Loss of Kharkov Railway Base Acknowledged by Soviet Union

Germans Push Powerful Counter-Offensive From Kursk to Middle Donets as Russians Advance in Smolensk Region

LONDON (AP) — The Russians officially acknowledged last night that the Red army after days of fierce fighting had evacuated Kharkov, rail hub of all southern Russia, and both German and Russian dispatches indicated that the powerful Nazi counter-offensive still was pressing viciously on a broad front from Kursk to the middle Donets, below and beyond Kharkov.

But the Russians reported new advances in the Smolensk region farther to the north on another vital front, with Red army troops advancing further west of Vyazma in a drive toward the powerful Nazi base at Smolensk itself.

The Russians admitted withdrawal from the great industrial city of Kharkov only 24 hours after the Germans had claimed its recapture in a smashing counter-offensive that has rolled the Russians back on a huge arc in southern Russia, an offensive carried by 325,000 German troops, nearly half of them fresh divisions rushed up from France.

"Our troops after many days of fierce fighting by order of the command evacuated the town of Kharkov" Monday, said the Russian midnight communique as recorded by the Soviet monitor. The Germans had claimed Kharkov fell on Sunday.

The Russian communique made no more mention of Kharkov, which they had wrested from the Germans Feb. 16 in a major triumph of their winter campaign.

The Russians had battled furiously in the streets of Kharkov in a vain attempt to save the strategic center against a crushing attack by huge numbers of German infantry and tanks.

To the southeast in the middle Donets area, the Russians told of stubborn fighting against tank-supported German attacks, while the Berlin radio declared that the counter-offensive had advanced to Chuguev, 35 miles south of Kharkov, and also extended to areas west and northwest of Kursk, 125 miles north of Kharkov.

* * *

Indicating furious fighting southeast of Kharkov, the Russian midnight communique declared that 600 Germans were killed in an attack launched by large forces of Nazi infantry and 18 tanks.

* * *

Despite these reports of Russian successes, it was clear that the Germans were continuing to throw powerful weight into their smash back eastward into southern Russia.

On the northern front, the Soviet war bulletin said, Russian units advancing northwest of Vyazma smashed German counter-attacks and defenses and captured the town of Kholm-Zhirkovsky, 80 miles east of Smolensk.

The Russians are aiming a four-pronged attack at Smolensk, and Kholm-Zhirkovsky fell to a spearhead swinging down from the northeast, indicating an attempt to outflank Smolensk from the north.

West and southwest of Vyazma Soviet troops captured several populated places, wiping out "large numbers of German officers."

Navy, Marine Corps To Give Examinations For E.R.C. Students

Recruiting boards from the office of naval officer procurement in Chicago and the marine corps headquarters in Des Moines will be in the Quadrangle all day Thursday to give physical examinations to E. R. C. students who at the time of enlistment indicated a navy or marine preference, it was announced yesterday by the office of student affairs.

In order to take the examinations, students must have all the required papers approved by the military representative here and a pass card to gain admittance to the Pre-Flight base and the Quadrangle. The pass card must be obtained at the office of student affairs. The qualified applicants may take their examinations any time after 9 a. m. and will enter the south door of the Quadrangle to go to the examining room.

The facilities for the physical examinations were given through the cooperation of pre-flight officials, Commander John M. Bloom, executive officer, and Commander P. R. Huber, senior officer of the medical department.

To be eligible for transfer from E. R. C. to the navy or marine reserve, these students must have all necessary papers ready prior to appearing before the recruiting boards Thursday. It is requested that they inquire at the office of student affairs immediately concerning these papers.

Coal Miners to Strike April 1 Unless Given $2 Per Day Pay Boost

Lewis Says Failure To Receive Contract Will Mean Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) — John L. Lewis yesterday advised northern soft coal mine operators they could assume that failure to negotiate a pact by March 31 giving wage boosts to 450,000 miners would keep those men out of the mines April 1.

Replying to a flat rejection of the United Mine Workers' major demands for a contract to supplant the one expiring March 31, the UMW president told the operators at a joint wage conference:

Sloughs Off Blame

"If they (miners) don't get it (a contract by March 31) the responsibility will not be the mine workers', and if the contract runs out because you will not negotiate with them, the responsibility upon you will rely.

"It is a safe assumption that without a negotiated contract, the miners will not trespass upon your property on the first and second of April."

Earlier in the conferences, which started last week between the UMW and the northern and southern operators, holding separate meetings, spokesmen of numerous union districts threatened work stoppages in April unless a new and satisfactory contract was signed.

Demands Rejected

Charles O'Neill, president of the northern group, replying to Lewis' talk, for the second time rejected the union's major demands, and proposed that each side appoint a six man committee to begin actual negotiations immediately — behind closed doors.

The conference agreed to a proposal by Lewis that this matter be tabled until the meeting resumes tomorrow.

At the southerners' meeting, Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal Producers association, asserted that the UMW might kill private enterprise in the nation if it won its demand to unionize all management personnel below the rank of superintendent.

This, a $2 basic daily wage increase and an $8-a-day blanket minimum in place of the present $7-a-day basic rate, are the union's main demands.

2 Masters Impossible

"No man can serve two masters," Burke, a former U. S. senator from Nebraska, declared. "Management as trustee of the owner of property would cease to exist."

Lewis denounced arguments used by the northern operators in rejecting the demands, and declared:

"A billion dollars a month of inflationary profit is going back to industry while you operators sit in placid contentment while your spokesmen take such a strange position—a position bound to create resentment among the men who man this industry, and among the workers in other industries who know their rights are being held from them . . .

"Let me warn the coal industry here this afternoon that you cannot do this to our people with impunity!"

OPA Chief Declares Prices Must Be Held

CHICAGO (AP)—Price Administrator Prentiss Brown stated yesterday that prices must be held down to avoid a consequent increase in pay, and added "We'll have to meet John L. Lewis head on with his demands for a $2 increase for his miners."

He reported the office of price administration would do its best to hold prices at current levels and said:

"If we let prices go up, the war labor board can't hold wages down. We'll have to meet John L. Lewis head on with his demands for a $2 increase for his miners."

Lewis, head of the united mine workers union, has placed his request for a $2 daily increase in pay for 450,000 miners before mine owners in New York.

Des Moines Woman Overpays $100

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — It must be March 15 jitters.

Federal tax officials told yesterday about a woman who filled in her income tax return and found she owed $2.08 tax.

Last week she brought it in, misread the return, and, they said, paid $102.08.

She got to thinking that over, and two days later came back with her receipt to prove she had "overpaid." The bureau started the wheels to repay her $100.

Hull Endorsed Eden's Warning of Long War

Cautions U.S. People Against Planning For Hasty Allied Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Hull gravely endorsed yesterday a warning by Anthony Eden that the united nations should not count upon a quick end to the war.

At a press conference at which the British foreign secretary was an honored guest, the American secretary of state said he was entirely in accord with the view expressed by Eden Saturday that people should not jump to conclusions about the end of the war.

Hull said that according to all reasonable calculations, the conflict would be more long-drawn-out than one might expect on the basis of a hasty judgement.

Here to help pave the way for united nations conferences on problems of the war and post-war world, Eden said he was much encouraged with the progress of his Washington talks. Among the men with whom he talked yesterday were Vice-president Wallace, Hull, Secretary of the Navy Knox and Sir Arthur Salter, head of the British shipping mission here.

During the day Wallace spoke approvingly about a resolution proposed by a group of senators calling, among other things, for a united nations organization to preserve peace after the war. Wallace told reporters the resolution seems "like a very constructive proposal."

However, Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) declared that an attempt to press the resolution now would lead to "prolonged and bitter debate, and divide the country."

Ask DeGaulle To Join Giraud

Movement for Union Of All French Made In Formal Invitation

ALGIERS (AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud cleared the way yesterday for negotiations to end the disunity in north Africa by extending to Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Fighting French leader, a formal invitation to join all the French together under one banner.

This move followed quickly Giraud's announced house-cleaning of pro-Vichy north African officials—two of whom were reported yesterday to have already handed in their resignations.

In Letter Form

The invitation to De Gaulle was issued in the form of a letter to Gen. George Catroux, Fighting French delegate general to Syria, who is expected in Algiers soon to serve as liaison agent between Giraud and De Gaulle.

"The moment for unity of all Frenchmen of good will has come," read the message of Gen. Giraud, French African high commissioner.

"I am ready to welcome De Gaulle to give this union concrete form," he said, adding that "I have already expressed to Gen. De Gaulle my desire to come to an understanding.

"Yesterday I expressed the principles of my conduct and there should now be no misunderstanding between us."

He referred to an address in which he declared he planned to clean out the last vestiges of Vichy influence in north Africa, "both measures and men."

This terse warning was followed by the reported resignation yesterday of Gen. Jean Marie Berferet, former Vichy air force chief, as Giraud's deputy for civilian affairs and a member of the war committee. Giraud was said to have accepted the resignation.

Ribaud Resigns

As the political house cleaning of Vichy-trained public figures continued at a swift pace, Jean Ribaud, a political adviser and an opponent of collaboration with the Fighting French of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, also was reported to have resigned but this was not confirmed.

The removal of these would leave only Gen. Auguste Nogues, governor general of French Morocco, as the remaining top figure among those who have been most heavily criticized by allied sympathizers on the grounds of axis and Vichy leanings.

A large number of formal decrees were impending to carry out Giraud's promise yesterday to repeal all axis-sponsored laws in north Africa and govern only by the constitution of the French republic.

5 More Permanent Injunctions Filed Against Meat Operators Violating OPA Regulations

Judge Charles Dewey Renews Drive to Stop Iowa 'Black Market'

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Federal Judge Charles A. Dewey yesterday signed five more permanent injunctions ordering alleged "black market" meat operators to stop violations of OPA regulations.

This brings to 14 the number of injunctions issued in Iowa against "meat bootleggers."

One of the orders involved C. F. Hilleman, Hilleman's Packing plant, Marshalltown. In filing a complaint against him last week, OPA officials said that plant sold more than 100,000 pounds of meat during the last three months of 1942 in excess of the quota.

Another injunction named J. Clifford Cook, Oskaloosa, who was charged with selling 13,160 pounds in excess of quota during the same three-month period. The third injunction named A. L. Bergquist, of the Bloomfield Locker service, Bloomfield, charged with selling meat since Dec. 16, though he had no quota.

The fourth was against E. W. Pfalzgraf, doing business as the City Food market, Dubuque. The OPA said he was accused of slaughtering 4,800 pounds of meat in violation of qutoa regulations.

The Gustav B. Nissen Packing company Inc., of Webster City was enjoined after being accused, the OPA said, of slaughtering 38,000 pounds of meat illegally.

Noble Clark, chief of research at the Wisconsin Agricultural college, said "We hope the new draft policy will go far toward solving our farm labor problem."

"We believe selective service should give the same recognition to the skilled worker in the processing plant that it gives the worker on the farm," he added.

Chinese Units Destroy 8-Column Offensive Along Yangtze River

CHUNGKING (AP)—A Chinese counterattack launched Saturday night was declared by the high command yesterday to have completely smashed an eight-column Japanese offensive along 100 miles of the Yangtze river.

The 20,000 Japanese troops who set out March 8 in a vain effort to clear the south bank of the great waterway to make it safe for shipping in that area were said in the communique to be in flight, except for one body of troops which the Chinese said was encircled.

Strafe 3 Jap Transports

Airmen Pound Mareth Line

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA (AP)—Allied planes from the western desert battered the Mareth line steadily Sunday in a continued aerial prelude to new battles while fighting along the entire front deteriorated to patrol action because of foul weather.

Neither allied nor axis communiques reported fighting over the weekend, but both sides were wheeling up reinforcements for the greatest clash of the Tunisian campaign which appears in prospect as soon as storms clear from the northern and central sectors.

It was only because of the dry, sandy wastes in the south that allied planes could carry on their softening-up process of the belt of French-built fortifications. The allied communique said the weather severely restricted air operations elsewhere, including the destructive sweeps against shipping in the Mediterranean narrows.

Hoover Warns U.S. Farmers Against Slump

Speaks to Conference Of Midwest Officials On Statewide Hookup

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Former president Herbert Hoover said last night "there are symptoms of a dangerously degenerating agriculture that must be stopped" if we are to win the war —and the peace.

"Unlike our case in the war 25 years ago, we have today at work in America uncanny parallels with the same degenerative forces that have been so disastrous in Europe," the nation's World War I food administrator declared in an address prepared for a conference of midwestern state officials.

Statewide Hookup

Hoover spoke over a statewide radio hookup (8-8:30 p. m. central war time) at the conclusion of the all-day conference called by Iowa's Governor B. B. Hickenlooper to discuss the problem of boosting the nation's food production in the face of farm labor and machinery shortages. Attending the conference were governors of eight corn-belt states and representatives of four others.

Hoover compared this nation's present food situation to the conditions that existed in European countries at the time of the last war and declared that it was the food shortage abroad that decided the outcome of the conflict.

"The home front is as important as the military front," he said. "The home front of the greatest staying power, of the greatest resources, of the greatest will to endure and work will give the greatest strength to the military front.

"A weakened home front will weaken the military front. Wars can be won or lost on the home front in this war as in any war. . .

"We have weaknesses on the home front. . . one of these weaknesses is in the food sector. And indeed, of the different sectors of the home front food is the greatest.

"And if we would have peace after the war instead of the anarchy of starving Europe we must be prepared to meet that also. Therefore our food production must be strengthened for a huge and a long sustained effort.

Limit of Endurance

"Moreover, while our civil population can be deeply deprived of most other consumers' goods there is a sharp limit to what it can endure in food and still be physically effective for its part in the war."

Hoover said there now existed "five certain" drains or deficits in our normal larder, and listed them as:

1. This is no longer a great food-surplus nation, having a surplus only in cereals. "With this exception (cereals)," he said, "the day after Pearl Harbor our national cupboard was potentially partly short of its normal food."

2. "We are compelled to open our larder, already depleted by blockade of our imports, to help Britain, Russia and others through lend-lease."

3. The nation's armed men eat more than as civilians and must have a priority on the larder.

4. The increased numbers en-

Reflections of Merle Miller—

(Editor's Note: The following article by Merle Miller appeared in his "Around the Town" column in The Daily Iowan on Christmas day, 1938. It was labeled simply "A Christmas Story." We are reprinting this story because the truth behind it has been brought home with greater force than most of us thought conceivable at the time of its first publication over four years ago. On that Christmas day, 1938, many readers must have regarded the author as somewhat of a visionary in his use of the allegorical. Today, the story could almost be based upon fact.

(Merle Miller has been in the army for the past year, and at the present time is stationed in Hawaii where he is an editor for "Yank," the army newspaper. In a recent letter to Mrs. Pearl Broxam, station director of WSUI, Merle observed:

("You will be interested to know that yesterday I had lunch with Colonel Whisner. You'll remember him from R. O. T. C. at Iowa. . . He has a grand sense of humor, and much of our time was spent in laughing —yes, laughing over the columns I once wrote. He had, unfortunately, kept some of them. I didn't realize at the time, of course, that all the words I wrote in "Around the Town" were meant to last no longer than the morning after they appeared.

("After finishing this letter, incidentally, I am going over to see a man of whom I have become increasingly fond, Artie Shaw. He is in the navy out here and has a million dollar band. One of the few really intelligent popular musicians I have ever met. I'm doing an article on him for 'Yank' and another for 'Metronome,' a publication which I imagine you know.

("You will also be interested to know that, when I was in the South Pacific recently, I saw a young lt., j. g., just returning from 20 months of active duty down there—Al Armbruster. We came from where he was to here by plane, and had long talks about the university and about Iowa City and how wonderful they both are and how foolish we were not to realize how wonderful they were. Just goes to show how old I'm getting—24 now, and the spring of 1940 is three years back. Little did we think then—. . . )

A Christmas Story—

It happened in Berlin, and unless I'm wrong the day was Dec. 25, 1938, although I could be mixed up on my dates. . . Anyway it was right after that Munich conference we've spent so much time on in history. . . A good long time ago at any rate.

It seems this fellow Hitler had had a busy day; he'd been drawing up plans for his spring campaign in the Ukraine, and he'd had a long telephone conversation with the English prime minister, a man named Chamberlain. . .

And there'd been a long series of Christmas celebrations to preside at besides new, non-Aryan carols to be introduced and neo-Pagan services at which to speak. . .

By 6 o'clock in the evening Adolf Hitler was tired. . . He wanted to take a walk, and for once he wanted to be alone. . . Just outside the door were his six bodyguards and in the next room his 12 private secretaries. . .

So Adolf slipped out a little side door that no one knew about and put on an old black coat, turned up his collar and hid his face. . .

The air was crisp and invigorating, and Mr. Hitler was deep in his thoughts. . . Tomorrow, he decided, he must issue another anti-Semitic decree. . . There'd been reports of dissatisfaction in Hamburg. . . He must make the people hate some more. . .

Before he knew it, he was in the heart of Berlin. . . The streets were silent for the most part; a few passing blonde young storm troopers were marching along, singing one of the new and not very tuneful hymns. . .

But on a side street there was shouting and screaming, and pulling his collar up about his mustache, Herr Hitler decided to investigate. . . .

It was about what he'd expected. . . It was a Jew. . . They couldn't seem to learn a thing, and one of them had been caught walking in the restricted areas, on Christmas day too. . .

Mr. Hitler smiled with satisfaction to see that it hadn't been necessary to call a policeman, his citizens had attended to it. . .

There were four men and two young girls. . . And they had formed a circle now around the Jew and were taunting him. . . Adolf noticed with pride that one of his eyes was nearly closed and that there was a streak of blood on his face. . .

"You swine! You Jew!" one of the women shouted. . . And she slapped the man's face . . . Mr. Hitler saw that he was young, quite young. . . He looked ill, as if he might have been in a concentration camp, and he winced as the woman slapped him. . .

"The street was clearly marked," the woman shouted at him. "Whatsa matter, can't you read?"

"Read?" said the man, "Read what?"

"This," said the woman, "is an Aryan street; no Jews allowed."

"Aryan?" questioned the Jew. "I'm afraid I don't understand."

"Maybe that will show you," screamed the woman, and she scratched his face across the nose hard. . . The man winced again, and there were tears in his eyes. . .

Hitler drew closer; there was something about the fellow's face.

Just then an officer came up; he grabbed the man by the coat collar. . . He pushed the crowd away. . .

"Here," he said. . . "I'll handle this. . . What's your name, Jew, where do you live?"

But the young Jew had fainted, and the policeman kicked his body twice before he picked it up to carry him away. . .The crowd soon dispersed, and Mr. Hitler was alone. . .

He stooped then to pick up something the Jew had dropped. . . It was a nail the man had in his hand, and it was bloody . . . Hitler had noticed the man's hand was bleeding, and now as he looked at the nail he noticed it was unlike any that had been manufactured under the Third Reich. . . It was an old nail, rusty, almost as if—

Mr. Hitler dropped the nail and hurriedly began to walk away. . . For the first time in his life it might have been said that he was frightened.

Interpreting THE WAR NEWS by Glenn Babb

• Japs Concentrating Above Australia

For the second time this month General MacArthur's communique calls attention to a growing concentration of Japanese air and sea power in the islands above Australia. Evidently this tenacious foe intends to keep coming on in spite of the unbroken series of disasters he has suffered on land and sea and in the air in the southwest Pacific theater in the last six months.

GLENN BABB

The American commander's first alarm of the month was followed quickly by the battle of the Bismarck sea. Obviously even that blow, in which the Japanese lost every ship of a 22-vessel convoy and nearly all the 15,000 men aboard, has not ended the threat to Australia.

But apparently the enemy does not care to brave again the deadly striking power of the land-based American, Australian, British and Dutch planes that wiped out his convoy as he tried to slip it down New Guinea's northeast coast with reinforcements for his garrisons in the Lae-Salamaua area. He is looking for softer spots elsewhere.

* * *

The new concentration is some 1,500 miles west of the Bismarck sea area. Yesterday's communique mentioned especially transports and cargo ships in the Amboina-Dobo area, 500 to 600 miles above Darwin, the chief port of northern Australia. The set-up suggests strongly that a Japanese descent on Australia's sparsely populated northwest coast, out of range of the bases from which the battle of the Bismarck sea was won, is in the making.

HOPING FOR A "SPLIT"

MacArthur's airmen have been keeping close watch on this menace for weeks, but recently the evidence has become clearer of a steady advance of Japanese strength southward through the islands west of New Guinea. The communiques have reported almost daily bombings of ships and harbors throughout the area. In addition to Amboina, formerly the second largest naval base of the Dutch East Indies, and Dobo, in the Aroe group, allied airmen have attacked Koepang and Dili on Timor and several islands around the Banda sea, including the Kai and Tanimbar groups.

Only 300 Miles

From Saumlakki, in the Tanimbars, to Darwin, is only 300 miles. Koepang, on Timor, is about the same distance from Cape Talbot. Given a couple of heavily overcast days and a favorable weather front, a considerable Japanese force might hope to cover the intervening seas with comparatively little interference.

An invasion of northwestern Australia would not necessarily mean an attempt at permanent occupation. The objective probably would be to create a diversion under cover of which the Japanese would attempt to improve their situation in other areas, where the outlook currently is none too hopeful. It might compel MacArthur to divert major forces from other theaters and throw his offensive schedule out of gear.

* * *

It might, for instance, force a relaxation of the allied pressure on the Japanese in northeastern New Guinea, at Lae and Salamaua, Madang and Wewak. The position of those garrisons must be getting desperate; they needed the supplies and reinforcements that 22-ship convoy was carrying. Now the Japanese command is trying to get help on a smaller scale in by a roundabout approach from the northeast to Wewak.

* * *

There are points of similarity between the present plight of the Japanese in northeastern New Guinea and that of their comrades in Papua, to the south, shortly before the Australians and Ameri-

F. D. R.'s Cradle to Grave Plan

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

• Congress Likely To Shelve It

WASHINGTON—Mr. Roosevelt sent his cradle-to-the-grave "security" plan to congress in the name of Uncle Delano Roosevelt, head of the national resources planning board, but it was somewhat the work of Ambassador Winant.

The ambassador to London has been in Washington nearly two months working on the program, on the basis of his experience with Sir William Beveridge in preparing the Beveridge plan for the British.

* * *

The British government allowed three days of debate in parliament on the Beveridge plan and then postponed action "until after the war"— a nice shelf on which it can gather dust. Not even all laborites were for it.

* * *

The American congress is apt to do the same thing with the Roosevelt plan—without the three days of debate.

There are many excellent notions in the plans, but somehow few can bring themselves to seriously consider such political canned goods in the midst of the war. No worse time could be chosen to talk of "security," than when everyone can look into his own life and see there is no such thing, never has been, never will be.

The best laid plans of governments and politicans to collect a lot of taxes now on the promise to pay someone $8, $10, or $12 a week in the future never look sillier than when they come up against war, with inflationary prices, food rationing, death and destruction of lives, and even governments, and their promises to pay.

Not Enough Today

The same $8 which might have been security for someone two years ago for instance is certainly not today.

Men have always striven for security, in the past mainly by trying to make themselves rich, or by acquiring property and insurance. The rich found in 1932 that their way was no guarantee. Their paper riches were washed away.

The poor man has learned the same lesson then and now, when the disaster of war with its prices and taxes have nullified his attempts to find assurance against dreaded want.

* * *

Yet man—as politicians well know—first is inclined to seek safety rather than work, advancement, freedom, and adventurous goals. At least in these days when his leaders constantly gild the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

* * *

In truth, however, security is a negative goal. It does not look ahead, but back. It does not suggest progress and improvement of the individual or nation, only a hedging against an old constantly fading norm.

The only real security today is ability to earn, day by day, week by week. No matter now governments have sliced it, you still can't get something for nothing.

Unsatisfying at Best

These government plans at best, could only bring an unsatisfying measure ($8 a week) of "security" to the 10 percent or less of the people at the expense of the 90 percent or more of the people who replenish the treasury.

Our own working social security plan, already adopted, has collected $7,000,000,000 more than it has paid out to the people. Comparatively few have benefited. Most good workers will never get anything out of it, and the poor one may not really be worthy of all this taxation.

* * *

A Britisher tells me that Sir William Beveridge is coming over here to sell his plan, because he failed to put it over in Britain. If Beveridge had been successful at home, he would be too busy working it out there to make the trip, so my informant says.

* * *

The British, he says, in the past three years have come up against the real facts of life.

However, Beveridge may be more successful here. We are more gullible than the British. After all, we took a bite of the wasteful Keynes spending plan, devised by a Britisher, although Britain spurned it.

And all politicians like to promote "security" because it makes

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

Dorsey Rules Out One Night Stands For the Duration

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—All but incurable jitterbugs will doubtless be able to bear up, but the touring name bands' one-night stands seem to be on ice for the duration.

On ice, or in Hollywood, and more frequently the latter.

Tommy Dorsey and gang, before coming here to make "Girl Grazy," played to 68,000 fans in 23 one-nighters, during which tour his musicians had one evening off. They intended to spend it in Salt Lake City, but passed most of it in Ogden, waiting five hours for a train. Once they traveled 659 miles in a 1931 truck, and once the 31 band boys and their instruments were packed into a 14-passenger bus for a long hop. So Dorsey has ruled out one-night stands.

* * *

Johnny "Scat" Davis is back—minus his band. He's in "Sarong Girl" with Ann Corio, playing an orchestra leader. He found the band business more lucrative than pictures, but he's given up—couldn't keep 15 men together, what with the draft, and the transportation problem was too tough.

Harry James, in "Best Foot Forward," was playing a one-night stand in Syracuse, N. Y., last year shortly after Pearl Harbor. During the evening the army took over the bus they were using, together with other means of transportation. James and his boys had a three-day wait in Syracuse, missing three other engagements, and they haven't tried any tours since that experience.

Kay Kyser ("Right About Face") generally is able to charter a bus to take his gang to service centers to put on shows, and he isn't trying any other tours.

* * *

Food as well as transportation complicates the business. Kay and his boys, returning from the east some time ago, went without food for 27 hours. Soldiers and sailors are fed first on trains, and the other passengers take pot luck—if any. On this trip, after the 27-hour fast, they learned that the train would stop for five minutes at a small desert town in Arizona, and two of the boys were nominated to run across to a little grocery by the tracks and buy bread and sausage. Just as the train pulled in, a freight train barred the way. One boy crawled under, made the dash, and crawled back just before the freight pulled out. He sold sandwiches to the others for $2 apiece.

Freddie Slack's band (in "The Sky's the Limit") tried a series of one-nighters in the San Joaquin valley, had the usual trouble with buses and trains and an additional woe with sleeping accommodations. In Oakland, Calif., where the tour started, there were no rooms to be had. "We stayed with relatives, slept on park benches, in bus stations and telephone booths," he says.

System Revised

Proctor Method Used For Townsmen

Organized under Chief of Proctors Richard Lindquist, A4 of Des Moines, and the office of student affairs, the proctor system formerly used in the men's dormitories has now been successfully adapted to the Townsmen organization.

According to area and population, the town is divided into 11 sections, each named after a former president of the university. Each section has one scholastic proctor and approximately 100 Townsmen. One athletic proctor, Lawrence Kier, A2 of Maquoketa, with the cooperation of Glenn Devine, director of intramural sports, arranges and schedules games and tournaments for all town men.

Qualifications

Before being eligible to be a proctor, a man must pass a test including such questions as, "How would you combat an inferiority complex of a boy in your section?"; "If a boy is intelligent enough to get passing grades without studying, should he study?", and "If a boy has one difficult subject and the rest comparatively easy, how would you schedule his time?"

A proctor is graded on character, scholarship, and personality. He must have enough time to devote to the work and be of at least junior standing.

It is his job to deliver delinquents to the men in his section and, if necessary, speak to the instructor of the course.

Contact Individuals

At a meeting held every other week in Lindquist's office, each proctor is tested to see if he has contacted individually the men in his section during the preceding two weeks.

Men now serving as proctors are: Black section, William Saunders, M4 of Council Bluffs, Dean section, Howard Hensleigh, L1 of Iowa City; Leonard section, Larry Williams, A2 of Olin; Macbride section, Bill Leaming, A3 of Newton; MacLean section, Millard Troxell, M2 of Hawarden; Pickard section, George Spellman, M4 of Woodward; Schaeffer section, Bob Obrech, A3 of Rolfe; Slagle section, Dick Ingle, A3 of Emmetsburg; Spencer section, Wes Swanson, L1 of Elgin, Ill.; Thatcher section, Peter Thurman, A3 of Cedar Rapids, and Totten section, Kenneth Clancy, A3 of Council Bluffs.

Congregational Women To Hear Discussion Of Pilgrim Fellowship

"The Accomplishments and Objectives of the Pilgrim Fellowship" will be discussed by Betty Long at a meeting of the Congregational Women's association at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. E. ## Oregon Bound, 1843

Reeves Hall Writes For Palimpsest

"Oregon Fever," written by Reeves Hall, A3 of Mason City, is one of the articles included in this month's edition of the Palimpsest, State Historical society magazine, released yesterday. This is the centennial of the migration event, and a copy of the "Constitution of the Oregon Emigration Society of Iowa Territory at Iowa City" is included in the article.

Carl B. Cone, history professor at Louisiana State university, whose father was for many years owner of the telephone company here in Iowa City, has written an article, "Hello Central," which deals with the first telephone system in Iowa City.

Another event celebrating the centennial is that of the Tegarden Massacre, March, 1843. An interesting account of the Indian upheaval at this time has been written by Walter H. Beall, a newspaper editor in West Union and a curator of the State Historical society.

Files Petition in Court

Mary H. McCarthy filed a petition for replevin action yesterday in the district court, against Mrs. W. M. Weilbrenner and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller. Atty. D. C. Nolan is representing the plaintiff.

150 Class C Men Arrive

Students Will Make Voice Recordings For Speech Work

Approximately 150 Class C pre-meteorology students had arrived in Iowa City yesterday, according to E. N. Oberg, co-ordinator of the Pre-Meteorology school. The greatest part of the total number of students are expected to be here, he said, by Thursday.

Until March 22, such preliminary work as taking placement tests and recording voices will be done. If possible, Oberg said, records of all the voices of the group will be made for use in connection with the speech course of the academic program of the school.

The speech course given the pre-meteorology students will differ considerably from the one taken by university students, due to the fact that the pre-meteorology men must prepare to speak effectively against extraordinary amounts of noise when they are on actual combat duty.

The mathematics and physics program will conclude fundamentals for the study of field theories, polar wave fronts and mass air analyses. These subjects will be taken up intensively and thoroughly at the advanced "A" school, to which the C students will be sent after completing their training here.

An integrated program of English, political science, speech and history will be included in the academics of the school, Oberg stated. There will be no definite unit of each, he said.

In addition to the mathematics and physics instructors previously named, will be 10 other part-time university instructors engaged in the teaching of humanities and six part-time instructors teaching geography.

The academic part of the program will include 49 hours per week, Oberg said, and the military and physical training portion 10 hours per week.

The "B" and "C" pre-meteorology schools such as the one assigned here have been in active existence only since the beginning of this year, and the "A" schools have been operating on a large scale for approximately a year.

★ During Early Days
★ Of Baseball Players
★ Trained With Vigor

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that baseball's palmy days are over for the time being, as you won't find many palm trees in Indiana, and New York, and Massachusetts and Delaware, we're going to find out just how valuable the lengthy conditioning in balmy climes really has been to major league clubs.

There are two schools of thought on this question. One school, probably the kindergarten, is made up of players who thoroughly enjoy the semi-vacation under Florida or California or Texas skies, with all expenses paid. This group naturally thinks that the slow conditioning under ideal circumstances is imperative to a good year, and is an anti-toxin against sore arms, legs and other trademarks of the profession.

The second, or adult, group is just as convinced that the prolonged sun-bathing is just so much apple butter as far as being really necessary is concerned, and that if a healthy young man needs six weeks or more in a warm climate to recover from the inroads of about four months of idleness since the close of the preceding season, he either isn't a healthy young man or has been building down his resistance during the layoff.

We string along with the second, or adult group, although we liked those March journeys southward as well as the next fellow. And we have plenty of support from the realists and the old timers whose spring training consisted of picking up a glove and taking a fresh chaw of cut plug.

Ty Cobb is one of the old timers who listens with amused tolerance to the beefs of some of the modern players that they must have cocoanuts dropping on their domes and get their oranges straight from the trees if they are to be ready for the opening game.

Cobb himself never got out of condition. He exercised every day from the close of the season on, and on any given day could start play and be at his best. In fact, he told us that one year he was a holdout—holding out for $15,000, mind you, after leading the league in hitting—and didn't report until after the season started. He had his best, or at least one of his best years.

It was just "Where's the ball? Let's start playing" in the days of brief, chilly spring practice. Cy Young used to pitch nine innings his first day in camp. In fact, Hank Gowdy says that for a long time pitchers were convinced that every chucker was due for a sore arm at some time during the season, and that the best thing to do was to have it early and get it over with. Consequently they'd go out and get themselves a sore arm.

That's pretty silly reasoning, but at the same time there would seem to be a happy medium between the slow, take it very, very easy style of loosening up the kinks that is the vogue today and the zip-slam-ouch system of the early days.

We think Bill McKechnie comes the closest to the medium, and he's never had one of his pitchers develop a sore arm. His system is to have the chuckers start throwing hooks the first day in camp, instead of concentrating on straight balls. He figures that two different sets of muscles are required for the two deliveries, and that the pitcher is better off loosening up both sets at the same time.

At any rate, we have an idea that the teams as a whole will start the season in much better shape physically this year than they would if they were going south, or west. Those long training sessions and barnstorming tours resulted in so many sprains and bumps and bruises that it sometimes looked doubtful if a club would have a quorum on hand to start the season.

Wisconsin, Minnesota Will Oppose Runners

Iowa's mile relay team will run against Minnesota and Wisconsin in a race at the Chicago relays Saturday evening, Coach George Bresnahan anonunced yesterday.

Tryouts by midweek will select the quartet for the race in the Chicago stadium. Athletes expected to try out are Bob Bowles of Des Moines, Tom Thorsen of Newton, Dick McCarthy of Webster City, Harold Fiala of Waterloo, Hubert Cline of Shenandoah and Dick Hoerner of Dubuque.

The Hawkeyes have competed in the Chicago relays since their establishment by the Chicago Daily News seven years ago and between 1939 and 1942 were joint holders of the mile relay record of 3:20.4.

York, Tigers Get Together

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Rudy York signed with the Detroit Tigers yesterday, bringing the club's roster to 27 men—just two over the midseason playing limit.

Manager Steve O'Neill, in his first press conference at the Tigers' war-time training camp, disclosed that York was the last holdout, although five other players have notified him they would be late in reporting for spring workouts.

Edward (Dixie) Parsons, who sat out Sunday's drill, also signed his contract yesterday and was behind the plate in the club's second workout.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates received word yesterday that two more of their players, outfielder Eddie Stewart and southpaw Aldon Wilkie, will not report for spring training. Stewart said he will remain working at the North American company's airplane factory in Los Angeles and Wilkie will continue with a shipbuilding firm at Newberg, Ore.

Ralph Kiner, recruit outfielder purchased from Albany, in the Eastern league, wrote he has enlisted in the navy and will not make the trip to the Pirate camp at Muncie, Ind., which opens on Thursday.

Outfielder Vince DiMaggio notified the club his wife recently underwent an operation at Hermosa Beach, Calif., and that he desires to remain there until she is discharged from the hospital, about March 28.

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—An hour after they arrived at their spring camp here yesterday, 11 members of the Philadelphia Phillies had their first taste of a new kind of big league conditioning routine under the direction of Trainer Harold Bruce.

The squad went through a half-hour workout of running exercises, calisthenics and ball tossing.

William D. Cox, new owner of the club, is due Wednesday.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Connie Mack said yesterday that three more members of the Philadelphia Athletics are entering the armed services, raising the club total to 23.

Mack said Pitcher Fred Caliguir has been inducted at Warren, Pa.; Pitcher Bob Savage will become a second lieutenant upon his graduation from Staunton (Va.) military college this spring, and catcher George Yankowski, a member of the army reserve at Northeastern college, Boston, is awaiting his call to active duty.

Another pitcher, Bill Salerno, 23-year-old semi-pro of Sharon Hill, Pa., was added to the A's roster yesterday, bringing the total to 11 moundsmen who will report for training at Wilmington, Del., next Monday.

Champion Cardinals Start Hard Workouts For Series Defense

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — The world champion St. Louis Cardinals, only major league team without a real manpower problem, opened spring training in a hurry yesterday. They started right off with batting practice in a race against time.

Manager Billy Southworth had little more than a month before the pennant campaign to get his players in condition, in contrast with extended southern training trips of other years, and he didn't intend to waste any of it.

A year ago yesterday, for example, the Cardinals won their sixth straight victory and seventh in 10 exhibition games defeating the New York Yankees at St. Petersburg, Fla., 5 to 3.

But that was Florida and this was Cairo, Ill., 12 months of war later, and there were many differences.

There was no sleek bus waiting for the players at their hotel. They walked—1 2-10 miles—to their improvised club house and another five-eighths of a mile to Cotter field for the opening workout.

The initial session was somewhat limited because Southworth had a squad of only 17, but the group included eight pitchers and each toiled five strenuous minutes on the mound in a vigorous batting drill.

The staff included Morton Cooper, Ernie White, Howard Pollet and Harry Gumbert of last year's team; Bill Beckmann, who finished the season with the Cardinals and rookies George Dockins, Ted Wilks and George Munger.

Capt. Jimmy Brown, George Kurowski, Walker Cooper, Sam Narron, Jerry Burmeister, George Fallon, Lou Klein, Buster Adams and Debs Garms made up the rest of the squad, a mixture of veterans and raw recruits.

Six players — pitchers Harry Breechen, Howard Krist and Max Lanier, catcher Ken O'Dea and outfielders Harry Walker and Stan Musial—still are unsigned. But most of the squad of 32 players was expected in time for today's practice.

Going over the roster, Southworth pointed out his infield and catching staff were intact, his pitchers were plentiful and he had seven outfielders from whom to choose. That left only the weather as the principal worry.

Cotter field, with a freshly sodded diamond, appeared ample for all the Cardinals' needs although the ground temporarily was spongy underfoot.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The Washington Senators, under guidance of their new manager Ossie Bluege, but with absences in the pitching staff, opened spring training yesterday at the University of Maryland.

CHICAGO (AP)—The Dayton Bombers advanced to the semi-final round of the world championship professional basketball tournament last night by upsetting the famed Harlem Globe Trotters, 1940 champions, 44 to 34.

Baseball Clubs Begin Training With Exercises

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Within Indiana university's big fieldhouse, the Cincinatti Reds romped through initial workouts of the spring training season yesterday—a session complete even to an introduction to "scientific relaxation" at the hands of Bill Miller, self-styled muscle-magician hired by the club.

Two hours of pepper drill, running and bunting were indulged in by 24 of the squad, including shortstop Eddie Miller and outfielder Mike McCormick, who signed contracts immediately upon arrival.

* * *

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Informal muscle bending opened the Cleveland Indians' 1943 spring training yesterday as manager Lou Boudreau stuck to his declaration that "we're still the team to beat" in the American league.

Although numerous Indians were in uniform yesterday afternoon, the first of the one-a-day practices starts today. Only outfielder Jeff Heath was classed as a holdout.

* * *

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) —Outfielder Glenn McQuillen, recently reclassified 1-A, reported for the opening workout of the St. Louis Browns ytsterday. He said he hoped to get in a few weeks playing before the army called him. The dozen players on hand were put through a strenuous setting-up drill before they moved outdoors for bunting and fielding practice.

* * *

WEST POINT (AP)—Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers announced yesterday that Max Macon, lanky southpaw hurler, had agreed to terms as 15 players went through their first workout in the army's big fieldhouse before departing for their quarters at Bear Mountain.

* * *

ASBURY PARK, N. J. (AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy announced the acceptance of terms yesterday by pitchers Johnny Lindell, Spurgeon Chandler and Atley Donald, making 21 of the 27 players on the New York Yankee roster who have either signed or agreed to terms.

Chandler and Donald did not arrive in time for the initial drill, but Lindell was first on the field of the nine battery men who practiced briefly at mid-day.

Navy Personalities.. Rollie Williams

The head of the basketball program at the Iowa Pre-Flight school is a name long familiar to Iowa fans as Lieut. Rolland F. (Rollie) Williams was formerly head coach of the Hawkeyes for 14 years. During the years that he trained the Iowa cagers his idea was to win games and, although he still tries to instill this winning spirit into the cadets, he has other reasons for teaching them basketball.

"We feel that basketball has its place in this program because it helps coordinate the eyes, the mind and the body. It teaches body balance, and it also develops the instinct to react instantaneously to situations which may arise. In addition, it is a means of developing stamina and endurance."

"The drills we work on are primarily drills to develop coordination and body balance, which are so essential to pilots."

The Lieutenant was born in Edgerton, Wis., where he received both his elementary and high school training, and entered the University of Wisconsin in 1917.

He dropped out of college after one semester to enlist in the navy. He was sent to Great Lakes Naval Training station to study wireless telegraphy. "We were supposed to spend four months at Great Lakes and then go to Hollywood for further training," he said, "but we never did get away from Great Lakes."

Lieutenant Williams then transfered to a seamen's branch, but the navy still saw fit to keep him at Great Lakes. Finally, he was put in charge of athletics for the public works there.

After a little more than a year in the navy, Lieut. Williams received his discharge and returned to the University of Wisconsin. During 1920, 21 and 22 he earned nine letters there, three each in football, baseball, and basketball. He was an all Big Ten guard in basketball in 1921 and 22, and all-conference halfback in 1922.

Upon receiving his degree, Lieut. Williams went to James Milliken university in 1923 as football and basketball coach, and in 1924 he came to the University of Iowa as backfield coach in football and assistant coach in basketball. In 1929 he was made head basketball coach here, a position he held until his re-entry into the navy, May 16, 1942.

Due to a lack of transportation facilities the varsity team that was planned for and scheduled from the pre-flight school never materialized, but the Lieutenant has continued his basketball instruction as a major part of the winter sports program at the base.

Ross Suffers Recurrence Of Malarial Fever

NEW YORK (AP) — Corp. Barney Ross, hero of the marine corps at Guadalcanal, was taken to the U. S. navy hospital at St. Albans, Long Island, early last night suffering a recurrence of malarial fever which he contracted in the war zone.

The navy public relations office said that the former boxer's condition was not serious but was unable to say how long Ross would remain in the hospital.

Ross arrived here from Chicago and the west coast late Friday for a series of Red Cross appearances although he confided to friends that he had been ill for three days the forepart of last week.

He was scheduled to participate in a huge Red Cross meeting at Madison Square Garden last night.

His wife, Catherine, accompanied him here from the west coast and substituted for him at the Red Cross meeting last night.

Ross was stricken at his hotel shortly after addressing a Red Cross gathering in the lobby of the New York Life Insurance building.

His wife called a private physician but later the marine was carried from the hotel on a stretcher and taken by ambulance to the hospital. The physician said Ross probably had been weakened by the arduous schedule of the last few days.

Veteran Continues

Gottselig Carries On In Hockey

NEW YORK (AP)—If you are wondering what kind of baseball you will see this summer with most of the young stars in the service and their places taken by veterans, take a look at Johnny Gottselig of the Chicago National league hockey team.

Gottselig, for many seasons one of the outstanding stick-handlers in the bruising game of pro hockey, retired three years ago at the old age of 34.

In midseason this year he returned when the Chicago entry lost several defensemen to the draft.

Now he is the balance-wheel of an aggregation fighting for a chance to compete in the Stanley cup playoffs—hockey's own version of baseball's world series.

Gottselig believes that if he, at 37, can make a comeback in hockey certainly a baseball player can make the return transition much easier.

He points out that an outfielder, for example, makes three or four putouts a game with no interference and averages four trips to the plate in each contest.

Compared with hockey, Gottselig figures that baseball is 'retirement." On the ice a player is constantly on the move and either is giving or receiving bruising body checks half the time.

Seahawks Plan Drills In Spring Football

Bernie Bierman Sets April 5 for Opening Of Athletic Program

The call for spring football practice on college campuses soon will be heard at the navy's Pre-Flight school, but unlike the college scene its echo will not be heard on pre-flight gridirons in the fall for the simple reason that all taking part in spring drills will, by next autumn, be far away at advanced bases putting final touches on their flight training.

Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman, Seahawk athletic director and football coach, has announced a broad program of football training and competition for cadets to begin April 5, patterned after the highly successful intramural football competition of last fall and the winter program of intramural competition in basketball and other sports.

The spring football program will be directed by Lieut. Wes Schulmerich, former Oregon State star, and his assistants in football instuction here, Lieut. (jg) Jim Tatum, University of North Carolina coach last year, and Lieut. (jg) George Svendsen, Seahawk star last fall.

Twelve squadron teams will be organized from the cadet regiment for the spring grid drills, six to be given an offense patterned after Colonel Bierman's Minnesota single wingback system, the other half an offense based on the T-formation. After a series of intersquad games over a period of two months it is planned to organize all-star teams from the two groups for final games.

Although spring football is entirely apart from fall projects, Colonel Bierman has been proceeding for plans for a varsity team in the fall, having arranged tentative games with college teams including Illinois, Minnesota, Notre Dame and Marquette, and entered into negotiations with three other schools.

Includes Ten Major Games

Play Six Contests At Home; May Add Non-Conference Tilts

A conference schedule of 10 games was announced yesterday by Coach Waddy Davis for the Iowa baseball team. Six of the contests will be played at home, while four will be on the road.

Coach Davis said that he has been trying to line up some non-conference games but does not have any definite arrangements as yet.

The Big Ten schedule is as follows:

April 9, 10—Michigan, here

April 16, 17 — Northwestern, here

April 23, 24—Wisconsin, here

April 26, 27—Minnesota, there

April 30, May 1—Chicago, there

A team of good hitters with a fast fielding infield is being developed in the indoor baseball drills. Coach Davis said that the men have been hitting the ball in the practices in the batting cage, where the light is none too good, and outdoors he expects even more improvement.

He declared that he has some good infielders and those who don't make the infield and are good hitters will have their chance to play the outfield. Among the veterans are Tom Farmer, second base; Ben Trickey, third base, and Don Thompson, minor letter man.

Red Sox Players Open Informal Drill

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP)—Manager Joe Cronin and Coaches Hugh Duffy and Frank Shellenback launched the Boston Red Sox's informal spring practice by putting four players through a stiff four-hour drill yesterday in the Tufts college baseball cage.

The players, infielders Jim Tabor, Toby Lupien and Skeeter Newsome and outfielder Pete Fox, opened the session with a pepper game. Cronin will not have his full squad assembled until Monday.

Political Canned Goods

The current report, is thus merely political canned goods laid out on the shelf in congress, with no guarantees against spoilage. It is a mass of elevating theories strung together without any concrete plan or drafts or specifications for carrying them out.

While the social security board is supposed to be working on some dollar and cents recommendations, these will be a long time coming, and the congressional committees are far too busy with other maters to consider any of the ideas this year or perhaps next.

For the purposes of the political campaign next year, however, the politicos can interest the voters in pointing to the labels on the cans—without inviting too close a look inside.

$22,000 Given To Red Cross

Much of University, Downtown Districts, County Yet to Report

The Johnson county Red Cross war fund had reached at least $22,000 yesterday, Mrs. M. E. Taylor, general chairman of the drive, reported yesterday afternoon.

The total fund had reached $18,000 Saturday, and at least $400 has come in since then, Mrs. Taylor said. These returns are very incomplete as yet, she stated, and only one township has reported as finished with the campaign.

A large part of the university, business district and rural areas have not reported, but Mrs. Taylor urges all workers to complete solicitation this week. Approximately 15 workers of more than 300 who canvassed the residential districts in the city have yet to make their returns. The residential areas are the most nearly complete of any division, Mrs. Taylor said.

Women who have been assisting in the war fund office are needed to work on surgical dressings and other Red Cross projects, Mrs. Taylor said yesterday.

"We want to complete our work this week so that we can release these people and allow them to devote all of their time to work other than in the office," she stated.

Underground Humor Keeps Up Morale

Oppressed Peoples Circulate Amusing Stories in Europe

The office of war information has received the following stories which are being circulated underground in occupied Europe. These stories, passed from person to person, serve to keep up the morale of the oppressed peoples:

* * *

Norwegian patriots in a Trondheim movie palace were astonished to see a propaganda film showing German forces giving food to the Norwegian civil population. For a few minutes they were too amazed to speak. Then one of them stood up and cried, "Stop! You're running the film backwards."

* * *

One day a German officer asked a close-mouthed loyal Dutchman, "Who is behind the resistance given by your people?"

"Only one man," was the reply, "and he is dead."

"What is his name?"

"William the Silent."

* * *

After the attempted bombing of Hitler in the Munich Brauhaus became known, the following notices appeared in the windows of several butcher shops in Prague the next morning:

"There will unfortunately be no lard or pork today as the swine wasn't killed yesterday."

* * *

A German teacher asked a Luxembourg schoolgirl to name one of her country's great rulers and without hesitation she replied, "The Grand Duchess Charlotte." Nettled, the teacher asked sarcastically, "And who fled, leaving the people in the lurch?"

The whole class answered in chorus: "HESS!"

This Soldier Has Shoes to Spare

CAMP PICKETT, Va. (AP)—Shoe rationing may be a problem for some folks but not Pvt. Gerald Rosenbaum.

Rosenbaum wears size 14½ D, and the supply sergeant couldn't fill his order for a new pair of shoes. The sergeant filed three separate requisitions. Time passed, so Rosenbaum decided to buy a pair for himself.

Then all three requisitions were filled, and along came nine pair of shoes—size 14½ D.

"There's enough leather there to keep me busy just shining it for the duration and maybe three of the six months afterwards," Rosenbaum grinned.

W.S.C.S. to Feature Old Clothes in Show

Following the show, a silver tea will be served in a St. Patrick's motif.

Plan Discussion Tonight

"We recommended that the amry should consider deferring the draft of farm boys during 1943 and the furloughing of farm boys especially for the harvest and for some livestock purposes.

"I have in mind a letter from President Wilson to Senator Capper in 1918 in which he assured the senator that 'men essential to the continued and undiminished operation of our farms shall be deferred' and that the secretary of war had asked from congress the authority to 'furlough selected men during planting and harvest time.' # Jewish Song, Culture Presented in Concert

Friedmans Interpret Traditions of Folklore In Idealistic Spirits

By DICK FUSON

Few Americans realize that with the downfall of the old German culture, America has inherited, as part of its folk tradition, the complete cavalcade of Hebrew and Jewish music. Whether one accepts Judaism as a nation or as a religion, one must admit that these people have brought to America an enviable tradition.

Susie Michael and Maurice Friedman (Mr. and Mrs. Friedman) set forth a liberal sampling of this tradition in a two-hour lecture-recital Sunday evening in the university's north music hall. Miss Michael explained in her brief talks that just as the Bible is the heart of the Jewish people, so is music their soul.

Mr. Friedman then sang two bits of music inspired by the Old Testament and followed this with four songs of present-day Palestine, in which his ability at mimicking the broad gestures of Jewish workingmen and sleepy mothers crooning their babes to sleep, was even more efective than his full, if somewhat tired, voice—a voice still notable for its great range and variability—at least in this type of music. His interpretation of the idealistic spirit in the Yiddish art songs, and the comic and serious elements in the songs of Israel's exiles, is alternately affecting and terribly funny.

For instance his characterization of the tailor, the shoemaker, and the huckster, each praising the newly auditioned cantor in the terms of his own trade, would have done justice to Menasha Skulnik, or any of the leading comic actors of New York's Yiddish theater.

Miss Michael's accompaniments were outstanding, and in her presentation of Jewish folk melodies in concert dress, her attack was graceful and her musicianship sound. America should awaken to this new addition to her cultural tradition.

High School Forensic Meet To Be Here

Despite transportation troubles, the state high school and junior college forensic tournaments will be held as scheduled, March 25 to 27 at the University of Iowa; the extension division disclosed yesterday.

Iowa City high school will enter debate and extempore speaking contests, two of the five events offered. Original oratory, interpretative reading and radio speaking complete the list of competitions sponsored by the Iowa High School Forensic league and the Iowa Junior College Forensic league.

In the high school section, debate teams will compete in A and B classes, with titles for each division. There will be no differentiation between pupils from larger and smaller schools in the individual events.

Team debate champions of 1942 were Ames in class A and Laurens in B among the high schools, while Burlington topped junior colleges.

Reinbeck Boy Admitted To Psychopathic Ward

The youth is expected to stay here about one week.

Film to Stress Conservation

War Transportation Committee to Show Sound Movie Here

Dan J. Steele, representative of the war transportation committee of the division of safety education, will be in Iowa City today to show a film dramatizing the necessity of conserving rubber to clubs and other groups which may be interested.

The sound film, produced by the Wilding Picture Production company for the division of safety education, portrays vividly the necessity for conservation of rubber. It is not only of special interest to men's clubs but to women's as well, since it shows ways to conserve rubber tires and gives examples of the ways tires are mistreated.

Any group which desires to see the film may contact Charles Chansky, local war transportation chairman, or call Mayor Henry Willenbrock's office, 4812, and a schedule for the showing of the film will be arranged.

After April 12, Steele will return to Iowa City to show the film again to groups which will not be able to see it today.

Past Noble Grands To Meet Thursday

Helps Fight Aixs By Sea and Air

AKRON, O. (AP)—Because he's heard that sweeping the enemy from both sea and air is what we've got to do to win the war, T. R. Frashure, a production-line worker here, has embarked on a personal one-man program to "two-time" the axis on both fronts.

Nights, he builds airplane deicers at B. F. Goodrich. By day he does his bit to 'keep 'em floating" by directing a lumber crew felling white oaks to be hewn into 32-foot timbers for mine sweepers and sub chasers.

War Art Workshop Sends New Posters To Iowa High Schools

Four-color posters urging recent high school graduates to continue their education, even if they may attend college only one semester before being called into the services, have been made recently by 15 students in the war art workshop and will be sent to Iowa high schools.

The posters were printed by the silk screen process, Prof. L. D. Longman, head of the art department, said, and the work was directed by Kenneth Loomis and Alice Davis, instructors in the art department.

The posters' slogan is "Speed Up Your Education," and depicts students crossing a huge clock whose numbers are represented by months.

It is estimated that approximately 15,000,000 victory gardens were planted throughout the U. S. in 1942.

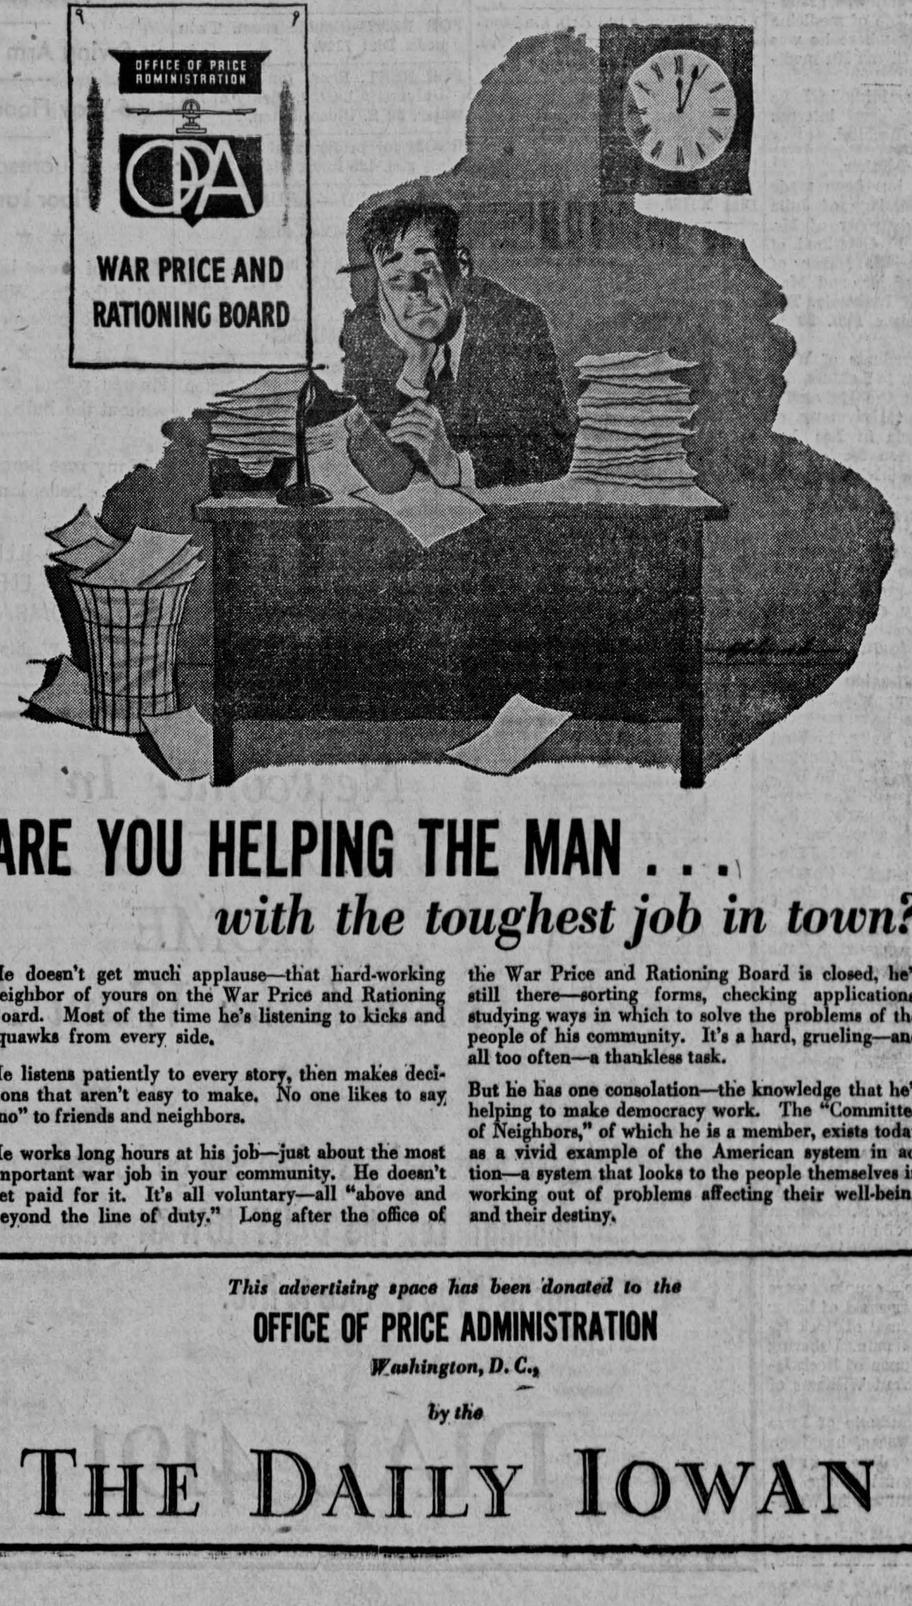
'42 Income Taxpayers Bog Revenue Workers With Deadline Returns

Striving to beat the midnight deadline, income taxpayers trooped into internal revenue offices throughout the country in unprecedented numbers yesterday to file their returns and pay at least their first quarterly installments on 1942 taxes.

Thousands of others — many of them paying a tax for the first time under the lower exemptions—flooded the mails with returns, swamping the offices on their biggest day in history. Increased collections ranged up to 250 percent in Kansas City.

Although Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan voiced confidence that virtually everyone would pay up, officials at several of the revenue offices scattered throughout the country said hundreds of thousands of returns were still missing, and some expressed fears the delinquencies would be heavy. However, returns postmarked before last midnight will be counted as filed on time, even though received late.



ARE YOU HELPING THE MAN . . .
with the toughest job in town?

He doesn't get much applause—that hard-working neighbor of yours on the War Price and Rationing Board. Most of the time he's listening to kicks and squawks from every side.

He listens patiently to every story, then makes decisions that aren't easy to make. No one likes to say "no" to friends and neighbors.

He works long hours at his job—just about the most important war job in your community. He doesn't get paid for it. It's all voluntary—all "above and beyond the line of duty." Long after the office of the War Price and Rationing Board is closed, he's still there—sorting forms, checking applications, studying ways in which to solve the problems of the people of his community. It's a hard, grueling—and all too often—a thankless task.

But he has one consolation—the knowledge that he's helping to make democracy work. The "Committee of Neighbors," of which he is a member, exists today as a vivid example of the American system in action—a system that looks to the people themselves in working out of problems affecting their well-being and their destiny.
