Nelson Seeks No Further Cut In Civilian Goods Production, Says Industry Reducing Costs

CHICAGO (AP) — Chairman Donald Nelson of the war production board last night stated "it is desirable that we do not curtail civilian production much further," but he cautioned against undue optimism because "in these uncertain times there is no telling how heavily the hand of war may yet fall upon us."

DONALD NELSON

The reported management and labor had lifted the United States to a "height of potential military power such as the world has never before seen," and had performed the task in democratic style while Hitler used the methods of a dictator and faced "a breakdown in production."

He told how the cost of the M4A1 tank had been cut 27 percent, the Thompson sub-machine gun 66 2-3 percent, the Liberator bomber 27 percent.

He conceded there had been "some unwarranted strikes," some "absentee situations," and some "isolated but ugly instances of misconduct in industry," but he contended they were "merely bubbles on the tidal wave of the American war effort."

Nelson pointed out the WPB deals with such "claimant agencies" as the army, navy, maritime commission, the office of defense transportation and the rubber, food, petroleum and lease-lend administrators.

"Often their demands conflict," he explained. "Often there is not enough material to go around. . . So far, I think, we have kept a pretty good balance between the various claimants. Everybody is just a little bit dissatisfied—which is always the sign of healthy compromise."

Nelson said congress has taken a "realistic and constructive" attitude toward the WPB, and that the findings of the senate's Truman committee had been "helpful."

"Its criticisms have not always been gentle," he elaborated, "but it always hurts when the doctor touches a sore spot." "Today," he stated, "we are turning out more goods for war than we ever produced for our peacetime needs—yet we have enough industrial power left over to keep civilian standards of living at a high level."

University Physical Plant Workers Express Dissatisfaction Over New Wage Increases

Charge 'Inequalities' In Percentage System, Ask Higher Salaries

Approximately 100 employees of the university's physical plant attended a meeting yesterday afternoon at which spokesmen for the group expressed dissatisfaction over the new percent system of wage increase announced yesterday morning. The representatives asked for raises in some instances as high as 15 to 25 percent above their present salaries.

The workers participating in yesterday's meeting were machinists, truck drivers, plumbers, painters, maintenance mechanics, janitors, steam-fitters, electricians, tinners and carpenters. Altogether, nearly 300 men are employed in maintaining grounds and buildings of the university.

The new increases which the workers objected to provide for boosts on a graduated scale, ranging from 16 percent raises for men earning under $900 a year to 3.9 percent raises for those getting $1,900 to $2,000. These increases are retroactive to March 1.

Fred W. Ambrose, superintendent of grounds and buildings, represented the university at the meeting and served to answer questions put forth by the employees.

Italy Readies Herself For Invasion, Calls Up All 17-Year-Olds

BERN, Switzerland (AP)—Italy took definite steps yesterday in preparation against an anticipated allied invasion from an African springboard, with the disclosure of a new mobilization law and with Sicily singled out as "the first bastion of Italy."

The new law would, in the event of, or threat of, invasion, place the entire nation under military rule, sending all men and women of 17 years or older into military detachments.

Propaganda Minister Alessandro Pavolini, preparing his people for looming axis defeat in Tunisia, warned in the newspaper Il Messaggero that the allies are fighting for a springboard for a continental attack and to safeguard the Mediterranean for shipping, and asserted that "Sicily therefore becomes a fortified outpost of the European continent itself against any and all attacks coming from the Mediterranean."

White Flag Bearer

JUST TO MAKE SURE that there would be no doubt about his mission, Nazi officers dressed this bearer of the flag of surrender completely in white. He's shown after his arrival at the Russian lines outside Stalingrad.

During the meeting some of the men said that unless their demands were met they would be forced to quit their jobs because of "inequalities in the wage scale now in effect." At the finish of the session, however, a number of workers indicated that they were undecided as to what they would do, and a few declared their intention to stay on the job.

Between 15 and 20 men said that they were quitting their jobs and did not plan to return to work. Late yesterday afternoon, however, Fred Ambrose reported that he had received "no official resignation from any of the men" who were present at the meeting or who failed to work yesterday.

Fierce Battle Over Channel

Unload Incendiaries On Harbor, Schidam Suburb of Rotterdam

AT A U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND (AP)—Flying Fortresses and a strong force of enemy fighters fought a fierce sky battle 30,000 feet over the English channel yesterday and then the bombers streaked on through heavy clouds to unload explosives and incendiaries on the harbor and Schidam suburb of Rotterdam.

It was the first attack on Schidam by the Americans, who twice before have raided Rotterdam. This attack was the ninth in a busy month for heavy American bombers.

Luck rode with the bombers from this particular station, none of which was shot down although a U. S. air force communique said a bomber from another station was lost in the raid.

Over the target area, they found a break in the four-layer thickness of clouds encountered along the route, enabling them to see their objectives clearly in unloading bombs.

Returning fliers reported many explosions and fires on the dock area and on some of the large number of ships they observed in the harbor.

Several hundred allied fighters accompanied the formations of Fortresses, and the raid followed earlier offensive patrols over occupied France by British Spitfires.

(Major Algernon Romig of Canton, Ohio, led one Fortress group from another base, and his crew reported seeing fewer than a dozen enemy fighters, which attacked the formation flying ahead and behind Romig's Fort.)

Eighth Army Fans Out Above Gabes in Pursuit of Rommel

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA (AP) — The British Eighth army fanned out over the coastal plains more than 12 miles above Gabes yesterday in a steady pursuit of Marshal Rommel's bomb-ridden troops, while the British First army in the north recaptured Sedjenane and pressed on to a point only 35 miles southwest of the big axis-held naval base of Bizerte.

An allied communique also said that the American army of the center had bored farther into the flank of Rommel's coastal belt. The southern wing of the troops under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., was believed to be only 45 miles from a coastal junction with the British Eighth army.

Rommel's main forces appeared to be making a hurried flight in open country northward toward Sfax, 70 miles above the onrushing British vanguards, and the coastal road was reported strewn with many enemy bodies and wrecked machines—victims of a ceaseless shuttle-bombing by American and British airmen.

The Eighth army captured Metouia and Oudref, the latter 12 miles north of Gabes, early yesterday morning and advanced units swept on to contact "hastily prepared enemy defenses," the communique said.

Oudref is a junction of the road leading northwest about 45 miles to connect with General Patton's southern American wing moving down from El Guetar. Italian rear guards left by Rommel in between these two allied armies appear to be cut off unless they make a precipitate withdrawal through mountain trails leading northeastward out of the pocket.

The progress of the U. S. troops was hampered by extensive minefields laid in the mountain passes.

Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's British First army on the offensive in north Tunisia captured Sedjenane, 40 miles southwest of Bizerte, and a dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent William B. King at the front said Moroccan Goumiers, (their units are called goums), had penetrated a farther six miles to the east.

These pig-tailed warriors, a contribution by the French in north Africa, were said to have occupied positions above and below Sedjenane in the First army's pressure on Col. Gen. Jürgen von Arnim's northern forces at a time when von Arnim's confederate is in retreat from the south.

One Italian Bersaglieri regiment no longer exists as an operating unit, dispatches from this front said.

By capturing Oudref the Eighth army won control of a bottleneck between the sea and the salt sink, Chott El Fedjedj, and sent Rommel reeling back into another pocket 20 miles to the north.

Director Davis had other remarks to make about the Tunisian battle scene to point up his job. He told a press conference, under questioning, that it was his "personal opinion" as a layman that axis forces could be exterminated or "neutralized" in Tunisia in time to permit an invasion of continental Europe this year. Military men would be better able to judge as to that, he added "if they will tell you."

West of Rostov along the northern shore of the Sea of Azov, the communique said the Germans had attacked Russian positions but were forced into "a hurried retreat" by Soviet artillery and mortar fire. On the Smolensk front in central Russia there was little change in an area where flooding rivers and clinging mud has hampered military operations, but the communique said another Nazi defense point was knocked out and 100 Germans killed.

HUGE U.S. TWIN-ENGINE BOMBERS PROVIDE 'CLASSROOM'

NIGHT BOMBING MISSIONS are tough tests for bombardier cadets at the army Bombardier school in San Angelo, Tex. In huge twin-engine bombers, the students go aloft with bombardier instructors in shifts, on a 24-hour-a-day schedule, flying to one or more the 18 west Texas bombing ranges used by the school. Two cadets are assigned to each bomber. Course requires 12 weeks. The picture at the left shows that a midnight squall doesn't faze United States bomber's crew when they set out on a job. They think nothing of it. At the right a weary crew welcomes the dawn and the sight of the San Angelo air field.

The Farm Price Problem—

Wide differences of opinion exist as to the efficacy of higher prices in encouraging farm production. With the general average of farm prices already the highest in 22 years and well above parity with prices paid by farmers, it would appear that a more important requirement is to prevent the drain of manpower from the farms to the factories.

This cannot, however, be done by means of higher farm wages since the effect would be to force prices to even higher levels, thus running counter to the price stabilization program.

It is evident that any price or wage solution to the problem involves basic conflict between two vital war objectives—the stimulation of production and the stabilization of prices and the cost of living. Such difficulties could be solved by forcing Congress to make a choice between the two. Let them decide which they more vitally need—increased production or price stabilization.

The demand for adequate food supplies for the United States and its allies is too vital to be set aside even for the sake of such important aims as economic stabilization. We MUST feed our fighting forces.

Civilian rationing, of course, can and undoubtedly will be extended. However, any genuine remedy for the future must include provision for maintaining a land army capable of meeting civilian and military food demands. Unless and until the principle of conscription can be applied to civilian pursuits as well as to military service, the solution of the farm manpower problem must be sought in financial inducements. These will probably have to be accompanied by subsidies if serious price disturbances are to be avoided.

Fats for Victory—

The part that housewives may play in winning the war is being emphasized again in the renewal of an appeal for waste fats. While it may seem like a burden to them to save the tablespoonful of fat a day that has been estimated necessary to reach the quota, it is not too much to undertake when they realize that within thirty days after they deliver the fat, it will be making ammunition for the men in the armed services.

The seizure of many coconut and palm-producing islands by the Japanese cut down a major source of fats and oils. Fats contain glycerin. Glycerin is used in making gunpowder. The British and Russians use double-base (nitroglycerin and nitrocellulose) powder exclusively. The American army uses double-base powders in special arms such as anti-aircraft, anti-tank, airplane cannon shells, trench mortars, pack howitzers and certain types of naval guns.

It has been estimated that 17,000,000 pounds of waste fats a month must be collected from American households, if the 1943 goal of 200,000,000 pounds is to be reached. Rules have been eased regarding the fats. It now is not necessary to strain them. Every housewife who takes her contribution of fats to a dealer, where she may sell the fat, instead of giving it, if she wishes, will aid in providing the material for ammunition to speed the day of victory.

Too Many Deferments—

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, has ideas about manpower, although he has been less vocal of late than at times in the past. He testified before a senate committee that of the 29,000,000 men registered between the ages of 19 and 45, approximately 22,000,000 are under 38.

That is a sizeable number, but because of rejections on physical grounds and deferments on other grounds, the draft boards are hard put to meet the demands put on them.

For one thing, Hershey hazards the opinion that there are too many deferred men of draft age in the swarming government agencies. He argues that many of the positions they hold could be filled by women or over-age men.

There has been an independent move—opposed by the administration—to halt the increase of employes in federal bureaus but further simplification could be obtained by sifting able-bodied young men who have featherbedded themselves into these soft bombproof snaps. Why, for instance, does the OPA need 2,700 lawyers? Why does American Labor Party Elmer Davis need 3,900 employes?

If discretion were thrown to the winds, and all men of draft age now on the government payroll were tagged for the army forthwith, not a single, solitary citizen would miss them. General Hershey also had a word about the farm labor shortage. Here is a field in which the conscientious objector can work without qualms. Already, according to the General, 500 objectors are ready to go wherever the Department of Agriculture directs, and 1,000 more candidates are expected.

Although this will offer no solution to the problem, it is by taking advantage of many small reservoirs of farm labor that the shortage can be reduced.

Interpreting the War News Hitler Now Concerned With The Post-African Phase of War

By GLENN BABB. The respite which the axis stand in Tunisia has given Hitler is rapidly running out. Doubtless he reads the signs that the period of grace may be shorter than he had calculated. There is every indication that his high command already is concerned primarily with the post-African phase. From his point of view there is little more that can be done about Rommel and von Arnim. They have their mission: to buy a few more precious weeks with the lives at their disposal. As their Tunisian foothold shrinks their reinforcement or rescue becomes increasingly difficult; it remains to be seen whether the latter will be seriously attempted.

For Hitler's command it is necessary to get on with the next job, preparation for the shock of an allied attack against the fortress of Europe itself. The immediate task is the stiffening of his Italian ally, not merely against the actual physical assault, but against the war of nerves which the united nations, with the initiative safely in their hands, seem to be carrying on with telling effect.

This, however, is merely one phase of the gigantic program of preparation which must cover all Europe's coasts from the Turkish frontier around to the north cape, for a year or more without, however, any great urgency until the allied landings in north Africa showed Hitler that his fortress actually was beleaguered. Now it is no longer safe to assume that the blow will not come tomorrow; it is not even safe to assume that it will wait until Tunisia is mopped up.

Two months ago, according to Moscow's accounts, Hitler felt free to remove twelve divisions from western Europe for the Ukrainian counteroffensive. Perhaps this was intended partly as a gesture of contempt for the western allies and their invasion plans. If so the effect of the gesture was not lost on Moscow. But it is doubtful whether it can be repeated now.

There is no doubt that Hitler has been able to do a lot in the way of giving Europe's soft underbelly a protective shell in the five months since the African landings disclosed a new phase of united nations strategy. From the Salonika region above the Dardanelles to the Spanish-French frontier it has been a winter of tremendous effort for the axis in raising fortifications, placing new air fields, disposing troops, attempting to stamp out rebellion in the rear.

But fixed fortifications, even air fields from which squadrons can shift rapidly from one menaced coast to another, are not enough to offset the advantage which the choice of battlegrounds gives. And that choice definitely rests now with the allies. Hitler cannot be sure that the first trans-Mediterranean blow will come from the Tunisian springboard. He must watch the whole 3,000-mile extent of African northern coast. There is still a British army in northeast Africa under General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson and an American army in the northwest under Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark. Little is known of their present strength and dispositions, but the axis commands cannot leave them out of their calculations.

Italy undoubtedly is receiving first attention, the Italian mainland and the islands which may become stepping stones for invasion. In Sicily, just 90 miles from the north Tunisian coast, every town is described as a fortress. There is every indication that the Italians are bracing themselves for the terrible experience of invasion, realizing that the fall of Tunisia will bare their own shores to attack.

German interest in Italian morale, which has been manifest in the activities of the gestapo for the last two years, grows more acute. The Berlin radio has seen fit to deny reports that the German navy is taking over the Italian fleet, branding these as designed to sow discord among the axis allies, as possibly they were.

But German morale is also a matter of concern. The necessity of guarding all Europe, not only the shores but interior fronts in the occupied lands, the strain of the titanic effort and lastly the steadily rising storm of British and American air attack all are having their effects.

"We have no illusions any more about sleeping undisturbed," a German spokesman was quoted as saying after the RAF's last blasting of Berlin. For Adolf Hitler it is not just a question of a night's sleep. For him there is no more rest or security, at any time or any place. All the weeks from now on are filled with the menace of the blow that must fall sooner or later somewhere on the coast of the continent he has made his unwilling domain.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS SOUNDS

Hollywood Hit Hard by Draft

By ROBBIN COONS. HOLLYWOOD—When Mickey Rooney's studio filed an appeal for his draft deferment as a vital employee (he was later deferred after taking a physical exam) it may have put Mickey in the middle but it also brought out in the open—and dramatically—Hollywood's increasing jitters on the actor shortage. The airing should be healthy. Hollywood had been kidding itself (not without encouragement) that it might enjoy some sort of recognition as an essential industry. Some of its technical workers, indeed, had been given deferred status, indicating that motion pictures were held in some esteem as war-important. Nothing had been said about actors, other than the official word of the Screen Actors' Guild, which protested against blanket deferment.

So we had an industry, whose propaganda and morale value was lavishly praised, whose work in bond-selling and camp-entertainment was acclaimed, left in a most peculiar position. It should go ahead and make pictures—and get its actors, a prime ingredient of same, where it could.

The result? Through enlistment or draft, Hollywood has lost these stars and featured players: Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Melvyn Douglas, Tyrone Power, Alan Ladd, James Stewart, John Payne, Lew Ayres, Gene Raymond, Wayne Morris, Gene Autry, Ronald Reagan, Victor Mature, Tim Holt, Eddie Albert, Bill Holden, Burgess Meredith, Lee Tracy, Robert Sterling, Jeffrey Lynn, Van Heflin, Stirling Hayden, Dan Daily jr., Tony Martin, Douglas McPhail, Richard Ney, Ray Middleton, Lee Frederick, Richard Denning, Jack Briggs. PH.D. FRENCH EXAMINATION. Early in his writing career George Jean Nathan did some work with H. L. Mencken, and his style never has recovered. What Mr. Nathan never has seen is the fact that such a style depends wholly on the choice of eye-catching words. Mr. Mencken always had this gift; Mr. Nathan of tenner than that has merely used three words where one might have done as well.

But there are a few unfortunate things in the book, just the same. One of them is unbelievable in a man of 61 years—Mr. Nathan actually thinks the Broadway theater is good. That is his privilege; it is also the privilege of the reader to doubt the evidence Mr. Nathan submits. It includes such masterpieces as Fred Stone being catapulted to the stage, sneezing stagehands making imitation waves by walking under blue-painted canvas.

And it is not fair to set up a scarecrow merely to knock him down again. In the course of his book Mr. Nathan quotes 273 saws which he says most parents are wont to deliver, demolishing each with a few well (or less well) chosen words. He pays off a grudge or two at the same time, as witness No. 32: "Luck at cards; unluckly in love."

"This" goes on Mr. Nathan, "makes absolutely no sense whatever, and is worthy of the mentality of the kind of parents who believe in fortune-tellers, the great literary genius of Hervey Allen, and..."

The thoughtless reader is likely to overlook the fact that nobody, least of all Mr. Allen, has mentioned his "genius." It's just something Mr. Nathan set up to smack down.

PH. D. READING TEST IN GERMAN. The Ph. D. reading test in German will be given Tuesday, April 6, at 4 o'clock in room 104 Schaeffer hall. Candidates will furnish themselves with a dictionary and 300 pages of reading material in their respective fields. It is expected that 100 pages have been prepared in advance. FRED L. FEHLING.

BARNYARD GOES TO THE HEAD

REMINDER OF MEAT RATIONING is given by war-time chapeau worn by Film Actress Carole Landis. Reputedly inspired by the camouflage Miss Landis saw on her recent tour of army camps in north Africa, the creation uses green raffia for the simulated grass brim. White, red-roofed barn of felt makes up the crown while barnyard animals, such as pigs, cows and horses, are used for trimming.

Warime Substitutes for Beverages, Foods

Wartime substitutes of tea and coffee and the new importance of dried and dehydrated foods in America at war were discussed by Mrs. David D. Nicholson at a recent meeting of the Iowa City Woman's club home department.

In her discussion of tea and coffee substitutes, Mrs. Nicholson told of South American mate and Swedish and American coffee. Mate, a South American tea, may soon be used to supply the North American market because tea is no longer available from the Orient.

Tea Substitutes The drink is made much like tea from the Orient except that the water is kept just below the boiling point. The tea is prepared for market in teaballs made of the tip leaves of the tree. These leaves are dried in the open and roasted until they are a clear amber-brown color.

The coffee shortage may be relieved in America by coffee grown in Maine. One coffee orchard of 15,000 trees, grown as a hobby, is expected to bring a harvest of 1,000 pounds of coffee.

From the Chinese In discussing dried and dehydrated foods, Mrs. Nicholson said that dried or dehydrated oysters, once seen only in China, are becoming a frequent sight in New Orleans markets. The oysters are

War Posters To Be Shown

High School Exhibit Includes Collections By British Children

A selection of war posters made by British children ranging in age from 5 to 18 will be on display in connection with the high school art exhibition being held this next week, beginning Saturday, in the art building.

Several collections of posters were first painted by British children for a competition organized by the National Savings committee of Britain, and more than half of the schools entered the competition.

Royal Academy Out of 50,000 posters, 1,500 were selected and shown at the Royal Academy in London, the exhibition being opened by Henry Allen, former governor of Kansas. The public voted on which were the best posters in the various age groups, and prizes of saving certificates were awarded.

The artists' technique from kindergarten to the art school can be noted in the posters. One noticeable feature in the collection is the impact of the "blitz" on the children as is reflected in their work.

The United States treasury department says of the British children's posters: "This exhibition offers an opportunity to encourage the young artists and draughtsmen in your schools to make their own posters for our country's war saving program." It also suggests that school competition might be instituted and that some active local organization might offer a prize or a bond for the best poster produced.

Eight Collections Such a program would be helpful to the treasury department in its schools at war program, and would have as its ultimate objective the collection of exhibitions of American school posters to send to the children of England.

The poster program would also furnish the basis for further school education on the importance of buying bonds and stamps as an essential part of the war effort.

There are eight of these British collections now available from the British information services in New York City. A group of these posters, first shown in the American-British art center in New York City, received very favorable comment and was the subject of an illustrated article by Jan Gordon in a recent number of "The Studio."

High School Exhibit To Be in Connection With Radio Program

The Iowa high school art exhibition will be held in connection with the radio art conference which is to be broadcast over WSUI from 10 o'clock until noon Saturday morning. Teachers and pupils who are unable to come to the exhibition will benefit from the evaluations by the three out-of-state critics who will evaluate the entries at this time.

The critics for the high school exhibition include: Harry Sternberg, prominent artist of New York City; Clifton Gayne of the department of art education at the University of Minnesota; and Felix Payant of Columbus, Ohio.

Classes of entries are war design, drawing, painting, design, handicraft work, sculpture, civic art and pictorial photography. Classes of entries will be strongly affected by the war situation, but in order to maintain a balanced art program for the production of future work, other classes of entries will be continued as usual.

The critics will evaluate all the entries on effective organization, expressiveness and originality, technical facility and suitability for purpose. A report of ratings will be sent to the art teacher of each participating school, and in addition to individual ratings the critics will be asked to give constructive criticism on the work as a whole from each school.

Twenty-two schools will participate in the exhibition. The schools include: Boone, Burlington, Cedar Rapids, Centerville, Clinton, Creston, Davenport, Des Moines, Dubuque, Iowa City, Lamoni, LeMars, Marion, Marshalltown, Mason City, Mt. Airy, Mt. Pleasant, Newton, Sioux City, Storm Lake, Waterloo and West Branch.

Closing date for the women's intramural table tennis tournament has been set for April 15, Kit Chassel, intramural manager, announced yesterday.

Competition is on a ladder tournament basis and the winners will be determined by the players in top positions on the ladder at the end of the tournament.

All challenges must be played off before a player can challenge other opponents. Positions of the players in the tournament are listed on the ladder which is posted on the club bulletin board in the women's gymnasium. Results of games should be entered there so that changes may be made on the ladder.

Tables are set up in the women's gymnasium each Tuesday and Thursday at 4 p. m., but players may play wherever they wish. There is no limit to the number of games played by each player so long as no challenge is refused.

Spring Grid Drills Start Today for Iowa

Harris Issues Practice Call

University Men Urged To Take Advantage Of Conditioning Drill

Iowa's 1943 spring football practice will get under way this afternoon with Jim Harris, the Hawks' duration coach, in charge.

Harris has invited 38 players to the spring drills but he urged that any one in the university is welcome to take part. "Many of the boys will be entering the service at the end of the semester and it is an excellent opportunity to get themselves in condition," he said.

The drills will last until the semester is through, and most of the time will be spent in conditioning work. Due to lack of time there will be no intra-squad game. It is hard to tell how many grid players that report will be in school next fall but it will give Harris a chance to see just what he may have next season. Since freshmen are now eligible for Big Ten competition many new men will not take part until fall.

Among the 38 players to whom Harris extended invitations were 10 lettermen:

Indians Take Easy Victory Over Purdue

LAPAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Cleveland's Indians defeated Purdue university's varsity, 9 to 3, yesterday but displayed no special prowess in doing so.

The Tribe's first stringers, facing three of their own hurlers who bolstered the collegians' team, scored their heaviest, six runs, in the eighth inning when Ray Post issued six bases on balls, five of them in succession. Otto Denning, recently named first sacker for the Indians, followed with a double to clean the sacks.

Errors on both sides were plentiful and six against the Boilertuffs, five charged against the emarkers.

CARIO, ILL. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals picked the design for their world championship rings yesterday. Then in an afternoon practice game, Coach Mike Gonzalez's team won its first victory of the spring, defeating Coach Buzzy Wares' squad, 9 to 3.

Barney Ross Met His First Jap 13 Years Ago, And Won

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Today's short sport melodrama, premiere:

Act I
Feb. 22, 1930—Welterweight boxing champion Jackie Fields strode airily into his dressing room before his fight here with Young Corbett II. Behind him, jugging the champ's bag, followed a round-faced, black haired youngster. Fields lost the decision. Lucky for him it was an over weight match. His young stablemate won his bout handily, a 4-round decision in one of the preliminaries over a Japanese opponent, Jaba Kumagai.

The young fellow caught the next train home for Chicago. He was pretty much disillusioned. The manager he had come out here to place himself under hadn't been impressed with his ability. "Too much Fancy Dan stuff" he said.

In fact, the new prospective manager had not even met the lad at the train on his first trip to this city. The boy was peeved over that kind of treatment, too, and had told the manager so. The manager had shrugged nonchalantly: "I've got the champion and I have to pay attention to him."

To which the boy had retorted, "Yes, and maybe some day I'll be champion."

How prophetic were the words of the boy who had carried the champ's bag into the dressing room. Three years later he won the world's lightweight title. In 1934 he won the welterweight crown. His name? Barney Ross.

The man who had stumbled over this gold mine and neglected to stake a claim was Gig Rooney, then one of the big time managers. (Your chronicler was

White Sox Edge Out Cubs, 8-7, in Ninth

FRENCH LICK, Ind. (AP)—Rookie Frank Kalin's home run after Dick Culler had tripled in the ninth gave Chicago's White Sox an 8 to 7 decision over the Chicago Cubs yesterday in their "strictly practice" engagement.

The Sox had a long pull to come from behind after Bill Nicholson's homer with the bases loaded followed by another circuit smash by Dom Dallessandro had given the Cubs five runs in the first inning. But after the Cubs added two more runs in the fourth veteran Bill Dietrich and rookie Dan Hanski, a southpaw up from the semipro ranks, blanked their northside rivals for the last five innings.

Dallessandro of the Cubs and Jim Grant, Sox recruit obtained from St. Paul, each got three hits for the day.

Armstrong, Beau Jack *To Forget Friendship *In Tomorrow's Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—They will stage one of those "everything I am I owe to you so now I'll try to knock your brains out" fights at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, giving another illustration of the fact that when gold comes in at the gate sentiment pops out of the window.

Beau Jack is the lad with the thankless job of showing he is thankful. He meets Henry Armstrong, the man whom he used as a pattern in cutting out his career, and whose friendly advice aided him along the way.

There have been other cases in which a sincere friendship existed between two men who agreed to try to hammer each other unconscious for money. Joe Louis and John Henry Lewis as one example.

But oftand we can think of no other case where the friendship combined the elements of gratitude and hero worship. Lou Nova used to consider Max Baer his idol, but that was as far as it went and Lou felt no particular pangs of remorse in knocking Max loose from his moorings a couple of times.

But there are all the elements—friendship, gratitude and hero worship—and we have a hunch they will combine to produce a rousing fight. That's the way these bouts with a touch of sentiment usually turn out.

Fighters are peculiar critters. They can shut off sentiment like it was flowing from a spigot. The average gent wouldn't jump on his best friend and start beating him up if you paid him. Prize-fighters will do it in a minute if you pay them. When they enter that ring the other guy is just a faceless robot to be treated with the same impersonal viciousness as a ball player would treat a baseball headed toward the plate.

We are assuming that Beau Jack runs true to form, and that he can forget the man he is fighting is Henry Armstrong. If he can't, he is beaten before he starts.

He isn't the same Armstrong, but we still think there is too much of him for Beau Jack. We've seen them both fight, and just have the idea that Henry will be able to keep moving in faster and longer than his younger rival.

And he can't be, despite efforts made to build him up to that status. Nature just doesn't work that way. He looks about the same. He has bags over his eyes instead of under them, but it seems he's always had them. Only this time they've apparently taken the zipper off them. Before he retired his eyes started leaking blood in nearly every fight. Now, so they say, he doesn't slice any more.

It's the old story of common sense being befuddled by awe. A rookie would be goggle-eyed in the presence of Babe Ruth, although common sense would try to tell him his own youth and vitality would give him the edge in competition today.

Beau Jack may not be able to forget that the Armstrong of today is not the Armstrong of other years.

Name Taylor Acting Head Of Iowa Loop

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Representatives of Iowa conference schools at a special meeting yesterday decided on a single track meet, instead of two as had been planned originally, and named Sec Taylor, sports editor of the Des Moines Register, as acting athletic commissioner in the place of Ed Moore, sports editor of the Waterloo Courier, who was given a leave of absence.

Moore has received a commission as lieutenant (jg) in the navy and will report to an indoctrination base in the east late in April. Taylor agreed to serve as commissioner, in his absence.

Conference representatives had decided to split the loop into a northern and southern section with a track meet in each, but decided against this yesterday. Loras college was named as the host school for a single meet, which is scheduled on May 7 and 8.

Virtually all of the coaches announced they would be represented at the meet, as well as at the Drake relays on April 23 and 24, but in some instances will send only one, two or three athletes.

Conference faculty representatives went on record as favoring complete cooperation with military units that may be assigned to any of the schools, expressed their willingness to turn over gymnasiums, athletic fields and equipment to such armed forces, and ruled that questions of eligibility involving athletes stationed at the schools will be considered separately by the executive board and the commissioner.

This decision was reached after a thorough discussion of navy V-12 students, who are sent to the colleges for a longer duration than those in other navy branches, and study specific subjects. Some of them are stationed or will be stationed at Simpson, Dubuque, Luther, Central and Iowa Wesleyan colleges.

"The next word will have to come from Allen," Harris declared. "We're not going to better our last offer."

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP)—Shortstop Vernon Stephens, who is classified 1-A for military service, notified the St. Louis Browns yesterday that he would report for spring training soon and play until he receives his induction orders.

The Browns' batters had a field day yesterday in an intra-squad game, belting out 29 hits in eight innings.

OMAHA (AP)—The annual spring race meet at Omaha Ak-Sar-Ben field has been cancelled for this year, President J. E. Davidson of the board of governors announced yesterday.

The field and facilities are being used by the army. Davidson explained cancellation of meet plans was determined because of possible interference with military operations.

Giants Add to Spring Exhibition Schedule

Stirnweiss Replaces Rizutto as Lead-Off In Yankees' Lineup

LAKEWOOD N. J. (AP)—The New York Giants yesterday added four games to their spring exhibition schedule, originally listed to start at New York April 10, to provide baseball entertainment for service men in this vicinity.

Weather again interfered with yesterday's workouts and manager Mel Ott cancelled an intra-camp game, in favor of a three-hour batting and fielding drill.

ASBURY PARK, N. J. (AP)—George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss, the chunky speedster from Newark, will take over Phil Rizutto's place as lead-off man in the New York Yankees' lineup as well as his spot at shortstop if he is not accepted for service when his draft call comes next month.

Picking his lineup for Saturday's opening exhibition game against the Newark Bears, manager Joe McCarthy named Stirnweiss for the No. 1 spot and said he will remain there, since he has the speed and potential hitting ability for the job.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics yesterday signed Everett Fagan, 24-year-old pitcher who won 20 and lost 12 last season for the pennant-winning Pulaski club of the defunct class D Virginia league. He's 3-A in the draft.

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Pitcher Johnny Allen, obtained by the Phillies in the deal which sent Rube Melton to Brooklyn, sent word to manager Bucky Harris yesterday he has "three profitable businesses in Florida and my livelihood is not dependent on baseball." He turned down a $9,000 contract, probably the highest salary extended to a member of the Phillies since Dolph Camilli's day.

"The next word will have to come from Allen," Harris declared. "We're not going to better our last offer."

Seven Gold Medals Awarded At Intramural Wrestling Finals

By GENE DORR

Seven intramural wrestling champions were crowned last afternoon in the finals of seven divisions which started with 158 grapplers. The match between Marvin Simpson of Slagle section and Buddy Hart of Delta Upsilon in the 145 lb. class was postponed until Monday because of the latter's illness.

Jim Wendel of Spencer took the 135 lb. title in registering a fall over Kenneth Jensen of Howard house in 5:08. The more aggressive of the two, Wendel was never in difficult ways he went on to pin his worthy opponent in the third period.

Representing Dean house, Boyd Berryhill, matched holds with Moon Mullin of Psi Omega for three full periods before winning a 4-0 decision over the dentist in the 155 lb. division. Mullin, could not shake his grapevine-like rival, and although he couldn't get the necessary points to win, he gave Berryhill a good run for the crown.

In the battle of the heavies, a 60 lb. advantage was too much for fighting Steve O'Brien to overcome as he lost a 12 to 3 decision to Roger Kane of Delta Tau Delta. Tiring rapidly in the second period, the Phi Kappa Psi representative could not cope with the combined strength and weight of Kane, who pushed O'Brien around almost at will.

The clash between the 165 pounders went all the way as Don Van Gorder of Spencer section decided Don Tyler of Delta Upsilon, 4 to 0. Van Gorder had the advantage all through the contest, but could not see the way clear enough to pin his fraternity brother.

Bob Knarr of Sigma Nu decided Clarence Hosford of Psi Omega, 3 to 1, for the 126 lb. title. With the points at 1-all at the end of the second period, Knarr floored the dentist in the third frame to obtain the necessary edge for the crown.

The quickest fall of the afternoon was raked in by Bill Leaming of Macbride section who threw Jerry Fleming of Slagle section in 1:09. Seeing intramural wrestling action for the first time this season, Leaming took the 126 lb. crown by pinning an opponent who advanced into the finals on a 4:42 fall.

The Browns' batters had a field day yesterday in an intra-squad game, belting out 29 hits in eight innings.

OMAHA (AP)—The annual spring race meet at Omaha Ak-Sar-Ben field has been cancelled for this year, President J. E. Davidson of the board of governors announced yesterday.

The field and facilities are being used by the army. Davidson explained cancellation of meet plans was determined because of possible interference with military operations.

Pirates Open Season With 18 to 0 Shut-Out Over Indiana College

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates did not spare the horses yesterday, running up an 18 to 0 victory over the perspiring Ball state college nine in their opening exhibition contest of 1943.

Frankie Frisch, who had such good luck in converting Bob Elliott from an outfielder into a third baseman, indicated he is hoping to repeat with speedy Jimmy Russell, up from Toronto. He replaced Pete Coscarart with Russell mid-way in the game and the youngster not only did well arfield but clubbed out a triple.

Ernie Sites, a sandlot catcher from Pittsburgh not on the regular Pirate roster, was the batting star, driving in four runs with a triple and single.

Bob Klingner fanned nine batters in the final four frames while allowing four hits. The teachers had but two veterans from last year, most of the others having gone into the armed services.

Outfielder Vince DiMaggio joined the team last night, making the squad complete. An operation on his wife in a California hospital caused him to be late.

Application Blanks for Service Qualifying Tests to Be Held Friday Available Now

Application blanks for the qualifying tests on Friday for the army specialized training program and the navy college training program are now available at the cafeteria in Iowa City high school, principal W. E. Beck announced yesterday.

Properly filled out, these application blanks will admit qualified high school seniors or recent graduates to the tests. Each applicant must indicate on the blank which branch of the service he prefers.

From those who successfully complete the tests, candidates for the army specialized training program and the navy college training program will be selected to attend colleges under contract to the respective services.

Army Specialized Program

The objective of this plan, which will abrogate no existing contracts between army, navy, and educational institutions, is to provide specially, technically trained soldiers.

The selection of soldiers for such training will be made from enlisted men who have completed or are completing their basic military training and who apply for selection in specialized training. This will follow the general plan now in effect for the selection of enlisted men for officer candidate schools.

Appropriate courses will be prescribed by the army. Varying with the nature of the tasks, the curricula will call for various lengths in the periods of training.

To cover the transition from the enlisted reserve program, now in effect, to the new army specialized training program, the following actions will be taken with respect to those now in the advanced R. O. T. C. course and the enlisted reserve corps.

1) Medical, dental and veterinary students in the E. R. C. will be called to active duty at the end of the next academic semester and will be detailed to continue courses of medical instruction under contracts to be made by the war department. Students commissioned in the Medical Administrative Corps may resign such commission, enlist as privates and be detailed in the same manner as indicated above.

Pre-medical students in the E. R. C., or those inducted before June 30, 1943, taking approved courses will continue on being returned in an inactive status until the end of the next academic semester and will then be called to active duty. Those selected for further medical or premedical training will be detailed for such instruction under the new army program.

2) Seniors taking advanced R. O. T. C. will be ordered to active duty upon graduation or upon completion of the next academic semester.

3) Juniors in the E. R. C., or inducted before June 30, 1943, who are pursuing approved technical courses will continue in an inactive status until the end of the next academic semester and will then be called to active duty.

4) All other E. R. C. members

Towns" is on.

Champion service flag at the moment is claimed by Rep. Luther A. Johnson for the village of Kosse, in his home state of Texas.

Kosse, says Mr. Johnson, has a total population of 881, but now has 250 persons in the armed services. Rev. William H. Sealy, pastor of Kosse's First Baptist church, provided Mr. Johnson with the alphabetical list, with the information that every one on it either lived in Kosse at the time of his enlistment or was more or less temporarily away from "home."

The citizens of Kosse are proud of their record and are soon unveiling a big public plaque with the names of all their service men inscribed thereon.

Just now Kosse managed to get nearly a third of its population into the armed forces is a story I would like to hear more about. And if there's any community that has a better claim to fame for patriotism, I'd like to hear about that, too.

Nobody was more surprised than state department and White House will be called to active duty at the end of the current semester.

At the termination of any phase of specialized training, under this program the soldiers will be selected for 1) further training in the officer candidate school; 2) recommended for a technical non-commissioned officer; 3) returned to troops; 4) in exceptional cases detailed for very advanced training; 5) in very exceptional cases, made available for extra-army technical work vital to the war effort.

circles at public complaints against our "aid to Spain." They took it for granted that the people were by now well enough educated to understand that any means employed to keep Spain neutral would be justified.

As a matter of fact, some military strategists emphatically declared that if Spain went over to the axis now, it might cost thousands of American lives and delay the united nations invasion plans for months, which would cost billions of dollars.

Lee Bonnell, MacDonald Carey and others of more or less prominence.

And the new leading men? There are some, but the increased drafting of married men leaves scant hope that they will be around long enough to become names.

There are stars still around (as of this writing, at least) — the older character people, the family men, the romantic leads of more advanced years, younger ones still awaiting call and doing outstanding war work while waiting, together with those rejected for physical reasons like Errol Flynn.

Over-age, even in the new order making "38 to 45" men subject to call, would be Monte Woolley, Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Ronald Colman, Victor McLaglan, Warner Baxter, William Powell, Richard Dix, Walter Pidgeon, perhaps a few others.

CONSUMERS' CORNER

The where-with-all for rugs and carpets will not be forthcoming for the duration, and a glance at Bobbie's seventh grade geography book will tell you why. The wool comes from Australia, China and South America; the jute from India. The cotton comes from our own south and the rayon from our own factories, but war needs are getting first call.

Rugs and carpets have become closely associated with comfortable living. Because they are among the civilian goods being curtailed, the OPA has come forth with professional advice on how to care for the ones you now have.

Store Carefully

You can get a head start on the twin dangers of wear and moth-damage by planning now for summer storage of rugs. Cold storage is highly effective for all woolsens, but home methods can prove just as satisfactory. You will save time and energy by setting aside one closet in which to store rugs, blankets, clothing and all woolsens.

When the time comes to roll up your rugs for the summer, you should have them cleaned by a professional or give them a thorough sweeping and vacuuming on both sides. Cover them with naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene, or spray them with one of the moth-preventive solutions on market before rolling each rug tightly and sealing it in paper.

Seal Closet

Store the rolls for the summer in a closet completely sealed against moth entrance. If your rugs are thoroughly cleaned and sealed, chemicals may not be necessary. Don't spoil a good job by opening the closet door for any reason during the summer.

A little homework on your part will increase the wear and tear your carpets can take while in use. Streaks or furniture marks in the fabric may be ironed out with a hot iron over a wet cloth. After steaming the pile, brush it in its natural direction. The work of repairing holes and tears belongs to an expert weaver. Before trying to remove that jam stain Sue spilled on the rug, read the manufacturer's instructions or write to the factory to learn how cleaning chemicals will affect the dyes.

Mats, padding or newspapers carefully arranged beneath a rug may double its life. After a carpet has been used for some time it may appear almost brand new in some spots and worn down through the pile in other spots. Shifting it around every six months will equalize the wear on the various parts.

Avoid Sunlight

Delicately colored rugs shy away from direct sunlight which tends to fade them. Bending a carpet or shaking a small rug may snap the fibers and loosen the foundation.

If your vacuum cleaner is the brushless type, use it daily over the carpet areas that receive the most wear and vacuum thoroughly once a week. A motor-driven pusher vacuum should be used once or twice weekly, supplemented by a daily carpet sweeper workout. Carpet sweepers get at the surface dirt while hard sweeping with a broom may imbed the dirt in the fabric. If you prefer a broom, brush with a soft-bristled model in the natural direction of the pile.

That's all there is to carpet conservation. Work from the bottom up in caring for your room furnishings and let well-kept carpets be a stepping stone to a fresh, neat home. There's extra mileage to be had in your rugs for the effort.

2 Local Men To Enter Navy

I.C. Dentist, Architect To Report for Duty Latter Part of April

Two Iowa City men have been called for service in the navy, effective the last part of April. Dr. J. M. Mariner, local dentist, will report to the naval training station at San Diego, Calif., on April 26. He has received a commission of lieutenant.

A practicing dentist here for 11 years, Dr. Mariner graduated from the university college of dentistry in 1931. He has resided in Iowa City since 1921.

Mrs. Mariner and their son, Richard, will continue to reside in Iowa City.

J. Bradley Rust, architect, will leave here April 27 to report at Quonset Point, R.I., for indoctrination and training in aviation construction with the navy. He will report with the commission of lieutenant (j.g.).

Following his work in architectural engineering at Iowa State college and the University of Illinois, Rust came to Iowa City as an architect in 1930.

Mrs. Rust will remain in Iowa City.

Nurses in Blue Aid Local Hospital Staffs Iowa City Women Volunteer 150 Hours Of Service Annually

More and more women in blue pinfolds and white blouses are augmenting the professional nursing staffs at University and Mercy hospitals.

These are the volunteer nurse's aides who wear on caps and sleeves the joint insignia of the American Red Cross and the Office of Civilian Defense. As trained nurses enlist for service with the army and navy, more volunteers are needed to assist the overworked staffs in both hospitals.

The nurse's aides volunteer to give a minimum of 150 hours of service annually. A number of Iowa City women already have made this wartime contribution. Among those who have completed their first 150-hour period are Mrs. F. E. Coburn, Mrs. Earl English, Mrs. W. R. Ingram, Mrs. Wendell Johnson, Mrs. Norman Meier, Mrs. Fred M. Pownall, Mrs. Emil Witschi, Mrs. Ruth McMaster, Mrs. Clarence Hay, Mrs. Alvin Miller, and Mrs. R. C. Rea.

Women now serving in the hospitals have many hours to their credit. These include Mrs. Edward Downey, Mrs. D. M. Lierle, Mrs. E. F. Lindquist, Mrs. Wilbur Miller, Mrs. Robert Neff, Mrs. John M. Russ, Esther Taylor, Mrs. Marvin Williamson, Mrs. E. Shea, Mrs. Mary Kron and Mrs. Frank Kolar. During the month of February alone, nurse's aides gave 645 hours of service to University and Mercy hospitals.

A campaign to enlist members for a new class of nurse's aides is being conducted this week under the direction of Mrs. N. G. Alcock, 430 Brown street. Interested women may call her at her home, telephone 6721, for information regarding this class.

2 Ft. Knox Canines Removed With Honor From Dog Tax List

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Skipper and Susanna were scratched, with military honors, from the delinquent dog tax list.

Capt. C. B. Combs of Ft. Knox, Ky., sent the dog enumerator this report on how they fared since they left here for the army: "Skipper has gone to his Maker. He tackled a Kentucky dog. Susanna is married and has the dampest mess of Ft. Knox hilly-billy pups you ever saw."

Anyway, the Encore Was With Strings

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, stopping here recently, recalled how he gave an encore 40 years ago in Pittsburgh.

At the turn of the century, he explained, he played with the old Pittsburgh orchestra, whose conductor was the famous Victor Herbert. He and Herbert were old friends and when the audience grew tumultuous, the violinist prepared to play an encore, while the conductor urged him on. Then, Kreisler said:

"A string broke on my violin. I did not have another violin on hand. I asked Herbert what I should do. He said to me—'You can play the piano, play it.' And that was my encore, on the piano, even if I was a violin soloist."

Egg Rolling Called Off WASHINGTON (AP)—The traditional Easter egg rolling on the White House lawn, called off last year, has been canceled again.

Helps and Hints For—Your Victory Gardens

—By Stan Myers

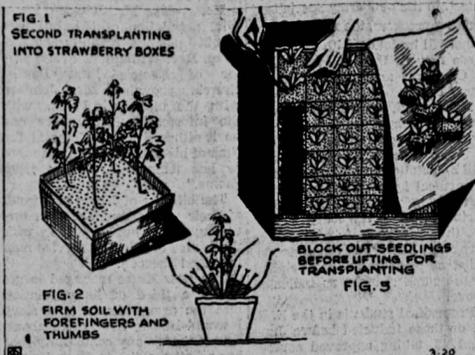

FIG. 1 SECOND TRANSPLANTING INTO STRAWBERRY BOXES FIG. 2 FIRM SOIL WITH FOREFINGERS AND THUMBS

Victory gardeners should not hesitate to transplant seedlings two or three times before they are moved outdoors, since transplanting tends to develop root growth.

If the first transplanting is from one flat to another, the second transplanting should be into individual containers. Berry boxes can be used to advantage if economy of space must be considered. Four vigorous plants can be spaced in each berry box on a second transplanting, as illustrated in Figure 1 of the accompanying graph. This gives each plant a three-inch square for its own use.

When transplanting the seedlings into small flower pots, it is a good idea to place some broken pieces of pot in the bottom of each pot for drainage purposes. Figure 2 of the accompanying illustration shows a good procedure for transplanting the second time. Make a hole in the center of the soil in the pot, place the seedling at the right height, then firm the soil about it with the forefingers and thumbs.

A transplanting method called blocking, a practice especially valuable in the case of tomatoes, eggplants and peppers, is shown in Figure 3. By this method the soil between plants is cut into squares, as illustrated, a week or 10 days before transplanting time.

Water the plants thoroughly to prevent wilting following the blocking. This practice stimulates the development of small roots within the block of soil. These roots not only increase the vigor of the seedling but help to bind the soil together about the roots when the plant is lifted and transplanted.

Sailboats To Skim Waters Of Macbride

Sailboats will skim six artificial lakes in Iowa, among them Iowa City's Lake Macbride, thrown open by the State Conservation commission in a move to accommodate the increasing number of Iowans who will spend their vacations in the state this year.

Permission to ply the lakes, however, is confined to the more aristocratic of boats, these specifically designed for sails. Row boats, canoes, and similar aquatic items are still prohibited, no matter how well equipped with canvas.

Following are the lakes opened by the conservation commission: Lake Wapello near Ottumwa; Lake of Three Fires near Bedford; Lake Macbride, Iowa City; Lake Ahquabi, Indianola; Lake Manawa, Council Bluffs, and Union Grove lake near Gladbrook.

Before being allowed on the water, boats will have to pass inspection by the state boat inspector. Sailboats must be of the catboat type, having a single main sail in either gaff or Marconi rig, with the type of boat and amount of canvas subject to approval.

Arizona is a large producer of copper, gold, silver and lead.

J. C. Fetzer Speaks At Lions Club Meeting

Commerce Instructor Tells War's Effect On Your Insurance

J. C. Fetzer, instructor in the college of commerce, discussed "The Probable Effect of the War on Your Insurance Policy," speaking at the Lions club luncheon at Reich's pine room yesterday noon.

Fetzer foresaw no great added burdens to insurance companies because of the war, as the soldiers "are not particularly heavy policy holders." Both the fact that most soldiers are usually too young to have acquired their life insurance and the government's participation in providing it will decrease the war's influence upon life insurance companies, he explained.

Life insurance business, according to the speaker, will continue to be profitable. "There is no reason to believe," he asserted, "that the life insurance companies' rates for mortality will get much higher than 4 or 5 percent."

He briefly outlined the history of life insurance, giving as the reasons for its success (1) that "they fill a definite need in our modern civilization," and (2) that the business is "tremendously profitable." Fetzer took exception to the view, however, that the public "was being exploited" by life insurance companies.

Illustrating the scope of life insurance organization, he remarked that even if we had 500,000 fatal casualties each year, the effect on a business sustained by an aggregate of 67,000,000 policy holders would not be very considerable.

Allies Raid Important Madang-Wewak Road In New Guinea Area

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Thursday (AP)—Bombing of the strategically important Madang-Wewak highway in New Guinea was reported in today's noon communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

A Japanese bridge took a direct hit. Wewak is 450 miles northwest and Madang 350 miles northwest of the allied base of Port Moresby, New Guinea.

"One of our heavy units bombed the newly constructed bridge across the Timper river, scoring a direct hit which left a 30 foot gap in the structure," the communique said.

Honored I.C. Woman to Launch Destroyer Escort

Mrs. Leila Mae Bunch, 624 S. Clinton, received a letter from Frank Knox, secretary of the United States navy, which named her the sponsor of the new destroyer escort, the U.S.S. Bunch, which was named after her late husband, Kenneth Cecil Bunch, aviation radioman first class.

"The name, Bunch, has recently been assigned to a destroyer escort vessel in honor of your husband, the late Kenneth Cecil Bunch, Aviation Radioman, First Class, U. S. Navy," the letter read.

"It gives me great pleasure to designate you as sponsor for the U.S.S. Bunch, which is scheduled to be launched at the plant of the Defoe Shipbuilding company, Bay City, Michigan, May 4, 1943.

"The Supervisor of Shipbuilding, U. S. N., at the plant of the Defoe Shipbuilding company, will arrange with you all details connected with the launching and he will also advise you should there be any change in the launching date.

No Expenses Paid "Prospective sponsors are advised that the department has no funds out of which to defray the transportation expenses to and from the place of launching. Will you please advise the department at your earliest convenience if you will be able to act as sponsor for this vessel when she is launched." The letter was signed by Frank Knox.

"I'm going to raise the money for the trip to launch that vessel if it's the last thing I ever do," said Iowa City's woman of the week, "and when I swing that bottle, I hope it slaps every Jap into a permanent knockout."

I.C. Wins in National Traffic Safety Contest

Iowa City was among the four cities to win honorable mention in group 6, cities of population of 10,000-25,000, in the nation-wide traffic safety contest for 1942 conducted by the national safety council.

To Tell Experiences W. R. Horrabin will speak on his experiences in helping to construct the Alcan highway before Johnson county dentists and dentists' wives at the Dental society's regular monthly meeting tonight at 6 o'clock in Reich's pine room.

Possible Candidates To Take Examinations For Special Programs

Prospective candidates for the army specialized program and the navy college training program will take qualifying examinations in the Iowa City high school cafeteria at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, Principal E. A. Beck announced.

Boys accepted for either program will eventually become commissioned officers in the army, navy, marine corps or coast guard. The purpose of the examinations is to aid in the selection of prospective officer material.

Those selected for training by the army and the navy following tomorrow's tests will enter college some time in 1943. All their expenses will be paid by the armed services.

Broadcast to Feature Seahawk Bandmen

The organization, personnel and duties of the Seahawk band of the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school will be described on the Navy Time broadcast over WSUI at 12:45 this afternoon. Chief Bandmaster J. J. Courtney and Musician First Class Jean Hedlund, leader of the marching band, will be interviewed on the 15-minute program.

The pre-flight school band is composed of 45 musicians enlisted especially by the navy for duty at the Iowa City base. The marching band, concert band, dance orchestra, string ensembles, vocal choirs, quartets and soloists all are taken from the same organization.

Leg Makeup Helps Stocking Shortage Skill in Applying Camouflage Gives Effect Similar to Finest Hosiery

Leg wear is getting down to the bare essentials now that our favorite nylon and silk are a thing of the past. The days of eye-brow lifting over bare legs have gone the way of the smelling salts bottle. By developing a little skill in applying one of the several shades of leg makeup available, anyone can simulate the gossamer-sheer effect of the finest stockings.

Of course your camouflage job won't be effective unless it begins from a smooth, clean foundation. Did you ever see stockings of sandpaper texture? For smoothness use generous amounts of hand lotion on your legs after every bath. If your skin is the sensitive type that scales easily, a weekly application of softening cream won't be amiss.

Remove Fuzz The clean effect so essential to leg lure may be obtained by removing unsightly hair with the use of a wax depilatory. A razor will do the job—and probably supply a snag effect to your make-believe stockings, too. It's so easy to hack your skin in shaving, and so hard to conceal the damage when once done.

When your legs are smooth and clean, you're all set for the shade of hose you prefer. Spread the liquid or cream on with absorbent cotton and rub it smooth with the palm of your hand. Tinted stockings are way ahead of their predecessors in that they won't run. They'll stay with you through work and play without smudging or rubbing off.
