact of states in the past, and because instrumentalities for administering and executing sanctions behind the law have not developed.

Many students of international law believe the concept of neutrality has reached a turning point and is emerging into the idea of collective security, he said. The ancient idea of "keeping away" from fighting powers gave way about 150 years ago to the policy of rights of neutral nations, Professor Porter explained.

Hopes that with this policy war would become increasingly difficult did not materialize, and we reverted to the old isolation policy in the present war. He believes that our arms embargo, cash and carry rule, the forbidding of the arming of merchantmen, and the rule that citizens must keep off belligerent merchant ships prior to our entrance into the war, all tended to play into the hands of the enemy.

More realistic than the hope of eliminating the causes of war, Professor Porter believes, are the tremendous possibilities of instrumentalities for settling disputes.

The most important device, in his opinion, would be a world court which would provide for nations the services of the present domestic court, to apply the rules of international law that have developed through the centuries.

The "World Today" lecture was held last night instead of Wednesday night, as is customary, because of Thanksgiving.

18-Year-Old Iowa City Boy Commits Suicide

Robert Eggenburg Shoots Self With .22 Calibre Rifle

Robert Eggenburg, 18, 105 1/2 S. Clinton street, committed suicide late Monday night or early yesterday morning by shooting himself in the heart with a .22 calibre rifle, County Coroner George D. Callahan reported yesterday.

When questioned yesterday afternoon, Mrs. John Eggenburg, the boy's mother, could offer no explanation for the suicide. "We had no reason to believe," she stated, "that he was not in the best of spirits. He left no note or any other hint as to his trouble."

She added that the family had all retired early and she did not hear Robert come in. It was about 2 a. m. when her husband awoke, and, noticing a light in the outer room, he got up to investigate.

He found the closet door jammed and forced it open, to find his son's body lying on the floor.

The family did not hear the shot because the rifle used, a .22 short, made just a slight crack and the boy had muffled the sound.

Callahan explained yesterday that the suicide probably occurred at about 11:15 Monday night.

He is survived by his parents; four brothers, Earl of Muscatine, Harold, who is over-seas with the army, Russel and Vern, at home; and five sisters, Mrs. Lyle Wilson of Missouri, Mrs. Jim Hall of Wapello, Mrs. Ed Guell, Mrs. Walter Reese and Mrs. Hal Horsthorne, all of Iowa City.

Funeral service will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Hohenschuh mortuary. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Special Mail Only On Thanksgiving Day

Only special delivery and official military mail will be delivered by the Iowa City postoffice Thanksgiving day, Postmaster Walter J. Barrow announced yesterday.

Special delivery letters and parcels as well as official mail for the university military department and Navy Pre-Flight school will be handled, Barrow said, but aside from this, no city or rural deliveries will be made. The windows at the post office will be closed, but mail collection will be made at the same hours as on Sundays.

TEA DANCE

A tea dance will be held in the river room of Iowa Union from 4 to 5:30 this afternoon. Admission will be free and the dance will be open to couples only.

Kiwanis Club Hears Account of Blackout

Commander Rollin M. Perkins of the Johnson county citizens' defense corps spoke to members of the Kiwanis club yesterday on the county-wide blackout held last Thursday night.

"The blackout was a success beyond my most optimistic expectations," Commander Perkins said. "The cooperation of the citizens of Iowa City and the community was very good."

Local young people, including grade school, high school and university students, were outstandingly cooperative, according to the speaker.

The commander outlined and briefly discussed the major blackout rules, indicating that they had been generally obeyed during the recent practice.
