Over 200 U. S. Heavy Bombers Smash at German Shipbuilding

Down 'Large Number' of Enemy Planes in Attacks On Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven; Eight Fail to Return

LONDON, SATURDAY, (AP)—A formation of more than 200 American heavy bombers renewed the allied aerial offensive against western Europe yesterday by smashing at German shipyards and port installations at Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven.

The big four-engine bombers flew a round trip of more than 600 miles without a fighter escort, and an 8th U. S. air force communiqué said eight of them failed to return.

One large section of the American sky fleet smashed through swarms of enemy fighters to blast the submarine yards at Wilhelmshaven. The communiqué said the bombers shot down a "large number" of challenging enemy planes.

"The German ports and shipyards of Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven were attacked in daylight late yesterday by more than 200 bombers of the 8th air force," said the official communiqué issued early today.

"Unescorted by fighters, a large force penetrated to the U-boat yards at Wilhelmshaven against strong enemy opposition while a second formation attacked harbor installations and submarine yards at Cuxhaven.

Bomb bursts were observed in both target areas. The leading groups in the Wilhelmshaven attack met fierce fighter opposition and a large number of the enemy were destroyed. Eight bombers are missing.

It was the first concentrated attack on Hitler's European fortress by heavy bombers from British bases since May 29, when American Flying Fortresses and Liberators struck a triple daylight blow at St. Nazaire, La Pallice and Rennes in France and the RAF followed up with a devastating night assault on Wuppertal in Germany.

Returning pilots said the weather was cloudy yesterday but that they could see the targets reasonably clearly. They described the bombing as "fair."

Weatherman Repeats, Continued Showers

One and three hundredth inches of rain fell yesterday morning between 11:30 and 12:30, and still more showers and thunderstorms are predicted for today.

Yesterday's rainfall was only slightly less than that of June 1, the day of the flash flood in Johnson county which resulted in heavy damage to property and crops, when 1.08 precipitation was recorded.

Yesterday's temperatures, beginning with 78 degrees at 7:30 a. m. dropped to 63 degrees at 11:30 a. m. By 4:30 p. m., however, Iowa Citizens were enjoying one of the more pleasant days of the season, when the thermometer read 81 degrees. Later in the evening, at 9:30, the temperature had again dropped to read 74.

Says He Threatened to Kill Her—

Hannah Denies Jack's Charges

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey's wife, musical comedy's Hannah Williams, denied yesterday her husband named as co-respondent in his divorce suit and she also testified that on several occasions Dempsey told her "Some day I'm going to kill you."

The former champion, now a lieutenant commander in the coast guard, had submitted testimony from various persons intended to back his contention that Mrs. Dempsey had mis-conducted herself with Benny Woodall, former fighter and trainer, and Lew Jenkins, ex-lightweight champion.

Mrs. Dempsey has filed a counter-suit but her allegation have not been made public.

"Did you commit adultery with Benny Woodall?" her attorney, Gerald Donovan, asked Hannah.

"No sir," she replied.

Q. "With Lew Jenkins?"

A. "Of course not."

In New York state adultery is the only grounds for divorce.

This was the second day Hannah was on the witness stand. Yesterday she testified that Dempsey threatened her life with a tiny gun held against her head; on another occasion, she said, he took her by the throat and threw her against a clothes closet wall and at another time tossed her friends out of their apartment.

Unlike yesterday, when she broke into tears and brought about an early adjournment of the hearing before Supreme Court Referee Addison Young, Mrs. Dempsey kept her composure most of the day even during cross examination. She was dressed in a natural (See DEMPSEY, page 7)

700 Russian Planes Lash Nazi Airdromes

Report 150 Enemy Craft Put Out Of Action in Assault

LONDON, Saturday (AP)—An attack in tremendous force by more than 700 Soviet planes on German airdromes along the Russian front, in which 150 Nazi craft were destroyed or damaged, was reported early today by Moscow while action around was confined to isolated but bloody skirmishes.

The Russian raid, said a Moscow broadcast recorded here by the Soviet monitor, set off fires and explosions in a series of enemy air bases and 19 Russian planes were lost in the operation.

In addition, ten German planes were shot down in aerial battles near the airdromes, where gasoline and ammunition dumps were seen burning. The Germans covered their airfields with a blanket of fighter planes but Russian pursuit planes engaged them while the bombers made their runs over the targets, the announcement said.

Another German raid on the Volga river industrial city of Gorki was reported but it was declared that enemy bombs "were dropped at random" and seven of the attackers were shot down without loss to the Russian defenders.

Senator Passes Huge Farm Appropriation Act

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed yesterday an $875,000,000 farm appropriations bill after rejecting an attempt to write in a prohibition against deducting soil conservation payments in farm price ceilings.

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) pleaded in vain for a suspension of the agricultural price amendment.

Compensate for Wage Raises

The vegetable subsidy authorized by Fred M. Vinson, new director of stabilization, was the first to compensate for proposed wage increases. Previously ordered subsidies—for meat, butter, gasoline and metals—have been based on increased costs of materials or transportation, or the encouragement of production.

Vinson based his authorization on an interpretation of President Roosevelt's "hold the line" order of April 8, 1943. He said that prices of canned green peas, snap beans, sweet corn, tomatoes and other primary tomato products had been stabilized under a previous agreement. Under this, the commodity credit corporation agreed in January to buy the raw vegetables from growers at market prices and resell them at a loss so that the higher current price of raw vegetables would not cause any increase in the price of canned vegetables.

Cannery Workers

Now, cannery workers are asking increased wages and Vinson said that if the board granted the increased wages, the price stabilization of the vegetables would be upset and he was acting therefore to forestall "higher consumer prices for essential cost of living items—a result inconsistent with the hold the line program."

Unofficial estimates of the cost of the possible wage subsidy, to be paid by commodity credit corp., were approximately $5,000,000 a year. The previous commodity credit commitment to subsidize the raw vegetables had been estimated to cost $25,000,000 a year.

Vinson excepted from the wage subsidy canned vegetables sold to the government for the military service or lend-lease, and ruled that any price increase resulting from wage boosts will have to be paid by the government agencies which buy canned vegetables.

Vinson described the action as one of "a series of steps which will be taken by various governmental agencies to insure an adequate supply of processed vegetables."

Nazi Submarine Sunk By Cuban Patrol Boat

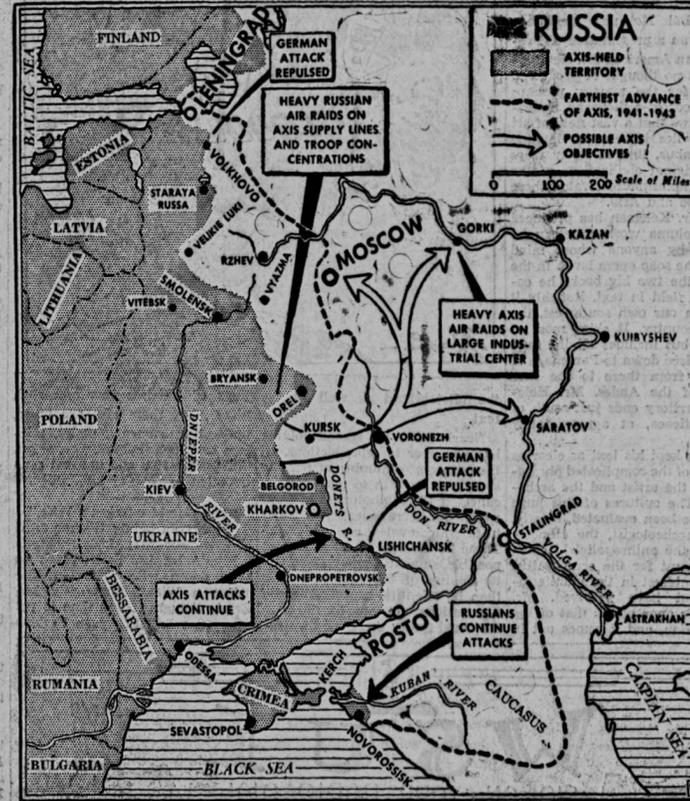

HAVANA, (AP)—Cuba announced officially last night that a patrol vessel of the Cuban submarine fleet had sunk an enemy submarine in battle off the Cuban north coast, in the Atlantic, a few days ago.

The announcement made through War Minister Aristides Sosa de Quesada was the first official claim that the Cuban navy had scored in its patrol activities around the 2,000-mile coastline of the republic.

The navy recently obtained 10 submarine chasers from the United States government for use in the West Indies waters.

The announcement of the U-boat sinking was made after a conference among President Fulgencio Batista and the chiefs of the navy, army and national police in the presidential palace.

ACTIVITY RISES ON RUSSO-GERMAN BATTLE LINES

WITH WARM WEATHER and drying terrain, activity is mounting again on the German-Russian front, where aerial action particularly has been stepped up recently. Both the Germans and the Russians have sent out large squadrons of planes in a tacks on bases behind the lines. Arrows on this map indicate the possible route of attack if the axis attempts a major offensive.

Stabilization Office Authorizes Subsidizing Vegetable Packers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Subsidizing of vegetable packers, to compensate them for proposed wage increases pending before the war labor board, was authorized yesterday by the office of economic stabilization.

This action came amid congressional demands for curtailment of the government's subsidy program and, on the other hand, a request from President William Green of the American Federation of Labor to set up a $2,000,000,000 subsidy to push back living costs to levels of 13 months ago.

Smash Nazi Planes Attacking Pantelleria

Luftwaffe Sinking--

Correspondent Says—Enemy Attempts to Bomb Allied Forces Occupying Tiny Island

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, (AP)—Pantelleria capitulated yesterday under staggering allied aerial blows.

American fighter planes then smashed a strong German dive-bomber attack on British troops who completely occupied the Italian outpost 22 minutes after their noon landing.

The dazed garrison on the stepping-stone of invasion hoisted the white flag of unconditional surrender at 11:40 a. m. (4:40 a. m. central war time) after the greatest concentrated aerial assault in history.

The fortress island thus was the first metropolitan axis territory to yield to the Casablanca formula.

British warships standing in the rain off Pantelleria lowered invasion barges, shock troops clambered into them just before noon and headed for the coast despite the strong but futile German air attack.

The Germans used from 50 to 60 dive-bombers, a force which suggested they had been awaiting such a development.

But the ever-present American Lightning fighters tore into the German formations, forcing them to jettison their bombs haphazardly.

Dispatches from a U. S. fighter base quoted airmen as saying they didn't see a single German bomb hit either a barge or warship. By 12:22 p. m., the British troops had occupied all points.

First axis mention of the surrender occurred in a broadcast from the German-controlled Paris radio last night. The broadcast merely quoted London reports of Pantelleria's collapse.

This was the quickly drawn climax of 19 days of continual bombing by allied air fleets and supporting broadsides hammered into the shore installations at least half a dozen times by the British surface fleet. The aerial pounding was credited with the final reduction of the fortress.

(London estimates placed the garrison at 8,000 Italians.)

It was the first time in history that air power alone had shattered a fortress so completely that it was forced to surrender without being touched by a single unit of the conquering armies.

British troops landing under the cover of naval guns met a little resistance from scattered enemy defenders, who were shelled by British cruisers and destroyers.

The commander of the axis garrison help them restore their country to a respected place in the world community.

The invitation was delivered in indirect fashion in comment on the surrender of Pantelleria. Similarly, Prime Minister Churchill said May 25 that the Italian people would be well advised to disown their intriguing Nazi and Fascist leaders and throw themselves on the justice of those they have so grievously offended.

Mr. Roosevelt held out to the Italian people on the one hand the opportunity to be free and to choose any kind of non-Fascist non-Nazi government they desire, once fascism is put down and the Germans are driven from Italian territory.

On the other, he warned of an intensification of the war against Italy. The allies have no choice, he said, but to pursue it vigorously until Mussolini is beaten into surrender.

Before they gave up the battle, the Pantellerians had seen every coastal gun in the island's outer perimeter of defenses blasted into ruins, every fortification of its inner defense ring smashed, its lone air field pitted by thousands of huge bomb craters and its town and dock area leveled.

Left in the bill was a provision under which anyone agitating or directing a strike in a government-operated plant or financing it with union funds could be imprisoned for one year and fined $5,000. Under this section, May said, John L. Lewis could be jailed if he ordered a resumption of the coal strike June 20.

Opposing the measure, Rep. Marcantonio (Amn. Lab.-N. Y.) said labor was being "pilloried and lynched" and challenged anyone to dispute his contention that the legislation would outlaw closed shop and union maintenance orders.

The provision interpreted by its sponsors as prohibiting WLB from issuing closed shop orders was upheld by Rep. Smith (D-Va.) its author. He said it upholds the right of any company to refuse to enter into a contract to which it does not agree.

About the only controversial provision stricken from the original house measure, passed a week ago, was a section requiring unions to file annual financial and membership statements.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday, (AP)—Allied bombers dropped 42 tons of bombs on Koepang and 19 tons on Rabaul yesterday, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced in its noon communiqué today.

Koepang is on the southwest tip of Dutch Timor, 500 miles north-west of Darwin, Australia. Rabaul is the big Japanese air and naval base on the northeast tip of New Britain island—one of the enemy's most powerful strongholds.

Fifteen Liberator bombers left the Koepang town area a mass of flames. Two airdromes on off-bombed Rabaul were left scarred and burning as the result of a two-hour pasting.

New Coal Walkouts As Ickes Qualifies Plan to Fine Miners

Says They Can Avoid Payments by Dealing With Mine Managers

WASHINGTON (AP)—New walkouts aggravated the soft coal dispute last night even as Secretary Ickes qualified his plan to levy fines on soft coal miners who struck last week and the war labor board prepared a decision in the dispute.

A United Mine Workers local at Windber, Pa., voted to strike because, said Russell Pultz, its secretary, the board "refused to sanction the $130 portal-to-portal pay and because of Secretary Ickes' proposal to deduct $5 from the men's pay."

Nearly 1,600 men at three pits voted and approximately 200 workers failed to show up on the first shift scheduled to report after the vote.

Earlier in the evening, Ickes announced that the miners who struck last week will have a chance to escape the payments through collective bargaining with government managers of the mines.

Ickes had announced the plan Thursday, drawing from John L. Lewis the declaration that it was "an unwarranted, illegal act which takes nearly $3,000,000 worth of food from the fingers and mouths of children of the mining camps."

The secretary's announcement last night came after two Alabama mines, employing 365 men, shut down because of a walkout which was described as a protest against the $1-a-day strike levy. It came, too, as war labor board sources indicated a decision in the coal wage controversy will be handed down early next week, with the possibility that the portal-to-portal pay issue may eventually wind up in the courts.

Ickes' office said there will be no fines against any anthracite miners because the hard coal miners' contracts carried no such provision.

Withdraws Request In Oil Transaction

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney General Biddle disclosed yesterday that the navy has asked withdrawal of its request for a $1,748,408 sum for use in an oil lease transaction with Standard Oil, after President Roosevelt ordered a study of the legality of the agreement.

The withdrawn request was included in an appropriations bill and the item, Biddle said, was to have covered "certain expenses in connection with the contract" between the navy and Standard Oil.

House Okays Sweeping Anti-Strike Measure; Expect Senate Approval in Short Order

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sweeping anti-strike legislation was passed by the house yesterday and sent to the senate for expected quick approval.

The house vote was 218 to 129 on the compromise measure, written by a senate-house committee after disagreement on earlier legislation. For passage were 101 Democrats and 118 Republicans; against it, 77 Democrats, 48 Republicans, and four minor party members.

The bill outlaws strikes in government-operated plants and prohibits them in other war industries without 30 days notice and a workers' vote. It also strengthens the war labor boards' power to settle labor disputes and the president's authority to take over plants, and prohibits unions from contributing to political campaigns involving a federal office.

Just before house passage, Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the military committee read a telegram from the American Farm Bureau federation endorsing the compromise bill and declaring it did not come "a moment too soon."

Successful Military Experiment—

With the fall of Pantelleria, the all-out bombing attack has finally come into its own. This feat proved a fact that military men of the old school have always been skeptical of: namely, that enemy fortifications can be reduced to such a point (or even be made to surrender) under consistent air attack that ground forces will merely be needed for mop-up operations and actual occupation duties.

Pantelleria was strongly fortified in every respect. So much so, in fact, that it had come to be known as the "Italian Gibraltar." Its shores were well defended by batteries of big guns, and, like Malta, the island has been turned into a vast airbase to facilitate first offensive and later defensive operations in the Mediterranean. Forty-five square miles in area (about twice the size of Manhattan island), Pantelleria rises 2,743 feet above sea level at its highest point, an extinct crater.

Mussolini began to fortify the rugged volcanic island of 10,000 inhabitants seven years ago, partly to tighten his grip on the central Mediterranean, and partly to neutralize British Malta. It is evident, then, that Pantelleria was no soft touch for the allied air forces in north Africa. This fact looms especially large when one considers that the Luftwaffe in thousands of bombings was unable to neutralize Malta—a base of essentially the same type as Pantelleria.

British naval attacks on the island's shore defenses without doubt were a major contributor to its downfall, but they nevertheless played a secondary role in the whole offensive plan. The Italians claimed that as many as 1,000 allied bombers would attack Pantelleria in one day, so large a number that they had to wait their turn to get over the target area. By employing strategic, well-planned bombing methods, the north African air forces knocked out not only the larger military installations, such as airfields, hangars and barracks, but also a large percentage of the firmly entrenched shore guns. The Italians obviously knew they would be helpless against invasion—after 18 days of such concentrated sea and air attacks—and so they surrendered this vital island outpost to the allies without putting up a struggle.

This decisive victory for air power means, more, however, than simply the occupation of Pantelleria. It means that one great phase of experimentation with invasion techniques has been brought to a successful conclusion. From now on we can expect to see air power used on an ever increasing scale as a prelude to invasion and occupation by ground forces. Ironically enough, we are today employing this axis-invented weapon against its instigators with more success than they ever dreamed of.

Alexander de Seversky had a word for it when we interviewed him here several months ago. We asked him: "Just how large a role will ground troops play in the actual invasion of Europe if axis fortifications and industrial plants have been first reduced from the air?" He answered very simply, "Oh, they'll look nice marching under the Arch of Triumph in Paris."

Reducing Production—

In stressing the need for a government policy that "will result in maximum food production," John D. Miller, president emeritus of the national council of farm cooperatives, says "price ceiling experiments tracing back to the Roman Empire have a record of uninterrupted failure as a method of preventing inflation or keeping down the cost of living.

"An effective ceiling on any commodity will in time restrict production. A planned economy spells the doom of our system of free enterprise. Rising commodity prices are not the cause, but the result of inflation.

"Inflation should be attacked on two fronts. First, by adopting policies that will result in the greatest possible food production, thus increasing supplies;

Interpreting the War News

A New Desire for Peace in Italian Hearts

By GLENN BABB

President Roosevelt's suggestion that Italy would do well to rid herself of Mussolini and get out of the war is a striking example of the way the united nations are combining the air war and the war of nerves. Seldom has an invitation been so emphatically understood by events. Against the background of Pantelleria's 19-day ordeal by bomb and shell and the inevitable surrender, it is admirably calculated to foster the longing for peace in many Italian hearts.

The president's indirect appeal seems likely to be the most effective yet offered by any allied leader—assuming, of course, that it will reach a considerable section of the Italian people. Prime Minister Churchill, who has been telling the Italians for nearly three years that this was Mussolini's war and not theirs, went nearly as far in his Washington press conference three weeks ago. But his was a rather grim pronouncement, calling on the people of Italy to disown their Nazi and Fascist leaders and throw themselves on the justice of those they have so grievously offended.

But they doubtless want something more charitable than justice, and the president offered this when he said it is the hope and intention of the united nations that Italy be restored to nationhood and take her place as a respected member of the European family of nations.

Pantelleria is the finest argument yet afforded those who believe that bombardment alone, chiefly from the air but supported where feasible by sea forces, may produce the capitulation of a military power. It is something new in warfare, the surrender of a fortress to bombing and shelling alone. The fact that landing units were already in their barges offshore when the white flag was raised does not alter this cardinal fact. Here in a small test tube has been worked out a formula that may be applied to far larger situations. It can not fail to evoke soul-chilling echoes in the minds of the Italian people, the people of Hitler's other satellites and of Germany as well.

It would be easy, however, to overemphasize the strength of these psychological factors. Events may show that the Pantelleria experiment is not conclusive. The conquests of Sicily and Sardinia, to which nearly all signs point as the next objectives of General Eisenhower's mighty combined forces, may prove quite different military problems.

There will be no such concentration of targets within a compass which a few hundred planes can blanket. It will be difficult there to reproduce the 19-day agony of the little island from which there was no escape and which was aggravated by the failure of water. Sicily and Sardinia will be undertakings requiring much greater forces, far more complex planning and preparation. It may be weeks before the siege lines around Sicily are tightened, although already they are being laid, with communications from the mainland under devastating air bombardment and the sea routes subject to the British fleet's blockade.

and, second, by siphoning off buying power through taxation, thus reducing demand."

Mr. Miller described subsidies as higher food prices with the money being paid by the citizens to the government as taxes, and then distributed to the farmers by government. "Farmers resent being placed in a position where they cannot support themselves, but must accept government handouts. Food prices can be so regulated that farmers will receive a living price, and with consumers paying as low a price as is consistent with production cost, transportation, processing and marketing. This was done during World War I and food production rose to the maximum. But now we have price ceilings which have always resulted in decreased food production."

Planned House of Cards—

The "planned economy" this nation is living under has promoted high production costs while demanding low prices for consumers. The formula reads well, but it doesn't work. You can't arbitrarily boost the cost of production and hold down the cost of living.

This is being illustrated once more in the falling off of the new oil discoveries. Wildcat drilling cannot be carried on with hot air. It takes money—more money than it did before the "war boom." OPA suggests a "government subsidy" (money from every taxpayer's pocket), in lieu of a necessary crude oil price increase, to encourage the search for new oil reserves which will soon be desperately needed by this nation.

Petroleum Administrator Ickes has recommended an average increase of 35 cents a barrel, instead of a subsidy. Oil men do not want subsidies—which mean taxpayer-financing of wildcatting. Many producers feel that the subsidy proposal is an attempt to put the government in to the oil business.

A subsidy dodges the basic issue of allowing prices that will cover fair production costs. The people pay either way, but there will be less waste and less inflation in production financed with reasonable profits than with production financed with taxation.

THE BOOK PARADE

By JOHN SELBY "Medieval American Art," by Pal Kelemen (Macmillan; 2 volumes; the set $22.50).

For ten years a Hungarian named Pal Kelemen has been working on a presentation of Pre-Columbian American art. He probably had no thought of producing a book for the masses; perhaps not one out of a thousand Americans knows that a vast field of art research lies behind the landing of Columbus, that in many ways the aboriginal civilizations of the western hemisphere rivaled those of Europe and Asia.

But Mr. Kelemen has produced a two-volume work that can be enjoyed by anyone whose mind betters the soap opera level. In the first of the two big books he covers the field in text. Roughly it begins in our own southwest, the pueblo country. It skips most of Mexico, but includes all the land from Jalisco down to Panama, and sparsely from there to the Inca region of the Andes. Mr. Kelemen's territory ends just south of Lake Titicaca, at approximately La Paz.

He has kept his text as clear as possible of the complicated phraseology of the artist and the archeologist. The cultures of this huge area have been evaluated, chiefly by the archeologist, the ethnologist and the anthropologist, which may account for the comparative lack of interest in the manifestations that have survived. Mr. Kelemen's approach is that of the art historian, and it comes out in the photographs as well as the text.

Nearly all of the second volume is given over to reproductions. In the course of a number of trips to sources as well as to museums he collected 12,000 photographs, from which 960 were selected to illustrate "Medieval American Art."

These have been taken, whenever possible, so as to display the artistic quality of the subject, rather than its scientific aspect. And the illustrations are not confined to the usual fields; there are illustrations of Chichen Itza and such places, but there also are pipes, musical instruments, scales, mirrors and such matters. This is a rich and unusual contribution to popular knowledge.

Washington in Wartime—

Congress' Mobilization Role

WASHINGTON—It is the custom to deride congress and few men on the Hill won't admit that much of the criticism is well deserved.

However, credit should be given where credit is due and in spite of the limitations of the congressional committee system, some of the committees operating on the Hill have certainly pushed this war forward.

The activities of the Truman committee in uncovering some of the more shameful aspects of the national defense program are well known. Senator Byrd's economy committee has kept the executive agencies cautious in expansion and expenditures. The House Naval Affairs committee has saved millions by blocking war contract chiselers and forcing the renegotiation of contracts. Rep. Robert Ramspeck's Civil Service committee was, for a while (it seems to have gone to sleep lately) doing yeoman service in keeping the vast, unwieldy government personnel expansion from bursting its seams, creating inequalities for the workers and inefficiency for Uncle Sam.

There are others that deserve mention, but that's enough to bring us to a concrete case.

Nearly everyone in Washington expressed surprise when the president set up his new Office of War Mobilization and named James F. Byrnes as its chief. Severe administration critics called it a step in the right direction.

More than two months ago, Sen. Robert R. Reynolds, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs committee, appointed a subcommittee on war mobilization. When the subcommittee brought in its report nearly a month ago and a full two weeks before President Roosevelt set up O.W.M., it didn't even then get more than passing mention. It should have.

"In brief," reported the committee, "no overall program has existed (in the war production effort) nor does war exist. Nor does any war agency exist, the respon-

Hollywood Sights and Sounds The Film Biography of George Gershwin Will Include Many of His Real-Life Friends By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The film biography of George Gershwin will feature many of the late composer's real-life friends, including Paul Whiteman and Oscar Levant, who will play themselves. Jesse L. Lasky, the producer, is convinced a "new face" is in order for the lead. The set of "Without Notice" had a notable visitor the other day—one Cary Grant. Grant came over to wish Bill Carter good luck in his first film. Eighteen years ago, when Cary was a stilt-walker named Archie Leach, Bill was a kid who hung around to run errands for his idol, Archie, now Cary, brought six-foot Bill an ice cream cone—by way of reminiscence on the old days.

Nigel Bruce's worthy collection of pipes is about to be dispersed. He gave away several recently to service men he was entertaining at his home. Nigel used to smoke 25 pipefuls a day, but has been taken off tobacco entirely by his doctor. He's taking it hard. Standing in for 17-year-old Donald O'Connor on "Angela" is Fred Browne, seasoned trouper of the same vaudeville world that produced the new jitterbug-and-jive star. It's no ordinary star-and-in-team.

Browne knew and worked with Donald's parents before Donald was born. After the boy's father died, Browne unofficially "adopted" Donald, taught him all the tricks he knew about show business, and performed other invaluable services such as getting him acquainted with Coney Island and the New York Yankees, persuading his mother to yield to his clamor for long trousers, and presenting him with his first "man's watch." His job as a stand-in? It's so he can keep on being near Donald and serving as a second father. Browne is married to an actress, Barbara Ruth, and they live two blocks from the home Donald has bought for his mother.

Mona Maris won the role of the Empress Eugenie in "The Song of Bernadette," but not without a struggle. She put in her bid early, stating how many books she had read about Eugenie, submitting photographs to prove that she could look like Eugenie, and other photographs to show she had a flair for fashion herself. By plain persistence she won a screen test, which was approved except in one respect — her accent. "Since all the characters are French," they told her, "we feel that they should all speak the same language. So we're eliminating accents."

That floored Mona, but briefly. Two days later she had an inspiration. She telephoned the studio: "Eugenie is the one character in the story who must have an accent. She wasn't French. She was Spanish." That floored the studio — and won Mona Maris the part.

Physical Training Teacher Shortage Acute, According to Fitness Specialist in Lecture

"The American people haven't profited by their experiences in the field of physical education during the last war," Dorothy LaSalle, specialist in physical fitness of the United States office of education, said yesterday in a speech before the annual physical education conference.

"The identical situation now presents itself before us," Miss LaSalle said. "Witness the increasing number of schools which have closed, the present teacher shortage, and the increase in juvenile delinquency."

Miss LaSalle pointed out that the lack of physical education instructors is extremely acute, second only to the teacher shortage existing in the field of industrial arts.

In the light of this serious predicament she outlined to the group various measures which have been adopted by public schools and colleges throughout the country.

Miss LaSalle stated that only two actual solutions existed, adjusting the unequal distribution of teachers in the entire country, or increasing the salaries of physical education instructors so that they are comparable to salaries in industry and business which require similar intelligence and training.

"All others are merely stop-gap measures," Miss LaSalle said. In this category she proposed suggestions to reduce the number of teaching hours, replace men instructors with women, obtain the deferment of men engaged in the instruction of physical education, retain teaching staffs beyond the normal age of retirement, use graduate assistants, discontinue research and other non-teaching activities, reduce the qualifications for teaching positions, or to increase the size of classes.

Geology Head Wins Citation

Prof. Arthur C. Trowbridge, head of the geology department, will be awarded a citation of merit at the alumni assembly of the University of Chicago today.

The citations, in recognition of public service by Chicago alumni, were inaugurated in 1941 during the 50th anniversary celebration of the university. This year, because of the war, they are being given in absentia.

Professor Trowbridge received his B. S. degree from the University of Chicago in 1907, and his Ph.D. degree in 1911, after which he came to the University of Iowa as a staff member. He was granted a leave of absence, 1925-26, to go to Asia as senior petroleum geologist for the Turkish Petroleum company. He spent 10 months in Mesopotamia in camp supervising the work of five detailed mapping parties scattered all over the country.

Here at the university his work has been principally in the establishment of instruction and research in sedimentation, a new branch of geology.

Professor Trowbridge is director of the Iowa Geological Survey, and state geologist and associate geologist of the United States Geological Survey. Second vice-president of the Geological Society of America, he also was president of the Iowa Academy of Science, 1937. He was formerly a member of the national advisory board of the Y. M. C. A.

Kenneth Voss, 121 Grand avenue court, will visit tomorrow in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Voss of Marengo.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Drury and daughter, Janet Elizabeth, of Davenport will arrive tonight to spend a week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Gattson, 1717 Muscatine avenue.

Ralph A. Schweitzer, G of Alhambra, Calif., left last night to spend ten days in his home.

SANDY HOOK PILOT INVESTS HEAVILY IN WAR BONDS

"My Way of Charting a Safe Course for the Future of My Country and Myself," He Says

Charles Onasch is a ship's pilot. It is his ticklish job to bring ships into New York Harbor—safely—through the tricky eddies and currents that run through the harbor.

On his skill and knowledge lie the safety of men and ships. He says, "In my work as a pilot, I am constantly reminded of how much our country depends upon the ships that put to sea, and how many more ships will be required to see us safely through. That's why I lend my money—all that I can and then some—to the Government in the form of War Bonds."

Yes, Charles Onasch invests his money in War Bonds. Almost 16 percent of every pay check. And in 10 years, when his War Bonds mature, that's going to mean a handsome chunk of extra cash for him.

Perhaps, like Mr. Onasch, you too are fighting on the Bond front. But make it a good fight—make it the best fight you can. Boost your Bond buying, right now... today!

You've done your bit—now do your best!

Reliable, Accurate Strength Tests Needed, Says Prof. Gladys M. Scott at Conference

"The field of physical fitness is wide open at the present time, with new ideas acceptable in almost every phase of physical education, but especially is there need for reliable, accurate strength tests," stated Prof. Gladys M. Scott, who addressed the 14th annual physical education conference yesterday in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Professor Scott, in outlining the various points to be considered in making up tests of endurance and general skill, emphasized the fact that the motivation of the group as a whole was extremely important in weighing the results.

In view of this fact, Professor Scott noted that there should be few if any zero scores in the results. "Not only is an absolute negative score bad, psychologically, but a great many zeros are adequate proof that the test is not actually testing that for which it is designed," Professor Scott said.

Also in line with checking the accuracy and reliability of tests, Professor Scott advised making a careful analysis of every test used. In addition to furnishing proof that the results are accurate, this analysis will also serve as basis for adjustment of the test and further training to be carried out.

Professor Scott advocated tests which are as nearly self-administered as possible; that is, using a small number of assistants and with a simplified system of scoring. She also favored, from the standpoint of saving time, tests which could be applied to the group as a whole rather than testing individually.

"The conditioning program of the W.A.A.C.s is an excellent model for building up endurance sufficient to undergo testing with a minimum of stiffness and muscular soreness resulting," Professor Scott said.

Their program incorporates progressive steps, each of which is a part of the final test," Professor Scott explained.

"Avoiding discomfort while performing the various tests as well as soreness a few days later is extremely important in that such discomfort will result in the group's developing a dislike for that test, a fact which will of course ruin the results," she said.

In addition to precautions to make certain that the group is favorably motivated toward the test, care should be taken that the tests be safe for everyone, considering the age of the group and their past physical education training.

"A really good test then," according to Professor Scott, "would provide for adjustment or the substitution of another test in order to meet these needs."

Professor Scott warned that the standards by which the results of the testings would be judged should be considered carefully. She advised a thorough examination of test data, background and reliability in order that discrepancies be avoided.

Traffic Regulations Include New Ranks For Local Taxi Cabs

New Parking System Planned to Alleviate Downtown Congestion

A new set of traffic regulations for Iowa City, which may be ready in less than a week, will take into consideration the present taxi problem, city council members declare. Cabs will rank where they are most available to the public to the extent that heavy downtown traffic and parking congestion will allow. Those that were formerly parked on Dubuque street are now ranking on Iowa avenue or elsewhere to help relieve traffic difficulties.

As a result, cab patrons, upon approaching the familiar stands, conclude that all the cars are out on call, and walk to their destination rather than wait until a taxi arrives. In reality, the cabs are right around the corner. Cab company managers, too, have been faced with the difficulty of having their cars ranked at a greater distance from their offices.

Managers of Yellow, DeLuxe, Varsity, City, Diamond and Hawkeye cab companies have been working in close cooperation with the city council, and after several meetings have almost evolved a plan of taxi service which they hope will best serve the public.

Owners of property housing cab offices on Dubuque street have also taken an interest in the difficulties to maximum taxi efficiency in Iowa City. No taxi company, however, has expressed a desire to move its offices nearer its new cab ranks.

One company is considering a private line to a box or building near where its cars are parked, but recognizes the difficulty of buying war-needed wire.

Other difficulties for cab owners have arisen from the war. Since September, 1942, besides gas and tire problems, various government orders have modified taxi service. Drivers may not cruise for passengers, but must, if their car has room, stop and pick up anyone who hails them, and take him wherever he wants to go, whether passengers already in the cabs are willing or not. Taxis, except in certain emergencies, must not go beyond ten miles from town.

Taxi owners find the employment problem particularly acute for them. Local rates do not permit high salaries. For a while, some prospective fares would not accept cabs driven by women. As a result, it was with difficulty that owners found suitable drivers.

Former Iowa Chemist Attains Research Goal

A research goal which has eluded organic and biological chemists has been achieved by a University of Iowa graduate, it is reported by Prof. George Glockler, head of the chemistry department.

Dr. Joseph J. Pfliffer, holder of four degrees from the university and former member of the research staff here, has been successful in the preparation of crystalline form of a nutritional factor needed in extremely minute amounts.

Together with his colleagues at the Parke Davis company, Dr. Pfliffer isolated from liver tissue some yellow platelets which prevent anemia in young chicks on certain purified rations," Professor Glockler said.

No progress can be made in the study of such essentials until they have been obtained in pure crystalline form, a task requiring a high degree of skill and resourcefulness, he explained.

Three SUI Students Awarded Scholarships

The names of three University of Iowa students who have been awarded scholarships to the Grinnell Institute of International Relations, to be held on the Grinnell college campus June 15-24, were announced yesterday by Mrs. Carl E. Seashore, head of the local sponsors' group.

Gordon Christensen, A3 of Iowa City, and Margaret Ems, A4 of Savatton, Wyo., have been chosen as delegates sent by Iowa City sponsors, and Robert Holland, G of Houston, Tex., has been awarded a scholarship by the institute, upon the recommendation of the local group.

The conference this year will be on the subject, "Our Role in Shaping the Peace and Reconstruction."

Serving the Nation

—Former Iowa Citizens

Since the beginning of the war, 158 university men who were formerly employed at Iowa Union have entered the armed forces.

Now in military service are Lieut. H. H. Crosby, army airforce navigator, at present stationed at Kearney field, Neb.; Lieut. Jerry Dunlevy of the United States marine corps at Quantico, Va., and Cadet Jack Woodrow, in training with the navy air corps at Corpus Christi, Tex.

Lieut. Frank Burge, son of Mrs. Marjorie Burge, 911 E. Washington street, is at the gunnery school at Ft. Sill, Okla. A senior at the time of his induction, he was a member of A.F.I., student board of publication and commerce board. Lieutenant Burge was head waiter at the Union from September, 1940 to August, 1942.

Of the 92 men on the January 1 payroll, 50 are now in the armed forces. Among them are:

William Brown of Washington, Iowa, who is now in the army air corps detachment unit at Washington university in St. Louis. A senior in commerce when he entered service, Brown was a member of A.F.I. and the university party committee. He also was a staff member of Privo and Hawkeye.

Charles Hughes, Emmetsburg, aviation cadet at the army air corps pre-flight school in San Antonio, Tex., was graduated from the University of Iowa in January in the college of pharmacy.

Cadet Hughes was captain in the cafeteria in the spring and summer of 1942 and head waiter from September, 1942 until his entrance into the airforce.

Joseph Parkin of Garden Grove is now an aviation cadet with the army airforce at Santa Ana, Calif. The first president of the Townsmen organization, Parkin was also a town proctor. He was captain in the storeroom and cashier in the cafeteria when he worked at the Union.

Harold Sehner of Moline, Ill., is with the army airforce detachment unit at Cedar Falls. A commerce student, Sehner succeeded Joseph Parkin as president of the Townsmen. He was captain of the dish crew at the Union.

Robert Warrington and Richard Mulrone are at the army pre-flight school at San Antonio, Tex. Warrington was a pre-dental student from Manson. Mulrone was a freshman in the college of law.

Keith McNeerle of Perry was a senior in the college of pharmacy when he left in January for officer's training at Ft. Benning, Ga. He is now stationed at Camp Howze, Tex. While in school, he was president of the Cadet Officer's club and lieutenant colonel of the second regiment of Pershing Rifles.

Robert Ainley, Melvin Stone and Robert Obrecht are on the campus as members of the R.O.T.C. group in Kellogg house.

The most recent members of the Union boys to be called to active duty are Paul Munson and Jack Rigler. Munson was a senior in the college of commerce and Rigler received his B.S.C. degree in April. Both are from New Hampton, and will report for training at Dartmouth college, Hanover, N. H., July 1, under the navy V-7 program.

Six former Union men have lost their lives in military service.

Ens. Kenneth Bigelow of Waukon was killed while performing his duties as instructor at Pensacola, Fla.

Ens. Bud Anderson died at Pearl Harbor on the battleship Arizona. A senior in liberal arts when he entered the service in 1940, Ens. Anderson was captain of the janitor crew at the Union.

Aviation Cadet Lawrence Van Tassel died when his plane crashed into a mountainside in California.

Lieut. Donald Goodyear of the army airforce, went down with the Langley. While in school, Goodyear majored in journalism.

Sergt. Gene McDonald of Sioux City gave his life in the South Pacific Feb. 7, 1943 while he was a radio operator on a bomber. Sergeant McDonald attended the university here for two years.

Lieut. James Woodruff of New Hampton was killed while in training at Paine field, Everett, Wash., Oct. 24, 1942.

Thanks to Robert Hughes, P4 of Emmetsburg, for gathering the information of the Union men in the armed forces. Hughes is a member of the Coalition council and vice-president of Union board.

Try Out Call System of Civilian Defense In Two White Tests Conducted Thursday

Two "white tests," checking the call system of civilian defense, were conducted Thursday in this area, according to Rollin Perkins, commander of civilian defense here. Requiring 12 minutes, the first test was at 10:53 a. m. and by 11:05 all towns in the county had been notified.

The second test came at 12:43 p. m. and the notification of county towns was completed at 12:59, 16 minutes later. Reliable sources said that the second test was less successful than the first since it occurred during the noon hour, and it was difficult to locate some of the key men in the network.

"White tests" are very important since the same channel over which they are conducted is used in actual blackout notifications. Although local officials cannot be sure of the area included in the "white test," they believe that the tests, if not conducted in the entire seventh service area, were statewide.

"White tests" are a comparatively new drill in civilian defense, according to the office of civilian defense here. Cedar Rapids calls the control center in Iowa City, which notifies such key men as Commander Perkins and Dean Jones, chief telephonist, who makes the calls to county towns.

The leaders then phone air raid wardens and other officials. By the time the notification is completed, more than a thousand persons are contacted in the county. Each person notified sends a card to the office of civilian defense stating when his call came through. The commander then sends a summary report to Des Moines.

Since Thursday's two tests occurred so close together, some persons were led to believe that a test surprise blackout was planned for Thursday night.

"There is every likelihood that there will be a statewide surprise blackout in the next few weeks," Commander Perkins declared Friday afternoon.

Dear Senator:

Mother and I missed seeing you when you were home for the holidays, so I wanted to write you now that you're starting your new session.

Jim is overseas, Junior is in camp and Mary is working in a war plant.

This leaves us a little short-handed, especially with volunteer work, O. C. D., U. S. O., rationing boards and so on.

But we'll make out if we can keep our patience and work hard enough.

Senator, I'll have to admit we did lose patience a few months back. Junior used to say I always scolded him too late—after he had already made up his own mind to do better.

I guess I was waiting till I got my temper under control. And that's what I've done in your case, too.

First (this is just the way I used to start in to take our boys down a peg), I hope you fellows we've elected to Congress are going to take some more responsibility.

Now that the business men and the farmers have turned into production wizards, we wouldn't mind if a few politicians that you and I know would turn into statesmen for the duration.

Second, I wanted to warn you about money.

We know you have to think in big sums and spend a lot of money for the war. But try and remember how hard Mother and I worked to buy $200 worth of bonds.

Don't let them throw our money away or waste even a little. A wasted million dollars won't save any soldier lives. And it will hurt five thousand families like ours who sweated it out in bonds and taxes.

And listen, Senator, don't worry about whether we're going to co-operate or not. We've given Uncle Sam our boys, our businesses, our money and all our confidence and, if you think anybody that will give this much is going to quibble about a gallon of gasoline or a can of beans, if you think that, well, somehow or other when you took the train to Washington you left all your common-sense on the platform back here!

Mother and I and everybody we know want you to have everything to work with and want to give you the most loyal, intelligent, whole-hearted co-operation that was ever given any government in the history of the world. That's what you can count on from the folks back home.

Now you know us, Senator, you know we all want to win this war just as quick and as positive as anybody in Washington does.

You know something else, too, sir. You know we have faith in you—faith you'll do the right thing.

I remember how we put it up to Junior when we mortgaged the place to send him to college: "Son, we're counting on you."

And, somehow, Senator, Mother and I feel you and Congress aren't going to let us down.

Respectfully yours,

John and Jane Smith

Middleville, U.S.A.

Cincinnati Takes 7-4 Victory Over Chicago Cubs

Starr Shuts Out Cubs For Seven Frames; Reds Make 14 Hits

CHICAGO (AP)—The largest crowd to see a morning game in the major leagues this season—8,307, of whom 5,307 paid—turned out at 11 a. m. to see the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati yesterday, but the Reds proved to be the real early birds. Their "worm" consisted of a 14-hit attack, including Ray Mueller's first 1943 homer, and a 7 to 4 victory.

Three thousand women guests and 400 servicemen augmented the cash customers. They saw Ray Starr shut out the Chicagoans for seven innings while the Reds held a one-run lead on Ray Mueller's third inning homer. A wild sixth inning in which the Reds kayoed Lonnie Warneke on five straight singles and a two-run encore against reliever Hi Bithorn in the eighth gave him a 7-0 lead. Starr weakened in the eighth, however, and after allowing four runs, had Clyde Shoun mop up for him.

Maj. Ernest B. Smith Outlines Air Corps College Training

In his discussion yesterday of the college physical training program of the army air corps, Major Ernest B. Smith, head of the physical training program of the U. S. army air forces flying command, said that the aim of the training program is to develop that state of physical fitness, athletic proficiency, mental alertness and discipline essential to the successful performance of duties required of an aviation cadet.

He listed the objectives of the program as follows: 1. To raise the level of physical fitness and physical efficiency of each student; 2. To discipline the student so that he responds quickly and accurately to commands, military courtesy and customs; 3. To orient the student in the methods and procedures of the calisthenic exercises and drills in which he will engage in the pre-flight and high schools; 4. To teach the fundamental body mechanics of running, jumping, climbing, tumbling and apparatus work; 5. To teach rules and fundamental skills of athletic events so that each student can engage in supervised physical training activities efficiently when he reaches the pre-flight and high schools; 6. To teach each non-swimmer to swim and each swimmer such water safety as is essential for emergency use; 7. To provide game situations in which each student is inculcated with an aggressive spirit and the importance of team play and cooperation.

An essential part of physical training phase of the army air forces college training plan is the physical fitness test, which is designed to measure abdominal muscular strength and endurance, shoulder girdle muscular strength and endurance and speed and cardio-respiratory endurance. The exercises used are sit-ups, pull-ups and the shuttle run.

The test has two functions. One is the measurement of the student's stamina and the amount of improvement accomplished and the other is the measurement of the effectiveness of the physical fitness program.

Tiger Rookie Proves To Be 'White Hope' For Steve O'Neill

DETROIT (AP)—The man from Minooka, around Steve O'Neill, isn't wearing that broad Irish grin these days since his Detroit Tigers have backtracked to the American league's second division, but if it wasn't for Rookie Dick Wakefield Big Steve's chin might hit the deck.

Young Mr. Wakefield, whose record $52,000 bonus for signing with the Tigers two years ago made him a marked man, currently is batting a prosperous .330 and has such a long league lead in basehits his rivals scarcely are within shouting distance.

The former University of Michigan outfielder, who may be the rookie of the year if he does not grab him, has 60 safeties, 15 coming in his last games since Russ Christopher and Jesse Flores of Philadelphia blanked him June 1. In those eight games he batted .429.

All of which puts O'Neill, the nominally happy native of Minooka, Pa., into the position where he is entitled to say "I told you so."

O'Neill, who watched Wakefield win the Texas league batting championship last year while hammering Beaumont to the seasonal pennant, said repeatedly before this season that Lanky Dick would hit in the American league's first 10. Right now that's somewhat of an understatement.

Now that he is reassured that Wakefield can hit big league pitching, O'Neill has reason to wonder whether the 22-year-old fly chaser will become the 26th star on the Tiger service flag. Unmarried but sole support of his mother, Wakefield recently was reclassified 1-A by his Chicago draft board.

The voice and its awakening effects must have been responsible, Reese's voice, for all his efforts to develop it, remained a shrill, reedy whine the couldn't carry to the pitcher's box. It was more of a bo'suns whistle, without the commanding effect.

Not that Durocher doesn't have some baseball left in him. He's taken pretty good care of himself, and when he quit playing regularly it was more from a personal desire for inaction than an inability to cut the cake any more.

Sure, at 38, he carries lead where it used to be feathers, and his muscles whine where they used to sing. But he always did have a knack of outguessing a baseball. He seemed to instinctively know where it was going to be hit, moving there to await it. And he was among the best at getting the ball away fast. His arm might be weak, but it still has speed.

He never was more than a seventh-spot hitter, but he's a tough guy in a clutch. He'll get on base some way, and that's the general idea.

It will be interesting to see how long he stays in there, and to note the fortunes of the club during his stay. We'd guess they wouldn't be too bad.

Lippy Leo's Sound Effects at Shortstop May Aid Dodgers

NEW YORK (AP)—We have an idea that Leo Durocher's greatest asset in playing shortstop for the Brooklyn Dodgers will be his mouth. Not meaning he'll be catching hot grounders in his teeth. It's just a case of whoops, my dear.

The cocky pilot may have slowed up to the point where he plays on a small steak, rare. His arm may have weakened until he has to run as if he were throwing a javelin to get the ball to first base, and he may hit only on July 4 and Labor day.

But he can still holler. He's the original rabbit holler guy, and his loud, challenging voice may do more to put the old college try in that bunch of refugees from antique shops than a .400 hitter who can play four positions at one and the same time, simultaneously.

As a bench manager he couldn't do justice to his voice. Sure, he'd pop out occasionally to put the yell on the umpires, but that was more or less just to keep his franchise. His is a voice that needs room, and to confine it to a sheltered bench is like putting a frog horn in a telephone booth.

The value of the Lip's voice on the playing field has been noted on other occasions. At one time, a couple of years ago, when Pee-Wee Reese was injured Durocher coaxed himself into the lineup. He could no longer field with Pee-Wee. He couldn't hit with him. But during the boss' stay on the field the club enjoyed remarkable success.

The voice and its awakening effects must have been responsible, Reese's voice, for all his efforts to develop it, remained a shrill, reedy whine the couldn't carry to the pitcher's box. It was more of a bo'suns whistle, without the commanding effect.

Not that Durocher doesn't have some baseball left in him. He's taken pretty good care of himself, and when he quit playing regularly it was more from a personal desire for inaction than an inability to cut the cake any more.

No Fall Football
ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis university does not intend to participate in intercollegiate football this fall, the Rev. Robert M. Kelley, S. J., acting president, said yesterday.

New York Becomes Favorite In N. C. A. A. Track, Field Meet

Qualifies for Seven Finals; Trojans Place Six, Washington Five

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—New York university's Violets, the strongest eastern team to enter the national collegiate preliminaries in more than a decade, dominated qualifying trials in yesterday's preliminaries of the 22nd annual N. C. A. A. track and field championships, and at once became favorites to end Southern California's eight-year reign.

N. Y. U. placed names of its athletes on today's finalist roster seven times, but has even more strength than that. For its outstanding 880-yard and mile runner, Ray Zoellner, is ready to go today at those distances over the Northwestern university Dyche stadium course.

Trojans Prove Surprise
Southern California's Trojans surprised everyone who had lightly dismissed their chances of repeating a ninth consecutive time. They qualified six men, including defending quarter-mile champion Cliff Bourland in both the 440 and 220 dashes.

Still out to make a contest of it were Washington, with five qualifiers, and California, Ohio State and the U. S. naval academy with four apiece.

N. Y. U. performers placed in six events, with Frank Cotter and Charles Groszberger both clicking in the 440 yard run. Edward Conwell came through in the 100 and 220 dashes. Warren Halliburton in the 100 hurdles, Bernard Mayer in the shot put and Leonard Bates in the discus.

Southern California stayed well up with Bourland in the 220 dash and 440, Jack Trout in the 100 and 220 dashes, Douglas Miller in the javelin and Edsel Curry in the broad jump. Washington qualified Robert Smith in the 220 dash, Evert Pitman in the 440, Richard Yantis in the discus, William Kydd in the javelin and Thomas Kamm in the broad jump.

Howard Debus
The day's busiest individual was Howard Debus of Nebraska. Only member of his team to come east, he placed in the shot, discus and javelin, to make the Cornhuskers one of the three teams to trail the leaders with three qualifiers each. The others were Rice and Minnesota.

The defending broad jump champion, Dallas Dupre of Ohio State, was third in those trials while the meet's fourth returning individual title holder, vaulter Jack DeField of Minnesota, was not called on for competition yesterday.

Illinois, who has strong title hopes based on able performers in the mile and two mile, landed Robert Kelley and LeRoy Frank in the 440 finals and both are entered in the 880, in which no qualifying was held yesterday because of a small field.

Qualifiers by teams in yesterday's preliminaries of the N. C. A. A. track and field championship: New York university 7; Southern California 6; Washington 5; California 4; Ohio State 4; U. S. naval academy 4; Minnesota 3; Rice 3; Nebraska 3; Illinois 2; Prairie View 2; Texas 2; Lawrence 2; Fresno State 2; Iowa State 2; Colorado 2; Notre Dame 2; Stanford 1; Western Illinois Teachers 1; Vir-

Seahawks Play Here Today

To Meet Onthank Co. From Des Moines; Band Will Perform

The Seahawks will again attempt a home game this afternoon when they meet the Onthank Co. nine of Des Moines at 2 o'clock. On the mound for the navy will be Hal Sherman, righthander, who already has one victory to his credit.

The navy band will play at the game, it was announced yesterday.

Changes in the lineup will be made at first and third base as Earl Gillespie replaces Tony Cramer and Adolph Rotermund will fill the vacancy left by Bob Kennedy, who left the base last week.

First baseman Gillespie, who came to the pre-flight school a week ago, is from Chicago and has three years minor league experience in Wisconsin. His contract is now held by the Milwaukee Brewers of the American association.

Although out of action last week due to illness, Verne Sanderson will again take his old position at leftfield. Bill Welp and Bud Flanders, who have been with the Seahawks since the 1943 season opened, will be at their usual posts at catcher and centerfielder.

Today's tilt will be the last home game for two members of the pre-flighters' twirling squad—Sherman and Webb. The two will leave the school next week upon completion of their training here.

The Seahawks have scheduled another game for tomorrow with the Keokuk Goats, at Keokuk. This will be a return game for the two teams, the navy taking a shutout over their opponents May 23.

Kinnick's Photograph Requested by Youths

Youth organizations, whose directors have set up the late Nile Kinnick as an ideal for the American boy, are requesting photographs of the Iowa all-American for display in their clubrooms.

Such legitimate requests are being filled by the university news service. Most popular picture is that of Kinnick fading back to throw a forward pass, looking alertly down the field to spot his receiver.

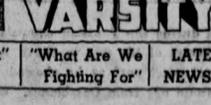

In one of the requests, Robert J. Brennan, executive director of the Dubuque Boys' Club, Inc., said, "If every boy had one-tenth the will to win, gentleness, scholarship, and athletic ability that Nile possessed, we would never have to worry about the future American boy."

Seahawk Net Team In Finals Tomorrow

The Seahawk varsity tennis team is scheduled to compete in the final rounds of the Red Cros tourney at Cedar Rapids tomorrow afternoon. The team, which dominated the quarterfinals, was to have played in the finals event last Sunday, but the round was postponed because of the weather.

credits to the late Bob Davis, although I can't see why—it is a situation long in the public domain. His heroine is a girl named Eugenie Balan whose father runs a saloon and dance hall in Montana. She has been in school in Massachusetts, and she comes home with her Boston fiancé and his old maid sister just as a crooked sheriff hangs a pair of cattle thieves and thereby provides a holiday for the village of Sage Brush. Among those watching the hanging is Eugenie's fastidious, cool and very handsome man named Jim Jennifer, who has the gambling concession at Hector Balan's saloon.

Mr. Brinig makes no attempt to conceal what is bound to happen, but he dresses it up in precisely the right clothes and surrounds it with as pleasant a set of secondary characters as anybody could wish. One of these, the old maid sister of the fiancée aforementioned, almost runs away with the show. It would be cruel to readers to tell what she does, precisely, but it was a gorgeous idea and it comes off. Mr. Brinig is very successful at suggesting the physical properties of the setting, and passages like the trip over the divide to Butte stick in the mind long after the book is finished.

She said Dempsey closed all her charge accounts without her knowing it.

LET'S GIVE 'EM MORE VICTORY SHIPS!

Today our soldiers on every battlefield depend on the men of the Merchant Marine to deliver the goods - to bring them the guns, the tanks, the bombs they need to win the fight. And to get these necessary materials to our boys on the far-flung battlefronts across the Atlantic and Pacific, the men of the Merchant Marine defy all the perils of war. They sail through submarine-infested waters, they watch their ship sink after she has been cut in half by torpedoes. They face long lonely days and nights without food or water in crowded life boats, while their eyes strain to catch sight of a passing ship. The survivors of disaster see their shipmates struggle to hang on to life as they are swallowed by the raging sea. Although many have suffered painful injuries, they accept their war risk with the same valor and gallantry as the men in the armed forces and cheerfully return to duty. We who are at home are challenged to give these men the ships they need! We are the people who must buy the Bonds, work in the ship yards, and exhaust every possible means to insure the officers and men of the Merchant Marine that they will have the ships to carry the cargoes of war materials to those men who won't be home until the war is won. Let's give them more Victory ships!

STAY ON THE JOB EVERY DAY!

Before the champagne bottle sends a ship into battle, it is up to the men and women who work in the shipyards to work long hours every day and get that ship into the water. Their jobs are important, which makes it imperative that they stay on the job always. Every day they are away from their work means that victory will be delayed just a little longer. The men of the Merchant Marine need our ships. And when they get them, they will be on duty 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, so let's give them what they need NOW!
