homeland is the big base at Turk, but military observers believe the U. S. Pacific fleet is now strong enough to risk fairly heavy losses in a major sea battle.

Allied Hopes For Quick Fall Of Rome Fade

Clark's Troops Move Only 21 Miles From Naples in 3 Weeks

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers (AP)—Hopes of a quick allied conquest faded last night as Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army slogged forward at a slackened pace through muddy terrain a little more than 21 miles north of Naples, just 21 days after entering that important port.

An average of a mile a day in country that was growing increasingly difficult and against German resistance growing correspondingly stronger placed the capture of the Eternal city, 100 airline miles away, considerably into the future.

Wednesday Clark's augmented forces registered only slight gains north of the Volturno river as patrols probed into the enemy's new 27-mile-long defense line that follows the rugged Masicco ridge from the sea to Venafro.

The medical aptitude test of the association of American Medical colleges, which is required for admission to medical schools, will be given Nov. 5, in the chemistry auditorium at 2 p. m.

Because of the abnormal wartime situation, it is important that all premedical students take the medical aptitude tests at this time, if they have not already done so. It is doubtful that any special tests will be given this year. The test, which is to be given Nov. 5 does not depend on premedical training.

There is a fee of one dollar for the medical aptitude test, which must be paid in advance. Students wishing to take the test should call at the office of the registrar to have this fee assessed on or before Nov. 3.

Editorially Speaking...

The 1944 'Appointment'

It is not too early to begin speculation over the 1944 democratic appointment ("election" will probably be out of the vocabulary by then)...

If the war is still going on next year, there is not much serious doubt in the minds of anyone (except Harrison Spangler and Bertie McCormick) that Roosevelt will run again and win again... and even if the war is already over, he still should be able to come through in a walk...

The reason why a fourth term for F.D.R. is virtually assured is obvious... he has become a symbol of democracy and America to the entire world... just as Stalin and Churchill have also become symbols for their countries...

To destroy the symbol would aid in destroying our chance to speak political democracy in Europe after the war... it is more important, I think, to have things a little "undemocratic" at home for awhile if it will help make things more democratic abroad...

After all, what the world thinks of us is going to be of primary importance in the post-war...

William A. Benton, vice chairman of the committee for economic development, said recently after returning from Britain that the average Englishman's greatest fear is the possibility that Roosevelt may be defeated...

"Englishmen attach to him an importance that Roosevelt's most ardent supporters here could not attribute to him... he is their flaming hope..."

"They think that American policy is determined by Roosevelt's leadership... He led America into the lend lease program and the war; without him America would lose a great deal of its understanding for the British nation..."

And if Roosevelt has become this much of a symbol to the British people, who are familiar with our other presidential possibilities, think of what he must have by now become to the conquered peoples who have never even heard of Willkie, Taft, Bricker and Dewey...

"A good many people can see no harm in 'changing horses in the middle of the stream'... I myself can't, so far as domestic policy is concerned... any practical business man could have done as good a job, if not a much better job, as F.D.R. has done on the home front... he was pitifully weak in the coal strike controversy..."

But if we intend to become "international" after the war it is necessary to place greatest emphasis on forming a sound international policy... and Roosevelt happens to be the best democratic internationalist we have around...

I am a Republican by heredity, a Roosevelt-denouncer by policy... but I realize at the same time he is the only American in a position to do the job that has to be done...

Just for old time's sake (remember the days when a Republican party platform actually meant something?) it might be worthwhile to scan the list of presidential possibilities...

As far as the Democrats are concerned, the only candidate with a chance of beating Frank Roosevelt is Rigor Mortis... he has already gained control in some of our government bureaus, but until he sets in at the White House, Jim Farley & Co. will just have to go on working...

Of all the Republican presidential aspirants, only two seem formidable: Willkie and Dewey...

Dewey probably has more domestic backing than Willkie, although his international prestige obviously is not nearly so great...

Willkie's greatest selling point in the mid-west is that McCormick is against him... that is always one sure sign of popularity...

But compared with Roosevelt, internationally, Willkie's stature is considerably smaller... Benton says that the British look on him as "a great big shaggy Newfoundland dog who jumped into a lily pond and then walked

News Behind the News

Congress Could Do Plenty To Prevent Waste

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON—Congressional leaders are planning to quit November 1 or 15 until January, allowing a six or eight week mid-war vacation for themselves.

They have been saying (not very loudly, of course) there is little important legislation to be handled before the big appropriation bills come up in January, and that the trouble with the country now is, there are too many laws.

No more important work could be done than to have the members of each congressional committee assigned to meet daily from now until January solely in search of waste in expenditures. Ways and means could go after the treasury, the military affairs after the war department, naval affairs after the navy, and so on. An earnest effort might save billions.

Example: the Breakers hotel at Palm Beach, huge, world-famous hostelry, was taken over by the war department a year ago at an annual rental of $350,000. The rent, of course, was not made public, nor has any mention been made of the detailed use to which the hotel has been put. Excuse for its acquisition was that it would be used as a hospital. Now, nearly a year later, approximately $900,000 has been spent on it, I understand, but only three floors have been occupied and never has the place accommodated more than 150 patients.

The waste is obvious, colossal, inexcusable. Every cent of that money could have been saved by using vacant civil hospital space in that area.

A week ago, the army site board had a meeting at the Breakers and decided to make this lavish, rich man's hotel into a permanent army hospital, although a few miles away at Boca Raton, the army already is paying $90,000 a year rent for a project which would make an inexpensive and ideal substitute. The Boca Raton club has about 400 rooms, spacious grounds on the ocean, low rental, and is quiet. The army, apparently always does things the hard way.

This incident no doubt can be duplicated a million times in a million different phases of the war effort. The details of such waste naturally are not publicized by the army, in fact are covered by supposedly military censorship, although no military information is involved. Only if congressional committees start pursuing inept officials may the truth be known.

With taxes nearing the endurable limit and repeated bond drives necessary to raise money for vast expenditures (amounting to $277,400,000 a day in September), the necessities of economy assume an importance beyond any other pending subject.

The appropriations committees have hired additional clerical help to sift expenditures for waste, but the drive for economy has lacked the energy necessary to make it mean something substantial. This is a job not for one committee or clerks, but for the whole congress represented on every committee, dealing with civilian as well as military expenditures.

Other duties will be shirked if congress tries to slip away. Appearance of CIO's Philip Murray seems to have slowed down or stopped the movement for a sales tax, at least temporarily, but something should be done about the present incomprehensible tax system. Congress cannot just go away and let the tax complexities gather dust on the committee desk.

The question of food subsidies also must be straightened out. A compromise settlement between congress and the administration probably will have to be made.

The post-war resolution is not a matter of dire necessity, but the senate will have to face it.

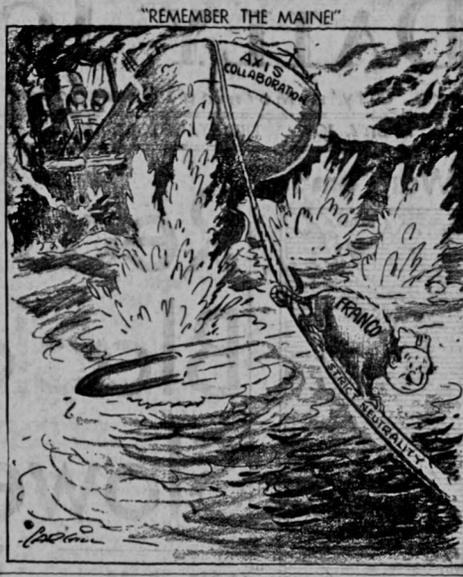

The lend-lease administration must be ardently pursued. Congress does not lack business, but rather the will to work out the business it should do.

into a garden party, stocked with ladies in flowing organdies, and shook himself...

If the next election were to be based on domestic issues, I have no doubt that either Dewey or Willkie would stand a good chance... the trouble is that it won't be...

F.D.R. is already grooming his fourth term machine... he didn't make that speech to the boys overseas for nothing... and with absentee voting in effect, I'm afraid the Republicans will find it tough sledding...

I forgot to mention the chances of another Republican candidate... Bertie McCormick... I think everyone else will forget, too.

The supreme thrusts of the German armies had been halted before Moscow and the offensives were ebbing in power, according to a highly-placed neutral military authority. At the same time the German authorities claimed that they now had control of 75 percent of Red production following the extension of their lines into the Donets basin.

Editor Hickerson thought that "If America will show just half the enthusiasm in the prosecution of this war as the isolationists have shown in trying to stay out of it, there isn't much question of the outcome."

"And if there are enough of us around when it's all over who watched the last peace at Versailles take form, there isn't much question that the peace to follow this one will be American in tone, and not British."

One of the highlights of the state home economics conference to be held here on the coming Saturday was to be a style show in the river room of Iowa Union. Clothes modeled by the students of the home economics department were to illustrate the moderately priced wardrobe.

Prof. E. C. Mabie announced the 1938 theater schedule to be as follows: "Tovarich," "The Bluebird," "Johnny Johnson," "Saint Joan" and "The Rose of the Rancho."

An editorial pointed out that "Japan can never win out in China. Everywhere that the Chinese have retreated they have left a waste of land that has been very expensive for the Japanese to rebuild. Every day of continuance of this war means further hardship for the people of both nations. History can once again record that in war there is no victor."

Prof. Jacob Van der Zee of the political science department announced that selections for the Rhodes scholarships would be made at Ames Dec. 15. Two persons from the state of Iowa were eligible for the awards.

Nino Martini, outstanding tenor of stage, screen and radio was to open the 1938 University concert course on the following Wednesday.

Co-ed Takes Movies in Stride

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—I've just met a young girl who refuses, absolutely though without ostentation, to be ga-ga over a movie career.

Things happened to her that movie-crazy girls everywhere are dreaming will happen to them. The other day she stepped before a camera, said a couple of lines of dialogue, and turned away. It was a quiet scene, not a big emotional storm, but Jean Sullivan should remember it. It was her first close-up, in her first movie, in her first leading role.

Last December she was a pretty co-ed on the campus of the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Sometimes I get excited over it, but mostly I don't," she said afterward. "You see, I'd still rather be a stage actress."

She is playing with Errol Flynn and Paul Lukas in "Uncertain Glory." A famous stage actress, Lucile Watson, is in the cast, and Jean admires her a great deal. She's also a Lukas fan since she saw "Watch on the Rhine," and she doesn't mind admitting that she thinks she's lucky to win the role. There's nothing blasé or bored in her attitude; she gives the impression that pictures, to her, are just another job. And that's understandable, because she had packed a peck of work into her two and a half years of college.

"I didn't have to work my way through school," she said, "but I thought it would be good if I did. I had a job as a waitress, and another jerking soda behind a foun-

Co-ed Takes Movies in Stride

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—I've just met a young girl who refuses, absolutely though without ostentation, to be ga-ga over a movie career.

Things happened to her that movie-crazy girls everywhere are dreaming will happen to them. The other day she stepped before a camera, said a couple of lines of dialogue, and turned away. It was a quiet scene, not a big emotional storm, but Jean Sullivan should remember it. It was her first close-up, in her first movie, in her first leading role.

Last December she was a pretty co-ed on the campus of the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Sometimes I get excited over it, but mostly I don't," she said afterward. "You see, I'd still rather be a stage actress."

She is playing with Errol Flynn and Paul Lukas in "Uncertain Glory." A famous stage actress, Lucile Watson, is in the cast, and Jean admires her a great deal. She's also a Lukas fan since she saw "Watch on the Rhine," and she doesn't mind admitting that she thinks she's lucky to win the role. There's nothing blasé or bored in her attitude; she gives the impression that pictures, to her, are just another job. And that's understandable, because she had packed a peck of work into her two and a half years of college.

"I didn't have to work my way through school," she said, "but I thought it would be good if I did. I had a job as a waitress, and another jerking soda behind a foun-

Girls who are now members of the U. W. A. hostess group and do not wish to continue through November and December are asked to sign at the desk when they check into the dance tomorrow or next Saturday. Otherwise they will be expected to continue acting as hostesses.

University women who wish to become hostesses for November and December may obtain membership cards at Iowa Union during the dance tomorrow or next Saturday or at the U. W. A. desk in Old Capitol next week.

Each hostess is required to attend a minimum of one dance a month, with no substitutions allowed.

Proceeding the main tea dance there will be dancing for couples in the river room from 1:30 until 3:30.

All day Sunday the union will be open to the public. The main attractions for Sunday will be dancing in the river room from 1:30 until 5:30 p. m. and the Sunday evening sing, which will be held from 6 until 7 p. m. The public, as well as students and servicemen, is invited to attend this event.

Qualifying Exams For Medical Students Scheduled for Nov. 5

All students who expect to enter a medical school and have not yet taken the aptitude test should do so Nov. 5.

This examination, which is to determine whether students have aptitude for the study of medicine, is one of the requirements for admission to an American medical college, it is explained by Registrar Harry G. Barnes. It is not necessary that the student be a candidate for the Iowa college of medicine in order to take the national examination.

The next freshman class to enter the Iowa college of medicine will start work Jan. 3, 1944.

1943 Homecoming Abandons Pre-War Extravagance

Two bombs were fired to signal the Homecoming rally in 1933. And students shouted above the din of bells and bands and whistles. They marched by the gaily decorated fraternity and sorority houses, shouting for victory—a football game.

But this year—1943—extravagance and elaborate decorations will be abandoned. With concentration upon winning a war instead of a decorating contest, members of Women's Panhellenic association have voted to again use the money for war contributions.

Pharmacists' Power Described by Dean

Credit should be given to the American pharmacists for another important achievement—that of maintaining civilian morale by combating rumors.

It is the contention of Dean R. A. Kuever of the college of pharmacy that the pharmacist's constant contact with the public makes him "a pillar of strength in showing customers the difference between rumors reported as rumors and those which are confirmed facts."

Iowans Hope To Give Foe Good Fight

Hawks Have Built Defense Against Purdue's Butkovich

Believing they have a good chance to give the Boilermakers a real game, despite the difference in size, experience and skill, the Hawkeyes leave this afternoon for Lafayette, Ind., to meet the nation's No. 4 team, Purdue.

The Iowa players have built a defense for Tony Butkovich and plan to release an open game with a reshuffled backfield. Outweighed 15 pounds to the man in the line, the Hawks will face a team even bigger than the Great Lakes outfit. Purdue has marine and navy trainees in its lineup, with only one bonafide Purdue athlete among the starters. Sam Vacanti, once of Iowa, is regular quarterback, and former Hawkeyes John Staak, tackle, and Arthur Flint, halfback, are Boilermaker reserves.

The personnel of the 35-man traveling squad will include Barbour, Daner, Joe Howard, Charles Burkett, Dan Sheehan and John McGord, ends; Frey, Cozad, John Ford, Bob Ireland, Walter Yeager, Dean Yanousch and John Leeper, tackles; Liddy, Mohrbacher, Arzberger, Dick Martin, guards; Baughman, Joe Messer and Howard Fischer, centers; Stephens, Bill Sangster, Tom Hughes and John Stewart, quarterbacks; Glasener, Dale Thompson, Howard Larson, Maurice Hagelen and Fred Eno, left halfbacks; Terrell, Paul Zaehring, Laurence Miller, right halfbacks; Hudson, Gallagher and Dan Sullivan, fullbacks.

The Iowa players will remain overnight in Chicago and will go to Lafayette tomorrow forenoon between 10:05 and 12:40. The kickoff will be at 2:30 and the game will be broadcast for Iowans by WMT and WSUI.

Hawk Cagers Now Drilling on Organized Team Play, Defense

Coach Lawrence "Pops" Harrison has started his Hawkeye basketball players on organized team play and organized defense after a three-week period of drill on fundamentals.

Although the squad has dwindled from 26 members to 15, he has prospects of acquiring at least four or five more men after the close of the football season.

"We have a lot to do before we are ready to go against the kind of competition we'll face," the coach said. He added that he is facing a manpower problem very similar to the one Coach Slip Madigan had to cope with in the football situation—lack of experience and danger of losing players from time to time as they become of age for the draft.

He stated, however, that the men now practicing with the squad are, on the whole, "rangy" and include several who show considerable promise.

Ned Postels of Mankato, Minn., Dick Ives of Dagonal, Floyd Magnuson of Ft. Dodge and "Moon" Mullen of Cromwell are candidates for the forward berths; Floyd Herwig and Dwayne Howard, center; Jack Spencer of Davenport, Jimmy Grafton of Moline, Ill., Melvin Smith of Iowa City, Bucky Walters of Iowa City, and Glen Kramer of Dubuque, guards.

The Hawkeyes meet Nebraska here, Dec. 10 in the first scheduled game of the season.

IRISH TERROR

This Year They Say, 'Five-Yards Purdue'

Boilermakers Headed For First Perfect Season Since 1929

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Back in the University of Chicago's football hey-day the Maroons had a player known as "Five-Yards McCarty" and now in this second year of wartime football it's "Five-Yards Purdue" as the Boilermakers roll on toward their first perfect season since 1929.

In fact, the Boilermakers have done a little better than that. The brilliant array of Purdue backs, who have rolled over five straight opponents, have averaged 5.22 yards—slightly more than half the distance to a first down—every time they've carried the ball.

It's very pleasing to Purdue supporters who still shudder over the last two seasons in which the Boilermakers won only three games—two in 1941 and one last year.

Purdue is one of the schools which thinks wartime football is a fine thing. Practically the entire first string is made up of marine and naval trainees sent here from Illinois, Shurtieff, Iowa and other schools.

And then there was the pleasant surprise package dropped on the Boilermaker campus when Butler university, abandoned football Boris Dimancheff, a 3-F transferred from Butler to Purdue and has averaged 6.02 yards every time he has carried the ball.

Tony Butkovich, a pile-driving fullback from Illinois, has grabbed most of the headlines—he's the leading scorer in the Big Ten with 60 points in five games—but two other members of the regular first string backfield have done better than Butkovich in ball carrying. Dimancheff's average is first and then comes Stan Dubicki—ex-Shurtieff—with 5.85 yards a try. Butkovich has an average of 5.64 yards and Sam Vacanti, the quarterback from Iowa, was 2.13.

Guest to See Action in Cyclone Game

AMES (AP)—Brightening Cyclone prospects for the Iowa State-Ottumwa air base football game at Ottumwa tomorrow night was a statement from Cyclone Coach Mike Michalske yesterday that George Gast will see action this week in the backfield.

Although he probably will not start, he will do some playing in spite of a leg injury received last week which has kept him out of heavy drills this week.

Howard Tippee, scoring passer from Des Moines, also has not run yet this week.

Schweitzer Says . . .

By RALPH A. SCHWEITZER

Before the war, America was treated to a series of inter-sectional contests, starting long before the regular conference seasons, and continuing past the regular close of conference play. Some of these we have mentioned before as being regular annual affairs drawing the attention and fanatical loyalty of millions of Americans every weekend.

Most of these old-time rivalries have been broken by the war, but a few have continued. Notre Dame still plays Georgia Tech, and the Notre Dame-Pittsburgh series goes on, but on the whole, inter-sectional football is gone for the duration.

Navy-Georgia Tech
This weekend, fans are to observe one of the few games this year between representatives of different parts of the land. Navy rolls out its big guns against the Rambling Wrecks from Georgia Tech.

You may laugh and say that this game will be nothing more than a little exercise for Navy, judging from the way Notre Dame took Tech into camp in their meeting earlier this season. But don't fool yourself. The Navy coach isn't fooled either. He knows that the Cadets will have to go some to beat the boys from the south, and at the same time have to keep some of their tricks under wraps.

Navy meets the Irish next weekend, and if they have anything up their sleeves to fool the Notre Dame team, the Cadets will certainly not want to reveal it to the N. D. scouts who will most certainly be at the game. Hence, playing its best game, the Tech is strong enough that it may force the Navy men to their best in order to insure victory.

Honorable Hari-Kari

A few teams have lined themselves up for a gridiron hari-kari fate this Saturday. Those committing virtual suicide include Illinois, Columbia, Yale, San Francisco, and Utah. Illinois takes on the Irish this weekend, and although the Illini managed to down a weak Pittsburgh team last week (but only by 8 points), it hardly seems as though their prospects against the Notre Dame giants are what you might call particularly bright.

Columbia collides with Pennsylvania. The boys from Penn, led by Bob Odell from Sioux City, managed to squeeze past Lakehurst 74 to 6 last weekend, while Columbia was being trounced by Army 52 to 0. You draw your own conclusions. Yale faces the same Army team this weekend, while San Francisco meets Del Monte Pre-Flight, and Utah plays patty-cake with Tulsa.

All the Winners?

Without further ado, here's how we see 'em this week:
Purdue over Iowa
Notre Dame over Illinois
Indiana over Wisconsin
Michigan over Minnesota
Northwestern over Ohio State
Kansas over Nebraska
Oklahoma over Kansas State
Cornell over Colgate
Pennsylvania over Columbia

City High Little Hawks Meet Undeclared Davenport Eleven This Evening

Hawklets Named Underdogs in This Weekend's Game

When the City high Little Hawks travel to Davenport to meet the undefeated Davenport eleven tonight, they will be the decided underdogs, in a game which should prove the toughest for the Hawklets so far this season.

The City high gridders will have to stop the passing combination of Gilda to Paulsen, the big guns of the Davenport offense, if they hope to pull a victory out of the fire. Gilda is not only a threat as a passer, however, since he is a triple-threat backfield star who will be hard to stop both in the air and on the ground. Paulsen, who receives the bulk of Gilda's passes, is only a freshman, but he can be counted upon to do plenty of damage.

Coach Wally Schwank is pinning his hopes for a victory on the fact that the Iowa City line consider ably outweighs that of the Davenport team. In the backfield, City high has "Pistol" Ware and Wayne Hopp, both of whom have made plenty of yardage for the Little Hawks this season. Although the City high line outweighs that of Davenport, the opponent's backs are heavier. The team averages then are almost identical Iowa City's being 171 and Davenport's 167 pounds.

Starting lineups for both teams are as follows:

City High	Pos.	Davenport
Orr	LE	Hoefler
Winslow	LT	Stock
Voelchers	LG	Olson
Trumpp (C.)	C	Steele
Hirt	RG	Carthey
D. Lee	RT	Hammond
B. Lee or E.	E	J. Paulsen

Notre Dame's Bertelli To Be Transferred

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Passing Angelo Bertelli, wheel horse of Frank Leahy's mighty Notre Dame Irish, will don the blue and gold for the last time against the Navy at Cleveland Oct. 30.

That was the word yesterday from Capt. H. P. Burnett, commanding officer of the Notre Dame V-12 school, who said Bertelli would be included among a contingent of marine trainees shipped to Parris Island, S. C., on Nov. 1.

Capt. Burnett said several other Notre Dame athletes, including football captain Pat Pilley, possibly might be allowed to remain on the campus due to defenses in age, but listed Bertelli as a "sure" member of the shipment. Bertelli is 22, while Pilley is 21. The older man would be shipped first, with younger trainees going according to results of examinations scheduled for next week.

The marines have called for approximately 90 of the 140 trainees stationed at Notre Dame.

Two of the nation's most powerful teams are resting up this weekend in preparation for their tussle on Oct. 30. Ft. Riley and the Iowa Seahawks meet in Iowa City on that date in a game that looks to be the best of the season in the Iowa stadium.

The Seahawks have been loudly ballyhoosed as the top of the service teams, while Ft. Riley, playing around on the fringes of the civilized circuit, has received little notice this year. But when the soldiers arrive in town, look out!

Pistol Packin' Paps
In the first place, the game is the first strictly Army-Navy game the Seahawks have played this year, and since when is the Army being beaten by the Navy, and vice-versa? Now is the time to say that you've never heard of Ft. Riley. Well, perhaps so, but a quick look at the soldier line-up will convince you that you should have by now. The line far outweighs that of the Seahawks, and the Centaur backfield boasts some former college stars of its own, as does the Pre-Flight backfield.

Of course, the Pre-Flight officers will be playing, and that will make a difference, but Coach Don Faurot is still not taking the Ft. Riley threat lightly. The Centaurs have thus far downed all of their opponents by at least 39 points, except Great Lakes, and are definitely pointing for this game. Don't look for any runaway score. The Seahawks may have at last run up against their master.

Seahawk, Iowa Harriers Meet

The unbeaten cross country teams of the Iowa Hawkeyes and the Navy Pre-Flight school, Seahawks here will meet this afternoon at 4:30 p. m. The Hawkeyes have defeated the Army Air Corps Pre-Meteorologists while the Seahawks have triumphed over Iowa State college as well as winning a four-team service meet in Chicago.

Personnel of the cross country teams was announced yesterday by Coach George Bresnahan of Iowa. Running for the Hawkeyes will be Albert Slater, Sydney Murray, Dick Lord, Jack Murray, Robert Bentz, Nick Demetroulis, and Bob Vander Willt.

Starring for the Seahawks is Lieut. Louis Gregory, star distance runner who has won numerous national distance championships, including the 1943 National A. A. U. 10,000 meter championship. Others on the squad are: Gavin Weir, Harry Speece, James Shea, Harold Burnham, David Warton, and Archie Messenger.

SPORTS TRAIL...

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Mr. Bright and Mr. Fogg discuss current events:

Mr. Fogg—It says here that Lov Little says he sees flaws in the Army football team.

Mr. Bright—Well, what's wrong with that? When there is a perfect football team it will score on every play, and the other side won't get to the line of scrimmage.

Mr. Fogg—I know that. But it sounds funny coming from a guy whose team has just been licked by Army 52 to 0. A guy who's just been hit by a train doesn't usually go around saying there was a soft spot in the cow-catcher and that if the train was really tough it would have killed him.

Mr. Bright—You don't get the idea. Mr. Little is speaking purely from an academic standpoint, as a student of the game. He saw things in there.

Mr. Fogg—Do you suppose he saw Glenn Davis? Columbia couldn't seem to see him.

Mr. Bright—That's not funny. Of course he saw Glenn Davis, and he saw how he could be stopped.

Mr. Fogg—A lasso, maybe.

Mr. Bright—Well, that's one way. Anyway, Mr. Little says the Army's timing was off.

Mr. Fogg—That's not very nice, asking Army don't know the right time. It seemed to know the score, though. If Colonel Blaik hadn't told his boys to try to gain backyards they'd still be scoring touchdowns.

Mr. Bright—I know, that was right nice of him. But Colonel Blaik would be the first to admit his team's timing was off. He said before the season started he didn't know much about this "T" formation.

Mr. Fogg—He must have been studying awfully fast. What will that team do when he learns all about it? Play three games at once? Sort of syndicate itself, maybe. Anyway, Mr. Little's remark that Army wasn't perfect wasn't much of a pat on the back for his team. If it was, he should have taken his shoe off and raised his sights.

Mr. Bright—He knows his team isn't so good. Now if you were studying Joe Louis and he knocks you out that wouldn't necessarily mean he was a great fighter.

Mr. Fogg—No, I guess not. It would mean he was a greater runner, though.

Mr. Bright—What's that got to do with it?

Mr. Fogg—Anybody who catches me to put the slug on me has to be a great runner.

Mr. Bright—You're getting away off the subject. What were we talking about, anyway?

Mr. Fogg—I dunno.

Mr. Bright—Just as I thought. You said it was funny Mr. Little saw flaws in the Army team after it had walloped the day lights out of his Columbians.

Mr. Fogg—Sure, that's right. I still think he picked a funny time to say it. He made his own

Ft. Riley Has Many Stars

Seahawk Mentor To Have Big Job Of Outwitting Foe

Ft. Riley, Kan., is an army cavalry post but it has a football team of former college stars that looks like a squad of General Sherman tanks. A line averaging 220 pounds per man and a backfield with an average weight of 192 pounds is the array of massive power available to Ft. Riley's coach, Capt. Francis Welch, if he wished to pick his starting team on the basis of weight alone.

When the Ft. Riley Centaurs meet the Iowa Pre-Flight Seahawks at Iowa City Saturday Oct. 30, Navy Coach Lieut. Don Faurot will have his hands full plotting strategy against the heaviest and strongest team the undefeated Seahawks have faced in their six games. An example of the size and experience of the army team can be gained from the following lineup which the Centaurs could place on the field at one time:

Ends—Tom Greenfield, Green Bay Packers and Arizona, 230; Robert Balaban, Texas Christian, 205.

Tackles—Milan Jester, Rice Institute, 235; Al Kloster, Rice Institute, 215.

Guards—Cliff Patton, Texas Christian, 220; Clyde Gallup, Carroll college, 210.

Center—Ezra Nelson, Auburn (Minn.), 210.

Backs—Paul Duhart, Florida U., 190; Dan Susi, St. Bonaventure, 193; Bernard Ruman, Arizona U., 195; Robin Nowell, Georgia U., 190.

Most of these boys, the heaviest on the squad, would beat out rivals by the narrow margin of only a few red ration points because the Centaurs boast 16 linemen on the squad who tip the scales at 200 or better. And only four men on the squad roster of 50 players lack collegiate football experience!

In the "Army-Navy" game in Iowa stadium the Seahawks will have the use of their officers again after a lapse of three games, but even then the team's weights and experiences will appear almost laughable in comparison with the ponderous Centaurs. Most of the cadets on the Seahawk team average under 20 years in age and only a few of them had major college experience before entering naval aviation.

Purdue leads the Big Ten in ground gaining by running plays but Burnham called attention to the fact Iowa has allowed its two Big Ten foes only a total of 140 yards on the ground.

his sea-side estate, between 1:30 and 3:30 a. m.—"four to six hours after the completion of his last meal."

Then from the pretty wife of an RAF flier, he brought out testimony that de Marigny had left her and a friend at their homes, two doors from Westbourne, shortly after 1 a. m.

Mrs. Dorothy Clark said that she and Mrs. Jean Ainslie were among the 11 guests of de Marigny at dinner the night of July 7, and that he drove them to the cottage they share.

Cross-examining Mrs. Clark, Chief Defense Counsel Godfrey Higgs sought to explain burned hairs which investigators told of finding on de Marigny's hands and arms after the slaying. The prosecution has contended that anyone in the room at the time of the attack would have singed hairs.

Higgs asked Mrs. Clark whether de Marigny had exhibited and lighted hurricane lamps during the dinner party. Yes, she replied.

"Did the accused light the candle through the top this way?" and Higgs demonstrated with one of the lamps.

"Were there more than one of these chimneys?"

"Yes."

"Did you hear the accused complain of a burned hand when lighting one of them?"

"Yes."

Under Higgs' questioning, Mrs. Clark said she had been summoned to Westbourne during the investigation July 9, and there had seen de Marigny taken upstairs between 11 a. m. and noon "by an American detective." She did not indicate whether the detective was E. W. Melcher or whether he was James O. Barker. The two Miami police captains were called in by the Duke of Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, to help solve the crime.

Prosecution witnesses have testified that a fingerprint found on a screen in the death room was an impression of de Marigny's little right finger, and the crown has attempted to show that he could not have touched the screen after the crime was discovered.

County Extension Director Enumerates Wartime Problems Bothing Farmers

The wartime problems which go into war industry or the other Johnson county farmers most are labor shortage, uncertain government farm price policy, machinery shortage, insufficient amounts of feed and grain for livestock and too low prices for farm products, Rotarians were told yesterday noon by County Extension Director Emmett C. Gardner.

Gardner's remarks were based on a recent survey conducted in rural areas of the county. Fifty percent of the farmers in Johnson county say their greatest problem is to find labor to work on their farms. Four million workers have left farms in the United States since Pearl Harbor, either to go into war industry or the armed forces, Gardner said.

A personal problem is involved in the case of farm boys who would like to get into the "big fight." Just recently, according to Gardner, a Johnson county woman met a farm boy on the street here in Iowa City and said "Why aren't you in uniform?" Young men working on farms are constantly faced with this type of civilian reaction.

However, at a recent farm meeting several soldiers home on furlough were present to talk with the young farmers. "You are doing your part just as much as anyone else," they said. Gardner verified this when he explained the producing unit plan designed by the department of agriculture.

Many individual farm workers in this country are producing at least 25 war units. He mentioned one farm on which members of the family averaged 42 units apiece.

Under the government plan farm laborers will be deferred if they produce 16 war units a year. One war-unit credit goes to a farmer for every war-essential farm job requiring as much work per year as one milk cow. Thus for an acre of spinach you get one war-unit credit; for an acre of field corn only .2 of a unit because it calls for less labor.

Of the five problems indicated, the farm labor problem seems to be the most serious, Gardner said. Only 20 percent asserted that the government price policy caused them the most trouble. They gave as an example that there is little margin in beef cattle feeding as the price policy is too uncertain.

Another 20 percent said the machinery shortage gave them the most trouble. Gardner recently learned that more farm machinery was being produced in an effort to relieve this difficulty.

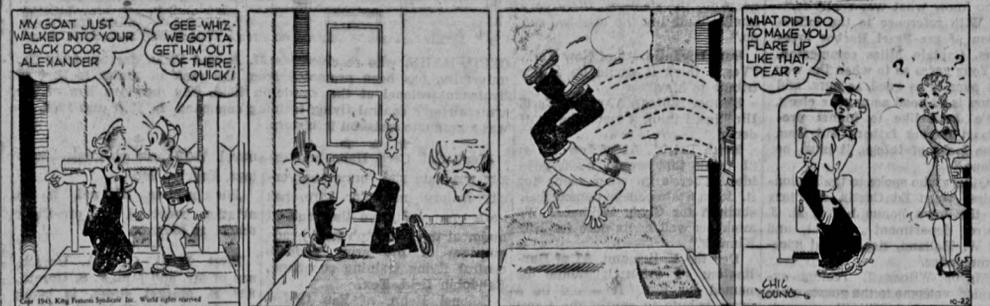

Only nine percent are faced with a severe grain and feed shortage for livestock. In this case Gardner expressed the opinion that although Johnson county is in a deficient area where there is too little feed for the great number of livestock being raised, this problem is easily remedied as nearby areas have a surplus of grain which may be shipped to the Iowa City region.

Less than one percent of the farmers named "too low prices" as their greatest farm problem. Most prices are all right at this time.

Editor of 'Iowa Legionnaire' Addresses Delegates to District Legion Convention

Capt. Frank Miles Emphasizes Place Of New War Veterans

"America will go on to a new dawn and a new day because we can believe in the youth of America," Capt. Frank Miles, public relations officer of the selective service board in Des Moines and editor of the "Iowa Legionnaire," told American Legion members of the first district of Iowa at their fall conference in the Community building yesterday afternoon.

Emphasizing that the American Legion would definitely make a place in its organization for the men who are honorably discharged from the armed forces, both during and after the war, Captain Miles added that the Legion is doing more toward winning the war than any other organization by sponsoring drives, campaigns and other activities related to the war effort.

Commenting on the selective service boards and their roles in the present conflict, he said, "No group in the United States is doing as well as are the selective service personnel. They are the great uncrowned heroes of the present war," Captain Miles stated, adding that all their work is unpaid. "The draft boards are doing all they can to be fair," he noted, pointing out that 61 percent of the members of the selective service boards are Legionnaires—"men who know what war really is."

With reference to the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, Captain Miles commented, "Your guess as to when the war is over is as good as ours, and ours is as good as anyone else's. We don't like to induct pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, but from the looks of things, it must be done."

Others who spoke to the Legionnaires were Ed Curtis, secretary of the Iowa bonus board; R. J. Laird, department adjutant, and S. W. Holland, department vice-commander.

Mayor Wilber J. Teeters extended welcome to the guests when he addressed the auxiliary meeting.

At least 250 Legionnaires and auxiliary members of the first district were present for the joint banquet and dance last night.

W. R. Hart acted as master of ceremonies at the banquet, and Mrs. C. R. Anderson, district auxiliary president, and H. C. Gilbert, district Legion commander, spoke on "Our First District."

"Our Department of Iowa" was discussed by Mrs. Roy L. Pell, state president of the auxiliary, and Dr. Charles R. Logan, state commander of the Legion.

The 11 counties included in the first district are Iowa, Johnson, Cedar, Washington, Muscatine, Louisa, Jefferson, Henry, Des Moines, Van Buren and Lee.

Chorus Gives First Concert Wednesday

The University chorus, under the direction of Prof. Herald I. Stark, will present its first concert of the year next Wednesday at 8 p. m. in Iowa Union.

The group of 106 mixed voices will feature a program of modern songs by Randall Thompson, works by Hassler, Franck, Orlando di Lasso, and a group of Russian folk songs arranged by the late conductor of the Schola Cantorum of New York City, Kurt Schindler.

A special chorus of women's voices alone will also be included on the program. The group will present songs by Josquin Despres, Gustav Holst and Johannes Brahms.

Despite the fact that this year's chorus consists of a ratio of four to one in women's and men's voices, the group has maintained a standard equal to that of previous choruses. The program will consist of some of the finest examples of sacred and secular choral literature.

Tickets for the concert will be available beginning Sunday at the Iowa Union desk.

QUESTION: ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF NAMING THE FOOTBALL STADIUM FOR NILE KINNICK?

E. P. (Slip) Madigan, football coach: "That's too easy a way out of memorializing Nile Kinnick. It isn't a big enough tribute to one of Iowa's greatest graduates and athletes. In addition to a constructive contribution such as establishing a scholarship fund or something similar ought to be made."

Mona Albrecht, A1 of Iowa City: "I think it would be marvelous. He put Iowa on the map. He's a symbol of Iowa."

Jachye Durr, A1 of McGregor: "By all means. They should have done something about it a long time ago. He was the football hero of Iowa. We'll never beat him."

Paul Prior, A1 of Cedar Rapids: "It wouldn't be bad at all. He deserves some kind of tribute other than a few letters that appeared in the paper. I think he typifies a college boy from Iowa."

Annette Pettis, A3 of Wapello: "Yes, absolutely. He's done a lot for Iowa and we have done nothing for him so far. Other places have done similar things for their heroes. There couldn't be a better name for the stadium. It's a very small tribute but the least we can do."

Enid Levantin, A2 of New York: "Yes, I think it would be a nice tribute to him."

Eleanor Billings, A3 of Rockford, Ill.: "Yes, I think it would be wonderful."

Keith Bright, A1 of Iowa City: "I think that would be a good idea. There's no other name for it. Iowa State college named their stadium for Clyde Williams. We might as well name ours for Nile Kinnick."

Dorothy Kottlemann, A1 of Burlington: "I think it should be named for him. It would be a great tribute to one of the finest men who ever went to the University of Iowa."

Labor to Have Voice in Peace, Daykin Says in University Talk

"Labor will definitely have a voice when the two groups fail to reach a suitable agreement." Prof. Walter L. Daykin of the college of commerce yesterday in an address delivered under the auspices of the "Information First" program. "Labor is a powerful political group when it wants to be."

Professor Daykin, who is official labor adjuster on the university campus, spoke to university women and faculty members on "The Function of the War Labor Board," stressing the fact that the main function of the board is to increase production during the present emergency and that in the solving labor problems, although increased production is of paramount importance just now, consideration must be given to what is best for society as a whole.

Of the war labor board's powers, Professor Daykin said, "During any emergency, there is criticism of the handling of the situation. Democratic principles may suffer temporarily in order that they may be insured permanently."

The war labor board is possessed of the power to destroy completely either the company or the union involved in any union-management dispute, according to Professor Daykin. "This is known as compulsory arbitration, and is only

Judge Sustains Parts Of Bill of Particulars Filed by Della Jensen

Three paragraphs in the bill of particulars filed in district court Wednesday by Della Jensen were sustained yesterday by Judge James P. Gaffney. The defendant has not yet entered a plea in answer to the charges of leading a life of lewdness.

County Attorney Edward F. Rate was ordered to file the information asked for in the three paragraphs in district court by Monday.

The county attorney must designate whether or not the state alleges that the defendant is a male or female; whether or not the person or persons with whom the state contends that the defendant was leading a life of lewdness are males or females, and how many acts of lewdness the state maintains that the defendant committed.

The four other paragraphs in the bill of particulars were overruled by Judge Gaffney.

Accident Prevention Asked by Red Cross

County, Town Groups Emphasize Education For Safety at Home

An appeal for close community cooperation with the Red Cross in its home and farm accident prevention program planned for the coming months, was made yesterday by Dr. E. D. Plass, county chairman.

Dr. Plass will work with town and county organizations in emphasizing through an educational program the accident hazards in and around the home and on the farm, along with measures for correcting them.

A home and farm accident prevention course for instructors will be given next week from Monday through Friday by Edwin C. Cram of St. Louis. The course will be taught at 7:30 in room 221A Schaeffer hall.

Dr. Plass asked the help of women's clubs, parent-teacher associations, civic clubs, farm women's groups, rural young people's clubs and similar organizations in planning safety discussions.

"Slippery surfaces, poisons, gas stoves and heaters, careless handling of firearms and many other hazards result in accidents which take a toll of more than 30,000 deaths and several million injuries annually in homes in the United States," Dr. Plass said.

"Only by pointing out these hazards and emphasizing them time and again through different channels, can an effective safety consciousness be developed," the county chairman stated.
