Congress Delivers Another Stab To Roosevelt Wartime Policies As Senate Repudiates Subsidies

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The senate joined the house yesterday in repudiating OPA's food subsidy rollback, and voted besides to transfer future subsidy operations from the office of price administration to the war food administrator, Chester C. Davis.

Thus the administration suffered its second major setback in two days, the anti-subsidy action following congress' overriding of President Roosevelt's veto of the anti-strike bill.

In no mood for extended debate, the senate voted 46 to 29 to kill the rollback, which Price Administrator Prentiss Brown has said is essential to hold the line against inflation. It then swiftly adopted, without a record vote, an amendment by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) transferring subsidy authority to the food administrator.

The actions brought OPA operations to a fresh crisis. Brown has put the subsidy into effect on meat and butter and declared it necessary "to roll back the cost of living to the level to which we are committed (Sept. 15, 1942) and to hold it there."

OPA also faces a financial crisis, the house having slashed 26 percent from the $177,000,000 recommended for the agency's operations in the next fiscal year.

Brown said this week that price control will be "crippled into uselessness" if the senate agrees with the house on the money issue.

The senate rollback decision came as it approved a bill extending for two years the life of the Commodity Credit Corp. Substituting its own version, allowing a $1,000,000,000 increase in the lending authority of the CCC, for a house bill, the senate passed the measure on a voice vote and sent it to conference to iron out differences between the two chambers.

The house had voted yesterday to eliminate rollback subsidies and had provided only $500,000,000 for the CCC, through which much of the government assistance to farmers is channeled.

While provisions of the two measures differ in language, acting Democratic Leader Hill (Aia) conceded that the price rollback program is dead, so far as congress is concerned. A veto by President Roosevelt might keep the direct prohibition against such subsidies out of the law, but legislators pointed out that the agencies concerned still would have to find the money somewhere to finance such a program.

The senate first adopted 39 to 27 an amendment by Senator Clark (D-Mo) to eliminate the rollback subsidies, but to carry on with subsidies to encourage agricultural and mineral production and to make payments to offset increased wartime costs of transportation of such commodities as oil and coal.

Not satisfied with this, the senate acted a few minutes later to supplant Clark's amendment with one offered by Senator Aiken (R-Vt) also eliminating the rollback subsidies on meat, butter and coffee.

The amendment would make good, however, on the government's promise to pay subsidies on these commodities from June 1 up to the date of enactment. It would permit the government to continue to make incentive payments on canning crops (such as tomatoes, corn, beans and peas), on specialty crops (peas and beans) and on potatoes, hemp and sugar. The government's price support program on domestic vegetable oils and fats would be continued.

Comdr. R. M. Perkins Tells of Probability Of 'Brownout' Here

Iowa City residents who heard the whistle coming across the river from Coralville Friday night proved their alertness when they put out all their lights, Prof. Rollin M. Perkins, civilian defense commander, said yesterday. At least one large building was among places blacked out.

Commander Perkins stated that there is a probability of a "brownout" before the end of this summer.

The brownout, he explained, is not an air raid measure, but is a permanent reduction of lighting for the purpose of conserving fuel and the like. It will be national in scope, and will cut down illumination noticeably.

Although the government is holding off the brownout as long as it can, we may expect the measure to be in effect before many months, Commander Perkins said.

He repeated the hope that no one in Iowa City would think that any signal would sound an all-clear. In the case of blackout, he said, no one should turn on his lights again until he has seen the street lights go on.

Yugoslavians Repulse Fifth Nazi Offensive

Patriot Troops Inflict Heavy Losses on Eight Retreating Divisions

LONDON (AP)—Yugoslav patriot forces have repulsed a fifth big German offensive, and eight Nazi and satellite divisions which suffered heavy losses are retreating from Montenegro and the Novi-Pazar area toward Herzegovina and eastern Bosnia, Yugoslav government sources announced yesterday.

They said the patriots broke through three cordons of axis troops posed to keep them penned up in the mountains and reached a rail line linking the garrison town Sarajevo with Belgrade.

Ankara dispatches quoted an authoritative Yugoslav source there as saying that Gen. Draza Mihailovic, the patriot commander, is leading a grim guerrilla battle in southeastern Yugoslavia at the head of 50,000 to 60,000 troops.

The guerrillas have been attacking rail communications over which the Germans must send supplies and reinforcements to Greece in the event of an allied invasion at that point.

The German radio, in a recent broadcast recorded by Associated Press, has acknowledged axis attempts to lift the pressure on the Yugoslav rail system so that it would be free to carry reinforcements to the Balkans.

Soviet Bombers Hit Nazis at Bryansk

LONDON, Sunday (AP)—Russian bombers pounded rear German airfields and rail installations at Bryansk Friday night, and other Red army fliers dealt new blows to the enemy's sea and air units Thursday, but the Soviet midnight communique reported little ground activity along the sprawling Russian front.

A Moscow broadcast, recorded early today by the Soviet Monitor in advance of the midnight communique, said Russian bombers started large fires at the station and rail junction of Bryansk, behind the Orel front. Several German planes were destroyed in the attacks on enemy airfields, the announcement said, and the Russians lost two planes.

Allies Drop 20 Tons Of Bombs on Rabaul

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Sunday (AP)—Twenty tons of bombs were dropped yesterday by allied raiders on Rabaul, New Britain, where concentrations of Japanese shipping and aircraft had been reported by reconnaissance fliers, the high command announced.

The bombs were directed at the airfields and docks.

Yanks Finish Busy Week With Attacks on France

Stalin Thanks F.R. for Praise of Russians, Says Conditions Now Ready for Axis Defeat

LONDON, Sunday (AP)—Premier Stalin of Russia thanked President Roosevelt for his "high estimation of the determination and bravery of the Soviet people" in a special message broadcast by the Moscow radio early today and said that conditions have been created for the final defeat of the common enemy.

"The sooner we strike our joint united blows against the enemy from the east and from the west,"

the sooner final victory will come, said Stalin's message, recorded here by the Soviet Monitor.

Stalin's statement was in reply to a message which President Roosevelt sent to the premier last Tuesday on the second anniversary of the German attack of Russia.

Mr. Roosevelt told Stalin at that time that the same spirit of unity and sacrifice necessary for ultimate victory "will animate us in approaching the challenging tasks."

Anti-Strike Law Angers Labor—But No-Strike Promise Stands

Government Agencies Confused Over Proper Administration of Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional enactment of the war labor law has caused confusion over the proper administration of the law, government agencies which were not ready, pending further study of the measure, to say what steps they would have to take in shaping their organizations to administer it.

Crisis Threat Vanishes The threat of an immediate crisis for the war labor board through resignation of its labor members vanished. While this possibility had been suggested, prior to enactment of the bill, the labor members said individually yesterday that they intended to stick by the board.

A question to be resolved, however, is the extent of the restrictions placed on them by the act's prohibition against a WLB member's taking part in consideration of a case in which he has an interest. It must be decided, for instance, whether this means an AFL member may not consider any AFL case or may consider an AFL case if it does not affect his particular union.

Speculation In the forefront of speculation here was whether the act might be applied in the coal controversy if any considerable number of miners continues the work stoppage next week.

The act forbids anyone from aiding or promoting a strike in a war plant or mine which has been

12 Bombers, Fighters Lost in Daylight Raids

LONDON, (AP)—A large force of American heavy bombers attacked airfields and industrial targets in France by daylight yesterday, winding up the busiest week yet seen in the mighty allied aerial offensive which has devastated the German war cradle in the Ruhr valley and woven a pattern of destruction across Hitler's coastal wall.

A communique issued jointly by the U. S. Army's European theater headquarters and the British air ministry said supporting Thunderbolts destroyed three enemy fighters and that some unescorted bombers shot down a "considerable number."

Five bombers and seven fighters were lost in the daylight assaults, which were accompanied by British fighter sweeps over the continent and followed Friday night's RAF attack on the heart of the Ruhr coal and steel belt.

Many squadrons of RAF, Dominion and allied fighters took part in the daylight operations.

The precise objectives of the American heavyweights were not announced in the communique, which described the sky fleet as a "large formation" and said it included some light bombers of the RAF.

'Smacked Factories' One returning flier said however that "we really smacked those factories. I could see the bombs dropped by the formations behind us still exploding all over the target area."

The communique said "adverse weather conditions were encountered by some of the heavy bombers and those which were unable to identify clearly their targets dropped no bombs."

Most of the heavy bombers, including Flying Fortresses, flew unescorted and engaged in numerous combats with enemy fighters.

Raid on Airfield An earlier air ministry communique had told of the raid on Bernay airfield, 40 miles south of Le Havre.

"Bursts were seen on buildings, hangars and dispersal pens," the air ministry said.

One bomb fell squarely on a large concentration of parked aircraft. Others burst near twin-engine planes, it was said, and the raiders returned safely despite anti-aircraft fire which fighter pilots described as "considerable."

Hits on Station Other Typhoons scored hits on the station and freight yard near Le Treport in a raid during which not a single enemy fighter was sighted.

Boston bombers, meanwhile, attacked the oft-blasted airfield at Abbeville.

The Ruhr was described as a bomb-pitted valley after this week of assault—the mightiest ever loosed against a similar area.

30,000 Tons After Friday night's blow at Bochum and Gelsenkirchen by a great force of RAF heavyweights, one military observer estimated that 30,000 tons of explosives had ripped into the compact German industrial valley since the allies opened their intensive aerial bombardment three and one half

Expect Normal Output of Coal By Next Week

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Mounting signs came from the Appalachian coal fields last night that nearly normal production might be resumed next week although the situation in Pennsylvania remained uncertain after a day which saw the closing of more mines even though anti-strike legislation has become law.

Foremost in the back-to-work movement were reports that more thousands of miners returned to their jobs in West Virginia, Kentucky and Virginia.

Coupled with this development were the almost general predictions by United Mine Worker district leaders that most of the men would be back in the mines Monday morning, even in Pennsylvania.

As against this, a large proportion of the men continued to remain away from work yesterday in large producing states like Pennsylvania, Alabama and Ohio.

Although absenteeism at many working mines prevented an accurate estimate of how many men were back on the job, information from union and operator sources indicated that a larger number worked yesterday than Friday, despite the additional walkouts in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, the number of idle appeared to be around 210,000, most of them in Pennsylvania. This would mean that a majority of the men—over 300,000—were back in the mines.

A late development in Kentucky sent 4,500 UMW members in District 23 on "vacation." District President Ed Morgan announced they left their jobs and will be off 10 days because they received only $20 instead of $50 vacation pay as stipulated in their contract. Morgan emphasized the action did not constitute a strike. It affected mines in five counties.

The effect of the prolonged shutdown of the coal mines was felt heavily by the United States Steel corporation, world's biggest producer, which banked 14 blast furnaces because of a shortage of coking coal.

The great by-products plant of Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, subsidiary of U. S. Steel, at Clairton, Pa., which supplies coke to steel plants at Pennsylvania's Monongahela valley, was operating at about 50 percent of capacity.

Fortresses Shatter Messina in Big Raid

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA (AP)—Massed squadrons of Flying Fortresses shattered strategic sections of the "earthquake proof" city of Messina Friday with their biggest attack yet staged in the Mediterranean, it was disclosed yesterday.

The record raid marked another powerful blow in the continuing effort to isolate Sicily. Mussolini's island bastion off southern Italy.

The Forts, roaring out more than 100 strong, showered the Messina ports and rails areas so heavily that "when the last raider attacked there was so much smoke and dust that further observation of damage was impossible," allied headquarters said.

Clouds of fighter planes and intense anti-aircraft fire put up a stubborn defense of the city, the terminus of train ferry links with the Italian mainland.

This assault followed an attack Thursday night by Wellingtons of the RAF on Olbia, in northern Sardinia, where they set off a huge explosion in the port area, near the railway station and military objectives, and started at least seven fires. All the Wellingtons returned safely, but three allied planes were lost in Friday's operations.

The allied communique declared that bombs were rained upon docks and freight yards at both Olbia and Messina, and that in Messina "photographs taken from the Fortresses showed two strikes and damaging misses on a 400-foot merchant vessel in the harbor, one hit on the foredeck of a 500-foot ship and hits among a large number of buildings, warehouses, railroad tracks and station facilities."

Play Tryouts To Be Tuesday

Tryouts for Arthur Aren's play, "It's Up to You," to be produced by the community theater project under the supervision of Prof. E. C. Mabie, will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the university theater.

Any Iowa Citizen or university student, regardless of his previous dramatic experience, is invited to attend the tryouts. Musicians, both vocal and instrumental, also are needed.

The Iowa City production of "It's Up to You" will be the first staging of the play anywhere. After its premiere here, federal theaters all over the country will produce it.

"It's Up to You" deals with farm people and their problems, emphasizing the problem of food production. The play features several songs by Earl Robinson, well-known American composer.

Year's Hottest Day Sees Mercury at 96

Having bided up betimes Friday night until the weather would go to bed and let them go there, too, Iowa City residents yesterday watched the thermometer climb to the 96-degree mark, the highest it has ventured this summer.

At times the sky clouded over, afforded pedestrians temporary shade, but did not bring rain.

Professor Anderson Answers Father Kerrigan—

Shall Italy Have a Dictatorship?

Editor's note: The following article, written by Prof. Troyer S. Anderson of the University of Iowa's history department, is a reply to Father William J. Kerrigan's point of view concerning post-war Italy, expressed in one of a series of five articles which appeared in these columns recently.

In the second of Father Kerrigan's five articles on Italy, which appeared recently on the editorial page of The Daily Iowan, he advances a point of view which, in as serious times as these, cannot be allowed to go unchallenged. Under the title of "Should We Attempt to Re-Educate Italy," Father Kerrigan argues that Mussolini's dictatorship is in a class very different from that of Hitler's, that it is in many ways a "benign dictatorship." Therefore, he concludes, it ought not to be destroyed but should, after the amputation of the more aggressive features of its foreign policy, be allowed to continue ruling Italy.

This is a very critical question for Americans to ponder. All the signs point to an early invasion of Italy, with American troops probably playing the major role in the campaign. If that happens, and if the invasion is a success, our government will shortly be confronted with the problem of providing for the civil government of occupied Italy. Father Kerrigan has an answer: let us hear it in his own words.

"Can post-war Italy have a benign dictatorship such as she had before the war—or, at least, before the Ethiopian campaign? Such a dictatorship as Portugal has, perhaps? That seems what the people would want.

"Many remember the conditions that prevailed before Mussolini's coming. The brigandage. The anti-clericalism. The dirt. The ill-lighted streets. The unpredictable trains. They would not want to risk going back to that, or to a similar position twenty years behind the rest of the post-war world."

"... And, if I must come to any conclusion, it is that a non-aggressive dictatorship is what will fit Italy after the war."

To support this view Father Kerrigan paints a very flattering picture of the measure of liberty and contentment in Fascist Italy. He argues that Italy has freedom of the press because the Pope's paper is allowed to circulate uncensored. He claims that Italians are contented because he never heard anyone talk treason. He believes that Italy has freedom of government because his barber told him that Italians liked the regime. By the simple device of listing anti-clericalism—whose chief principal, by the way, is the familiar American doctrine of the separation of church and state—along with dirt, poorly lighted streets, brigandage, and late trains, as one of the evils of the pre-Mussolini period, he feels he has proved that Italians would not want to return to a liberal regime. And also he suggests a continuation of dictatorship.

One wonders if Father Kerrigan has really studied the history of Fascism in Italy. Admittedly it is somewhat less grim than Hitler's Nazism. The more easy-going nature of the Italian people made that inevitable. But the reality was grim enough, even if Hitler's super-cruelties made us a little forgetful of barbarities which, in pre-Hitler days, we

The fact is that Mussolini and his Black Shirts were teaching the world a lesson in modern savagery almost before Hitler had been heard of. Has Father Kerrigan forgotten the quart doses of castor oil and the beatings, which Mussolini's ruffians administered to their political opponents? Has he forgotten the murder of Matteotti? Does he think the many distinguished exiles who fled Italy did so because of needless alarm? Has he never heard of the terrorism of Fascist organizations which extended even to the Italian communities in America?

And what of his evidence for the existence of freedom and contentment in Italy? The Pope's paper circulates freely. That is not surprising for, although the Vatican has bickered with Mussolini occasionally, it has never really opposed his regime. On the contrary, the Concordat between Mussolini and the Vatican in 1929, an arrangement the Vatican was never willing to conclude with the liberal governments, was a tremendously powerful assistance to Fascist power. Why should Mussolini interfere with the Pope's newspaper?

No, that is no test of freedom in Italy. If Father Kerrigan will give me a list of liberal newspapers, of papers uniformly hostile to the regime, which circulate freely, then I shall be impressed. He cannot give me such a list, for such papers do not circulate, except secretly.

And what of this amazing contentment to which his barber testified? Where satisfaction is so general is it necessary to maintain the machinery of dictatorship, to destroy parliament, to abrogate free speech, to persecute political enemies with beatings, imprisonment, and even death? Even if at times those who administer the Fascist terror get a bit lazy, that does not mean that Italy voluntarily accepts the regime. Those who are not politically-minded, who submit automatically to any regime, may not be as frequently annoyed as would similar people in Nazi Germany. But for those who have political minds of their own—and they are probably almost as numerous in Italy as in other lands—there is no freedom.

Now let us look a moment at the regime which Father Kerrigan would have us set up in Italy when we get there. From what elements would this dictatorship be formed? Obviously he would not approve of a left-wing dictatorship. He cannot mean a liberal dictatorship, for he associates liberalism with the shortcomings of Italy before Mussolini.

He must, therefore, mean a right-wing, a reactionary dictatorship. Where would he find the elements from which to construct it? Right in the present Fascist regime, or at least closely associated with it, for that is where all the right-wing elements are. In other words, his dictatorship would simply be Fascism over again, with modifications. Mussolini would go. There would be a milder foreign policy. There would be a greater emphasis on clericalism and an abandonment of those Fascist practices which flirted with paganism and sometimes alarmed the Church. A new name for the dictatorship would be found. But the essence would remain the same. There would be pretty much the same men, the same denial of freedom, and, if necessary, the same violent means to suppress it.

Tomorrow hundreds of thousands of Americans may fight their way ashore in Italy. In doing so thousands of them will have to lay down their lives. Thousands of homes throughout this land will receive the dread telegram announcing that a father, a husband, a son or a brother has been killed in action. Is this new, semi-Fascist dictatorship the end for which they are going to die? Are we going to sacrifice the best blood of this country to leave in power the men who attacked Ethiopia, who devastated Spain, who overran Albania, who plunged a knife into the back of France, and who today, but for the fortunes of war and their own moral breakdown, would be gnawing, jackal-like at the remains of the carcass left by the German lion?

But this is a question that is bigger than Italy alone. What of the oppressed people of Europe who, in spite of our previous mistakes, still look to us for salvation? Are we going to repeat, before their eyes and on a grandiose scale, the mistakes we made in north Africa? What will they think, to whom will they turn, if our landing in Italy is followed by a mere reshuffling of the old dictatorship, this time backed by American guns? What will they think of the reformer turned lord of the underworld? Neither our reputation nor our self-respect would recover in this century.

All this is so obvious that it ought not to need discussion. But there is a sinister propaganda abroad today which seeks to beguile us into building the new Europe upon a foundation of disguised and slightly amended Fascism, or at least reaction. Sometimes this propaganda comes in a charming wrapper, as is the case with Otto of Austria who will visit Iowa City later in the summer. But, no matter how suave the exterior, behind it all lies the selfishness and the cruelty which have already cost the world millions of lives and will cost millions more before the end comes.

I trust that Father Kerrigan is unaware how much his argument contributes to that propaganda. But the fact that so many good people are unaware of it only makes the danger the greater. We must avoid, at all costs, falling into the error into which this propaganda seeks to tempt us, for, should we do so, the sons of today's soldiers will march forth a few years hence to die in a greater and bloodier war. When that happens, if unhappily it does, an embittered world will deal remorselessly with any individual or organization responsible for the betrayal of its hopes.

Criticism of Current Literature And a Guide to Good Reading

By JOHN SELBY

"WESTERN STAR," by Stephen Vincent Benet (Farrar & Rinehart; $2).

For years before the war, the late Stephen Vincent Benet worked on a successor to "John Brown's Body"—not a sequel, but another long poem fit to stand beside that unique work. When the war came, Benet put aside his new epic, and gave all of himself to the war effort. He was not a strong man, and he did not live. But he was lucky.

He was lucky in that he had finished the first section of "John Brown's" successor, a section that can and does stand on its own. The earlier work was circulated by the Book-of-the-Month club and "Western Star" is also assured of a wide audience by the same organization. It would have had it in any case, but this way is perhaps easier.

"Western Star" is the first surge of the long westward march of Americans. It is a set of variations, in a way, on the typical Americanism: "We don't know where we're going, but we're on our way." It begins in England, where the news of Virginia is bruited about the taverns and the palaces and the jails. Dickon Heron, the apprentice who sneaks out at night to prowls the docks, hears the news of Virginia, and Raleigh hears it in his cell, and so do all the others. The news builds up into a chant, and an impulse, and the movement to the west begins.

The movement ends on our east coast. Mr. Benet had intended to sweep westward with it if he had had time. But by peculiar good luck, the first great surge is complete in "Western Star," if anything of the sort is ever complete. The good luck does not end there; Mr. Benet was perhaps the only poet who could have found exactly the elastic mould for this story. The last three lines are these:

"And the west wind blew in the faces of Dickon's sons
"And they looked to the West and searched it with their eyes,
"And there was the endless forest and the sharp star."

"Flying Fortress," by Thomas Collison (Scribners; $2.50). Probably there is no literate person in the world who does not at least know the term "Flying Fortress," hermits excepted. Most of us have seen one or two; those who have visited the fronts have seen many. And if a clipping service were to take over, the harvest of cuttings would equal those of all the first-line Hollywood stars combined. So Thomas Collison rightly thought it was time to tell the whole story of the Flying Fortress, up to those last-minute and secret refinements which may not yet be known to the enemy.

Even a Fortress has ancestors. These were conceived at the 1928 air races in Los Angeles, when a group of Boeing engineers stood watching, trying to work out a way in which the lessons being taught in the air could be transferred to transport problems. Transport planes of that period cruised at about 100 miles an hour, which the engineers thought too slow. They were not comfortable. They had so much "drag" that they whistled in the air. And it cost a young fortune to keep them whistling, because maintaining the fabric surfaces used then was exceedingly expensive.

Within a couple of years, the engineers had the part of the answer. It was the "Monomail," a low-wing monoplane with a single engine and aluminum alloy skin, a large pay-load and among other things retractable landing gear. They made only a pair of Monomails. The performance was good, but by that time it was obvious that a single motor plane would not do. The B-9 two-engine bomber grew out of that, and then the first three-mile-a-minute transport plane.

This is the foundation of Mr. Collison's story. He tells with enough (but not too much) detail how the Fortress was born—the experiments, the mistakes, the scientific study and all the rest. He explains the process of manufacture, and how young Americans are taught to fly them. The whole book is handsomely illustrated, and the photographs are reproduced as well as they are chosen. It's a pretty exciting sort of book.

Interpreting THE WAR NEWS by Glenn Babb

Entire World Awaits Curtain on 'Main Show'

Summer's first weekend finds the world still waiting for the curtain to rise on the main show, the anticipated titanic clashes of the armies and navies in the fateful campaign of 1943. Meantime, however, its attention was gripped by the blazing prologue in the skies, where the softening up of the axis war carried forward at a new pitch of intensity and destructiveness. This pattern may continue for a few more weeks. On the other hand the setting of the stage is so near completion that any morning may see the allied landing barges sweeping toward the enemy's coasts, probably in the Mediterranean.

On land and sea the pre-invasion lull still ruled but in the air the British and American air fleets had their most tremendous week of the war. The "neutralization" of the Ruhr, heart of German war production, was virtually completed and the sapping of Italy's power and will to resist made good progress.

The lull around emphasized the extent to which the initiative has passed from the axis. The allies rule the seas and the skies to such a degree that an axis stroke in either element is out of the question. But both Germany and Japan still have the opportunity to launch great land offensives if they care to take the gamble.

But the bright June days, so favorable for this purpose, slipped by and both remained quiescent. The anniversary of Hitler's attack on Russia passed with his armies still immobilized along the whole length of the eastern front. The belief held in some quarters that Japan might strike a blow for both Germany and herself by attacking Siberia received no support. The Japanese continued to give ground in China. In the south and southwest Pacific Japan still was waiting for something, meanwhile suffering heavy attrition in the air.

Italy, with nothing left to do but await the dread day of invasion, did just that while the air-fleets, ports and communications centers of her islands and southern mainland shuddered under the daily blows of the American and British air forces.

LIFE AND WORK IN RUSSIA—

This week's reading on the program Life and Work in Russia, presented by Ken Thompson of the WSUI staff tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, will describe the people of the black city, the oil city of Baku, from the newest book of Maurice Hindus, "Mother Russia." Mr. Hindus, well-known American writer, returned to Russia after an absence of six years.

and only one picture of an injured white man. Their whole treatment of this humiliating situation for both whites and Negroes, holds the white hoodlums solely responsible.

One of their writers suggests that the cause of the trouble can be traced solely to rumors, another says an incidental altercation of a white and Negro inspired outbreaks, etc.

Riots do not grow out of a rumor or many rumors, or even isolated incidents, but out of a general situation. First you must have an explosive general condition in which such sparks may ignite.

The riots do directly serve the cause of the enemies of this country, but alert government agencies have come forward with no proof of a direct axis agent contact either with rumors or riots. No one seems to know the true cause of most of them. In one place, it is one thing; in another, another.

But in all cases it is a clash over the rights of Negroes—and, of course, the very same radical American sources who make these charges are the ones who are championing a reform of these rights to the fullest in the midst of war.

Now no one is going to accomplish much good trying to talk common sense and truth in the midst of a swirling situation like this. Yet it will only make matters worse to blind the country to the truth of the condition.

With June almost gone it seemed the time was fast running out in which an axis offensive could be expected. Wider acceptance was found for the suggestion that both in Europe and in the Pacific the enemy, realizing that his power to wage offensive warfare was virtually gone, was content to stand on the defensive, hoping for some miracle, military or political, which would give him a stalemate.

HOLLYWOOD—There's a fresh beard-print hardening in a block of concrete in the forecourt of the Chinese theater here, and it's more than just another addition to that house's bizarre collection of stellar "autographs." It's the symbol of a cycle.

Monty Woolley, washing the soggy cement from his treasured whiskers after the ceremony, already had ridden the cycle—which he inaugurated—to fame.

It is a great day for the old boys, and for stories in which they can frolic. The beard, a symbol of the oldsters' return to the spotlight, is here to stay a while.

Once before, the older generation enjoyed a professional fiesta comparable to this one. The screen, long devoted to the love stories of handsome young men and curvaceous cuties, made the interesting discovery that beauty and youth were not the only commodities that could sell tickets. The late Marie Dressler, supposedly a worn-out has-been, played a small part with Garbo in "Anna Christie" and the next thing Hollywood knew she was queen of the screen, the No. 1 box-office attraction.

It was the era of Will Rogers, George Arliss, and another has-been, Wallace Beery, whose comeback was so complete that, a dozen years later, he still rides high. Lionel Barrymore, making capital of the cycle, clinched an enduring place, along with Lewis Stone.

This time the war is boosting the chances of the older actors. Just as it is giving the slightly over-age boys a look-in at the romantic roles formerly taken by leading men who are gone to the colors, it is opening the doors to all manner of "characters"—with no age limit. Stories of life on the home front, which is practically stripped of its young men, put a natural accent on the older citizens.

Charles Coburn has been drawing compliments for several years for his work in more or less intractable father roles, but none like those he garnered as Mr. Dingle in "The More the Merrier." Columbia got excited enough to star him in his next film, "Without Notice," and—aptly enough—endowed him with a beard.

There are three younger men who have made brilliant names by forsaking youth for whiskers, limps and wrinkles—one of them, Walter Brennan, already having three Oscars for his work Lee J. Cobb, smooth-cheeked infant just entering his thirties, never has acted his age on the screen, Edgar Buchanan, a young dentist, was a young man in "Penny Serenade," but most of his characterizations have been played behind shrubbery.

Frank Morgan, as the old telegraph operator of "The Human Comedy," drew a role to stimulate fresh interest in his always pleasant work. Just as this film gave us a new and subdued Mickey Rooney, it gave Morgan a chance to shed the mannerisms which had become his trade-mark and to project a vivid character.

Race Riots Perturb Washington

Land-and-Order Talk Appears to Be Useless

By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON—The race riots over the country (Beaumont, Los Angeles, Detroit, Mobile) are being watched from Washington with tightly drawn, silent lips, but with much inner perturbation and comment.

It has become customary for officials to lecture the hoodlums on both sides about law and order, and the necessity for being calm in strained emotional periods of wartime, but this does not seem to be doing much good. It does not even reach in the direction of the causes or cure of the tragic, expanding condition.

The ultra radical New York newspaper PM, and the CIO publications, which either instigated or sensationally backed a movement, at the start of the war, to get the Negroes full social and economic equality, swiftly, during the domestic upset contingent with the war effort, have taken the line since the riots that they are inspired by Fascists.

They mourned for a Negro mother whose boy was killed by white hoodlums in Newark, ignoring news from a Georgia camp about one white MP being killed and five white soldiers maimed the same day, although all these men also presumably had mothers.

One such edition of PM carried ten pages of exciting (if not inciting) pictures, depicting the brutal, savage beatings of Negroes, Buxton will play "At Dawning" (Cadman), "Ich Liebe Dich" (Beethoven), "Because" (D'Hardelot), "To a Wild Rose" (MacDowell), Lohengrin's Wedding March (Wagner) and "Wedding March" (Mendelssohn).

Serving the bride as maid of honor will be Amy Wilder of Creston. Robert Edison of Ft. Dodge will attend the bridegroom as best man.

Her white accessories will include a small flower hat trimmed with white veiling. She will wear a corsage of white orchids.

Miss Wilder has chosen a green and white print silk gown styled with buttons down the front and short sleeves. Her costume will be completed by white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Army Student Weds Alvera A. Dethmers

The double ring service was read by the Rev. Ilion T. Jones. Accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Muir at the organ, Hazel Chapman sang "Because" (D'Hardelot).

The bride was attired in a white wool gabardine suit with a white braid hat trimmed with orchid veiling.

The reception after the ceremony was held in Meredith's tearoom. The table, centered with a wedding cake, featured the bride's chosen colors of orchid and white.

Attending the ceremony from out of town were the bride's mother, Mrs. Jack Dethmers of Garner, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wissink of West Bend.

Mrs. Bell, a graduate of Boyden high school, attended Augustana college in Sioux Falls, S. D. Mr. Bell was graduated from high school and junior college in Sheldon. He is now enrolled in the signal corps and is stationed in the army school at the University of Iowa.

Mexican Dishes Come to Home Picnics

Colorful Recipes Brighten Outdoor Suppers In These Stay-at-Home Days

Backyard picnics are the mode and a chilled dessert, stored in the refrigerator hours ahead of time.

Castilian Chicken

2 lbs. butter
2 onions
1 green pepper
1 garlic clove
1/2 lbs. parsley
1/2 cup tomato or chili sauce
1 tsp. salt
2 cups chicken stock (or 2 bouillon cubes and 2 cups boiling water)
1 cup white wine, if desired
1/4 cup raisins
3 cups diced cooked chicken
1/4 lb. toasted almonds

Mince onions, green pepper, garlic and parsley. Cook slowly in butter until quite soft. Add tomato or chili sauce, salt, chicken broth, wine and raisins. Simmer 10 minutes. Add chicken and simmer 20 minutes more. Serve in center of baked rice ring and sprinkle with almonds.

Rice Ring

1 cup rice
2 lbs. butter
2 ounces grated Parmesan style cheese
1 tsp. sugar
2 eggs, well beaten

Boil rice in salted water until tender, drain. Add butter, cheese, sugar and well beaten eggs. Pack into buttered ring mold and bake in a moderately hot oven until set and lightly browned. Turn out onto hot dish, pour chicken and sauce in the center. Sprinkle with toasted almonds.

Two Middle American recipes offer interesting ways of stretching 1 1/2 cups of meat to serve four—a trick well worth knowing right now. The "Mexican Specialty" is a brilliantly colorful and easily prepared one-dish meal.

The other recipe, "Spanish Shepherd's Pie," is a foreign version of a similar American dish. But whereas we make our Shepherd's Pie in a casserole with mashed potatoes piled on top, Mexicans press the potatoes into a pie plate, something like a graham cracker crust. Gravies are seldom used by these Spanish Americans, but a little tomato sauce made by simmering crushed tomatoes with spices in a little garlic flavored fat takes the place of gravy.

Mexican Specialty

3 fresh tomatoes
1 onion
1 green pepper
1 tbs. fat
1/2 tbs. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 cups diced cooked pork or veal
1 cup stock or 1 bouillon cube and 1 cup hot water
2 cups cut corn, cooked
2 cups string beans, cooked

Mash tomatoes thoroughly with fork and grate onion, or put both through the grinder. Add green pepper finely chopped. Melt fat in skillet, add the tomato mixture and seasonings. Simmer 15 minutes. Add the diced meat and the stock, simmer gently, uncovered, for one hour.

At serving time, pile meat along center of platter and arrange corn on one side and string beans on the other, or surround the meat mixture with alternate piles of string beans and corn.

Spanish Shepherd's Pie
(Serves 4)

6 medium sized potatoes
2 tbs. milk
2 tbs. butter
1 1/2 cups sliced onion
2 tbs. fat
2 canned pimentos, cut in strips
1/2 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 cups diced cooked meat
1/2 cup gravy or tomato sauce

Boil potatoes in salted water, drain and mash with milk and butter, adding additional seasoning if liked. Reserve for "pie crust." Melt fat, add onions and fry gently until soft and yellowed. Add pimentos, seasonings, meat and gravy or tomato sauce and simmer for 10 minutes.

Line a pie plate with half the mashed potatoes, fill with the hot meat mixture and cover with the remaining potato. Brush with milk or beaten egg and brown in a hot oven, 450 degrees.

Tomato Sauce

1 tbs. butter or lard
1 or 2 cloves garlic
1 green pepper, minced
2 1/2 cups tomatoes, canned or fresh
1 two-inch piece stick cinnamon
4 peppercorns
4 cloves
3 bayleaves
2 lbs. sugar
1 1/2 tsp. salt

Fry garlic in fat until brown, then discard. Scald, skin and mash tomatoes if fresh, then measure. Add tomatoes and green pepper to hot garlic flavored fat. Add seasonings and simmer uncovered until sauce thickens to desired consistency, about 45 minutes.

Quentin Evans Holds Opponents to One Hit in Five Innings

By DOLORES RIELLY

The Navy Pre-Flight Seahawks slugged their way to a 14-2 triumph over the Iowa Manufacturing nine of Cedar Rapids in a late afternoon game here yesterday. Starting on the mound for the navy was Quentin Evans, southpaw, who allowed the visitors a lone hit in his five innings of action. Don Lenstch, newcomer to the Seahawks squad, took over in the sixth and gave up only two singles.

The pre-flighters scored the first run of the game in the first inning and came through in the second frame with a six-run splurge, adding two more in the third, four in the fourth and a final tally in the eighth. Don O'Brien's homer in the third inning drove in Bob Roese for the Manufacturer's two scores.

ILLUSTRATION OF A HAND-TO-HAND THEORY

"THE ACTION IS QUICKER than the reaction" is a theory used widely in the teaching of hand-to-hand combat. In the above picture Wesley Brown of the Navy Pre-Flight school demonstrate how a man may disarm or at least spoil the aim of a person pointing a gun before the latter is able to pull the trigger. Here the gun is loaded with a blank cartridge and cotton to show more clearly the deflection of the shot. Another more commonly known illustration of this idea is the "parlor" trick in which one person holds a coin in the palm of his hand and another person, holding his palm upward also, about six or seven inches above the first person's hand, is able to turn his hand and snatch the coin before the first closes his fingers over the coin.

All cadets of the pre-flight school are required to take two weeks' training in hand-to-hand combat techniques to prepare them for possible future emergencies. Lieutenant Brown, head of the hand-to-hand department of the school, will discuss the action versus reaction theory on the weekly "Navy Time" program next Thursday over radio station WSUI.

Derringer Hurls His Third Straight Win, Season's Fifth Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, self-designated stumbling blocks in the St. Louis Cardinals' plans for a repeat title, humbled the worlds champions for the third straight time within a week and reduced the Redbirds' league lead to a sheer half-game as they converted Paul Derringer's six-hit pitching into a 5 to 2 victory yesterday.

A three-run sixth inning, in which they clustered three of their eight hits off Howie Pollet and in which Louie Novikoff hit the key double to break a four-game slump gave the Cubs their seventh victory over the Redbirds in 12 meetings this year. Derringer, turning in his third straight winning start in ten days for his season's fifth victory, finished with a flourish, retiring the last 13 batters in succession after Stan Musial was nipped by Catcher Clyde McCullough trying to steal third base for the second out in the fifth inning.

Chubby Dean Permits Two Runs in 9th To Give White Sox 3-2 Win Over Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP)—After giving only four blows in eight innings, lefty Chubby Dean permitted two Chicago runs in the ninth and the White Sox won a 3 to 2 victory over the Indians in Cleveland stadium yesterday.

Dean seemed assured of a 2-1 win over lefty Thornton Lee, always Mr. Poison to the tribe, when Wally Moses got a single to right, and made second as the ball bounced off Roy Cullenbine's glove for an error. Thurman Tucker's sacrifice bunt Moses to third and brought up Guy Curtright for his fourth and last chance to extend his consecutive game hitting streak to 22. Curtright bounced a single between third and shortstop to tally Moses. Curtright was an easy second out when he tried to steal second on a pitchout, but Dean walked Luke Appling and Jim Grant. Don Kolloway beat out a grounder to clog the sacks and Chubby then walked Joe Kuhel to force across the winning run and knot the series at one apiece.

Browns Take Triumph Over Tigers, 6 to 3

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Don Gutteridge and Mike Kreevich, two of the weakest of the weak-batting St. Louis Browns, came through with three hits apiece yesterday to lead the way in a 6 to 3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Gutteridge, who apparently has emerged from an extended slump, slammed out three doubles, one in each of the Browns' two-run scoring innings. Kreevich hit a double and a single.

The Tigers threw a scare into the Browns in the ninth inning when they loaded the bases and Hank Oana, their newly acquired, slugging pitcher, pinch-hit and doubled two runs across the plate.

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Francisco (Pancho) Segura, as he had said he would be, yesterday was a better tennis player than he was Friday—when he was sensational. Consequently he had little trouble in beating Tom Brown Jr. of California to become the singles champion of the 59th National Collegiate Athletic association tournament. The scores were 6-2, 6-1, 6-3, and do not record that Brown himself was an excellent and game performer yesterday — but not nearly good enough. Colorful little Pancho, who came to the United States two years ago from his native Ecuador and now attends the University of Miami, won this championship match yesterday as he had all his other four contests in this six day meet—in straight sets. And in all of them his opponent never won more than three games. Segura was that much better than the others in the meet.

Best Seller Is Surprise Victor Of $10,000 Added Equipoise

CHICAGO (AP)—Best Seller, at odds of 18 to 1, charged across the finish line a surprise winner of Arlington park's $10,000 added Equipoise mile at Washington park with Whirlaway, 6 to 5 favorite, struggling back to fifth place, never a factor in the race.

Thumbs Up was second, a head back of Best Seller, which raced to victory in the stake for the second consecutive year and Some Chance, another outsider, was third. Rounders, the Irish-bred colt, was fourth, three lengths back of Some Chance.

The crowd of 15,000 was in a turmoil as Whirlaway, all-time world's leading money winner, failed dismally, proving again that a mile is hardly his best distance. Thus Whirlaway failed to add a penny to his record earnings of $561,161. It was his second start and defeat this season, having finished third in his start as a five-year-old last Tuesday. Whirlay appeared to be slightly sore as he was led off the track.

Best Seller, owned by J. W. Galbreath and R. J. Dienst of Columbus, Ohio, was ignored in the betting. He paid $38.20, $13.60 and $10.60. Thumbs Up returned $7.80 and $5.40 and show price on Some Chance was $13.40. The winner pocketed $9,800 as he ran to his fourth success in 10 starts this season. He covered the mile in 1:37.

Whirlaway went to the post favorite, even though it was generally conceded before the race that he was in a tough spot. He carried top weight of 126 pounds. Best Seller toted 113, most of it in the shape and form of jockey Freddie Smith.

75 College Golfers Enter N.C.A.A. Meet In Chicago Tomorrow

CHICAGO (AP) — The names of 75 college golfers from 21 schools and universities were chalked up on the Olympia fields Country club's big scoreboard yesterday as many of the players toured the course tuning up for the National Collegiate Athletic association meet which opens tomorrow.

Because of various war-time difficulties, the tournament will be held only three days instead of the customary six, but the field is considered nearly as good as those of other years. The individual champion will be determined on a match play basis, starting tomorrow afternoon after 18 holes of qualifying tomorrow morning.

The team championship will be settled tomorrow afternoon over 36 holes. Players qualifying for match competition who still want to represent their schools in the team action will play their first round matches under medal play rules and will continue through 36 holes even though their match might end on the 15th or 16th hole. The University of Michigan, Big Ten team champion, will have nine players on the course, including the conference's co-champion, Ben Smith, who tied with Minnesota's Jim Teale for the title a month ago. Teale will be part of a seven-man squad from Minnesota.

New Iowa City USO Director Arrives Here From New York

Recently arrived from the USO school in New York is R. C. Tomlinson, director of the USO program that is soon to be established in Iowa City. "It is very appropriate that the first USO program to be set up and maintained entirely for men in the armed services in training on a university campus be established in Iowa City," Tomlinson stated.

Tomlinson will spend a few days making a survey of the city and the needs and facilities within the community. Actual planning of the USO program will get underway next week.

"In the short time that I have been in Iowa City, I have been much impressed with the work which has been done by the many organizations and individuals who have been giving their time and effort in providing recreational and social programs for men based in this community. I hope that the programs now in operation will continue to function in the same efficient manner, and I am sure that their contribution will be an essential part of the USO program," he remarked.

A graduate of DePauw university at Greencastle, Ind., Tomlinson too kgraduate work here at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. He was head of the speech and dramatics department at Lake Forest college in Lake Forest, Ill., and later was stationed with the USO in Madison.

During World War I, Tomlinson served with the American ambulance service in the French army. He is now married and has two children. His son is serving in the army anti-tank service.

Dwight W. Edwards, secretary of the USO council of Johnson county, stated: "The USO committee of Johnson county is indeed fortunate to have a man of Mr. Tomlinson's ability and training assigned to this community as director of our USO program. We feel confident that under his leadership the program will be one of the most outstanding in the country."

months ago and declared that the task of neutralizing the Ruhr was nearing completion.

The observer, who could not be identified by name, said that even the most concentrated anti-aircraft and fighter defenses the Nazis were able to muster had failed to check the onslaught, capped by the destruction of nearly 100 German fighters in the last two daylight raids by American Flying Fortresses and Friday night's telling punch by the RAF.

Haze of Smoke
 The customary haze of smoke from the Ruhr's armament factories was reported to have thinned out appreciably in recent weeks and at some points to have disappeared entirely.

The pounding of Europe apparently continued through the day. Southeast coast observers reported a large formation of Fortresses returning from northern France, and from the English cliff tops bomb bursts had been observed in the vicinity of Cap Gris Nez.

One Thunderbolt of an American squadron was seen returning with what appeared to be an anti-aircraft hole in its wing but it was under perfect control.

Core of Production
 In last night's attack the British smashed through swarms of Nazi fighters to strike at the core of the valley's coal and steel production. It was the seventh straight night that the RAF poured flaming destruction on Hitler's war plants, and the cost was 30 big bombers. Pilots said they dropped their loads on assigned targets despite the intense opposition and poor weather conditions. There was a definite feeling here, supported by Paul Joseph Goebbels' own propagandists, that the ruin now has been spread over such a huge area of the Ruhr that traffic and utilities are disrupted, morale seriously disturbed and production definitely impaired.

Smaller Towns
 Recent massive raids have not been directed at the main centers of the Ruhr, such as Essen, Dueseldorf and Dortmund, but at smaller towns on the perimeter of the great arsenal area. One commentator said it could be assumed that the larger cities had received a "sufficient dose" for the moment and that the experiment is to see whether Germany could be bombed from the war was approaching its climax.

Friday night's RAF attack came as a thundering follow-up to Friday's pounding of unspecified targets in northwestern Germany by American heavyweights, estimated by the Germans to number 200. The Nazis seized on a week to cut loose with bitter new tirades in which they called American airmen cultural vandals and military barbarians.

Goebbels Rages
 Goebbels raged in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press: "The Americans destroy towns of the European continent with their cultural institutions of which there are no equals in Chicago or San Francisco. What they cannot buy of European art and culture shall become victim of their terror bombers.

"Humanity should blush in shame that, say, a 20-year-old American, Canadian or Australian terror flier can and is allowed to destroy a picture by Duerer or Titian."

color in this country, attempting aggressive action to elbow its way to complete economic and social justice in the midst of war, would run into the same thing which the radical Negro movement has encountered.

For instance, the white-collar workers have suffered great economic setbacks from the war. Their taxes and prices have risen tremendously out of all comparison with their increase in wages.

But if they attempted to get their rights during war by a march on Washington, or by Mahatma Gandhi's sit-down tactics, or by shoving people off the sidewalks or organizing belligerent meetings to demand that the president act in such and such a way—in short, if they conducted themselves in a physically aggressive manner, they would run into the same physical opposition.

Any minority group of any color, in any country in the world during war, would encounter the same spirit. Consider what would happen, for instance, to a pacifist group, radical members of which made revolutionary speeches for their rights.

It must be apparent, therefore, that the solution of these racial difficulties is not going to be found if the counsel of the radicals on both sides and their hoodlums is followed. A temperate course is demanded not only by one side but by both.

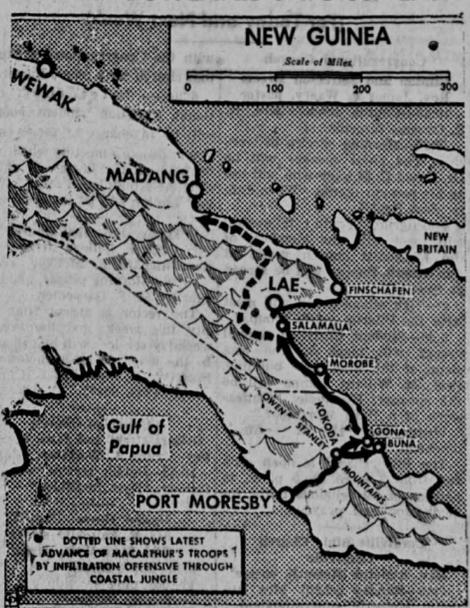

Such a course can be directed only by active temperate leadership of Negroes by Negroes and of whites by whites. Wiser counsels must be made to prevail on both sides—not just one.

BEE TROUBLE SHOOTER EXAMINES HIVES

Local Man—

Has Raised Bees 45 Years

—Now Owns 46 Swarms

By W. J. KERRIGAN

David Boot has been raising bees these last 45 years.

"One day last summer," he related, "a man drove into my place at 419 Park road and sat down on the sidewalk outside. He hunched over with his chin on his hand, and looked as if he hadn't a friend in the world. An unhappy man you wouldn't want to see."

"What's the matter? I asked him, opening the door of our screened porch.

"I have bees in my chimney," the man confessed.

So Boot climbed into the man's car and drove with him to the man's home, and was shown the location of the bees.

"But what had he done?" asked Boot. "Instead of building a fire under them, a procedure that would have routed them in a hurry, he had hoisted ladders to the top of the chimney and removed the bricks one by one."

He still hadn't reached the bees. Boot dug into the chimney with hoes and other tools and removed two buckets of honey.

Boot is often called in when people have bee trouble. One night last week a large swarm of Italian bees came slowly in from the west. They acted as if they had flown a long way and were very tired. In front of the waterworks office at the east end of College street they settled on the back end of a car.

The many people standing around simply watched. No one seemed eager to try to cope with the situation. Finally, somebody called the police, who recommended Boot. Boot came with a hive, put several handfuls of bees into it, then waited while the rest followed by the thousands like sheep. No one got stung—except perhaps Boot, who is inoculated against the bee poison, formic acid, after a few stings each spring.

Then the stings "don't bother me any more than mosquito bites," he said. Apparently, mosquitoes bother him not at all, for they seem more numerous and more formidable in the region of his hives than the bees themselves.

Taught by Father
Boot as a child learned the handling of bees from his father. The knowledge takes time to acquire. Hence his consternation when one woman, who had a swarm in her house, insisted on a lesson in bee raising so that she could remove them and take care of them.

"I told her that raising bees is as hard to learn as rearing children," Boot said. "But she wouldn't let me come and help her get them out of the house. Well, several months later I saw her and asked her how the bees were coming along. She said she had given it up. She didn't get the bees, I know," he said. "The bees got her."

Boot has six swarms at home, and 40 at the Charles Showers farm not far from his house.

Kill Queens
Last week three swarms formed at once and got mixed up into a mass about the size of a half bushel. Bees, Boot explained, will not accept a queen which belongs to another hive. Indeed, they undertake to kill her—but not by stinging. Queens, he added as a sidelight, do not have a barbed sting as do the workers. Hence, they can use it again and again as a stiletto, and do not lose it. But they never sting a person, and use their weapon only when they get into a fight with another queen.

Then he went on to explain how workers fight the queen of another hive.

"As I was saying, they do not sting her. One bee after another encircles her neck, so to speak, with its front legs, until you have what is known as a 'ball.' This is known as 'balling the queen.' They do not strangle her, but take turns holding her to let her die of hunger and thirst."

When Boot's three swarms became confused into the half-bushel mass, he found bees balling the three queens. Finally he settled two hives, and substituted a new queen from an unopened queen cell in another hive for the dead one.

Queens in one mating, he says, accumulate spermatophores for the fertilizing of a year's egg-laying. By fertilizing or not fertilizing eggs as they issue from the oviduct, the queen determines the sex and status of her offspring. (Workers are unfertilized, undeveloped females, and are thus produced by parthenogenesis. Drones are males.) In this regard, the bee is probably unique in the animal kingdom.

Refuses Advice

One student of bee raising under Boot's tutelage refused Boot's advice about wearing a bee mantle and tying the bottoms of one's trouser legs. As a consequence, the bees gave him such agony that he was rescued by his teacher from butting his head in desperation against a cherry tree.

Boot has many such stories to tell. And he keeps saying, "It's as hard to raise bees as it is to rear children." We are perfectly willing to believe him.

The national bee picture is not a pretty one. Many people who know less about bees than can be learned in one of Boot's half-hour lessons are ordering will bees and bee equipment in order that they may cash in on the sugar shortage.

As a result of that, and of war shortages, the A. I. Root company of Ohio, big midwestern dealer in bees and bee-keeping apparatus, is turning down orders. Poetically enough, it is doing war work now on shell casings.

In the meantime, national experience is probably showing that (if by this time Boot's adage must suffer a war-change) bee-keepers are indeed as hard to rear as children.

A VICTORY GARDEN — IN THE SKY

THE FACT she lives in a lofty Hollywood apartment house did not cramp Film Actress Julie Bishop's style when she decided to have a victory garden. Julie, pictured here with a section of her garden, grows carrots, beets, lettuce and radishes in window boxes and nursery flats on the roof of the apartment house.
