Report on Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill Talks To Be Made Monday

LONDON (AP)—Under a counter-fire of German propaganda, President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin last night said they would withhold until tomorrow official word on the outcome of their momentous Persian conference to hasten Germany's defeat and shrivel her military might for the future safety of Europe.

Presumably, the official statement of their accomplishments was being delayed while Roosevelt and Churchill travelled home from Teheran, capital of Iran, where the Moscow radio announced officially that the conference had been held.

A communique on the decisions reached at the meeting is to be issued tomorrow at noon.

The German radio declared that President Ismet Inonu of Turkey had left to meet Roosevelt and Churchill, perhaps at Cairo.

Stalin apparently was already back in Russia, after the first conference of the "big three."

Axis and neutral reports indicated Stalin had approved plans for a great invasion of Europe to shorten the war against Germany, and to press the assault on Japan planned a few days earlier with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in north Africa.

Those who beam allied propaganda from London to Europe were inclined to consider their efforts dulled by the delay in making the results of the conference public, since widespread leaks and speculation took away the element of surprise.

Some feared that the impact of the communique when it is announced would be weakened since the Germans already had a propaganda counter-offensive well under way in anticipation of an allied psychological offensive.

While this formal announcement still was awaited, speculation was rife on what the decisions might be. These guesses covered the probability that the big three had agreed upon a master plan for a great invasion of Europe and an allied military leader to command it, a concerted program in the Balkans, and such political problems as measures to deprive Germany of the power of aggression after the war ends.

It was evident that a great breadth of subjects had been covered in the meeting. The Moscow announcement Friday night said that all three leaders were accompanied by their highest military and diplomatic advisors. The British embassy at Moscow stated that both the British and American ambassadors to the Soviet union had attended along with their military missions.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen printed a dispatch from its Budapest correspondent saying the Turkish government had ordered all Turkish students to leave Germany immediately.

Recently there have been indications that Turkey might be planning to enter the war on the side of the allies and in any case she would be concerned in whatever plans the big three may have made for the Balkans.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A smoldering controversy between senate Democrats broke into the open yesterday with a charge by Senator Guffey (D-Pa.) that southern members of his party had joined in an "unholy alliance" with Republicans to "deprive the armed forces of America of the right to vote."

Guffey asserted that the coalition which junked the administration's service men's vote measure in the senate Friday and substituted a "state's rights" proposal also was out to kill the anti-poll tax bill.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government last night authorized a nine-cent boost in the ceiling price of corn, from a prevailing level of $1.07 a bushel to $1.16, Chicago basis, and simultaneously froze the price of oats, barley and sorghum grains preparatory to issuance of a permanent regulation within sixty days.

The new corn price is effective Monday. Oats and barley are frozen at the highest prices of the five-day period from Nov. 29 to Dec. 3, inclusive.

The temporary sorghum grain ceilings are established at prices approximating parity at these basic points:

At Kansas City, $2.38 a hundred weight; at Texas common plants, $2.42; at Los Angeles and San Francisco, $2.76.

Both actions were announced by the office of price administration, acting under a directive from Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson and with concurrence of the war food administration.

SUMMER PALACE, above, or the snah in Teheran, the capital, is regarded as a possible site for the reported conference in Iran of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Premier Josef Stalin.

Pro-Russ Partisans Establish New Regime in Yugoslavia

LONDON (AP)—The strongly pro-Russian Yugoslav partisan movement announced over the free Yugoslav radio yesterday it had set up a provisional regime in opposition to the existing exiled government now sitting in Cairo and recognized by the allies—including Russia.

The development thrust before the united nations was the sharpest Balkan problem to arise since Hitler's ouster from that area became a reasonable military prospect.

The partisans announced that 140 delegates had created a parliament and governing body for territory already wrested from the Nazis. The government is headed by Dr. Ivan Ribar, first president of the constitutional assembly formed in Yugoslavia after the last war and a former member of the Serb democratic party.

Tito New Field Marshal Gen. Josip Broz (Tito), military leader of the partisan movement, has been elevated to the rank of field marshal and made chairman of a new committee for national defense, the broadcast continued. Josip Smoljaka, former Yugoslav minister to the Vatican, was appointed minister of foreign affairs.

Nothing was said in the broadcast of the government of Dr. Bozidar Puric at Cairo, of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, Chetnik leader, and Puric's minister of defense, or of the youthful King Peter.

The war bulletin issued from Broz' headquarters said 30 Nazis were killed in heavy fighting between Glima and Petrinja in western Croatia and that bitter fights were going on along the Croat-Slovan border. It reported a reverse in Macedonia where partisans evacuated the town of Debar near the Albanian border after a sharp fight with German units.

Countrywide Flavor Yugoslavs here said the personnel of the new government ran from extreme leftists to liberal democratic. The choice of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes for subordinate officers appeared to be an effort to give Ribar government a countrywide flavor.

While the followers of Mihailovic have implied they consider

97 Percent Ignore Labor Dispute Rule On Cool-Off Period

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ninety-seven war plant strikes out of 100 apparently ignored the cooling-off process prescribed by the war labor disputes act during the first three months it was in effect.

This estimate of the ratio of compliance with the new law was based on national labor relations board records and information supplied yesterday by government sources. Further, a co-author of the act foresaw little likelihood that congress would attempt to enforce the provision for a strike ballot procedure.

The Connally-Smith-Harness act, which congress enacted last June after the third general coal strike, provides that whenever a labor dispute threatens war production, representatives of the employees shall file a notice with three government agencies.

The employer and employees are required to continue production for at least 30 days thereafter and on the thirtieth day the NLRB is required to conduct a secret poll to determine whether the employees wish to interrupt production.

In the three months following enactment employe representatives filed 197 notices which conformed with the law's requirements. Of that total, 144 subsequently were withdrawn, leaving 53 on which to conduct votes. In 47 of those 53 polls, the majority of the employees voted in favor of striking. Only about 15 strikes materialized after balloting.

These 15 strikes, however, were only a relatively small proportion of the war plant stoppages during this period. Government sources estimate that at least 500 such strikes occurred. Thus, only about three strikes in every 100 are called after compliance with the act.

Fire Guts Boardwalk At Atlantic City, N. J.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—An entire block of buildings between Virginia and Maryland avenues on Atlantic City's famed boardwalk was completely gutted last night in a fire already estimated to have caused $250,000 damage.

Police stated that as yet no cause for the blaze had been determined. The fire was still burning at 1 a. m.

Allies Gain on Rome Reds Approach Zhoblin Yanks Bomb Cape Gloucester

Showers 179 Tons Of Explosives on Jap Base in New Britain

Liberators, Mitchells, Maudraiders Cause Heavy Damage

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Sunday (AP)—Stepping up an aerial offensive against the western sector of New Britain island, Liberators, Mitchells and Maudraiders have dropped 179 tons of explosives on the Japanese air base at Cape Gloucester, headquarters announced yesterday.

Cape Gloucester is on the western tip of New Britain, the island to which Japan has hinged all other southwestern Pacific positions, and is in an area vulnerable to invasion from ground forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur on nearby New Guinea.

The new raid, the heaviest ever made on Cape Gloucester, left the entire air base afire and caused heavy damage.

Recently Raided

Allied planes have been pounding Cape Gloucester and nearby Borgen bay recently.

In the same sector, on New Britain's south central coast, aerial bombardments of the Gasmata airdrome have been augmented by the first naval shelling ever directed at the pivotal island.

In northeastern New Guinea, Thunderbolts waged an air battle with 24 enemy fighter planes over Wewak, downing four without loss.

On the ground, Australians battling in the jungles of New Guinea's Huon peninsula to rid it of Japanese, ran into sharp fighting after capturing a point within half a mile of the enemy's jungle high point of Wareo.

Nongora Falls

Nongora, a half mile south of Wareo, was captured.

Wareo is in the inland jungles of the peninsula, approximately 11 miles northwest of Finschhafen. It is connected by trail with the coastal point of Bona which fell a few days ago to Australians.

In the northern Solomons, where Americans hold a beachhead at Empress Augusta bay on the western coast of Bougainville, action was limited to ground patrols.

From headquarters of Adm. William F. Halsey in the south Pacific came reports that his air forces continued to hit bypassed enemy supply points well to the southeast of the beachhead despite inclement weather.

Fifth Army Spears 2 Miles Within 'Winter Line' in Italy

Smashing forward behind an air and artillery bombardment so titanic that some German troops were driven insane, Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British Fifth army has broken into the heart of the enemy's winter line to a depth of two miles and is driving toward Rome "according to plan," the allies announced yesterday.

The thunderous bombardment which laid down a curtain of fire in front of Clark's charging troops was described as one of the greatest in the history of warfare—perhaps even greater than that which broke the German line at El Alamein in Egypt, because it was concentrated on a smaller area.

Extremely bitter fighting continued yesterday as the Fifth army smashed into the maze of fortifications on and around 2,800-foot Monte Camino, four miles southwest of Mignano. The assault, aimed in the direction of the vital highway center of Cassino, already had driven the Nazis from the important Camino and Maggiore heights west of Mignano.

The British Eighth army, knifing ahead on the Adriatic flank, reached the outskirts of San Vito, 16 miles below the port of Pescara, and in fierce fighting captured the important highway and railway center and market town of Lanciano, situated on a 900-foot ridge where the Nazis resisted bitterly.

General Montgomery's troops also captured the town of Treglio, three miles south of San Vito and four miles inland, and successfully beat off a Nazi counterattack there. The most impressive Eighth army gain came 12 miles inland, where the British Eighth army stabbed forward six miles to seize Orsogna, nine miles northwest of the Sangro river.

The thrust through Orsogna drove a deep wedge into secondary defenses the Nazis had established on the Eighth army front and severed road and rail lines without which the enemy could not hope to make another stand anywhere near the Sangro.

Front line reports disclosed that even the arrival of reinforcements had not enabled the Germans to retrieve the great piles of guns, ammunition and other equipment they abandoned on the battlefield in the Fossacesia area in their first disorganized flight.

NOTICE

Freshmen, sophomores and unclassified students are urged to get their registration materials and make appointments with their advisors tomorrow through the registrar's office. Advisors now have ample time to confer with students, according to Harry G. Barnes, registrar, but they will be rushed at the end of the semester.

Local Soldier, Listed As Dead, Is Alive

Harley Holderness Slightly Wounded In Italian Campaign

Staff Sgt. Harley Holderness, Iowa Citian reported killed in action in the Italian campaign, is alive.

In a telegram received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Martha Holderness, 126 3rd avenue, the war department reported that Sergeant Holderness was slightly wounded in action.

Mrs. Holderness had received news of her son's death from the war department only Thursday.

War Department Explains Mixup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Inquiries concerning several instances in which relatives were notified recently that men had been killed in action, then told that they were not dead, but wounded, resulted yesterday in this explanation at the war department.

In connection with the transmission and receipt of one list from Italy involving one type of casualty, an error was made. All next of kin who were misinformed have been apprised of the facts along with the profound regrets of the war department; this is the first error of this kind to come to the attention of the department.

Cox Ruling Stands

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner K. M. Landis refused yesterday to change his Nov. 23 ruling, which barred William D. Cox, former president of the Philadelphia National league club, from holding any office in organized baseball because he had wagered on the Phils.

U. S. S. LISCOMBE BAY, ESCORT CARRIER, SUNK

FIRST AMERICAN ESCORT CARRIER to be lost is the U. S. S. Liscombe Bay, torpedoed and sunk during the invasion of the Gilbert islands, the Navy department has announced. The Liscombe Bay was the same type "baby flat top" as the U. S. S. Casablanca, a picture of which is shown above. The Liscombe Bay was the only ship lost in the Gilbert operation, the Navy communique said. (International)

Nazis Fleeing From Gomel Pass Through City as Soviets Near

11 Towns Captured From Hitler Forces In White Russia Area

LONDON, Sunday (AP)—Russian forces swept to within eight miles of Zhoblin, big trunk railway crossing, in their pursuit of the Germans retreating from Gomel Saturday, and in the Ukraine pounced out new gains in a drive to link the important Kremenchuk and Cherkasy bridgeheads, Moscow announced today.

Several hundred thousand Germans, who have now fallen back 40 miles in 10 days since Gomel was captured, were streaming through the bottleneck town of Zhoblin as the Russians battered into the railway station of Khalch, said the Moscow midnight communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor. This town is eight miles from Zhoblin on the rail line from Gomel, and its fall marked a four-mile frontal advance on the junction from Solianovka, taken Friday.

Another Russian push in White Russia threaded through wooded and marshy ground northwest of Propoisk—north of the Zhoblin area. Here the forces of Gen. Markian M. Popov were thrusting a spearhead to the upper Dnieper near Mogilev, capturing 11 towns and a heavily fortified height. Over 300 Germans were killed in this area as they retreated, as least one battalion fleeing in disorder, abandoning two artillery batteries.

Miserable weather was hampering both of these White Russian drives but Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky's forces heading for Zhoblin rounded up 30 more towns and hamlets in an advance that also captured Gorodets, 14 miles northeast of Zhoblin and an equal distance southeast of Rogachev, a district center on the north-south trunk railway.

Zhoblin itself is on the Leningrad-Odessa north-south railway and the Minsk-Gomel east-west line. Its loss will not be fatal to the Germans since they still have junctions available to the north or south, but its capture will aid in the cleanup of Germans still on the east bank of the upper Dnieper and render useless to the Germans still another portion of the railroad from Zhoblin south to Berdichev.

This latter railway was virtually useless to the Germans only a few weeks ago, but their counterattack in the Kiev bulge won back Zhitomir and Korosten, leaving the Russians in control of a section between Zhitomir and Korosten and a section at Ovruch.

Chinese, Japs Fight for City

CHUNGKING (AP)—Heavy fighting inside Changteh and outside of the walled city was reported yesterday by a Chinese communique which said the ancient city had been "mostly destroyed" during the last ten days by Japanese bombing and shelling.

(A Tokyo broadcast said Japanese troops completed occupation of the city Friday after it had been encircled Nov. 25.)

The fighting in central China was described by a Chinese army spokesman as the heaviest since the battle for Shanghai in 1937, and the most important struggle for Hankow in 1938.

The Chinese high command said Chinese troops were attempting to encircle Japanese forces in northern Hunan province, and were waging successful counterattacks. The communique said part of a Japanese force south-east of Changteh had been wiped out.

The Vanishing Faces—

As I walked up the worn wooden steps I could see a hundred faces I thought I had forgotten. . . time had erased the names, but the faces were still in their proper order. . . I could even remember some of the things these faces had done. . .

I began to wonder what had happened to these people I thought were so important then. . . and the things we all laughed about many years ago. . . I suppose a good many of them are in the service or have families and are living average American lives. . .

Perhaps the most successful person of the lot, as far as money goes, is a girl who sat next to me in 4th and 5th grade. . . her name was Florence, and when I walked into the classroom I found her initials carved on the lower part of the desk, just as she had put them there nearly 15 years ago. . .

I found my own carved on the next desk alongside another set. . . I can't remember now who the girl was, but I know I didn't like her half so well as Florence, whose interests lay in other directions. . .

Today Florence is famous in her own right. . . but she has shortened her name. . . she is now known as "Little Flo" and is a burlesque queen in a good sized midwestern town. . .

Thinking of her brought to mind my most embarrassing grade school experience. . . the teacher, a mean and haggard woman of about 65, had left the room during the water color lesson, leaving strict instructions that we were to paint the landscape we could see from the window. . .

Not being able to draw a straight line, much less use water colors effectively, I turned my talents in another direction and painted a beautiful blue mustache on my face. . .

Upon returning, the teacher saw what I had done, grew very mad and sent me to the cloak-room for the remainder of the morning. . . as I now remember it I was extremely hungry at the time, so I nonchalantly picked up someone's lunch and began to eat it, throwing the bread crusts and orange peels about the floor when I finished. . .

The teacher was not too pleased with all this, and so took me firmly by the arm to see a higher authority, the principal, who was even more mean and haggard looking than she. . .

She told him what I had done, and he grew quietly angry. . . "Young man," he said, "this is a serious offense. . . but I'll be good enough to give you a choice of punishment. . . you can either stay after school every night for two weeks or accompany me on a little tour of the classrooms right now and explain to the pupils what you have done. . .

Courageously, I chose the latter. . . the principal then produced a battered old hat (which I think he had been reserving for just such an occasion), put it on my head down past the ears, and a long knife which he put crosswise in my mouth. . .

In such a fashion, then, mustache, knife, hat, principal and I started off on our "little tour". . . the lower grades weren't so bad. . . everyone merely giggled as I blushed and explained. . .

But the thought of entering the sixth grade room, which contained the biggest and toughest boys in school, was frightening. . . But enter we did, amid sneers and laughter from the class. . .

The principal changed his tactics. . . "Wouldn't you hate to meet this hat looking pirate on a dark night?" he said cunningly. . . whereupon, one of the toughies at the back of the room stood up and replied loudly: "Hell no!" . . . he was subsequently thrown out of class, and for several weeks I had to re-route my walking to and from school. . .

A long series of such episodes plus disgustingly low grades culminated in a "friendly little test" given myself and a few cohorts by what we were told was a small group of "nice" men and women who were interested in "finding out more about us. . ."

I thought the examination was some kind of honor, although for what I couldn't quite figure out at the time. . . the questions were all very easy, I thought, especially the main

News Behind the News

Truman Committee Looking For Somervell
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON—The man the Truman committee is looking for behind the Canal deal is Lieutenant General Somervell, head of the office of service and supply.

He is supposed to have been the guiding factor in the adoption of the project, but he has been out of the country for some time, and the committee has been unable to get his testimony.

War Under-Secretary Patterson made no attempt to blame the deal on Somervell in his testimony before the committee. Naturally, he defended it because he had passed on it as Somervell's superior. The committee members learned of it only privately from other authorities.

The matter is of more importance than meets the eye because Somervell is head of the New Deal faction in the war department, and has been mentioned as possible successor to General Marshall as chief of staff, as Harry Hopkins' good friend.

This may or may not be one of the reasons why a report from the committee has been held up. The committee members are strong in their criticism of the project, despite the army defense of it. They call it a deal arranged by Standard Oil company of Indiana and the Imperial Oil company, apparently without much enthusiasm on the part of the Canadian company.

The current discussion over its feasibility probably never would have developed had not oil Poobah Ickes stumbled upon information concerning it, quite by accident.

Committeemen suspect the oil eventually may cost a fabulous amount, perhaps $1.00 or $1.50 per gallon. Cost involves a 500-mile pipe line, drilling in the frozen north, and some evidence indicates oil from California could have been transported to the Alaska battle areas by inland waterways much cheaper.

Chandler Machine Breakdown—

The Republican election victory in the normally Democratic heart of Kentucky, the fourth congressional district, forecasts the final break-up of the Happy Chandler machine. He lives in an adjoining county, and the Democratic candidate was his selectee. Whatever excuses, therefore, could be offered for the loss of the state in the earlier gubernatorial election on the ground the Chandler factions did not go along sufficiently, were not true in the fourth district.

The election also was a conclusive response to some readers of this column who misinterpreted my analysis of the gubernatorial election as partisan Republican propaganda.

The margin of Republican victory this time in the district was around 12,000 votes, compared with Democratic victories by a margin of 15,000 in 1940, 10,000 in 1938, and 17,000 in 1936—representing a turn-over of 27,000 votes in 90,000 cast.

So It Can't Be Done?

A man who says a thing can't be done should bear in mind that his testimony is entirely negative. In court negative testimony never gets as much weight as positive. If one witness says he heard a clock strike at a certain time, and another man declares that he didn't hear such a sound, the one who says he did hear it is likely to be telling the truth. When a man says a thing isn't so, it is well to ask him: "Then what are the facts?"

one: "If you were a detective, and you found a body cut into 64 pieces, would you think the crime was murder or suicide?" . . .

It was some years before I discovered why my father got so mad when I told him about the test. . .

There were other events, too, which are now almost forgotten. . . the time our sixth grade teacher hid the cake we had gotten for a class party and took it home to her father. . . the time my chum and I found a huge idle steamroller on the way home from school one night, climbed in, drove it, and casually pushed a quarter of a block of new curbing into the ground. . .

And then there were the inevitable class plays. . . I remember the little colored boy who was supposed to be a ghost, and was scared to death himself. . . in order to occupy his dangling hands, he put one finger in his ear and began to wiggle it about while he spoke, as if trying to soothe some violent irritation. . .

"Ah's a ghost," he would say, "and ah's come to haunt ya," all the time wiggling his finger for all he was worth. . . I was sitting on the side and could see the teacher frantically trying to catch his attention. . .

Finally, as he backed over near the curtain a long arm darted suddenly out and yanked his hand back down to his side. . .

There were a lot of other things I remembered before I left the now-vacated and dilapidated old building I hadn't been in for over ten years. . . some were sad things, some happy. . . they were all distant, fading, as if in another world. . .

But I suppose that's the way we'll all look at our college experiences 20, 30 or 40 years from now. . . the big things we think we are doing today will be at best vague memories, and perhaps we'll think a lot of them were foolish and trivial. . .

But we'll all remember the faces, wonder what they are doing, if they are still alive, and then let them almost vanish into the unreal world of our grade school memories. . .

From The Iowan Files

Dec. 5, 1941 . . .

President Roosevelt had dispatched a personal message to Emperor Hirohito of Japan in the midst of darkening war clouds in the far east, it was disclosed by the state department the preceding evening.

The president's direct message to the emperor who is regarded as divine by the Japanese, was immediately interpreted by Well informed sources as a reflection of his dissatisfaction with the explanation made by Premier Tojo of Japan through the Japanese envoys here as to the reason for the Japanese troop concentrations.

The message also was viewed as possibly a step of last resort to avert an open break with Japan since it was considered unlikely that Mr. Roosevelt would communicate directly with the emperor unless virtually all hope had been abandoned of a satisfactory agreement of Pacific difficulties.

The Johnson county Red Cross was making plans to form a local Red Cross nurse volunteer unit for aid in civilian disorders. The tremendous drain on the corps from the army and navy nurse reserve made it necessary for the recruiting of more nurses for the home front.

Dec. 5, 1938 . . .

A pay-as-you-go policy for the forthcoming vast armament program was laid down by President Roosevelt but he indicated that he hoped that this might not necessitate an increase in the federal tax burden.

"The Blue Bird" played to a capacity opening night crowd at the University theater the preceding night and was acclaimed by the critics as "one of the most delightful things ever to come to the Iowa stage."

Sporting a cast of more than 100, the extravaganza held the audience spellbound with its action and scenic beauty. Harlan Harbell, his magicians had filled to the overflowing, appeared here twice the preceding day as the third university lecturer of the 1938-39 season.

The audience did not understand his "eyeless vision" but were astounded when he called six persons from the audience and told them their names, the position in which they were standing on the stage, or read from cards and letters they drew from their pockets—all while completely blindfolded.

Dec. 5, 1933 . . .

A new program which would radically reorganize the League of Nations in the hope it might attract within its doors the United States and other world powers, had been launched, it was learned by The Associated Press.

The movement was under discussion in several European capitals, it was disclosed. Its sponsors desired that Russia, Germany and Italy as well as the United States come into the league as members.

The ideas behind the program were not yet clear but it was certain that it wished to erase the existing league articles that bound signatories to use military and economic forces to preserve the boundaries at the Versailles treaty.

The Lindberghs were reported safe in South America at Natal, Brazil after completing their 1,875 mile hop from Bathurst, Africa, across the south Atlantic.

I believe no other novel in 1943 will prove as abundant as this one, as full of insight into as many different men and women, as idiomatic in speech or as opulent in narrative prose, as powerful in its acceptance of human motive, as warm in its sympathy with poor human emotions, or as cool in its detachment while those emotions corrupt lives and take life, as varied in language, word following word in rich precision.

"At Heaven's Gate" is the story of the efforts of Sue Murdoch (a beautiful young woman wanting not to be merely a beautiful young woman) to understand who she is, to realize what qualities, out of the incalculable number available to the people of this earth, go to make up her own singular self. The burden of her effort is made up of her relationships with others, largely men: her father, Bogan Murdoch, in control of financial interests of many kinds; from whose too dominating and indulgent affection Sue recoils into the willing arms of Jerry Calhoun, a young, intelligent but not really perceptive college athlete in her father's employ; of Slim Starrett, a boxing aesthete of ambiguous intentions in love, poetry, honesty, and plain murder, and of Sweetie Sweetwater, labor organizer, most mature of her friends, most aware of the cunning hopes of men and their cruel limitations, most understanding of Sue in her desperate pursuit of herself.

The main narrative of Sue's struggle to make sense of it falls into four areas—the financial world of Bogan Murdoch, which involves every one from Jerry Calhoun to the governor of the state; the country house of Bogan Murdoch, with its horses and meetings of powerful men; the gatherings of a group of young university "intellectuals" in the city, and the barren mountain farm of Jerry Calhoun's father. The money transactions and the men involved are done with great accuracy and shrewdness, but I am left with the wish that more space had been devoted to them, that they had been more particularized, since it is a financial failure which precipitates the violent climax of the book.

The scenes at Bogan Murdoch's house are brilliantly written. In particular, there is the character of Bogan's father, Lem Murdoch, an old and savage man of decaying mind. The story of how he killed a man many years before, told to an uncomprehending Negro in a disintegrating wagon (falling to pieces as rapidly as Lem Murdoch's life) is one of the great sections of the book. The prose moves cleanly and with a fierce restraint around the ponderous bulk of the old man sneaking to town to kill a man.

Those parts dealing with the aesthetes, the phonies, the effeminate around the university is the least interesting of all. Not that signatories to use military and economic forces to preserve the boundaries at the Versailles treaty.

The Lindberghs were reported safe in South America at Natal, Brazil after completing their 1,875 mile hop from Bathurst, Africa, across the south Atlantic.

Strong beyond any one definite character in the novel is the general character of life that grows out of its soil like a rapid and flowering vine. Each person is like a lark singing at heaven's gate. But the gate never opens. Sue Murdoch above all climbs with a desperate and finally self-destroying exertion into the wide and empty sky. The good succeed no more than the evil, for they have, in the end, only the effort they have made and no real attainment beyond it. The evil endure in their soft and easeful and destructive lives. Even the noblest character, the rejuvenated and God-groping Ashby Wyndham, comes into misery through too rigid a belief in his Christian principle.

Yet it is not simply good against evil. No man is alone honorable or corrupt, but in each is the persistent contention of both. Jerry Murdoch, on the whole an honest

The Setting for This Picture, "The Sullivans," Is Waterloo, Iowa By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The setting is a little Catholic church in Waterloo, Iowa. It is a solemn moment, and the congregation is kneeling in devout attention. The camera is concerned here with the occupants of one pew—one family, four little boys, one little girl, a father and mother. The camera moves slowly before the pew, pausing briefly on each of the rapt faces, resting at last before the emotion-worked faces of the father and mother. What the family is watching is the first communion of its youngest member, a fifth little boy who (when you see the picture) will be kneeling at the altar railing. The father whispers, aside to the mother, "We've a lot to be thankful for." The mother whispers back, smiling, her eyes a little misty, "Yes. . . Our fine family. . ."

It is a scene for "The Sullivans," story of the five brothers who gave their lives in this war. It is a scene from their early lives, and it is especially poignant in the light of the destiny that awaited them. Being made at a time when war pictures are losing favor at the box-office, "The Sullivans"—story of the American family hardest hit by the war—conceivably could suffer with the rest, but Lloyd Bacon suggests, new courage.

Iowa State Edges Out Seahawk Cagers, 31 to 29

Cyclones Lead Throughout

Lehr Is Seahawks' High-Point Player; Scores 9 Points

AMES (AP)—The Iowa State basketball team defeated the Iowa Seahawks 31 to 29 last night, leading throughout the entire game, though by only one goal at times.

Their high-point man, Lyle Lehr, accounted for 12 points. The last five minutes were packed with excitement. The score was 29 to 27 for Iowa State with five minutes to go. Gene Oulman scored to give them a four-point margin; then a minute and a half before the final shot, Paul Murphy made a goal for the Seahawks, bringing the score to its final standing.

Pre-flight Richard Lehr tried two long shots in the last 30 seconds, failing on both. Though he was in the game only during the second half, Lehr scored nine points for the Seahawks. Half-time score was 19 to 10.

Drake Opens Card With 60-33 Win Over Cornell College

DES MOINES (AP)—The red-hot, red-shirted Drake university basketball players started their season with a 60 to 33 defeat over Cornell college of Mount Vernon, here last night.

Cornell once enjoyed an 8 to 7 lead but the visitors stuck at that point as the Bulldogs, headed by Jack Edling flashed to a 22 to 8 margin. At one stage the winners counted nine points in two minutes and 28 seconds. With that advantage, Mentor Bill Easton put in an entire new team which played eight minutes of the first half as a unit and held a 33 to 17 advantage at half time.

Bryce Hubbard, an accurate one-handed shooter from Dixon, Ill., who counted 13 points, was the Cornell highlight.

Commissioner Landis Says, 'No' to Plea Of William D. Cox in Open Hearing

Former Prexy Tries To Prove Admission Of Bets Part of Plan

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK (AP)—For six and a half hours yesterday, William D. Cox, recently resigned president of the Philadelphia Phillies, pleaded with Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis to take back the decision barring him from baseball for life for betting on ball games. Then the commissioner spoke for half an hour—and said "no."

In an open hearing in a jammed hotel meeting room, Cox tried to prove through his own testimony and that of a series of witnesses that when he admitted to Landis that he had made 15 or 20 bets of from $25 to $100 each on the Phils, it was all part of a plan to "smoke out" some one in the Phillies' organization of whose loyalty he was suspicious.

Then Landis summoned Nathan Alexander, an office employe of the Phils, and Bucky Harris, who was fired by Cox last July as manager of the club. Both gave

AAU Group Approves All-Time Records

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The records committee of the amateur athletic union approved a host of time-shattering 1943 performances by athletes at its 55th annual session yesterday and approved one feat as a national mark after holding sanction in abeyance since 1942.

The committee approved the 39-foot 3 3/4 inch heave with the 56-pound weight made by Frank Berst of the New York Athletic club in New York, June 20, 1942, after a year's delay in which the group's inspectors determined the "course was not downhill."

Among the marks given official sanction were: American swimming records—

Redskins Need Only Two More Victories

Meanwhile, Giants Still in Running For Eastern Crown

CHICAGO (AP)—Unless the Washington Redskins settle down today or the next Sunday, the eastern division is likely to wind up in the wildest finish in the history of the national football league.

All that the Redskins need to gain a clear eastern title and a place in the Dec. 19 championship game with the Chicago Bears is a win or even a tie in either of their remaining games—both with the New York Giants.

But until Washington turns that trick, New York will continue to be in the running for a piece of the crown. If the Giants take both of these contests they certainly will gain a tie, but in that case the Phil-Pitt Eagles can slip in and make it a three-way, simply by beating the Green Bay Packers today at Philadelphia.

The 1941 western tie between the Chicago Bears and the Packers is the only instance in which a divisional playoff has been necessary. But the triple-deadlock prospects in the east have the league chiefs dizzy.

If such a wacky conclusion occurs, a "semifinal" playoff between two of the tied teams would have to be staged Dec. 19, the date of the intended inter-league championship game. Then the winner would meet the third eastern finalist on Dec. 26 in the final playoff, thus postponing the real "world series" match with the Bears to Jan. 2.

The Washington-Giants game at New York and the Packer-Eagle tussle at Philadelphia are the only ones scheduled today. Brooklyn, Detroit and the Chicago Cardinals have closed their slates, as have the Chicago Bears who must resume practicing Tuesday for their championship effort.

The Giants will face the Redskins with both of their starting ends—Willie Walls and O'Neale Adams—out with injuries. But Washington may not be able to use guard Dick Farm, also hurt, although slinging Sammy Baugh is reported in good shape once again.

However Baugh always had tough going against the Giants. For instance he has thrown 78 touchdown passes in his career but only four against New York. Naturally Coach Steve Owen's troupe figures it has Sammy's number and will be out for more of that kind of pass defense work.

The Packers-Eagles game will find Jack Hinkle of Phil-Pitt and Tony Canadeo of Green Bay both trying to overtake the Bears' idle Harry Clark for the 1943 ground-gaining championship. Hinkle needs 45 yards to do it, while Canadeo must roll up 109 yards to beat Clark and more than that to beat Jack Hinkle has a bad day.

This game, incidentally, is being hailed as "Don Hutson's final national football league appearance," but since the record-smashing Packer end has retired each of the last two seasons little emphasis will be put on this ballyhoo until his No. 14 jersey actually shows up on someone else's back next fall.

ers who requested similar information were referred to others responding. Encouraged, the commission announced it would prepare a directory of "where to hunt and fish," listing persons interested in catering to hunters and fishermen.

In line with its promise to recommend the first good offer, the commission referred the hunter to a Lincoln county landowner, Michigan and Pennsylvania hunt-

TIME OUT

by Dolores Rielly

Sports smatterings from here and there:

To reminisce a bit, we recall that the last time Denver U. cagers met the Hawkeyes on the basketball floor here was about four years ago when Maj. Clyde Hubbard, now commanding officer of the pre-Meteorology school, was coaching them. He also brought a team out here about seven years ago. . . . Iowa meets the Denver team here Jan. 1. . . .

In this week's Sprints, official newspaper of the Navy Pre-Flight school here, is a story about Commanding Officer Capt. David C. Hanrahan's "promotion" in the world of sports:

"The football team gave Captain Hanrahan a promotion Monday night. Elevated from his post as 'First String Quarterback,' the Captain is now known as 'Admiral of the Seahawk Task Force.' The title was bestowed on the Skipper at the football dinner in the Hotel Jefferson, and a big 'N' sweater, complete with four gold stars on the sleeve, rounded out the presentation from the team."

In the same issue of the paper was also the sad story about Lieut. (j.g.) Ned Loken, of the gymnastics department of the pre-flight school:

"Lieutenant Loken's wife undoubtedly was shocked to learn that the Seahawk tumbler lost his pants Saturday night in a Minneapolis hotel. It's not as bad as it sounds, because a prowler entered his room, made off with pants, wallet and everything. A search Sunday morning located the pants and this week he received the wallet ($8 or $7), which the thief deposited in a mailbox."

According to statistics sent out by the Western Conference Service Bureau this past week, Wisconsin, which had a constantly shifting personnel, used 17 ball carriers over the season, while Indiana had the fewest, just eight. Ohio State had only nine carriers, Iowa 10, Michigan 12, Minnesota 11, Purdue and Illinois 14 and Northwestern 15.

Yesterday ended The Daily Iowan poll for Iowa Citizens' choice of the two outstanding teams in the nation and the two top players. . . . The results of the poll will appear in the column, Schweitzer Says, Tuesday morning. . . .

Illinois Cagers Jump On Alumni Group, Taking Opener, 51-35

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois basketball team jumped on its own "whiz kids" alumni group plus assorted other former Illini stars last night to take its 1943-44 opener, 51 to 35.

Displaying an entirely new ensemble from the group which won the Big Ten title last season in torrid fashion, the Illini took a 19-14 halftime lead and turned on a blast of power in the second half to roll up the score. Don Delaney, University of Detroit's center last year, scored 10 points and Freshman Walt Kirk of Mt. Vernon, Ill., 15 to set the pace.

Whiz Kids Ken Menke, Jack Smiley, Art Mathisen and Gene Vance—all now in the service and en route to their camps after playing in the Chicago all-star game last night—performed for the alumni, Menke bagging 10 points and Mathisen nine.

Marquette Downs Wisconsin, 49-43

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Marquette's basketball team piled up a 14 point lead in the first 10 minutes of play and then choked off a late game rally to win a 51-43 victory over Wisconsin last night.

The Hilltoppers, after a slow start, moved out in front 22 to 8 with half of the first period gone and added on this lead to leave the floor at half time ahead by a 33 to 17 count.

After the intermission Marquette quickly made it 49 to 28 before Coach Bill Chandler withdrew his regulars.

His reserves however, gave ground before the determined Badger five who bagged 14 points while Marquette was held scoreless.

Best pointmaker on the floor was Center Ray Patterson of Wisconsin who got 17 points on seven field goals and three free throws.

Great Sports Boom Anticipated After War

If history repeats itself on the athletic front after the war, we can anticipate the greatest sports boom in the history of this country.

That prediction was made yesterday by Hugo Goldsmith, veteran official of a Cincinnati athletic goods manufacturing firm, who said his conclusion was not based on wishful thinking but rather on reference to his ledgers after the last war, which reflects the boom in sports during the early 'twenties.

"I think if we look back over the history of this country we will find there has been an upsurge in sports activity after every war," Goldsmith said. "Soldiers of the Civil war carried baseball bats into every corner of the country. I believe we can say that following the Spanish-American war, baseball again enjoyed new prestige, college football came into its own, basketball spread throughout the country, and boxing and other sports benefited, too."

Minnesota Tramples St. Mary's College, 54 to 32 in Opener

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota had too much speed and shooting ability for St. Mary's college of Winona, Minn., and defeated the Redmen, 54 to 32, in their season's basketball opener last night.

Ray Lipscomb, St. Mary's center, topped both teams in scoring with 11 points. Duane Baglien, forward, and Bill Wright, center, each got ten for the Gophers. Minnesota had a 25-11 lead at the half.

Big 10 Cage Teams Face 1944 Season With Only 16 Lettermen

However, Will Have Many Transfer, Freshmen Players

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN CHICAGO (AP)—Big Ten basketball teams face the 1944 campaign with a holdover stock of only 16 lettermen, a third of whom were regulars last season. But a fine supply of transfer students and freshmen should take up the slack and help provide a colorful championship race.

Michigan, Purdue and Northwestern not only are the best blessed with lend lease aid, but also have the greatest number of lettermen on hand. Michigan can build from Dave Strack, Bob Wiese and Don Lund; Purdue has Paul Friend, John Swartz and Jack Kennedy, and Northwestern boasts of an especially strong group in Otto Graham, George Felt, Nick Vodicik and Ronnie Schumacher.

Thus the "big three" control 10 of the 16 available monogram wearers and can back them up with this excellent material:

Michigan—Dick Schrider, Ohio State letterman; Wayne Thompson, Kalamazoo, Mich., college star; John Leddy, member of Southern California's national champions several years ago; Tom King and Tom Paton of Michigan State and Rex Wells of Idaho State.

Purdue—Bill Lodge and Charles Haag, stars of last season's year-long team which won the quadrangular Big Ten tournament; Dennis Horn, Bill Kriegbaum and Ed Umverzag, outstanding Hoosier state preps; Jim Gustafson of North Dakota, Sam Vacanti of Iowa and John Churchilla of Illinois.

Northwestern—Sophomores Dave Thompson, 6-7, Toledo, O., center, John Ward of Green Bay, Wis., Duane Sickles and Bernie Schaefer of Benton Harbor, Mich., Jack Harker of LaSalle-Petu, Ill., and Larry Savage of Saginaw, Mich.—members of last year's frosh squad; and transfers Jim Schmidt of South Dakota State, John Schlesinger, Lou Lovik and Everett Nelson of Nebraska and Jerry Carle of Minnesota.

Other Teams Here is a brief review of other teams:

Wisconsin—Building around Ray Patterson, 6-3 center and two-year veteran, and guard Bill Johnson, a reserve. . . . Three minor letter winners—Desmond Smith, Bill Lovshin and Al Ryser—and 11 service trainees make up the rest of the squad. . . .

Indiana—Harry Good, only new coach in Big Ten this year, has one veteran, Ed Scheinbein. . . . But a host of Indiana prep stars give prospects of a team with height, weight and speed. . . . Illinois—Coach Doug Mills' current squad of 33 has 19 former Illinois prep standouts, including Gordon Gillespie of Chicago, Dick Foley of Paris, Bob White of Keewaunee, Ray Demoulin of Mulberry Grove, Bob Morton of Elgin, Don Sudkamp of Champaign and Howard Judson of Hebron. . . .

Ohio State—Jack Dugger, regular center, returns. Coach Harold G. Olsen also is counting heavily on freshmen Jimmy Wells, 6-4; Don Grate, 6-2; Paul Houston, 6-3; Bob Bowen 6 and Arnold Risen, 6-8 1/2 center from Kentucky. . . . Iowa—"Pops" Harrison does not have a single veteran, not even a holdover from last winter's frosh group. . . . Best prospect among nine rookies is Jack Spencer, 6-foot guard who was of Davenport, Iowa. . . .

Minnesota—Coach Carl Nordy also starts from scratch, losing all 10 of his lettermen. . . . Among a dozen 17-year-olds are Gordon Muske, 6-5 center from Wahpeton, N. D., and Duane Baglien, speedy forward from Fargo, N. D. . . . Other prospects include forward Bill Wright and guard Kenny Johnson, Carleton college transfers.

Chicago—Coach Kyle Anderson has 18 boys, most of them freshmen. . . . He can choose a team averaging 6-1, however. . . .

Western Michigan Spills Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Western Michigan's Broncos from Kalamazoo came back from a 33-to-24 halftime deficit last night to spill Ed (Moose) Krause's Notre Dame basketball quintet, 46 to 42.

The defeat dropped Notre Dame to the 500 level class the South Bend hoopers having triumphed in their opener last week.

man, refuses to condemn Sue's grandfather for killing a man out of a false sense of honor. So disastorous does this seem to Sue that she leaves him, and thereupon begins the devious course of her life down to her final and terrible doom.

It is strengthening in this summer of 1943 to find a novel so crammed with the urgency and horror and rightness of human life. A novel written with so sharp an irony, so various a tone, so fluent a rhythm, of such exact and idiomatic conversation. A novel with such distinct conceptions of character, no types, no blurrings save in Sue Murdoch, who is not finally realized in the book, perhaps because she is never realized in her own self. It is fine to be able to praise a work of fiction vigorously and with so little qualification.

Ballad Singers Acclaimed By New Yorker

Sextette to Sing Here Thursday Night in Iowa Union

"One of the best entertainments of the year," according to New Yorker magazine, the American Ballad Singers who are to appear here Thursday, present an unusual musical experience as the sextette sings with gusto the folk tunes of this country.

Well-known soloists in their own right, the six singers who make up the group are Helen Yorke, soprano, former prima donna in the "Broadway Melody" show over the Mutual broadcasting system for one and a half years; Ruth Fremont, soprano, who has appeared frequently with the Steel Pier Opera company of Atlantic City.

Earl Waldo, bass, has sung leading roles in "Student Prince" and "The Miracle" and most recently returned to his original role in the Broadway success "The Vagabond King," and has also appeared in grand and light opera throughout the country.

Lester German, tenor, the original Prince of Song in radio, has sung with leading choirs and glee clubs throughout the country. Dolf Swing, baritone, brother of Raymond Gram Swing, appeared in opera, concerts and oratorio in Europe for 12 years before returning to America to continue work in radio and choral groups.

Elie Siegmester, composer-director who leads the group in their informal round-the-table singing, first became active in his search for American folk ballads about nine years ago. At the beginning of his career, Siegmester organized choruses of working people—mechanics, painters, department store clerks, truck drivers—who presented 40 to 50 concerts a year in places where concerts had ever before been given.

While presenting these programs, he discovered that his listeners had their own music, too, which had not been written down because musicians and music audiences never had a chance to hear it.

Siegmester's interest in native music is continually increasing and has led to the American Ballad Singers and to his own unique contribution as a composer who is close to the people.

The program which the American Ballad Singers will present here Thursday provides a condensed and lively folk history of America. Among the selections chosen for this concert are sea chantees, spirituals, courting songs, mother-in-law tunes, hill-billy novelties and songs for victory, including Siegmester's recent composition "The Ballad of Douglas MacArthur."

Ruth Reininga First in Contest

Ruth Reininga, A4 of River Forest, Ill., placed first in the after dinner speaking contest of the western conference women's discussion tournament held Thursday and Friday at Northwestern university. Nine Big Ten schools took part in this tournament at which Louise Hillman, A2 of Bettendorf; Velma Martin, A2 of Laurens, and Eleanor Keagy, A4 of Ottumwa, received a rating of excellent among approximately 40 participants in the discussion groups.

Prof. A. Craig Baird, and Gordon Hostettler, both of the speech department, also attended the conference.

SUI Band Concert To Be Wednesday

The university concert band, under the direction of Prof. C. B. Righter, will make its first public appearance of the current season Wednesday in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Included on the program will be numbers by the Russian composers Mussorgsky, Stravinsky and Rachmaninoff, England's Percy Grainger and Gordon Jacob, the French composers Massenet and Debussy, two contemporary American composers, Ernest Williams and Russell Howland, and an original work for band by Wagner. Several of the numbers to be presented have not been previously heard in Iowa City.

The concert will be the first of a series of three planned for the 1943-44 school year. The second, to be given early in the second semester, will feature popular and modern American music, and the late spring concert will include standard major works.

All concerts by the university band are open to the public without charge. Tickets for Wednesday's concert are available at the main desk in Iowa Union, Whetstones' and room 15 of the music studio building.

HEADING FOR 'THE SILVER SKATE'

DAVID DIGGS, D4 of East Moline, Ill., a member of the party committee for the "Silver Skate" all-university semi-formal held last night in Iowa Union, poses with Mary Louise Nelson, A1 of Cedar Rapids, and lends a helping hand to her black velvet evening wrap. Mary Louise's formal is of white net with a frilly drop-shoulder line, a full layer skirt and ruffles for eye-catching femininity. Glitter is added by the gold sequin design on her skirt and by her gold accessories.

***
"Pome"—For Men Only
Did you convey your date to the "Silver Skate"?
If you didn't you certainly should have.
The formals they wore really fascinate.
Read this and you'll wish that you would have!
And if you think we're just talkin', here we have proof of the fascinating formals donned by the Iowa coed last evening to put her best beau in the Christmas spirit.

JEANNE FRANKLIN, A4 of El Reno, Okla., chairman of the party committee, captured the holiday mood in a white taffeta formal. Trim was provided by a wide band of black taffeta at the hemline and a narrow band around the sweetheart neck. The shoulder straps were also of black taffeta and an added attraction was the applique black taffeta bow which rippled in the folds just above the black flounce of her skirt. Jeanne wore with it black sandals and a white wool princess-style evening wrap which fastened across the front with three mink-tail buttons. Sparkle was provided by her rhinestone earrings, bracelet and evening bag to make an outfit which definitely won the approval of date George Anderson, advanced military student on campus.

A light blue net formal with fluffy blue ostrich feather trim—that's such stuff as dreams are made of. It was worn by GINNY ALM, A4 of Decorah, another member of the committee in charge of the dance. The gown had a fitted bodice and a full skirt over blue taffeta. The feathers trimmed the sweetheart neck and drop-shoulder line. Silver accessories and a chipped diamond bracelet completed Ginny's outfit, which charmed the eye of her escort, Eddie Bayus, A. S. T. P. engineer, and the stag-line.

Red and White Marquisette
Exciting as a package marked "Do not open before Dec. 25" was JANE RANDOLPH, A2 of Marion, Ind., a third member of the "Silver Skate" committee. The bodice of her marquisette evening gown was formed by two wide strips of red criss-crossing in the middle and shirred for fullness up the front and around the cap shoulders. The skirt was of white marquisette with a wide panel of red on each side. With this formal Jane wore rhinestone earrings, a matching rhinestone necklace and red sandals to make her escort, George Shively, A. S. T. P. language and area student, cast an eye of admiration as he helped her into her black chesterfield evening wrap of the smart new three-quarter length cut.

Did you ever see a dream dancing? Then you didn't catch a glimpse of EILEEN SCHENKEN, A2 of Marion, in her black net formal with the full skirt and drop-shoulder line. The gown had a torso bodice with frilly net ruffles around the top and a net ruffle which provided a peplum effect below the waistline. A bunch of satin-sheen imitation red roses caught in the folds of her skirt added a gay touch. Eileen wore long black jersey formal gloves, white sandals and a white evening wrap.

TWYLA GETTERT, A2 of Davenport, was bright as the top light on the Christmas tree when she danced last night in a cherry red net formal. The fitted bodice was shirred in three panels and the wide shoulder straps were sprinkled with white sequins. Twyla chose a dainty strand of

Brudick, Roegle Wills Admitted to Probate

Two wills were admitted to probate in district court yesterday and appointments of executors without bond were affirmed by Judge Harold D. Evans.

The Iowa State Bank and Trust company will be executor and trustee of the estate of Lyman C. Brudick of Iowa City, who died Nov. 22. Henry Negus is the attorney.

Executors of the estate of Joseph W. Roegle, who died in Iowa City Nov. 16, are his wife, Mrs. Mary Ann Roegle, and his son, Clarence W. Roegle. The attorney is F. B. Olsen.

dipped at the waistline in a point over a full black taffeta skirt. A single strand of rhinestones edged the square neckline of the formal, and more rhinestones were sprinkled fetchingly over the short full sleeves. Her only jewelry was a single-strand rhinestone bracelet, and she danced in black satin slippers with solid rhinestone heels.

Cut with a subtle "know how" that's bound to please was the white jersey formal worn by BARBARA KIMMEL, A2 of Pleasant Valley. It had a v-neck and was fitted at the waist in a wide girle decorated with tiny gold studs. More gold studs trimmed the cuffline of the short gathered sleeves. Gold pendant earrings, a gold mesh evening purse and gold sandals created the delightful finishing touches. "Kim" topped the combination with a white bunny coat.

LIBBY SHANLEY, A1 of Kirkwood, Mo., was a dateable darling in a short torso bodice of black velvet and a full ice-blue satin skirt over which billowed two layers of black net. The top was designed with a sweetheart neck and three-quarter length sleeves—very demure, yet very sophisticated. Libby's sandals were black wedgies and her evening wrap was of cream wool with a small beaver collar.

So you see, if you rated a date to the "Silver Skate" you saw some of the smoothest formals ever! Eye-catching creations that are charming for 8 p. m. and on.
