Capture of Bryansk Tops Day Of Smashing Soviet Victories

Whole German Line Wavers as Russians Gain in All Sectors

LONDON, Saturday (AP)—Soviet troops stormed the high west bank of the Desna river to capture the central Russian fortress of Bryansk and its sister city Bezhitsa yesterday, while far to the south Ukrainian columns captured Ospanko and smashed to within 35 miles of the Dnieper river, Moscow announced early today.

A day of crashing successes along a 600-mile front was topped by the long-sought victory at Bryansk as the Germans fell back in sector after sector in a virtual race for the Dnieper.

Hundreds of hamlets and villages fell as the Russians swept toward Melitopol and Zaporozhe from points 35 miles to the east, moved along two railroads from Chaplino and Lozavaya to outflank Pavlograd, closed in on Krasnodar, and spread out between Nezbin and Priluki on the road to Kiev, only 55 miles from their grasp.

The Soviet offensive, only a little more than two months old, moved with such speed and power that President Roosevelt told the American congress in his message yesterday that "the Russian campaign moves toward the elimination of every German from Russian soil—toward the invasion of Germany itself."

Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin announced the capture of Bryansk, junction for six major Russian railways, in a special order of the day and the Soviet communique gave many details of additional actions that shattered German resistance all along the front.

At Bryansk many prisoners and large quantities of war materials were taken, said the communique broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor.

In the Zaporozhe and Melitopol areas German counterattacks were hurled back and the enemy sent into retreat. A thousand Germans were killed, a large enemy mechanized column routed and war material and prisoners captured.

Toward Pavlograd, last base before Dnieperpetrovsk, the Russians entered havoc among the Germans, the bulletin disclosed.

selves on advantageous lines, the Germans are launching violent counterattacks," the communique said. "However all attempts of the Hitlerites to hold on whatever lines they occupy are unsuccessful. Under the blows of our tanks, infantry and artillerymen the enemy is forced to abandon one position after another and at the same time is sustaining heavy losses in manpower and equipment."

The important push toward Kiev appeared to be reaching a crescendo as over 130 towns and villages were captured, 2,000 Germans killed and 53 locomotives and many railroad cars captured amid a great pile of seized Nazi stores and materiel.

Funeral Postponed Chinatown's Jim Die Wasn't Dead

NEW YORK (AP)—New York's Chinatown yesterday postponed indefinitely the funeral of one of its most beloved characters—Jim Die, 88-year-old handyman—because Jim wasn't dead.

All Thursday night and Friday morning Chinatown was in mourning, and an elaborate funeral was being planned for him when the neighborhood found out the handyman was sick in Bellevue hospital and would welcome visitors, but was not at all dead.

The misunderstanding occurred this way: When Jim Die was taken to Bellevue, a policeman was sent to advise a cousin, who lived in the same rooming house.

"Jim Die's in Bellevue hospital," the policeman said.

"Oh, that too bad," said the cousin, who spread the news throughout Chinatown: "Jim die Bellevue. . . Jim die Bellevue."

Chinatown had already hired an undertaker when another policeman appeared to see if anyone would visit the handyman at the hospital.

"Sure, I know Jim die Bellevue," the cousin assured the policeman.

"Is someone going to take care of him?" asked the cop.

"Oh, sure," responded the cousin. "We take care of everything. Cop tells me Jim die Bellevue. I know, we all know. Everybody know he die. We get undertaker."

Two of Jim Die's cousins went to visit him when they finally realized he was still alive and lone.

'Forts' Sink New Nazi Destroyer at Nance

Score Possible Hits On Other Craft During Raid, Pictures Show

LONDON, (AP)—U. S. Flying Fortresses in Thursday's attacks on Nantes and LaPalice sank a new Nazi destroyer and scored possible hits on three large enemy vessels and a number of harbor craft, photographs made during the operations showed last night.

The pictures, taken from rear planes in the attacking formation, showed that the warship, apparently recently completed or very near completed, was sinking in the Nantes harbor after American bombs struck it squarely.

The possible hits were registered on two big merchant vessels and several harbor boats in addition to the main damage to shipbuilding and repair yards, docks, warehouses and railroad yards. Raging fires also were started in large coal bunkers.

Jap Base Falls Before Mighty 12-Day Drive

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Saturday (AP)—Japan's main New Guinea coastal base of Lae has been captured by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces just 12 days after they unleashed a powerhouse drive on it and the few enemy soldiers who escaped death are heading straight into a trap laid for them in high mountains to the north.

Climaxing victory over a northeastern New Guinea army of the enemy, once estimated to total 20,000, veteran Australian jungle troops swept into the air base at 11 a. m. Thursday after the last defenses in the bomb-wrecked town were levelled by four and two-engined bombers.

"The Lae victory, accomplished in the face of superior forces available to the enemy, represents a serious blow to him," General MacArthur said in a special field headquarters statement after the capture was first announced in today's communique.

"With God's help, we are making our way back."

The "way back" leads toward the Philippines where the heroic general of Bataan and Corregidor has vowed he shall return.

The Japanese, who had relied on pillbox and trench defenses on outskirts plantations—defenses which were left in ruins by a series of powerful air attacks—offered only slight resistance at the end, the survivors hurrying to brush and hills under pursuit of the attacks.

The capture of Lae, constituting one of the biggest victories to be scored against the Japanese who had held it since Jan. 26, 1942, was achieved by a pincers movement sprung Sept. 4 by Australian landing above it from the sea and American and Australian paratroopers landing behind it Sept. 5.

Lae's garrison, trapped not only by the pincers forces east and west but also by forces which moved up from the south after capturing Salamaua, was forced to fight it out.

The Fifth air force, which provided cover throughout the siege, made a final destructive raid which obliterated enemy installations.

The seizure of Lae, which has two airdromes, and Salamaua which has one as well as a good sea anchorage, gave the allies virtual control of the Huon gulf and afford General MacArthur a springboard from which to strike at still more important enemy bases, including the stronghold of Rabaul, on nearby New Britain.

Today's communique reported a continued stepup of action in the Solomons.

Sixteen Japanese fighters have been downed in an American raid on the Buin-Faisi sector on southern Bougainville.

Adjacent to American-won New Georgia, the Japanese have contested occupation of Arundel island, which poses a menace to the enemy's garrison at Vila, Kolombangara. They have reinforced their forces on Arundel.

U. S. Building 5 Cargo Ships per Day—F.D.R.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is approaching full capacity war production and is now turning out planes at the rate of 7,500 a month or 90,000 a year and merchant ships at the rate of almost five a day.

These figures were disclosed by President Roosevelt yesterday in his special message to congress in which he asserted the British Empire and the United States are now producing so much of every essential of war that "we have definite superiority over Germany and Japan which is growing with every succeeding minute."

Yugoslav Partisans Storming Fiume, Big Italian Adriatic Port

Hitler's 'Back Door' Trembles as Balkan Forces Go on March

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP)—Yugoslav partisan forces were yesterday reported storming the gates of Fiume, important Italian city on the Adriatic sea, while other guerrilla forces 160 miles to the southwest widened their beachhead around the Dalmatian seaport of Split, capture of which was announced in the name of the Yugoslav army of liberation yesterday.

Today's announcement said the guerrillas had pushed 10 miles up the Dalmatian coast to occupy Trogir.

Partisans Hold Susak The Yugoslav partisans held Susak, just across the bridge from Fiume which the Serbs occupied briefly in 1918. More forces were said to be pouring toward the front through Bakar, taken early this week during the drive toward the coast.

In eastern Bosnia, the capture of the town of Vlasenica, 30 miles northeast of Sarajevo, was also reported. Heavy fighting was reported around Ogulin, north of Split, and Klin.

'Back Door' Trembles As thousands of Yugoslav patriots went on the march and the whole Balkan "back door" to Adolf Hitler's European fortress trembled, a German overseas broadcast was recorded by Reuters as saying an Italian General Amico, commander in southern Dalmatia, had been shot by the Fascists.

The Germans, striking back furiously at the guerrilla forces, were said by the Yugoslav information bureau here to be using divebombers in terrific attacks on Split and the adjoining town of Solin, also occupied by the patriots.

Bombings Bring Protest The bombings brought protests from Croat Archbishop Klement Bonifacci who said the Yugoslav troops had pushed on through Split and only women and children were now left as targets for the bombers.

A German broadcast said that 60 German soldiers had disarmed 20,000 Italians in an unidentified Adriatic port and captured five Italian vessels which sought to escape to the allies.

Iowans Urged to Buy More 'E' War Bonds

DES MOINES (AP)—A call for increased purchases of Series E war bonds, "the people's bonds," was issued last night by state war finance committee headquarters in connection with Iowa's third war loan campaign.

It was reported only $11,500,000 worth of E bonds have been sold since the drive opened Sept. 9 while the goal for this type of bonds is $50,000,000.

Total bond sales in Iowa Thursday were a whopping $28,900,000.

Outlines Post-War U. S. Plans— Invasion Time, Place Chosen, F.R. Declares

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt, broadly sketching an optimistic picture of the war's outlook, told congress yesterday that Rumania, Hungary, Finland and Bulgaria are thirsting for peace and that "definite times and places" have been chosen for tremendous new blows—including additional invasions of Europe—against Germany and Japan.

WARS OF LONG WAR Yet he warned that "we are still a long, long way from ultimate victory in any theater of the war."

"In all history," he said, "there has never been a task so tremendous as that which we now face. We can do it—and we will do it—but we must plan and work and fight with every ounce of intelligence and energy and courage that we possess."

Runyon, 38-Year-Old Escaped Slayer, Captured in Fort Dodge

Search for Convict Brought into I. C. Vicinity Yesterday

FORT DODGE (AP)—Thomas Runyon, 38-year-old slayer who escaped Monday night from Fort Madison penitentiary, was captured in an east Fort Dodge residential area at about 10 o'clock last night after a running gun fight.

The capture brought to an end a flight during which Runyon had abducted five persons within 24 hours and earlier this evening engaged in a brief flurry of gunfire with a farmer near Iowa Falls, Iowa.

The search for Runyon was brought into the Iowa City area yesterday after the escaped convict forced an abducted garage mechanic from his car near Riverside Thursday night. Sheriff Preston Koser was called at 3 a. m. yesterday to assist in the hunt, which lasted in this vicinity until afternoon.

Runyon earlier Thursday evening had abducted Earl Vincent, his wife and daughter, farmers near West Point. After forcing them to give him food, clothing and a shotgun, he compelled them to get into the Vincent car and "head north."

When the car developed tire trouble, Runyon forced the Vincents to get Ross McCreedy, the mechanic, from his home at Haskins on the pretext of needing to get to an Iowa City hospital. He then ejected the Vincents from the car, and forced McCreedy out at Riverside.

The next trace of Runyon was discovered yesterday afternoon when he forced a LaPorte farmer—at shotgun point—to give him 11 gallons of gasoline.

Fort Dodge police received a call about 9 o'clock that Runyon had briefly abducted Horace Dougan, (See RUNYON, page 5)

24 Die in Explosion At Norfolk Navy Base

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A mighty blast attributed to the explosion of ammunition in transit killed 24 persons and injured some 250 others yesterday at the Norfolk naval air station in Norfolk's worst disaster since the Italian dirigible Roma crashed in 1922 with a loss of 34 lives.

It was learned unofficially that a vast majority of the dead and injured were navy men. Official casualty lists were expected soon after the navy had notified the victims' next of kin.

Clark's Forces Gain 10 Miles, Take Villages

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA (AP)—The American Fifth army, winner of the violent battle for Salerno, joined yesterday with the British Eighth army after the latter's epic 200-mile conquest of the Italian toe and shattered the last hopes of the weakened Germans for establishing a defense line in that area.

Indications were that the Germans already were being pulled away from the southern end of the Salerno front to avoid being caught from behind by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's onrushing Britons.

Firmly holding the initiative, Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army battered 10 miles inland to capture the elevated village of Albarella. The allies also seized other heights south of the Calore river, commanding the coastal flats on which much of the past week's bloody fighting raged.

(Radio Algiers said the allies had taken Montecorvino and its excellent airfield, eight and a half miles inland and 11 miles east of Salerno.)

All allied holdings in southern and western Italy were welded into a single front. The Eighth army not only joined the Fifth below the cemented Salerno beachheads, but established contact with other British forces beating up eastern Italy's Adriatic coast from Tarento beyond Bari.

The German air force almost vanished from southern Italian skies. The preponderance of allied air power was turned in smashing night against communications north of Naples, casting a high explosive barrage around that great Italian port which Clark calls his next objective.

The half-American, half-British Fifth army was strongly reinforced and in high fighting spirit despite a week of violent combat on and near the beaches. Naval support continued excellent.

The possibility that further Nazi withdrawals northward were in progress was seen in the announcement of weakened resistance to the Fifth army's enlargement of its foothold onto higher ground, and in the fact that the main body of the Eighth army was advancing to an area where it could jeopardize enemy forces anywhere south of the Sele river.

The absence of German planes for the second day and the weakened fire from anti-aircraft batteries were viewed as significant. German ground fire usually is intense over any area the Germans intend to hold. Pilots encountered little flak Thursday anywhere near the front.

"And for all our citizens," he said, "we should provide a further measure of social security in order to protect them against certain continuing hazards of life."

Studies of these things and also of the problems of demobilization should be made now, he said, so that the nation will not be caught unprepared when the war ends.

He will send them further messages from time to time, he told the legislators, on these and other subjects.

General approval was sounded on Capitol hill for his message yesterday, but there was some Republican criticism that it did not deal specifically enough with home front problems and some expressions of dissatisfaction with his references to post-war policy.

In discussing the military situation, Mr. Roosevelt pictured Hitler as definitely penned up with the (See F. R. OUTLINES, page 5)

Indirectly, the president replied, too, to a question frequently asked in this country: whether the Soviets may not be ready to quit the war once the Nazis are driven back to the German border.

Lauds Red Offensive He said the Russian offensive is rolling on "toward the elimination of every German from Russian soil—toward the invasion of Germany itself."

The message, one of the longest Mr. Roosevelt has sent congress, fell roughly into four major divisions: a review of the military and strategic situation, the pronouncements on international political matters, a discussion of the home front, and, briefly, a few recommendations.

Among the latter were moves "for the greater economic protection of our returning men and women in the armed forces—and for greater educational opportunities for them."

American Casualties—

A joint report of all the United States armed forces and the merchant marine, rendered on Sept. 1, shows that during the twenty-one months since Pearl Harbor, 103,982 have been killed in action, wounded, reported missing or taken prisoner. The figures do not indicate deaths from accidents and other causes, and of course do not include current casualties in Italy.

During the nineteen months that the United States was in the first world war, the total of casualties in the same classifications, without the merchant marine and excluding men taken prisoner, was 233,978. If allowance is made for the fact that in the current casualty list, 38,895 men are listed as missing, and 23,804 are listed as prisoners of war, the difference is considerably emphasized. It is probable that many who are listed as missing will be reported as prisoners or will turn up in areas now occupied by the enemy.

Some of the difference is certainly due to the great success of this war's medical groups in all arms of the service. They have reduced the death rate from wounds to an undetermined extent, but it may account for the fact that only 19,581 men have been listed as dead, while in the nineteen months of the first world war the battle deaths—killed in action and died of wounds received in action—were 50,510.

Many differences in the conditions of combat and transportation in the two wars can be examined with profit in the way of deductions to show that the casualty probability in this war will be less than in any American war. This will stimulate the morale of the combat forces and will be especially encouraging to civilians whose loved ones are in the theaters of war.

Any price in death or disability is beyond appraisal in individual instances, but in the aggregate the result testifies to the determination of all American military leaders to win the war with the least possible cost in men.

Centenarians Eat Less—

This had better not be a long war, as Hitler once suggested, because, according to a news dispatch from Stockholm, the Germans have called up men from 50 to 60 years old for military service. The German press announced that all men born in the period from 1884 to 1893 must report to their district police stations for enlistment during the month, as Hitler must find replacements for Italian units stationed in the Balkans and France.

As the allies advance into the European fortress, it may be necessary for Hitler to call up older men, say from 80 to 90.

One would think that some Washington official would warn the American people against complacency, against resting on their oars, just because Germany is taking older men. Activity on the battlefield might lengthen as well as shorten the lives of some of these German soldiers.

Britannica points out that functional activity, mental and bodily, plays an important part in postponing the advent of old age, and there is more danger of rusting out than of wearing out. It adds that "the advanced age of many dignitaries on the bench and of prime ministers, though many of these may be supermen, points to the beneficial influence of long-continued activity. Among painters, Giovanni Bellini, Michelangelo and Sidney Cooper worked up to nearly their death, and Titian was painting with 'incomparable steadiness of hand,' when cut off by the plague at the age of 99."

Titian probably would have been a formidable adversary with a sub-machine gun clutched in his incomparably steady hands. "The same retention of productivity was seen in Voltaire, Littere, Anatole France, Goethe, Von Ranke and Frederick Harrison," Britannica adds, asserting that "retirement, often looked forward to in early life, is a source of danger, as it may bring with it cessation from activity."

The Nazis will find, when they call up the class of 1843, that they will not need as much food for their army, because, as Britannica says, "the majority of centenarians have been small eaters."

Still, there's no room for complacency.

News Behind the News

The Real Value of U. S. War Bonds

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON—Most people in the hurry and troubles of their own busy war lives never stop to think about the opportunity these treasury bond drives offer them.

They do not have the time or opportunity to analyze fully what a bond means to them personally. The publicity is generally directed toward inspiring their patriotic spirit for purchases, as it should be, but there is another side of it which should not be overlooked.

Bonds are savings. They are real social security, real old age insurance. They are the best investment for the average man, the safest place to put his money against a rainy day.

If any wage-earner can start early in life to put a certain amount of money each year in small defense bonds, he can have these coming due annually at the end of a 10-year period—not only the amount he paid in, but a 25 percent increase on his investment.

Where else can you find an opportunity for small investment today that guarantees a 25 percent increase in 10 years?

Series E bonds are best for this purpose. I started in saving that way seven years ago, long before the war, and I have been fortunate enough to be able to buy the limit for myself and my family each year since then.

Let us be frank and look at it fairly. Some people hold back in fear of the size of the war debt or inflation. Those objections are foolish.

No matter how great the war debt, these savings bonds will be so widely distributed among the people after this war that the government will have to maintain their purchasing value to the utmost. Public pressure will see to that.

In any event, if you put the money in the bank, you will suffer the same results from inflation, and you will not have the prospect of half as much interest as you will get from the government. (Series E pays 2.93 percent over the 10 year period, which enhances their value 25 percent; savings accounts hereabout now pay 1.5 percent.)

If you hide your money in a sock in the attic, you get no interest, and the results of inflation would be just as disastrous—in fact, it would be disastrous wherever you put it.

These bonds are cash. They are money. People do not seem to understand this. They are the same as dollar bills because they have exactly the same treasury backing, and can be transferred to dollars at any time.

In effect, they are dollars bearing interest. If you put your savings in a bank, the banker will buy a bond anyway and get the 2½ percent or more, while you pay 1½ percent.

For these reasons, every loose dollar held by everyone ought to be in government bonds. It is incomprehensible to me that anyone would choose for any reason to hold cash or money in the bank than to hold a savings bond.

Thus, from cold reasoning, this bond drive should reach into every crevice of idle money in this country and put it to productive use both for the good of the country and the good of the individual citizen.

More stirring necessities back up this cold one. If you have anyone near the battle front—and who has not—you will want to sacrifice to buy even beyond your savings limit. Certainly if he stops to think about it, any man would deny himself actual purchases of comforts and put this money into bonds when he contemplates the national necessity and his personal duty in it.

The slogan is "Back the Attack." This is to be the final attack, we must make sure. It is to be the big drive which will crush our enemies and the duty assigned to any man, who has a dollar or can save one, is clear. It may be his last chance to do his

It is not often that a man is confronted duty, a profitable duty, with a proposition which is at the same time necessary, profitable, and patriotic. Every citizen has this privilege in this current bond campaign.

This is your country and you should be a stockholder in it, as big a stockholder as you can.

Remember Balboa—

September 26 will be the anniversary of an important event in the life of a man indirectly responsible for Pearl Harbor, and directly responsible for having the current conflict a global one. The man was Vasco Nunez de Balboa and the most important event in his life was his discovery, in 1513, of the Pacific ocean.

Of course, Balboa did not know that he had discovered the Pacific Ocean. The appellation, Pacific, an ill-fitting name for that ocean in these days, was conferred upon it by Magellan, who, in 1521, sailed across it to the Philippines, a land now under Japanese misrule.

Unfortunately for Balboa, he had to depend upon historians for publicity, whereas Cortez, wholly devoid of ocean-finding talent, had the fortune to have a poet for a press agent. There may be a moral in this for people who hope to attain posthumous glory for something they didn't do.

The point is to make arrangements now to have some future Keats of 2043 freeze your name into an immortal poem.

Interpreting The War News

F.D.R. Warns Nazis Of Future Offensives Planned at Quebec

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst
Nazi forces already reeling backward in Russia and in Italy are under direct warning from President Roosevelt that they have felt only a foretaste of what is in store for them and their Japanese and Balkan accomplices.

"Precise plans" were shaped at Quebec, the president told a reconvened congress, for other blows "of equal or greater importance against Germany and Japan." "Definite times and places for other landings on the continent of Europe and elsewhere," have been set, he added.

The news from Italy and Russia underscored that pledge. With the junction of the American Fifth and British Eighth armies at the south end of the Salerno bridgehead, the campaign in Italy ceased to be an affair of the landing beaches. It became a full-scale drive northward up the Italian boot.

There can be no doubt that Nazi divisions rushed to the Salerno front to halt or delay the seaborne Fifth army incursion are now back-tracking over inadequate and bomb-blasted roads to escape entrapment.

The first grim phase of the battle of Italy is over in a smashing allied victory. The speed with which the first spearhead of the three-pronged British advance from the south reached the Salerno theater clearly indicates that the Nazi high command was taken by surprise. It has been outguessed as well as outfought thus far in Italy as it was in Sicily.

It is in Russia, however, that the most ominous developments for the Germans—developments directly traceable to the allied invasion of the Italian mainland and the Italian capitulation—are clearly visible. Despite the Russians' insistence that the allied effort still is short of full second-front effect, the signs are plain that it is the shifting of German reserves from the east to the Balkans and Italy that has opened the way for the tremendous Red army thrust in the center that has reached almost to the environs of Kiev.

CROSS ROADS

Red spearheads are along the east bank of the Desna river just above its confluence with the Dnieper at Kiev. They are knocking at the same door to Kiev through which the Germans lunged in a surprise drive down the Desna to take the city and unhinge the whole southern Russian defense front two years ago.

The explanation appears to be that German divisions from that front in the Dnieper loop must have been pulled out to be rushed to Italy and the Balkans. They were the closest for quick transportation to the tottering south wall of the European fortress.

Russian discovery of Nazi weakness in the Dnieper loop was prompt. Red forces have carved a westward bulge into German lines between Nazi "evacuated" Bryansk and Russian captured Losenya more than 300 miles wide and more than 200 miles deep.

It is threatening northward the last westward escape route from the Bryansk salient for the enemy, the Bryansk-Gomel railroad and highway system to the Dnieper. Berlin's reiterated announcement of the surrender of Bryansk indicates that a desperate race to the refuge of the west bank of the Dnieper is on in that sector.

Southward the Kiev bulge threatens at any moment to sweep down upon the Dnieper crossings in rear of retreating Nazi forces still east of the river and in the Crimea. There are the makings of a stupendous military disaster for the foe in Russia. Only the start of the fall rains seemingly could avert it.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

After Years of Being Too Tall, Lynn Bari Is Finally the Right Height

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Lynn Bari is a girl Hollywood had to grow up to. She's not too tall any more. There's a vogue for height.

Lynn, the svelte, dark-haired beauty, has done some growing up on her own, too. As an actress. In the 10 years since she skipped school to answer a movie ad for "tall girls," she was 13 then—she has added an inch and a half to her physical stature and also won distinction as the only girl at her studio to rise from stock girl to stardom. She gets that billing, along with Edward G. Robinson and Victor McLaglen, in "Tampico."

She was five-feet-five when she answered the ad, but her mother's high-heeled shoes and long dress helped to qualify her as a "tall girl" even then. She became a "tall girl" dancer in Joan Crawford's "Dancing Lady." In the ensuing years—

"I'd pester producers and the casting office for parts I wanted, and until the past year," she said. "I'd always get the same answer: I was too young to play important leads and too tall to play ingenues. I might have put in a word about Garbo's being no midget, but that was no comeback. I knew the answer to Garbo was that I wasn't one."

After years of being too tall, it was a relief to learn they actually needed a tall girl for "Hello, Frisco, Hello." It was the second lead and I was the "other woman," but it was a good part in a good picture, and it got me this.

"I owe a vote of thanks to the girls on the screen. Anyway, they don't think of me as either tall or short any more. Like everything else, height is relative. I'm tall if you put me beside Veronica Lake. I'm a shorty alongside Alida Smith, and a happy medium if you put me between Rosalind Russell and Ingrid Bergman."

Lynn always thought Miss Bari figure was something extra special, but I didn't know how special until I talked to Yvonne Wood, who designed her clothes for "Tampico." Miss Wood said she was having one heck of a time dressing Bari for this picture. The Bari girl had one glaring fault for "Tampico"—it was "too perfect." It was just right, all over, and she made it tough on Miss Wood. "You see," she explained, "this picture she's supposed to be wearing inexpensive clothes that Mr. Robinson buys for her. Bari she has the kind of figure that makes even a $10 dress look like a $500 creation. It was the hardest job I ever had to make that figure look cheaply dressed. It's a really rare figure that is both artistically slim and alluringly rounded—and she has it."

That called for the vital statistics, and here they are: weight 117; bust, 35 inches; waist, 24 3/4 inch upper hip and 35-inch lower; 42 inches in length from waist to floor; 19 1/2 inches from knee to floor; calf, 12 1/2 inches; ankle, neat seven inches.

"And that," said Miss Wood, "is a million dollar figure."

Washington in Wartime

Old Guard GOP Opens Door

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich.—One thing definitely can be said of the Republican post-war advisory council just concluded here: The Old Guard still is in the saddle but they really tried to bend over backward to give the party's "bright young men" a place in the party councils.

When the opening session of the 40-odd present members of the "Council of 49" was held, Spangler was designated to appoint the committees, and out of his pocket he pulled the list.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, was named chairman of the foreign policy and international relations committee, and Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, chairman of the post-war enterprise, industry and employment committee.

Spangler couldn't possibly have done any better by the Old Guard. The only two other possibilities, so far as the convention lists and apparent appointment policies were concerned would have been Sen. Charles L. McNary, minority leader of the upper house, who wasn't here; and Rep.

ment committee, Gov. John Bricker, Ohio, a Taft conservative was made chairman, and former president of the United States chamber of commerce, Sen. Alben W. Hawkes, of New Jersey, second in line. But the committee also included such party stalwarts as Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, Connecticut, and Rep. Everett Dirksen, of Illinois.

On the other hand, Gov. Dewey grew the chairmanship of the government administration committee, and Governor Earl Warren, of California, also in the list of "liberal" possibilities, was given chairmanship of the social security and welfare committee.

Scattered through the committees where they can kick a little dust in the eyes of the Old Guard if they have a mind to, were others as Arizona National Committee member H. Alexander, Michigan Willkieite, Mrs. E. H. Hay; Governors Dwight D. Eisenhower and Rep. Charlie McNary, of Indiana, and others.

Post-War World Major Current Problem, Hancher Tells Masons

Reminding his audience that one of our major current problems is to think about what we will have to face when the war is over, Virgil M. Hancher, president of the university, addressed members and guests of the Masonic lodge at noon yesterday.

"If we are to aim at the position of leadership we now imagine we should occupy, we ought to consider whether or not we have the wisdom and courage to do what a leader in the post-war world will have to do," he said. "In the last war," declared President Hancher, "Europe turned to America for leadership and we refused to accept that responsibility... perhaps that was a recognition that we were not yet equipped to accept the responsibility that leadership would put upon us."

Different World
During this war and at its close, the president continued, we will be faced with a world far different than that at the end of the first world war. Forces in the Orient such as China's tendency toward a democratic government, Japan's aggressiveness, India's rise toward independence, and the growth of Russia, will very likely prevent a unanimous turning toward the United States as the sole leader in the post-war world. "We must co-operate with Europe or perish."

President Hancher fears that we have not made enough progress in understanding foreign languages, customs, economic and political backgrounds in the last twenty-five years to assume leadership after this war.

No Utopia
The president said, however, that he did not feel as pessimistic as these observations would indicate. "But there is no Utopia in sight," he declared. "The occupied countries will be torn with internal strife and bitterness between the anti-Nazis and the former pro-Nazis." He explained that unless the occupational forces of the allies were strong enough, civil war will break out in the countries such as France, Norway and Denmark and it will be a hard problem to restore order and civilization.

In the United States, too, he said we will be anxious to return to normalcy and thus there is a possibility that a period of depression and relaxation will follow.

As citizens of the United States, President Hancher said, we must consider a foreign policy which we can definitely define and which we will not "run out on."

WTS Cadets Fly in Shifts

Cadets have been flying in "wings," as a revised schedule of the War Training service goes into effect this week, Prof. E. C. Lundquist, assistant to Coordinator H. O. Croft, announced yesterday. The new method seeks to increase the efficiency of the group by dividing the flight cadets into wings. The morning wings fly in the morning and attend classes in the afternoon, while the afternoon wings work in the opposite manner.

The intensive W. T. S. program involves elementary studies and flight training which last eight weeks. The intermediate groups are continued for four additional weeks. During their period of training, the cadets study civil air regulations, navigation, communications, physical training, recognition, aerology, and aircraft familiarization and aircraft engines. Eight instructors teach these subjects.

At present here are 30 men in each of the elementary wings and 13 in the intermediate wings. The old plan of training, which had been in operation for the last six months, involved individual flight schedules.

Prof. C. M. Updegraff of the college of law returned Wednesday from New York City, where he has been since Sunday. The work of the committee was to fix a minimum wage scale for the employees of the bakery, and to act as an advisory body to the industries involved. Although the major work of the committee was completed this week, it will be consulted further if questions arise as to the fairness of minimum wages, overtime pay, or other related problems.

The work on this committee will not interrupt Professor Updegraff's regular discharge of his duties at the university, because from now on it will consist largely of his acting in an advisory capacity.

"You'll never reach Berlin, says he."

"YOUR HOME FRONT," he comes back... "your people at home are too soft and selfish to make sacrifices. And unless they buy you the guns and tanks and planes, your INVASION will be a slaughter."

"Listen Nazi," I snapped, "right now, my country is planning the 3rd War Loan—15 Billion dollars—to pay for this INVASION. They'll do it, too! I've got a family—mother, father, sisters and brothers, aunts and uncles. I've got friends that write to me regularly. They won't let me down. They're buying War Bonds now, but they'll buy extra Bonds this month."

"Fool," sneers this Nazi, "your Americans at home talk big—but they're more interested in luxuries than in your life. When it comes to sacrifice, that's your job—alone."

I walked away... I was seeing red.

But I thought I'd better speak to you, anyway. Just in case you might think they're kidding about this 3rd War Loan. They're not—that money will pay for INVASION equipment.

Understand that every American is asked to buy at least one extra $100 War Bond this month. But don't stop there—I know a lot of you can and will invest thousands—you've got to, to put it over. Buy War Bonds out of pay checks, dig the money out of the old sugar bowl or wherever it is—but for the luva Mike, buy all you can! Over here, we know how important it is, and we're buying Bonds out of our pay. But we don't make much, so it's up to you at home, really.

It's a darned good investment, anyway. What else carries the backing of the whole United States Government behind it?

Well—I know you'll buy extra bonds—I just wanted to make sure you know how important it is to put everything you've got behind us.

Write soon, will you? And I'll drop you a line from Berlin, one of these days.

Leading the Navy Pre-Flight school's Seahawks forth into their opening grid battle of the season this afternoon against Illinois at Champaign, Ill., will be Cadet Don Magel, whose appointment as captain of the team was revealed yesterday by Lieut. Don Faurot, head coach.

Magel, who starred on the high school team in his home town of Allen Park, Mich., has had no collegiate football experience. Since practice season began in August he has won the admiration of the Seahawk coaches for his steadily improving play, team spirit and all-around field generalship.

Among the pre-flight starters in today's contests, two will go into action against their alma mater. Jimmy Smith, 1942 captain for the Illinois, will start at right half for the navy and Roy Hoppe, an Illinois reserve last year, will take his place in the Seahawks starting lineup at fullback.

Although the Seahawks are favored in today's game, Coach Faurot stated this week that they did not share a common view that Illinois would be a pushover.

"When you play against men like Greenwood, who was with the University of Missouri for two years, Palmer, Prymiski, who was an outstanding player of Illinois of last year, McGovern, over 210 pounds," he said, "you know you have no easy job ahead of you. My cadets are well conditioned, fighting, and fast but we know we are in for a hard tussle. I think we will win, but it won't be easy."

Important names on the navy squad will take a back seat as Coach Faurot starts an all-cadet 11 against the opponents this afternoon. The lineup will be made up, with the exception of Smith, of unheard of players, among whom are several who have not had any college grid experience.

It is expected, however, that some of the better known men on the Seahawk roster will see some action during the game.

University high Bluehawks chalked up a victory for their opening game of the season yesterday afternoon, as they trounced the Kalona Kubs by a score of 28-6.

The Bluehawks wasted no time getting their offense rolling, as they scored early in the first quarter, the first time the ball was in their possession. After the team had advanced steadily down the field Jim Williams took the ball from the 11-yard line to go over for a touchdown. Bill Helm cut the crossbar to score the extra point.

Helm then kicked off to Kalona who after gaining one first down were forced to punt. Here U, high again took over, Williams going for a gain of about 17 yards on one play. A pass from Shay to Williams ended the quarter with the ball on the Kalona 41 yard line.

On the opening play of the second quarter Shay took the ball and ran 40 yards to a touchdown only to have the play called back, because U, high was offside. On the next play Shay quick-kicked to Kalona, and the ball was put in play on the 20 yard line. Getting nowhere, Kalona again punted to U, high who marched down the field without losing the ball. Williams went over from the 30-yard line for the second U, high touchdown. Helm's kick was good, making the score 14-0, favor of U, high.

After the second touchdown, Coach Brechler put in his second team for the remainder of the first half. Kalona then came through for a touchdown, for their only score of the game. Conklin of Kalona tore through the line for two substantial gains and then completed a pass. Running plays brought the ball to the eight yard line, and two more plays through the line brought the ball to the four. A penalty on the play set it on the two yard line, where Sherwood Strickler plunged over for the score. The kick was no good. As Kalona kicked off the half ended.

The first score of the second half occurred when a Kub punt was blocked deep in their own territory. Shay took the ball over for the third U, high tally. Helm's kick cleared the bar to make the score 21-6.

Not long after, the Bluehawks scored their fourth and final touchdown as Don Wagner raced 40 yards to score, after a pass from Shay to Follett had netted a substantial gain. Helm then kicked his fourth successive goal to bring the score to 28-6. The second team came in again, and the rest of the game found the ball about equally in the two teams' possession.

While the line was inexperienced, they played a good game and showed considerable improvement, especially in blocking. Kalona found it no easy job to crack the U, high line either, as they were forced to punt on fourth down many times. The Bluehawks' second team looked good, Greene and Harper showing particular promise.

Todd Makes First Score In 1st Stanza

By RALPH A. SCHWEITZER

Sparked by the sterling play of a few shining lights, the Little Hawks of Iowa City high last night downed Moline, 12 to 0. Iowa City looked at times like a championship team, particularly at the start of the game, when they reeled off gains almost at will, and seemed about to swamp the visitors by at least seven or eight touchdowns. Soon, however, the Maroons organized a defense which was able to block the home team's plans to make the game a runaway.

Iowa City raced away to a fine start, returning the opening kickoff to their own 30. From there, Lay and Ware smashed around the ends for gains of from 14 to 30 yards per try. Todd finally broke away on a left-end run and traveled the final 16 yards to cross coffin-corner standing up. At the end of the first six plays, Iowa City had scored six points. From there, the game see-sawed until the final quarter, when the Little Hawks managed to push over another touchdown, thus adding the other six points to the score. Both conversion attempts were wide.

The local backfield showed some real talent in individual performance. George Ware and Don Lay ripped the ends for many considerable gains, and Wayne Hopp showed terrific drive in plunges over tackle and through the center of the line. Bob Todd, too, turned in an excellent performance and scored the first touchdown of the game. In the line, Dick Lee deserves special notice for his excellent defensive game, although the entire line was strong with the possible exception of the end positions, which yielded once or twice to end sweeps by the Moline backfield.

Moline, although failing to show much precision on drive, did show a couple of promising players in Fanning and Hull, who led the Maroon attack and kept the score from mounting higher than it did. Moline fielded a younger and more inexperienced team than did Iowa City, their aggregation being made up chiefly of juniors.

On the statistical end of the story, Iowa City did even better, scoring 13 first downs to 6 for Moline. Iowa City's numerous large gains helped materially in piling up a yardage total of 303 yards from scrimmage, while the visitors were able to penetrate the Hawk defense for 73 yards. Moline had a slight edge in the passing, which played a surprisingly small part in the action of the game, and suffered very little from penalties, only 5 yards being assessed against them. Iowa City, playing a rather rough game at times, lost 70 yards by penalties.

After the initial touchdown, the game moved slowly forward until a reverse from Ware to Hopp in the third quarter moved the ball down to the Moline 3-yard line. There the Moline line strengthened and held. Iowa City threatened through the third period, playing deep in Moline territory.

The Cardinals, scheduled to play the Chicago Cubs tonight, needed at least another day to dispose of the Cincinnati Reds, however.

Iowa Regulars Shocked, 6-5, By Reserves

By Associated Press Staff Writer

Helpless at the hands of a split reserve team, the Iowa regulars were shocked into a 6 to 5 defeat yesterday afternoon in a regulation intra-squad football game in Iowa stadium.

Poor work on the part of an almost pitifully weak line, which bogged down at critical moments, cost the regulars the game. Half a dozen times they spent themselves deep in enemy territory after drives that appeared to be goalward bound.

"That black team (the regulars) put on the poorest exhibition of football that I've seen here all summer or all fall," Coach Slip Madigan declared.

A nine-yard end run by half-back Paul Glaesner in the third quarter gave the reserves their tally. The stage was set by full-back Dan Sullivan who returned a pass interception 60 yards.

The regulars got their five points on a 15-yard field goal by Bill Barbour and an automatic safety after Barbour had blocked a punt. Last Saturday the regulars romped over the reserves 42 to 7 in an intra-squad contest.

The revised first team lineup which grew out of this week's practices started the contest for the regulars, but Coach Madigan shifted the men back to their old positions in the second half.

Madigan praised the work of reserves Glaesner and Paul Zaehninger, halfbacks; Sullivan, full-back, and Daryl Annis, quarterback. The coach especially lauded Annis' leadership.

Ask Junior League Managers to Report Cage Teams Soon

Junior League managers of the Iowa City recreation center basketball teams should report to the center as soon as their teams are organized, according to J. Edgar Frame, director. Times for practice periods will then be set.

Junior League will include two age groups in the 1943-44 fall and winter program; 14 years and under; 15, 16 and 17 year olds.

Senior league basketball managers are also asked to report and set a time for practice games. Those interested in entering a team in the city league should get teams started.

Tuesday, Sept. 28, at 8 p. m. in the recreation center there will be a meeting of all managers interested in entering a team in the city league. Further announcement will be made about this later.

Giants Score 6 to 4 Victory over Cubs

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers were left dorny in the National league pennant race yesterday as the New York Giants scored four times in the seventh inning to carry off a 6 to 4 victory.

As a result the Dodgers were made subject to mathematical elimination as soon as the St. Louis Cardinals win one more game.

The Cardinals, scheduled to play the Chicago Cubs tonight, needed at least another day to dispose of the Cincinnati Reds, however.

NEW GOLF PRO ARRIVES HERE

Chapman Assumes Pro, Manager Duties At I. C. Country Club

Gene Chapman, who was appointed two weeks ago as pro and manager of the Iowa City Country club, arrived here to take over his new duties.

Chapman is former pro and manager of the Dubuque Country club at Dubuque and the Lancaster Country club at Lancaster, Wis., and was at one time assistant pro at Burr Oaks Country club at Madison, Wis.

Since his arrival here, he has begun measures for improvements to the clubhouse, including a bent grass nursery for replacing greens and tees.

He is married and has three daughters, aged nine and six years and nine months.

Bluejackets Favored

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (AP)—Great Lakes' football team will go after its second victory of 1943 today before 20,000 Bluejackets at the naval training station, but doesn't know how good its chances will be against a Purdue team which is just making its bow.

The Boilermakers' have a full roster of navy and marine trainees assigned to the Purdue campus under the naval V-12 program. Their probable starting lineup includes five transfers from Illinois and one each from Fordham.

TIME OUT

by Dolores Rielly

According to a letter received this week from Lieut. Rollie Williams, former Iowa basketball coach, the navy is keeping him plenty busy with an athletic program at a base somewhere in the Pacific area.

In his letter, he says: "I landed here the first of July and was immediately assigned to one of the naval air stations. . . Our base is a comparatively new one. . .

"At the present time our facilities are rather limited and it's an impossibility to conduct a satisfactory athletic program. We have plans drawn up for an athletic field to accommodate three softball and one hard ball diamonds and also a football field. I have had a plan accepted to construct an outdoor gymnasium, including two basketball courts, two volleyball courts, paddle tennis standard and boxing rings.

"All our activity out here is optional and it will be up to us to develop a program that will be of interest to all enlisted men. We have plans for a swimming pool, but it will be some time before that will materialize. At the present we have eight tennis courts and a small softball diamond for about 1500 men.

"Right now I am busily engaged whipping a football team into shape. We have issued fifty uniforms but we are only able to get about half of the men out each evening, due to extra night duty and watches. We get underway around six in the evening and work until dark and our time is getting shorter every night. We have just about an hour and a half of our own, so we plan to play all our games away from home. I made arrangements to practice on the Sea Bee field. It was the only place around here where I could find an occasional blade of grass.

Lieutenant Williams' letter, we think, is another illustration of the really important part that athletics plays in the training of our service men.

It wasn't his fault, Dad

HE thought it was just a scrap of paper. He didn't know it was one of your valuable documents.

So don't blame him. Blame yourself for not taking the simple and inexpensive precaution of storing your valuables in a safe deposit box in our vault.

RUNYON—

Iowa Falls farmer, after forcing Dougan to give him gasoline. After releasing Dougan Runyon drove south on highway 65.

Two Fort Dodge police officers drove their patrol car to a farm driveway along highway 20 a mile east of Fort Dodge and waited.

Shortly before 10 o'clock Runyon's car came speeding toward Fort Dodge and they gave chase.

Along the mile into town Runyon fired with a sawed-off shotgun at his pursuers and the officers blasted at him with shotguns and .38 calibre sidearms.

About 3 blocks inside the east city limits of Fort Dodge Runyon suddenly halted his car in the middle of the street and got down in the back seat.

As the police car drew near one blast from Runyon's shotgun tore a gash in the side of the officers' machine but they were unhurt.

Runyon had not been hit. "It was getting too hot for me," he said.

Runyon was taken to the Fort Dodge city jail.

The car Runyon was driving when he was captured apparently was the same one he commandeered from Ross McCreedy, the Haskins mechanic.

Runyon escaped from the Fort Madison penitentiary Monday night by burrowing under an electrically-charged fence. He was sentenced to a life term in 1937 for slaying James Zrostlik, Britt, Iowa, farmer, in 1935.

F.R. Outlines Post-War Plan

allies poised to strike heavier and heavier blows.

"The congress and the American people can rest assured that the landing on Italy is not the only landing we have in mind," he said. "That landing was planned at Casablanca. At Quebec, the leaders and the military staffs of Great Britain and the United States made specific and precise plans to bring to bear further blows of equal or greater importance against Germany and Japan—with definite times and places for other landings on the continent of Europe and elsewhere."

Hitler boasted that his fortress was impregnable. Mr. Roosevelt recalled, but neglected to provide it with a roof—and allied bombs are raining down on his vital industries, he added.

"He also left various other vulnerable spots in the wall of the so-called fortress—which we shall point out to him in due time."

Mr. Roosevelt said it was a mistake to think of the conflict as several wars—"It is all one war, and it must be governed by one basic strategy." In that connection, he made these observations:

The Anglo-American forces drew off German air power and pinned down German troops and so contributed substantially to the Russian offensive.

Freeing of the Mediterranean will enable the allies to regain control of the East Indian ocean, undertake an offensive in Burma, and make possible the closing of the "one serious gap in the lines of our globe-encircling seapower," between northwest Australia and Ceylon.
