British Subs Sink 4 Axis Ships In Mediterranean Sea as Allied Planes Hit Tunisia, Libya Lines

LONDON (AP) Strong and effective attacks along the Mediterranean sea front by British submarines which sank four axis ships, and probably three more, and shelled the southern shore of the nervous Italian mainland highlighted the north African campaign yesterday.

Attacks by allied planes on both the Tunisian and Libyan ends of the line were announced. Aground, no action of consequence was reported from General Eisenhower's allied headquarters.

The new successes in the unending allied war of attrition against axis shipping were disclosed by the admiralty.

Three small supply and ammunition ships went down under British torpedoes. Three other cargo ships, one of them a large vessel, whose forward part was blown off, were hard hit and believed sunk.

Says Deaths Caused By Carbon Monoxide

Coroner Thinks Gas Killed Pair in Cabin; Decision Due Today

Promising to return an official verdict sometime today, County Coroner Frank L. Love last night expressed the opinion that carbon monoxide poisoning caused the deaths of Randall C. Hansen, 27, Davenport medical student, and Darlene DeMuelenaere, 21, Brooklyn, Iowa, nurse whose bodies were found in a Coralville tourist cabin Monday afternoon.

"We have every reason to believe the deaths were due to carbon monoxide, accentuated by the heat in the room," said the coroner.

Quantities of the gaseous toxin were discovered in the blood of the victims by toxicologists who conducted post mortem examination for three days before bringing the investigation to a close Thursday night.

Packer Given Major's Post In U.S. Army

Dean Paul C. Packer, head of the college of education since 1923, has been granted a leave of absence to accept a commission as major in the United States army.

Dean Packer will leave here Tuesday for Washington. In his new post he will be in command of group instruction in the special service division of the war department's services of supply. It will include all American army camps and all foreign bivouacs.

President of the State Teachers association and a past officer in the national association, Dean Packer is a nationally known educational authority. He was sent to the Philippines several years ago to make an educational survey.

Sanity Hearing Asked For Frances Farmer

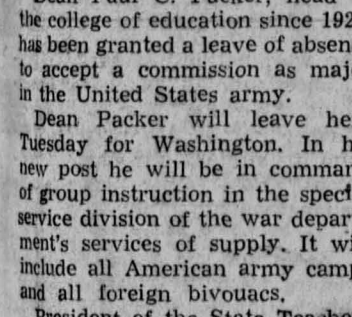

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Movie Actress Frances Farmer was taken from the county jail to the psychopathic ward of the general hospital yesterday and a petition was filed in superior court asking that she be given a sanity hearing.

The petition was filed by Dr. Thomas Leonard, Alhambra, Calif., psychiatrist, who said she told him: "I hear voices day and night and they bother me." Dr. Leonard also stated that the blonde actress feared people were "putting things in her food and drink" and this caused her to be ill and distracted.

Miss Farmer had started serving a six months sentence for violation of probation, imposed in a drunk driving case. She resisted arrest and had to be taken forcibly from a Hollywood hotel to jail. The warrant for her latest arrest was issued on the complaint of a movie studio hairdresser that she was knocked down by the irate actress.

At Seattle, the actress' mother, Mrs. Lillian V. Farmer, said she hoped to help the former University of Washington coed "return to normal."

2 Jurors Doubted

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two women jurors were accused yesterday of having expressed opinions as to Errol Flynn's guilt or innocence, and a deputy district attorney moved for a mistrial of three counts of statutory rape against the actor.

Deputy District Attorney John Hopkins said an affidavit of Mrs. Harriet R. Ponder, a member of the superior court jury panel, named the women as Mrs. Lorene Boehm, wife of an industrial engineer, and Miss Elaine Forbes, secretary to a radio network executive.

Excused Jurors
Other affidavits, he declared, were submitted by two jurors who were excused from duty in the Flynn case, Mrs. Emily S. Blue and Mrs. Gussie Rowe. Mrs. Ponder, he explained, was not called in the case.

Mrs. Ponder's affidavit, made in the district attorney's office yesterday morning, asserted that two weeks before Christmas, Miss Forbes told her she "had to get on the Flynn jury and that she would convict him and 'we would fix him'."

Similar sentiments were expressed "in a vehement manner" on other occasions, the affidavit declared.

For the Actor
Mrs. Ponder said that before Flynn was brought to trial, Mrs. Boehm had expressed interest in seeing the actor when he made appearances in the hall of justice, and on one occasion declared:
"I am for Errol Flynn in a big way."

The affidavits of Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Blue said in effect that they had heard Miss Forbes say: "I just must get on the Flynn jury. I don't know what I'll do if I don't get on that jury." They said they heard her express that hope several times over a period of two days.

Would Acquit Flynn
Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Blue said they heard Miss Forbes express the opinion, however, that she would acquit Flynn, instead of convict him, as Mrs. Ponder declared in her affidavit.

The mistrial motion went over until Monday when Judge Leslie still granted a continuance agreed to both Deputy District Attorney Thomas Cochran and Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler.

The motion created a sensation, (See FLYNN, page 5)

Strikers Ordered Back to Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP)—John L. Lewis won a victory over miners revolting against his leadership today when the war labor board ordered anthracite strikers to go back to work and submit their grievances to the processes provided in their working contract.

This order was exactly the stand which Lewis, in a defiance-breath-taking speech to the board, had contended was the only one that WLB could take.

Andrew Yevchak, president of the tri-district general mine committee, had demanded the board intervene, declaring there would be a general strike in the anthracite field Monday unless he could take home word that the board still considered the issues—a $2 a day increase in wages and elimination of a 50-cent increase in dues.

FLYNN PAVING JOB BACK IN NEWS

President Roosevelt's nomination of Democratic Leader Edward Flynn as minister to Australia again raises the old furor about the New York City paving blocks that were allegedly used by the Bronx county political leader to pave the driveway of his country estate. Senator Styles Bridges (left), leader of the senate fight to block the Flynn nomination, accepts from Sidney Baron one of the bricks in question that was dug up from Flynn's estate. Baron is secretary of a committee in New York intent on reopening the paving block scandal.

Public Hearings Set On Flynn Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)—Public hearings on Edward J. Flynn's nomination to be minister to Australia were ordered unanimously by the senate foreign relations committee yesterday after Democratic members had refused to entertain a Republican suggestion that the committee, in the interest of wartime harmony, recommend withdrawal of the appointment.

Chairman Connally (Dem., Tex.) announced the hearings would begin next Wednesday or Thursday and would be conducted by the full 23-member committee. He will set the date after communicating with Flynn, who has called a meeting of the Democratic national committee for Monday in Chicago to present his resignation as its chairman.

Today's action was taken at a closed session of the committee which lasted about an hour. Senator Bridges (Rep., N. H.), who has made charges that Flynn is unfit to hold the diplomatic post, was called in at the outset to present them. He told reporters that he had heard some talk in the committee "about getting President Roosevelt to withdraw the appointment but it didn't get anywhere."

Reds Push Across Kalitva River, Slash Rostov-Moscow Railway

Russian Army Pursues Enemy in 'Complete Rout' 60 Miles Before Key City of Rostov; 2,500 Nazis Slain, Captured

MOSCOW, Saturday (AP)—A Red army surging across the Kalitva river cut the Rostov-Moscow railway yesterday at Glubokaya and reached a point 90 miles northeast of Rostov. Nazi communications center serving southern Russia, it was announced officially early today.

This fresh spurt by Col. Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's middle Don forces came simultaneously with sweeping Russian gains in the Caucasus where the Germans failed to halt the Red tide, and the communique said the enemy there was "in complete rout."

Approximately 30 towns and railway points were reported seized by the Russians during the day.

Little had been heard from General Vatutin's forces lately. The break-through in the middle Don bend sector gave Russia's big winter offensive greater momentum and increased the threat to Rostov whose capture would be a severe blow to Germany. Rostov is the communications peg for all the Nazi armies operating in southern Russia.

The communique mentioned for the first time the fighting in the Donets river area which covers the northern approaches to Rostov.

The Red army apparently had not yet crossed the Donets, but it occupied the region above it between the Kalitva river and the Moscow-Rostov railway.

Allies Break Through Sanananda Defenses, Slay at Least 152 Japs

Bombers Carry Out Scattered Assaults Along Coast at Mubo

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday (AP)—An allied break-through at Sanananda, New Guinea, in which at least 152 Japanese were killed in one day's fighting Thursday was reported in today's noon communique by General Douglas MacArthur.

Sanananda, immediately northwest of Buna on the northeast New Guinea coast, is the only spot in all the Papuan peninsula still held by a fragment of a Jap army which once totaled 15,000. There jungle fortifications plus swampy conditions caused by recent rains had slowed up the cleanup drive.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters did not amplify the official report which said that arms and equipment were captured after the forward positions were destroyed.

Far up the coast at Mubo, which is south and inland from Salamaua, another allied force concluded a three-day assault in which "heavy" casualties were indicated and the Japanese area headquarters destroyed. Yesterday's communique listed Jap dead there as totalling at least 116.

Bombers meanwhile struck far and wide, blasting targets in the Tanimbar islands, in the Arafura sea, harbor installations at Rabaul, New Britain, and supply dumps at Lae, New Guinea.

A Liberator on reconnaissance shot down one of two intercepting fighters over Celebes, in the Dutch East Indies, and near Lae another Liberator knocked down at least two of six.

Tribute to a Great Man—

The recent appointment of Wiley Blount Rutledge, former dean of the University of Iowa college of law, to the supreme court bench was indeed a wise choice, satisfactory to all—Republicans and Democrats alike, for it was easy to recognize his outstanding character and integrity and admire his legal understanding and liberal viewpoints.

A new arrival in Washington politics (he has only been in the capital city since 1939 when he began his duties as associate justice of the supreme court of appeals), Justice Rutledge is one of the most retiring men ever to figure in public life—deep and soft voiced, a man more interested in human welfare than abstract facts of law.

But behind this surface of quietude lies a soul of deepest understanding, a mind of wide repute, all making a man eminently qualified for the post. The appointment, praised by members of the national and district bar associations and by Congressmen from the western states, speaks well of his worth. And it is the first time President Roosevelt has taken a man off another court bench to serve in the higher tribunal.

While on the Iowa campus—from 1935 to 1939, Justice Rutledge maintained his same quiet life. Fishing was his only hobby and sport. He always moved his own lawn, and his wide range of friends included students, faculty men, writers, governors and townsmen. All found him a man of great social sympathies—a humanist, first and last.

Born in the Kentucky hill country, the son of a Southern Baptist preacher, Justice Rutledge is not only representative of Kentucky and Iowa. Before he became dean of the S. U. L. college of law, he had lived in Tennessee, Wisconsin, Indiana, New Mexico, Colorado and Missouri. The appointment is a tribute to eight states, giving the west and mid-west a son on the supreme court bench.

Germany Starving at Stalingrad

Hitler Trying to Aid Trapped Nazi Army

WASHINGTON—The Russian communists writers have such a florid style they have practically monopolized the top headlines in the American press this winter with elated but confusing accounts of their great military successes.

23 Divisions

Day after day for a while, they had 23 Nazi divisions surrounded and trapped before Stalingrad, then whittled the figure down to 22 when one was annihilated and thereafter largely avoided the matter.

Hitler Wasted Everything

Hitler stupidly wasted men and weakened himself with bad generalship by throwing everything he had into an offensive to capture Stalingrad. His mistake prevented him from sparing the planes from that front which would have made his drive for the Caucasus oil a success. He still foolishly expected to capture Sta-

Chernishkovsky and push Von Hoff's comrades back so far as to leave him no source of supply except a long one by air.

Hitler has pressed even rickety airplanes into service to drop food, but the area Von Hoff's army occupies is barren of forests (unlike the terrain before Moscow last winter) and affords no source of fuel in the deadly Russian winter.

Reds Letting Von Hoff Starve

The Reds are letting Von Hoff starve while they drive on southward. Their objectives are to chase the Nazis completely out of the Caucasus province, clear Rostov and re-establish a line upon the Donets river in the Ukraine. This they seem very likely to do.

It is too much to expect that their winter campaign can accomplish more than this, and decisively crush German resistance and bring peace on that front. In fact, such a decisive result, which many Americans have been led to expect from the communiques, is no doubt beyond their official objectives.

They will be satisfied if they can drive out or capture the 300,000 Nazi soldiers (20 divisions) which Hitler has in the Caucasus pocket south of Rostov.

The real condition on the Russo-German front is best explained by the events leading up to the present situation.

Hitler wasted everything and weakened himself with bad generalship by throwing everything he had into an offensive to capture Stalingrad. His mistake prevented him from sparing the planes from that front which would have made his drive for the Caucasus oil a success. He still foolishly expected to capture Stalingrad as late as mid-November. The Reds broke his attack there by waiting until the moment his assault showed signs of weakening and then throwing an offensive in upon his flank north of the city. Unexpectedly, their forces south of the city also were able to advance until they had a pincer working on the Nazis from the north and south.

Within two weeks their swerving counter-attacks proceeded far down the two railroad lines running west and southwest from the city. At Salsk on the southwestern railroad line, they scared the German Caucasus forces so greatly that the Nazis began withdrawing voluntarily from their advance mountain positions to the south.

May Cut Railroad

If the Reds are able to continue down the Salsk railroad 50 miles or so to Tikhoretsk, they will be able to cut the only railroad line of supply of all the Hitler Caucasus forces south of Rostov.

The Red attack seems certain to succeed because Stalin now has technical superiority on that whole Russian battlefield. He can thank us for that.

Hitler has withdrawn so many planes to meet us in Africa that the Reds now have superiority in the air. They are also getting large quantities of equipment from us now, because the convoys are protected by the dark arctic night on the northern route to Murmansk and the southern supply route through Iran is functioning better.

Soviet Air Superiority

Some observers say the Reds have 3,000 planes. If so, they should keep air superiority no matter what Hitler does.

Indeed, it is probable Hitler will concede the Red objectives, give up his quest for Caucasus oil and withdraw to a shorter line west of Rostov. Then he will be able better to distribute his weakening forces to meet Mr. Roosevelt's threat of invasion on other European fronts.

Washington in Wartime 'Aid to China' Jig-Saw

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—When the story started simmering here recently that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had recalled his military mission to the United States because we were transferring war materials in India destined for China to the British, the debunkers went to work again.

This is a story that might well have started on axis short-wave stations.

Let's examine the facts. It's true: (1) That the Chinese military commission has started for home (but it's going to take a leisurely junket through training centers and war plants and probably will not actually be on its way for six weeks yet); (2) That the Generalissimo isn't happy about the short-of-all-out aid being given China (but neither is Stalin happy about aid to Russia; Prime Minister Curtin happy about what is being done to clean up his Australian area; nor the Norwegians, Dutch, Belgians, Greeks, etc., happy that we haven't opened a big second front on their frontiers).

(3) There is no longer any open road to China. The only possible way we can get any supplies to them immediately is by plane. The only way we can get heavy supplies to them soon is by reopening the Burma Road. The only way we can reopen the Burma Road is by giving General Wavell's (united nations—not "British") forces in India all the heavy supplies that we possibly can ship there.

Four—When Gen. Hsiung Shihfei, head of the Chinese military mission here, came out of his farewell conference with the President and was asked "if he was satisfied," he answered, "We shall never be satisfied until our enemy is completely defeated." The answer is strictly Oriental, but the conclusion that he and his aides walked out of the White House in anger or disgust is just somebody's pipe-dream.

(5)—That Madame Chiang Kai-shek came to the United States for other reasons than her health and that it may well be that timetable for the united nations' drive into Burma has been ordered stepped up because of Madame Chiang's pleas here.

(6) That as the "arsenal for Democracy" the United States is on the spot as never before. It's up to us to supply the sinews of war in the Pacific. With England to help, we've got to keep aid to Russia flowing; provide most of the knockout drops for the axis in western Africa; clear the Mediterranean; and threaten the axis with a second front from Norway to Brittany.

Seven—It's the nature of nations to fight, for all they can get. Some men who have complained against our apparent strategy have been aware that their statements would be used by the axis as divide-and-conquer propaganda, but they have been willing to risk that for the sake of increasing the protection of their own people.

These seven points have come from the best military and diplomatic sources I could find here. The eighth and perhaps most important point of all is that we are ourselves training and equipping an army of ten million men.

What ever complaints you hear or feel, apply them to this catechism, get down to cases and—well—write your congressman.

Interpreting The War News

Russians Have Not Yet Struck Mortal Blow This Winter

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Tremendous as the Russian gains have been in the past few weeks, there is some warrant for the attempt of Nazi military commentators to convince German public opinion that no vitally important strategic position has yet been lost by the axis.

The battle for Rostov, main doorway to the lower Volga and the Caucasus, and for the Kerch strait postern gate is still to be fought. The last half hundred miles to either of these important places are certain to be the hardest. Aside from the entrapment of axis forces once estimated at 300,000 men in the Stalingrad pocket, no mortal blow has yet been struck at the foe unless it is the attrition effect.

Hitler's Purpose

Weeks ago Hitler said it was his purpose to hold what must be held and see which side wore out first. The pattern of his retreat from the Caucasus and retirement from the Don to guard the Rostov-Kerch strait communication arteries is following that dictum.

Only final annihilation of the Nazi garrison of the Stalingrad pocket or the fall of Rostov could clinch a conclusive Soviet victory in the south beyond denial by any Nazi spokesman. Inasmuch as shortening and therefore strengthening axis lines appear forming on a Rostov defense perimeter nowhere less than 60 miles or so from the prime Russian objective on the Don estuary, the crisis in the fight is yet to come.

Battle of Logistics

Like the war in every other theater around the globe, the battle in Russia is one primarily of logistics. In the military science that word covers the problem of transporting, quartering and supplying troops in action zones.

HOPE SPRINGS ETERNAL

Rostov is the vital logistics peg for Hitler's whole war effort in the south of Russia as Pskov is the key to his northern flank, which still virtually envelops Leningrad.

Nazis Lose Objective

He has already lost, except in a defensive sense, an objective which he rated high as an outpost and protection for his southern drive. His trapped army before Stalingrad can do little now to hamper Volga communications for the Russians, the task Hitler assigned to it. Whether it can survive, unhoused on the winter-gripped steppes and fed and munitioned only by air, until the battle of Ros-

Joe's Being Funny Out There—For Don

HOLLYWOOD—By now, if all went well, Joe E. Brown is somewhere in the South Pacific spreading his extra-wide grin around for the amusement of American service men in the battle areas.

When you see a Joe E. Brown picture today it is easy to recall that he hit the theatrical trail as an acrobat. He ran away from home in Holgate, Ohio, to do it for three dollars a week. Most of his movies have at least one sequence in which he knocks himself around like a punching bag.

But when you see the big Brown mouth—the same whose size once kept him out of a movie contract—it's not so easy to remember that he first came to pictures in drama. He had death scenes in six of his first seven pictures. Even today, though a comedy star, he looks for characters to interpret rather than plots.

No other picture star could bring the boys down under more detailed sports lore than Brown. He's baseball-crazy, foot ball-crazy, sports-crazy. A whole room of his Beverly Hills home is set aside for a veritable museum of sports trophies and mementoes.

He's taking with him on his tour, along with a feature picture and some cartoons and his own ad libbing, a movie of the Rose bowl game—probably because he can't think of any finer treat for a soldier than seeing his own adopted team, U. C. L. A., play football.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

Joe's Being Funny Out There—For Don. HOLLYWOOD—By now, if all went well, Joe E. Brown is somewhere in the South Pacific spreading his extra-wide grin around for the amusement of American service men in the battle areas. He's the first Hollywood actor to get down there, just as he was the first to get up to Alaska. There's a special reason for this trip, though it won't be mentioned by Joe, who'll be just as funny as he knows how. It's Joe's boy Don. Don was in the ferry command and died in a crash. Joe was in Detroit playing in "The Show-Off" at the time, and when he heard the news he acted like any father. He didn't say the show must go on. He just broke down and cried and called off the show and flew home. When Joe plays the fox-hole circuits down under, he'll be playing a memorial performance. Before he left, Joe finished up a picture called "Chatterbox" with Judy Canova, caught the Rose bowl game to cheer his team—U. C. L. A.—and took machine-gunning lessons just in case he met a Jap or two en route. "Chatterbox" is pure Brown-Canova comedy, full of stuff that has made each of them famous—a yarn about a radio cowboy trying to get along in movies when he's never met a horse. It's just comedy—nothing about

Point Ration Plan Explained

Chairman R. J. Phelps Urges Housewives To Buy Carefully

The point rationing program which will ration all canned and packaged processed foods beginning sometime in the early part of February was explained in detail yesterday by Chairman R. J. Phelps of the Johnson county ration board.

At the same time, Phelps urged Iowa City housewives to buy sparingly of these food items until the rationing system can go into effect.

He stated that a one week suspension of retail selling will take place just before the plan goes into use. This period will be used by the merchants to prepare for the rationing.

Everyone who now holds book No. 1 will have to register again for book No. 2 which will be used in the new program. The registrants will have to declare all canned and processed foods on hand except those which were rationed at home.

This declaration will not be made by types of foods on hand but rather by total cans.

The second book will not be used for sugar and coffee rationing, Phelps added. The consumer will continue using the old book No. 1 for these products.

He also made it plain that point rationing will be the same in every part of the country regardless of the price charged for the product.

Chaplain Robert M. Schwyhart of the Pre-Flight school, speaking before the Masonic service club at the Masonic temple yesterday noon.

"I have lived with the men, I have seen them fight and die—and I can tell you that I have never anywhere seen finer young men in my life," Chaplain Schwyhart said. The Vincennes had been in the battles of Midway and Coral sea before going on her fatal mission.

Soon after the outbreak of war, the Vincennes was ordered into the war area. She set out from San Francisco with a complement of about a thousand officers and men. Then came the battle of Midway, in which the Vincennes acted as the supporting cruiser of the aircraft carrier Yorktown.

Chaplain Schwyhart described the fiery end of the carrier which he witnessed from the nearby Vincennes.

"Between air and torpedo bomber attacks I saw the Yorktown listing. Twenty-five percent of the men were going over the sides. Some were on rafts, others on life belts, still others swimming."

The men of the Vincennes had to be on constant guard from air attacks. "It's not a comfortable feeling," the chaplain said, "to be at battle stations which are mostly below deck and to wait more or less helplessly to see where the bombs are going to fall. But the Vincennes came through."

The next day, the ship's barber told the chaplain: "Chaplain, I imagine everyone on the ship was praying yesterday."

After a brief respite at Pearl Harbor, the Vincennes was attached to a large convoy.

"This Sunday afternoon we had movies," Chaplain Schwyhart continued, "and after we came out, we saw a mass of ships—our own—spread out against the horizon. We saw transports with marines on them. That meant a landing."

Chaplain Schwyhart described the emotions of men who know that soon they are to go into an action from which not all will return. A landing action demands many casualties, no matter how successful.

Word has been received of the marriage of Mary Ann Goldzier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldzier of Richmond Heights, Mo., to Delbert Ringena, son of Dr. and Mrs. Engle Ringena of Brooklyn, Iowa. Mrs. Ringena attended the University of Iowa, where she was affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Ringena attended the University of Iowa and Drake university at Des Moines. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. The couple is making their home in San Marcos, Tex., where Mr. Ringena is stationed with the army air corps.

Chaplain Robert M. Schwyhart Tells Masonic Service Club of Sinking of Cruiser Vincennes

By RENE CAPPON

The life and death of the cruiser Vincennes, which was sunk during landing operation in the Pacific, and the heroic exploits of the ship's crew were pictured by Chaplain Robert M. Schwyhart of the Pre-Flight school, speaking before the Masonic service club at the Masonic temple yesterday noon.

"I have lived with the men, I have seen them fight and die—and I can tell you that I have never anywhere seen finer young men in my life," Chaplain Schwyhart said. The Vincennes had been in the battles of Midway and Coral sea before going on her fatal mission.

Soon after the outbreak of war, the Vincennes was ordered into the war area. She set out from San Francisco with a complement of about a thousand officers and men. Then came the battle of Midway, in which the Vincennes acted as the supporting cruiser of the aircraft carrier Yorktown.

Chaplain Schwyhart described the fiery end of the carrier which he witnessed from the nearby Vincennes.

"Between air and torpedo bomber attacks I saw the Yorktown listing. Twenty-five percent of the men were going over the sides. Some were on rafts, others on life belts, still others swimming."

The men of the Vincennes had to be on constant guard from air attacks. "It's not a comfortable feeling," the chaplain said, "to be at battle stations which are mostly below deck and to wait more or less helplessly to see where the bombs are going to fall. But the Vincennes came through."

The next day, the ship's barber told the chaplain: "Chaplain, I imagine everyone on the ship was praying yesterday."

After a brief respite at Pearl Harbor, the Vincennes was attached to a large convoy.

"This Sunday afternoon we had movies," Chaplain Schwyhart continued, "and after we came out, we saw a mass of ships—our own—spread out against the horizon. We saw transports with marines on them. That meant a landing."

Chaplain Schwyhart described the emotions of men who know that soon they are to go into an action from which not all will return. A landing action demands many casualties, no matter how successful.

But while unloading supplies and protecting the marines, the Vincennes was subjected to "terrific bombardment. On the first day of unloading, 27 Jap planes came over. We shot down many of them, and scared the rest off," Chaplain Schwyhart stated. During the afternoon a heavy torpedo and strafing attack occurred.

At dawn the following day the Vincennes received her death blow by enemy shell fire. It was during that catastrophe that the men of the Vincennes "displayed their character and courage."

Chaplain Schwyhart related the story of one man, a gunner of a crew of eight. His seven buddies were killed by shell fire. He kept on fighting even though both his legs had been shot away to the knees. "He braced himself against the bulkhead, and standing on his stumps he tried to

R.O.T.C. Freshmen To Match Rifle Team Saturdays in Armory

Cooperating with the war department's desire to train as many as possible in the art of rifle marksmanship, Capt. F. A. Nolan, director of marksmanship, has announced a series of weekly competitions between freshman R. O. T. C. students and the freshman rifle team to be held every Saturday afternoon in the Armory.

The first match will be fired at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon, with the freshmen who have military classes at 8, 9 and 10 o'clock on Mondays and Wednesdays competing with the freshman team.

The 10 highest scores made by each team will be counted for team competition, and the team having the highest total for 10 targets will be the winner for the day. Individual awards will be made to those students who finish among the first five on each team.

The matches will be conducted under the supervision of the director of rifle marksmanship, assisted by staff members of the military department. All freshmen enrolled in R. O. T. C. who have satisfactorily completed the basic rifle marksmanship course are eligible and invited to compete.

WTS Student Pilots Arrive For Training

The first group of student pilots to come to the University of Iowa under the navy's new war training service plan will begin their schooling early next week.

Elmer Lundquist, instructor of aeronautics, announced yesterday. The WTS has been instituted by the navy to replace the civilian pilot training program under which they have been sending pilots to the university for training since the fall of 1939.

Under the new plan the students will continue to receive ground school work from the university and flight instruction from the municipal airport under the supervision of Manager Paul B. Shaw.

Only change in the program will be that the students will now be uniformed navy cadets, on active duty, receiving cadet pay. They will also be subject to navy discipline.

Went Upstairs After dinner, Miss Boyer continued, she and three others of the party went into the living room for coffee. She was there, she thought, for 15 minutes to a half hour. Then she went upstairs to use a telephone.

"I tried one door," she said, "but the room was dark. I tried another, but it was locked. 'May I come in,' I called.

"A voice said 'You can come in if you want to, we are taking a shower.' Then I heard a laugh or a giggle."

She said she could not identify the voice.

"Well," said Hopkins, "Did the sound of the voice bring to your mind a certain individual?"

"Yes," she replied. "Who was it?" "Mr. Flynn."

Iterated under re-direct examination that she made no objections to Flynn's actions.

"Did you resist Flynn's attempt to be intimate with you in any way? Or did you push him, or shove him, or ask him not to do it?" she was asked.

Her answers to both questions were negative.

"The Mission Had Been Accomplished"

"A running fight between the bomber and the 18 Japanese pursuit planes continued for 75 miles . . . continued until the remaining pursuit ships exhausted their ammunition and turned back. With two engines gone and the plane practically out of control, the American bomber returned to its base after dark and made an emergency landing. THE MISSION HAD BEEN ACCOMPLISHED."

—President Roosevelt, in his Fireside Chat, April 28, 1942

THERE, in the words of President Roosevelt, is one of the war's most stirring episodes—a demonstration of how, with one man killed, another man's hand shot off, and a third man injured, our American boys stuck to the fight, bombed their objective, and brought their plane home.

Undoubtedly you felt a thrill when you heard it over the air, and maybe you'll have another thrill reading it again.

But your thrills won't win the war!

It takes planes—thousands of them—and tanks—thousands of them—and shells—millions of them—and bullets—billions of them! It needs ships and guns and jeeps . . .

It takes money.

It takes the money of all of us—the girls at their typewriters, the men at their machines—the clerks, the farmers, the messengers, the bookkeepers and the salesmen.

It needs a surging, patriotic Nation of people who love their country enough to buy a share of America—investing 10% of their wages every payday—a dime from every dollar—in War Bonds.

It needs—and it's getting it!—the cooperation of Labor and Management to put the Payroll Savings Plan over the top.

Your money in War Bonds—10% of your salary every payday—not only will help pay the bill to create the most powerful blasting force ever put together—but you'll do yourself and your family a favor, too.

Because every time your savings amount to $18.75, you'll get a War Bond—worth $25 in ten years.

You don't give your money—you invest it, both for Victory, and for your own personal security.

That's your mission—will you accomplish it?
