

Religion Forces Have Answer to Question Of How to Stop War

Forces of religion feel that they possess the only adequate and ultimate answer to the question of how to stop war, according to Prof. M. Willard Lampe, head of the school of religion.

"This seems clear to them when certain fundamental problems are squarely faced: the fundamental political problem, fundamental economic problem, fundamental social problem and an underlying human problem of subordination of faith and hope," Professor Lampe said. The political problem, he explained, is that of subordinating the loyalties of nationalism to the higher loyalties of a world commonwealth. The religious concept of the kingdom of God and fatherhood of God, as well as universal brotherhood of man, if sincerely held, will help.

"Subordination of the profit motive to a genuine concern for the general welfare is the fundamental economic problem. The religious conception of all property belonging to God and all ownership as being trusteeship, which is in the Jewish and Christian teaching, is a solvent of this problem."

He said the fundamental social problem is subordinating ill will to good will and hate to love.

"The fourth underlying human problem is subordination of utility and frustration to faith and hope. Personal and social morale depends upon this, and the greatest source is religious in character."

Women Who Can Keep Secrets!

Anti-Aircraft Gun Director Builders Prove Old Saw Just A Baseless Untruth

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Central Press Correspondent

HAWTHORNE, Ill.—Who says women can't keep a secret? Not executives of the Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company, whose giant war plant employs women war workers guarding military secrets as zealously as a post-deb does her age.

The old wheeze that women are loose of lip has been whistled away in the winds of war.

A year ago, last month, the Hawthorne plant employed many tackled a man-size job of cable-forming, a task done hitherto solely by men, and thrown it for a clear conquest. Provocative brunette, Irene Sperka, whose brother and sweetheart are in the Army, has proved she is the maid for a man's work.

FORMING A CABLE—Miss Irene Sperka skillfully performs a job heretofore done only by men—forming a cable for a gun director.

Bending over a tilted board, her hands weaving cable that assembled 9,000 cat cradles to this bewildered observer, Irene was but one of dozens of young women assembling the electrical gun director.

The machine controls four 90-millimeter anti-aircraft guns, either with gun crew or by remote control, enabling ack-ack shells to burst at the same point and at the same second an enemy plane arrives in the range which it determines.

Looking up from her task, at which she stands in a half-bent position six days a week, agile Irene admitted:

"It was tough at first. Took me six months just to learn, but I know it is urgent work so that makes up for eye strain and all the bending up and down like a bean-picker. I'll tell you one thing, though, it was a lot easier to keep still about this work than it was to learn it!"

Gymnasium for Giants
Several yards away in the work room that looks like a gymnasium for giants, a woman in a pale blue cotton house frock, white protecting gloves and the eternal feminine of high heels (none of these workers wear coveralls) was soldering. Working on the complex computer unit of the gun director, Mrs. Emily Masalski, whose husband also is a war worker, explained:

"I leave my little daughter with her grandmother so I can do this job, which they tell me is important, because heretofore it has always been done by men. I get a real kick out of thinking of the boys who will use this equipment. Jimmy Doolittle had our radios with him over Tokyo, radios assembled by women here at Western."

The intense pride that feathered across her face as she spoke runs like a driving current throughout the plant. Whether on day or night shift—which they alternate every six weeks—these women have an attendance record remarkably low on absenteeism, the No. 1 evil in war work. Why is this?

The answer, according to Catherine O'Connor, a woman super-

They Know War

"Because every one of these girls in this section has a husband or sweetheart or brother in the service. That brings the war to their fingertips. They know soldiers are relying on them for work well done, work uninterrupted. That is why I often have to force girls to go home when they are feeling ill. They would never stay there of their own volition."

Urgency stamping their expressions, the girls of whom she spoke were seated in long lines, peering through microscopes like scores of scientists. High precision work under high pressure.

A matronly, silver-haired woman supervisor, Della McCluskey, is the boss and Beatrice Fairfax of the department, getting the girls to give their best effort, providing a sympathetic ear for troubled workers in troubled times.

She worked in the same department one war ago, but she will tell you that conditions then cannot be compared to those of today when women, masses of them, have proven themselves superior to men at assembly work requiring supple fingers, at co-operatively using safety devices which plants have provided for workers' protection, and in caring for precious property which might be damaged by the slightest jar.

But most outstanding is the side-light that takes the spotlight—women can keep secrets, through days and months and years when they know lives depend upon that keeping.

CAN THE SAFE WAY

CANNING ACCIDENTS have recently come to the front in the conversational topics of homemakers. Possibly the chief reason for these casualties is a lack of information on particular phases of canning. Before attempting a new method read up on the ins and outs of your specific type of food preservation. Today it's not only a privilege to preserve foods, but a patriotic duty. The greatest home-glassing season is here, spurred on by victory gardens and point rationing. Millions of glass jars, many of which formerly held coffee, are being used to keep home products fresh for many months.

GARNISHES COME TO THE FRONT

HERE'S HOW to mislead your guests when your meat supply is running a little low. Spiced pears poached in white wine, pictured above, make one pound of pork sausages seem an elegant entree for a summer company meal. Especially on warm summer days it's important to serve food attractively to encourage lagging appetites. Broiled peaches with broiled sausages and fried pineapple with pork chops are also tasty combinations. Don't be afraid to use initiative and originality in planning summer menus.

Meat rationing has given garnishes a major place on modern menus. Traditionally these platter accessories are used to accent the flavor of the entree and to add color and appetite appeal to the platter. They still serve these important purposes these days, but they are likely to be satisfying services in themselves too. Modern garnishes are larger and they share equal honors with the meat service.

Making the most of the garnish and planning it as an essential part of the meal is one of the cleverest wartime devices housewives are using for making a small amount of meat serve adequately.

Simple to Prepare
This garnish is simple to prepare too, and it's not extravagant despite the distinguished flavor finish that the wine lends to the fruits. For fine white table wines are available everywhere at modest prices to heighten the flavor of cooked foods and to add to the enjoyment of the simplest dinner. Guests always feel greatly honored when wine is served at the table. This recipe uses only one cup of wine, leaving the rest of the wine for table service. Any glass will do, but the delicate flavor and bouquet of white wines are best served slightly chilled.

Spiced Pears, White Wine
6 fresh pears, peeled and cut in half
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 cup white table wine
12 whole cloves
1/2 lemon, sliced thin
2 inches stick cinnamon
Combine sugar, water and the wine. Add the pears and simmer slowly for about 15 minutes. Add the spices and the lemon slices and continue cooking until the pears are tender. Chill and serve as an accompaniment to the meat course.

Alums Asked to Apply For Pharmacy Corps
University of Iowa pharmacy alumni now in the army are advised by Dean R. A. Kuever to make application at once for admission into the newly-created pharmacy corps.

In the current issue of the College of Pharmacy News, the dean said that the pharmacy corps bill, passed by congress, has been signed by President Roosevelt and therefore becomes law.

"This successfully concludes a long effort on the part of the pharmacy profession to gain due recognition in the army, but the organization of the corps probably will take some time," Dean Kuever said.

He estimates that about 150 alumni and former students of the college of pharmacy now are serving in the armed forces.

Larger than Italy and Germany combined, the Balkan countries had a pre-war population of more than fifty million.

Registrar Announces Schedule for 1943-44

The major dates for the academic year of 1943-44 and for the summer of 1944 have been announced by Registrar Harry G. Barnes.

The first semester opens Sept. 2 and closes Dec. 22 in the colleges of commerce, dentistry, education, engineering, law, liberal arts, pharmacy and the graduate college.

Dates of the second semester are Jan. 3 to April 22 in these colleges, he announced. Degree-awarding ceremonies are scheduled for Dec. 22 and April 23.

Beginning freshman classes will enter the colleges of dentistry and medicine Jan. 3, but no date has been set for the beginning class in the school of nursing.

The summer semester of 1944 will run from April 24 to Aug. 4, while the regular eight-week teaching term of the summer semester will open June 12 and end Aug. 4. For graduate students only, the independent study unit is from Aug. 7 to 25.

Two Nuns Initiated Into Iota Sigma Pi

Sister M. Carolanne of Clarke college, Dubuque, and Sister M. Marguerite Christine of Mundelein college, Chicago, were initiated into Iota Sigma Pi honorary chemistry society for women yesterday.

The ceremony took place in the river room of the Iowa Union.

Area, Language Study To Be Taught Cadets

Area and foreign language study which is designed to fit them for service in occupied nations of the future will be started by more than 200 army cadets at the University of Iowa Aug. 9.

Dean Harry K. Newburn of the college of liberal arts, coordinator of the army specialized training program, said that most of the cadets will be mature students. They will have a minimum of 29 classroom hours per week.

"They must have aptitude or background in foreign languages and have displayed aptitude in practical government work. The men come to the university from 'star' units set up by the army, where they have undergone examinations as to their background, aptitudes and interests," Dean Newburn said.

German, Italian and Czechoslovakian are among the languages to be taught. Qualified German teachers already are at the university in the German department, but additional instructors for other sections of the language program must be brought in.

Local Country Club Schedules Two Days For Special Events

Members of the Iowa City country club have designated two days for special events interesting men and women golfers. Men's day will be today and the ladies will have a morning of golf tomorrow.

A nine-hole tournament for the men will begin at 4 o'clock this afternoon. To winners of the June handicap, trophies will be awarded at a 7:30 dinner. E. J. Downey is in charge of arrangements for Men's day.

Activities for the ladies will begin at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning with golfing. Mrs. Jules Kasper will be hostess at the noon luncheon. Women planning to attend should make reservations at the clubhouse or with Mrs. Kasper, 6973, by tonight. Permanent reservations have been cancelled because of a change in managers.

Among Iowa City People

Mrs. Frank Fryauf Jr., 1025 N. Summit street, left yesterday for Chicago to surprise her daughter, Arlene, on the occasion of her birthday. Miss Fryauf is employed by the Western Electric company there. Mrs. Fryauf plans to return to Iowa City Monday.

Mrs. Roy C. Flickinger, 301 N. Capitol street, will spend the weekend in Rock Island, Ill., in the home of Mrs. Georgia First. Mrs. Myrtle Davies of New York is also a guest of Mrs. First this summer.

Mrs. B. J. Belger, 404 Johnson street, left Tuesday for Chicago, where she will visit a college friend, Mary Marquand of Oak Park, Ill.

Donald Seavy, 521 N. Linn street, who will receive his M.A. degree at the July 30 Convocation, will have several guests this weekend. His wife and daughter, who live in Decorah, and his mother, who resides in Riceville, will be present at the ceremony.

When Prof. and Mrs. O. C. Irwin, 909 E. Burlington street, move to their new address, 529 Brown street, Monday, Prof. and Mrs. Austin Warren, 308 N. Linn street, will move to the house now occupied by the Irwins.

Victory Menu Adapt Garden Gifts To Meal Time

From garden to table with a clever touch in between can mean a colorful as well as low-ration-point meal for any housewife. All the fresh fruits and vegetables on the market right now should make your dinner a joy to prepare and a pleasure to eat. This week's menu concentrates on just such fresh foods.

- Four for Dinner
Devised Veal Chops
Corn on the cob
Enriched bread
Cherry butter
Sparkling fruit salad mold
Tea or Coffee (hot or iced)
- Devised Veal Chops
4 thick rib veal chops
4 tbs. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 tsp. celery salt
1/4 tsp. dry mustard
3 tbs. bacon fat
4 slices tomato
- Wipe off chops with damp cloth. Mix together in paper sack, flour, seasonings and mustard. Add chops and coat them with this mixture. Brown chops on both sides in fat heated in frying pan. Cover and cook 10 minutes over low heat.
- Top with tomatoes, brush them with melted fat or some of the drippings in the frying pan. Broil 5 minutes, or until brown. Carefully turn tomatoes and brown the other side.

- Corn on the Cob
2 qts. water
8 ears fresh corn
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. paprika

Carefully remove husks and silk from corn. Chill until ready to cook. Add to boiling water. Cover and boil gently 15 minutes, add salt and paprika and boil 2 minutes. Quickly remove corn from water. Serve hot wrapped in napkin. Never allow corn to remain in water after it is cooked or it will become water-soaked and tasteless.

- Sparkling Fruit Salad Mold
1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup boiling water or fruit juice
2/3 cup gingerale
1/2 cup diced peaches, fresh
1/2 cup diced pears, fresh
1/2 cup cubed melon
1 tbs. lemon juice
1/2 cup cottage cheese

Dissolve gelatin in water. Cool and chill until partly thick. Stir in gingerale, fruits, melon and juice. Chill until nearly stiff and pour over cheese placed in shallow mold rinsed out of cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold and top with mayonnaise.

Cubs Win Doubleheader from Dodgers

Dump Bums Into 3rd Place

Lefty Ostermueller Fractures Ankle Sliding to 3rd Base

CHICAGO (AP)—The climbing Chicago Cubs clouted the Brooklyn Dodgers in both ends of a doubleheader yesterday and dumped the Bums into third place in the National league, at least temporarily.

The Cubs outlasted half a dozen elbows in the first game to take an 8 to 7 verdict when Stu Martin singled home the winning run in the 11th. Young Hank Wyse turned in a steady seven-hitter for a 4 to 2 win in the nightcap, his fifth victory in a row.

Brooklyn not only lost both games yesterday, but also the services of Lefty Fritz Ostermueller, who fractured his left ankle in the first game. The 35-year-old southpaw, who came to Brooklyn from the St. Louis Browns in the Bobo Newsom deal, suffered the injury sliding into third base in the seventh inning.

The Dodgers took a 4-0 lead in the first game, but blew it when the Cubs came back with a five-run spree in the fifth.

A big three-run seventh inning gave the Cubs the second game, after Brooklyn again went out to an early lead.

Phillies' President Apologizes to Harris After 24 Players Present Signed Petition

ST. LOUIS (AP)—William D. Cox, president of the Philadelphia Phillies baseball club, last night apologized to Bucky Harris "because of an unfortunate incident relative to the release of a story of your leaving" the ball club, after 24 players presented Cox with a signed ultimatum that they would strike unless Cox reinstated Harris as manager and gave him a chance to resign.

The petition, signed by 24 players, was withdrawn after a clubhouse incident in which Harris told the players that Cox's statement "is good enough for me." Cox told Harris in front of the squad that the ouster "is not intended to reflect in any way on your ability as a baseball manager."

The petition asserted the players' belief that Cox should have taken up personally with Harris any differences about the management of the club and should have given Harris a chance to resign. "We feel that because of his background and experience... he is entitled to just that decency."

Harris and the new Phillie manager, Fred Fitzsimmons, talked outside the clubhouse while the players rebelled against Cox.

Then Cox and his attorney, Charles Grimes, conferred outside with Harris, after which followed the clubhouse apology by Cox.

Harris said "I feel that they (the players) have vindicated any charges against me as a baseball manager. Their sentiments are good enough for me. The stand they have taken in my behalf flatters me no little."

He told the players to give their best to Fitzsimmons and the clubhouse rebellion was over. The players' statement had declared that "no matter whom Mr. Cox should choose to manage us, we would all give him our wholehearted support to win" if Harris were given a chance to quit.

Boston Sweeps Double Bill From Tigers

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox made their war relief fund baseball show both an artistic and financial success by sweeping a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers, by 4-1 and 6-4 margins, yesterday before an 18,032 crowd.

Lefty Oscar Judd, reaching his 1943 peak, held the Tigers to five hits while gaining his 19th win during the opener.

Hal White appeared to be coasting along on a 4-2 lead until he passed two Boston batters in the eighth inning of the second game. He then was relieved by Johnny Gorsica and, with two out, Tabor singled, Bobby Doerr doubled and Pete Fox hit safely to pull the game out of the fire for Dick Newsom, who had been yanked with none out in the first half of the eighth.

Hawks Go Through Second Scrimmage Of Summer Practice

The Hawkeyes had their second scrimmage of the summer practice session last night and, according to Coach Slip Madigan, they showed a big improvement in their teamwork.

The Iowa mentor said that in the hour's scrimmage workout the men presented better execution of plays and held together better in their line work than they did in last week's session.

In the material he now has on hand, Madigan believes he has two full teams and hopes to have two more in the candidates who will report in the fall.

Seahawks Lose to Officers, 4-2

Gold Braids Score First

Verne Thompson hurled the officers of the Navy Pre-Flight school here to a 4 to 2 win over the cadet-sailor Seahawks yesterday afternoon in a fight-to-the-finish game that ended up worst matters between the two.

The gold braids led the scoring in the first half of the second frame when Bradford tallied as a result of two miscues and V. Thompson did the same thing in the third.

Then the Seahawks took their turn at claiming an unearned run in their half of the same inning when the officers committed their only two errors of the game. In Trucks, p. 2 0 1 0 1 0 0 0 0

In the sixth inning, the officers retaliated as Kruger led off with a single and was advanced to second when Banonis took first on a second baseman's error and finally scored when C. Thompson contacted a single. The last tally of the game was made by Johnson in the eighth.

Losing pitcher in yesterday's tilt was Art Maley, who relieved Roy Stevens at the beginning of the sixth inning.

The Seahawks are now minus catcher Bill Welp, long distance swatter who has left the pre-flight school for officers' indoctrination school following his induction as an ensign, and hurler-outfielder "Lefty" Evans, who completed his training here this week and is on his way to flight training base.

The pre-flighters hit the road again this weekend for a tilt with the Ordnance Steel Foundry of Bettendorf at Davenport Saturday night and the Iowa Ordnance team at Burlington Sunday afternoon.

A.S.T.P. Engineers Defeat Complete Auto

The company B softball team of the army engineers gained its eighth win in ten games yesterday crushing the Complete Auto squad 15-4. It was the first defeat for the automen who dominate the City softball league with five straight victories.

In registering his eighth win Harold Siebert pitched seven hit ball for the engineers while his teammates were garnering a total of 17. Kelly pitched for the City league leaders but his team did not have the hitting power they usually have in league play.

Art Jowell led the hitting for the winners, getting a homer in the sixth while the Complete Auto squad was paced by centerfielder Shay who tripled in the seventh frame.

It was the third straight victory for company B over City league teams. They have defeated the second place Ia.-Ill. Gas and Electric Co. and George's Buffet which holds third place in the league.

★Someone Oughta Tell ★Manager Southworth ★About His Pitchers

NEW YORK (AP)—Everyone seems to be talking of the dire circumstances of the St. Louis Cardinal pitching staff, and someone should tell Billy Southworth of this plight, as after all if the neighbors notice rabbits nibbling away at a cabbage patch the least they can do is tell the head gardener about it.

So far Billy has given little indication he knows anything is amiss. Except for a casual reference to injuries occasionally. The mound staff itself doesn't seem to be aware of it. The men keep on winning games as if nothing were wrong. Maybe they aren't cabbage heads so can't feel a thing.

Anyway, we don't share this apprehension concerning the Cardinal pitching staff as we have discovered that expecting the departure or indisposition of a few St. Louis hurlers to wreck the club is the same as expecting a blotto to dry up the ocean. The Cards have a barrel of pitchers around and about, and all Billy Southworth needs is a tin cup to dip them out when needed.

Guys like this Alpha Brazle, brought up from Sacramento to stop the Braves in his first start, for instance, even if stopping the Braves of late comes under the heading of unfinished business. It seems to go on and on.

We have an idea this super-numerary situation applies to other positions on the St. Louis club also, and that Southworth has only to pull a string to yank in some capable rookies to fill any spot that might require sudden attention.

We know he couldn't be worrying about shortstop. He has just about the classiest short fielder in the business in Martin Marion, the guy on stilts. Should something happen to Marion there is a kid with a name like a linolyper's nightmare ready to step right in. He is Al "Red" Schoendienst, playing up at Rochester.

Rochester seems to be the cradle of short fielders. Marion himself came from there, and Creepy Crespi also played that position while with the International league club.

Another reason we don't consider the Cards worth any serious worrying is the fact they seem to do their best work late in the season.

Last year they won 66 games and lost only 19 after July 4, and the last time they lost two successive games in 1942 was Aug. 2. They had lost the second game of a doubleheader in 11 innings the day before, and that day Carl Hubbell beat them 7 to 1.

That offers a pretty dreary outlook for the other clubs which are trying to fashion hopes that the Cards will be a wildfere for the most part are the Red Birds for the most part are

Tribe Wins Over Yankees

N.C. Pre-Flight Team Defeats Both Clubs In Exhibition Tilt

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cleveland Indians whipped the New York Yankees, 6 to 2, in the first half of a Red Cross benefit doubleheader yesterday, but the two teams together couldn't beat the Cloudbusters of the North Carolina Navy Pre-Flight school in the exhibition nightcap. The embryo fliers pounded out a 11 to 9 victory.

A crowd of 27,281, lured in part by the appearance of Babe Ruth as manager of the "Yankees," as the hodge-podge major league team was called, paid an estimated $35,000 to see the show.

Ruth, as usual, added his artistic touch to the exhibition contest. Nobody had expected the big guy to do anything but sit on the bench or mince back and forth in the coaching box.

Came the sixth inning and who should roll up to the plate but the ample form of the Bambino, more "kewpie-ish" than ever. He had elected himself to pinch hit for pitcher Ray Poat. He drew a walk after missing the ball once in typical Ruthian style and sending a high foul into the stands back of third. He even decided to run for himself but after logging down to second on a single, changed his mind and hurriedly beckoned for help.

Both Peterson and Louis, 17 years old, are being sent to other colleges for specialized training in the navy and army, respectively.

Six Iowa Sports Letter-Winners To Get Degrees

Academic degrees will be awarded Friday evening to six University of Iowa major letter-winners, four of whom will receive the awards in absentia because they are in the armed forces.

Three of the recipients were swimmers: Clyde Kennitz of Chicago, Ill., sprinter and 1943 captain; bachelor of science; Bob Becker of Clinton, back stroker, bachelor of science; and Vito Lopin, sprinter, bachelor of science.

Others are Jim O'Brien of McGregor, basketball center, bachelor of science; C. Herbert Williams of Des Moines, wrestler, bachelor of science; and Harris Stageberg of Port Arthur, Tex., football guard, bachelor of arts.

Men in the armed forces are Becker, O'Brien, Lopin and Stageberg.

youngful, still below the age when even the thought of going out under a butter-melting sun for an August doubleheader brings on dyspepsia of the legs.

Old age seems to be telling on the Brooklyn Dodgers right now, and if Branch Rickey had access to some of those lads he signed up for the Cardinal future book before he knew where he was going it isn't a wild assumption to think he would have some of them in the Dodger lineup right now.

His Dodgers, incidentally, are being beaten by his own ball club, which in point of fact is St. Louis. It might be a mistake to call the Dodgers Rickey's ball club, at that. It really is Larry MacPhail's ball club. Rickey just inherited it, tax and all. And what a tax it has been on him!

Anyway, we aren't worrying about the Cardinals. They aren't worrying about us, are they?

Phonograph Captures $2,500 Feature Stake

OLD ORCHARD, Me. (AP)—Phonograph, fastest record three-year-old of the season and one of the favorites for the Hambletonian stake, yesterday won the $2,500 stake for the age, feature of the grand circuit program at the Kite track.

The winner, owned by Joseph Burke of Plainfield, N. J., and driven by Tom Berry, outclassed the field and won without being brought to a drive with the Nutcracker the only contender.

Ballet Class Giving Performance Saturday

Mrs. Harriet Walsh Has Turned Children From Tap to Ballet

The recreational center ballet class, under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Walsh, will hold its last meeting of the summer Saturday at 4 p. m.

At this time, Mrs. Walsh says, the recreational center invites the public to view the progress the students have made in their dancing lessons.

The fall session will begin Saturday, Sept. 4, at 4 p. m. Registration may be made with Edgar Frame, director of the recreational center. The classes have been open to Iowa City children from 8 to 12.

At first they insisted on tap dancing, too," says Mrs. Walsh, "and, so, I gave them 20 minutes of tap a day. Now, however, their interest is entirely in the ballet work."

Mrs. Walsh, who studied under such notable Russian masters as Michael Fokine and Ivan Terasoff, is giving the children the teaching of the great ballet masters exactly as she had it from them. She also reads to the pupils articles from dance magazines and books on the ballet by dancing masters, in an attempt to give them a thorough background in the dance.

Service boys also have been taking instructions in ballroom dancing at the recreational center under the instruction of Mrs. Walsh.

William McCrackin, Accused Swindler, Freed on $5,000 Bail

William Ford McCrackin, charged with swindling Mrs. Anna Schick of Cedar Rapids, posted his $5,000 bail yesterday and was released.

McCrackin said that he will go to his home in Toledo, Ohio where he must report to the federal probation officer. Sheriff Preston Koser said last night that McCrackin would probably be tried sometime in October.

The accused has been held in the Johnson county jail since July 8. McCrackin's bond was originally set at $2,500 but upon arraignment before Judge Harold D. Evans the bail was raised to $5,000.

Identified by Mrs. Schick as one of a trio who obtained $5,000 from her under false pretenses Nov. 26, 1940, McCrackin has pleaded not guilty to the charge.

SUI String Quartet Gives 2nd Concert Of Summer Season

By BETTIE ROLSTON

The university string quartet presented the second concert of the summer season last night in the main lounge of Iowa Union. The ensemble was made up of members of the faculty of the music department, Prof. Arnold Small, violin; Gibson Walters, violin; Otto Jelinek, viola, and Prof. Hans Koebel, cello. Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp assisted at the piano.

Selections presented by the ensemble were Quartet in C minor, Opus 35 (Ernst Chausson) and Quintet in A major, Opus 81 (Antonin Dvorak).

Chausson's quartet consisted of three movements, "grave-moderate," "tres calme" and "gaiment et pas trop vite." The first movement was somber with a beautiful tone from both of the violins. Some very effective solo passages were played by Professor Small. His tone was rich and full throughout the whole movement. Much credit should also be given to Professor Koebel for the remarkable undertones achieved by the cello.

The second movement was slow and smooth with the tone of the entire quartet well blended. A small crescendo climaxed this part of the quartet which was followed by drawn out chords of the two violins and cello which softly died into the distance at the end.

A more vigorous mood was portrayed in the third movement with a form of syncopation being used in all the strings at one time and another. The same theme with variations was played by the violins, viola and cello. In comparison with the other two movements this one failed to come to a climax before the whole work was finished. It made one feel that there should be more to come.

Dvorak's quintet characterized the brilliant imagination and rare

CURFEW-

(Continued from page 1) of enforcement of law among the young follow a different track from those of other local officers. She hopes, however, that the curfew will make parents conscious of their responsibilities; and she esteems highly, she says, an adequate recreation program.

According to the testimony of Judge White, in his eight months' sitting on the police bench only one student has been brought before him, and that one on a minor and quite dubious charge. For this, and other, reasons, the university has not made itself a party in the curfew discussion. Officials have merely expressed gratification at the fine record of students.

Censors Put Finger On Prisoner Stories

All newspaper reports of war prisoners must be cleared through Washington. D. C. censors from now on, according to army censors of war news.

This is a modification of the normal procedure, whereby any military public relations official can censor any newspaper publication.

It is no longer considered advisable to mention the location of prisoners of war.

INTERPRETING-

Southward, American forces, at shoulder touch with Canadians on the British left flank, have stormed through half a dozen towns on the Termini-Nicosia highway, with the Canadians pressing in on Agira from the southwest.

The fall of any of the three towns, S. Stefano, Nicosia or Agira, but particularly Nicosia, would crack the center of the axis defense front ringing the inshore base of towering Mt. Etna from Catania to S. Stefano.

General Montgomery's powerful British Eighth army, held up for days south of Catania, is deliberately marking time. It is pinning powerful and highly mobile axis armored forces to that flank by patrol operations, while Patton's lunging American Seventh army storms down the north coast route on a like mission and the American and Canadian troops in the vital center move up to deliver knock-out blows.

At the rate American forces have been pushing forward both along the coast and the inshore Termini-Nicosia lateral, the final test cannot be long delayed and the fate of all axis forces rallied along the inshore slopes of Mt. Etna must soon be decided.

inventive power that the composer had. It was composed in 1887 shortly before Dvorak came to the United States where he later wrote his "New World Symphony," a composition most Americans remember him by. Professor Clapp's brilliant performance on the piano helped to make this the outstanding composition of the evening.

MOVEMENT LIVELY

All four movements of Dvorak's quintet were lively and interesting throughout. The first movement, "allegro, ma non tanto" with a cello solo very well played by Professor Koebel. The second movement "dumka: andante con moto" consisted of about the same tempo and variations as the first. "Scherzo: molto vivace," the third movement, showed a quicker tempo accompanied by tonality and brilliancy of the whole quintet. This was the most enjoyable part of the whole quintet. Again credit must be given to Professor Clapp for his brilliant performance at the piano. However it must be said that without the equally excellent performance of the strings the movement would have failed to achieve its purpose. The finale did not seem like a finale because it lacked the vitality that the other four movements presented.

Air Corps Candidates Run W. L. MacArthur Out of Army Blanks

"Maybe it's romance, maybe it's patriotism, maybe it's just a slight preference that makes men want to join the air corps," said W. L. MacArthur commenting yesterday on the reason for his being temporarily out of blanks for candidates for that branch of service.

A member of the civil air patrol, he is available in Bremer's store for youths between 17 and 26 who wish to enlist in the air corps for pilot, bombardier or navigator training.

MacArthur takes the names and addresses of candidates, explains the process of enlisting in the air corps, and has them fill out registration blanks. These, together with a birth certificate and three letters of character recommendation are notarized and submitted to the examining board in Des Moines.

Preliminary Test
The men are given a preliminary screening test, with particular attention paid to the condition of their eyes and ears. Upon being summoned to Des Moines, they are given formal physical and mental examinations. If they pass them, they receive "qualification papers" which they bring with them to Des Moines if called upon to report by their draft board.

Upon presenting the qualification papers in Des Moines, they are automatically assigned as air cadets.

Thereupon they are sent for a month's basic training, and then to one of the many colleges where they take intensive courses, lasting five or six months, in mathematics, meteorology, navigation and other subjects helpful in aviation.

Final Course
Having passed examinations in this preliminary course, during which they receive $50 a month plus clothing and maintenance, they go on to aviation cadet school for their final course.

Upon passing the final examinations in aviation cadet schools they are second lieutenants or flight officers, with a salary of $291 a month for single men or $325 for those with dependents.

Postoffice Describes New Mail Difficulty

Registered and insured mail for soldiers overseas may be long in reaching the addressee if the sender requires that it be delivered to him in person, the postoffice reports.

Not many such pieces go through the Iowa City mails, Postmaster Walter J. Barrow reports, and it is not the intention of postal authorities to restrict that kind of mail.

As an alternative, the sender may give delivery privileges equally to the addressee and to the mail orderly. Full details are available at the postoffice.

Indicted for Treason

TREASON INDICTMENTS have been returned by a federal grand jury in Washington against eight American citizens who have been engaged in broadcasting enemy propaganda from Germany and Italy. Among those named in the indictments are the two pictured above, Constance Drexel, 48, formerly of Philadelphia, and Edward Delaney, 57, formerly of Olney, Ill. The woman, a former newspaperwoman, has been broadcasting from Germany since 1940 and has been falsely billed as a member of a socially prominent Philadelphia family.

Five Thousand Persons Needed in Iowa To Pack All Sweetcorn, Tomato Crops

DES MOINES (AP)—A calling service office and enroll as a canning factory volunteer, if only for part time work. Plant operators estimate they will be able to recruit all except 700 to 800 workers in the immediate areas in which the factories are located, since canning is essentially a seasonal, home-town industry, manned by local workers. Corn canning operations are expected to get under way about Aug. 8. Each plant's pack is expected to require about five weeks, after which a number of plants will begin the processing of tomatoes. Tomato canning usually continues until the first frost. "I feel that the importance of putting up this corn and tomato crop cannot be overemphasized," Haskell said, "if these products are to be turned into cans of food for our fighting forces, America's allies and civilian needs. It is imperative that the pack be handled quickly to insure against spoilage." Since Iowa's canning plants are centered in 32 counties, they must call on workers from the other 67 counties of the state for help, Haskell asserted. The agricultural extension department is working closely with the war manpower commission in recruiting workers for both field and factory work in connection with food processing. Dan McLaughlin, seaman second class, recently completed his boot training at the navy base in Farago, Idaho. His brother, Jack, is in training with the army air force at Camp Sheridan, Tex.

The present officers of the chapter on the University of Iowa campus are: Hal Beck, C3 of Ottumwa, president; Robert Rigler, A2 of Kennelworth, Ill., vice-president; Roger Ivie, A2 of Iowa City, secretary; Richard Yoakam, J2 of Pittsburgh, Pa., treasurer and corresponding secretary.

Lieut. Newell Forbes is now stationed with the army engineering corps in India. A former student in the college of engineering here, Lieutenant Forbes has been in India for four months. His home is in Walnut.

Local Traffic Lights Will Remain Amber From Midnight to Noon

Another traffic survey after 6 p. m. Saturday night revealed 44 citizens of Iowa City violators of the overtime parking ordinance. Beginning Saturday, a summons will be issued to every violator, Chief Ollie A. White said yesterday.

Beginning Aug. 1, the traffic lights at the four downtown intersections will be used from midnight till noon only as amber flashing signals. Saturday night or any other night when heavy traffic requires full use of signals will be an exception, White says.

The new plan is in line with recommendations of the office of defense transportation, which is seeking to decrease as much as possible all unnecessary starting and stopping, in order to save gas and tires.

The public has been quite cooperative, Chief White declares. He is asking for the further cooperation of the citizens, especially in exercising caution during the time that traffic lights are not operating as stop and go signals.

U. S. Army Engineers To Be Here Today

United States army engineers will be in Iowa City today, tomorrow and Saturday to interview men between the ages of 18 and 55 for army construction work in Alaska.

The positions open are for mechanics (heavy duty diesel, truck, body and fender, auto and tractor); general machinists; mechanical equipment operators (trenching machine, tractor, motor patrol, roller, bulldozer and dragline); truck drivers; oilers; electricians; linemen; steamfitters; plumbers; sheet metal workers; concrete finishers; tire repair men; helpers, laborers and handymen.

Wages range from $1 to $2 an hour for a 56-hour week. Time and one-half is paid for all hours over 40 a week. Transportation will be paid those accepted from the point of hire.
