Allies Capture Salamaua

Savage Battle Rages in Salerno District

Americans Meet Stiff Defense As British Race to Close Trap

By NOLAND NORGAARD
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA (AP)—The most violent battle of the whole Mediterranean campaign raged last night around the American bridgehead at Salerno within 15 miles of Mount Vesuvius, while in extreme southern Italy the British captured Crotona after a 30-mile advance and beat up the Adriatic coast from Brindisi toward Bari.

In a dispatch filed at 6 p. m. (12 noon eastern war time) Reynolds Packard, representing the combined United States press, said that the American Fifth army had pushed forward several miles on the southern sector of the Salerno front and parried a German counter-attack at the center in which the Nazis suffered the heaviest losses they had yet sustained in Italy.

"The allies also consolidated both their northern and southern flanks," the dispatch said.

The Germans were credited with temporarily regaining a portion of the Salerno gulf highway which had changed hands several times, but only at heavy cost. Allied planes and naval guns backed the ground troops.

Both sides were throwing tanks and reinforcements prodigally into the crucial Salerno combat, described in latest frontline dispatches as hotter than any fought in the African or Sicilian campaigns. The combat raged out on its fifth day and both sides had suffered heavy casualties.

The Germans were ensconced in high ground commanding the whole allied bridgehead with their artillery.

The Americans with their British units not only held doggedly to their hard-won bridgehead 20 miles below the great metropolitan of Naples, but managed to push into the mountains. Much fighting was 4,000 feet above the sea. The enemy was pushing reserves toward the battle area despite day and night pummeling from sky-ruling allied air fleets, which were challenged by large German plane formations. Despite the mounting fury of the fight, its climax was not in sight.

LI Gen Mark W. Clark's men encountered stiff tank opposition. The ferocity of the German defense attested to the importance the enemy attached to the battle and suggested that the Nazis were trying to hold open at all costs an escape route for their scattered forces in the southern third of Italy which Gen. Montgomery's army was herding northward at an accelerated pace.

Montgomery's closest elements were 140 miles below Salerno and were racing ahead without even making contact with the enemy. The British appeared intent upon reaching the Salerno area at the earliest possible moment to shut the jaws of a trap clutching at enemy forces between them and the American bridgehead.

At last reports, the Eighth was well north of the bottleneck on the Italian toe between the gulfs of Euboea and Squillace on the west coast.

Another arm swiftly negotiated the 30 miles between Catanzaro and Crotona on the east coast of the toe and captured the fairly important harbor at Crotona intact. Crotona, a town of about 10,000, has chemical works and is an important railway junction. It is 110 miles from the extreme tip of Italy.

At headquarters, it was learned that all enemy troops in the Italian heel south of the Taranto-Brindisi road had been cleared out. Possession of the heel gave the allies many first-class airdromes within short range of the Salerno area. These likewise provided potential bases from which flying fortresses could easily pound all Italy to the Brenner pass, the Ploesti oil fields of Rumania and scores of other inviting targets.

The British moving up the Adriatic coast from Brindisi encountered small German forces including elements of the first parachute division.

Legislative Leaders Urge Draft Showdown As Congress Reopens

Senate Majority Head Wants Armed Forces To State Demands

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON—A quick showdown on the army's manpower needs was urged by legislative leaders last night on the eve of the reconvening of congress after its longest holiday in four years.

With the drafting of fathers shaping up as one of the hottest issues of the impending session, Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky urged that army and navy chieftains be called to tell "what they need, how much they need and why they need it."

His proposal was backed up by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and, in part, by House Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts, who advocated congressional review of the entire manpower problem to "see just what we have and what we need."

"I don't think the public would object to the induction of fathers if the need for them was proven," said Martin.

Rep. Kilday (D-Tex) asserted the manpower review ought to take up the question of the army's size to determine whether its demands for men "are reasonable and necessary." Kilday, however, expressed reluctance to put a congressional ceiling on the strength of the armed forces because it might affect the army's strategy.

With the deadline for the drafting of fathers only three weeks away, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) already has served notice that he will press for immediate action to postpone their induction until Jan. 1.

Barkley, however, expressed hope of obtaining an agreement with Wheeler to put off consideration of the bill until Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U. S. fleet, have had an opportunity to explain the services' reason for taking fathers.

ALLIED AND NAZI GAINS IN ITALY

OPPOSING FORCES in Italy are moving fast to gain advantageous positions for the coming, large-scale battle for that country. The Nazi agency DVB said that troops under Marshal Rommel had seized (1) Genoa, Spezia, Bologna, Verona, Trieste, and Milan. Berlin radio announced the seizure of Rome (2). U. S. and British forces (3) are battling their way inland near Naples. British troops occupied the naval base (4) at Taranto. A Swiss dispatch reported Allied landings at Brindisi (5). Allied Headquarters said that a number of Italian warships had arrived safely at (6) the island of Malta. (International)

Italian Fleet Liquidated

LONDON (AP)—The liquidation of the Italian fleet, which started the war as the world's fifth largest, was all but complete last night, freeing allied naval power from the Mediterranean for action in the Pacific against the Japanese.

The mighty old battleship Giulio Cesare steamed into Malta yesterday to join four other surrendered battleships, leaving only one more unaccounted for. The Roma, one of Italy's newest and largest, was sunk by German planes.

In all, at least 39 Italian warships were in allied ports and naval authorities awaited word of their arrivals from a score of Mediterranean bases.

JAP BASE ON MARCUS IN FLAMES AFTER U. S. RAID

FLAMING FIERCELY, Jap military installations and planes send heavy plumes of smoke into the sky over Marcus Island, only 1,100 miles from Tokyo, as U. S. bombers rain death and destruction on the enemy base in the Pacific during the recent, daring attack. Those columns of smoke (left) are from the burning ruins of seven twin-motored enemy bombers, while the heavier cloud (center) is probably an oil dump. According to a Navy estimate, 80 percent of the military installations on the island were destroyed. Official U. S. Navy photo. (International)

Fate of Fleeing Japanese Forces Sealed; Air Forces Aid in Tightening Pincers on Lae

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday (AP)—The allies have captured Salamaua, New Guinea, two miles above the newly-won airdrome, General MacArthur announced today.

Salamaua, on an isthmus joined to a cape extending into the Huon gulf, has a usable sea anchorage in Samoa harbor.

Eighteen miles above Salamaua, the pincers on Lae was tightened, aided by air blows. Allied bombers, making a roundtrip flight of more than 2,000 miles, heavily bombed the waterfront and barracks at Makassar, Dutch Celebes.

In a night attack, Liberators dropped 27 tons of explosives and incendiaries. Fires raged among buildings and warehouses near the Juliana and Wilhelmina wharves, in an oil storage tank area and in the center of military barracks as well as at the Mandai airdrome. One Liberator failed to return.

Below Salamaua, Japanese divebombers attacked the harbor of allied-held Morobe, New Guinea, but today's communique said the raiders caused only minor damage.

The Japanese abandoned Salamaua, leaving behind much equipment as they fled north. Only one good trail leads from the captured base toward Lae.

But even should they succeed in reaching Lae, their fate apparently is sealed because the entire area from Salamaua to Lae is tightly encircled.

"We have captured Salamaua," the communique said. "Our southern forces are in close pursuit of remnants of the enemy's disintegrating troops."

"Our northeastern and western forces (at Lae) are gradually increasing their pressure. Our heavy bombers in direct support attacked enemy defense installations with 49 tons of explosives, causing extensive damage at Emerys and Diddymans. A bridge on the main valley road was destroyed and several gun batteries silenced."

In the Solomons, American bombers started fires and explosions in a new raid on the isolated Japanese air base of Vila, Kolombangara.

The pattern followed by the allies thus far in their reconquest of New Guinea was disclosed to newsmen today by Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey.

The general traced the pattern of reconquest on a map and stressed that ground forces were covered throughout by superior air power and by amphibious resources at decisive moments.

After the Japanese Papuan army was driven back across the Owen Stanley mountains last fall and destroyed in the Buna sector in January the allied command was faced with the problem of how to strike at Lae, the center of the enemy's bases in northeastern New Guinea.

Salamaua was the enemy-held point nearest to the allied advanced position at Wau, 28 miles to the southwest. The Japanese in Salamaua were always a potential danger to the allied hold on central and southeastern New Guinea.

In the Japanese scheme, however, Salamaua was manned primarily as an outpost of Lae, 18 miles to the northwest.

The allied command began to draw the Japanese out of Lae toward Salamaua where allied forces could come to grips with them. In February the 17th Australian brigade was transported by air just in time to help two outnumbered Australian infantry companies beat back the enemy from the approaches to Wau airdrome.

In March the Japanese sought to reinforce and strengthen Lae by a 22-ship convoy. This convoy was mauled by allied airmen for three days and nights as it moved through the Bismarck sea into Huon gulf where its destruction was completed.

Navy Again Attacks Paramushiro Islands Near Japan Proper

WASHINGTON (AP)—Japan's home ground has again felt the blast of American bombs, with the fourth raid on the Paramushiro islands area at the north end of the island chain which makes up Nippon.

The navy reported that a formation of heavy and medium army bombers battered enemy shipping and ground installations Sept. 13 (Paramushiro time), fighting meanwhile an air battle with upwards of 25 enemy fighter planes and ploughing through heavy anti-aircraft fire.

When the 50-minute engagement was over 10 enemy fighters, and probably three more, had been shot down.

Duce Heads Government

Nazi Announcement Climaxes Description Of Musso's Rescue

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
LONDON, Tuesday (AP)—The Berlin radio said early today that a Fascist national government had been founded in the name of Benito Mussolini and now was under Mussolini's direct command.

This announcement served as a climax to a day-long series of recitations yesterday on the serio-comic thriller—"the rescue and liberation of Benito Mussolini"—which was told, re-told and heavily embroidered by the German radio.

The station had shifted with delight to this subject after weeks of labored explanations of Nazi defeats in Tunisia, Russia, Sicily and Italy.

The Berlin radio said Mussolini had been secure since Sunday in a "big city," which was not identified, but might be Berlin. The broadcast said that Mussolini, "by the orders of Marshal Badoglio, had been refused newspapers and other news sources" and, after sleeping uninterrupted for many hours, began to brush up on the news today.

"The liberators took Il Duce to the nearest German airfield," it was said, and moved him to the city.

The broadcast reported that, after preliminaries, Mussolini would form a new Fascist government in Germany.

With glee the Berlin script writers told how daredevil German parachute troopers and elite guards had scooped the Duce out from under the noses of his captors, saved him from being a lowly "paw" of the British, Americans, and Badoglio government and set him on the road again to lead his nation back to axis loyalty.

But the crowning feature of the story as contrived in Berlin was that kidnapping was made possible through the personal friendship and Fascist brotherhood of Adolf Hitler, who waxed heavily sentimental over the former Duce in his speech last Friday.

Non-Fathers Due To Be Drafted First

WASHINGTON (AP)—Every available non-father will be called into the armed forces before the general induction of fathers begins, selective service headquarters said yesterday, ordering a new scrapping of the manpower barrel.

It directed local selective service boards throughout the nation to begin Thursday an inventory of men without dependents to determine that they are correctly classified.

Life of G. B. Shaw Dies at London Home

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. George Bernard Shaw, wife of the celebrated wit and playwright, died Sunday at their London home. The cause of her death was not announced.

The former Miss Charlotte Frances Payne-Townshend, she was one of the few persons to have the last word with Shaw. They were married in 1898 after a courtship on the bicycle paths of Surrey. Then he called her his "green-eyed Irish heiress."

Mystery Surrounds Death Of Film Actor

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor David Gaspar Bacon, 29, masked marvel of the movies, died Sunday night, victim of a stabbing as weird and mysterious as any of the situations portrayed in the innumerable film thrillers in which he had starred.

The scion of a Boston political family, who told his studio he attended school with Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., died in a bean field in suburban Venice, sobbing to a passerby, "please help me."

Clad in blue denim shorts and returning from a swim, Bacon lost control of his small, English-built automobile. It bounced over the curb and stopped. He climbed out of it and collapsed. He died of a stab wound in the back, gasping his plea to Wayne Powell, a passerby.

Lower Prices On Groceries

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new effort by the office of price administration to cut down the nation's grocery bill was announced last night, along with a report saying that the cost of city living has been whittled down 1/2 of 1 percent for the third straight monthly decline.

Red Army Besieges Bryansk Stronghold

LONDON, Tuesday (AP)—The Red army has laid siege to the ancient citadel of Bryansk on the west bank of the Desna river after plunging over the bodies of 2,000 Germans to reach the east bank and cut four of the five trunk railways feeding that axis stronghold early today.

A Soviet communique telling of the smash through the mine-filled forest east of Bryansk foreshadowed the early capture of that pivot of the axis central and southern fronts.

"Our troops have come right up to the town of Bryansk," said the communique recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Aside from the heavy German reverses south of Bakhmach and before Bryansk, the Russians said their troops overhauled and cut down 1,500 of the enemy soldiers fleeing from the Donets basin and cut four of the five trunk railways feeding that axis stronghold early today.

But the frontal assault on Bryansk, pivot of Germany's battered central and southern fronts, was the high point of the Russian communique. The successful lunge (See RUSSIAN, page 5)

Dear Mr. Zabel:
I enjoy reading your paper and the editorials. However, your editorial entitled, "Truth About Children," appearing in the issue for Sept. 3, 1943, is decidedly out of touch with the crisis in which we are living.

Only with the first line of the editorial can I agree... I can hardly believe that this editorial expresses your true sentiment toward children. Your editorial plainly implies that we have nothing important to teach children and that parents are tired of the job of teaching their children and are ready to give it up.

Perhaps you are delighted with the results of state education and domination of young children in Russia, Germany and Italy? Young children are going to get ideas from somewhere. What will be those ideas and from what source will they get them?

Sincerely,
Francis J. Kohler, G.

The Reply—

Dear Mr. Kohler:
In the first place, the editorial about which you speak was written in a light, philosophical vein, and without intent to set down some new plan for raising children (although our present system, in many cases, is far from perfect.)

Certainly, the future of the entire world depends upon how the children are raised; upon what shape their values take, and upon their attitudes toward life and fellow man. The young mind is completely plastic. It can be molded for good, as Hitler has done, or it can be molded for evil, as we have attempted to do.

The answer, I think, is that some are doing a good job, some a very bad job, and very few are doing the best they could. The present rise in juvenile crimes testifies to this fact. Iowa City's curfew law wasn't put into effect to coral children who have been brought up correctly.

Certainly young children have to get ideas from somewhere. I'm simply saying that many of them aren't getting them from the right place. Actually, it doesn't matter where they get them, just so the ideas are sound, worthwhile and honest. Because of parental laxity, too many children are getting the wrong ideas from the wrong places.

You ask me whether I am delighted with the results of state education and domination of young children in Russia, Germany and Italy? No, of course I am not. But, with the same system in reverse, I have no doubt that our population would be 100 percent more intelligent, more physically and morally sound within several generations than it ever has been.

You see, we who live in a democracy, are afraid to face the fact that Hitler's system, in a negative way, worked remarkably well. Mercy killings, sterilization of those unfit for marriage, scientific—rather than emotional—approaches to marriage and childbirth are things we don't like to think about.

Don't take me wrong. I am not advocating application of Hitler's theory. For under such a plan, home life as we know it today, the sentimental family attachments, a happy child remembers, would vanish. I am simply stating that under a democratic plan of state education the race as a whole could not help but be bettered, both mentally and physically.

Interpreting The War News
Battle at Salerno First Crucial Fight In Invasion of Italy

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
The first crucial fight of the battle of Italy is taking place at the Salerno bridgehead south of Naples where American troops with some British contingents are threatening to cut off all southern Italy from the Nazis at one stroke.

At the town of Salerno it self fifth army troops are not only astride the main lines running southward down the Italian boot to both the toe and heel provinces. They have set foot on the first of the several lesser rail connections which thread the mountainous central spine of the Italian peninsula to join the Tyrrhenian and Adriatic coasts.

At Salerno allied forces are less than 80 miles inland from the Adriatic coast. The British eighth army's right wing, already north of Brindisi, is moving swiftly up that coast, presumably to form a junction with the American fifth army and establish a short line across the peninsula from the vicinity of Naples to some point on the Adriatic.

shortest and would afford good coverage for the vital airfields along the lower Adriatic coast already falling into British hands. But allied plans may not call for a front that far north.

In any event, the campaign does not suggest any allied purpose of attempting to occupy all Italy. Its objectives are more likely to prove the seizure only of the southern portion of the boot in order to bring up closer the air attack against Germany and her Balkan satellites and, as a diversionary measure, to force withdrawal of Nazi troops from Russia.

Scheduled for today's program are Sibelius' "Pohjola's Daughter" and "Finlandia."

however, that will probably determine just how far north the allied line ultimately will be drawn from coast to coast in Italy. An early break-through by Clark's men northeastward on that front could still trap considerable Nazi forces retreating from southern Italy before the advancing British.

Nazi occupation of Rome indicates that they hope to use the numerous good Italian air fields in that vicinity to check or limit the allied air attacks from southern Italy on Rumanian oil wells and installations or war factory targets elsewhere in the Balkans, in Austria or in southeastern Germany.

Could Anglo-U.S. Alliance Work?

Russia Would Still Be More Powerful

WASHINGTON—An Anglo-American alliance? All right, say we have one, and acquire from Britain the ownership of leased air bases approaching our shores which are essential to implement it, where then are we regarding the peace and security of this country and the world?

Russia today has the greatest army in the world. Her slush industrialization has been quickened by war necessity, moved up perhaps a generation.

Any unprejudiced eye can see that a combinations of nations could be built around Russia which would be more powerful than the Anglo-American alliance.

Certainly such an alliance as Governor Dewey mentioned and Churchill has promised, does not guarantee our peace and security against Russia or against any combination of the world which may arise in the coming years and secretly arm themselves as Japan and Germany did to start this war.

Would We Be Secure
But if Russia came into the alliance, would we then be secure? An alliance is a political solution, whereas security, if not peace, is a military problem.

This would still be true if Russia were in the alliance. Clearly then, we cannot trust our peace and security to others, but must constantly maintain it ourselves, no matter what alliances are made.

Another thing: the British have a world empire while we have not. The alliance, therefore, not only would protect our shores but the British empire shores around the world upon which the sun never sets.

Look ahead. Suppose the British government changes in the 50 years of proposed alliance. Suppose it becomes pacifist and weak, or belligerent and aggressive, or pro-Russian, Communist, anti-

American.
There can be no guarantee in any alliance that Mr. Churchill's views will prevail indefinitely in London. Indeed, the Laborites already are reaching for his scalp.

Would an alliance bring us peace and security against these developments or others that we cannot envisage in years ahead? Obviously not.

Peace and security then must be obtained by something deeper, more powerful and reassuring than (See MELLON, page 5)

IN THE KITCHEN—WITH MRS. H. CLAY HARSHBARGER

DOWN THE STAIRS to a comfy, semi-basement kitchen. That's where Mrs. H. Clay Harshbarger, 305 Sunset street, prepares her quick autumn delights, while young Carl watches to be sure his mother includes his favorite sandwich in the lunch box. The kitchen opens out to a lower-level terrace eating porch overlooking a wooded ravine. Off another door is a food supply room. On one wall of the cleverly designed basement dining room is a large United States map which Mrs. Harshbarger painted herself. The almost square 10- by 11-foot kitchen has two large casement windows, one above the sink and the other opening toward the eating porch. The floors are black, tan and white tile. Gay colored cords and plants contrast with the white walls and woodwork to complete the color scheme.

This year, more than ever before, Americans are finding it necessary to carry their lunches to work and to school.

"A favorite school sandwich of the boys," said Mrs. Harshbarger, "is made with extremely nourishing Nut and Raisin Bread. With rich butter and cheese between the slices, the boys can eat hardly more than one sandwich."

Mrs. Harshbarger also suggests serving this buttered sweet bread at teas or to unexpected gangs of students that invade the house.

Nut and Raisin Bread
(2 small loaves)

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
5 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. soda
1 1/2 cups graham flour
1 cup seeded raisins
3/4 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup dark molasses
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda into a bowl. Mix in graham flour, raisins and nuts. Add molasses and brown sugar with water. After thoroughly stirring, add to dry ingredients.

Grease two 12-ounce tins or two small oblong pans. Fill three-fourths full. Smooth tops and bake in a moderate oven at 375 degrees F. for about an hour. Cool in pans and slice.

For variety Mrs. Harshbarger suggests substituting dates for raisins. Almost any kind of nuts can be used, but this professor's wife favors black walnuts.

"It's inexpensive, easy to make, and good!" said Mrs. Harshbarger about her Rhubarb Conserve recipe.

Rhubarb Conserve

1 lb. rhubarb
1 orange or less
1/2 cup raisins
1 cup of sugar for each cup of rhubarb

Specific proportions are not essential. Cut up rhubarb in fairly small pieces. Grind the entire orange in a meat grinder. Cook rhubarb, orange, and raisins with just enough water so the mixture will not stick to the bottom. For each cup of rhubarb sauce add 1 cup of sugar. Cook until it reaches the right consistency for jelly. Put in jars and seal.

"Because rhubarb is so easy to use, I like to make it in its many variations, adding instead of oranges, lemon, currants, berries or anything else that suits the taste. Figs and walnuts make it wonderful too. You can add one, two or all of these ingredients to the conserve, according to what you have on hand."

Mrs. Earl E. Harper, 914 Highwood street, has contributed her recipe for Fish Chowder to this column. "This dish with a vegetable salad and blueberry cobbler makes a regular New England dinner," she said. "In New England, pilot crackers or chowder crackers are served with it, but as we are not able to get them here, we use the ordinary soda crackers."

Fish Chowder
(Serves 6-8)

Whole haddock
1 1/2 inch cube of salt pork
1 onion, sliced
3 potatoes
salt and pepper to flavor
4 cups milk

Boil the frozen haddock in 2 cups cold water for 20 minutes. Cut pork in small pieces and fry with onion. Parboil the potatoes, cut in cubes, for 5 minutes. Add potatoes, pork and onion to the fish and simmer for 10 minutes.

Flavor the mixture with salt and pepper. Add milk. This dish is full of rich fish flavor and is at its best when served with crackers.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

- *Dickey Came Along
- *At the Wrong Time
- *To Get Any Glory

NEW YORK (AP)—He won't get it, of course. After all, nobody ever considers creaky old gaffers going on 37 years old for most valuable player awards, and besides, he'll probably not play in more than 75 games so his current batting average of around .380 is given the old fishy eye.

But it would be nice to see Bill Dickey get at least a few more votes, if only to make up a little for all those years he was just another also ran despite playing ball which, if it were this year, would win the honors hands down.

There was 1936, for instance, when he hit .362 and knocked out 22 home runs, but there was a big, piano-legged gent playing first base for his team named Lou Gehrig who hit 49 home runs and was voted the American league's most valuable player.

Then there was 1937, when the lanky, knock-kneed guy behind the plate for the Yankees took part in 140 games, in itself quite a performance for a catcher, and connected for 29 home runs while batting .332. But a slick second-baseman with Detroit named Charley Gehringer who hit .371 was awarded top honors.

And in 1938 this fellow Bill Dickey played his usual sound game, hitting .313 and getting 27 home runs. But round-faced, keg-chested Jimmy Foxx hit 50 home runs, and was voted the most valuable, although another first baseman by the name of Hank Greenberg hit 58 that year.

Those are just samples of the competition Dickey has been up against, and now, with such competition missing, he himself has reached the stage in his career when he can't get out there day after day and wheedle the pitchers into giving their best, and his hits, although still solid, lack the carrying power they had a few years ago.

The big fellow just came along at the wrong time, that's all. The wrong time from the standpoint of personal glory, that is. From the standpoint of value to the team, Joe McCarthy or any of his teammates would tell you he came along at just the right time.

It's always been our idea that despite his acknowledged skill, Dickey's value went much, much deeper. He has been the balance wheel, the stabilizer, the guy who was always right when everything was going wrong. When, on those rare occasions, he wasn't right, the whole team was a wet rag.

There was the 1940 season, for instance. Dickey unquestionably was affected tremendously by the tragic illness of his roommate and closest friend, Lou Gehrig. He had his poorest year, hitting only .247. The Yankees finished third.

The Yankees, until this year, have been renowned for their power hitting. Yet analysis of their play showed that year in and year out they have received superb pitching. And when a team has consistently good pitching you know that the hurler isn't throwing at a hitting post behind the plate.

We'd still just about as soon watch Bill Dickey play as any player we can think of. There is something that exudes confidence, a sense of power and security when he walks out there to take his place behind the plate.

He's the only catcher we ever saw who, with all that deep-sea diver upholstery, still can handle himself like an outfielder. Walker Cooper comes closest to him in that respect.

No, he won't be considered for the most valuable player award. But we have an idea that if Joe McCarthy were naming the man it would be Mr. Bill Dickey.

Swim Squad to Meet For 1st Time Today

All swimmers, undergraduates or graduates interested in competition, are urged by Coach David Armbruster to attend the first squad meeting at 4:30 p. m. today at the gymnasium annex pool.

Coach Armbruster said that workouts during the fall will occur three times weekly. He plans to arrange a schedule of Big Ten dual contests in December, the first meet probably occurring late in January.

Hubert Norman, the only remaining major letter man, has been appointed acting captain for the fall workouts. John Gottsch of Shenandoah, elected captain last spring, is in the armed forces.

PEP FOR LIONS? . . . By Jack Sords

FRANK'S PRESENCE IN THE DETROIT LINEUP WOULD MEAN THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A WEAK TEAM AND ONE FEARED BY THE LEAGUE.

Madigan Assigns New Positions to Three; Makes Two Other Changes in First String

Coach Edward P. "Slip" Madigan assigned new jobs to three first string men and made two other changes in the team lineup at practice yesterday.

Bill Barbour, veteran end of last year, was shifted to tackle; Joe Howard, freshman from Des Moines, took over Barbour's wing position.

Tan Mohrbacher, whom the Iowa mentor had at tackle, was changed to guard, and Harry Frey, another member of the 1942 squad, was assigned Mohrbacher's place.

Don Murray, dropped to second team when Tom Hand, reserve center at Iowa for three years, returned to take over the guard position, was moved up to the first string again.

Bill Gallagher, fullback, went back into his varsity position, when Madigan shifted Jim Hudson back to the second team.

Beazley Duels For Another Champ Crown

PT. OGLETHORPE, Ga. (AP)—Lieut. Johnny Beazley, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher who twice triumphed over the New York Yankees in the world series a year ago, is in another championship duel.

This time it's to settle claims of two crack service teams for an unofficial southern army baseball crown, and when he pitches today for Ft. Oglethorpe against the Second army of Memphis, the lanky officer will face another youthful big-leaguer, Sergt. Hughie Mulcahy of the Phillies.

Each team has a fabulous record, and each has laid claim to the army crown since Camp Wheeler's national semi-pro champions disbanded. Oglethorpe has won 40 and lost 10, the Second army 44 and five. Meeting twice in regular play, each team won once. Today's game will be first of a three-game championship series.

Beazley, who won 21 games for the Cardinals in 1942, will be backed by enlisted men rich in professional experience, including first-baseman Les Burges, home-run king of the Southern association in 1941, and leader of the International league last year.

Mulcahy, 13-game winner for the hapless Phils in 1940, before joining the army, will have at least three former big-leaguers behind him, including Ken Silvevri, former Yankee catcher; Evy Dusak, former Cardinal outfielder, and Al Flair, who played with the Boston Red Sox.

Col. Lucien Berry, commandant, said Oglethorpe would offer at stake the silver trophy presented by Chattanooga sportsmen "in recognition of Ft. Oglethorpe's contribution to army sport, recreation and entertainment of enlisted personnel through its baseball club."

Accept Orders For Series

Cardinals President Says Ticket Reserves Are Ready for Today

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Orders for world series reservations at Sportsman's park will be accepted beginning today. Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced last night.

Applicants must purchase their tickets to cover three games, and they will be limited to two seats a game.

There are grandstand reservations available for 12,500 persons. The other 12,500 grandstand seats will be held for season ticket holders. No box seats are available. Seating capacity in the park is 34,500.

A ticket for a single seat for three games will cost $17.25. A 3-game ticket for two seats a game will cost $34.50. These prices include taxes. The Cardinals will refund money for games not played should the series be terminated in less than six games.

Breadon warned only cashier's checks and money orders would be accepted applications.

The first three series games will be held in the home park of the American league representative, presumably the New York Yankees, Oct. 5, 6 and 7; and play will be resumed at St. Louis—should the Cardinals win the pennant—on Oct. 10 and will be continued until the series is concluded.

Bluehawks Practice To Meet Revengeful Kalona Squad Saturday

U high's Bluehawks will spend this week practicing blocking plays in preparation for their opening game with Kalona this Friday at 8:15 p. m. The game will be held on one of the university fields, across the river from the University high school building.

The Bluehawks backfield is composed of last year's players and seems to be quite strong; however, the line is made up of new men and needs to be polished up in a few places.

Coach Paul Brechler says the men need to be toughened up, and promises that they will be in time for the Kalona game. Brechler has not yet decided who will compose the first string and is again switching the line in order to find which players are best fitted for the various positions.

Last year Kalona was defeated by the Blues with a score of 9 to 7. It was the only game which Kalona lost in last year's grid season and if Kalona remembers U high's victory, which it certainly will, they will be out for revenge.

Football Prospects Mid-West Maintains Grid Schedules

CHICAGO (AP)—The middle west, perhaps more determined than any other sector to maintain bigtime football competition in war time, should provide at least one national headliner, Michigan at Camp Grant, for the fans Saturday.

Five of the Western conference teams will be in action, three against service opponents, in the early stages of a season which promises successfully to combat manpower shortages and transportation difficulties.

The schedule: Michigan at Camp Grant, Ill.; Marquette at Wisconsin; Purdue at Great Lakes, Ill.; Iowa Seahawks at Illinois; Miami U at Indiana.

Illinois opened its season last Saturday, absconding a 23 to 0 walk-off from Camp Grant's warriors. Whether the Illini will fare any better this week with the tough navy airman from Iowa is problematical, but the dopesters figure that Camp Grant will have no such easy time with Michigan.

Interest in the Wolverines-Warriors game bounced upward yesterday when Camp Grant officials announced that the soldiers have a new grid coach, Charley Bachman of Michigan State. The rivalry between Michigan State and the bigger University of Michigan annually has produced one of those typically bitter intra-state clashes.

This year, however, Michigan has the makings of one of the nation's most formidable backfields, what with the football talent that came to Ann Arbor via the navy and marine trainee program.

Michigan has Bill Daley, former Minnesota great; Eroy Hirsch and Jack Wink from Wisconsin, in addition to its own Capt. Paul White and Bob Weise.

Promoter Mike Jacobs Fills 2 Boxing Dates

NEW YORK (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs filled two fall boxing dates at Madison Square garden yesterday when he matched heavyweights Tami Mauriello of New York with Lee Savold of Des Moines, Iowa, and Greenwood Lake, N. J., for Nov. 5 and Fritzie Zivic, former welterweight champion, with Jake LaMotta of New York for Nov. 12. Both bouts will be ten rounders.

The Mauriello-Savold bout will be their second meeting. Savold outpointed the young New Yorker last October. Zivic and LaMotta split the decisions in a pair of bouts at Pittsburgh early this summer.

Indian-Brown Game To Be Played In Double Session

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Yesterday's postponed baseball game between the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns will be played as part of a twilight-night double-header today.

The first game will begin at 4:52 p. m., central war time. General manager Bill DeWitt of the Browns explained the odd starting hour as necessary to comply with a rule which says if you start a game 2 hours and 20 minutes before sundown you may turn on the lights to complete it—if necessary. The second game is scheduled for 8:30.

The St. Louis Cardinals announced the two games with the Chicago Cubs postponed Sunday in Chicago would be played here. A single game is scheduled for Thursday—a previous open date—and a doubleheader Saturday will take care of the other.

Navy Begins Final Week of Practice

The Seahawks began their final week of practice yesterday before they open their season Saturday against Illinois.

Lieut. Don Faurot, head coach, non-committal on what he thought of the Iowa Pre-Flight school's intra-squad game Saturday, ran his team through a lengthy signal drill, which included several new plays, then reviewed some blocking and tackling fundamentals.

House-to-House Drive On War Bonds Starts

150 Block, Zone, District Leaders Begin Work Today

"There's a job ahead to be done, and we must get into the harness," said H. W. Stuck, chairman of the Iowa City block leaders, as he gave directions for the house-to-house canvass which will begin today for the third war bond campaign.

Stuck presided at a meeting of 150 block, zone, district and sector leaders at a meeting in Iowa City junior high school last night.

Participating in the program were Frank D. Williams, chairman of the Johnson county war bond committee; the Rev. L. L. Dunnington of the First Methodist church; James E. Stronks, chief of the auxiliary firemen of civilian defense, and Irving Weber, executive of the citizens service corps.

Charles Gill Presented

Presented at the meeting was Charles Gill, assistant chairman of block leaders. W. W. Mercer, director of the Johnson county civilian defense council, was also present.

Block leaders will make a house-to-house canvass of Iowa City before Monday asking persons to pledge to the third war bond drive. Iowa City's quota for the campaign is $1,863,000, about $55 per person.

Any bonds bought during the month of September will count toward filling the quota. Information on types of bonds available can be obtained at the First Capital National bank, the Iowa State Bank and Trust company and the postoffice.

Williams thanked Iowa City block leaders for their cooperation in the second war bond drive.

Compare Methods

The Rev. Mr. Dunnington compared the work of the block leaders in asking Americans to loan their money to the war effort with the methods of Nazi officers demanding money for their projects.

"We're going to sell bonds with a smile," he said, "and with gratitude that we can do it voluntarily."

Stonks suggested methods of salesmanship to the block leaders, saying that they must have confidence in the thing they are selling, "that it's the best of its kind, which is true in the case of war bonds, the safest investment in the United States."

alliances, by many intangible factors such as national alertness, constant energy, wise leadership, appropriations for bases, sea and air fleets, but all these factors stream back to roots in alert military strength and ability to defend ourselves.

Secondary Importance

Alliances therefore, are of secondary importance. Indeed, they may be dangerous if they create a false sense of security and make us want to disarm or forget about armed protection, as Governor Dewey and Mr. Lippmann already have forgotten about it in their argument for the alliance as a cure-all.

Absolutely guaranteed peace and security are probably not obtainable. Perhaps this is the main fault in all current discussions of the subject. At least no man and no nation ever had them permanently in all the history of the world.

But we can do the utmost to get as much of them as we can for ourselves, and, if possible, for others.

In striving for this: all evidence shows that alliances will be worthless in the post war air world without American bases and a superior American air fleet. For ourselves, we must own—not merely lease—Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, British Guiana, on the Atlantic front at least, before we can even start to think about our own security.

No alliance will have any more value than the armament behind it.

RUSSIAN—

made it likely that Bryansk would be the scene of the next great Russian victory to keep Moscow's batteries booming their triumphal salutes.

The hard-pressed Germans already are nearly encircled, and have only one railway artery lead-dependent upon. That is the line leading northwest to Smolensk, and Russian troops probably will snap it shortly. One Russian unit is only a few miles from that line.

Spurring the Bryansk attackers onward is the realization that the part Bryansk played in the Russian revolution, and the certainty that Marshal Stalin will honor the first divisions to break into the city just as he did those that toppled Ore, Khakov, Stalino, and other axis bastions captured in Russia's first big summer offensive.

Advance on Kiev

While the Bryansk army held the main spotlight other Russian armies rapidly clipped their way toward Kiev, Ukraine capital on the middle Dnieper, and Zaporozhe and Dnieperpetrovsk, on the lower end of the river, to add to a total bag of nearly 350 villages freed during the day.

Nezhin and Chernigov, big rail cities on the Gomel-Odessa line just below White Russia, were threatened by Soviet units fanning out through the northern Ukraine.

Nezhin's seizure, now an imminent possibility, would put Russian troops only 72 miles from Kiev, and cut the last north-south railway available to the Germans east of the middle Dnieper.

In the central Ukraine another Red army driving on Kiev cut the Romney-Poltava railway at a point 42 miles east of Priluki and 124 miles from Kiev, overrunning more than 140 localities.

Council Passes Overall Beer Ordinance

New Ruling Knocks Out All Others

Councilmen Hold Up V. F. W. Beer Permit Pending Investigation

A new beer ordinance revoking all existing beer ordinances was enacted at the city council meeting last night, and the entire city council and city attorney were appointed as a special committee to investigate the issuance of a beer permit to the Veterans of Foreign Wars club at 22½ E. College street.

The petition for the permit was signed by Commander Charlie F. Smith.

The mayor's action in appointing the unusual committee came after the reading of an objection signed by a group composed of some of the officers and others within the organization and an unsigned letter denouncing certain factions of the local V. F. W. post.

Signed Objection

The statement of the V. F. W. committee objected to the issuance of the requested beer permit to the club and "to any individual for the purpose of selling beer at the V. F. W. club rooms located at 22½ E. College street in Iowa City or at the home at the edge of Iowa City on highway 218."

Signers were John Fielding, post advocate director; Kite Knowlton, secretary vice-commander; John A. Lemons, junior vice-commander; Everett Williams, trustee; E. Benson; Clair Hamilton; Earl B. Weekes; Louis H. Crow; Louis Burke; W. O. Potter; Francis J. Boyle; and James T. Gwynne.

The unsigned letter, read aloud by City Clerk George Dohrer, was handed to Mayor W. J. Teeter by a member of the group signing the objection, the mayor said.

The same investigating committee, with Second Ward Councilman E. F. Lenthe as chairman, was appointed to investigate the issuance of a permit to the Old Heidelberg Tavern, 125 S. Duquesne street.

The new ordinance regulates and licenses the sale of beer, including the issuance of permits, the conduct of places selling beer and penalties for violations.

Given all three required readings and passed at last night's meeting, it takes the place of the proposed ordinance which was given its first reading earlier this summer. The council voted to take no further action on the former proposal.

Holiday Regulations

Aside from that, the new ordinance provides for few new regulations. It revokes all existing beer ordinances and prohibits the delivery or sale of beer on Decoration day and the Fourth of July.

The same provision holds for other holidays, namely, New Year's day, Thanksgiving day and Christmas day, just as it did in a former ordinance.

The section of the ordinance regulating conduct in places selling beer states that "It shall be unlawful for any person to whom a beer permit has been issued, or for any person conducting or having charge of a building or place where a beer permit has been issued to allow or permit therein any indecent act to be committed, any disorderly conduct of a gross or violent nature, to entertain any known trouble maker, or person known to be of bad moral character."

This section provides that any disturbance shall be reported to the police department immediately by the person to whom the

Prof. Louis C. Zopf Appointed Chairman Of 1943 Homecoming

A 14-member executive committee, under the chairmanship of Prof. Louis C. Zopf of the college of pharmacy, has been appointed by President Virgil M. Hancher to arrange details of the University of Iowa's 32nd annual Homecoming.

Iowa's Homecoming, to be held Nov. 5 and 6, will feature the Iowa-Illinois football game at 2 p. m. Nov. 6. This will be the first time the two teams have met in a Homecoming game since 1936.

Although the football game will be the highlight of Homecoming, a complete program of other events will be planned by the committee at its meetings, the first of which will be held tomorrow.

This will be the first time Professor Zopf has headed the Homecoming executive committee. He replaces Maj. Allen C. Tester, who is now in active duty with the army engineering corps in the south Pacific.

The members of the executive committee are as follows:

Prof. George Bresnahan, athletics; Prof. Thomas Caywood, engineering; Prof. Elizabeth Halsey, women's physical education; Prof. Frederic Higbee, engineering; Prof. Bruce Mahan, extension division; Donald Mallett, office of student affairs; Willis Mercer, alumni; Prof. A. K. Miller, geology; Prof. Rollin Perkins, law; Prof. Frederick Pownall, publications; Theodore Rehder, dining service; Prof. C. B. Righter, music, and Col. Luke Zech, military department.

Campus Tours Begin Today

Campus tours for freshmen women will begin today at 4 o'clock with a meeting in the river room of Iowa Union. Orientation leaders will be contacted by the committee in charge of these tours, and each of the group leaders will then arrange with her group a day for the tours.

The tours will continue through Friday with five groups meeting in the river room each day. Virginia Alm, A3 of Decorah, Elizabeth Cook, A3 of Glenwood; Dortha Grundy, A2 of Dysart, and Margaret Rowland, A3 of Dayton, Ohio, are to be in charge of the tours.

At today's 4 o'clock meeting, Virginia Alm will give a brief introductory talk explaining the tour. Dortha Grundy will act as hostess for the tours through the radio building; Elizabeth Cook will take the groups through the art building and Margaret Rowland will act as a guide to the University theater.

permit has been issued or by any person conducting or having charge of a building or place where a beer permit has been issued.

Penalty for violation of the ordinance upon conviction, is imprisonment not exceeding 30 days or a fine not exceeding 100 dollars, in addition to the revocation of the beer permit.

The council approved the renewal of a beer permit to George's buffet, 312 E. Market street. Other business at the meeting included the approval of Walter P. Garwick as a member of the fire department in place of Gilbert Capps, who is now serving in the navy.

'Christian Boldness'—SERMON OF THE WEEK By Rev. L. C. Wuerffel

"As creatures of God, the Almighty expects us to do his will," began Rev. L. C. Wuerffel, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, in his sermon Sunday, Sept. 12. The sermon, "Christian Boldness," emphasized the ways in which God reveals himself to us through the scriptures.

Examples of the faith of Joseph and Paul were cited in the same text. "We can do God's will by precept and by example," continued the pastor, and of all illustrations of upright lives, only that of Christ is infallible, for only He can emulate complete goodness.

Normal to Wonder

Christ practiced Christian boldness and we should follow after him, the Rev. Mr. Wuerffel said. First, it is normal to wonder and ponder—What is it, this Christian boldness, Jesus revealed to the people of Jerusalem that he knew they expected to kill him. The intellectuals and religious leaders had instigated this plan, so the common people were ignorant of the plot. People were moved by the conceptions of that day and knowing Jesus to be the son of Mary and Joseph could not believe He was the son of God.

"The learned were the forces who inclined the people to believe exactly as they did. In the face of all this opposition Christ continued to work without fear."

"Fearlessness and boldness are necessary in today's religion," he said. Our views of sin are not appealing to us but they must be recognized, as all men are born in sin. By not recognizing their own wickedness some human beings disbelieve Christ's coming.

"The devil can also quote scriptures to his purpose," quoted the Rev. Mr. Wuerffel. We as Christians are held to our own interpretations of scripture.

Attain Fearlessness

"How do we gain boldness," is the next question. The people who built the walls of Jericho followed tradition, man and superstition, not scripture." A knowledge of God gave Christ boldness, and through this we too can attain the same fearlessness, he asserted.

"In this age most people tend to take man's word for everything. Our own ability to read, interpret, and draw our own conclusions from the Bible will teach us to be as bold as He." Christ trusted God's providence. He realized God had a blueprint that spoke of only the most accurate dimensions, and promised a finished building of freedom from temptation. A realization of God's omnipotence should bring us that same boldness, the minister said.

"To us today in a world at war we may think of boldness as arrogance, conceit, or haughtiness, but in this instance, to be bold is to be unafraid, to preach the gospel to every creature and to say with Paul, 'Of all the sinners, I am chief,'" concluded the Rev. Mr. Wuerffel.

"Then only is our boldness of consequence, for we live as Christ did, by doing God's will and making ourselves examples for all to follow."

CAP Studies Motors, Aircraft Power Plants

Aircraft power plants and motors are being studied by the Civil Air Patrol in a 10-week course under the direction of Prof. Elmer Lundquist. The organization is using the facilities of the War Training Service for the course.

Classes meet twice a week, on Monday evenings for an hour of drill and one hour of classwork and on Thursday evenings for two hours of instruction about motors.

6,450 Students Enrolled Here

A total of 6,450 civilian and uniformed students are present on the University of Iowa campus, it was announced by President Virgil M. Hancher yesterday. Of this number, 2,809 are civilians, (763 men and 2,046 women).

University faculty members are instructing 4,700 persons. Besides the civilian students, 1,891 uniformed cadets are also receiving instruction from university faculty members. The 1,750 cadets at the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school are instructed by navy officers. Other non-college students on the Iowa campus include 1,027 men in the army specialized training program, 400 pre-meteorologists, and 90 war training service students.

There are also 361 medical and dental students receiving regular instruction in their respective colleges, but because they are in the uniforms of the army and navy, they cannot be listed as civilian students. Most of the 314 students in the medical college are in uniform.

The 1,828 students enrolled in the college of liberal arts give it the highest number of students. The graduate college follows with 369, and the school of nursing has enrolled 274.

R. Neilson Miller, clerk of the district court, issued marriage licenses yesterday to Ralph Zousel, 27, of West Branch and Marguerite Dvorsky, 24, of Solon; to George C. Etherton, 29, and Mildred Harms, 24, both of Iowa City.

Co-Chairmen Direct War Community Chest Campaign for County

Oct. 4 Set for Date of Iowa City Opening; Organizations Unite

Co-chairmen of the combined Johnson county War Chest-Community Chest campaign are E. F. Lenthe, manager of the Burkett-Rhinehart Motor company, and George W. Davis, Hotel Jefferson manager, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The appointment puts all rural and town solicitations under the care of Lenthe, while Davis has charge of the Iowa City campaign. Oct. 4 has been set as the date for the Iowa City opening. At this time all organizations which in the past have held separate campaigns, will unite into one with the exception of the American Red Cross, which will proceed as usual with its annual campaign in March.

The community chest, which has consolidated with the war chest, is intended specifically for the people of Iowa City and those outside will not be asked to contribute. All donations made by others in the county will go into the war chest fund.
