Battle for Kiev Opens; Krichiev Falls to Reds

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON (AP)—Soviet forces battered their way yesterday into Krichiev, 57 miles east of Mogilev on the White Russian front, while far to the south the first violent air battles and artillery duels amid a constant chatter of small arms opened the battle of Kiev.

Capture of Krichiev was hailed by Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin in an order of the day which called the town "an important strongpoint and railway junction."

The victory came after the Sozh river was forced at the junction of railways to Mogilev and Orsha. At Kiev Soviet forces, installed in the cross-river eastern districts of the city, were less than a hundred yards across a narrow part of the Dnieper from the frowning cliffs of the ancient city. Here German guns answer the attack from emplacements in the ancient cells of monks.

General Draft Of Fathers Begins Today

Congress Heeds Advice Of Military Experts, Fails to Take Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The general draft of pre-war fathers is due to begin today and congress, mindful of military leaders' advice that nothing must stop the flow of men into the ranks, showed no signs last night of heading it off.

The Oct. 1 deadline set weeks ago by selective service means that from now on the number of children a draft-age man has counts for nothing.

From now until the end of the year draft officials intend to call in 446,000 physically fit men between the ages of 18 and 38 who heretofore have been deferred for dependency reasons. And an Associated Press survey showed that in most states some pre-Pearl Harbor fathers may expect to start leaving home for service in October. Few states reported having enough non-fathers to meet quotas past Nov. 1.

Draft Boards to Decide When 3-A's become 1-A's will be determined largely from here on by their order numbers with local draft boards.

These boards have authority to take into consideration extreme hardship cases the importance of a man's job to the war effort. They are not supposed to draft any pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until they have exhausted the supply of childless men, post-Pearl Harbor fathers, those in specified "non-deferrable" jobs and fathers who have quit farming in violation of the law.

The bill of Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) to defer the drafting of fathers until Jan. 1 made no progress in the senate yesterday.

Downey's Effort Fails An effort by Senator Downey (D-Calif) to have it laid aside, pending a congressional examination of the high command's strategy, failed when Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) refused to agree to the necessary unanimous consent. Just before the senate recessed for the day, a bi-partisan group headed by Taft introduced a proposed amendment broadly revising draft regulations and tearing down the state quota system.

Under it, deferment for occupational reasons of non-fathers under 30 would be prohibited, and drafting would proceed on a nationwide, progress scale providing for the taking of all men in the first group before touching the second, etc.

Allies Threaten Jap Positions At Finschhafen

Three Counterattacks Beaten Off by Aussies Closing In on Base

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Friday (AP)—Australian jungle troops are closing in on the last Japanese positions at Finschhafen, New Guinea, after having hurled back three savage Japanese counter-attacks which sought to break the stranglehold.

General MacArthur's headquarters announced today that 50 Japanese were killed in sharp fighting for a strategic spur just outside the townsite. The remainder of the defending forces were scattered.

All enemy resistance has been reduced on the high ground surrounding the little village, the last Japanese holdings on the Huon gulf looking toward New Britain. "Very Close"

MacArthur's spokesman said opposing troops are "very close—a matter of yards." Fighting was reported heavy for jungle-type warfare, but there was no mention of casualties aside from the 50 Japanese killed in the one assault.

While the allies maintained their pressure against Japanese ground troops, bombers from both the southwest Pacific and south Pacific pressed their blows against Japanese bases and heavily damaged an 8,500 ton freighter in Dutch Celebes, and shot down 12 of 35 intercepting Japanese fighters in the northern Solomons.

Pomelaa Catalina bombers which made the 2,000-mile round trip assault on Celebes island northwest of Australia found the freighter at Pomelaa, a nickel mining center. Another force of Australian troops pushing toward Madang, Japanese base northwest of Finschhafen, advanced to a point approximately 14 miles northwest of Kalapit which was captured Sept. 18 in another of General MacArthur's airborne attacks.

The advance left the troops more than 60 miles from Madang. The communique reporting fighting in the Finschhafen area, said our ground forces "are pressing on to the outskirts of the town from the north, west and south."

A SEA-BORNE ALLIED FORCE from Salamaua, effecting a landing north of Finschhafen, and an air-borne allied force, dropping down at Kalapit, which it captured, have succeeded in isolating Finschhafen, important Japanese base on Huon gulf, New Guinea. Control of Finschhafen would give the allies mastery of the gulf waters. Meanwhile, allied planes have again bombed Wewak and Madang, the Jap garrisons of which are now cut off, by land, from their forces at Finschhafen.

OPA Ups Eastern Gas Ration; Cuts Value of 'B,' 'C' Coupons

Atlantic Coast Drivers Now Get 2 Gallons, Effective at Midnight

WASHINGTON (AP)—The office of price administration last night raised the gasoline ration of "A" card holders on the Atlantic seaboard from 1 1/2 to 2 gallons a week and simultaneously cut the value of "B" and "C" coupons to 2 gallons everywhere east of the Rockies.

The cut in the B and C rations was from three gallons in the midwest, southwest and southeast. It was from 2 1/2 gallons in the northeast.

"A" rations were left at 3 gallons in the midwest and southwest. The changes were effective at midnight.

The effect of the move is to increase the A card ration in the northeastern shortage area from 1 1/2 to 2 gallons a week while reducing the B and C rations in that gasoline-starved region from 2 1/2 to 2 gallons each.

In the southeast—North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida—B and C rations are cut from 3 to 2 gallons, while A card rations are moved up from 1 1/2 to 2.

Civilian consumption in the midwest and southwest has been running close to 75,000 barrels a day more than these regions were allotted, OPA said, despite the recent 25 percent reduction in value of A, B and C coupons in that area.

"Under these circumstances there was no option but to cut civilians further," OPA said. "It is imperative that all water be squeezed out of supplemental rations and that B and C coupons in the hands of motorists represent only the gasoline they actually need for occupational use."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate heard yesterday from Senator Lodge (R-Mass) that army and navy commanders in the field have developed a "surprising amount of sentiment" for uniting America's fighting forces under a single department of war.

Lodge, who went far enough forward in the front lines in New Georgia to see Japanese troops in action, came back to the senate yesterday from about 43,000 miles of flying to the far ends of the globe as one of five senators making a unique inspection trip.

The tall, tanned Massachusetts senator told his colleagues: (1) It is "common knowledge" that we are exhausting our oil, that civilians in Algeria and Morocco have more American gasoline than people in the eastern states and that Australia ought to be supplied with petroleum from the British-dominated Persian gulf area.

(2) He wonders whether he had been right in urging continuance of foreign operations by the office of war information in the light of some of its propaganda he had seen.

(3) He hopes the invasion currency being issued in Sicily, does not bear promises "which the already overburdened American people are neither rich enough nor numerous enough to keep."

(4) There is much dissatisfaction among soldiers about the government "censorship and propaganda policy" which pictures our allies as perfect.

(5) There is close integration of American land, sea and air forces in all theaters.

(6) Americans should have post-war commercial rights on landing fields which are being built all over the world.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Yugoslav patriots by scores of thousands savagely fought German troops last night from the middle Adriatic to northeastern Italy, hacking at Hitler's tight-stretched southern European lines in battles now approaching the stature of a major front.

Split, on Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, the port of Susak, 175 miles to the north near Italian Fiume, and the area of Gorizia, about 25 miles above Italian Trieste, were cores of heavy action involving many Nazi divisions. Fighting also was in progress in several other less critical areas.

The German high command indicated the scope of the military task suddenly heaped atop its grave reverses in Russia and Italy by declaring that in current action in the Gorizia area alone "Slovenian and Communist bands" had lost more than 1,000 killed and "several thousand prisoners." Nazi troops were reported to have been ordered to take no more prisoners.

The London Daily Telegraph declared, with seeming authority, that the Yugoslav fighting "without doubt is preliminary to major events in the Balkans, which may lead to a junction of allied and Soviet armies."

Nazi reinforcements were reported being rushed into the Dalmatian coastal sector to take some of the pressure off battered German troops who recaptured Split after 15 days of hard fighting.

All available information indicated that the weight of 25 or more German divisions shortly would be taken off the allies by this half-submerged war in the Balkans.

Beaten Germans Evacuate City To Set Up New Defense Line Near Rome, 135 Miles Distant

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA (AP)—Beaten German forces streamed north out of the burning Naples last night toward their next defense line in the hills just short of Rome, 135 miles away, as American tanks clanked into the outskirts of the great port from the south after skirting Mt. Vesuvius.

(A Berlin dispatch to Stockholm said the Germans had evacuated Naples, and the Nazi-controlled Italian radio said a British fleet was shelling the ravaged city.)

At last report American armored columns had fought their way past the ruins of ancient Pompei to reach Tore Annunziata, arms and iron center nine miles south of Naples and within clear view of their goal.

With the first great step in the conquest of Italy nearing completion in the capture of a superb deepwater port, it was announced that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied commander in chief, met Wednesday with Marshal Pietro Badoglio to discuss the future use of Italy's army and navy against the Nazis.

The unbroken advance of the American Fifth army rolled beyond Mercato San Severino, 22 miles southeast of Naples, and approached the broad plains of Vesuvius in a move that threatened to flank the city of 925,000 and trap any German rear guards who elected to fight there behind street barricades.

The allies already were thinking about Rome, Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's second announced objective, which lies 135 rail miles north of Naples across broad plains netted with excellent highways. A military spokesman yesterday quoted an old schoolbook saying, "All roads lead to Rome," adding that the Nazis face an almost impossible military task of supplying their troops south of the capital for a full scale battle unless they use Rome as a fortified, and not an open, city.

The extreme right flank of the allied line across Italy rapidly was investing the Adriatic coast. The British Eighth army advanced 20 miles north of Zappone to capture Manfredonia on the gulf of that name. Some indications were that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery might be hurling part of his forces westward to flank the Volturno river, 20 miles north of Naples, to which the main body of Marshal Albert Kesselring's army appeared to be fleeing.

The frontal and flanking approaches to Naples were mined and demolished extensively. These familiar German retreat tactics were particularly annoying to the British and American troops of the Fifth beating upon Naples along the narrow coastal bottleneck between Vesuvius and the sea. But already the army was well ensconced on the Naples plains and exerting ever-increasing pressure with strong armored forces—tanks, armored cars, mobile artillery and the like.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal for post-war tax refunds—with the taxpayer allowed to take them in government insurance or annuities—was reported last night to be included in a new administration revenue program calling for a 30 percent withholding tax.

The program will be presented to the house ways and means committee on Monday, but already has been shown to some legislators and congressional sources said it shaped up in this manner:

Increase in individual income taxes, heaviest in the $5,000 to $25,000 brackets, to bring in $6,400,000,000 yearly.

A boost from 40 to 50 percent in the combined normal and surtaxes on corporations to raise $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000.

Higher levies on liquor, tobacco, and some other presently-taxed products, and imposition of excise taxes on some new items, including soft drinks, estimated to produce $2,500,000,000.

The word as to what the treasury has in mind for the taxpayer circulated amid these other capitol developments:

The senate continuing debate on the Wheeler bill to forbid drafting of fathers, heard Senator Downey (D-Calif) suggest that the draft be held up until congress can investigate to determine how long it would take to bomb Germany and Japan into defeat.

The Truth About Japan

A good many Americans are being misled these days about the situation in the Pacific. It is not altogether their fault. They read of one Jap defeat after another, and occasionally come across such rosy magazine articles as this: "Indies in Economic Chaos Under Jap Rule."

Actually, there is nothing rosy about our position in the Pacific any way you look at it. We are still fighting on the outermost fringes of Japan's empire. The inner ring of steel guarding her stolen possessions has not even been touched yet, let alone the possessions themselves. Thus, for the Japanese the war in the Pacific is static. While we are grappling with the end of one or two tentacles, the body of the octopus is still totally intact, functioning as usual, and building itself into a more powerful organism. And it will continue to do so until the heart is crushed.

A recent article in "Knickerbocker Weekly," a magazine published by the Free Netherlands organization, states that "economic disorganization, privation and unemployment still reign in the Netherlands East Indies after 18 months of Japanese military rule" and that Japan has not been able to make full use of the riches she obtained by conquest. The article then goes on, category by category, to point out why the Japs are having such a hard time with rubber, tin, sugar, unemployment, shipping, food, etc., and leads one to believe that the Japs have been able to utilize very little of what they have stolen.

What the article omits is that Japan has now every raw material she needs, and that her war production is going full speed ahead. Ship sinkings have placed some strain on Japan's military and industrial machine, but no material or far-reaching damage has been caused, according to accurate and unbiased war correspondents. However, shipping is obviously Japan's weakest point, and it is there that we must strike the hardest.

Japan is fighting for time today. That is all she needs to become perhaps the world's most powerful nation. She already has the necessary raw materials. Consequently, the longer we take in opening up a major Pacific offensive, the longer the war itself will take. Japan's leaders have said many times that they are preparing for a war lasting 100 years.

Remember these facts, then, the next time you are inclined to view the Pacific situation with over-optimism. Japan is growing more powerful every day; her military manpower reserves have not been touched; her industry is being rapidly decentralized, therefore making the possibility of bombing her into submission more and more remote; her people are prepared to sacrifice everything for victory, and their morale is consistently high.

Don't be misled by the screaming banners, and rosy magazine reports. We still have a long tough war ahead of us in the Pacific.

Hitler and Macbeth—

Hitler and his Nazis go from horror to horror. Instead of hesitating and modifying their procedure, to make it a little more like what is called "civilized warfare," they grow ever more brutal and bloody.

Their recent operations in Italy surpass anything known in modern warfare. They seem to have gone back to medieval times, when human decency and honor vanished. German progress down the Italian peninsula has been an incredible welter of blood, fire, torture, robbery, starvation and all the varied wickedness and cruelty that human nature is capable of at its worst.

This is very much worse than outright savagery in primitive lands, because the perpetrators of these villainies have the mental and material equipment of modern science and technology to make their deviltries effective. Hitler and his perverted hordes seem less and less like human beings, and more and more like "avenging angels," except that in their case there has been no logical reason for revenge. All along, they themselves were the offenders.

They are like Macbeth in Shakespeare's great drama, not unreasonable in the beginning, but urged on by ambition and craving for power until they are finally "sunk so deep in crime" that they must go on until they themselves are destroyed. And so ter-

News Behind the News

What Does the Stettinius Appointment Mean?

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON—Mr. Roosevelt's choice of his lend-lease administrator, Edward Stettinius, ex-big business man to the post of under secretary of state has been commonly interpreted as another surprising evidence of Mr. Roosevelt's swing to conservatism in preparation for the coming election.

It looks more like Mr. Roosevelt, and especially State Secretary Hull are getting ready for a big world-wide trade development program after the war as perhaps the main theme of peace. Mr. Hull's pet policy throughout his career has been international free trade. He needed and wanted a man with business experience to help him along that line. The scope of coming policy in this respect has not yet been divulged.

Furthermore, Stettinius is about as close to the Russians as anyone in this government, having been in charge of all the lend-lease arrangements with them. Some of the liberal groups have been complaining that insufficient attention has been paid Russia lately.

Stettinius gets along well with the Russians, without having been converted to their ideology. As a business man, lend-lease and Russian friend, he fills three practical requirements.

These are sufficient basic reasons for the surprise, beyond the advertised political implications.

It is true the entire series of recent presidential appointments has followed the more conservative trend which Mr. Roosevelt established back when he dropped Leon Henderson as OPA administrator. Since then, he has set up the judicial front composed of Byrnes, Vinson and Jones (with Bernard Baruch as official advisor) in charge of practically all domestic planning.

He called in the Wisconsin ex-banker, Leo Crowley, already filling two important government posts, to take over in addition the Wallace-Milo Perkins economic sideshow and turn it over to a business functioning basis without all the animal acts and reforming ballyhoo. Now he has boosted Mr. Crowley a notch higher, elevating him to control of relief and rehabilitation, since Governor Lehman is preparing to take the bigger international role in that line, (Lehman also being a New York banker.)

All these appointees may be conservative as the liberals rate them, but more important than that, they seem to represent an effort to do a practical job here rather than a political job.

To say that Mr. Roosevelt has gone conservative, however, would be going too far, as he still has all his old most intimate New Deal associates around, Messrs. Hopkins, Frankfurter, Rosenman, Cohen, etc., and, in most government agencies, you will still find new dealers hidden away in key spots. To me, it seems the president has not gone anywhere politically.

Weird Activities of Wallace's Farmer Bureau—

The weird activities of agents of Vice-President Wallace's former bureau of economic warfare in their search for strategic materials, are still being related. Many of his men went into the Amazon jungle area, inhabited chiefly by Indians, who do not even wear a sarong, or at least only in its most abbreviated form. An effort was made to induce them to gather rubber.

Before the project really got under way, a government shipment of 1,500 sewing machines arrived in the jungle for distribution to the Indians as an inducement to make them work. Just who sent them, or why, was not apparent to those in charge on the ground. They were not used and were sent back. Incidentally the Indians of the area would not do the work—any way and natives had to be imported from another district.

International Police Force—
The internationalist group in the senate hears Mr. Roosevelt is still for the international police force. One of their number came back from the White House with that story.

But from past statements of White House position coming out from calling senators (even off the record), it is not safe to bet much money on this one. The caller also went to the state department, but got nothing from Hull, for or against.

rible is the wreckage they make that all civilized men must unite for their destruction.

Lies as Weapons—

It should be realized, more clearly than it is, how much the enemy fights with lies. In both the European and Pacific areas it is regular procedure. And in this game the European liars are likely to be more intelligent and effective than the oriental ones.

One of the most cruel examples of this wave broadcasts from enemy countries, which profess to give information regarding American war prisoners. There are many such reports of Americans wounded or captured, and living under hard conditions in enemy countries. The Red Cross, which has investigated many such reports, says they are likely to be false. They are spread by the enemy in an effort to undermine American morale at home and among the armed forces.

The Red Cross advice is to ignore such reports.

Washington in Wartime—

Yanks Prove Big Brothers

WASHINGTON—You may remember stories about the American soldiers teaching German kids to play baseball during days of occupation right after World War I. Here are a couple of stories that show that the doughboy gets along with the youngsters of occupied territory today just as well as he ever did.

Both these stories, which have just drifted back from Sicily, are about mascots, both called Johnny. The first one's real name is Giovanni. He's a 12-year-old Sicilian whose mother was killed in an air raid and whose father hasn't been heard from since he went off to the Russian front.

Johnny wandered into the bivouac of an armored division medical battalion after that historic end-run to Palermo. At first he just sat on the stubble of a wheat field and sang solemnly to himself. Soon the soldiers began to talk and joke with him and to share their C rations. Johnny moved in as mascot.

Now he goes about with his civilian clothes rounded out with a pair of GI shoes and a GI cap. He wears the medical battalion's Red Cross armband and—most proudly of all—the division's patch sewed to his sweater. His salute is famous and he clicks his heels like the general's snappiest aide. Johnny is most famous for his voice. His repertoire includes Italian translations of "Oh Johnny," "The Butcher Boy," "The Woodpecker Song, and an unprintable number about Mussolini.

The most touching display of Johnny's wistfulness to be one of the gang came on the first pay day after he "joined up." As the men lined up, he shyly handed the company commander, Capt. R. M. Pruyn of Yonkers, N. Y., an envelope containing a few lira he had earned around camp. Then he got into line and received his money all over again.

The vanguard of the German troops occupying the Sudeten marched across the Czech border this morning. "We're bound to have state economy now," one Czech high official said as that country stood waiting to see if the German trade-by-barter system would work to lower their standard of living.

Editorial comment: "A general European war has been averted at least temporarily and while we in America felt the tension, our feelings can really be nothing to those of the Germans, the Czechs, French and the English. The construction of engines of death has jumped by leaps and bounds since 1919 and any European war would result in the near destruction of the entire Old World civilization. "It is almost breath-taking, the whole changing scene of Europe. It may be the dawn of a new possibility for international understanding and world relations."

At a roundtable and open discussion in the Old Capitol senate chamber, Prof. Feigh, a Sudeten German, said, "Germany has been treated fairly and the concessions that have been granted her have been very generous. However," he went on to say, "avoiding bloodshed is not a solution in Europe. Hitler has broken his word right and left, and I am convinced that the most recent treaty will not stop him."

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

'The Story of Dr. Wassell' Will Air No Dirty Linen Because of C. B.'s Laundry

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Note of the stars had to walk the length of a city block, conversing all the way. The set was the outdoor "New York street," covered with black cloth to simulate night. The cloth flapped noisily in the breeze, and military planes roared high above, but the sound experts merely smiled. Their "directional mike" would blot out those extraneous noises.

And it did, but they still came to grief. All the takes were spoiled—so that the dialogue would have to be dubbed in later, by the swishing of Deanna's long evening gown.

If Preston Sturges doesn't laugh at actor shortages, he at least grins at them. What he did for "Hail the Conquering Hero," when he needed five husky marines to tramp through the story with Eddie Bracken, was to make actors out of men who were "the type."

He took James Damore, a studio laborer who once had had a yen to act; Freddie Steele, the prize-fighter, for the role of a gruff, dead-pan marine hero; Jimmie Duende, an ace stunt man; Len Hendry, who has been stand-in for Bob Hope ever since Hope came to pictures. And for the fifth he found walking into his office one day looking for a job, a youngster named Stephen Gregory, invited out of the army, with a background in stock acting and professional football.

Frank Ehrbrage was directing Deanna Durbin and Franchot Tone in a long walkie-talkie scene for "His Butler's Sister." The two

A matinee tea dance to recorded music from 2:30 until 4:30 p. m. in the recreation room will highlight Sunday afternoon's program. At the same time portraits will be sketched in the lounge, succeeded by a social hour at 4:30.

Beginning next week the USO rooms in the Community building will be open from 7 until 10 p. m. every evening, Tuesday through Friday. The headquarters are open week days from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., Saturday from 9 a. m. until 11 p. m. and from 9:30 a. m. until 9 p. m. on Sunday.

Acting Law Dean's Article Published

Prof. Percy Bordwell Writes on Problems of Post-War Period

Prof. Percy Bordwell, acting dean of the college of law, has been informed that his article on post-war governmental problems has been published in the book "World Peace Plans," compiled by Julia E. Johnsen.

Professor Bordwell's article is entitled "A Constitution for the United Nations." It is patterned after the constitution of the United States and was published in the March, 1943 Iowa Law Review.

In his article, Professor Bordwell says concerning the parallel construction of his "Constitution for the United Nations" and the United States constitution: "When one goes over the United States' Constitution thus in detail, one is struck by the number of post-war questions to which it furnishes an answer, not a necessary answer by any means, but one that has worked well in experience. There are other post-war questions, such as for instance that of boundaries, which are not properly constitutional and which it does not answer and must be left for the final peace."

Professor Bordwell's plan preserves the arrangement of the United States' Constitution even to articles, sections and amendments, and was originally published in parallel columns with it, "World Peace Plans" is one of a series of books published by the H. W. Wilson company, New York, which provides material for use in debate, discussion or study of important contemporary questions. They are known as the Reference Shelf books. The one in which Professor Bordwell's article appears is Reference Shelf volume 18, No. 5.

Prof. A. Craig Baird of the speech department compiled two previously issued books of the Reference Shelf series, on representative American speeches.

Other contributors to "World Peace Plans" include Cordell Hull, Winston Churchill, Robert A. Taft, Clare Luce Booth, Harold E. Stassen and Ely Culbertson.

University High Gridders Clash With West Liberty Today

Unbeaten Bluehawks Meet Strong Foe Here This Afternoon

The University high Bluehawks, after scoring decisive victories in their first two tilts of the season, will be put to a hard test today when they clash with the power-packed West Liberty team at 3:15 this afternoon on the varsity practice field south of the Hawkeye stadium in the annual Dad's day game.

Coach Brechler plans to start the same lineup today as the one which ran roughshod over the Marion team last week to claim a 34-6 victory. Starting for U-high will be:

- Jack Shay FB
- Jim Williams RH
- Don Wagner LH
- Bill Helm QB
- George White LE
- Bob Van der Zee LT
- Don Follett LG
- Doug Spear C
- Bernie Mellecker RG
- Max Seaton RT
- Steve Nusser RE

When the Bluehawks take the field against West Liberty today they will be meeting a team which only last week vanquished Anamost in 47 starts. U-high's defense will probably be put to their hardest test of the season, as they try to stop the hard charging West Liberty backs.

Brechler's eleven is not going into the game unprepared by any means. All week the boys have been going through extensive practice in preparation for the game.

In Wednesday's practice both offensive and defensive passing were especially emphasized, as was offensive blocking, a point which Brechler has particularly stressed all year in coaching the Bluehawks.

Yesterday's practice saw the Bluehawks reviewing offensive running plays and all passing plays. Punt formations and quick kicks were also on the docket for yesterday's practice, as were drop kicks. Jack Shay, backfield star of the Bluehawks, did the passing and punting, while Bill Helm did the drop kicking. In the two games this season, Helm has kicked seven out of eight of the points after touchdown.

Phil Kendall, end, who was injured early in the season, will probably see action for the first time in today's game, as his knee injury has healed sufficiently to allow him to play.

SPORTS TRAIL...

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Sometimes it's better to back into an argument than to go in head first, as then you're facing in the right direction if you want to get away from there in a hurry.

Following this bit of logic we'll back into the debate as to the merits of the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees by trying to figure out what they don't have, rather than what they have. Most of the comparisons are positive comparisons, based on their current line-ups. This is negative, or at least not positive, by any means.

Anyway, it is based on what each team is missing from the 1942 world series, and by trying to figure which club suffered the greatest losses you might get a line on their current relative strength. The Cardinals won last year, four games to one, and if the two teams were in fact for this year's competition, you might figure the outcome would be the same, always taking into consideration the improvement or deterioration that might be shown by youthful or aging players.

Of those who played major roles in last year's series and who are missing this year, five are Yankees and four are Cardinals.

The Yankees lost all four of their series' .300 hitters—Phil Rizzuto .381, Red Rolfe .353, Joe DiMaggio .333 and Buddy Hassett .333—and their only winning pitcher, Red Ruffing.

The Cardinal losses primarily were in speed, as they included Jimmy Brown, Terry Moore, Enos Slaughter and Johnny Beazley, although Beazley's was a different kind of speed. Brown was the only 300 hitter for the Red Birds last year, and he just made it. Beazley won two of the four games. Harry Hopp was a series regular for the Cards last year, but inasmuch as he is available and isn't playing, he can't be considered a loss.

Some of the losses you might say neutralize each other more or less. DiMaggio and Moore, the rival center fielders, for instance. On their play in last year's series there was little to choose between them, although DiMaggio's batting average was better.

Brown and either Rolfe or Rizzuto might also cancel each other. And the same might be said of Ruffing and Beazley.

Whether the loss of Hassett would offset the loss of Slaughter is open to question. Hassett, playing in only three games, had the better batting average last year, but Slaughter's arm probably won one game for the Cards, and personally if we had our choice of which man we'd want on our side in a series it would be Slaughter.

Summing up, the Yankees lost one more man and over-all better hitting. The Cardinals lost speed and daring on the bases. Each team lost its top series pitcher.

Naturally, this is all just running the clock backwards so you can't tell what time it is, as a man might lose $5 from his right hand and pick up $10 with his left, and a club might lose one player and pick up a better one.

But when you come right down to it the system is about as good as any for doping out the series' teams for, except in the years when the Yankees were so much superior to all other clubs that picking them was just a matter of course, selecting the winner of a close series such as this promises to be is purely a matter of guess-work.

By that is meant that in a short series you practically can discard individual season's records, as players are liable to play far above or far below their natural ability.

And as it's just a guess, we'll guess the Cardinals, about four games to two.

Hawkeyes, Badgers Will Attempt to Prove Big Names, Reputations Aren't Everything

Iowa and Wisconsin players a few months out of high school will try to prove tomorrow in Iowa stadium that they don't need big names and sports reputations to play vigorous and crowd-pleasing football.

In the starting lineups are Iowa's civilians, seven of them in their first major college game, and Wisconsin's young men who include six civilians and five naval trainees with limited football experience.

There is extra interest for Iowans, too, as Coach "Slip" Madigan, in his Big Ten debut, attempts to engineer a defeat of a team from the school which spoiled the league title race entrance of Iowa's Ossie Solem in 1932 and Irl Tubbs in 1937.

All signs point to an even game between teams of about the same weight and ability. Wisconsin, however, has the advantage of game experience in two contests, the 33-7 loss to Marquette and the 10-7 defeat by Camp Grant on a field goal in the final five seconds.

Hawkeyes came up with some fine defensive play in holding Great Lakes to 21-7 last Saturday, stopping six sailor thrusts within the 30-yard line. And on the same day, the Badgers were showing courage in halting soldier drives deep in their own territory.

With former Notre Dame men as coaches, the teams have similar attacks, but the running games have not been effective to date. Hawks will bank on such players as Dale Thompson, Paul Glasener, who threw the touchdown pass to Bill Barbour last week; Jim Hudson, and Bill Gallagher. Don Kindt, Clarence Self and Len Calligaro have been Wisconsin's best gainers.

Lines are even in average weight per man, at 190 pounds, but Wisconsin has a seven-pound margin in the backfield. Navy trainees on the Badger team are Ramlow, Keenan, Fisher, Doar and Clarke.

It is the 21st game of the series. Since 1894, Wisconsin 13 to Iowa's 7, but in the games of the past 20 years the teams have broken even in 14 contests.

Probable starting lineups tomorrow:

IOWA	WISCONSIN
Danner LE	Ramlow
Frey LT	Weiger
Mohrbacher LG	Davey
Baughman C	Keenan
Liddy RG	Fisher
Cozad RT	Doar
Barbour RE	Eulberg
Stewart QB	Clarke
Glasener LH	Self
Hudson RH	Kindt
Gallagher FB	Calligaro

Officials: Referee, Lyle Clarno (Bradley Tech); umpire, Wiley Hartzell (Simpson); field judge, John Wilson (Ohio State); head linesman, Perry Graves (Illinois).

Cornhuskers Lose Joe Kessler LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—The 33 Nebraska football players who will leave this morning for their opener tomorrow against Minnesota will not include quarterback Joe Kessler, of Wayne, Coach Ad Lewan-Kenfield who is nursing an injured knee, and one of the Husker's best defensive players, was declared scholastically ineligible.

White Sox Defeat New York Yankees

Zuber Yields 8 to 3 Loss After Chandler Holds Sox 3 Innings

NEW YORK (AP)—Spud Chandler, 20-game winner for the championship Yankees twirled a hitless three-inning world series tuneup against the Chicago White Sox yesterday, but the Sox pounded his successor, Bill Zuber, hard for an 8 to 3 victory.

A crowd of only 771 paid—believed the smallest in the history of the Yankee stadium—saw the contest.

In the fifth Zuber yielded two runs on Webb's triple, a walk and Edgar Smith's two-bagger. After the Yankees tied it in their half on singles by Nick Etten and Bud Metheny and Tuck Stainback's triple, the Sox put together four hits with a walk for three runs. A single by Wally Moses drove in two of the tallies. The Sox bunched four more hits in the seventh for three more tallies, knocking Zuber out of the box.

Hawks' Advantage Iowa has the advantage of playing the advantage of having played one more game this season in its home field. Wisconsin has the advantage of a scoreless tie would not be too surprising, but if to either team, the nod should go to the Badgers, and so we are picking Wisconsin over Iowa in a very close game.

At Ames, the Iowa State Cyclones open their season against a reconstituted Iowa Seahawk team. Through terms of a "gentleman's agreement," it was decided that the officers of the Pre-Flight school would not play in this game, nor in their succeeding contests. In this, they should give a lot of ground before their adversaries. In other words, the team which plays Iowa State tomorrow will not be the same team which ground Ohio State to a pulp last Saturday. Nevertheless, the Seahawk strength should prove to be too much for the Cyclones, but the score may not be as impressive as it might otherwise be.

Top Game of Week Other games scattered throughout the country are highlighted by three in particular. Michigan meets Northwestern in the top tilt of the day. Michigan, ranked No. 1 in America, should have little trouble disposing of Northwestern, ranked No. 12, in a game that should see plenty of scoring. Both teams have exceedingly potent backfield combinations that have an exciting habit of breaking away for long gains at frequent intervals, and the game should provide plenty of thrills.

Notre Dame, ranked No. 2, collides with Georgia Tech, ranked No. 13. Many experts are picking the weird Georgia Tech defense to fool the Irish, but it seems hardly likely that the cagey Notre Dame team will be taken in by such a ruse. Notre Dame proved its power against Pittsburgh, and we see no reason why it should not continue on the victory march by downing Georgia Tech.

Coast Powerhouse The final top game is being played in Berkeley, where the Golden Bears of California meet the University of Southern California for the first time this year. Both teams will play again later this season, for the Pacific coast conference has split itself into two parts and is following a home-and-home schedule, in order to save transportation over the long distances of the west. This Saturday should see the Trojans, always a power to be reckoned with, establishing their dominance of the Pacific slopes. California, ranked No. 15, should be no pushover, but the team from Los Angeles, ranked No. 4, has a wealth of material.

Schweitzer Says...

By RALPH A. SCHWEITZER

This is the day for predicting again, and there are plenty of big games to think about this week-end.

Of greatest interest to local fans will be the battle between Iowa and Wisconsin, to be played in the stadium here in Iowa City. Sentiment prompts us to pick the Hawkeyes. But a due consideration of the facts forces us to reconsider. Both Iowa and Wisconsin have fairly strong teams defensively, but neither one has been able to show very great offensive power. In games last week, each team scored seven points against a service team. But Wisconsin held the Camp Grant eleven to a 7 to 7 tie until the very last minute of the game. In fact, there were only five seconds left to go when Camp Grant kicked the winning field goal. Iowa, on the other hand, allowed three touchdown plays to filter through its line before it was able to push over a tally of its own. Even then, the Hawks played a very admirable defensive game.

Iowa has the advantage of playing the advantage of having played one more game this season in its home field. Wisconsin has the advantage of a scoreless tie would not be too surprising, but if to either team, the nod should go to the Badgers, and so we are picking Wisconsin over Iowa in a very close game.

By JUDSON BAILEY NEW YORK (AP)—Aside from the return of some of their stars from the army or navy the best break the New York Yankees could have received from the world series was to have lefty Marius Russo regain his pitching form.

This is exactly what has happened and the Yankees now have not only the best right hand mound corps in baseball ready for the St. Louis Cardinals, but also can count on one of the best southpaws either for starting duty or for relief.

When Russo is right he is tough to beat in any kind of competition. In both 1940 and 1941 he won 14 games for the Yankees and in the latter year he pitched a four-hilt 2 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the world series.

Last year Russo's arm became strangely lame, but a few times the soreness let up and he appeared in nine games, winning four and losing one.

This year the Yankees hired a new trainer, Eddie Froelich, who had been a kid in the Chicago clubhouse when Joe McCarthy managed the Cubs and who later became the trainer of the Chicago Blackhaws' hockey team.

"Russo's trouble," he explained, "we found out was caused by sinus. When we cleared that up the toxic condition which had settled in his pitching arm disappeared."

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Detroit Tigers handed Lum Harris his 21st defeat of the season and the Philadelphia Athletics a 6 to 0 shutout yesterday in a game lasting one hour and 18 minutes—equaling the American league's short game record for 1943.

It was the Tigers' final appearance of the season here. They won the seasonal series, 13 to 9.

By JUDSON BAILEY NEW YORK (AP)—Aside from the return of some of their stars from the army or navy the best break the New York Yankees could have received from the world series was to have lefty Marius Russo regain his pitching form.

This is exactly what has happened and the Yankees now have not only the best right hand mound corps in baseball ready for the St. Louis Cardinals, but also can count on one of the best southpaws either for starting duty or for relief.

When Russo is right he is tough to beat in any kind of competition. In both 1940 and 1941 he won 14 games for the Yankees and in the latter year he pitched a four-hilt 2 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the world series.

Last year Russo's arm became strangely lame, but a few times the soreness let up and he appeared in nine games, winning four and losing one.

This year the Yankees hired a new trainer, Eddie Froelich, who had been a kid in the Chicago clubhouse when Joe McCarthy managed the Cubs and who later became the trainer of the Chicago Blackhaws' hockey team.

"Russo's trouble," he explained, "we found out was caused by sinus. When we cleared that up the toxic condition which had settled in his pitching arm disappeared."

Band to Salute Iowa Dads

90 Piece Marching Band Honors Teams, Servicemen, Fans

A salute to visiting Iowa Dads, the Wisconsin and university football teams, all servicemen and football fans will highlight the performance of the 90-piece University Marching band in its pregame and half-time routines to be presented tomorrow, when the Iowa Hawks meet the football night of Wisconsin.

For the first time in the seven years the band has been under the directorship of Prof. C. B. Righter, women will be included in the marching order. Led by Drum Major Rose Day of Mason City and Twirling Drum Major Mary Dumont of Mason City, the band will have as many women as men members.

During the flag-raising ceremonies preceding the game, the band will join with the university Scottish Highlanders and the Navy band. Professor Righter will lead the combined groups in "The Star Spangled Banner."

Utilizing the famous "double header" marching formation, allowing the band to move backward or forward without counter-marching, the "Redcoats" will initiate the half-time ceremonies. Two sections of the band, one composed of women and the other of men, will enter the playing field from different ends of the stadium, marching together through the ranks of each section. Breaking formation, the band will form a huge "NAVY" formation while facing east, followed by "ARMY" for the west stands.

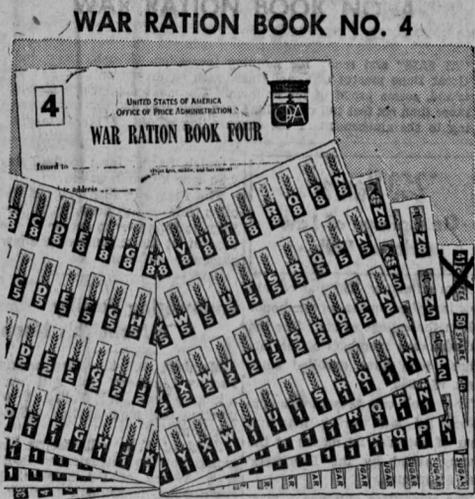

Iowa Dads will have their moment at the game when the band plays a military version of "My Hero" while forming the word "DAD" on the playing field, under the direction of Arnold L. Oehlens, assistant director of the University bands. An exhibition by the Scottish Highlanders will be presented next.

A salute to Wisconsin in the form of a "W" will be formed for the visiting Wisconsin team and fans. Forming a large "I," the band will play "On Iowa" and march off the field in formation.

Newspaper Advisory Group Says U.S. Public Lacks War Information

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newspaper advisory committee of the office of war information, asserting that the American public "is not being adequately informed about the war," last night blamed "the disinclination on the part of some high naval and military authorities to evaluate what is information to which the public is entitled."

"If there is any complacency or letdown in the war effort on the part of the American people, it is due to the absence of full necessary understanding," the committee said in a statement issued after a day-long conference.

Recording to Be Made Of Iowa Heritages

Recordings of the ancient rites of the monks of the monastery of New Melleray, near Dubuque, will be made Sunday evening under the auspices of the university school of religion.

The seventh in the series of recordings preserving Iowa's religious heritage, the recordings will be made by Dr. Marcus Bach of the school of religion and Dr. Addison Alspach of the music department. The original records are filed with the library of congress.

The monks will chant "Salve Regina," at the 80-year-old monastery, which is one of the three in the United States.

Father Abbott Bruno Ryan gave permission for this first recording ever to be made within the monastery, for the sole purpose of adding the material to the collection of hymns and chants of little-known religious faiths.

"We consider ourselves extremely fortunate to be permitted to make these recordings and we believe that the records will be among the most interesting and unusual of the collection," said Dr. Bach.

Rationing May Limit Cab Service for Game

The number of taxicabs which will be available for spectators at the football game and for cadets tomorrow depends upon when an ODT representative arrives in Iowa City and whether he approves the gasoline ration allotments of several local companies.

Ration allotments for the Yellow-Checker, Varsity-Hawkeye and City Cab companies have been held up because when an inspection was made this week they had not complied with a federal regulation requiring that each taxi display signs on the sides indicating that it is a public conveyance. All local cabs now carry the required signs.

The university's school of nursing, approved by the United States public health service for the establishment of a cadet nurse corps, will accept a new freshman class Nov. 15. The group will be limited to about 100 persons, preference being given to qualified applicants for admission to the nurse corps.

Applicants must be between 18 and 32 years old, must be physically fit, and must have completed 15 units of credit in an approved secondary school. Participants in this afternoon's discussion will be Jack Russell, A2 of Perry, chairman; Ruth Reininga, A4 of River Forest, Ill.; Eleanor Keagy, A3 of Washington, Iowa, and Rosemary Howe, A3 of Darlington, Wis.

They pledge themselves to remain active in either civilian or military nursing service throughout the war.

Post-War Education Program Inexpensive, Says Educator

"The program recommended for post-war readjustment in the field of education as well as unemployment could be carried out for one year at a cost equal to that of waging this war for 15 to 30 days."

That statement was made last night by Dr. Floyd W. Reeves, consultant on education to the national resources planning board, chairman of President Roosevelt's committee on education and chairman at the conference on post-war readjustment of civilian and military personnel, who spoke at the 29th annual conference on administration and education being held in Iowa City.

Explaining the recommendations made to the president by the conference board in its unanimous report, Dr. Reeves said that such a program would include a three months' furlough with base pay for all veterans, thus providing them with benefits equal to those of civilians covered by the present social security program, which he added, would have to be increased.

In addition, every member of the armed forces would be given one calendar year's schooling, absolutely free with maintenance. Also, scholarships would be granted for four years' college to supply trained personnel for those technical and professional fields suffering acute shortages.

"I foresee a national tragedy if the youth of America does not remain in school until at least 18 years old," he said.

"This will be necessary to prevent the drive which opens Oct. 4 in Iowa City. They will head collections from sororities and women's organizations."

250 Names On College of Law Honor Roll

Approximately 250 names are now inscribed on the service honor roll in the college of law. The list includes only members of the law school, who have enrolled since Sept. 16, 1940.

The scroll was presented to the college of law during the first year of the war by means of the money saved by the Barristers' Ball committee.

The committee obtained a local orchestra for the annual Barristers' ball that year, and a special committee headed by Arley Wilson of Marshalltown purchased a scroll for the names of men who have gone into service since the passing of the selective service act.

The scroll is now in the main foyer of the law building, flanked by twin flags also given to the college of law by the students. One flag is a service flag bearing a star for each representative of the college of law in the armed services.

The one gold star on the service flag honors the memory of Nile

Kinnick, former Iowa football star who was killed in action. The American flag hangs at the other side of the honor roll. The flags and the parchment scroll are kept up at the expense of the law student association.

A total of $1,735,333 in war bonds has been reported sold in Johnson county for the third war loan drive. This is 93 percent of the county's $1,863,000 quota.

Out of town agencies sold the most since the last report, with a total of $110,973 while in Iowa City $99,993 in bonds have been purchased. Begin Sacrifice Days In City Bond Drive

Today and tomorrow are to be sacrifice days in Iowa City instead of yesterday and today as previously announced.

During this time, tags will be given to all persons who purchase an extra war bond over their designated quota. The tags are to be distributed among all issuing agencies. Anyone making personal bond solicitations should secure some of these tags to present to their new customers.

The tag day is being sponsored by the retail trade division of the senior chamber of commerce.
